CONSUL SAITO WANTS FACTS OF MAUI CASE

Acting Governor Atkinson Has Instructed th Attorney-General to Go Right to the Bottom of the Affair.

International complications may arise out of the death on Maui of a Japanese laborer in Puunene Mill, under circumstances that have led to the arrest of Alfred Douse, second engineer of the mill, on a charge of murder, despite his practical exoneration by a coroner's jury.

"I have instructed the Attorney-general to see that the matter is thoroughly sifted to the bottom," said Acting Governor Atkinson yesterday. "No; the Japanese Consul has not called the case to my attention, but I want to see that equal and exact justice is done."

Nevertheless, Japanese Consul Saito has acted in the matter, to the extent that he has asked that the body of the dead Japanese be exumed, and forwarded to Honolulu for examination by Drs. Uchida and Mori, and President Pinkham of the Board of Health has ordered that this be done. The Consul made his application on Saturday to Deputy Attorney-general Peters, and was told that the proper way to reach the matter was through official channels. Mr. Peters suggested that an application to the President of the Board of Health for the exhumation of the body by the local government physician on Maui, and in the presence of Dr. Sada, the local Japanese physician, would in all probability be granted. Then, in the presence of these two medical men, the heart and kidneys of the dead man could be sealed and sent to Honolulu, where the Board of Health physicians could examine them, in the presence of Drs. Uchida and Mori if that was desired. Evidently, from the sequel, Consul Saito acted upon this suggestion.

The story of the death of the Japanese laborer was told in the Advertiser's correspondence from Maui yesterday. As it comes from the Japanese witnesses to the affair, it is said that on Saturday, August 5th, Douse ordered his Japanese helper to get some kerosene oil. Instead, the man brought a small quantity of gasoline. Douse became enraged, it is said, and grabbed the Japanese, shook him, struck him with his fist, poured the gasoline over him, and then set fire to it.

The Japanese was taken to the Puunene Hospital, where he died.

The Japanese assert that he died from his injuries received at the hands of Douse. At the inquest, however, Dr. Reis testified that the man could not have died from these injuries, and that death was probably occasioned by heart or kidney disease. The coroner's jury found the left side of the man's face and both arms badly burned, upon their examination of the body, nevertheless they brought in a verdict assigning disease of the heart or kidneys as the cause of death. The matter will now be thoroughly sifted.

WANT LANDS OF PALOLO

Talk about people wanting land in this country! There is going to be a rush for the mauka Palolo Homestead lots, and the first man on the ground will get the land. These lots will be opened for entry on next Monday, August 21, and the first applicant will get his choice of lots. In that order they will be dealt out so long as any are left. All citizens are allowed to take the lots, of course, but it is believed that the desire for them will manifest itself chiefly among native Hawaiians. At all events, a number of these took their blankets to the Land Office yesterday and left them there, preparatory to camping at the door of the place all Sunday night in order to be on hand bright and early Monday morning. At the close of the day, and probably long before, it is thought that all the homesteads will be taken.

In the meantime, there is also a large demand for makai Palolo lots, which are to be sold at 9 a. m. on August 28. There are twenty of these lots, and nine were applied for at the close of business in the Land Office yesterday, several of the applications covering the same lots. There seems to be a desire, in fact, to get the lots on the highlands. Of course, where more than one application is made for the same lot, the lot will be auctioned to the highest bidder, otherwise it will go at the upset price.

Those who have applied for lots so far are W. C. Bergen, Thos. H. Dukin, S. C. Hardesty, C. W. Crandell, E. R. Bath, E. R. Niemann, Christian Strom, F. J. Wallace and C. J. H. Behn.

The newly erected portable wireless telegraphy buildings which adorn the Naval Station grounds have been repainted and are now in shape for occupancy. The wireless mast is being shaped for erection on the grounds.

A SPECIAL STEAMER

Recommended to Bring the Shriners to Hawaii.

The Hawaii Promotion Committee has recommended to all its Coast correspondents and representatives that in the endeavor to head Shriners this way next year after the conclave at Los Angeles is concluded, an effort be made to secure a steamer to be placed entirely at the disposal of the fez wearers.

