THE GAELIC CANNOT STOP

QUARANTINE REGULATIONS WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED.

The Chinese Embassy Will Not Be Permitted to Land If Japanese Ports Are Visited En Route.

The O. & O. steamship Gaelic, which is due to arrive here on Saturday, will have on board the new Chinese Embassy, on their way to Washington. The party is a large one and the Gaelic has been specially chartered by the Chinese Government to carry them, so that there will be no accommodations for other passengers.

When the Gaelic was chartered for the Embassy it was with the understanding that a stop of two days be made at this port, to enable the high Chinese dignitaries to visit the islands. They will be very much disappointed on arriving here to find the gates closed against them, for the Board of Health has decided that no vessel coming from an infected port can land passengers here until they have complied with the regulation requiring complete isolation for a period of eighteen days and fumigation thereafter.

After a careful consideration of the subject the Board of Health has decided that no exception can be made to the rule—not even for a Chinese Minister. Recent advices from Japan say that smallpox is making great inroads upon the population in three Japanese ports where Pacific Mail steamers stop, and the run from the last port to this city is usually made in less than ten days. Of course, should the Gaelic come straight through from Hongkong, which is possible, and arrive here with a clean bill of health, all passengers will be permitted to land, without question.

"So long as the Gaelic comes from infected ports we cannot afford to permit her to land passengers, no matter how high their degree," said a prominent member of the Board of Health this morning. "This Government would be most happy to entertain the new Chinese Minister, but when he exposes himself to a contagious disease before coming here, as he most certainly does when the steamship stops at infected ports, we shall be obliged to keep our gates closed. It was only at a recent meeting of the Board that the matter was generally discussed. Prior to that time cabin passengers had been permitted ashore, so long as the vessel on which they arrived had a clean bill of health and the isolation period of steerage passengers was fixed at fourteen days. Now, since the disease has become epidemic in Japan, we have decided to treat all passengers, officers and crew alike, compelling the vessel to remain in quarantine for eighteen days after leaving the last port, and all passengers for the same length of time.

"This may seem like a hardship, but it is our only safeguard. If the disease once gets a footing here it may devastate the islands. It is a very serious matter. I wonder that the Pacific Mail Company consented, under the cirmumstances to stop over here. If the Gaelic comes direct from Hongkong, without entering the Inland sea, then there would be no trouble. But if she touches at one infected port we shall enforce strictly the quarantine regulations."

WAIKIKI BEACH HOTEL

WILL BE BUILT ON LAND OF BISHOP ESTATE.

San Francisco Capital Behind the Venture—Ten Acres of Land Will Be Leased for Long Term—The Plans.

When the Cabinet and Walter C. Peacock failed to come to a satisfactory understanding on the matter of a liquor license and the plan to transform the beautiful home belonging to Mr. Peacock, in Waikiki, into a beach hotel was abandoned, a feeling of disappointment was felt by the general public.

But when it became known that Mr. Peacock had thoroughly made up his mind not to build a hotel, a gentleman who knows that a beach hotel is badly needed here, at once set about with a will to consummate a scheme for the erection of a hotel.

While his plans are still in negotiation The Star has positive information that the proposition has met with such favor as to insure the success of his plans and the Honolulu public may count with certainty that a beach hotel will be running before the autumn leaves have finished falling from the trees.

The ten acres of land belonging to the Bishop estate and at present leased by W. W. Dimond will be the spot where the hotel will be built. The land is not for sale, but the company has effected a long lease of the property. The plans for the hotel building have not been finally completed, but suffice it to say that the hotel will be in every way a credit to the city.

One thing has been settled, so it is understood; the promoters of the enterprise are willing to accept the restrictions imposed by the Government on the sale of liquor. If this be true there can be no doubt but what the hotel will be a go. A company of San Francisco investors are at the head of the company. E. C. Macfarlane is among the principal Honolulu interested. Mr. Macfarlane declined to talk for publication regarding the matter.

REPLACED BY JAPANESE

WHOLESALE DISCHARGE OF WHITE MEN AT SPRECKELSVILLE.

New Manager Lives Up to His Name and Boots Out the White Man, Replacing Him by Orientals.

The startling information comes from the Spreckelsville plantation that Proprietor C. A. Spreckels and Manager G. M. Boote are discharging all the white men on the plantation. The positions, which are important and command good salaries, are being given to Japanese and Chinese.

Since the retirement of David Center as manager of the plantation, a little more than six weeks ago, a constant crusade has been kept up against the white labor employed on the plantation by the new manager, who hails from Louisiana, and who has had considerable experience in sugar planting in the Southern States. He has been letting his best men go as rapidly as he was able to break in some Oriental to fill the vacancy until last Saturday evening a big batch of the Anglo Saxons were notified that their services were needed no longer.

Among the last to go was Fred Myers, who has held the position of head luna for several years, Alexander Shepard, head carpenter; William Morton, plantation policeman; Mr. Smith, camp boss; Thomas Dunn, stable boss, the timekeeper and one or two others.

Myers will probably accept a position on the Waianae plantation on this island, under his old employed, David Center. Shephard has come to Honolulu and will probably hang out his shingle as a contractor. Mr. Dunn and one or two others of the men who were let out came to the city yesterday to seek employment.

These men were seen by a Star reporter this morning. They stated that they were notified of their discharge without a moment's warning and no explanation was offered.

"On Saturday evening I was handed my pay and told that I was not wanted any more," said Stable Boss Dunn. "I asked why I was let out so unceremoniously, but my paymaster offered no excuse. I then went to Mr. Spreckels, he being an old acquaintance of mine, and sought information from him. He replied that I was not the only one, that all the white men had been or would be taken off the pay rolls. When I insisted upon an explanation he stated that he was obliged to cut down expenses and that under the new management he had decided to do away with every white man possible, even to the heads of the departments, and to instate either Japanese or Chinese in their places.

"The proposition to work for reduced wages was not even submitted to us. Had it been I am certain that some of us would have been glad to have been allowed to remain on the plantation, even under those circumstances, as we were caught rather short in our sudden dismissal. I had been investing my money in one or two directions which I would not have done had I the slightest idea that such a change was contemplated by the management.

"Since Mr. Boote took charge of things about a month and a half ago, he has been letting out the best white men on the plantation one at a time. Still we never dreamed that wholesale discharge of the white labor would take place as it did on Saturday evening. The few white men that have been retained are feeling very shaky over their jobs and expect to be notified at any moment of their dismissal. One of the boys said to me when I left on Sunday that he expected to be 'Booted' out most any day now."

Chief Engineer Stoddard is under contract with the Spreckels brothers as is also T. F. Sanborn, the chemist. The latter is serving his second year. The life of his contract will expire in December.

Mr. Spreckels, while in Honolulu a few weeks ago, said that he was considering the idea of importing Italians to his plantations.

MORNING STAR ARRIVES

SEVERAL MISSIONARIES RETURN FROM THE SOUTH SEAS.

