The Hawaiian Trouble.

[From San Francisco Chronicle, June 18th.]

The whole difficulty in the Island Kingdom, in spite of exaggerated reports and accounts, may be aptly summarized as a tempest in a teapot. There is about as much probability of turning the Kingdom into a republic as there would have been in the Grand Duchy of Gerolstein. As a matter of fact, there is nobody there who wants a republic. The natives do not, for all their history and traditions center round a monarchy, and an absolute one at that, and they have about as much idea of the genius of republican institutions as a Piute Indian has of Hebrew. The foreigners do not want a republic, for under such a form of government their stealings and pickings would necessarily be less and their chances to feather their nests greatly diminished. The King surely has not turned Republican. He is not ambitious of joining Daudet's kings in exile. His salary of $25,000 a year, even with the cares of state oppressing him, and anxiety as to where he can make the next loan keeping him awake at nights, is better than skirmishing around in Paris or Berlin, leading a precarious existence on the relics of his former greatness.

The trouble is simply a variation on the very old and yet ever new squabble between the ins and the outs. One clique has obtained possession of all the fat offices and big salaries, and all the rest of the cliques make common cause against them. If there were offices and salaries enough to go around, or if a system of rotation in office could be arranged, with the term of periodical revolution sufficiently short, there would be no talk of change in the form of government.

Besides, there might be an obstacle in the way of deposing the King and upsetting the Government which has not been thought of. The convention between the Hawaiian Kingdom and Great Britain and France might turn out to be broad enough to cover just such a case as this. It is certain that if any advantage were sought by either English, French or Americans, by means of which any existing treaty rights might be imperiled, the other parties to the tripartite convention would at once protest, and enforce their protest in a manner which would be detrimental to the material prosperity of the new Government.

To sum up, then, inasmuch as nobody in the Sandwich Islands can have anything to gain by subverting the Government or changing its form, and inasmuch as it would be or might be a very dangerous experiment for all concerned, the chances of seeing a republic arise from the blue waters of the Pacific are not very brilliant, and all such rumors may be safely set down to the account of those who are out of office and are jealous and envious of those who are more fortunate. A turn of the wheel may put these malcontents into fat positions, and then none will be so loyal as they, and none so quick to scout the idea of Hawaii being anything but a kingdom.

Queen's Hospital.

The semi-annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Queen's Hospital was held on Wednesday, Hon. C. R. Bishop, the President, in the chair. In the absence of Mr. Schaefer, the Secretary, Mr. Paty read the minutes of the last meeting, which were adopted.

Treasurer, Mr. Paty, read his report for the six months ending May 31, which showed the receipts to have been $26,104 17, and expenditures $29,-. Balance against the hospital, 80.

The report of the Home Physician, Dr. McKibbin, was read and accepted. The Visiting Committee presented a report.

MASS MEETING

Called to Discuss the Political Situation.

A Large Gathering at the Rifles' Armory—A New Constitution Demanded—Full Report of the Proceedings.

Pursuant to a poster which had been placarded around town, a public meeting was held yesterday afternoon at the Honolulu Rifles Armory for the purpose, as it was announced, of taking "into consideration the present mal-administration of public affairs, and to consider means of redress."

A large crowd of all nationalties nearly filled the building, but comparatively speaking there were very few Hawaiians. A platform had been erected on the Beretania side of the building, and it was draped with Hawaiian, American, British and Portuguese flags. Below the platform was a table, which was occupied by representatives of the P. C. ADVERTISER, "Bulletin," "Daily Herald," "Gazette," "Elele," "Pae Aina," "Kuokoa" and "Chinese News."

The Honolulu Rifles were drawn up in line on Beretania street, facing the front entrance of the building. Each private carried seventy rounds of ammunition and the officers were armed with revolvers. They were under orders in case of any disturbance. The three companies turned out strong and presented a very creditable appearance.

By 1 o'clock most of the business houses had closed, and Marshal Kaulukou gave orders for all the saloons to close up, which was done.