The committee recognizes the fact that the through liners may not be in a position to give the Shriners accommodations both ways which would be satisfactory to them, and to this end it is proposed to bring them here and send them back again in a special steamer. As there is almost a year to accomplish this it is quite possible that a steamer load can be booked. The committee is also advising and asking its Coast correspondents to endeaver to secure a $100 round trip rate.

The committee is now sending lists of names of those who write here for booklets and information concerning the islands, to the headquarters of the railroads on the mainland. For instance, all inquirers from the state of Iowa are grouped and the names forwarded to railroads crossing that state. The railroad officials are now asking that additional lists of from twelve to twenty copies be sent them so that they may place the same in the hands of their agents, who are requested from headquarters to endeavor to get these inquirers to take the trip to the islands.

The regular fall distribution of Hawaiian literature on the Atlantic liners is about to commence.

Hackfeld & Co. expect the A.-H. freighter Arizonan to arrive today from the Coast, bringing freight and a mail. The Nevadan is advertised to sail from Puget Sound on August 20, and San Francisco August 26, for Honolulu. The Nebraskan left Seattle for Honolulu on August 10.

THE KAISER GIVES AUDIENCE TO TWO AMERICAN EDUCATORS

(Associated Press Cablegram.)

CASSEL, August 15.—Kaiser William has given audience to President Butler and Dean Burgess, of Columbia University, relative to the plan for an interchange of professors between the universities of Germany and America.

WILLIAM OF GERMANY.

This is a project that has attracted a great deal of attention among leading educators latterly. The idea is to send professors from Europe to the American colleges, American professors being sent to Europe in return, the visitors to lecture to the students of the several colleges. It is hoped, in this way, to make culture more general, and perhaps to educate the teachers in the broader sense at the same time that the students are learning. If the educators have succeeded in interesting the Kaiser in the project, there is every prospect that a trial of it will be made.

GOVERNOR CALEB WEST HELD UP A COXEY ARMY

Distinguished Visitor Who as Chief Executive of Utah Made History in Strenuous Times.

"WHEN I LOOK BACK OVER MY OFFICIAL CAREER AS GOVERNOR OF THE TERRITORY OF UTAH UNDER BOTH ADMINISTRATIONS OF PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, I FEEL THAT THERE IS NOTHING THAT I REGRET HAVING DONE."

Hon. Caleb W. West, now a special agent of the United States Treasury Department with headquarters at San Francisco and who, at two different periods was chief executive of Utah while that interesting section of Uncle Sam's domain was a territory, is the man who made the above statement. And that statement covers periods of Utah's history when the situation between Gentiles and Mormons was so tense that armed men of the nation patrolled the streets of the Mormon capital. That was many years ago and much of the bitterness of those days has passed away.

Caleb West figured prominently in the stirring events in the Mormon territory following the enforcement of the Edmunds act which was the cause of scores of influential polygamists being sent to the penitentiary for having more than the one wife which the law of the nation allows any one man, and it was this self-same executive, who, in 1893 or 1894 went to Buzzards' Bay with Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle, and, with President Cleveland, drew up the famous Amnesty Proclamation by which the president restored to their civil rights all polygamists who had served time in the penitentiary, after taking oath that they would not again violate the federal laws relating to marriage.

Again, Caleb West was the last territorial governor of Utah, for on January 6, 1896, he stepped down and out of office as Heber M. Wells, elected by the Republicans, stepped in as governor of the newly organized state of Utah. Four years before that time on taking office for the second time under Cleveland's second administration. Governor West made an address at the inaugural ceremony held in the Salt Lake Theater, in which he stated that he would make every effort to have Utah erected into a state, and he bent his efforts, especially with the Democratic party of which he is an enthusiastic member, to fulfill his promise.

But one of the most interesting phases of his official career was when the Coxey movement spread all over the country and an "army," known as "Kelley's army," comprised mainly of hoboes, set out from San Francisco en

GLIMPSES OF MOLOKAI

BY A. P. TAYLOR.

Molokai isle, lined and seamed with deep gulches and ravines and almost divided into two separate and distinct regions by a rugged mountain range whose towering backbone is almost enveloped in fleecy mists, is the one island of the Hawaiian group which is the least known and too frequently the most maligned. Islanders and strangers alike have peculiar conceptions concerning this long, narrow, mountainous and interesting island.

