Little Things.

One step, and then another,
And the longest walk is ended;
One stitch, and then another,
And the largest rent is mended;
One brick upon another,
And the highest wall is made;
One flake upon another,
And the deepest snow is laid.

So the little coral-workers,
By their slow but constant motion,
Have built those pretty islands
In the distant dark-blue ocean;
And the noblest undertakings
Man's wisdom hath conceived
By oft-repeated effort
Have been patiently achieved.

Baby's Bedtime.

A soft little night-gown clean and white;
A face washed sweet and fair;
A mother brushing the tangles out
From silken, golden hair;
Two little tired, satiny feet,
From the shoe and the stocking free;
Two little palms together clasped
At the mother's patient knee.

Some baby words that are drowsily lisped
In the tender Shepherd's ear;
And a kiss that only a mother can place
On the brow of her baby dear;
A little round head which nestles at last
Close to the mother's breast,
And then the lullaby soft and low,
Singing the song of rest. —Selected.

Miscellaneous.

Prudery is the caricature of modesty.

An unprincipled bachelor says troubles never come single.

A London letter states that there are 90,000 paupers in that city.

It is reported that the King of [illegible] is about to publish his memoirs.

It must make a prisoner raven mad to be called a jail-bird.

Pennyroyal distributed in places frequented by roaches, will drive them away.

Love is a religion of which the great pontiff is nature.

A little girl who wanted to be very good during Lent proposed to give up going to school.

Five quarts of boiling water poured on a package of pearline will make an excellent soft soap. Let it remain over night to harden.

Often the world discovers a man's moral worth only when its injustice has nearly destroyed him.

"Why did you pass yesterday without looking at me?" said a beautiful woman to Talleyrand. "Because, madam, if I had looked I could not have passed."

Ex-President Thomas Hill of Harvard College has prepared an almanac for 1884, in which the computations have been made according to the new Eastern standard time.

Zeleucus decreed, that any patient who drank wine without a written order of the doctor, was to be put to death.

A clergyman asked some children: "Why do we say in the Lord's Prayer, 'who art in Heaven,' since God is everywhere?" A little drummer boy answered. "Because it's headquarters."

Knowledge must be earned; it cannot be passively taken. Unless the mind works for its living, it will always remain poor; neither gifts nor legacies, neither homes nor lands, can enrich it.

Will Carleton's first poem, "Betsy and I Are Out," got into the waste basket of the Toledo Blade, to which paper it was originally sent, but it was afterwards fished out and published one day when there happened to be a scarcity of "copy."

Pedestrian, who had dropped a penny in front of "a poor blind man"—"Why, you humbug, you're not blind." Beggar—"Not I, sir. If the card says I am they must have given me the wrong one. I am deaf and dumb."

A very colored man who had charged another with beating him, on being told by the judge that no marks were visible, indignantly rejoined, "Does yer s'pose he hit me wid a piece of chalk?" The trial proceeded.

The Napa Register says it is now eight years since the first patient was admitted to that insane asylum. During that time 4,156 patients have been admitted, 2,127 have been discharged, 709 died, 47 escaped, leaving in the asylum now 1,275.

Despite the inventions of recent years the largest telescope in the world is still Lord Rosse,' at Parsontown, Ireland, although it was constructed some forty years ago. It is also the most powerful in respect to its light-grasping capacity, a very important matter in the study of faint objects, such as nebulæ. Its mirror is six feet in diameter, and the length of its tube is fifty-three feet.

The game of billiards was invented to aid Louis XIVth; who was a notorious trencherman, in his digestion. To promote the same operation, Saint Louis went to bed immediately after his meals. There was a King of Wales in the tenth century, who had a royal called "Troedawg," whose duty it was, to [illegible], and keep warm against his breast, the feet of his Majesty while he was taking his meals.

When the Moors invaded Spain, the Mussulman race so mixed with the Christians, that a rallying sign became necessary. The latter decided to allow to grow under the nose, a "horizontal line" of hair, called a moustache. On the nether lip, a "vertical" tuft of hair was cultivated; this combination suggested a cross, became the symbol of liberty and fraternity, and was adopted by all Christian warriors.

An Austin small boy was recently discovered purloining some apples from the front of a grocery store. The proprietor gave chase, but failed to overtake him, and was obliged to shake his fist, and shout after him:

"Never mind, my young kid, I'm going to see your mother about this."

"That's all right," yelled the small boy, "you just go right along up there. Pa filled a man full of buckshot the other day for going to see ma, and I reckon he's got another dose laid away somewhere for you.

Lord Bacon named, as signs of short life, quick growth, fair, soft skin, soft, fine hair, early corpulence, large head, short neck, small mouth, fat ear, brittle, separated teeth. Some of his signs of long life were slow growth, hard, coarse hair, rough, freckled skin, deep furrows in the forehead, firm flesh with veins lying high, wide nostrils, large mouth, large, gristly ear, strong, contiguous teeth. He adds that early gray hair is not significant, some of the longest livers having turned gray in early life.

"It takes a touch of adversity," says a profound thinker, "to show whether a man is a man at all, just as it needs a touch of frost to bring out the glories of the trees. Even on a dark day in October, how royally the woods flame out. Under what glorious banners they march to meet the Winter. What unmatched splendors, rich as sunset skies, tender as the rainbow, shine out over the whole earth. Those splendors are the treasures which the trees are silently laying up when the Summer's sun flooded them all day long; and shall a man in his time of prosperity lay up no store of sunshine his inner self, whereby, when darker days come on, he shall be luminous with courage and good cheer?

Can he leave all his wrongs to the future, and carry his heart in his cheek?
Can he do an hour's work in a minute, and live upon sixpence a week?
Can he courteously talk to an equal and brow-beat an impudent dunce?
Can he keep things in apple pie order, and do half a dozen at once?
Can he press all the springs of knowledge with quick and reliable touch?
And be sure that he knows how much to know, and knows how to not know too much?
Does he know how to spur up his virtues, and put a check-rein on his pride?
Can he carry a gentleman's manners within a rhinoceros hide?
Can he know all, and do all, and be all, with cheerfulness, courage and vim?
If so, we perhaps can be making an editor "outer of him."
And 'tis thus with our noble profession, and thus it will ever be; still
There are some who appreciate its labors, and some who, perhaps, never will.

The foreign journals report an arrangement for producing brilliant light by the combination of gas and electricity. It consists of an ordinary gas-flame through which passes a curved metallic rod provided with means for counteracting the effects of overheating under the action of the electric current. A cool, bright, white light is produced of far better quality than of gas alone. The report states that the platinum does not require a great intensity of current to make it supply an ordinary light with one or two small elements. The cost is said to be a third less than that of the gas supplied by the gas companies.

M. Friedel, having contested the assertion of M. Spring that a pressure of 5000 atmospheres exerted upon amorphous pulverulent matter causes them to become aggregated into crystaline masses, Jannetaz, Neel, and Clermont determined to repeat his experiments. They operated upon powdered antimony, bismuth, zinc, sulphides, sodium, lead, and mercuric iodide, magnesia, alumina, silica, chalk and copper sulphate. All these powders were agglutinated into solid masses, but even those which acquired some degree of transparency did not begin to exhibit the slightest sign of any thing like crystallization.

IDLE GOSSIP.
THERE IS NO IDLE GOSSIP HOWever, that the undersigned will take Portraits in any style or views to order in the best style of the Photographic Art and on the most Reasonable Terms—but it is idle gossip which says "he will not try to please," for he always was and will be willing to please everyone who can be suited; and never will treat anyone out of the way, and never will treat anyone otherwise than in a proper manner. Do not listen to gossip, but come and see for yourself—there is always two sides to a story. (990 3m) H. L. CHASE.

Letters by the Zealandia, from friends in San Francisco, say that the ratification of the Mexican Treaty failed by one vote, probably in consequence of the absence of several Senators; that a motion to reconsider had been made, and strong hopes of final success were entertained by the friends of the treaty. The vote is considered favorable for our treaty.

As a two-third vote is necessary for passing a treaty, a failure by only one vote shows still a large majority in favor of the Mexican treaty.

Sugar is one-sixth of a cent lower in New York—now 6⅛ for 96 or 5⅞ net in San Francisco for 96 polarization.

The best sugar crop in Europe is said to be the largest ever gathered—60,000 tons above the estimate earlier in the season; and the crop in the Southern States is also large—estimated at 200,000 hhds.

These figures show the importance to us of the treaty with our friendly neighbor the United States—and also the necessity for greater economy in everything connected with sugar planting. Do they not also show the importance of so conducting our affairs as to retain the good will of individuals and corporations who have influence at Washington?

Our Bankruptcy proceedings are too cumbrous and expensive, working no benefit to debtors, and causing unnecessary loss to creditors. There is no advantage, for instance, in the long delay required before a sale of the bankrupt's effects can usually be made. Especially where the debtor declares himself to be a bankrupt. Nothing prevents a debtor in failing circumstances from making an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, and in such case the assignees do not waste time and money in guarding and keeping the debtor's property, while on the other hand they are not obliged to sacrifice the effects by a forced sale at auction. There is no reason why an estate in bankruptcy should suffer more from depreciation or by holding it, than in case of a private assignment.

The public is not yet fully informed of the attitude which the United States Government may assume concerning the action of this Government upon its contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. What is known is that such a contract was made, for the introduction of a limited number of Chinese laborers, for the avowed purpose of supplying the places of the laborers who leave the country as their terms of service expire. Without any pretext of default on the part of the P. M. S. S. Co., that contract was declared by the Premier to be cancelled, and a contract with the Oceanic Steamship Company was made for introducing Chinese without limit.

