AN ISLAND SWIMMER.

Herman Widemann Is Now the Champion.

The swimming performances of "Manna" Widemann, the youngest son of Judge H. A. Widemann, have attracted much attention in sporting circles. The "Spirit of the Times and Sportsman," the leading sporting journal in the United States shows the interest taken in the skill of Widemann as a swimmer in the following letter addressed to its special correspondent in San Francisco:

Dear Sir:—Many thanks for your complete and satisfactory budget of information concerning the swimming records.

Although you do not say so specifically, I presume I am right in inferring that the 25-yards race is straight-a-way, lengthwise of the tank, instead of crosswise, as is the case with races at longer distances.

I presume also that where no competitors are mentioned, as in the races of July 11 and July 14, the performances were not competitions, but merely exhibitions against time.

If this inference be correct, were the men allowed pace-makers, and if so, to what extent, or were they compelled to swim alone?

What style does Widemann use,—the ordinary over-arm side strike, the Trudgeon, or double over-arm breast stroke, or the combination of the two, which for lack of a better name we call the Neumann stroke, in which the swimmer makes one stroke with each arm for each kick, as in the side stroke, but swims wholly or partly on his breast, instead of his side; whereas, in what we call the Trudgeon stroke, he makes a kick with his legs with each stroke of either arm.

I shall be pleased to receive the personal statistics of Messrs. Widemann and Brewer whenever you obtain them.

How high is the plunging board from which the men dive in a race, above the surface of the water?

You may think me over-curious in these small matters, but the performances of Mr. Widemann seem extraordinary to us, and we wish to know all the minor particulars bearing on the performances.

Brewer's 220 yards, quarter mile and mile have been beaten in England and Australia, and his half-mile, although technically a world's record, by the narrow margin of a fifth of a second, is really much inferior in point of actual merit to P. Cavill's half mile with only 19 turns in 12m. 45 3-5s., as the time gained by the 18 extra turns allowed to Brewer, must have amounted to many seconds.

But Widemann's performances are unparalleled.

There is no English record for the 25 yards, and the fastest record for 24½ yards, made by two men on different occasions, is 14¼s., while Widemann did 12 4-5s.

The English record for 50 yards with two turns is 29 3-5s., while Widemann did 28 1-5s.

There is no 75-yard record abroad but the best performances at near distances are 72 yards with two turns, England 48s., 73½ yards with two turns, England 49s., 74 38-100 yards with one turn, Austria 50 3 5s., 78 yards with two turns, Australia 48s. Widemann, 42s.

English swimmers and English records have always been better than ours, and when a man qualified to start in a maiden race plays mumble pegs with the world's records in such a startling style, we may be pardoned for wondering, and feeling curious to know all the particulars.

Hoping that this statement may be to you a sufficient apology for all my questions, I remain, yours truly,

(Signed) W. B. CURTIS.

For Governor of California.

The election for the State officers of California takes place on Tuesday, November 8th. The contest is between Henry T. Gage, a downright, straightforward Republican, and Judge James G. Maguire, who has received his nomination from the Democrats, populists and others, and first came into public notoriety in the days of the Sandlots, but who, both as judge and congressman, has given satisfaction to his supporters. In order to ascertain to a limited extent the political views of the community in national politics, THE INDEPENDENT gives its readers the opportunity of voting for these candidates. Cut out and return to this office on or before 5 o'clock on November 8. The result will be announced in the issue of November 9th.

The payment of Honolulu improvements out of funds coming from "Hilo and the outside districts" is not a matter sufficiently novel to require comment; provided the new sewer is used to dispose of the present regime and its officials we shall not enter any protest at being obliged to furnish the money.—Hilo Tribune.

For That Tired Feeling.

That steals over you as the days work is over, there's nothing else so good as a refreshing glass of RAINIER BEER. It is the tonic you need, beats all the medicine you can take, brings on a sound refreshing and healthy sleep and makes one feel like a new person. On tap or in bottles at the Criterion Saloon. Cobwebs.

A striking remedy for this particular complaint can be effectually removed by drinking Seattle Draught Beer as served at the Anchor Saloon by Will Carlyle or his courteous assistant, Charlie Andrews. The gents have on hand the finest of foreign liquors.