To the world in general the island of Molokai is associated with the scourge so vividly described in "Ben Hur." To speak of Molokai is to at once conjure an islet in the wide expanse of the Pacific ocean, devoted entirely to the segregation of the thousand and one unfortunate inmates, who, by law, have been isolated in a Settlement by themselves. And that is one reason why the word Molokai is the Jonah of the islands in the commercial and traveling worlds. But the true Molokai is an island which nature seemed to have designed for just the purpose of affording a most complete isolation of the unfortunate afflicted ones, on the one hand, and making it rich in agricultural possibilities on the larger and more important section, on the other hand. For this larger portion is rich in cattle and sheep pasturage and fairly well adapted for the development of small farming. The Settlement is completely and absolutely apart from the remainder of the island. The great backbone of the Molokai pali rises to precipitous heights where few may climb, and this forms a natural barrier between the two sides of the island.

Therefore it is the greater part of Molokai which has much of interest to the traveler and to the islander. Bleak and barren as it is on the leeward and windward shores nearest Oahu, the portions closest to Maui are wonderfully beautiful. It is a veritable isle of waterfalls dashing down the sides of massive and precipitous cliffs rising hundreds of feet sheer out of the ocean, and to whose lava walls cling the greenest of vines and mosses.

BEAUTIFUL MOAULA FALLS.

Perhaps nowhere else in the islands may be seen a more beautiful scene than in the farthest end of Halawa valley. Like a giant "V" laid flat on the island, with the widest part opening out upon the sea, the valley is largely devoted to the raising of taro, from which those engaged in its cultivation derive most satisfactory profits. Quaint little native grass huts and small, but modern, cottages, dot the landscape, some hidden under and behind masses of foliage of mango, kukui and mountain apple trees. The sides of the valley are covered with giant tree ferns. Tropical is the word that expresses all its beauty. Coursing down the center of this atractive retreat is a wide stream supplying all the taro patches and the gadens, the waters thereof being fed by the Moaulu falls. From perennial springs flowing out of the very topmost portion of the Pali the silvery cascades have their source. Through a cleft in the Pali the great mass of water falls over a cliff, the spray dashing upon projecting lava stones, where it is beaten into a mist which ever and always in the sunlight shows prismatic colors. For a hundred or more feet the cascade falls until it loses itself in a pool lined with tree ferns, and then again through another cleft it courses only to fall over a second cliff of moss and vine-covered lava and into a second pool, emerging once more for its last great and inspiring leap of several hundred feet over a third cliff and into a great chasm, almost circular, and perhaps more than a hundred feet across, forming a lake in miniature, whose depth has never yet been touched by daring Hawaiian divers. It is a most fascinating spot, one in which the artist would revel and rave over its rare possibilities for transfer to his canvas. The shores of the pool are covered with trees indigenous to the soil of the islands.

THE AWA GATHERER.

Awa, the root which many Hawaiians have an insatiable desire to possess, is grown in a mysterious spot somewhere near the source of the falls. An old Hawaiian woman knows the secret of the locality and to her the natives of the valley pay a dollar apiece when they wish a section of root. The old woman climbs a steep trail leading over the cliffs as if she were still a young and athletic girl. But with dollars as the prize and the appetites of her patrons as the incentive, she frequently makes the hazardous climb. Why don't the natives raise their own awa roots in their own yards? you ask. Well, anywhere else in the islands the answer could be the same. One's neighbor might covet your patch and one would have to grow it in a steel-protected cage, and so none of the natives in Halawa ever attempts cultivating awa root in his kitchen-garden.

In sight of the falls a pretty little cottage has recently been erected by School Inspector Charles King, the "mansion" of the valley, where a most exquisite view is obtained.

AGRICULTURAL MOLOKAI.

The section of the island from Kaunakakai to Pelekunu, with the villages of Kamalo, Pukoo, Waialua, Brown's, Halawa, Wailau in between, presents a scene of varied agricultural industry, but not too active, for on Molokai life is taken easily. At Kaunakakai, the scene of the failure of the American Sugar Company, tons of honey are produced annually and shipped as far away as London. Kamalo, although there a sugar plantation also failed, is yet capable of being developed into an estate where sugar cane can be easily grown, and if reports are true, it will be a development of the near future when the present litigation is at an end. Pukoo is a long stretch of rich soil, a quarter of a mile wide between the beach and the foot of the hills and several miles in length, where much taro is grown. The beach is lined with fish-ponds where the konohiki rights have been re-established. The Beckley ponds abound with the most succulent varieties of fish. The mountains present rich pasturage for cattle and sheep.