The Barkentine Absent from Port Over Nine Months—Capt. Bray to Relieve Capt. Garland as Master.

The missionary barkentine Morning Star, Capt. Garland, arrived this morning from the South Sea islands, after a tedious run of forty-three days from Ruk, the last stopping place. She brings thirty-one passengers and a small cargo of curios. Her passengers are: J. M. Channing and family; Miss Kinney, Miss Abell, Louis Mitchell and family, Charles Parker and family and two Japanese sailors, who accompanied Capt. Bray on a cruise in a small schooner a year ago.

The Morning Star has been absent from this port for nine months, during which time she has been visiting the various missions in the Marshal, Gilbert and Caroline islands. On the outward voyage she encountered some heavy weather, in which her foremast was sprung. The damage was repaired at Ruk, but the mast will now have to be replaced. The trip up was without incident. The little barkentine sailed nearly all the way, using steam only on one or two occasions.

J. M. Channing has had charge of the Gilbert Island Missions, with his residence at Ruk, for some time, and now returns here with his family. Mr. Mitchell was a missionary in the same group, and Misses Kinney and Abell, teachers in the school at Ruk. All have numerous friends here, and were received at the dock with open arms. Mr. Mitchell is a carpenter, who has resided in the Gilbert islands since 1882. Prior to that time he resided in this city for some time.

Capt. Garland will be relieved of his command here by Capt. Bray, the first master of the Morning Star, who was sent from here to Boston thirteen years ago to build the vessel. Capt. Bray only remained in the vessel about a year. Capt. Garland took command of her about ten years ago and has been her master ever since. For reasons best known to himself he tendered his resignation to the managing board last time the barkentine was in port and Capt. Bray was brought down from the Coast to relieve him. Capt. Garland will probably return in a few days to the States to join his family. When asked in regard to his future plans, he replied that he had none, but expected he "could make a living."

The mate of the Morning Star denied a Star representative access to the log, which is in his possession, so that particulars of the voyage were not obtainable. Through the courtesy of Capt. Garland the above information was obtained.

STUDY THE BIBLE.

Twenty Young Men Engaged in This Task.

Before his Bible class, which met in the Y. M. C. A. parlors yesterday afternoon, Dr. Charles M. Hyde after making a summary on the blackboard of the first three chapters in the Book of Ephesians, took up the third chapter in detail for discussion. Dr. Hyde stated that those who chose to ignore the gospel simply shut their eyes on history. The onward progress of the world dated back to it. He also incidentally remarked that the only solution of the great agitating question of the hour between those who have and those who want—Capital vs. Labor—was in Christianity. When the business of the world is conducted on a Christian principle all classes will be brought together. Dr. Hyde spoke of the little things in this life that go to make a success of anything. It was Napoleon's enormous intellect for details that made him the famous general he was. These ideas and many others were brought out in the study of Paul.

MURDER TRIAL AT WAILUKU

HOW THE VICTIM MET A TERRIBLE DEATH.

Three Alleged Murderers Held for Trial—One Man Allowed His Freedom—The Japs Made No Defense.

Three of the five Japanese arrested for the murder of Wata, the interpreter at Camp No. 3, Spreckelsville, were held to answer by Judge Kalua, in the sum of $2,000 each, to a charge of murder in the second degree. The case against one of the others was dismissed, and the evidence against the fifth man was insufficient to warrant the court in holding him

The defendants were represented by Paul Neumann and Chas. F. Chillingworth, and Deputy Attorney General E. P. Dole appeared for the Republic. The defendants were held to answer on the evidence presented by the prosecution, making no defence whatever. Mr. Dole returned yesterday from Maui, and to a Star reporter outlined the evidence in the case. The principal witnesses were Dr. E. F. Goodhue, Overseer Christopherson, ex-Policeman Morton and a number of Japanese.

Dr. Goodhue testified that he had examined Wata's dead body and found that death had resulted from concussion of the brain, due to blows on the head, probably with clubs.

Overseer Christopherson testified that the Japanese of Camp 3, about 300 in number, had come to him on the day of the murder, and told him that Wata had died from a beating he had at their hands. They asked for permission to quit work or the following day, in order that they might go to Wailuku and pay whatever fine was demanded by the sheriff there. On the refusal of witness to allow them to go, the Japanese went off in a body toward Wailuku.

Ex-Policeman Morton, who was with Christopherson at the time, corroborated this testimony.

The remainder of the testimony was by Japanese. They said that Wata had kicked a sick man on the day of the murder and embezzled money from the sick fund. When called to account he ran away into a plowed field, where he was pursued by his fellows, overtaken, slain and tramped on so quickly that no one knew how it happened. The story of how the Japs tramped over to Wailuku and spent the night in the sand dunes has often been repeated. So far as could be ascertained on the cross examination Wata was a man of general good character.

Deputy Attorney General Dole did not care to discuss the Japanese who testified. He said that to publish their names might complicate matters and he preferred to await the trial.

Hawaiian Electric Company.

The cleanest, brightest safest and really, in the long run, the cheapest and best light for use in the family residence, is the incandescent electric light. Safe; nothing could be safer. A few days ago a prominent gentleman of Honolulu came rushing down to the office of the Electric Company and said: "Give me figures for wiring my house, and I want it done at once; no more lamps for me. Last night a lamp tipped over and it came so near setting fire to the house and burning my children and I take no more risks."

This is the sentiment of quite a number in the past few weeks, who have ordered their houses fitted with the perfect light.

Just think it over and make up your mind that you want the best and safest light; send for the Hawaiian Electric Company and tell them what you want.

We have a complete stock of everything in this line and have just received a lot of the very latest designs in chandeliers.

The Company known throughout the world as the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO

Having met with the highest success in the manufacture and sale of the excellent liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, it has become important to all to have knowledge of the Company and its products. The great value of the remedy as a medicinal agent, and of the Company's efforts, is attested by the sale of millions of bottles annually and by the high approval of most eminent physicians.

The California Fig Syrup Co. was organized more than twelve years ago, for the special purpose of manufacturing and selling a laxative remedy, which would be more pleasant to the taste and more beneficial in its effects than any other known. In the process of manufacturing, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, and healthful in their tendencies, but the medicinal properties of the remedy are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative, and to act most beneficially.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxative or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

ALL ALONG THE DOCKS

ARRIVAL OF WILD SWAN FROM ESQUIMAULT STATION.

List of Her Officers—Island Vessels in With Heavy Cargoes of Sugar—The Morning Star in from South Seas.

The barkentine Skagit went alongside the coal dock this morning to discharge lumber.

The Aloha will be loaded by sundown, and Capt. Dabel hopes to be able to get away for San Francisco as soon as the Coast mail is opened tomorrow.

The American bark Amy Turner is ready to sail to Hongkong as soon as Capt. Wailand gets his mail by the Australia. He has been over three weeks in port, during which time he has had no word from home.