The P. M. S. S. Co. thereupon sent their agent, Mr. Adee here from Washington, with the official sanction of the United States Government, to lay before the Hawaiian Government certain claims, the nature of which is not divulged. It was understood that Mr. Adee left here far from satisfied with the treatment he had received. It was no light matter to incur the hostility, at this time, of so powerful a body as the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, when this country needed all its friends for the treaty.

Whether the United States Government regard this matter as wholly between the Steamship Companies, or as evidence that this country is indifferent to its obligations to United States citizens remains to be seen.

The comments which have appeared in the Gazette during the past two weeks relative to the statement made by a government candidate on Kauai, that he was a leper, and that on these grounds as well as others, he claimed the suffrages of the voters, has called forth the desired investigation, and we believe that now the President of the Board of Health, and Premier of the Kingdom is in possession of all the information that there is no doubt but that such a statement was made. A correspondent from a totally different quarter supports the information previously received, he says: "In commencing his remarks, Mr. Kauai distinctly stated that he was a leper." We think that there now can be no doubt on the subject; the evidence sent us comes from men of unimpeachable integrity. The country has come to a pretty pass indeed when the government candidate is allowed to say such a thing with impunity, when he dares to go before a constituency and put forth such a plea. As far as we can understand the enquiries made by the President of the Board of Health, were not whether Mr. Kauai's statement was true as regards himself, but whether the Gazette's statement about Mr. Kauai's sayings as correct. In plain words the President and Premier cared not a button whether Mr. Kauai was a leper or not, but he cared very much to catch the Gazette tripping and instigate another suit against it. Tried it once before and failed Mr. Premier.

Four thousand dollars were voted for decorations by the last Legislature, and March 31st, 1883, this precious vote was expended, within a few dollars, lately the public have seen published the names of the recipients of a number of these orders. Perhaps the general public is not aware, or if aware does not remember that every order conferred on an Hawaiian subject costs the fortunate (?) individual any where from $50 to $250. The students of history will remember that James the First of England found a lucrative means of replenishing his slender purse by creating the title of Baronet and donating the title to those who were rich enough to pay £1,095 for it. Of course we would not venture to draw any parallel between silly, shambling, slobbering James and the Monarch of Hawaii, but we wonder whether these orders have been issued for the "amelioration of Hawaii," as those baronetcies were conferred ostensibly for "the amelioration of Ulster." We must have had a considerable quantity of "amelioration" lately, judging by the printed lists, and at the rate above quoted the fees for "amelioration" must have come in pretty freely, but where do the fees go to? Should not that $4,000 be returned out of the proceeds, the capital invested by the country has returned good dividends—but to whom.

There is here unfortunately a strong party, that is, strong numerically, but feeble effectively, which may be called the laissez-faire party—those who say, "let it slide, it will all come right;" or, "why bother about inefficient or dishonest ministers; give them rope enough and they will hang themselves." The stimulus to all kinds of business undertakings, due to the action of the Treaty, the consequent flourishing condition of the country, as shown by figures, have gone far to add to the numbers of this party. It is to them that a word may be in season. The advance of the country is unquestionable, but it is in spite of, not because of misgovernment. Have we not had a Minister of Finance who really thought he created so much money every time he contrived to scrawl his name at the foot of a silver certificate; have we not had another who could write his name at all only at intervals for a fortnight or so; and another who can only sign his name when and where he is bidden to do so, but wholly incapable of appreciating the result; and our finances appear to be flourishing. Have we not had an Attorney General who could with precept a double homicide, and yet we may say that on the whole justice is done; and are there not numerous similar instances of incapable administrators whose incapacity has not yet borne its fruit.

New York flourished in the time of Tweed; the so-called Augustan age of English literature was in the reign of poor ignorant, innocent, Queen Anne; Nelson and Wellington and their paladins fought and conquered under the reigns of the last two of the four Georges. Hawaii has risen and thriven for the last seven years, but evil which already seems to be passing from a passive to an active state cannot long be neglected with impunity. Therefore, gentlemen optimists, who plead for "a little more folding of hands," it is time you were up and doing! Another House, even a majority in the new House of such legislators as those of 1882, may occasion you an unpleasant awakening. Do your best, then, to secure an honest and Independent Representation!

El Mahdi, the so-called false prophet, if he only continues to be successful for a year or two longer, is probably destined to fill a large page in the world's history. If he can weld together the jarring interests of the Mahommedan world he will have created a nation as powerful as that which swept like a whirlwind during the seventh and eighth centuries over the most fertile and polished provinces of the Eastern Empire, of Gothic Spain, and which met its first most serious check from the rude Frankish armies at Tours. The danger lies far outside of the Soudan. There has been an uneasy feeling for years throughout the Mahommedan world, a feeling, so say competent judges, that their time for realizing again the traditions of Mahommedan conquest is at hand. Once let the spirit of fanaticism blaze with the greed for conquest and the set back which can be given to the steady march of western civilization is appaling to think of.

As pointed out by "Crowquill" in the P. C. A., Great Britain will have her hands full in Hindostan, but not only Great Britain would feel the first force of such a movement. Russia on her eastern frontier would at once suffer. Nursed in the Steppes of Central Asia are the Mahommedan Khirgese tribes, whose members can form the best irregular cavalry in the world. If these tribes by fanaticism are united, in spite of all the splendid appliances for war which Russia has at its command, it would find it no easy task to crush these warriors.

The fact is that a long conflict between the East and the West may be coming on, and the danger lies in the lack of union among the western nations; of the ultimate victory of the West there would be, of course, no doubt, but years of misery would also undoubtedly be entailed upon some of the finest provinces now inhabited by Christian nations.

It will be a very strange repetition of history indeed if this struggle between East and West should be renewed at the close of the nineteenth century, a period of time which has been so remarkably fertile in the production of the arts of peace. Situated where we are, such matters do not affect us, but indirectly even we may feel the force of the wave which seems now to be gathering on the eastern and southern provinces of the Old World.

October the 18th, 1882, the Planters' Labor and Supply Company presented a memorial to His Majesty; that document met with a most flippant and impudent reply from the Prime Minister, and many people have been led by the silly talk of the time to thoroughly misunderstand the terms of that document. It was true, honest respectful talk and read, as it may be to-day, in a calm spirit, it will show people what sort of a man this is who dares give a flippant reply to a document couched in such language. What we would especially call attention to in the document in question is the following: "The only public exponent of the views of the present Ministry has advocated views that the Sovereign of this constitutional government may lawfully and properly take a personal part in influencing the elections of the elective members of the Legislature and in influencing and controlling the votes of the Legislative Assembly. It is believed by the planters of this country that such a view is opposed to all correct theory and practice of any constitutional monarchy and that to the manifest injury of every member of the body politic." What was said on October 18th, 1882, was true, sound logic; who can dare to say it nay, surely not the self-sufficient man and his small following of sycophants who now has the ear of the King. But there has been "personal part" taken in influencing elections, and official influence and "personal" influence has been brought to bear upon the work. If the government is to be conducted on constitutional lines this ought to have ceased long ago. One feels it almost monstrous that good sound monarchists, men bred to the true feeling of rights between sovereign and subject, should have to combat so hard as they have the greed of power and the petty grasping after petty aims, which has been instilled in the councils of the King by a man who poses as a republican and had the face to pronounce a Fourth of July oration. A man who can use the brains with which God endowed him for the mere purpose of fostering despotism, when the same God gave him the birthright of liberty, is a man who can only be written on the leaflet of history as a little too base to forget.

The month of January has come and gone and has left us with a minimum supply of stored water. The demand upon our little reservoir is such that even when full there is but a low pressure in the pipes, so constant is the drain. In the houses in Nuuanu Avenue, which are dependent on the old reservoir, even during heavy rains, there is scarce pressure enough to supply two taps at the same time. You wish to fill your bath? your cook happens at the same time to begin to fill his boiler, and the pitiful dribble in the bathroom at once announces that the water is running in the kitchen also; indeed a plumber may come and take up or lay down pipes without touching the communication with the main, by simply turning a tap between his work and the main. All this is of course the consequence of recklessly multiplying the "privilege," ironically so called, while the area of the reservoir remains the same and its collecting basin is reduced.

If this be the state of affairs in the last week of January, what will it be in the last week of June, or say the first of October? The artesian wells throughout the district of Kona, Oahu, have been falling off for several months past, and the so-called reservoirs are hardly to be considered as storages, the water is drawn off nearly as fast as taken in, in wet weather, and a great deal faster in dry. It will be an interesting study, if the opportunity is ever offered, to compare the vote of 1882 for water service, with the work done, the amount expended and the balance remaining in the treasury. Besides $82,000 for "repairs and additions to waterworks," there are $5,000 for "expenses of bureau" whatever that may mean, as the Superintendent and his clerk are provided for otherwise, $20,000 for artesian wells in general, and $5,000 apiece for specified districts in Maui, Molokai and Oahu, $3,000 for Makiki pipes etc. As a set off, Emma street has been relaid and Nuuanu lumbered with pipes much too large for any supply which can ever be brought in to them, indeed, as is well known, against the emphatic protest of the Superintendent of Public Works; in fact we have a key but no watch, we have a costly and cumbrous truck but no locomotive, we are like the man who spent his last shilling in buying a purse.

Another appropriation which should have been utilized in adding to our water storage is that for a Civil Engineer $8,000. This gentleman is not yet appointed though it is said that the vote has been drawn upon. We have a competent and highly satisfactory staff of Government Surveyors, an able Superintendent of Public Works, and yet the public want to know if the first preliminaries for securing increased water storage have been put in hand.

What is before us? possibly a dry summer, a big fire, empty reservoirs and no vacant portfolio to silence complaint!