Waialua has a thriving taro industry. Jake Brown's vast acreage is devoted to sheep raising and upon a bluff far up on the backbone of the dividing Pali, and commanding an undisturbed view of the ocean, is the country home of Mr. Brown, set in the midst of a beautiful grove; a charming, quiet, restful retreat, almost as cool as if it were in the Rockies. Land-locked Wailau valley is a taro raising place and so is Pelekunu.

ROADS AND TRAILS.

From Kaunakakai to Halawa there is a connecting road. It is good, bad and indifferent. In places it needs the good that may come through the medium of an appropriation by the Maui Board of County Supervisors. In other sections the road is all right. It is carriage road as far as Brown's. "Carriage road" is what it is called, but it takes a carriage of steel to withstand the rough trip, for the highway trails around rugged lava cliffs and plunges at times through the surf. From Brown's there is a short-cut bridle-trail across the mountains to Halawa. Winding back and forth along one side of the Halawa cliffs a new road has been built. It was a fine effort, but recent rains have exposed weaknesses which were evidently not apparent to those who took it over from the contractor. The retaining wall, only a foot-wide buttress of piled-up stones, the road filled in with earth and rubble, has given away in many sections from the pressure of rain-soaked soil and this has left dangerous openings.

LEGENDS AND MYTHS.

Molokai teems with legends. They will show you upon a ridge high above Pukoo, a cylindrical-shaped stone, the center of which is worn smooth and is hollowed in. They will tell you that in early days there was a great shark who devoured native fishermen. At times he made it inconvenient by appearing too frequently and preventing the natives from fishing, thereby imposing hunger upon them. At times this same shark, they tell you, took the form of a man, but in the center of his back, his ugly shark's mouth showed, but this difficulty he overcame by wearing a feather cape, and thus he walked upon the shores and mingled with the natives. But one day the natives became exceedingly angry because of fatalities among them and they collected in great numbers and finally managed to hook their sea-enemy. The shark put up a great battle, and the rope had to be lengthened until it was long enough to carry up the ridge and the end was passed around the stone. Little by little the rope was hauled in and the shark came on the end of it and was killed. So goes the story.

BURIAL CAVES.

There are some who live at Pukoo and elsewhere, remember in their youth to have entered burial caves cut in the face of a cliff, within which they saw skeletons, remains of feather cloaks, spears, war-clubs, feather helmets and all the trappings of power of ancient times, but today they cannot locate the caves, because the heavy development of lantana and tropical growths has concealed the entrances. There is a cave near the beach which, they say, can be entered only by diving into the sea and swimming through a tunnel. There is another passage also on the land side. Within this is said to be a double war-canoe and other valuable relics.

LANTANA BLIGHT.

Blight is making the lantana pest a thing of the past on Molokai. Originally, the blight which turns lantana black, almost to the condition of charcoal, was used, but the process, while sure, is also very slow. A new blight has been turned loose on the lantana, which turns it brown, stripping the bushes of leaves in an incredibly short time. This blight is playing havoc with the pest, and, what is very satisfactory, the blight pays no attention whatever to other forms of vegetation.

WOULD START CANNERY.

Only last week a well-to-do Japanese came to Pukoo from Lahaina, Maui, in a whaleboat. The purpose of his visit was to inspect the famed fishponds and get knowledge of the fishing rights with the view to leasing them for a term of years. The Jap is said to represent a huj which proposes to can island fish for the purpose of supplying the Japanese on the plantations. If the project goes through, it means the beginning of an industry on Molokai which the promoters believe will prove a paying one.

THE STEAMER SERVICE.

Once a week nearly all the villages on both coasts of Molokai are visited by the steamer Likelike of the Inter-Island company, a modern vessel, built especially for the Molokai waters, and a thriving freight and passenger business is carried on. The visit of the steamer at each port is the event of the week, and the landings are always crowded with men, women and children. It is a social event in some respects, for it affords a means of exchanging the gossip of the community. The Likelike is commanded by Captain Naopala, one of the few Hawaiian navigating chiefs of steamers. For years Captain Naopala has passed up and down the Molokai and Maui coasts. He knows practically every foot of the shore, the shallow and the deep waters. On the darkest night he anchors his little steamer over the same spot he would if it were broad daylight. On a dark night, if the backbone of the mountain range can be dimly discerned, Captain Naopala can tell at a glance at it just where his vessel is. He has learned every depression of the ridge that it may tell him his location.