Since Saturday noon the following vessels have arrived in port with the of sugar named: Claudine, 5245; Mikahala, 5059; W. G Hall, 6200 and Iwalani, 5040. Very rough and nasty weather is reported by the Claudine.

The barkentine Klikitat finished discharging lumber Saturday afternoon and this morning hauled over to the Pacific Mail wharf, where she will tie up until after the arrival of the Australia with the mail. Capt. Cutler is anxious to get away tomorrow. The Klikitat will go in ballast to the Sound to load lumber. Mrs. Ella E. Stair and son, of Kauai, will go as passengers to Port Townsend.

H. B. M. S. Wild Swan, Commander Napier, arrived from Victoria yesterday morning, after a pleasant voyage of fifteen days. She is on her way to southern waters, but will remain in port here about three weeks. The officers of the Wild Swan and Marion are old acquaintances. The British gunboat went ashore in the harbor at Callao last September, while the Marion was at that port, and the Marion's diver made the preliminary repairs on her that enabled her to continue her voyage. Later the White Swan went ashore at Fanning Island, but without sustaining serious damage. Following is a list of the officers of the cruiser: Commander, Capt. Macvey Napier; lieutenants, W. D. Church and John Coke; navigator, Sampson Sladen; paymaster, C. Ward; surgeon, H. Marriott; chief engineer, H. ainsford; gunner, F. Blewett; midshipmen, J. Cole and C. Usborne.

The American ship Luzon, which arrived yesterday from Shanghai, was five months in the Chinese port undergoing repairs that cost her owners $30,000. On September 22 last she went ashore on the Woo Sung bar, in the Shanghai harbor and was at first reported to be a total wreck, as her back was almost broken. Afterward she was hauled off and went on the dry dock, where she remained for 80 days. She comes out practically as staunch and fast as ever. Capt. Park brings the Luzon on her first visit to this port. It is his first visit too. He has been trading between New York and Shanghai for ten years in the Luzon, but this is the first time he has taken her around the world, and only his second trip around, although he has been a master for twenty-four years. On the voyage out from Shanghai the run to within 800 miles of the islands was made in twenty-one days, but it took seventeen days more to get in here. The ship encountered one storm of four hours duration, during which Capt. Park says the wind exceeded in velocity any previously encountered by him in his sea travels. The Luzon will load sugar here for New York. She ought to get away within ten days.

Benson, Smith & Co. desire us to publish the following extract from a letter of Chas. M. Gutfeld, of Reedley, Fresno County, Cala., as they handle the remedy referred to and want their customers to know what a splendid medicine it is:

"It is with pleasure I tell you that by one day's use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I was relieved of a very severe cold. My head was completely stopped up and I could not sleep at night. I can recommend this remedy." A cold nearly always starts in the head and afterwards extends to the throat and lungs. By using this remedy freely as soon as the cold has been contracted it will cure the cold at once and prevent it from extending to the lungs. For sale by all druggists and dealers; Benson, Smith & Co. agents for the Hawaiian Islands.

THE ROYAL COAT OF ARMS

ARTIST VIGGO JACOBSEN EXPLAINS WHY THEY APPEAR.

Memorial Token to the Retiring Officers of the Hagey Institute Criticized —Jacobsen's Masterpiece Described.

One or two persons have openly manifested a dislike to the appearance of the Royal coat or arms on a memorial token presented by the Hagey Social Club to Col. G. D. Moore, J. H. Kirkpatrick and T. E. Cowart. The engrossing work is from the pen of Viggo Jacobsen. He says that there is no misunderstanding about the coat of arms, that the memorial is a private affair and that the committee that gave him the commission designated that the Royal Arms should appear.

The memorial was placed on exhibition in the Pacific Hardware Art window today. It is known as the thirteenth century style of ornamental design. On the left hand corner appears an allegorical figure of a woman drawing the sword of health, in defiance of the monster of disease, in the form of a serpent. The monogram of the club in a laurel wreath appears at the top and the Royal coat of arms at the bottom.

This work is Mr. Jacobsen's masterpiece in its line. In speaking of it today, he said: "Yes, it has been to me a labor of love rather than one of profit. You see, this kind of work does not command a price in Honolulu at all commensurate with the great expenditure of time and patient industry which it involves. In the British colonies where the presentation of such memorials are very numerous it is different, you know."

"What about that coat of arms?"

"Oh, I put that in at the express wish of those who gave me the commission. Some of the old boys, I suspect, lay the flattering unction to their souls that this is a case, as it were, of coming events casting their shadows before. However, it is no one's affair but their own, besides which the document is going across the seas to where, believe me, the public know little about our form of government and care less. Apropos of which I fancy that we in Hawaii are too prone to exaggerate our own importance, imagining ourselves the cynosure of the eyes of the world's people, that foreign statesmen are lying awake at nights pondering over our political problems and all that sort of thing, whereas if we knew how little we occupy their thoughts we would think ourselves very small fry."

HE COULDN'T SWIM.

But He Kept Hold of the Anvil When He Went Down.

They were talking about swimming at the city hall the other day, and among those engaged in the discussion was Jim Springman, the well known deputy marshal. Springman has charge of the cage at the city hall where the prisoners are detained before being taken into court, and also has charge of their transportation to and from the jail. He is a man of many stirring adventures and of remarkable physical powers. Therefore his remark that he cannot swim his own length was heard with not a little astonishment.

"But although I can't swim I've been overboard several times," explained Springman, "and have yet to be drowned.

"However, I came pretty near it one time during the war, when I was employed as an iron worker down at the wharfs. That day I was carrying a 75 pound anvil on my shoulder along the wharf, when the first thing I knew I was overboard in about 20 feet of water. I went right down to the bottom, but I didn't stay there but a second, and up I came. The moment I got my head out of the water I had sense enough to grab hold of a pile, and there I hung until they fished me out with a rope."

"Did they ever get the anvil, Jim?" asked one of the crowd.

"Did they?" remarked Springman. "Why, man, you may believe me or not, but I never let go of that anvil. You see," went on Springman, ignoring the smiles of the crowd, "I was walking along with the anvil on my left shoulder, and when I went down I shot down so quick that I hadn't time to let go of it. So when I bobbed up the thing came up with me, right on my shoulder, too, just where it was when I dropped overboard. You see, it was all done so quickly that I hadn't time to think, or else I'd let go of it, and"—

But the crowd had dispersed.—Washington Star.

AUSTRALIAN FEDERATION.

The Australian colonies have for years been agitating for and against federation. Elections for delegates to a convention which was to meet at Adelaide on the 22nd of March, have been held in four out of the five colonies. The only colony which is not ready with its delegates is Western Australia. The convention is to draw up a constitution for the federation. The constitution agreed upon by the delegates will then be placed before the various Parliaments of the colonies and undergo revision, but the final acceptance or rejection of the proposed amendments would depend upon the votes of the members of the Convention. Then the constitution will go before the people by a referendum, which has been found to work so well in Switzerland.