Among those present in the hall were noticed Hons. C. R. Bishop, W. L. Green, Paul Isenberg, S. B. Dole, W. R. Castle, John A. Cummins, S. Parker, Wm. G. Irwin, Cecil Brown and L. A. Thurston; Messrs, P. C. Jones, W. F. Allen, Jono. Austin, W. A. Kinney, T. R. Walker, Acting British Vice Consul; M. Robinson, A. Young, A. Hoffnung, E. C. Macfarlane, R. W. Hon. S. B. Dole nominated Mr. P. C. Jones as Chairman, and the nomination was unanimously accepted.

The Chairman, who was received with cheers, said: Fellow-citizens, I cordially thank you for this compliment of making me the mouthpiece of this the largest and perhaps the most important meeting ever held on these Islands. (Applause). We are assembled here in a constitutional manner for the purpose of addressing a communication to the King, asking for good government—something which we believe we have not had, and which we earnestly desire. (Applause). We are assembled here as fellow-citizens, comprising English, American, Hawaiian, Chinese, German and other nationalities, and can afford to conduct ourselves in a dignified manner. We have a dignified petition and set of resolutions, and it behoves us to do what we have to do in a firm and determined manner, as we are firm and determined in what we ask. (Applause). We have prepared a set of resolutions, which you will recognize the necessity of doing beforehand, and the first thing will be to read those resolutions. They will be presented to the meeting by L. A. Thurston, after which a communication which has been received from His Majesty the King will be read. We shall then proceed by asking several gentlemen to make short speeches. This is such a large meeting and in such a warm place, and we are so warmed up with the subject (applause) that we must make it short, sharp and decisive, (applause) no speaker taking more than five minutes, or if shorter all the better. (Dissentient voices). I will now ask your attention to the resolutions, which will be presented by Mr. Thurston. (Applause).

Mr. Thurston said that he did not expect to be there in uniform, but he had been ordered to be there in uniform, and he believed in obeying orders. He then read as follows:

We, the citizens, residents and taxpayers of Honolulu, acting, as we firmly believe, in sympathy with and in behalf of all right minded citizens, residents and taxpayers of this Kingdom, and being assembled in mass meeting in the city of Honolulu, on the 30th day of June, 1887, do resolve as follows:

1. That the administration of the Hawaiian Government has ceased, through corruption and incompetence, adequately to perform the functions and afford the protection to personal and property rights, for which all governments exist.

2. That while some of the evils of which we complain cannot be at once adequately redressed and their recurrence prevented, and many others are incurable except by radical changes in the present constitution, involving protracted delays; yet there are some evils which we feel must be remedied at once before a permanent reform movement can be inaugurated with any reasonable prospect of success.

3. Holding these views, we request of the King:

First—That he shall at once and unconditionally dismiss his present Cabinet from office, and we ask that he shall call one of these persons, viz.: William L. Green, Henry Waterhouse, Godfrey Brown or Mark P. Robinson, to assist him in selecting a new Cabinet, which shall be committed to the policy of securing a new constitution.

Second—That Walter M. Gibson shall be at once dismissed from each and every office held by him under the Government.

Third—In order so far as possible to remove the stain now resting on the throne, we request of the King that he shall cause to be made immediate restitution of the sum, to wit, seventy-one thousand dollars, ($71,000), recently obtained by him in violation of law and of his oath of office, under promise that the persons from whom the same was obtained should receive the license to sell opium, as provided by statute of the year 1886.

4. Whereas, one Junius Kaae was implicated in the obtaining of said seventy-one thousand dollars ($71,000) and has since been and still is retained in office as Registrar of Conveyances, we request as a safe-guard to the property interests of the country that said Kaae be at once dismissed from said office, and that the records of our land titles be placed in the hands of one in whose integrity the people can safely confide.

5. That we request a specific pledge from the King.

(1). That he will not, in the future, interfere either directly or indirectly with the election of representatives.

(2). That he will not interfere with or attempt to unduly influence legislation or legislators.

Resolved, that the committee of thirteen

TO WAIT ON THE KING,

Paul Isenberg,
W. W. Hall,
J. A. Kennedy,
W. H. Rice,
Captain J. A. King,
E. B. Thomas,
H. C. Reed,
John Vivas,
W. P. A. Brewer,
W. B. Oleson,
Cecil Brown,
Captain John Ross,
J. B. Atherton,

Is hereby appointed to present the foregoing resolutions and requests to the King, and said committee is hereby instructed to request of the King a personal answer to the same be returned within twenty-four hours of the time when the same are presented; and to further inform the King that his neglect to so answer the same within said time will be construed as a refusal of the said requests.