A CHEERFUL OUTLOOK.

Harper's Weekly in an article on "The Consent of the Governed" says: "Now in governing distant territory in which the 'consent of the governed' is not required, the member of the Lower House is freed from the one influence that steadies him. The Representatives will be as bad as the Senators. Since the Constitution puts the whole matter in charge of Congress, have we the least guarantee that our government of colonies will be honest or intelligent? Our solution of our Indian problem by extermination, our solution of our negro problem by lynching, our solution of our Alaskan problem by apathy—these achievements scarcely indicate that we are prepared to shine in an 'Imperial' capacity."

Many of the hopes of our ardent annexationists will prove to have been founded on the "baseless fabric of a dream." Instead of seeing Pearl Harbor made the naval station and coal dump for the navy we find the esplanade occupied by no end of coals and the slips set apart for ocean greyhounds bespoken for the vessels of the navy.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

Imperialism in China is evidently having a bad quarter of an hour of it. What with the Emperor and Dowager Empress plotting to take each other's lives and with insurrection rife, it may be expected that something will drop before the Czar's peace convention assembles. The atmosphere in France seems tainted also with revolution or, its sister, a war with Germany. In fact the outlook is, all over the world, that the Armageddon must precede the Czar's millenium.

An effort is being made to depose Columbus from his historical pedestal as the discoverer of America, and to somewhat tardily award the honor to the Icelandic, or Danish, bold adventurer whose charts furnished the information upon which Colon based his discoveries. Hurrah for the hardy Norseman, for he is a more famous and useful ancestor than the founders of the Spanish inquisition, or even than Isabella la Catolica, the patron of Columbus.

Apropos of the saloon muddle, Minister King is reported to have said: "Here we have been in power for five years and have done nothing in this direction. Why should we interfere now that we are going permanently out of office. Who knows, but, perhaps, within two years' time we may have saloons on every corner. It is nonsense to interfere now." If Captain King spoke thus he is a wise man and proves that he has common sense even if he does let Dole's pet, Rowell, boss him against his judgment.

The question that is puzzling conservative men is, why cannot the Government attend quietly to its legitimate routine business during the interregnum between annexation and the unknown quality of government that Congress will accord to us? All radical and experimental measures should be postponed until we know whether a popular territorial form of government or a Washingtonian close corporative affair is to be allotted to us. There is no need to hurry anything for a few short months, except to get the Nuuanu stream, our roads and sidewalks ready for the winter season, but then Rowell controls those.

There is no nobler institution in the world than the free kindergarten system. Its value is inestimable. In this little country with its cosmopolitan population it is doing very excellent work the value of which will only be properly appreciated as the years roll by. All interested in the future of the children, and especially of the poorer members of society, should generously rally to the support of these schools. Money is their life and there cannot be too many of them reared and fostered. The local management is in deserving and trustworthy hands and should be warmly supported.

The solicitude for public morals of some of the people objecting to saloon open doors is touching as it is surprising.—P. C. A.

In this contemptuous sneer is contained and condensed the longing desire of the family compact to crush out all ideas of popular liberty on these islands. The main objection to the dictatorial action of the piratical oligarchs, sailing under the protection of the United States flag, is not based on "public morals" but on the principle that the people, and not self-assertive rulers without a political following, should have some say as to the laws under which they prefer to live. Dole and Smith, even if Damon does flop over to them, are not the people's chosen rulers, but how long we shall have to wait relief from their idiosyncracies, who can tell? Providence is unkind.

Compliments in regard to the feeding of soldiers of the army in Manila, Hawaii and Cuba reach the newspapers constantly. The troops stationed in Honolulu seem to receive an unlimited supply of "Cleveland baking powder" and of a certain brand of vinegar. Used in their proper sphere, baking powder and vinegar are undoubtedly very useful, but even a U. S. volunteer does not live only on the articles mentioned. The local market is simply flooded with Cleveland baking powder, offered for sale by the volunteers and the soldiers have enough vinegar to run a "light wine shop" with profit. It would be interesting to know who are interested in the Cleveland baking powder business and why this product from Mark Hanna's and McKinley's State is distributed in such a lavish manner among the warriors.

