A FANCY QUAINT.

I sometimes wish it were really so,
As the Buddha devout declares,
That the soul at will could easily go
From its fleshy sheath unawares,
Fleety as we wander in a dream,
Softly as from buds the roses bloom,
Or as lightly as a golden beam
Flits in and out a darkened room,
Then float above this earth world,
As the clouds in the blue o'erhead,
With the spirit's wings unfurled,
Wandering as the impulse led.

If this fancy quaint were really so,
As the Buddha devout declares,
Couldn't you tell where first I would go,
And steal upon whom unawares?
Swiftly as moonlight creeps on the tide,
Lightly as perfume floats thro' the air,
I'd waft myself, dear love, to your side,
Kissing away all traces of care.
Then float above this earth world?
Perhaps? I cannot know nor say;
When round you my spirit furled,
I might forfeit this life to stay.

—New York Herald.

MY PRIZE PICTURE.

I was young and susceptible, and I was also an amateur photographer.

My dark room was the envy of all my friends, and my work had received the club prizes for artistic merit more than once. However, as they were nothing more than printed slips of paper, these prizes were mere empty honors.

But now I had decided to enter a competition that was worthy of the name, and where the first prize—which I felt sure that I could win—was a check of dazzling dimensions to a youth whose modest income was drawn alarmingly low by the constant sacrifices demanded by the all devouring camera god, which I had set up in the place of Lares and Penates.

This summer I had had no holiday at all, for two days before I was to start for Lenox—where on the last of June I was to have been best man to my old chum Fred—I was laid on my back, fast in the clutches of pneumonia, and though more than two months had passed since then, I was only just out of the doctor's hands. I still felt shaky, and acquaintances were continually stopping me in the street to tell me how badly I looked.

It was now the middle of September, and just the time for a flying trip in search of the picturesque, so I laid in a good supply of rapid plates, packed my traps, and started off to find my prize picture.

It proved a pleasant jaunt, and I changed my plans to suit those of the friends I often fell in with on the way; for although my camera was company enough in pleasant weather, it was not disagreeable to have friends to talk to on cloudy days, or a pretty girl to dance and flirt with during the long evenings.

I took many a delightful tramp o'er hill and dale in search of the prize picture which I was sure that I should come across some day. I have always leaned toward a belief in fate, and "Kismet" is the motto engraved upon my seal.

Several dozen of my rapid Cramers had been used already, and I was well pleased with my collection of river views and mountains, cattle pictures and old farmhouses with quaint interiors—to be developed when I should return to town.

One bright morning, when I was far up in the valley of the Naugatuck, I wandered into fairyland by chance. I had left the high road and struck through the woods, not knowing whither the path would lead me, and at last I came out upon a level tract between the hilly woodland and the river, which was fringed with fine old trees.

A dazzling mass of bloom was spread before me, clumps of feathery white blossoms and plumes of vivid goldenrod were nodding in the breeze, and underfoot the ground was carpeted with every shade of aster, from richest purple to the most delicate tints of lilac and rose. In this secluded spot Dame Nature had strewn her treasures with a lavish hand.

No photograph could catch all its elusive beauty, yet I wanted one for a souvenir, and I proceeded to set up my camera. It made a charming bit upon the ground glass, with the level, flowery foreground and the old gnarled oak in the middle distance, while beneath its widespread branches the rippling river showed its rare lights and shadows. It struck me as just the setting for a picture of some fair maiden; but alas! where could I find her in this solitude?

I buried my head under the dark cloth, intent upon the focus; but when I came out into the sunshine again what vision of loveliness did I see approaching? I saw a maiden whose perfect figure was clad in soft, white drapery, and her hands were full of wild flowers and crimson sumach leaves. She stooped, from time to time, to pick the tall, white asters that seemed to bend their flower laden sprays out toward her hand, and then continued her way, slowly and graciously, and all unconscious of the eager, waiting amateur.

In went the plate holder and out came the slide. A breathless moment of suspense, and then she stood just where I would have placed her. Her position was one of perfect grace. Pausing, she had turned slightly and bent to pluck a flower, looking up and past me with a bewildering smile.

I pressed the bulb, the shutter snapped, and with a feeling of triumph I knew that the prize picture was mine—beyond recall!

When I got back to the inn where I was stopping I found a telegram recalling me to town. The summons did not disconcert me in the least, for my short holiday had proved an eminent success. In health I felt like a different man, and I was exultant over my stolen picture.