When laid before the people in this way the voting is simply "yes" or "no." If in any colony less than fifty thousand people vote for the bill, it will not pass. If, on the other hand, three colonies pass the constitution, they may petition the Imperial Parliament, through the Queen, for an enabling act to establish federation in those three colonies.

The great idea of some of the most advanced political thinkers is an imperial federation, but this will not come about until stronger pressure for the preservation of nationality is brought to bear. The idea of Australian federation is a step towards it.

The population of the Australian colonies has been increasing very considerably in the last five years. Including New Zealand and Tasmania it has risen from 3,809,895 to 4,323,155, an increase of over half a million, or 13.5 per cent. The lowest rate of increase was in the colony of Victoria, which counted but three per cent to its credit, while the largest rate of increase was in West Australia, which had the amazing increase of 177.1 per cent. This, of course, is due to the mines. In this connection it should be remembered that the figures are for the purely white population, neither colored population, cross breeds or coolies are counted in the calculation.

The federation of the whole Australian colonies will give a very powerful factor in the political influence of the Anglo-Saxon colonies of the South Western Pacific, and its influence as a whole will soon be felt upon the ultimate fate of many of the Islands to the northward. Its influence upon Hawaii will be nothing, its sphere will not reach further than Fiji, but it is interesting for us in Hawaii to watch the progress of the communities to the south of us.

PROGRESS.

Honolulu shows a wonderful amount of progress in the way of new buildings. In the heart of the city, within the last year or so, there have been some very handsome stores and offices erected, and the discovery of the blue building stone has added much to the appearance of this class of building.

From ten to fifteen years ago we thought that we were doing marvelously well when we faced our buildings with concrete and to that period belong the Judiciary and Executive buildings, the Campbell block, the post office, the Gazette block, Bishop & Co's. bank, and so forth. In the period before this, stretching back into the early seventies great pride was taken in a few brick stores, which now look very out of date compared with the handsome blue stone fronts of the present day.

The changing of the business houses from wood to brick, from brick to concrete facing, and, finally, to handsome stone, all mark a progress toward solidity. There was a time when, had Honolulu been abandoned, in a few years there would not have been a trace left of its existence. The town was then built of wood. Now, under similar circumstances, there would be much that would stand as permanent monuments, even if the place was deserted.

But it is not alone in the business portion of the city, with its handsome buildings and fine stores, that one notices the signs of prosperity. If anyone will take the trouble to drive or ride a wheel among the outskirts of the city, the rapid growth of dwelling houses will be a matter of astonishment. They cluster on the slopes of Punchbowl and stretch out along the plains beyond Punahou and spring up like mushrooms about Kewalo.

Among these new houses, built and in process of building, are those of people of considerable means, but what is the most healthy sign, is the growth of houses for people of small means. This shows the thrift of the population. A large number of these houses are the property of those who are dwelling in them. When a man owns his own home he becomes a very conservative member of the community. These hundreds of small houses that have sprung up are among the healthiest of the signs of progress. They show that the humbler classes of the community are prospering and that they are thrifty. People who are building up their homes save everything they can to reach the desired result. Many of these little homes are commenced with only two or three rooms and the intention is to enlarge them as time goes on and the family gets larger.

A country where the industrious mechanic and other wage earner can readily obtain a home for himself and those for whom he puts forth his best efforts, is a good one to live in. The signs in and around Honolulu are extremely healthy. The great progress in the building up of small homes has been made in the last five years, and those are the years of Republican rule.

If we look away from Honolulu on to the other islands the same story is told. Along the slopes of Haleakala, in the Konas, the two Kohalas, Hamakua, Hilo and Puna, the country is dotted with little homes. The land act has succeeded in giving the thrifty a chance to get ahead and a very large number have taken advantage of its provisions. The cutting up of the lands into small sections is one of the greatest pieces of legislation that we have had, and will, in the future, be of the greatest benefit to the body politic.

There is progress on every side of us. Progress on a large scale among the large ventures of the great capitalists and progress in what to The Star looks far healthier, progress among the bone and sinew of the people.

During the year 1896 we imported lubricating oils to the amount of over 112,000 gallons, valued at $16,166.24, and 3,855 cases of peanut oil, valued at $18,198.37—a total value of nearly $35,000. Now it does seem folly for us to go on importing what we can easily make ourselves. In the colony of Victoria the oil used for lubricating purposes in the railway department is made from plants grown in Gippsland. As they have government railways there, so they have a government mill for making oil. Their best percentage is obtained from linseed, which yields 27 to 30 per cent; hemp and peanut each give 23 to 25 per cent, and sunflower produces 16 to 18 per cent. We have no government factories but it does seem as if it would be worth while for some one to invest in the business of oil manufacture and keep the $35,000 paid for it in the country. This cry for new industries is perpetual, here is one ready at hand and returns would come in far more quickly than from coffee.

BROKE UP THE SHOW.

The Baboon Was a Genius, but His Antics Started the Row.

"A fellow never knows what he can do till he's put to it," volunteered the captain while the subject of hard times was under discussion.

"I was stranded out west one time years ago. It was a tough case, such as makes nine men out of ten throw up their hands. But I was too proud to beg and just barely honest enough not to steal. I did something that was only a shade better by investing my last dime in some cheap soap, cutting it up into little cubes, wrapping it in colored papers, mounting a dry goods box at a good corner and selling the stuff as a sure shot grease eradicator. The game took and I soon had a fair working capital.

"Then I moved on to the next town and started a dime museum that was the most glaring fraud ever perpetrated. The actual weight of my fat woman was 150 pounds, but we built her out till she passed for 400 and looked the part. The strong man I hired from a harvest field and the mermaid from a restaurant. The young fellow that made up as a baboon was a genius and looked a good deal like the sort even when he was not in his hairy uniform. I did the fake sword swallowing, and we were giving a continuous performance that drew like a porous plaster.

"One evening a lot of cowboys dropped in on us and were having a merry time till the baboon snatched one of their hats, a favorite amusement with the animal. The man cuffed the baboon's ears, and as he retreated another of the wild audience lassoed him, and he let loose with some profanity which was so unmistakably human that the cowboys saw how they had been sold and proceeded to clean the place out. In jumping from her seat the fat woman rent a seam and apparently lost 200 pounds inside of two minutes. The mermaid kicked loose from her entanglements and went through a window. I followed in her wake and caught the first train for the east. Since that I have been doing the legitimate only."—Detroit Free Press.

A TALK ON CLEANLINESS.

It is not often that people in our line of business speak about toilet soaps, but as the handling of hardware, plows and other implements soil the hands and face, it is natural that we, as well as others, use soap.

We have a large stock of soaps of various kinds—too large for our own consumption for some time to come—and will allow our patrons to take advantage of our stock to supply themselves.

The name of Colgate & Co. is known the world over as the makers of fine toilet soaps, and when we offer Cashmere Boquet and Jockey Club at 35c per cake, Glycerine, Rosadore and Honey for 20c per cake, Rico and Castile at 10c per cake, there should be no hesitancy about buying them.