To be or not to be! A week from to-day will be settled the question whether Hawaii is to have a continuance of the incubus of bad government or whether, starting out afresh, the voters will elect men who by constitutional means will shatter the fabric of corruption and venality that has grown up. It is a momentous question which is before the voters, and if only their intelligence were appealed to there would be no question as to which way the vote would be cast. But corruption in high places has corrupted many of those in low ones. A corrupt and venal ministry, continuing long in power has a very serious effect for evil upon a whole nation. And those who have the good of the country at heart, and who hope to regenerate the Hawaiian Government, to put it on the same broad base of respect which it once possessed, cannot shut their eyes to the fact that every means, fair or foul, are being used to win the cause for the present sole minister and his allies.

No wonder that the government begins to feel in desperate straits. A few, and only a very few, of the crooked transactions of the Cabinet have been exposed: the clear light that will be thrown upon them if an independent Legislature is elected is a thing that they dread. In the House questions can be asked, which must receive an answer, committees of investigation can be appointed which will examine thoroughly the reasons for transactions which are very dark at present. If such men as Mr. Pilipo, Mr. Nawahi, Mr. Kauhane, Mr. Kawainui, Mr. J. O. Carter, Mr. Godfrey Brown, Mr. W. O. Smith, Mr. Sanford Dole, Mr. Cecil Brown, Mr. Frank Brown, Mr. Rowell and others of the Independent Party are elected, the public will feel assured that these investigations will be clear and searching, and at the same time that they will be fair and honest. No place or emolument can buy these men. They will be there for the public good, not for private interest.

But it is not only to sweep away the present rottenness that the Independent members seek the suffrages of the voters. They will build up as well as tear down. To put an end to corruption is a paramount duty, and then will come the duty of putting public affairs upon a proper basis. The Independent members come before the public with a definite policy. They demand that the Board of Health shall be conducted in a manner which will give safety to the public from leprosy and other foul diseases, that more attention shall be paid to the sanitary condition, not only of Honolulu, but also of the many rising towns and villages throughout the group; that proper medical assistance shall be within reach of the natives in all districts, and that not again in the history of Hawaii can it be said that a poor native, stabbed as was the poor fellow at Lahaina, died because the government was offering a salary too small to induce a physician to reside there, and as a consequence no one was at hand to save the man's life. There was an indignant protest at the time from the citizens of Lahaina, and that is doubtless not forgotten. And the Independent members will especially demand that the funds of the Board shall be properly spent and not wasted.

The finances of the country will occupy a large portion of their attention. Economy in administration is the watchword of the Independent Party, and they are not the men to sanction wasteful expenditures such as disgraced the appropriation bill of last session. The tax-payers of Hawaii desire to see the repeal of all such items as "reception of foreign guests and incidentals," "purchase of decorations," "arms and accoutrements," "purchase of ordnance," or votes for junketing trips to Europe and Asia. The tax payers wish to see value for the money that is expended. They want to have good roads and not botched highways, which threaten danger to man and beast; they want good bridges, and not such a thing as was put up at Ewa to be washed into the sea by the first strong freshet. The people of Honolulu want an adequate water supply and not such a meager quantity that their property can be destroyed by the flames and not a drop of water to stay the destroyer.

That the government of the country be conducted constitutionally is another great plank in the Independent Platform. The evil tendency of the last two years has been to centralize power; to put it more and more into one hand; this the Independent Party resents, as every band of freemen resents. It will be the duty of the Independent members to see that responsibility is put where it belongs and that there is no more shuffling and thimble rigging, no more saying "there you are," and "there you are not."

With a firm faith in the excellence of these principles, with a firm faith that the men chosen to represent them are good, honest men, who, when brought face to face with the corruptive influences which will assuredly be brought to bear upon them, cannot be seduced by them, the Independent Party sends its members to the polls. The faith is the faith of men who believe in a good cause; but however strong the faith may be in the inherent goodness of the cause, we can none of us underestimate the power that will be used against the party. Placemen will be and are being coerced; promises of the wildest kind are being made; race prejudice, a favorite weapon, is being made use of; the money of a California capitalist is on the other side. But in spite of all, we believe that the Independents will gain the day, and if they do Hawaii will have cause to bless the day. Great things can be played on small stages; Hawaii with an honest government, Hawaii, with men of ability and integrity in her high places, can, like the small States of Greece of old, leave a history behind her that will make its mark upon the page of time. Who thinks of Attalus and his riches or of Mithridates or of the wealthy Mogul Emperors and their countless subjects, whose very names are only known to the curious. But the names of those who ruled over a few freemen are as household words. There is a future before Hawaii, but that future can only be properly developed by perfect freedom. It can become a model little State, it ought to be a model little State, but it can become a thing not worthy even of a passing sneer, a thing beneath contempt; a mere pocket borough of a wealthy man and his friends, with puppets and not men to fill its high places.

Hawaii's present, Hawaii's future are now before the people. The platform of the men who can help her is before them, can they hesitate which way their votes shall be cast? To be or not to be! To be a nation worthy of the name, or not to be worthy of the name of even a mere tribe. The Hawaiian and the philo-Hawaiian must decide To Be!

NOTES.

Of the six largest sugar producing countries of Europe, Germany this year carries off the palm with 900,000 tons, or 39 per cent of the whole. Next come Austria with 475,000 tons, France with 425,000, Russia with 250,000, Belgium with 73,000, and Holland with 25,000. Germany has not only the greatest number of refineries, 337 out of 1,204, but the largest also.

The Comet, according to the calculations of astronomers, made its perihelion passage on the [illegible] instant, and was then 70,000,000 miles from the sun. The nearest approach it made to the earth was in the middle of the month, when it was only the small trifle of 60,000,000 miles distant. It has now started off on its tour through space and may be expected again in 72 years, or somewhere about the year 1956. Seeing that when it appeared in 1812 it was one of the largest comets on record, it has by no means kept up its reputation and may be regarded as rather a fraud in the way of comets.

A New York Sun special says: "Mr. Miller, of California gets the committee he has so ardently desired, and he is made Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. Among other subjects the Committee will consider will be the Hawaiian treaty. Under that treaty it is asserted that Claus Spreckels, the sugar king, controls the entire sugar product of the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Spreckels opposes revoking the treaty, and Miller, unless he has recently changed his mind, holds to Spreckels's opinion.

The subject of physical as well as mental education has occupied the attention of a large number of writers in the United States of late and amongst other subjects the matter of school recesses has been discussed. It appears that in Rochester, N. Y. the school recess has been given up entirely. It is to be hoped that so pernicious a system may not gain ground. Children require rest, and rest in the open air during their school time. From the point of view of the teachers' personal comfort the abolition of the school recess may be advisable, but to the child a recess is invaluable, and far from decreasing the time given it might advantageously be increased. As far as memory serves us at the large public schools in England, though the school hours were long, there was hardly a day when the pupil had two consecutive hours of study, there was always a short rest between.

The S. F. Merchant as usual belabors the Chronicle in the following language: "The Chronicle is not only malicious but inconsistent in its constant fury against everybody and everything connected with the Hawaiian Islands, or with sugar. On Thursday week it had a sensational article founded on the affairs of an American company that had not succeeded in producing on its Hawaiian plantations as much sugar as was expected. This week it is berating the treaty on the ground that it will lead to the production of too much sugar. The Chronicle reminds us of a malicious drunken individual, who, going home late one night, swore to himself that if his wife was sitting up for him, he would beat her for wasting fire and candle, and if she was in bed, he would beat her for neglecting his comfort. Nothing that his wife could do would please that fellow any more than anything done in the islands will please the Chronicle. The Chronicle is mad because the Islands having about reached their full capacity only produce 50,000 tons, while the Chronicle has said again and again they would produce 150,000 tons; and within a week it again attempts to terrorize the United States with predictions of the enormous amount of sugar they are going to produce."

The American Exporter, speaking of the publicity attained by the Reciprocity Treaty between these Islands and the United States, says: "Public opinion has been fully called to this important subject, and it is now understood in its true bearing and merits. This is the most important of all the treaties of the United States with foreign nations to the future greatness of this country. It is essential to the supremacy of the United States in the commerce of the Pacific Ocean. The Sandwich Islands furnish the key to the commerce of this great ocean. It is essential that the United States should control them, and not allow them to go into the hands of England, France, or any other rival commercial power. In 1876, when this treaty was made perfectly clear, that in order to protect the interests and commercial supremacy of this country on the Pacific Ocean, the Sandwich Islands would have to be annexed to the United States, and governed as a part of our country, or otherwise a close alliance made with them by a reciprocity treaty which would secure the control of them and guard them from the control of any other nation. The Government wisely makes this reciprocity treaty in preference to annexation, which would have been an immense burden and expense to this country. The treaty secures to the people of the United States vast and growing reciprocal advantages in trade and business. But the great object of this treaty is the control of our people on the Pacific Ocean and our trade with the immensely populous countries on the other side of this ocean."

A special correspondent of Bradstreet's writes to that paper, from Washington, as follows: "There is another element in the tariff question which is likely to give the Democratic party in the House much concern. It is not the Democratic programme to make any very radical reductions in the duties on sugar. There is a large Democratic protection vote, and Louisiana is "solid" for sugar. It is reported that the Louisiana Democrats have been notified that "sugar is not to be hurt." The Republicans, on the contrary, have very decided views on the propriety of large reductions of the sugar duties. The proposition to abolish the duty on sugar altogether, and to couple with it a bounty for American producers, is strongly advocated by many Republicans, particularly by those who are most interested in a protective tariff. The Republican protected sections derive comparatively little benefit from the duty on sugar. If the duty on sugar should be abolished, the question of further material reduction, either of internal revenue or of the tariff, would no longer be a practical one, for, much as is said about the surplus, the United States Treasury, with the duties on sugar abolished, and the revenue from existing tariff legislation still an uncertain quantity, would have no considerable surplus. If the Republicans as a party shall decide upon the policy of solving the problem of surplus revenue by abolishing the sugar duties, and providing for a bounty to producers of American sugar, the tariff question would take on a new aspect. From a canvass which has already been partially made it is learned that the representatives of the Louisiana sugar interests would, for the most part, consent to a plan to give a bounty to the sugar producers. An annual bounty from the government for an average crop would, some of them maintain, be a much more certain source of income than a crop subject to so many hazards as is the sugar crop of Louisiana. If the Republicans should agree to this policy it would, unquestionably, be supported by most of the protection Democrats, notably those of Louisiana, Pennsylvania, New England and Ohio. And a combination based upon such an alliance may pass a bill through both houses. The protection Democrats are very much displeased with the tariff intentions of the dominant party in the House, and it is not to be forgotten that some of these congressmen are protectionists first and Democrats afterwards."