A Kamaaina Gone.

The sad news of the death of Henry Porter a kamaaina at Hilo was received by the Kinau. The deceased for many years conducted a blacksmith business at Hilo. He was a brother to Daniel Porter, clerk of the Circuit Court of Hawaii and leaves a widow and four children. Henry Porter was a native of Brooklyn and was 68 years of age at the time of his demise.

THE PERFECT PLOWS

In all agricultural countries it is on a good plow that the tiller of the soil relies for a good crop. We carry all kinds of plows from the large

to the smallest

Rice Plows

But it is on our

Plantation Breaking

AND

that we chiefly pride ourselves. These are in use on nearly every plantation on the Islands. Only within the last three weeks we have sold a number of the large plows to take the place of plows from other firms which had been returned as unsatisfactory.

The great advantage of the Perfect plow is that it requires less animals to draw it, and cuts an excellent furrow without digging down.

CAINE ON ALLIANCE.

The Distinguished Author Gives His Opinion on the Proposed Union with Great Britain.

War's Lesson Taught by America—A Nation is not Made Great by Greatness of Armament, but by the Quality of Its Men—Views on the Czar's Appeal.

The following excerpts are taken from a New York Herald interview with Hall Caine, the famous writer from Manxland:

When I met Mr. Caine at the Everett House his first question was: "What do they think over here of an Anglo-American alliance?"

"You know Americans, Mr. Caine," I replied. "How do you think they view the question?"

"Yes, that's true," he replied. "My home Greeba Castle, on the Isle of Man, is a rendezvous for Americans. In fact, during the summer there are more of your fellow countrymen to be seen there than Englishmen.

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR AMERICA.

"Well, nearly all of the intelligent Americans whom I have met seem to think that such an alliance would involve the United States in serious foreign complications that she should avoid. Much as they like England they seem to view the proposition with disfavor. How the matter is generally viewed here I have yet to learn.

"Now, when I left England the country was enthusiastic over the subject. For the first time in my life I have seen the Stars and Stripes floating beside the British flag all over England.

"Englishmen, many of them, at least, are strong for a formal alliance between the two countries. The feeling in some quarters in England on this subject is profound. It is based on a conviction that unity of race is good ground for unity of interests. The ties between England and America are many and close. First the tie of blood, next of language, then of literature, then of faith. All these point, it is thought, to a unity of fate and destiny.

"On the other hand, a good many Englishmen see that the surest and best Anglo-American alliance is that which is going on silently every day in the constant intermarriage between the two countries and by the interchange of mutual interests. They also realize that a formal bond might bring into active play a good deal of natural feeling which is now held in check.

ENGLAND WOULD PROFIT MOST.

"Englishmen see that England may have more to gain than America by a formal alliance; that the difficulties for America and the responsibilities incurred by America would be greater than her advantage. An Anglo-American alliance, if it were possible, would be a tremendous factor in promoting the world's peace."

"What do you think of the results of our war with Spain?" I asked.

"It is wonderful," replied Mr. Caine. "With one of the smallest standing armies, and not the most remarkable of navies, you have won this great victory. Clearly, therefore, it is not the difference between the appearance of a nation's armaments made in the budget returns, but the difference in the men."

"How do you regard the Czar's proposal for disarmament?"

"There was much talk about it in England at the moment of my leaving. Of course, the proposition is not a new one, and perhaps there is something illogical and even grotesque in such a proposal coming from the sovereign who has the largest standing army in the world.

LESSON TAUGHT BY AMERICA.

"Of course, there are those in England who say that necessity, not principle, lies at the root of the Czar's proposal; that Russia is on the verge of bankruptcy. Perhaps there is more truth in that than one can quite realize who has not travelled in Russia. I was there during the great cholera plague a few years ago. I can never forget the impression made upon me by the dire and woeful poverty of the people. It is abject. It is awful.

"The poverty of the Italian poor is terrible. Yet Italy is spending millions on millions in armaments. America in this war has taught Europe a great lesson—that a nation is not made great by greatness of armaments, but by the quality of its men."

AN ISLAND SWIMMER.