The same make of Demulcent shaving Soap is an assurance of superior quality, even when we sell it at 10c per cake.

Everyone is familiar with the healing properties of Cuticura soap. It confers on consumers the greatest of human blessings—a skin without a blemish. Twenty cents per cake is too cheap.

Medicated tar soap makes an excellent shampoo as well as a bath soap. Many use it exclusively. You will find it impossible to buy this soap anywhere for less than 25c per cake, except of us, where it goes for 15c per cake.

OUR ISLAND BOYS ABROAD

SUMMER VACATION APPROACHING AND GRADUATES RETURN.

How Our Youths in School and College Intend to Pass the Holiday Months—Who Will Come, Who Will Stay.

The home coming, this summer, of the island boys, who are attending the various colleges and universities abroad, is anxiously awaited by many fond parents. Among them are some who return with the determination to "paddle their own canoe" through life. Others will go back again in the fall to resume their studies. Then there are a number who will spend their vacation in the States.

Among the first to return will be Herbert Dickey, son of Tax Assessor C. H. Dickey, of the District of Makawao. Herbert is attending the University of California at Berkeley and is expected to come down in May on his vacation.

The many friends of Aeneas Ramsay Mackintosh, son of Rev. Alex. Mackintosh, are anticipating with pleasure his return from England in July. Mr. Mackintosh will remain but six weeks, when he will return to complete his studies before visiting home again. He first attended school at Repton and is now closing his second year's course in Orell College, Oxford.

William Soper, who is attending Stanford university, does not know yet whether he will visit his home or not this summer. His father, Col. J. H. Soper, stated that it was his wish that William should remain in California and devote a portion of his time during vacation to one or two studies. He expected to learn shortly what his son's plans would be.

A. L. C. Atkinson, familiarly known as "Jack" Atkinson, son of Editor Atkinson, of The Star, will not visit his parents this year. "Jack" will enter the third year at Ann Arbor this autumn. He has gone in for athletics heart and soul and now occupies the important position of manager of the college base ball team. Last year Mr. Atkinson participated in the Intercollegiate sports with his team. In the contest the Michigan University scored 61 points and the Chicago university 44 points. Jack rode in the bicycles races and finished third, two riders of prominence besting him.

Tarn McGrew, who is taking the P. and S in the Columbia college in New York, will spend his vacation along the Atlantic seashore. Dr. McGrew says that his son will probably make a visit home next year.

A. F. Judd, Jr., and James R. Judd, sons of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, will graduate at Yale this year. Mr. and Mrs. Judd leave on the Monowai, due to sail Thursday, to be present at the commencement exercises. The boys will accompany their parents back to Honolulu.

The sons of Charles M. Cooke will not come to Honolulu this year, in all probability. Clarence Hyde Cooke has entered upon a business career in San Francisco. He is with the firm of Alexander & Baldwin. Charles Montague Cooke, Jr., is at Yale.

Hiram Bingham, Jr., will be in the '98 graduating class at Yale. He will not come home on a visit to his parents this summer. He will take up several studies during his vacation months.

S. E. Damon, son of the Minister of Finance, who is in a Scotland bank learning the principles of banking, will not be able to come home this year. In his letters Mr. Damon says he is getting along nicely.

Paul Neumann is in England tied down to the study of law. Ned, a younger son of Attorney Neumann, attending school in California, will probably visit his father this year.

Guy Dement, attending Williams' College, at Cambridge, Mass., will not return.

William, Arthur and Frank Baldwin will probably make the long journey this summer. Arthur is attending Yale and Will is completing his education in Boston.

Charles Dole, nephew of President Dole, is at Stanford university, where he is prominent in athletics. His parents reside on Kauai. His plans for the summer are not known.

Ernest Waterhouse, who graduated from Princeton college last year, is now taking a course in a New York college of surgery. It is not likely that he will come home. He will have the pleasure of seeing his mother, Mrs. J. T. Waterhouse next month, as she will visit her son on her way to New York.

Will Cooke, son of Mrs. Joseph Cooke, of Oakland, is attending Yale. It is not believed that he will come down this year.

Alex. Atherton, son of J. B. Atherton, will graduate this year from the Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn. He will arrive home in July.

William Lot Whitney, going to the Oberlin University, may decide to pay his parents a visit before taking up another year's study.

Otis Spalding, son of R. C. Spalding, of Kauai, is now visiting in Japan with his mother. He will return to Cooper Medical College in San Francisco in the fall.

BOAT CAPSIZED.

Two Men Have a Narrow Escape Near Lahaina.

Lahaina, March 27.

Last Thursday evening, shortly after dark, a boat, loaded with taro, on its way from Ukumehame to Lahaina, was swamped and capsized. When this occurred she was off Swinton's Gap. The crew consisted of three men, one of whom was a South Sea Islander.

As soon as the accident happened the South Sea Islander left his companions with the boat, and, taking an oar, swam to the shore He walked to Lahaina, a distance of about four miles, where he arrived at half past ten that night. S. Nowlein, the owner of the boat, sent in search of her and the crew

In the meanwhile, the two remaining men managed to right the boat, after taking out the mast, but as they had only one oar left they were helpless. The water was too deep for the anchor to reach the bottom, so they drifted until morning, when they were picked up by the boat in search of them.

WONDERFUL TIMEPIECE

It Ticks Its Seconds as Prescribed by the "Clock Stars."

The sidereal clock is considered the most wonderful instrument in the Greenwich observatory. This marvelous instrument is in an underground room called the magnetic basement, where it stands like a sentinel, with its back against the wall, ticking its seconds as prescribed by the "clock stars."

This reference to the "clock stars"—fixed stars slightly over 200 in number, which are used for determining sidereal time—brings us to the transit circle, the most important instrument in the observatory, and one of the most interesting.

It consists of a large telescope, the outside of which is not unlike a great cannon, as it is of solid iron. This instrument is supported by trunnions, which allow the telescope to be elevated or depressed, to point north or south, and, in fact, to make a complete revolution, but never to diverge from the north and south line. The magnifying power of this instrument is not very great, but its field of view is large, so that it admits plenty of light, for it is not intended as a searcher after or gazer at celestial objects, but for noting the exact time at which stars and planets pass south and north of Greenwich.

Upon looking through this telescope the observer's eye is first arrested by a vertical row of what seem to be iron bars placed at equal distances from each other. They are, however, neither more nor less than spiders' webs, the center one, passing through the focus of the object glass, being the meridian line.

By observing the time at which the "clock stars" pass over the web lines, or "wires," as they are called, is sidereal time regulated. The adjustment of the instrument has to be extremely exact in order to obviate error. The slightest thing will put it out, even so small a matter as too much sunshine.

On one occasion the correction for a level error in the instrument having become inconveniently large, owing, apparently, to a subsidence of the eastern support, about a ton weight of stone was placed on the western pier. But this having no effect, the stones were removed and a sheet of very thin paper was placed under the support on the eastern side, by which means the error was corrected. This will give some idea of the delicacy of adjustment necessary for the perfect working of this ponderous instrument.—New Orleans Picayune.