Supreme Court—October Term. 1883.

Wm. Brown vs. Koloa Sugar Company.

A Demurrer is interposed to the complaint in the case upon the ground that it shows upon its face that the contract, for breach of which damages are claimed, is not to be performed within one year from the making thereof, and is therefore void under the Statute of Frauds. Civil Code Section 1022, subdivision 5.

The allegations in the complaint are not very definite, but upon demurrer no advantage can be taken of that.

The exact time of making the contract is not stated, but it is averred that it was made in 1880 and 1881. This includes all of 1881. It is alleged that the parties agreed that the plaintiff should plant sugar cane on his available land in Koloa, amounting to eight acres more or less, to be ground and manufactured into sugar at defendant's sugar works in Koloa, and that defendant would, at a suitable time after the same had matured, haul the said cane from the plaintiff's land to defendant's mill, and manufacture the same into sugar, at a charge of one half the sugar and molasses, the product of said cane.

This is the whole contract as alleged.

The plaintiff further alleges that in pursuance of the contract, three acres were planted in 1881 and subsequently, in 1881 and 1882, a second piece of land of about five acres was planted, and that the defendant furnished seed cane for all the planting, and, for the second piece furnished a plow and made advances of money, and that about January 1883, when the first field was mature and in good condition to be ground, the defendant refused to grind it or any part of plaintiff's cane.

In Section 273 of Brown on the Statute of Frauds, it is said:

"The statute provides simply that if the contract does by its terms expressed, or from the situation of the parties, reasonably implied, require more than a year for its performance, they must put it in writing. In other words, it must affirmatively appear from the contract itself and all the circumstances that enter into the interpretation of it, that it cannot in law be performed within the space of a year from the making."

This I believe to embody the rule, as derived from the cases cited by the counsel for both parties, and I shall decide the case by that rule.

Manifestly, although the first field planted was but three acres, yet if sufficient labor had been applied, the whole eight acres might have been planted at about the same time. The fact that five acres were subsequently planted, and are not yet ripe, does not affect the validity of the contract. The contract is not rendered void by the long delay in execution. If, as matter of fact, it might, in the nature of things, be completed within the year.

There is nothing alleged to show but that the eight acres might have been planted, matured, cut and ground within a year from the making of the contract. If that could be done, the contract was a valid one; if not, then it was void. I cannot hold it void upon this pleading.

If there should be a trial, and it should then be proved that a crop could not be planted and harvested in a year, it would be a defense.

BENJ. H. AUSTIN,
Justice Supreme Court.

Dated Oct. 5th, 1883.

Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands—Special Term Dec. 1883.—In Banco.

Wm. Brown vs. The Koloa Sugar Co. Appellant.

Judd C.J., McCully and Austin J.J.—Opinion of the Court by Austin J.

This case is here on exceptions from a decision below overruling a demurrer made to the complaint in an action on contract, on the ground that the contract was not in writing, and was therefore invalid because its terms showed it could not be performed within one year.

The court refer to and adopt the opinion in the court below; and further say that the acts of the defendant as alleged in furnishing seed cane and a plow, and money to aid the plaintiff in the planting and cultivation of the sugar cane, for the failure to grind which the plaintiff seeks damages, may properly be construed as a recognition of the contract at the time the last of such advances were made, and that if from that time the contract could possibly be performed within a year the statute of frauds does not apply.

Mr. Bond gives an Emphatic Denial

EDITOR GAZETTE: Some one, well known indeed among us, has seen fit, in your last issue, to publish my name coupled with the assertion that, in circulating the petition therein referred to, I gave it to be understood that Dr. Thompson was going to resign, using that statement as a ground for securing signatures. Allow me to give that charge a positive denial. Yours truly, Kohala, January 26, 1884. E. C. BOND.

He goes to remain a year at the Japanese Foreign Office, in order to assist in arranging a new treaty with reference to commercial matters, and to the much vexed question of extra Territoriality.

Rev Dr. Lane, preached the sermon at the evening service held at Fort street Church on the 27th inst., taking for his text: "And there went out unto him all the land of Judea and they of Jerusalem and were all baptized of him in the river of Jordan. Mark 1.5." The speaker was listened to with interest the subject matter being well and ably handled.

On the 21st inst. Messrs. A. W. Richardson & Co. moved into their new place of business, on the south west corner of Merchant and Fort streets, and the opportunity afforded by more room enables them to display their stock of gents furnishing goods to better advantage than at their old quarters. The location of the premises is a most eligible one and the firm's customers are promised the latest novelties in their line of trade.

The rainy weather of the 24th inst., induced the Minister of the Interior to go armed with a protecting influence in the shape of an umbrella: in his peregrinations about town he deposited the article in some place, pro tem, for safe keeping and his multitudinous business cares on that date has caused him to forget the location, and the umbrella has joined the army of those "gone" before.

One of the retainers at Iolani Palace, having no fear of the "Dread King," has amused himself lately with forging the Royal sign manual to several orders for gin, brandy and beer and obtained the liquors (amounting to about twenty dozen) from Messrs. Macfarlane & Co. The forgery was discovered however, and yesterday, on trial in the Police Court, the accused was found guilty and committed for trial to the Supreme Court.

The British man-of-war expected to arrive at this port, within a few weeks, are the latest additions to Britannia's fleet of ocean cruisers, the Heroine commanded by Captain F. R. Blackburn, is 1420 tons burthen, has engines of 1500 horse-power and carries an armament of 8 guns. The Constance commanded by Captain F. P. Doughty, is nearly twice as large, being 2590 tons burthen, has engines of 2390 horse-power and carries 14 guns.

The exterior of the Pae Aina office has been decorated with a series of political cartoons in which the Ministers and the aspirants for Senatorial honors on the Government ticket have been most unmercifully caricatured. One which was shown last Saturday, represented the four Ministers each with a candidate in his pocket, in chase of a phantom brick of gold, towards which Claus Spreckels was driving them with blows from a heavy purse.

The legal gentlemen who attend the police court, are entirely at the mercy, occasionally of an incompetent, or careless interpreter the Captain of the hack police, who is used in that position during the absence of Mr. Wilson. Judge Bickerton's knowledge of the language gave him an opportunity to correct an interpretation on a late occasion, which might have, if taken as originally interpreted, ruined the case of the legal gentleman who was counsel for a defendant.

Certainly newspaper support is not lacking to Mr. J. O. Carter; both the English and Hawaiian press are almost entirely united on the point of his being a desirable candidate. But it was pointed out last week that the government papers only swallow Mr. Carter because they cannot help themselves. His election being almost a certainty they are preparing the way to smooth over the defeat of their principals, which are diametrically opposed to what Mr. Carter advocates.

Rumor is a rather unreliable informant at times, the late deplorable accident at the gaol, by which the Governor Maui his death, affording "rumor" the opportunity to circulate no less than five well connected, probable, stories, each independent of the other, as to the incidents immediately preceding the fatal fall. Even the deputy Marshal of the Kingdom, was not sufficiently lucid in his statements, to counterbalance the worthless and misleading information imparted by the Marshal.

The Chinese are usually regarded as a very conservative people, but they have evidently made an advance in the matter of fireworks. A peculiarly infernal kind of detonating bomb has been recently added to the usual fire-cracker. Perhaps this has been found necessary as the quantity of bad spirits in Hawaii has considerably increased since the enactment of the free liquor law, and the "devil" is let loose pretty freely in the streets during a Saturday night.

Letters have been received from Staunton, Va., and Moscow, Idaho Territory, from prospective settlers, asking for information relative to the climate and business prospects of this country. In answer, the GAZETTE would say that the climate, after acquaintance, is glorious, the thermometer averaging 77 the year round, the extremes during 1883 being, highest 87, lowest 57. Business prospects here, for artisans with a little capital, excellent good.

The brig Hazard, Capt. Tierney, will probably leave tomorrow for the south seas, taking as passengers for the islands in that locality a number of laborers whose terms of service have expired and who are returned to their homes as per original contract when shipped. The cruise this time will be a short one, and if laborers are obtained it will be solely on the account of A. F. Cooke & Co., the P. L. & S. Co. not being directly interested in the present voyage.

Mr. Tregloan, one of the well known merchant tailors of this city, who has, for a number of years past admirably succeeded in providing proper and well fitting raiment for many of our citizens has entered into partnership with Mr. W. C. Atwater, formerly of Lahaina and Makawao, Maui, and the new firm are now prepared to satisfy the most exacting exquisite in dress, in regard to quality, cut and manufacture of business or dress suits. The business will be continued at the old stand on Fort street corner of Hotel street.

The long litigated dispute of the boundaries between Kapahulu and Waialae not having at last been disposed of by a judgment in banco in favor of the Lunalilo Estate, the world renowned Diamond Head, the landmark of Honolulu, the trade-mark of the Hawaiian Islands, with all its glorious associations, will shortly be sold at auction to the highest bidder for cash. It is said that a certain patriotic American gentleman residing in Honolulu, is anxious to purchase the headland in order to fly the American flag from its summit.