Resolved, That said committee, in case of the King's refusal to grant said requests, or in case of his neglect to reply to the same, is authorized to call another mass meeting at this place on Saturday, July 2d, at 2 p. m., to further consider the situation.

Hon. C. R. Bishop then read the following letter, which he had received from His Majesty the King about 1 o'clock that day:

HONOLULU, June 30, 1887.

Hon. C. R. Bishop, Member of the House of Nobles, Privy Councilor of State, etc.

My Dear Sir: Reposing especial confidence in your loyalty and sound judgment as a councilor, and knowing your regard for our people, we are moved to call upon you in the present condition of affairs in our Government, to say that we have called upon the Hon. W. L. Green to form a Cabinet and a Ministry which he may select and which will be acceptable to the respectable and responsible majority of our people will be welcome to us, and any guarantees which may be reasonably required of us under the Constitution and laws of our Kingdom will be at once conceded to such administration.

Your Friend,
KALAKAUA.

As Mr. Bishop's voice was inaudible in remote portions of the building, the letter was reread by the Chairman in a louder tone.

Mr. W. A. Kinney then read the resolutions in the Hawaiian language.

The Chairman intimated that as there were so many speakers it would be utterly impossible to have all the speeches interpreted.

The first speaker called upon was

Hon. W. L. Green, who was greeted with loud cheers. His remarks, which were nearly inaudible, were to the effect that events had been so uncertain during the last few days that it had been impossible to prepare any address, not knowing up to the last moment what course they might take, and the letter from the King had turned their whole course. The meeting had assembled to express themselves as to the past and in regard to the future, and he urged upon the speakers to keep their language firm and decisive. He remembered a meeting held some three years ago he thought at the Lyceum. It was a large meeting, though not so large as this, and its object was to protest against the maladministration of the Gibson Cabinet. He was not there, not being well, but sent a letter, in which he expressed himself in strong language. He need not go into the details—that could be done better by others; but they were met again to-day because from that day to this that same administration had been getting worse and worse until at last—— [Applause.] Let their attitude now be one which will teach His Majesty that he must turn over a new leaf, and see that this country is governed as a constitutional monarchy. He thought the King's letter precluded his saying anything further on this point. If he should be called upon to head a Ministry it should be one pledged to the common good, and which would carry out the resolutions passed there that day.

Mr. W. A. Kinney was next called upon to speak in Hawaiian. Before doing so he stated in English that he had been born here, and if it pleased God he would die here, and he hoped to die under the Hawaiian flag. He had no desire to see the independence of this country gone, but he wanted it to have a good name, which it had not to-day, and that could only be attained by the removal of the Gibson administration. [Applause.] He had often quoted a remark of Lord Chatham's, which would bear repeating—"It is time the throne was addressed in the language of truth"—and the truth was that those who were engaged in this movement meant to have a reconstruction of the Government. But it was the height of folly to suppose that they were going to send four men in as Ministers, and that these men would be able to do all that was required. [Mr. E. M. Walsh: We will support them.] He had every confidence in Mr. Walsh, but it would take a new constitution. That was what was needed, and that was what would come, and if he thought that they were going to get anything less he would not be there. The miserable rag of a constitution we had did not afford adequate representation nor impose proper restrictions upon the power of the throne. He believed it was written on the hearts of those before him, "A new constitution, and that speedily." It was the height of folly to suppose that commercial men and others in the community could stand and hold these men in their places. We had tried this kind of thing for the last six years. If the King wanted his own rights and those of seventy thousand men as well he made a mistake. If this had been the case in the past there was now a revolution of thought, and a revolution of thought was always followed by a revolution of arms unless redress were given. He had placed that flag (the Hawaiian) upon the table because he wanted all that was done to be based upon that flag, but he wanted its record to be cleansed by a new constitution, and then he would stake upon that flag his life and every cent he had, and even his sacred honor. [Applause.] "I say," he continued, "that these men who have begun this movement cannot draw back now if they would. If the men did not carry it on the women would." Did any man want to sum up mentally all that men, women and little children had suffered through disease alone he could not do so—women who had sent their little ones away from the country, compelled to live here in exile, because we were not men enough to put things right. No man could stop the movement now. The vessel had started, and the only thing to be done now was to jump to the wheel and push her forward.