JAPANESE MURDER CASE

THREE OF THE RINGLEADERS HELD FOR TRIAL.

One of the Men Liberated—Spreckelsville Has an Ice Plant—Death of Mrs. J. K. Smyth—The Leahi Wreck.

Maui, March 27.

On Thursday of this week the inquest in the Japanese murder case was held at Wailuku court house, the coroners' jury returning a verdict that Kawata came by his death at the hands of his fellow countrymen at Camp 3, Spreckelsville. About all the head employees at Spreckelsville were in attendance as witnesses, a regular holiday being had on the plantation. The Japanese were very quiet, but few of them being in attendance. They had been told that Paul Neumann was here to represent their Government, and would look out for their interests.

After the inquest the case of the four prisoners was brought up in court and three of them were committed for trial at the June term of the Circuit court at Wailuku, the fourth one being let off for lack of evidence. The verdict against the three men was murder in the second degree. The trial was quiet, and without any feature of note, so, without doubt, the case will be settled by the courts without any further trouble. The inquest and trial were made interesting by the presence of Deputy Attorney General Dole, and Paul Neumann.

There is to be opposition in the ice business on Maui. By the Lurline this week the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Co. received an ice plant from San Francisco, and intend to run the same at their mill at Spreckelsville. It is reported that they will sell ice for 1 cent per pound, so a cut in ice rates may be expected soon.

The wife of Mr. J. K. Smyth, in charge of the old Huelo plantation, died last Monday of lock-jaw. She ran a stick into her foot, and by the time a physician reached Huelo it was too late to save her.

Purser Kibling and family have been visiting Mr. W. F. Pogne, at Haleakala ranch during the week.

The police discovered and raided two okolehao stills in Kula the past week, convicting the Chinese owners.

Coal is still being taken from the hulk of the Leahi. Native divers bring it up by handfuls, and get a share of the same. The wreck lies about the same as before, and it is not known what will be done with it yet.

The brig Lurline, N. J. MacLeod, master, arrived last Monday, ten and a half days from San Francisco, with a full cargo of merchandise for Kahului store, and the ice machine mentioned above.

The two masted schooner Helen N. Kimball, sailed on Wednesday for San Francisco with a full cargo of Paia plantation and Haiku Sugar Co. sugar.

Unusually high winds have been the order throughout the week.

Wonders About Skin Pores.

Each square inch of the human skin contains no less than 3,500 sweating tubes or perspiration pores. Each of these tubes, although wonderfully minute, is about one-fourth of an inch in length. Each of these sweat tubes may be likened to a tiny drain tile. We find that the average adult has about 2,000 square inches of skin on the surface of his body. Each square inch of this outer cuticle is, as we have said, literally permeated with its 3,500 quarter inch perspiration ditches. If we could put each of these little tubes end to end, we would find that they would extend a distance of not less than 201,166 feet. Had you ever before stopped to consider the fact that the aggregate length of the tile ditches for draining the human body is almost 40 miles?—St. Louis Republic.

Mars Like Holland.

Certain scientists say that Mars is like Holland. Its inhabitants appear to have drained the whole of its surface as a measure of protection against encroaching waters, which threaten an invasion when summer's heat melts the polar ice and snow.

Parasitic plants, as well as parasitic insects, will not flourish save on the bodies of other organisms.

From New York to Los Angeles is a journey of 3,107 miles.

In the fall of 1893 a son of Mr. T. A. McFarland, a prominient merchant of Live Oak, Sutter County, Cala., was taken with a very heavy cold. The pains in his chest were so severe that he had spasms and was threatened with pneumonia. His father gave him several large doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which broke up the cough and cured him. Mr. McFarland says whenever his children have croup he invariably gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always cures them. He considers it the best cough remedy in the market. CARTER'S WHITE LEAD IS STRICTLY PURE.

The Carter White Lead Company stands ready at any and all times by practical tests to prove that the Carter Lead will cover one-fourth more surface, and do it better, than any brand of lead manufactured by what is known as the old Dutch Process, and also to prove its superiority in body whiteness and durability.

We invite practical painters to make independent tests by carefully measuring surface and weighing the leads to be tested and then comparing results, which will in every instance prove that

Carter Lead will cover one-fourth more surface

The superioriiy of Carter Lead is due to improved methods and the putting into use the very latest machinery by which a perfect corrosion is obtained, and, consequently, when you purchase a keg of Carter Lead you get a keg of Lead that is perfectly corroded.

A keg of Carter White Lead is All Paint.

The new plant recently put in operation in Chicago is the largest in the world and the combined output of the Chicago and Omaha factories places the Carter Company in a position to fill all orders promptly.

There is more Carter White Lead sold than any other brand manufactured in the United States.

Ten Good Reasons

Use Carter Lead.

1st. The Carter White Lead is absolutely pure.
2nd. The Carter White Lead will cover one-fourth more surface and thereby save you 25 per cent.
3rd. The Carter White Lead will last much longer and look better than any other paint.
4th. The Carter White Lead Company is independent of all trusts.
5th. The Carter White Lead is much whiter than any other lead offered.
6th. The Carter White Lead is much finer and superior for inside or flat work.
7th. The Carter White Lead will take more oil than any other lead.
8th. The Carter White Lead is superior in body.
9th. The Carter White Lead works smoother under the brush.
10th Twenty-five Test Boards painted during the year 1896 substantiate all of the above reasons.

This White Lead has been tried in Honolulu, and all that is claimed for it has been proven true.

A STORY OF INDIA.

A group of British officers were seated in the quarters of one of their number in the garrison at Calcutta. Chester Ashby, captain of dragoons, seemed the most deeply interested.

"It is certainly strange," observed a young lieutenant, "where Miss Blatchford could have disappeared to. That it is a case of abduction there is little doubt in my mind, but who is there who would dare to perpetrate such a crime?"

"I know not, Will," returned Ashby, "but as sure as there is a heaven above us I will find her, if I have to search through every palace and hovel in India. Gentlemen, she is my affianced bride, and dead or alive find her I will!"

As the young soldier crossed the parade ground a white robed, dusky form followed closely behind him. When the two reached a spot where the light which streamed from the barrack windows did not penetrate, the native touched the European gently and whispered:

"Would Ashby sahib find the lost maiden? If so, Ali can direct him to where she lingers."

"What! You?"

"Sahib, she is even now a prisoner in the palace of the rajah of Judpore."

"What! In the power of that heathen prince? 'By my sword, I'll go to the colonel at once and ask permission to order out my dragoons and tear his glittering abode down about his ears."

"Stay, sahib!" quickly rejoined the faithful servant. "If English soldiers were seen about the palace of the rajah, the feeble spark of life which still flutters in the bosom of the white maiden would die."

"What? Would the villain murder her?"