Some days passed before I had leisure to develop the plate, but then I found I had indeed a prize, for it proved the best negative in every way among my entire collection.

Before I went down town the next morning I hastily printed a proof, which I looked at with increasing rapture several times during the day.

What a perfect pose that girl had unconsciously taken, and how easy it would [illegible] I had only thought of her [illegible] but now I could not get her lovely face and graceful figure out of my mind. Who was she, and did she live in that quiet town among the hills, or had she been a stranger like myself? How could I find out, and where could I see her again? for see her I felt I must.

It is a strange confession to make, but before twenty-four hours were over I was desperately in love with the unknown original of my prize. That we should meet again some day I had not the slightest doubt. Kismet!

But after all would it be right to send this picture—her picture—into the competition to be criticised, admired freely, passed from hand to hand, then reproduced and sent broadcast over the length and breadth of the whole country?

Why not, when this might be the very means of bringing us together? And then I thought how I should persuade her that my wish to find her out had overcome all scruples, and that with the seeming liberty which I had taken I had shown myself ready to surrender myself her prisoner and await her sentence—for life or death!

I could hardly wait for Saturday afternoon to come, and was in a fever until the few clouds of the morning had disappeared and left me the golden sunshine needed to print the prize picture.

I watched the first print with breathless attention, lest it should be too dark or a shade too light. And when it seemed exactly right I removed it carefully and put it in a dark place, and laid another piece of freshly fumed paper upon the negative. Then I put the printing frame out again on my window sill and began to fuss with another negative.

How it happened I never knew, but there was a crash—and when I turned to the window the printing frame was gone.

I picked it up on the sidewalk—forty feet below—with my precious negative shivered into a thousand pieces.

All my hopes now centered on the one print which fortunately I had secured And oh, the agony of anxiety that I went through in the toning, mounting and burnishing of that one priceless print!

But it was safely finished at last and perfect in every way—beautiful, artistic, beyond question the best piece of photographic work that I had ever done.

So, in spite of the irreparable loss of the negative, I felt almost happy, for with this I would surely accomplish my double purpose. It could not fail to win the prize—a small tribute to pay to my unknown darling's beauty. And it would also be the means of bringing us face to face. For the picture must certainly find its way into the hands of some of her family or friends, and she would hear of it, see it, be a little indignant perhaps. But her father or brother or guardian would be certain to resent the supposed liberty, and might even write to the successful amateur to take him to task for his presumption; that was my most ardent desire—the very clew I wanted. Once I knew where to find her, and then I could manage all the rest.

I was radiant with satisfaction, and was now only keeping the finished picture until I should have a chance to take a copy of it for myself; for I could not make up my mind to part with it altogether until I had found the original.

I was coming up town the next afternoon, my mind full of the beauty and winsome grace of my fair unknown, when I ran across my old chum Fred. It was the first time I had seen him since his marriage, and we each had much to say.

"I want you to meet my wife, Tom; I know you'll like each other. She was as disappointed as I was that your illness kept you from coming to our wedding. Are you all right again now? You look well. Can't you drop in upon us to-night? We are stopping at the Buckingham until our house is ready."

"I shall be most happy to," I answered. And accordingly I presented myself that evening at the door of their private parlor.

Fred welcomed me cordially, and his young wife dropped the roses she was arranging as I entered, turned and came forward smiling and with outstretched hand.

I staggered backward—I believe I should have fallen if Fred had not caught me by the arm—for the beautiful unknown in my prize picture with whom I had fallen so desperately in love was no other than Fred's wife!

"What is the matter? You are ill!" she cried, while she hastily brought me a glass of wine.

"It is nothing—nothing, I stammered. "I believe I'm not yet quite strong. I beg your pardon for being such a fool."

The wine restored me somewhat, and I stayed long enough to remove the feeling of embarrassment that naturally followed after this awkward scene.

When at last I got back to my room I looked at my picture eagerly. The same, beyond the shadow of a doubt. And then I began to realize the full extent of my double loss. Impossible to continue my adoration of the fair unknown—since now I knew her to be the wife of my friend, and impossible to send the stolen picture of another man's wife into a public competition.