The P. M. S. S. Rio Janeiro arrived off this port on the 23rd inst., bringing as incoming passengers 210 Chinese laborers. The vessel anchored outside the passage and the passengers after being examined by the port physician, were landed by means of scows at the quarantine station. There they underwent another examination and their clothing was thoroughly fumigated, Deputy Marshal Dayton having the arrangements in charge. They were all liberated from quarantine at noon on the 28th inst., in season to participate in the merry-making of Chinese New Year.

Now that the decorations have all been distributed, it may be of no harm to remind the distributor of the neglect that has fallen to the lot of a faithful and worthy person who, during the worst of the small-pox epidemic of 1881, worked day and night tending the sick, vaccinating, administering medicine, imposing quarantine etc., etc., and who is still looking out for the health of the city as the working agent of the Board of Health. The order of Ka-[illegible] would be a cheap reward of merit to such a person if the "powers that be" had only recognized his unreported actions.

Rev. Father Bouchard, the Jesuit priest conducting the mission (or revival) services at the Roman Catholic Cathedral in this city, preached a very interesting sermon at the evening services held at that place of worship on the 27th inst. The congregation present, which was a very large one and included a great number of foreigners, was deeply interested in the remarks of the speaker, who held the attention of his large audience from the commencement of his sermon to the close. The native portion of the congregation express regret at their lack of knowledge of English and the absence of an interpreter.

Road-supervisor Hart took advantage of Leap year and gathering a number of his friends together, called upon his wife and gave her the benefit of a surprise party. The good lady was most thoroughly taken aback, when, on her return from a visit which the plotters had planned for her to make, she found the house which she had left dark and silent, a blaze of light, the many voices of old and young mingling with the sounds of music and the dance. The surprised madam took in the situation, but rather reproachfully whispered to the chief culprit, "Charles, how could you?"

An accident, resulting with fatal effect, happened to the driver of one of Mr. Sharratt's teams lately, the circumstances being related as follows: The two horses attached to one of the drays driven by a native, became uncontrollable, and ran in the yard of Mr. Sharratt, one of the wheels of the dray striking a post and knocking the driver off his seat to the ground, the shock stunning him. The horses made the circuit of the yard, and, there being no one to stop them, again rushed out through the gate, dragging the dray over the body of the insensible driver, which lay in their path. Assistance arriving later the unfortunate man was taken to the hospital, where he died on the 27th inst. No inquest, as usual.

The extra concert given by the band at Emma Square on last Monday evening was well attended the evening being one of those calm pleasant ones which allows the most delicate to venture forth from their domicile and enjoy the combined influence of silent nature and lively music. The programme of pieces performed was as follows:

PART I.

March—"Hunting Call,"	Faust.
Clarionet Solo—"Aria,"	Berreau.
Gavotte—"Stephanie,"	Libulka.
Medley—"Rage in London,"	Moloro.

PART II.

Selection—"Patience,"	Sullivan.
Waltz—"Southern Breeze,"	Moller.
"Rochester" and "Tabitas,"	H. Berger.
"Russian Hymn" and "Hawaii Ponoi."

No 2 of Vol. 1, of a publication issued by W. B. Bancroft & Co. of San Francisco, and entitled The Pacific Coast, has been laid on our desk and a cursory glance shows that the magazine presents a pleasant typographical appearance, the type being large and easily read, the cuts clear, and the selection of the contents shows able editors. The aim of the journal is to present the claims of the Pacific Coast, more fully to the public who may be looking for suitable locations for "casting anchor" and settling down, and, as one of the articles of the journal says, "it will doubtless be of material assistance in developing the rich sections of the country west of the rocky mountains." Messrs. J. M. Oat Jr. & Co. are the local agents for subscription.

Once a year there is desolation and disorganization in the peaceable households of Honolulu. The gentle celestial takes his three days' holiday and the housewife has to toil and toil and moil to get the meals ready. The "lords" of the creation are really better off than at any other time of the year, for they get their meals more daintily cooked, but it is uncommonly hard on the rulers of the "Lords." In no other country perhaps is a town left so thoroughly servantless as here. This holiday is growing too; a few years ago Chinamen were satisfied with a single day, now it is no uncommon thing for them to ask for three and even four days. And the unfortunate householder is obliged as a rule to give in to the demand: what can one do when good cooks are so scarce?

Honolulu, for a city of so small a size, certainly boasts enough newspapers and magazines. There are three weekly English newspapers, the GAZETTE, Saturday Press and Pacific Commercial Advertiser; two dailies, the Advertiser and Bulletin, with a third in prospect. Of monthlies there are four, the Planters', the Hawaiian, the Friend, and the Anglican Church Chronicle. Four native weeklies, the Pae Aina, the Kuokoa, the Elele, and the Ko Hawaii; one native monthly the Ke Hoku o ka Kai, a weekly Chinese news and a Portuguese paper complete the list. When we look back ten years and consider that two native and two foreign papers were all that the town could support, some idea of the progress made, can be formed.

HAWAII.

Hilo district is sadly in need of bridges in most of the gulches, it being often very dangerous crossing the streams.

The Kinau met with very heavy weather on her last trip, and was unable to get freight from Hilo. The passengers had to go on board at Waiakea.

The snow on Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea is lower than it has been since the year 1862. The streams in Waimea are very much swollen; during the past two days the weather has been exceptionally severe.

The effects of the late James Shephard, were sold at auction by the sheriff, at Hilo on Jan. 22nd, bringing moderate prices. The goods consisted of a sewing machine, cloth and utensils used in the tailor's trade.

The oldest man probably in the Sandwich Islands died at Hilo, on Friday Jan. 18th. He was a native, Kahananuiaikai by name, who was born in 1782, according to the records, and was therefore 102 years old at the time of his death.

Mr. and Mrs. Coiville, in attempting to cross the stream in the Honolulu gulch, Hilo, on their way from Hilo to Laupahoehoe on Tuesday, Jan. 22nd, came near losing their lives by being washed down the stream, it being swollen from recent rains.

MAUI.

Heavy rains have fallen all over Maui and the Island looks beautiful.

Ross Ranche under the management of Mr. F. P. Hastings, looks remarkably well. The ranche is evidently well cared for.

When the Kinau left Lahaina last Saturday, three cases of liquor were waiting shipment for Lanai. Nothing to do with the election. Oh. No!

The process of importing votes is sometimes dangerous to the disposer of the fund. This was the case at Lahaina the other day, when a prominent electioneering agent himself succumbed to the potations.

Some voters on Lanai have been threatened that if they do not vote the government ticket, they will be ousted from the Shepherds' lands which they are now occupying. This a fatherly method of influencing the elections certainly.

Public meetings have been held weekly at Wailuku and adjoining villages. There is a very thorough appreciation of the points at issue. Were the question to be decided on its merits, there would be no doubt as to the result, but other means beside argument are being used for the Government candidates.

KAUAI.

The Road Supervisor at Waimea has done nothing to the roads, and his excuse has been: "I can get no money." What is the matter with the government purse? Enough money was voted.

The bridge over the Waimea river has been completed for about two months, that is, all except the approaches. As the ends of the bridge are higher than the head of an ordinary man, the public can imagine just how much good the bridge has done.

Hon. J. Kauai has been distinguishing himself by his electioneering speeches. He boasted the other day that he was the author of the law which prevented the arrest of a man for intoxication if six days had elapsed after the man was intoxicated. As an instance of the excellent working of that bit of legislation, one of the paid government policemen was up for being drunk on New Year's day, but Mr. Kauai's law stepped in and nothing could be done to the offender. The would be member for Waimea has also said that it was not right to put the Ministers out because the King had placed them where they were and the Bible said one must honor the King and do as he said. After which he announced himself as an Independent candidate!

A FATAL FALL!

Death of the Hon. W. F. Buckle.

Another of those fatal accidents, which serve upon their occurrence to startle the community, either on account of the surrounding circumstances or the acquaintance with, or knowledge which the public generally has of the victim, occurred at the Oahu prison on the morning of the 27th inst. between 4.30 and 5 o'clock, the unfortunate victim in the case being no less a personage than the Governor of the prison, Hon. W. F. Buckle. The news of the sad occurrence was received in the city soon after the accident and the services of Dr. Brodie were brought into requisition, he arriving on the ground at 5.35 but too late to be of assistance, the vital spark having expired before his advent. Attempts to obtain a lucid account of the unfortunate affair from the proper authorities proved futile, and unsatisfactory, a representative of the GAZETTE, however, gleaned from [illegible] the following story:

BEFORE THE FALL.

The deceased had been to a luau given by Henry Kaia, a clerk in the Land Office, in the early part of the evening of the 26th, and returned to the prison at about 9.30 o'clock. Being unable to sleep, however, he returned to the party about 1.30 and remained there until 4 a. m., returning again to the prison in company with two of his friends. The guards on duty at the time of his latter entrance, report that "Mr. Buckle was then sober enough," that he spoke to them, and mentioned to them his having been out enjoying himself. He then retired to his room, which is on the second story. The rest of the movements of the deceased until his body was found lying at the base of the wall on the Waikiki side of the prison seem to be unknown, except by conjecture.

A SUBORDINATE'S STATEMENT.