"Sahib! Ali has said the maiden would die and leave no trace of her death. Listen, sahib. The slaves of the rajah are the friends of Ali, and it is they who have told him of their master's captive. Would Ashby sahib enter the palace of the rajah unaccompanied, save by Ali?"

* * * * * * *

"Why does the light of the rajah's eyes weep? It should bring joy to the heart to be the chosen one of so great a lord!" and a lovely Hindoo girl knelt at the feet of Agnes Blatchford, who was sobbing bitterly.

She offered no reply to the kindly meant speech of her companion. Presently the damask portiere at one end of the saloon was lifted and the rajah himself entered.

"When will the light of my life cease weeping? And when will a smile adorn the face of her who is loved by the rajah of Judpore?"

Agnes Blatchford sprang to her feet and turning upon her persecutor exclaimed, "Never, wretch, never, until she is restored to the home of her father."

The native prince might have made answer had it not been for the entrance of a sable Nubian, who, falling flat upon his face, begged forgiveness for the intrusion.

"Speak, slave. What would you at this time?"

"Most mighty and powerful rajah," said the black. "Will it please the son of a king to look upon that which his servant has brought him?"

"The curiosity of the rajah is aroused. Let him see."

The Nubian arose and left the apartment, but reappeared in a moment, ushering in a closed palanquin, which was borne upon the shoulders of four blacks like himself.

A sardonic smile played about the lips of the rajah as he stepped forward to lift the rich curtain of the litter. The next moment he started back in horror, with his right hand clasping the hilt of his scimeter.

But before he could draw the blade the sword of Captain Ashby was at his throat.

"Wretch!" exclaimed the soldier. "Were you a Christian, I would award you a moment to make your peace with the Almighty! But, infidel dog that you are, look your last upon things earthly, for your time has come!"

The rajah essayed to call for assistance, but the call died away upon his lips, for his eyes fell upon a body of dragoons that were rapidly filling the apartment. Lieutenant Carleton sprang forward and struck up the blade of his captain.

"Your pardon, sir! Do not forget and overstep your authority. This rajah is a man in high position. The British government should deal with him."

"Lieutenant, I thank you," returned the captain, with more composure. "Secure our royal prisoner well. I hold you responsible for his safety."

It was now that Captain Ashby first seemed to take notice of the girl whom he had rescued. Springing to her side, disregarding the presence of his soldiers, the captain clasped her in his arms.

The faithful Ali had, as he said, obtained the information as to the whereabouts of the young English girl from the servants of the native prince, who, without exception, hated the tyrannical despot. It was he who suggested to the captain to effect the rescue of Miss Blatchford by entering the abode in a palanquin, for he felt that if his master could reach the side of the young lady he could protect her from the fury of the rajah until his soldiers could gain an entrance and come to his support.

Today the happiest woman in India is the young wife of the captain of dragoons, while the rajah of Judpore has been deposed from his high rank and made to pay an enormous sum for his audacity in abducting from her home an English lady. —Omaha World-Herald.

Corsair Who Became an Archbishop.

Years ago a young man entered Oxford college, England, applying himself to the study of theology. Suddenly he disappeared and was not seen again for several years, when he returned again to the college. He graduated with the highest honors, entered the church and rose to the dignity of an archbishop of York. Many were the speculations concerning his mysterious disappearance. It is told that coincident with his departure a daring corsair appeared in the Mediterranean, who waylaid the ships of all nations and succeeded in a few years in piling up an immense amount of treasure on a desert island which he made his headquarters. Here he remained with his followers, leaving them at intervals for the company of a woman who was the partner of his wild life. One day she died, and immediately the treasure was divided and the pirates dispersed. Shortly afterward the young man made his reappearance at Oxford as a student.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

She Meant the Poet.

An English writer suggests that Scottish pronunciation is misleading. "Do you like buns?" asked the governess. "Yes," said he, "if they are made with sultana raisins and not currants." Whereupon she blushed and explained that she meant the poet, "Bu'ns."

ONE WORK OF THE WHEEL.

How It Has Developed the Latent Mechanical Genius of the People.

The bicycle has probably done more to develop the mechanical genius of the people of today than any other agency. With the old wheel, the ordinary, while a repair kit was carried, it was seldom needed, for the whole machine was built for wear, weighing two and three times as much as the modern safety and having tires almost unbreakable. The only danger was from a loosened tire. Later on the narrow tire and then the cushion tire came in, each requiring more care, and with them came the sprockets, chains and adjustable saddles and handle bars that required some skill to manipulate. But it was with the advent of the 18 to 21 pound pneumatic that skill was really called for, and today it is hard to find an owner of a wheel who is unable to take his machine apart or who does not thoroughly understand its make up. Good evidence of this is to be had at any of the cycle shows or even in the regular salesrooms. At the former it is a common sight to see a crowd around some new model, every one—man or woman, young or old—seemingly possessed of accurate knowledge and capable of weighing carefully the advantage offered by each particular make.—New York Post.

SHORT WHEEL NOTES.

There are about 80,000 bicyclists in Connecticut.

Missouri has about 2,100 members in the L. A. W.

In France the first patent for a bicycle was taken out in 1818.

Convertible tandems are coming in for considerable attention just now.

Grand Rapids factories expect to turn out 30,000 bicycles the coming season.

A physician insists that insane people ought to ride bicycles. They do, observes the Minneapolis Journal.

Cleveland will have a bicycle show during the first week in March, following the one to be held in Pittsburg.

H. S. Pingree, governor of Michigan and hero of the potato patch charity, has made application for membership in the L. A. W.

It seems rather strange, in view of all the talk about chainless bicycles, that there was only one on exhibition at the Chicago show.

Brooklyn wheelmen are not as law abiding as they might be. During the season of 1896 about $8,000 was collected from them for violations of the cycle path regulations.

When riding on a muddy road, says the New York Tribune, it is advisable to endeavor to keep the head of the machine as straight as you can and to steer as cautiously as possible. Frequently a sudden swerve is the cause of a nasty spill.

President Elliott of the L. A. W. has offered prizes aggregating $2,000 to the league members who succeed in securing the greatest number of new members during the coming year. The first two prizes are worth about $600 each, and the lowest on the list is valued at $7.

WOMEN WITH WHEELS.

A Massachusetts woman rode 10,287 miles on her bicycle last year.

A pretty novelty is a little bicycle lamp of silver. It has an absolutely perfect little lense of the finest glass, no bigger than the end of a lead pencil. This lamp is for women cyclists.

The bicycle has opened a new field for women. They have become instructors in bicycle schools and have already proved a success. Many ladies objected to receiving lessons from men; hence the innovation.

The bicycle model is filling an important post in the big stores. She is the fair young woman who sits on a wheel and tries on bloomers, leggings, sweaters, waists and skirts for her sisters who want to look natty on a bicycle.

In France the tandems invariably carry the man on the front seat and his fair companion behind him. Here the woman rides in front, where she gets all the air and an unobstructed view, while the man on the rear saddle does all the work.

Development of the Tire.