Mr. Kinney then spoke in Hawaiian.

Hon. S. B. Dole, who was cheered as he ascended the platform, called attention to two thoughts which were suggested by the constitution. One was that the King conducts his Government for the common good, and the other was like unto it—all men have the right to assemble and consult together for the common good. They would not be assembled there that day if the King had conducted his government for the common good. They were met as reasonable citizens who wished to see the execution of the laws; but they meant business and intended to see their reasonable and lawful wishes carried out. That was a meeting, as he understood, to give His Majesty the King one more chance to fall into line and march with political reform. He could take it if he liked, but whether he did or not the political movement would go on. (Applause). He (Mr. Dole) did not say that the King deserved these privileges. He was there to talk about the King, not his Ministers, because he held him responsible for the condition of affairs. He had now one more chance to fall into line and work this reform with them. With the facts of the case all were familiar; they covered the whole grounds of the administration. There had been an unwarrantable interference on the part of the King with his Ministers and his sacred oath he had sold to the highest bidder. They had not assembled in hostility to any man, but they requested the King to put himself in the line of cleanness of Government and equal rights of all men. By these resolutions they took the first step. They asked him to return this money, which all believed he had accepted in a manner which stained the record of the throne; not because they respected or cared for the interests of those parties who have lost it, but because of the official records of the throne—as a guarantee that in the future the throne should be held sacred from that kind of influence. He did not know the future of this movement, but was satisfied they were there on reasonable grounds. The public moneys belonging to the people had been thrown aside and spent in every possible way. This movement had gone forward to such an extent that not to sympathize with it was almost treason. [Applause.] So he should support these resolutions, and ask all to do so unanimously.

The Chairman said he would next call upon one whose business it was to go into the bowels of the earth and bring out refreshing streams.

Mr. J. A. McCandless said he supported these resolutions, and in doing so he believed that he represented some fifteen hundred people. He was ready to support them with the last drop of his blood. He believed that there was a unanimity which had never before been attained. Fifteen hundred persons had been disfranchised for no other reason than that they were white men, and they were not going to have this much longer. They had a right to have their franchises granted unconditionally. [A voice: We'll take them.]. He was afraid there were some among them who were weak-kneed. One man had got his gun and taken it home and left a note upon the table with the words: "Good-bye; shall be out of town till next Sunday." That showed that there were some who wanted bracing up. There were men among them the grand-children of those who had fought at Waterloo and made it what it was; of the noble six hundred at Balaklava. They had among them some of the heroes of Appotomax, and also of the Franco-German war. These were the kind of men this community was made up of. Abraham Lincoln had remarked on the eve of the late war, "It may be necessary to set the foot down hard." And a great newspaper correspondent who was present said that he knew then for the first time that the great North was ready, and, concluded the speaker, from what I see here to-day I know that we are ready. [Applause.]

Hon. C. R. Bishop was the next speaker. He said it was unquestionably an important meeting—he thought the most important ever held here. He saw before him bankers, merchants, mechanics and men of all classes. They had not come as a matter of amusement, but because they felt that the times and the circumstances of affairs here called for action and the expression of an honest and decided opinion. It behoved them to use words of truth and soberness, without threats. They did not need to threaten. The fact that so many peaceable, sensible, substantial men had taken an interest in the matter was sufficient without threats. (Applause). He had lived here a good many years—since '46. He came here during the reign of Kamehameha III., and had lived under five Kings, who had ruled under substantially the same Constitution as we had now. In former days it was thought that we had a liberal Constitution because those Kings did not infringe the rights of their subjects. But we had found out within the last few years that our Constitution is defective, giving too much power to the Sovereign. It was not altogether due to bad advice, for he believed that the King was largely responsible for the abuse of the rights of the people; but he was glad to believe from the note received from the King that he was prepared to turn over a new leaf. He did not think they required a new Constitution. Some important amendments to the one we had would suffice, and he believed we should get them. People here were very slow to move in political matters, but when they did move there had got to be a substantial reform. He came to that meeting as a Hawaiian, and he wanted such reform as would be good for the native and the foreigner. He did not represent a class or a clique, but he came to ask for that which is right and just for all.