Herman Widemann Is Now the Champion.

The swimming performances of "Manna" Widemann, the youngest son of Judge H. A. Widemann, have attracted much attention in sporting circles. The "Spirit of the Times and Sportsman," the leading sporting journal in the United States shows the interest taken in the skill of Widemann as a swimmer in the following letter addressed to its special correspondent in San Francisco:

Dear Sir:—Many thanks for your complete and satisfactory budget of information concerning the swimming records.

Although you do not say so specifically, I presume I am right in inferring that the 25-yards race is straight-a-way, lengthwise of the tank, instead of crosswise, as is the case with races at longer distances.

I presume also that where no competitors are mentioned, as in the races of July 11 and July 14, the performances were not competitions, but merely exhibitions against time.

If this inference be correct, were the men allowed pace-makers, and if so, to what extent, or were they compelled to swim alone?

What style does Widemann use,—the ordinary over-arm side strike, the Trudgeon, or double over-arm breast stroke, or the combination of the two, which for lack of a better name we call the Neumann stroke, in which the swimmer makes one stroke with each arm for each kick, as in the side stroke, but swims wholly or partly on his breast, instead of his side; whereas, in what we call the Trudgeon stroke, he makes a kick with his legs with each stroke of either arm.

I shall be pleased to receive the personal statistics of Messrs. Widemann and Brewer whenever you obtain them.

How high is the plunging board from which the men dive in a race, above the surface of the water?

You may think me over-curious in these small matters, but the performances of Mr. Widemann seem extraordinary to us, and we wish to know all the minor particulars bearing on the performances.

Brewer's 220 yards, quarter mile and mile have been beaten in England and Australia, and his half-mile, although technically a world's record, by the narrow margin of a fifth of a second, is really much inferior in point of actual merit to P. Cavill's half mile with only 19 turns in 12m. 45 3 5s., as the time gained by the 18 extra turns allowed to Brewer, must have amounted to many seconds.

But Widemann's performances are unparalleled.

There is no English record for the 25 yards, and the fastest record for 24½ yards, made by two men on different occasions, is 14¼s., while Widemann did 12 4-5s.

The English record for 50 yards with two turns is 29 3-5s., while Widemann did 28 1-5s.

There is no 75-yard record abroad but the best performances at near distances are 72 yards with two turns, England 48s., 73½ yards with two turns, England 49s., 74 38-100 yards with one turn, Austria 50 3 5s., 78 yards with two turns, Australia 48s. Widemann, 42s.

English swimmers and English records have always been better than ours, and when a man qualified to start in a maiden race plays mumble pegs with the world's records in such a startling style, we may be pardoned for wondering, and feeling curious to know all the particulars.

Hoping that this statement may be to you a sufficient apology for all my questions, I remain, yours truly,

(Signed) W. B. CURTIS.

For Governor of California.

The election for the State officers of California takes place on Tuesday, November 8th. The contest is between Henry T. Gage, a downright, straightforward Republican, and Judge James G. Maguire, who has received his nomination from the Democrats, populists and others, and first came into public notoriety in the days of the Sandlots, but who, both as judge and congressman, has given satisfaction to his supporters. In order to ascertain to a limited extent the political views of the community in national politics, THE INDEPENDENT gives its readers the opportunity of voting for these candidates. Cut out and return to this office on or before 5 o'clock on November 8. The result will be announced in the issue of November 9th.

A CHEERFUL OUTLOOK.

Harper's Weekly in an article on "The Consent of the Governed" says: "Now in governing distant territory in which the 'consent of the governed' is not required, the member of the Lower House is freed from the one influence that steadies him. The Representatives will be as bad as the Senators. Since the Constitution puts the whole matter in charge of Congress, have we the least guarantee that our government of colonies will be honest or intelligent? Our solution of our Indian problem by extermination, our solution of our negro problem by lynching, our solution of our Alaskan problem by apathy—these achievements scarcely indicate that we are prepared to shine in an 'Imperial' capacity."