I turned the picture to the wall, and sat for a long time lost in thought. Then I seized a pen and wrote:

DEAR FRED—Truth is stranger than fiction. With this I send you the photograph of a fair stranger who deliberately and unconsciously walked into my picture when I was off on a photographing trip two weeks ago. This will also explain my peculiar collapse this evening. It takes a smaller thing than such a queer coincidence to upset a fellow when he is still below par. I know you will prize the picture, for it is the only one in existence, and the negative unfortunately is broken. With respectful remembrances to your wife, your old friend TOM.

As I sealed my note the word "Kismet" gleamed mockingly up from the dark wax. I tied up the photograph and sent it off by a messenger before I had time to reconsider my decision.

"Good by to my dreams—and to my prize picture," I said sadly, as the messenger passed his way down the dark and silent street.

Barry's Tricopherous

Established 1801.

Infallible for renewing, invigorating and beautifying the hair, removing scurf, dandruff, and all affections of the scalp, and curing eruptions of the skin, diseases of the glands, muscles and integuments, and relieving stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, etc. The affinity between the membranes which constitute the skin and the hair which draws its sustenance from this triple envelope is very close. All diseases of the hair originate in the skin of the head. If the pores of the scalp are clogged, or if the blood and other fluids do not circulate freely through the small vessels which feed the roots with moisture and impart life to the fibres, the result is scurf, dandruff, shedding of the hair, grayness, dryness and harshness of the ligaments, and entire baldness, as the case may be. Stimulate the skin to healthful action with Barry's Tricopherous, and the torpid vessels, recovering their activity, will annihilate the disease. In all affections of the skin and of the substrata of muscles and integuments the process and the effect are the same. It is upon the skin, the muscular fibre, and the glands that Barry's Tricopherous has its specific action, and in all affections and injuries of these organs it is a sovereign remedy.

THE Daily Bulletin

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party, But established for the benefit of all.

FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1891.

Prince Bismarck declares his ambition is to be able to walk the streets without seeing a single head turned to look at him. If the usual course of human greatness does not prove a failure, the greatest of German princes will only have to wait another year for the fulfillment of his ambition.

A projected Volcano House Company, of which Mr. L. A. Thurston is the promoter, has been prominently brought before the public lately. Any scheme which has the development of Hawaii in view should receive the support and endorsement of the public, and will doubtless become a public benefit, if carried out in good faith.

A late despatch states the Norwegian Cabinet has resigned because more liberty was demanded in the Scandinavian foreign policy. The North seems to be following the South in movements for political enfranchisement, although the people of neither section seem to clearly understand as yet their needs and the fulfillment thereof.

General Booth met with a chilly reception in Berlin lately, and is said to have declared that he "found less drunkenness in Germany than in England." The Germans evidently keep both their beer and temperance on ice. If other nations followed the German example and compromised on beer, there would be but little demand for temperance reformers. If more beer, and less gin and whisky, was consumed in Hawaii all classes of our citizens and the country would be better conditioned at present.

The Advertiser of this morning publishes an extract from a foreign newspaper which seems to be the key to the strong opposition raised to the Hawaiian cable subsidy in the United States Congress. It is stated in the Advertiser that the scheme of the combine, attempting to secure a cable franchise and subsidy from the United States, is to bring American bids for the cable and a "repair shop" into competition with "four different construction companies in England." This plan would have a tendency to reduce the outlay of the Hawaiian Cable Company, a private corporation, while a very liberal subsidy is asked of Congress to lay this cable and, hence, to make such competition possible.

If this is the true state of affairs some one has blundered. We believe our people are a unit in favor of the enterprise being carried through by American and Hawaiian capital without competition. If Mr. Hartwell has made overtures for competition with American industry, either before or after the granting of a subsidy, he has certainly exceeded the desires of the Hawaiian people and his action will confirm many in the opinion that, from first to last, he has been an unfit man to be at the head of this great international enterprise.

HILO.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—

Hilo town is an exceptionably fine and growing young metropolis. Hilo is the center of one of the finest plantation districts on the Island of Hawaii, and I believe is destined to become the commercial and shipping center of that island, if it is not so already. Hilo has never been a "Sleepy Hollow," although she has had almost as much fun poked at her as pale, ambitious Boston.

Hilo has been unfortunate in harboring a clique of citizen cranks, who like the egotistical boomers of Boston, have done incalculable injury by provoking satire. Yet, notwithstanding this, Hilo and her advantages and attractions are fully appreciated in the capital city of Honolulu. When the tourist punches the Honoluluan in the ribs and demands whitherward he shall wend his way, the answer is invariably to Hilo and the Volcano. Hilo is the poetical Mecca of Honolulu. She deserves to be.