Mr. Henry Waterhouse spoke in Hawaiian. His Hawaiian friends had heard of the inefficiency of the constitution and the bad management of affairs of Government. Was it right? No. A new constitution was what they wanted to remedy the present evils. Hawaiians had no voice in the affairs and management of the Government. No, none at all. That was the reason of these resolutions. In the future you will laud us, the sons of the land. We have seen the bad and the mismanagement. Let us be firm though the heavens fall.

Mr. R. Jay Greene said he was not aware he had to speak, or he should have put on better clothes. He had come right from his work, because the boys had left him, and he followed them. He expected to keep right along following the boys.

The Chairman said that speech was short, sharp and decisive.

Hon. L. A. Thurston said they had been waiting a long time for this day, and at last it had come. All classes were there—English, Germans, Americans—but he wished to represent the Hawaiians. He had lived in the country since he was a foot high. His ancestors had come there in the days of Kamehameha I, and had lived and died here. And Hawaii was good enough for him if cleaned up and made honest. The majority of Hawaiians were imposed upon and had no leaders. A great many people living here were not brought into intimate communication with the natives. He had spent six weeks traveling through Molokai, where the community was essentially native, and he could say that the natives there were with the objects of this meeting as one man. It might be thought by some that that letter from the King rendered these resolutions unnecessary. He did not think so. History repeated itself in Hawaii Nei as elsewhere. During the session of the Legislature of '84 the King sent a letter to the Assembly enjoining economy, beginning with his own privy purse. There was a torchlight procession and a great speech was presented to him. But he went back on his word, and the appropriation was bigger than ever before. He did the same in '86, but it wouldn't wash then. They remembered the Moreno trouble. There was dissatisfaction with the Cabinet and a meeting was held similar to this, though not as large. The King intimated that it would be all right; there would be a new Ministry. Three cheers were given for the King, and there it ended. He did not think that any three cheers would be proposed this time. [Cries of "No."] And where had it landed us? Where we were to-day. Many had had their business almost entirely ruined by the mal-administration. And were they going to take him at his word again without anything more? [Cries of "No."] They meant "No." Even a written guarantee was not sufficient. They must have a radical change in the constitution. How was it to be secured? We want it now. Some said it would be unconstitutional unless brought about by the Legislature. Now, the constitution was a contract between us representing the people, and the King representing the throne. A contract could always be changed with the consent of both parties. The constitution was a self-imposed matter. It represented the boundaries put upon the power of the King and the rights of the people. If both agreed to change it there could be no violation of rights. If this opportunity were allowed to pass and they were simply going to take a change of Ministry, the new Ministry might be put out next month. The only way was to change the constitution now. Therefore let them send back a Ministry committed to the policy of giving us a new constitution. This was the first, last and only request, and let it be insisted upon to the last moment.

Hon. Paul Isenberg said that on many points he agreed to these resolutions, but as far as the new constitution was concerned he was somewhat doubtful. Let it be done legally. [Hisses.] The subject had been broached the previous day of his entering a new Ministry. If so, he would not be a party to pushing a new constitution through in a hurry. It would not be legal unless carried by the Legislature. [Dr. C. T. Rodgers: What Assembly gave us our present constitution?] We could have an extra session to pass the constitution. [Hisses and applause.] He hoped all would be peaceful and not hasty. [A voice: We have been waiting six years.] If so, we could very well wait another. [Great uproar and cries of "No, no." Dr. Emerson: "We won't wait another year." A voice: "We mean to have it now." Cries of "Sit down."]

Mr. Isenberg resumed his seat amid great sensation.

The Chairman said there should be a free expression of opinion.