Many of the hopes of our ardent annexationists will prove to have been founded on the "baseless fabric of a dream." Instead of seeing Pearl Harbor made the naval station and coal dump for the navy we find the esplanade occupied by no end of coals and the slips set apart for ocean greyhounds bespoken for the vessels of the navy.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

Imperialism in China is evidently having a bad quarter of an hour of it. What with the Emperor and Dowager Empress plotting to take each other's lives and with insurrection rife, it may be expected that something will drop before the Czar's peace convention assembles. The atmosphere in France seems tainted also with revolution or, its sister, a war with Germany. In fact the outlook is, all over the world, that the Armageddon must precede the Czar's millenium.

An effort is being made to depose Columbus from his historical pedestal as the discoverer of America, and to somewhat tardily award the honor to the Icelandic, or Danish, bold adventurer whose charts furnished the information upon which Colon based his discoveries. Hurrah for the hardy Norseman, for he is a more famous and useful ancestor than the founders of the Spanish inquisition, or even than Isabella la Catolica, the patron of Columbus.

Apropos of the saloon muddle, Minister King is reported to have said: "Here we have been in power for five years and have done nothing in this direction. Why should we interfere now that we are going permanently out of office. Who knows, but, perhaps, within two years' time we may have saloons on every corner. It is nonsense to interfere now." If Captain King spoke thus he is a wise man and proves that he has common sense even if he does let Dole's pet, Rowell, boss him against his judgment.

The question that is puzzling conservative men is, why cannot the Government attend quietly to its legitimate routine business during the interregnum between annexation and the unknown quality of government that Congress will accord to us? All radical and experimental measures should be postponed until we know whether a popular territorial form of government or a Washingtonian close corporative affair is to be allotted to us. There is no need to hurry anything for a few short months, except to get the Nuuanu stream, our roads and sidewalks ready for the winter season, but then Rowell controls those.

There is no nobler institution in the world than the free kindergarten system. Its value is inestimable. In this little country with its cosmopolitan population it is doing very excellent work the value of which will only be properly appreciated as the years roll by. All interested in the future of the children, and especially of the poorer members of society, should generously rally to the support of these schools. Money is their life and there cannot be too many of them reared and fostered. The local management is in deserving and trustworthy hands and should be warmly supported.

The solicitude for public morals of some of the people objecting to saloon open doors is touching as it is surprising—P. C. A.

In this contemptuous sneer is contained and condensed the longing desire of the family compact to crush out all ideas of popular liberty on these islands. The main objection to the dictatorial action of the piratical oligarchs, sailing under the protection of the United States flag, is not based on "public morals" but on the principle that the people, and not self-assertive rulers without a political following, should have some say as to the laws under which they prefer to live. Dole and Smith, even if Damon does flop over to them, are not the people's chosen rulers, but how long we shall have to wait relief from their idiosyncracies, who can tell? Providence is unkind.

Compliments in regard to the feeding of soldiers of the army in Manila, Hawaii and Cuba reach the newspapers constantly. The troops stationed in Honolulu seem to receive an unlimited supply of "Cleveland baking powder" and of a certain brand of vinegar. Used in their proper sphere, baking powder and vinegar are undoubtedly very useful, but even a U. S. volunteer does not live only on the articles mentioned. The local market is simply flooded with Cleveland baking powder, offered for sale by the volunteers and the soldiers have enough vinegar to run a "light wine shop" with profit. It would be interesting to know who are interested in the Cleveland baking powder business and why this product from Mark Hanna's and McKinley's State is distributed in such a lavish manner among the warriors.

A Kamaaina Gone.

The sad news of the death of Henry Porter a kamaaina at Hilo was received by the Kinau. The deceased for many years conducted a blacksmith business at Hilo. He was a brother to Daniel Porter, clerk of the Circuit Court of Hawaii and leaves a widow and four children. Henry Porter was a native of Brooklyn and was 68 years of age at the time of his demise.

Hail "Columbia," when are you going to sail for Hilo? The future capital awaits you with anxiety. Unhappily, there are lawyers there also.

Even if the Peking does not turn up before, we shall have a mail by the Alameda to-morrow. The Mariposa for the Coast is also due to-morrow.

Would-be investors in Government bonds should read Minister Damon's advertisement in reference thereto which again appears in to-day's issue.