Our interests have espoused Hilo as the sleeping beauty of Hawaii, but, alas, the cranks! These have drawn such a smirch across fair Hilo's beautiful face that we of capital Honolulu are often forced to break into outright laughter. The cranks of Hilo town leave us under the impression that Hilo craves to stand as the center of the earth and would in her vanity snatch the crown of egotism from the fair front of Boston. This sacrilege we demur to in the name of struggling humanity, dying daily with its stern face turned to the "violet crowned" city of Massachusetts

If the citizen cranks, who insist that Hilo town must have the earth, in order to be happy, will only pause in their mad demands, Honolulu will doubtless show a spirit for a fair division, and will allow Hilo two-thirds of the globe, without money and without price,—but further than this we dare not go without the consent of the rest of the world.

Hilo makes no such demands as I am well aware; but her citizen cranks have repeatedly demanded such impossible concessions in her name. I do not pen these lines in jealousy, neither in anger; but when Hilo's latest citizen crank publishes the following nonsense, I think it time to remind our sister city that some of her leading men are attempting conspiracy against her interests:

"Our harbor is good, but we need a breakwater and good wharves. We want good roads into our 'idle and waste coffee' lands in the District of Puna. Give us capital, roads and wharfage facilities and energy, and this town will soon come to the front, as the center of a thriving agricultural country."

Never before has Honolulu and the citizens of the Islands of Hawaii been coolly informed that Hilo lacked "energy." Her citizen cranks certainly have a plenty of energy, even though their judgment is a minus quantity. The town that only needs "capital, roads and wharfage facilities and energy," is guilty of demanding those things which have been the essentials in the development of the world's greatest financial and commercial marts,—but in Hilo's case her cranks have made the demand without the consent of the remainder of the world. Hilo is, as she justly claims, the second city in importance in Hawaii nei; but she must not allow her citizen cranks to claim Arcadie, before their individual debts are paid and the flood of the world's commerce has made the improvements for a metropolitan seaport a clamoring necessity. IN THE SUPREME COURT of the Hawaiian Islands. In Bankruptcy. In the matter of Richard Oliver of Honolulu, Oahu, by whom a Petition for adjudication was filed on the 2nd day of March, 1891, in said Court. Before Mr. Justice McCully. The 2nd day of March, 1891.

Upon reading the said Petition, and upon proof before me taken, I do find that the said Richard Oliver has become a Bankrupt within the true intent and meaning of the Act, approved on the 29th day of August, 1884, entitled "An Act to Regulate Proceedings in Bankruptcy in the Hawaiian Islands," and amendments thereto.

And I do hereby declare and adjudge him Bankrupt accordingly.

And I do further order that the Creditors of the said Bankrupt come in and prove their debts before such Justice of the Supreme Court as shall be sitting at Chambers, at Aliiolani Hale, Honolulu, on MONDAY, the 9th day of March, 1891, between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and noon of the said day, and elect one or more Assignee or Assignees of the said Bankrupt's estate.

And that notice thereof be published in the DAILY BULLETIN newspaper, published in Honolulu, in the English language.

And that the said Bankrupt shall immediately file with the Clerk of this Honorable Court a schedule of his Creditors and Assets, as required by the said Act and amendments thereto.

L. McCULLY,
Justice of the Supreme Court.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The bark C O Whitmore took in about 400 tons ballast yesterday.

The steamer Jas Makee arrived this morning from Kahului, Maui, with 2600 bags sugar and 2 passengers.

The schooners Sarah & Eliza and Mile Morris sailed for Koolau this morning; the latter had a deck load of lumber.

The steamer C R Bishop sailed for her usual ports round the island this morning with a large cargo of general merchandise.

The schooners Luka and Kulamanu of Messrs Allen & Robinson did not sail yesterday for their usual destinations as announced. They sailed today.

The bark S C Allen took for San Francisco 19,239 bags sugar valued at $102,419.14. Messrs C Brewer & Co were the largest shippers of sugar, 7038 bags.

The barkentine Discovery sailed for San Francisco yesterday with 11,336 bags sugar valued at $59,675. Messrs Hackfeld & Co were the only shippers.

The bark Exporter was hauled alongside the Esplanade wharf this morning where she will discharge her cargo of coal.

It took only two hours to ship 2600 bags sugar on the Jas Makee yesterday, while she was at Kahului. Quick work, says her purser, Mr Prickard.