Mr. H. S. Swinton said he was not go-

Popular goods, p[illegible]ng, who represented prices, at the Po[illegible] Works, said he was N. S. Sachs. P[illegible] upon the platform and [illegible] honest men in the face. [illegible] were men who not only looked what they meant, but meant what they looked. He was no speaker, but a thinker. He had come here 23 years ago, and at one time when he used to travel he was proud of living here. Lately he had done some traveling, and had had to hide his face when he found this flag stinking abroad. He represented a large class of men, not only in this country, but all over the world. The class he represented were the horny-handed sons of toil, who earned their honest dollar and could lie down and sleep without it burning them. He was ready to shoulder a musket to defend Kalakaua if he would be a King and not a knave, and Kalakaua was never safer than to-day. Some had counselled them to wait, but he said, wait not, strike the iron while it is hot. Kalakaua had had a great many years to let us see whether he was a man or not. The tension about our hearts had long been strained, and to-day the strings had broken and we must express ourselves. He was not a lawyer, and could not tell how far we could have a constitution in five minutes, but necessity was the mother of invention, and we must get it as soon as possible. There was not a coward in that assembly—not one, though it was not always wise to rush into mischief. If the King would not do what was wanted, he must be made to do it. Let us exercise patience and put the matter in the hands of people able to deal with it. Let us have a new constitution, and if it is not legal, the same power would make another.

Dr. J. G. Tucker said that this was the country of his adoption, and that gave him the right to say a few words. The Chairman, in calling upon him, had alluded to [illegible] that doctors sometimes differed, [illegible] thought they would not on the [illegible] discussion [illegible] That [illegible] had suggested to him the [illegible] thought that that meeting was like a body of [illegible] doctors in consultation upon a sick patient—a very sick patient. "When the devil was sick the devil a saint would be." He did not know how much honesty there was in that letter from the King. He had seen it in his submission before it was asked. [illegible] But we knew that that sycophantic sc[illegible] [illegible] emer was at work still, though he had and Je[illegible] resigned because the storm had grown too loud. But he was only skulking. His hand was seen in that letter. It [illegible] was our duty to be honest with the King. When he (Dr. Tucker) had first come here he had heard mutterings about the place, and it was of Gibson, but times had changed, and we not arraign the King. Our duty was to meet him and demand satisfaction. But the majority of people did not think Kings of much account anyhow in these days. [Applause.] He did not know, as many knew, that had it not been for the wise counsels of some of our best men his head would have been off ere this. We had waited six years for the redress of our wrongs, and wait another we would not. Forbearance had ceased to be a virtue. He wished the King to understand the abyss from which he had barely escaped.

Mr. L. C. Ables, who represented the clerks, said that he had come here to seek his fortune, but had not seen it. He was an American, but the Hawaiian flag would suit him as well, and he was going to stay by it. The class whom he represented wanted a new constitution, and they were going to have it. He was not a lawyer, but he had been told by lawyers that the constitution was promulgated by a King. It could be done again. Some would ask, "Are you going to get it?" In illustration of his determination to have it he related an anecdote about a certain youth who had evinced an indomitable determination in hunting for a coon wherewith to regale the appetite of a hungry Methodist preacher.

Hon. Cecil Brown addressed the Hawaiians, saying that the reason has no doubt entered their minds as to this assembling of foreigners. They had assembled to watch your rights under the constitution and laws. He always liked this flag, and did not care for any other. During the past six years, in view of what had been seen of the land, what was it that we now wanted? Let us have a new constitution—no Government official to enter the Legislative Assembly. Therefore, what was demanded is a demand to the King, the King of this country. When we received a new constitution, then we were all right. Only the other day we celebrated Queen Victoria's Jubilee. We should give to our King the same power as was accorded to Victoria. If she committed any wrong as has been done by our King, she would not now live over twenty-four hours. To the citizens of the country, our country, the foreigners did not assemble here for any other object but for rights and protection.

Mr. E. M. Walsh, manager of the Paia plantation, Maui, said that he represented the planters, who, he felt sure, would endorse the sentiments so ably expressed. In 1882 a deputation representing the plantations on the Islands waited on the King to petition His Majesty to give them honest government. The result was they were snubbed. The King afterwards went to North Kona, and with the assistance of his soldiers defeated Pilipo in the election. They came again that day. They did not want to use threats, but to-day they were prepared, and would not again be insulted. He believed it would be wise to change the constitution. He did not know the best way of changing it, but in view of the consummate skill which had brought this movement forward, he was ready to leave it to those gentlemen to see that it was done right. It seemed to him, however, that this was a time to have the voice of the people. From Maui all were with them. In 1882, as he had said, the King let them go with false promises. They took his word then. Now, let us prepare a [con]stitution and say, This is what we [wan]t and what we must have. [Applause.]

Mr. J. M. Vivas read the resolutions in Portuguese, and also made a few remarks, which were applauded.