The development in tires from the old iron rimmed "bone shaker" wheel to the pneumatic tire might well form the subject of an interesting and instructive treatise on wheel locomotion. A great stride was made when the solid rubber fixed on the spider wheel replaced the metal tire. The cushion or hollow rubber tire, introduced by an English firm, soon followed, and then the air inflated tire made cycling justly popular, and, consequently, cycle making a very important industry. An improvement known as a tiremaking machine is the latest. It goes a long way to bring pneumatic tires within the reach of all. The machine makes over 3,000 tires per day, doing, in a word, the work of about 150 qualified men. The tire it now makes is known as the single tube tire. The machine is a marvel of ingenuity and yet of simplicity.—New York Advertiser.

The Making of a Tire.

It will come as a surprise to many cyclists to learn that the rubber in the tires on their bicycles is, to use a paradoxical expression, not rubber at all, but only a sulphide of rubber. "The fact is," says a scientist, "pure rubber is only elastic in a very small degree and is therefore practically useless to incorporate in tire construction. It will expand with pressure, but will not afterward recoil to its normal dimensions. To overcome this difficulty it is necessary to mix large quantities of sulphur with the pure rubber. By this process a chemical action is set up, whereby the sulphur fuses with the rubber and cannot afterward be separated. The sulphur thus imparts to the rubber its all important elasticity."—New York Advertiser.

RATTLED BY A GIRL.

For a reporter with but little to write and plenty of time in which to write it there is nothing more pleasant than to dictate a narrative to a cheerful typewriter, particularly if she be young and have nice soft hair to distract the eye and well formed white fingers and be withal exceedingly pleasing, but for a reporter with a long yarn to write and a limited amount of time to finish it things sometimes have a different aspect.

Near Printing House square is a typewriting office which many newspaper men frequent. A new girl came there one day last week—a real nice girl and an excellent operator—but she had never done that kind of work before. While she was sitting in the main room upon the afternoon of her first day a newspaper man came bustling in, and—

"Mrs. J., have you got anybody to take a two column story in a hurry?"

"Yes," replied the manager. "Here is a young lady who has just come to us. Miss Brown—Mr. Smith. You can go into that corner room."

In three minutes the young lady was seated at her machine, the newspaper man was sorting out his notes, and the door was closed so as to leave them undisturbed.

"Now, if you will please begin," the newspaper man said. "'In these days of stern reality and suffering and struggle for existence a romantic episode comes upon one with the refreshing delight with which a traveler in a desert beholds an oasis.'"

Clickety-clickety-click went the keys, and then—

"Isn't that lovely! Is it going to be a novel?"

The newspaper man looked up in amazement, but it was utterly impossible to be angry with such blue eyes regarding him in admiration.

"No," he said. "Please go on. 'In the monotonous routine of Tombs police court cases, however, there was one yesterday behind which lay a story so romantic and so picturesque that it would almost seem to have been created by a great novelist who had striven to excel all his past efforts.'"

When this had been recorded, and while the newspaper man was wondering what he would say next, the young lady, smiling most radiantly, prattled on in this fashion:

"That's just splendid. It sounds like a real novel. Did you ever read 'Clarissa; or, The Forlorn Hope?' It begins something like that, only it isn't so interesting. Do you know, I never took dictation like that before. The last place I worked in I had nothing to do but copy letters. Oh, dear, wasn't it tiresome, though!"

The newspaper man felt his collar getting too small, but after swallowing something that seemed to stick in his throat he said as gently as possible:

"Won't you please go on? I'm in somewhat of a hurry. What have you got there?"

"Where?" in great surprise.

"I mean, please read over what I dictated."

"Oh, how stupid I am! 'In these days of stern reality'—how do you pronounce that word—in two syllables or three? Thank you—'stern reality and suffering'"—

And she read what she had written. Then, just as the newspaper man had settled back in his chair, determined to dictate to the end without giving her another opportunity to interrupt him, she said:

"Excuse me, I think my hair is coming down."

She went to a little mirror in a corner of the room, examined her hair carefully, and then, after touching up the puffs of her sleeves and smoothing her waist, she sighed and returned to her seat.

"There, now; I'm all ready."

For the next few minutes she had to work so hard that she hadn't time to say a single word. But soon the page was filled, and she had to insert a new sheet, and that was her opportunity.

"Gracious! How fast you dictate! It almost takes my breath away. But do you know I like it. I think it's good practice. Were you there when all that happened? My! I wish I could be a reporter."

The newspaper man went on with his dictation. He was fast growing hopping mad, but he hadn't the heart to say a harsh word to the girl. She was really very pretty, and as she became interested in the story a delicate flush mantled her cheeks, and it was a positive pleasure to watch her. But a newspaper man has no time for pleasure during business hours, and these charms did not interest him as much as they might have done under other circumstances, so he struggled bravely on.

"Oh," she suddenly exclaimed, stopping in the middle of a sentence, "did that really happen?"

"Yes, yes! Will you please go on?"

"Well, the idea! I wouldn't have believed it. Do you know, I don't believe half what I read in the papers, but of course if you say so it must be true."

"I'm very sorry I can't chat with you, Miss Brown, but really I'm in a great hurry."

"Oh, I beg your pardon! I forgot all about that."

For nearly ten minutes there was not a break in the dictation, save where a sheet became full and a fresh one had to be inserted. The typewriter kept her lips firmly pressed together, as if she were exerting all her strength to keep silent. It was clear to see that it could not last much longer. In the middle of a paragraph she suddenly stopped, and with a brief "Excuse me for a moment" left the room. In a few seconds she returned, with her jaws moving conclusively and a piece of chewing gum in her hand.

"Won't you have some?" she asked politely.

"N-n-no—and—I'll tell you what—er—I guess I won't have time to finish this story today. I'll come back some other time."

"Oh, you're not going, are you? I'm awfully sorry. I was just getting interested in the story."

"Very sorry—er—how much? Here. All right. Good day!"

And seizing the few sheets that lay in the desk the newspaper man went away and finished the story with a pen.—Exchange.

Father and Mother.

The sounds most easily produced in infancy, such as pa, ma, da and the like, are generally used to signify father and mother, but it is a singular fact that what signifies father in one sometimes means mother in another. In the Georgian language, for instance, spoken in the mountains between the Caspian and Black seas, dada means mother and mama father.

COD-LIVER OIL

is one of the best fat producers known to medical science but the taste is against it and has practically driven it, in its natural state, from the market.

EMULSIONS

of it have been introduced and improved upon so much that there is little call for plain cod liver oil.

The Food Emulsion

prepared only by us is the best and most palatable preparation of cod liver oil sold in Honolulu. It has all the qualities of the oil with the addition of Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda.

The nauseating taste and fishy smell of the oil is entirely obliterated and yet it containes 50 per cent. of Pure Norweigian Cod-Liver Oil.

Its curative qualities for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Skin diseases, Diseases of Children, Anaemia, and General Debility, are too well-known to require mention here.