At an hour which he is unable to say positively, the head turnkey states, that he was awoke by the noise of breaking glass, and, starting up, he listened for a repetition of the sound; not hearing anything he judged that one of the picture frames hanging in his room had fallen to the floor, and lighted a match for the purpose of viewing the destruction. His attention was then drawn to two panes of glass and a portion of the sash in the window of the room being broken, so he called the guard on watch and ordered him to go outside and search, he (Malaiki) thinking that some drunken person had thrown a stone in. The guard took a lantern, went out the mauka gate, and arriving under the broken window, there found the almost inanimate body of his superior officer, the Governor of the jail. Hastening back he told the chief turnkey; an alarm being given the guards with the assistance of others who went out, and brought the yet breathing body of the unfortunate man within the jail. Some time seems to have elapsed before telephoning for medical assistance, but after so doing the yet living, but senseless, man was removed from the jail to his own residence on Liliha street; there Dr. Brodie saw the body at 5.35, it being yet warm, but life was extinct.

THE ATTENDING PHYSICIAN.

Dr. Brodie, stated that he was called by telephone to come to the prison. Answering the call, he immediately dressed, went to Dodd's stables, obtained his horse and rode to the prison, leaving the stables about 5.30. Arriving at the prison he met the guards carrying the body of the injured man to the residence on Liliha street. On the arrival of the body at the house of the deceased he found that life had fled, although the body was yet warm. He noticed that there was a severe cut over the right temple of deceased, and he probed it to ascertain if the skull was fractured; he was not sure that it was; in fact the doctor, supposing that there would be an inquest, only made a cursory examination. He did not know whether the neck of deceased was broken or not, nor whether the body had other bruises. He had never heard that deceased had apoplectic fits.

THE HYPOTHESIS OF THE CAUSE.

From the stories prevalent, the statement of the turnkey Malaiki, and the position in which the body was found, it is supposed that deceased walked to the edge of the parapet on the southerly end of the prison, and, by some (unaccountable) means, fell over the three feet high and two feet wide battlement, to the ground below, a distance of about twenty-five feet, and in the downward flight breaking, (by some unaccountable means,) two panes of glass in a twelve light window, situated within a recess of eighteen inches.

THE LAST RITES.

The funeral of the late governor of Oahu Prison, W. F. Buckle, took place from the family residence on Liliha street at 4 p. m. on the afternoon of the 28th inst and the body was followed, to the last resting place, by an extraordinary large number of people who had, during his life, learned to love and regard the kind, affectionate, but unfortunate "Bill" Buckle.

Strange as it may appear that, although the manner of the death of the deceased had not been satisfactorily accounted for, and with all the doubt and mystery surrounding the affair, the appointed officers of the law, having charge of inquests, were content to sit idly by and make no move to hold an inquiry nor post mortem examination, their direct statements to a representative of this journal being, "that it was not necessary." Public opinion and an official hint, however, compelled action to be taken, and an inquiry was held at 1.30 o'clock yesterday before a coroner's jury. No new facts were elicited aside from those here stated.

THE INQUEST.

The coroner's jury mentioned above consisted of Messrs. H. Swinton, J. Fisher Jr., J. Kean, W. Allen, Edwin Hall, and H. Kopp and the inquiry in the case was commenced before them at 2 p. m. instead of 1.30 p. m. as originally ordered by Coroner Dayton. The sitting was continued without but one interruption, (from 5.30 to 7.30 p. m.) until 1.30 a. m. this morning, the court room being well filled by attentive listeners until past midnight. The questions and answers during a great portion of the time were altogether in the native language, two of the jurymen acting as interpreters for the benefit of the newspaper reporters present. At 8.15 p. m. Judge Davidson appeared upon the scene, having been engaged to forward the inquiry on the part of the family of the deceased, and he immediately simplified matters by requesting Coroner Dayton to supply an official interpreter and allow the jurymen to sit and to attend to their sworn duties. Mr. Gwen Holt was finally obtained to fill the position, which he did in a very satisfactory manner. The witnesses were examined at length but the voluminous testimony taken, when boiled down, presents no more concise and accurate information relative to the exact manner in which Mr. Buckle came to his death, than the statements given above. Marshal Parke was present during the entire investigation as were also representatives of the Gazette and Bulletin. At 1.30 this morning on motion of Judge Davidson the hearing was adjourned until 1.30 o'clock this afternoon; the jurymen before separating for their homes being regaled with an early morning lunch at the Windsor restaurant, the witnesses present also being fed through the kindness of Marshal Parke.

Y. M. C. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held at the hall of the Association on the evening of the 24th inst. The unpropitious weather was a sufficient cause for a small attendance but those present managed to perform a creditable amount of business connected with the interests of the association. The report of the building committee was presented by president A. F. Judd, by the chairman Mr P. C. Jones Jr. and after discussion, the report was approved, and the committee discharged, receiving a vote of thanks for the labors performed. Mr P. C. Jones Jr advised the discontinuance, for the present, of sermons at the Sunday afternoon meetings held in the hall. Rev Dr. Hyde suggested that the hour be changed to a later one, and that the services assume more of the character of prayer meetings, to be conducted by the young men of the association. Motions were made covering the suggestions and were passed. Report was made that a petition had been forwarded to His Majesty asking for more stringent measures for preventing the sale of intoxicating liquors. The report on Chinese work, presented by the Committee having the matter in charge, was very interesting and showed that the christianizing of the Chinese was a work that occupied the time and attention of earnest members and Rev Dr. Damon remarked that, "it was one of the best works prosecuted by the association." Rev Dr. Hyde was appointed editor of the Y. M. C. A. page of the Friend for the coming year. The new classes in Hawaiian and book-keeping were reported as being well attended; the drawing class however had to be discontinued for the present on account of the absence of Mr Furneaux, the teacher. The following account of the committee of the building fund was presented and ordered to be published in the various newspapers. The meeting then closed.

The Coming Election.

A list of the candidates for the forthcoming election has been published in a contemporary. The classification was entirely incorrect, so we present a correct list for the benefit of our readers. The whilom government organ, which now poses as being free of official import, claimed no less than fourteen aspirants for legislative honors who are thoroughly independent.

Government candidates are marked G. Independents, I.

OAHU.

The Government Candidates have a Talk

In accordance with a previous announcement, two candidates of the government ticket made use of the Roman Catholic Church yard on Sunday last, as a place in which to conduct their "stumping" for the coming elections. Much to the discomfort of the [illegible] immediately opposite, the noisy eloquence of John Baker and J. L. Kaulukou, began before the services were half over. Mr. John Baker first addressed the audience present. His remarks were brief, but redolent of vulgarity and blasphemy. He likened himself unto Christ, in as much as he had been sent by the Father, (meaning the King as such) to save the nation, quoting from Scripture, the passage: "Whatsoever ye ask the Father in my name, that will He give unto you."

Then followed the windy and vociferous Kaulukou, whose tones in denouncing the fools and holding him up to hatred, could be heard a block distant. His speech lasted from 12 o'clock M. to 3 P. M. It was replete with falsehoods and misrepresentations in reference to the foreign element in general, and Mr. Carter in particular. No little time was occupied by him in explaining the wondrous benefits that had accrued to the nation as the result of such embassies as the one of which he was an attaché. How Hawaii, as a consequence, had become great in the eyes of the world, and decorations which had been lavished on the King from foreign Courts were the testimony to such effect. The benignant policy of Mr. Gibson in his disobservance of segregation laws respecting lepers, was expatiated on at great length.

The Pose of the "Press."

EDITOR GAZETTE:—The recent posturings of the Saturday Press on certain topics have partaken, in about equal parts, of the grotesque and the ridiculous. It has evidently lost sight of its original mission—as understood by its founders and subsequent supporters—viz: to voice the sentiments of the intelligent, independent and moral element of our foreign population, in the advocacy of commercial, social and political probity—especially the latter.

But behold the degeneracy of that journal from the level above outlined, to its present attitude, as a dispenser of sentimental twaddle concerning the abilities and virtues of a little knot of gentlemen who appear to have fascinated its sanguine editor by displays of charms imperceptible to the prosaic eyes of the common herd. A few weeks since its every issue was brimming over with glories sung to "Saint" Paul Neumann, and his supernal grace of mind and morals. Continuing that silvery strain of panegyric until its every reader, save perhaps, the more or less estimable object of its worship, was disgusted with the journalistic "taffy" with which he had been besmeared, it left him on the pedestal to which, in its unsophisticated imagination it had raised him, and devoted its orisons to another idol. Dropping—in figurative phrase—upon his knees before Mr. E. C. Macfarlane, the editor flung his coat in the mud before that genial gentleman, and poured upon his head unstinted quantities of fulsome flattery, declaring his puissance in the solution of all our vexing political problems, beseeching his protection from the beinous of the government, and again disgusting every one who appreciates independent journalism as it should be.

Taking the Press of the past few weeks as a sample (which Heaven grant may not be done by readers abroad) the writer verily accords with the assertion in the last issue of that journal, to wit: "Honolulu newspapers are a desperately faulty lot." The Press is by no means the least offender. I appeal to Thrum for a change. ALOHA.

Mr. Grant Explains.

KAPAA, KAUAI, January 27, 1884.

EDITOR GAZETTE: Observing the scandal about J. B. Grant in your valuable paper of Jan. 12, 1884, I wish the public to understand that I am not guilty of the same. I had to procure a bondsman, but I am sorry to say the white citizens of Kapaa were not able to go my bond, from want of property; therefore the Chinaman Aloyen, an opponent to me, came to my store and offered to go bond, $1,000, if I wished. The prosecutor in the case says himself that I did not strike him before the sheriff and the judge. I am sorry to say that all this comes through spite, for the reason that I do not give ten per cent., nor do I give my customers brandy. I cannot afford it, as I do a legitimate business and deal fair and square with every person. The injured man was out fishing three or four days after the affair happened.

Yours truly, J. B. GRANT.

The Hawaiian Cable Co.