Mr. J. D. Tucker said he had listened to the remarks about this flag. They had come to put their shoulders to the wheel for good government, and had come to stay till they got it. [Applause.]

Mr. W. H. Rice, who spoke in Hawaiian, said that our flag had been smeared with dirt, and therefore he wanted it to be clean and to be purged from all the stains upon it. How was it in the past years? Had the Constitutions and laws been abided by? We had taken our stand together that day and let us be of one heart and one heart. The Constitution and laws are to be observed without any harm, and not by the mild-suckers. He was a son of the land. Our wish was that it be observed and that we should have our demands without the shedding of any blood. That was not a day for us to go backward, but the ship was ready, the sails were set, and let the ship sail ahead. So say all of us.

Lieutenant C. W. Ashford was the last speaker. He appeared upon the platform in uniform, and armed with a rifle and belt of cartridges. He stated that he was under military orders, and had been commanded by his superior officer not to indulge in a political speech. He had not had the privilege of listening to all the speeches, but from reports which had been carried to the corps outside, he understood that a gentleman representing vast monied interests here had counselled the meeting to wait another year for a new Constitution.

At this point the Rifles marched round the outer edge of the building and took up their position inside to hear the speech of their comrade, and as they did so three cheers were given for the Honolulu Rifles.

Lieutenant Ashford, resuming, acknowledged the compliment on behalf of the corps. He had joined it three years ago in anticipation of trouble such as they saw that day. Returning to Mr. Isenberg's remark, he said that gentleman, in view of his position, would naturally have an aversion to anything having a tendency to disturbance. He (the speaker) did not want to fight, but by heaven if we did——. If we set about getting reform under the present constitution we might wait till our grand-children were grey. He felt sure Mr. Isenburg did not express the sentiments of that meeting, certainly not those of the Honolulu Rifles. At the same time he had the greatest respect for the great nation that gentleman represented. He thought that Germans were pretty well decided not to submit to dictation abroad, however much they might at home.

The German heart is strong and true,
The German arm is strong,
The German foot goes seldom back
Where armed foemen throng.

If armed foemen should throng here he did not think the German foot would go back. He wished to say a few words on the merits of a new constitution. It had been objected that we could not have it at once, because such a thing would be unconstitutional and illegal. He would show the fallacy of that argument. In 1864, when Kamehameha V. convoked his Legislature, it was thought that a new constitution was wanted. After some weeks they failed to agree upon one satisfactory to His Majesty. The Legislature was arbitrarily dismissed, and the King, without even saying "[by you]r leave," forced upon them a new constitution. That was the constitution we were living under to-day, and some people had the gall to say we were living under a constitutional government. He held that nothing was constitutional which was forced upon the people without their consent. The present constitution did not adequately protect personal rights, and it gave the King power which no monarch in a civilized country in the present day possessed. Who had ever heard of an absolute veto by the monarch anywhere in recent years. King Kalakaua had a great many very pleasant qualities, and many which were not so pleasant. Personally, he had behaved in a very friendly manner to the speaker when he came here, and perhaps would still if he were to truckle to him as some did. He continued at considerable length, contending for a new constitution, until cries of "Time" were heard, when he concluded by urging upon all not to let the matter drop until some sensible and concerted action was taken. [Applause.]

Hon. W. R. Castle moved the adoption of the resolutions.

Dr. N. B. Emerson seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The meeting then dispersed in an orderly manner.

The Committee went to the Palace and presented the resolutions to His Majesty, and then retired.

Inquest on the Late Fire.

The inquest on the late fire at Cunha & Co.'s store, Nuuanu street, was resumed in the Police Court building yesterday. The inquiry was instituted on the application of Mr. S. B. Dole on behalf of the Northern Assurance Company. The following evidence was taken:

Manuel R. de Madeiras, sworn, stated: Immediately after the fire took place I went to Frank Cunha's house and asked him if he knew that his store was burnt. He asked me if it were true or a joke. On assuring him it was true, he dressed himself and we went down together. We started within one hour after my arrival at his house. I went up in a hack. When we got to the ruins Cunha wanted to go inside the building, but he was not permitted to do so. He said he felt most sorry about the death of the boy. He knew nothing about the affairs of the business before the fire happened.