A bus to take the town football team out for practice will leave the corner of Fort and King streets at 5 o'clock every afternoon this week up to Saturday.

Chris Willis has been granted a furlough for three months from Company D and the Wela ka-hao Baseball Club, and goes to Hawaii in survey office field service.

The News Muster, the paper of the New Yorkers at McKinley, has made a kick against the Tramways Company for not reducing fares. As a matter of fact, enquiry would have shown that the rate had been reduced 25 percent for some time past, but the privilege has not been availed of by the soldiers.

THE PERFECT PLOWS

In all agricultural countries it is on a good plow that the tiller of the soil relies for a good crop. We carry all kinds of plows from the large

Sulky Plows

to the smallest

Rice Plows

But it is on our

Plantation Breaking

AND

that we chiefly pride ourselves. These are in use on nearly every plantation on the Islands. Only within the last three weeks we have sold a number of the large plows to take the place of plows from other firms which had been returned as unsatisfactory.

The great advantage of the Perfect plow is that it requires less animals to draw it, and cuts an excellent furrow without digging down.

CAINE ON ALLIANCE.

The Distinguished Author Gives His Opinion on the Proposed Union with Great Britain.

War's Lesson Taught by America—A Nation is not Made Great by Greatness of Armament, but by the Quality of Its Men—Views on the Czar's Appeal.

The following excerpts are taken from a New York Herald interview with Hall Caine, the famous writer from Manxland:

When I met Mr. Caine at the Everett House his first question was: "What do they think over here of an Anglo-American alliance?"

"You know Americans, Mr. Caine," I replied. "How do you think they view the question?"

"Yes, that's true," he replied. "My home Greeba Castle, on the Isle of Man, is a rendezvous for Americans. In fact, during the summer there are more of your fellow countrymen to be seen there than Englishmen.

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR AMERICA.

"Well, nearly all of the intelligent Americans whom I have met seem to think that such an alliance would involve the United States in serious foreign complications that she should avoid. Much as they like England they seem to view the proposition with disfavor. How the matter is generally viewed here I have yet to learn.

"Now, when I left England the country was enthusiastic over the subject. For the first time in my life I have seen the Stars and Stripes floating beside the British flag all over England.

"Englishmen, many of them, at least, are strong for a formal alliance between the two countries. The feeling in some quarters in England on this subject is profound. It is based on a conviction that unity of race is good ground for unity of interests. The ties between England and America are many and close. First the tie of blood, next of language, then of literature, then of faith. All these point, it is thought, to a unity of fate and destiny.

"On the other hand, a good many Englishmen see that the surest and best Anglo-American alliance is that which is going on silently every day in the constant intermarriage between the two countries and by the interchange of mutual interests. They also realize that a formal bond might bring into active play a good deal of natural feeling which is now held in check.

ENGLAND WOULD PROFIT MOST.

"Englishmen see that England may have more to gain than America by a formal alliance; that the difficulties for America and the responsibilities incurred by America would be greater than her advantage. An Anglo-American alliance, if it were possible, would be a tremendous factor in promoting the world's peace."

"What do you think of the results of our war with Spain?" I asked.

"It is wonderful," replied Mr. Caine. "With one of the smallest standing armies, and not the most remarkable of navies, you have won this great victory. Clearly, therefore, it is not the difference between the appearance of a nation's armaments made in the budget returns, but the difference in the men."

"How do you regard the Czar's proposal for disarmament?"

"There was much talk about it in England at the moment of my leaving. Of course, the proposition is not a new one, and perhaps there is something illogical and even grotesque in such a proposal coming from the sovereign who has the largest standing army in the world.

LESSON TAUGHT BY AMERICA.

"Of course, there are those in England who say that necessity, not principle, lies at the root of the Czar's proposal; that Russia is on the verge of bankruptcy. Perhaps there is more truth in that than one can quite realize who has not travelled in Russia. I was there during the great cholera plague a few years ago. I can never forget the impression made upon me by the dire and woeful poverty of the people. It is abject. It is awful.

"The poverty of the Italian poor is terrible. Yet Italy is spending millions on millions in armaments. America in this war has taught Europe a great lesson—that a nation is not made great by greatness of armaments, but by the quality of its men."