The Hawaiian Cable Company, at a meeting held on Tuesday last, accepted their Charter of Incorporation. The Hon. H. A. Widemann was elected President; H. R. Macfarlane, Esq., Vice President and C. O. Berger Esq., Treasurer and Secretary. The company has a capital of $400,000 and all the shares are already subscribed for. The work of getting soundings will be rapidly pushed forward and as soon as a proper idea of the cable required can be formed, it will be ordered. The company are in treaty for either the Mokolii or the Iwalani to carry the sounding party, of which Capt. Jackson is to have charge. The sounding machine, which has been lying for two years at the Iron Works, is being put in thorough repair. It will not be so long before inter-island communication by cable will be a fait accompli. Then the great ocean cable will be brought to the front. To Mr. C. O. Berger's energy is due the initiation of the present undertaking.

The Independent Ticket to the Front.

Resolutions passed at a meeting of the residents of Pauoa on Monday evening, January 28, reads as follows:

1st. That the voters of Pauoa do vote the "Independent" ticket at the coming election for the district of Honolulu.

2nd. After the above ticket is elected to the Legislative Assembly, the candidates will be requested to come before the Pauoa people and explain their proposed platforms in the House.

3rd. That the chairman of this meeting will be appointed as a committee to publish the above resolutions in the native journal Ko Hawaii Pae Aina.

The Louisiana Sugar Planters.

The Louisiana sugar planters are having meetings preliminary to a large one to be held at New Orleans this week, at which they propose to "view with alarm" the rise and spread of sentiments in the press and in Congress against the maintenance of the existing imposed duties on imported sugars. Their representatives in Congress, will, of course, be called on to take the action necessary to stop the aforesaid rise and growth.

What Others Say.

[From the Washington National Republican.]

[We republish the following article, taking out such remarks as are personally insulting to King Kalakaua, merely to enable people here to judge of what is being said of us abroad. That the article is untrue in some particulars does not lessen the evil it can do and it shows significantly how the farcical way in which the government is being carried on, is being shown up abroad, and how necessary it is for Hawaii, if she wishes to maintain her independence, to change her present course.]

HONOLULU, Dec. 18, 1884.

There has been no more critical period in the history of the Hawaiian kingdom than the present. Many cautious men, not prone to exaggeration, predict that the next few weeks, or even the next few days, will see a revolution on these islands. The causes which have brought about the present condition of affairs date from the election of Kalakaua. The constitution of this government gives the ruler the right to name his successor. If he fails to do so the people elect their king. Kamehameha left the selection of a successor to the people. The English residents in the kingdom, and indirectly the English government, favored the election of Queen Emma, widow of Kamehameha. She was the daughter of Dr. Rooke, an Englishman, and is a lady of intelligence and culture. The Americans and Germans favored the election of Kalakaua, and he was chosen. That his election was not entirely satisfactory was proved by the fact that the populace broke into the room where the convention was sitting and severely beat and wounded several of the delegates who had voted for him. It required the interposition of foreign marines to restore order. King Kalakaua went to Europe, and after visiting various courts, conceived the notion that he was as great as any other king, and that it was a great thing to be a king. A man by the name of Gibson, who had led a life full of adventures, managed in some way to get himself made prime minister. He understood the king's vanity, and proceeded to minister to it and thereby confirm his own power. His best stroke of business in that direction was to get up a coronation for the king. The affair was very magnificent, and cost $75,000. Many debts were incurred and still exist. The crown itself was said to be bought on credit, and unless the government has paid for it within the past few days, the bill for it is still unreceipted. By this, and by similar flatteries to the king's vanity Gibson has become very powerful. His ministry has excited for him the hatred of a great majority of the population. He is the evil genius of this country. To his ministry the country is indebted for the free liquor law, which is slaughtering the people. He organized the mounted police, the character of which may be inferred from the fact that nearly the entire body were recently arrested, fined and imprisoned for being drunk and disorderly. Money has been wasted so lavishly that the financial condition of the nation is alarming.

The other prominent political figure is Claus Spreckels. He is believed, in the United States, to have virtual possession of all the sugar plantations in the Sandwich Islands. This is not true. He and his company however, produced 25,000,000 pounds of the 120,000,000 pounds of sugar produced in the kingdom last year. He has very great influence with King Kalakaua and his ministry. One of the chief causes of the present troubles comes from a recent contract between Spreckels and the government. Chinese laborers are imported into the kingdom, but by law, the importation is limited to 200 a month. The transportation of these Chinese is a profitable thing, and the government had made a contract with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company to bring them. Recently Gibson notified the company that he had cancelled that contract and made another with Spreckels for the same service. This action of the minister is a direct violation of the treaty between this country and the United States, which guarantees the same privileges to all American citizens. No reasons were given by Gibson. It is understood here that the Pacific Mail Company complained at Washington of this treatment. At any rate, a commissioner has been sent here from Washington to investigate the matter. The people here understand that a strong feeling has been created against in the United States by this favoritism shown to Spreckels.

A mass meeting of citizens of Honolulu was held last Monday night to consider this and other actions of Mr Gibson, which were alienating the friends of the kingdom in the United States. Resolutions were adopted condemning the action in the matter of the Pacific Mail Company, whereby, as it was said, an unfriendly feeling had grown up in Washington against our government, and treaty relations with the United States and the independence of our government had been jeopardized. The second resolution was: "That we hereby express our utter want of confidence in the present cabinet."

The most pressing evil and that which brings with it the most danger of revolution is found in the finances of the country. The kingdom has issued no coin until recently. The legislature authorized the king to issue bonds amounting to $1,000,000 at 6 per cent interest, to be sold only at par and for United States gold or its equivalent. This was the only loan he was authorized to make. Instead of making this loan, he has negotiated a loan from Spreckels of silver half dollars at par, which Spreckels has had coined abroad and which are worth but 41 cents each. Spreckels has already had $130,000 worth of these 41 cent half dollars coined with the Hawaiian stamp and brought into the country. He thereby violates the coinage Act and the law imposing a duty upon silver coins. The minister of Finance, John M. Kapena, was about to issue bonds to Spreckels for his 200,000 cheap half dollars when a mandamus was procured from Chancellor Judd of the Supreme Court, on the petition of three citizens, by which the Minister is ordered to accept for such bonds only United States gold coin or its equivalent. A temporary order was served upon the Minister, and yesterday the matter was fully argued before the Chancellor," and the writ was held to be good.

There is is intense excitement at present because of the anticipation that the king will attempt to override the decision of the court. If he should make such an attempt there may be a revolution. King Kalakaua will be compelled to back down from this illegal silver loan and coinage, or he must abdicate or be overthrown. MACK."

Stanley the Explorer.

Mr H.H. Johnson who has recently visited the Congo river, gave the following account of Mr. Stanley's work to the Royal Geographical Society, of London.

The population all along the Congo above Stanley Pool is very dense. Towards Bolobo there is scarcely a river-fronting space clear of villages, and Mr. Stanley reckons from fallen data that the entire population of the Congo basin may amount to 49,000,000 or 50 to the square mile. These masses do not own one great chief or emperor. There is no analogue to the negro kingdoms farther north. Much has been talked lately about the desirability of introducing some sort of political cohesion amongst these tribes, of inducing them to band together into one great nationality. This idea has been put forward on high authority, but I must presume very humbly, but very decidedly, to dissent from its advisability. What has hitherto made Mr. Stanley's work so rapid and so comparatively easy has been the want of cohesion amongst the native chiefs; he has had no great jealous empire to contend with, as he would have had farther north or farther south. If one village declined to receive him, the next town out of rivalry received him with open arms. There has been no war of races, and this has enabled him to effectually implant himself in their midst. Would you now hinder this entry of civilization by banding the native kinglets in union, union which would invariably turn them with race-jealousy against the White? No, "Divide et impera," and don't make this great work dependent on the caprices of an African despot, for the black man though an admirable subject, can never rule. These people are admirably disposed in their present condition to receive civilization, but the civilization must come not as a humble suppliant but as a monarch. It must be able to inspire respect as well as mere wonder, and this is what the expedition as conducted by Mr. Stanley has succeeded in doing.

To realise this, let us hastily consider the state of the Congo only seven years ago, and compare it with the present state of affairs. In 1876 the European merchants had penetrated no farther than Boma, where they were all established. There was not a single trading station higher up the river. No one knew anything of the country beyond Isangila, except that the natives were all cannibals. Then Stanley, after first descending the river, returned from Europe in 1879, and in 1880 commenced his present work. What has he done? Without a single battle with the natives he has rendered in three years, life and property so safe that I myself could voyage 200 miles beyond Stanley Pool accompanied by only three Zanzibaris. The merchants of Boma, since Stanley's advent, have founded fifteen trading stations between Boma and the falls at Vivi. There was not a single missionary on the Congo before 1879. Now there are three flourishing missions, the Livingstone, the Baptist, and the Roman Catholic, with many stations between Stanley Pool and the sea. The river Niari has been explored throughout its course, and a direct route traced between its mouth and Stanley Pool. Establishments like Vivi and Leopoldville, which deserve to be called small towns, have been created, and other stations, numbering in all some twenty-one, have been founded; so that now, between Equator Station at the mouth of the great Mobindu, and the coast, there is a distance of over 700 miles secured to civilization, and offering no greater risks to the traveler than a journey up the Rhine. Mr. Stanley has three steamers on the upper river, and a small fleet of lighters and canoes. The native chiefs are his active coadjutors. He everywhere keeps the peace, and is looked up to as the great umpire in regions where he was once a hunted fugitive. In short whichever way our sympathies may go, we must at least admit that the work is a colossal one, and that the man who has undertaken it has the indomitable will of the Anglo-Saxon.

IN RE THE BOUNDARIES OF KAPAHULU, THE TRUSTEES OF THE LUNALILO ESTATE, PETITIONERS HON. C. R. BISHOP AND MRS. BISHOP, CONTESTANTS.

Judd C. J., McCully and Austin J. J., Opinion of the Court by Austin J.