Antone Fernandez, sworn, stated: I remember the fire but did not go there. I saw John Cunha going home at a quarter past 7 o'clock the evening of the fire. I went to Cunha's house about 11 o'clock and told them that the store was burnt out. I stayed about four minutes and then went to my own house. After I had gone to bed a man came and asked me if I knew anything about the boy. No inquiry was made about the store goods. I do not know if John Cunha got up when I went to his house. I heard him speak. I did not know the boy was dead when I started out.

Jose Rosa, sworn: I knew the boy that lost his life. He sometimes slept in a room on the second floor of the store. I do not know whose business it was to close the store, or what is the regular time of closing. I do not know who carries the key of the store.

F. M. Swanzy, sworn, stated: I am connected with Messrs. T. H. Davies & Co. They are insurance agents. The premises destroyed were insured in their office. The building and stock had previously been insured for five or six years.

John Cunha, sworn, stated: I closed the store doors and locked them at 7 o'clock, together with Frank Cunha and the boy. Frank Cunha then said he wanted some meat for the dog, and the boy volunteered to go for it. In a little while he came back. I started for my house and the boy and Frank Cunha went together. I got to my house between 7 and 8 o'clock. About half-past 8 o'clock I went to bed. I heard no fire bell rung. I felt so scared when I was told that my store was burnt out that I could not speak. I did not go down town that night. I went down next morning at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Dole then addressed the jury. He said they would observe that there was no light burning in the store on the night of the fire, neither were there any matches there, and no apparent cause by which the place could be set on fire. It was for them to decide whether it was the result of a pure accident or not. The value of the verdict would be an expression of any suspicious circumstances.

The jury then visited the site of the [fire] and in all probability will render a verdict to-day.

A Correction.

It has been stated that "His Majesty the King was attended from the U. S. S. Adams to the Palace on Wednesday by a guard of a score of marines." This statement is entirely unfounded. His Majesty was accompanied ashore and to the Palace by Prince Keliiahonui and Hon. J. A. Cummins.

ECLIPSE

ECLIPSE CHAMPAGNE!

EXTRA DRY.

WE ARE NOW PLACING ON THE market the ECLIPSE CUVEES of 1879 and 1880, which for dryness and bouquet are unsurpassed, and are pleased to inform you that our efforts in producing a Champagne competing with the best Foreign Wines, have been appreciated, dispelling, in a great measure, the prejudice against pure native wines. The ECLIPSE will not only be found in every city in the Union, but has also found a market in the Republic of Mexico and on the Continent of Europe, where it is much appreciated by connoisseurs for its purity, lightness of alcoholic strength and exquisite bouquet and flavor.

WE GUARANTEE OUR

SPARKLING WINES

As absolutely pure, and they are par excellence the SPARKLING JUICE OF THE GRAPE. They are produced precisely as the high-grade French Champagnes, by fermentation in the bottle, REQUIRING TWO YEARS' CURE AND RACKING TO PERFECT, but differing from their foreign competitors in being neither strengthened with spirit nor flavored in any manner. We claim, and can substantiate our claim, that our Champagnes are the purest Sparkling Wines in the world, and quote from the report to a comparative analysis made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture: "Of 200 samples of wines analyzed, nothing has been found on this continent equal to the ECLIPSE. Containing only the normal percentage of alcoholic strength in dry wines 10½ per cent., and only 6.51 of Saccharine, and no fictitious flavorings." As a stimulant the ECLIPSE bears the highest recommendation of the leading faculty of the United States, and wherever exhibited for competition with any other Champagnes, either foreign or native, its merits are attested by the highest awards.

We caution you against the impositions of parties East and on the Coast, who are foisting on the market a "gas" or charged wine, under the name of California Champagne. Remember, none are genuine except those bearing our name and brand, on both cork and label, and which are sold with the guarantee of absolute purity.

HONOLULU, May 7, 1887.

HAMILTON JOHNSON, Honolulu:

Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of the sample of Haraszthy "Eclipse" Champagne taken by me from your store, and find that this wine contains no adulteration whatever, the acid present being the natural acid of the grape, while the "bouquet" and gas present are such as would result from the natural fermentation of the wines. Yours very truly,

GEO. W. SMITH,
Of Benson, Smith & Co., Druggist.