The foreign vessels in the port of Kahului when the J Makee left last evening were the barks Omeo, Alden Besse and Robert Sudden, and brgtne Wm G Irwin.

The German tramp steamer Amigo sailed from San Francisco Feb 11 loaded with a general cargo, all shipped by Chinese merchants. The Amigo is bound to Hongkong. She is engaged in the slave trade and will return to Mexico with all the coolies they can crowd on board her. It is understood that a large steamer is now at Hongkong loading Chinese under the same charter as the Amigo.—S F Call.

It is stated that the old warship Hartford, once the old flagship of Admiral Farragut, will be fitted out as a schoolship for boys and anchored in this harbor.—S F Call.

HAWAII BASEBALL CLUB.

At the meeting of the above club held last evening at the office of the Hon. A. Rosa, it was decided to reorganize and put forward a team during the coming baseball season of the Hawaiian Baseball League. All the officers of last year were re-elected, as follows:

F. J. Testa, President.
Isaac Testa, Treasurer.
J. A. Thompson, Secretary.
M. K. Keohokalole, Captain.
Hon A. Rosa, Delegate.

LOCAL & GENERAL NEWS.

See notice of dancing school in this paper.

Two drunk cases were disposed of in the Police Court today.

Chamberlin's lunch rooms on Hotel street have suspended business.

Tenders are invited for printing and binding the Collector-General's report.

The Hawaiian Hardware Co. are still distributing elegant calendars for 1891.

The regular public school vacation is advertised, from Friday, April 10, to Monday, April 27.

The Board of Education yesterday approved the plan for a two-storied schoolhouse to be built at Hilo.

Mr. Jas. F. Morgan will hold an auction sale of ales and porters, also five cases of Vichy water at noon Monday.

A quarterly meeting of the Trustees of the Queen's Hospital will be held at the Chamber of Commerce at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Messrs. Hollister & Co. are showing the finest assortment of Lubin's perfumes, direct from the makers, ever presented to the Honolulu public.

An A1 vessel in the New York Line will sail from New York in all May. Information will be given further by Messrs. Castle & Cooke, Honolulu, or Messrs. W. H. Grossman & Bro., New York.

His Excellency John L. Stevens will give a lecture upon "The Countries of the Rio de la Plata" in the Y. M. C. A. Hall at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Mr. Stevens was the American Minister resident at Montevideo for three years. No charge for admission; all are invited.

The Fire Department appointed a committee to investigate a charge brought by the fire police against a fireman in connection with the Nuuanu street fire. Fai Kee claims $500 damages from the Department, because the fire police would not let him into his store the morning of the fire.

A very few seats remain for "Il Trovatore" by the New York Opera Company, at the Opera House Saturday evening. Those who have not procured tickets, for either the season or the opening night, should lose no more time. The company have been rehearsing daily since arrival, and good judges are well pleased with the voices.

SUCCESSFUL PINEAPPLE FARM.

A Bulletin reporter was of a small party that rode out to Mr. John Kidwell's pineapple farm on that gentleman's wagon yesterday. The guests were very hospitably entertained and shown over the field where many thousands of the delicious fruit are coming forward in all stages of growth.

One of the first features presented is the very clean cultivation. Weeds are only thought of for their complete absence. A previous visitor innocently remarked on the good luck of the proprietor, in having secured a piece of land without any weeds! However one might be deceived in that way, there can be no excuse for overlooking the owner's toil in another matter. There are huge walls of stone to be seen, the material of which has been laboriously gathered off the land. Some of it was encountered as boulders requiring to be blasted.

There is an area of about seven acres in pineapples, comprising many different varieties. Those kinds that turn out poor are not left long to cumber the ground, but are replaced as soon as possible by better ones. Mr. Kidwell knows every family of them like a well-studied book, and treats them as if they had human nerves. He also knows every variation in the qualities of soil at different levels, quite as well as the druggist understands the pharmacopœia.

The pineapple shares with some other fruits the peculiarity of having a limited fruiting season. When it does not mature in one season, it does not die but labels itself, as it were, "to be continued in our next." In the ripening season the gathering of the fruit makes lively times. This limited season is a fact that helps to make the culture one demanding a high order of farming skill to achieve anything like success. All the plants on this farm, with slight exceptions, are healthy and vigorous.