This case is here on Appeal from a judgment rendered by the Boundary Commissioner of Oahu of the limits of Kapahulu. The owners of the adjoining lands of Waialae-nui and Waialae-iki claim that the judgment includes about 1200 acres of land which properly belong to Waialae-nui.

The territory in dispute is a barren tract lying to the eastward of Diamond Head.

The boundaries of Kapahulu were declared by Boundary Commissioner W. P. Kamakau by his judgment rendered Dec. 23rd 1872 to be nearly as now settled, but owing to certain legal defects in the fixing of the boundaries as to the land of Waialae-iki the judgment was vacated by the decree of the Chancellor entered May 11 1880 and a new proceeding was taken herein to again settle the boundaries of Kapahulu.

On carefully examining the evidence taken before the boundary commissioner, and the additional evidence taken before us, we are inclined to believe that the decision of the boundary commissioner is right. The evidence is very conflicting and is nearly evenly balanced. The contestants present maps made by Wm. Webster of Waialae-iki and Waialae-nui, bearing date June 7 1851 and copy of description of Waialae-iki dated April 26 1850 which if correct show that the contestants are entitled to the land in dispute.

We think however that there is not sufficient evidence that they were known of or that the boundary as fixed by them was assented to at any time by the owners of Kapahulu. Certain acts of occupation with his cattle in grazing by Mahuka, the tenant of the contestants Ancestors, were shown, but nothing which would amount to an adverse possession; nor was such possession claimed. It was shown that Mahuka was the lessee of Kapahulu also and this would account for his use of it, and some evidence says that the owners of Kapahulu were angry at the claim of Mahuka based on the Webster map.

The evidence shows that Mahuka pointed out to Webster the boundaries of Kapahulu and his map is based on this showing. Without possession or other supports the map becomes only a mere declaration of Mahuka in favor of his lessors, and has little force. Against Mr. Webster's map, the Petitioners present an old map of the adjoining land of "Kaalo" made by W. H. Pease in which the territory in dispute is called Kapahulu. This being an apparent survey the same criticism applies to it.

The comparatively valueless character of the land whose boundaries are here sought to be established no doubt largely accounts for the indefinite and contradictory nature of the testimony adduced.

The best result we are able to reach is that the boundaries of the land of Kapahulu are as described in the certificate of the Boundary Commission and therefore affirm the same.

of modern invention throw off 4,000,000 copies of daily journals and 25,000,000 of weeklies. It is 98 years since the first daily organ of public opinion was started in New York city, and at present there are 115 in the State and 1000 in the country at large. The declaration of independence had been proclaimed in Philadelphia three weeks before it received the benediction of type in Thomas Jefferson's newspaper at Williamsburg. To-day the poet's dream of Puck's girdle compassing the world in 40 minutes is almost realized, and the fantasies of an airy imagination are frequently excelled by sober fact. The story of the universe for the previous 24 hours appears in the morning journal; a Sunday sermon by Mr. Spurgeon in his Tabernacle in South London can be read in full in Philadelphia on Monday; and interviews with Popes, Kings, and Chinese ambassadors are cabled under the broad Atlantic, and form topics of conversation in Broadway the very day they take place.

CALL AND SEE THE NEW GOODS

AT

Why He Stopped the Paper.

Some time ago the New York Ledger published the statement that a man in New Hampshire, who had been unable to speak for five years, went to sleep one night with a quid of tobacco in his mouth, and awoke the next morning with his voice perfectly strong, and smooth, and steady.

Old Mr. Jarvis, who lives in Pond-street, is sorely afflicted with an impediment in his speech, and often says he would give a hundred dollars if he could only t-t-t-taw-taw-talk f-f-f-fast enough t-t-to t-t-tell a gug-gug-gug-grocer what he wa-w-w-wants beb-bef-bef before he gug-gug-gets it measured out. He takes the Ledger, and had taken it for twenty years, and he firmly believed everything he ever read in it—Sylvanus Cobb's stories, Mr. Beecher's sermons, Mr. Parton's "Lives of Eminent Americans," the answers to correspondents, etc. Mr. Jarvis had taken all in and believed every word. He thought that probably this quid-of-tobacco treatment might help his voice a little, and he resolved to give it a good trial anyhow. The first trouble was that he did not chew, and Mrs. Jarvis would never allow a bit of tobacco about the house. But he begged a big "chaw" of Navy, and when he went to bed he tucked it snugly away in his cheek, and prepared to sleep in hope. He had his misgivings, and they grew in number as the quid began to assert itself and be sociable, and to assimilate itself with its surroundings. Mrs. Jarvis asked him if he had fastened the front gate.

"Um," said Mr. Jarvis, meaning that he had.

"And are you sure you locked the front door?" queried his restless spouse.

"Um," replied Mr. Jarvis, meaning that he had not, for he was by this time in no condition to open his mouth.

"Hey?" she replied.

"Um," persisted Mr. Jarvis.

"What?" she demanded.

"Um-m-m," protested Mr. Jarvis.

"Well," said she, "you can't make me believe you are that near asleep this soon."

"Um-m-m," said Mr. Jarvis, meaning that he would get up and bounce her out of the front door if she didn't hold her clack.

Presently she sat up in bed. Sniff, sniff! "John Jarvis" she exclaimed, "if I don't smell tobacco in this house, I'm a sinful woman. Don't you smell it?"

"It's in this very room," she persisted excitedly.

"M'm," said Mr. Jarvis, meaning that she must be crazy.

"It's under the bed," she screamed. "There's a burglar under the bed! Oh help! Fire! Police! John Jarvis!!!!" and she smote Mr. Jarvis a furious pelt in the stomach to waken him up. It was a terrific thump, and its first effect was to knock all the atmosphere out of Mr. Jarvis's lungs so far that he could only recover his breath by a violent gasp, which first carried the quid of tobacco and all the nicotine preparation that it had been steadily distilling down his throat, and was immediately succeeded by a tremendous cough as he struggled to rise up in bed, which shot the quid squarely into the eye of the shrieking Mrs. Jarvis.

"Murder! murder!" she screamed, "I'm stabbed! I'm stabbed!" and John Jarvis choked, and coughed, and spit, and coughed, and choked, and clutched Mrs. Jarvis by the throat, and tried to choke off the noise, but he grew so "ill" that he couldn't hold his grip, and Mrs. Jarvis, the moment her throat was released from his trembling pressure, rose from the half-strangled gurgles to the sublimity of double-edged screams, and made Rome howl with melody. And the neighbors broke into the house and found a bedroom that looked and smelled like a jury-room or a street car, with the sickest man they ever saw lying his head over the side of the bed groaning at the rate of a mile a minute, and the worst frightened woman since the flood sitting up beside him, screaming faster than he groaned. And that is the way Mr. Jarvis came to stop his "Ledger," and [...] pestilent sheet that ever disgraced American journalism.—Exchange.

Alcohol as a Remedy.

I do not intend to deny that the use of mild alcoholic tonics, as a substitute for the frightful remedies of the medieval Sangrados, is a decided improvement, but still it is only a lesser evil, a first step of a progressive reform. Alcohol lingers in our hospitals, as slavery lingers in the West Indies, as the witchcraft delusion lingers in southern Europe. Has alcohol any remedial value whatever? Let us consider the matter from a purely empirical standpoint. Does alcohol protect from malarial fevers? It is a well known fact that the human organism cannot support two diseases at the same time. Rheumatism can be temporarily relieved by producing an artificial inflammation; a headache yields to a severe toothache. For the same reason the alcoholic fever affords a temporary protection from other febrile symptoms—i.e., a man might fortify his system against chills and ague by keeping himself constantly under the stimulating influence of alcohol. But sooner or later stimulation is followed by depression, and during that reaction the other fever gets a chance, and rarely misses it. The history of epidemics proves that pyretic diseases are from eight to twelve times more destructive among drunkards than among the temperate classes, rich or poor, young or old, [...] of by diseases that decimate drunkards. On no other point is the testimony of physicians of all schools, all times and all countries, more consistent and unanimous.

Is alcohol a peptic stimulant? No more than Glauber's salt or castor oil. The system hastens to rid itself of the noxious substance, bowels are thrown into a state of morbid activity only to relapse into a morbid inactivity. The effect of every laxative is followed by a stringent reaction, and the habitual use of peptic stimulants leads to a chronic constipation which yields only to purgatives of the most virulent kind. Does alcohol impart strength? Does it benefit the exhausted system? If a worn-out horse drops on the highway, we can rouse it by stickin[g a] knife into its ribs, but, after staggering ahead for a couple of minutes, it will drop again and the second deliquium will be worse than the first by just so much as the brutal stimulus has still further exhausted the little remaining strength. In the same way precisely alcohol rallies the the exhausted energies of the human body. The prostrate vitality rises against the foe, and labors with restless energy till the poison is expelled. Then comes the reaction; and, before the patient can recover, his organism has to do double work. Nature has to overcome both the original cause of the disease and the effect of the stimulant.—Popular Science.

[...] and so comparatively easy has been the [...] of cohesion amongst the native chiefs; he has had no great jealous empire to contend with, as he would have had further north or further south. If one village declined to receive him, the next town out of rivalry received him with open arms. There has been no sort of [...] and this has enabled him to effectually implant himself in their midst. Would yet now hinder this entry of civilization by banding the native kinglets in union, union which would invariably turn them with race-jealousy against the White? No, "Divide et impera." [...] don't make this great work dependent on the caprices of an African despot, for the black man though an admirable subject, can never rule. These people are admirably disposed in their present condition to receive civilization, but the civilization must come not as a humble suppliant but as a monarch. It must be able to inspire respect as well as make wonder, and this is what the expedition conducted by Mr. Stanley has succeeded in doing.

To realize this, let us hastily consider the [...]