Mr. Kidwell is one of the best floriculturists in the kingdom, and finds space on his premises for raising splendid pond lilies of various hues, a diversified line of the richest of roses, philodendrons, and other flowers more or less rare. With a little poultry fanciering thrown in, Mr. Kidwell's farm is about as thrifty a spot as one could find, for the area, in the kingdom.

GOING AWAY.

The following passengers are booked to leave by the Australia for San Francisco on Tuesday:

Hon H A Widemann and wife, F M Rivas, P Delemain, Mr Samayoa and son, Jas Sproule, F L White and wife, Capt Ahlborn, wife, three children and maid, R M Burtin, wife and child, J W Hawkins, F C Hawkins, Miss K Pacazzo, E L Lewis, C L Adams, J C Noble, M Redmond, E Derkness, Mr Pitkins, Mrs de la Vergne, Mr Bartram, L G Clarke, Miss Archer, Miss Lowers, Dr A A Crane and wife, John A Caldwell, W A Peairs, F M Farwell, Mr de la Vergne, A Krudrick, Miss Farwell, Mrs Willis, Mrs M Renner, Mr Boyd, Mr Peakes, Mrs Boyd, Mrs Bardwell, M Goldberg, Francis Sinclair and wife, Mrs Fletcher, Mrs F W Brooks, Miss Brooks, Mrs R Lowers, Mrs H P Baldwin, Hon W G Irwin, F T Fitney and wife.

THE ATHLETIC MEETING.

Summary of Regulations and Events for Kamehameha III. Day.

COMPETITORS.

Competitors shall report to the clerk of the course immediately upon their arrival at the place of meeting, and shall be provided by that official with their proper numbers, which must be worn conspicuously by the competitors when competing, and without which they shall not be allowed to start.

Each competitor shall inform himself of the time of starting, and shall be promptly at the starting point of each competition in which he is entered, and there report to the clerk of the course.

Under no condition shall the attendants be allowed to accompany competitors at the start or during any competition.

THE STARTER.

The starter shall have sole jurisdiction over the competitors after the clerk of the course has properly placed them in their positions for the start. The method of starting shall be by pistol report.

An actual start shall not be effected until the pistol has been purposely discharged after the competitors have been warned to get ready.

When any part of the person of a competitor shall touch the ground in front of his mark before the starting signal is given, it shall be considered a false start.

Penalties for false starting shall be inflicted by the starter as follows: In races up to and including 300 yards, the competitor shall be put back one yard for the first and another for the second attempt. In all cases the third false start shall prevent the offender competing in that event.

The starter shall also rule out of that event any competitor who attempts to advance himself from his mark as prescribed in the official program, after he has been given the warning to "get ready."

FINISH.

The tape is to be considered the finishing line for the winner, but the order of finishing across the track line shall determine the positions of the other competitors.

A finish shall be counted when any part of the contestant's body, except his hands or arms, shall touch the tape at the finish line.

HURDLES.

In the 120-yard hurdle race, ten hurdles shall be used, each hurdle to be three feet six inches high. They shall be placed ten yards apart, with the first hurdle fifteen yards distant from the starting mark, and the last hurdle fifteen yards before the finishing line.

JUMPING.

The Running High Jump.—Each competitor shall be allowed three trial jumps at each height, and if on the third trial he shall fail he shall be declared out of the competition.

Competitors shall jump in order as placed on the program; then those failing, if any, shall have their second trial jump in like order; after which those having failed twice shall make their third trial jump.

Running under the bar in making an attempt to jump shall be counted as a balk, and three successive balks shall be counted as a trial jump.

A competitor may decline to jump at any height, and by so doing forfeits the right to again jump at the height he declined.

Running Broad Jump—In front of the scratch line the ground shall be removed to the depth of three and width of twelve inches outward.

A foul jump shall be one where the competitor in jumping off the scratch line, makes a mark on the ground immediately in front of it, and shall count as a trial jump without result.

Each competitor shall have three trial jumps, and the best three shall have three more trial jumps.

The competition shall be decided by the best of all the trial jumps of the competitors.

Pole Vault.—The rules governing the running high jump shall also govern the pole vault.

RUNNING HOP STEP AND JUMP.

The competitor shall first land upon the same foot with which he shall have taken off. The reverse foot shall be used for the second landing, and both feet shall be used for the third landing.

In all other respects the rules governing the running broad jump shall also govern the running hop step and jump.

PUTTING THE SHOT.

The shot shall be put with one hand, and in making the attempt it shall be above and not behind the shoulder.

The competitor shall stand in a circle seven feet in diameter, on four feet of the circumference of which shall be placed a board four inches high, at which the competitor must stand when the shot leaves his hand.

A put shall be counted as foul if the competitor steps over the front half of the circle or on the board before the measurement of his put is made.

Foul puts and letting go the shot in making an attempt shall be counted as trial puts without result.

The order of competing and number of trials shall be the same as for the running high and running broad jumps.

THROWING THE HAMMER.

All throws shall be made from a circle seven feet in diameter.

The rules governing putting the shot shall also govern throwing the hammer.

THE WEEKLY BULLETIN—36 columns of interesting reading matter. Mailed to foreign countries, $5; Islands, $4.

THE OLDEST MAN ON EARTH.

The oldest man in the world is a citizen of Bogota, in the Republic of San Salvador. This new Methuselah declares that he is 180 years old, and it would seem he flatters himself, for his neighbors give the assurance that he is older than he says he is.

He is a half-breed named Michael Solis, whose existence was revealed to Dr. Louis Hernandez by one of the oldest planters in the locality, who as a child knew Solis as a centenarian. They have found in 1712 his signature among those persons who contributed to the building of a Franciscan convent which exists near San Sebastian. His skin is like parchment, his long hair of the whiteness of snow envelops his head like a turban, and his look is so keen that it made a disagreeable impression on the doctor.

Interrogated by the doctor, he answered complaisantly that his great age was due to his regular mode of living, and to his never giving up to any excess of any sort whatever.

"I never eat but once a day," said he, "but I never use any but the strongest and most nourishing foods. My meals last a half hour, for I believe it is impossible to eat more in that time than the body can digest in 24 hours. I fast the first and fifteenth day of each month, and on those days I drink as much water as I can bear. I always let my food become cold before I touch it. It is to these things that I attribute my great age."

Yuma, Arizona, was under water Feb. 23 from the river's breaking the levee. Gus Lee was drowned in his bed. Much stock was lost. Gila valley was flooded, with reported great destruction of property.

The total number of dead by the Spring Hill, N. S., colliery disaster, up to midnight of Feb. 23 counted up 120. An appeal has been issued by the Mayor, to the public of Canada and the United States, for aid in behalf of the widows and children of the victims.

The committee of the Presbyterian General Assembly of the United States, to revise the Confession of Faith, has revised the entire work, coming to its conclusions in harmony.

"GREAT GUNS!"

Is a term often applied to the wind when it blows hard enough to cause a vessel to lose her sails but even "great guns" have no apparent effect upon the Aermotor. It runs just as evenly in a gale as in a gentle zephyr. This style windmill is an innovation on these Islands and plantation men are beginning to realize the necessity of them; some day, not far distant we imagine, a plantation will not be considered complete without one.

There are many styles of windmills on the market, some cheap, others high priced, others again dear at any price. The old-fashioned wooden ones may be properly classed among the latter. Our opinion is based on the fact that they are going out of use on the line of the Union Pacific Railway, and, in fact, nearly every place where windmills are used. In California, where windmills are as plentiful as dwelling houses, the ranchmen are taking out their wooden ones, even though they be in good condition, that is, not rotten, and replacing them with Aermotors. We secured the sole agency for the latter style because we were convinced of its superiority over any other manufactured, and because we were satisfied that it would bring better results to the purchaser. The first one set up worked successfully, and the man who bought it told his neighbor about it, so we sold another one. That's the way it has been ever since we introduced them; now the demand for the Aeromotor is so great that we have decided to keep a few of them in stock. Late purchasers have been obliged to wait until we could have their orders filled in San Francisco, new ones will not. We could publish other testimonials as to the practicability of them on these Islands, but we think the following will answer:

Honolulu, February 26, 1891.
Messrs. Hawaiian Hardware Co., Honolulu:

Gentlemen:—I have had the Aermotor, purchased of you, placed in position on Maunaloa Ranch, and desire to express to you the genuine satisfaction I feel at the work it has done.

It runs smoothly and the wheel revolves with the slightest wind. One strong point in its favor is the fact of there being absolutely no noise in its operation, a fault so common with every other windmill I have ever seen.

(Signed) George J. Campbell.
Manager Maunaloa Ranch.

The Aermotor is the only windmill made of steel; it cannot rot, as the wooden ones will, and it does not rust. It runs noiselessly, and its action is perfect. It is bound to give satisfaction. They are sold only by us. Prices on application.