Some day there may be sugar plantations started again on leeward Molokai, and, if so, they will no doubt be planted on a smaller scale than the others promoted in recent years, and good water for small plantations can be had, so the islanders claim.

The tourist, unfortunately, never sees the beautiful scenery of Molokai, for the steamers plying between Honolulu and Hilo give them only glimpses of the barren and bleak portions.

GENERAL MIX-UP AMONG BROTHERS

Four persons, two men and two boys, got themselves mixed up yesterday in a little difficulty over a cow. Three of the quartet are Joes. Joe Richard is brother of David Richard, milkmen of Kalihi. Antone Joe and Manuel Joe are also brothers and they work for Joe and David. David and Joe Richard had a falling-out and each endeavored to get possession of the stock in trade, the cows. One of the Richards requested the Joe brothers to take a certain cow from the other Richard. The Joe boys demurred and this Richard insisted. The result is that the Joe brothers didn't touch the cow, so they claim, and yet Joe Richard has them arrested on a charge of larceny in the second degree for taking the cow from one Richard and giving it to the other Richard. The Joe brothers are self-reliant chaps, with the best of reputations, and it looks as if they were made to pull chestnuts out the fire for the disputing brothers.

GOVERNOR CALEB WEST

route to Washington D. C. This "army" in some way captured a Southern Pacific train of box cars, and after once starting across Nevada, the railroad officials thought it best to keep the train moving eastward, for California was glad to be rid of them. As the army neared the Utah line, Governor West arose to the occasion and issued an order directed to the late President Huntington of the Southern Pacific railway, prohibiting the railroad company from landing the men in Utah. He also took up the matter telegraphically with the Governor of Nevada, but the train came on, crossed the line and steamed on to Ogden, Utah. Then Governor West called out the newly organized militia and sent troops post haste from Salt Lake to Ogden, and when the "army" arrived there it was to be encircled by a cordon of bayonets. The municipality of Ogden fed the men and for more than ten days Governor West kept up a hot correspondence by wire with Huntington. Finally Huntington came forward with a proposition to raise a subscription for the men, so that they could be provided with means and not become a charge upon the country through which they moved, or levy tribute on the farmers. Huntington offered to give a donation of $300. This was refused. Governor West personally went to Ogden and then formulated a plan to get the "army" out of Utah. The men were told finally that they could march out of Ogden and get out of the territory. It was noticed they went eastward, and on reaching the station at Peterson, a convenient train of box cars was encountered. The "army" proceeded to "capture" the train and in a short time the hoboes were speeding across the Utah line into Wyoming. About this time they were somewhat unruly and once a rumor spread that the Governor had been assassinated.

Then another "army was organized in Salt Lake City. This one really captured a Union Pacific train and ran it on to the Rio Grande Western Railway tracks and went to Provo, forty miles south of Salt Lake. But the Governor was awake by this time. Troops were sent there immediately. The ringleaders were arrested by force, for they put up a fight and the troops loaded ball cartridges into their Springfields. This was by the Governor's order. The men were taken prisoners, about forty of them, and they were tried and convicted on a charge of theft and sent to the penitentiary.

When Governor West first went to Utah as the chief executive in 1886, the Edmunds act was being rigidly enforced. The officials of the Mormon Church were being arrested for polygamy and sent to the penitentiary. The "pen" became filled to overflowing with the saintly "martyrs," and the situation was getting bad. The Mormons raised the question of the constitutionality of the Edmunds Act and the matter was bitterly fought through the courts to the Supreme Court of the United States, that body finally declaring it valid. Governor West endeavored to placate the feelings of the "martyrs" and he at that time proposed to parole them, on their promise to observe the laws. Not a man took advantage of the offer.

The former executive, Governor Murray, had a quantity of arms and ammunition sent to him and placed under his control, and at his request two companies of the Sixth United States Infantry from Fort Douglas had been encamped in the city. Governor West turned the arms and ammunition over to the fort commandant and the troops were also returned to the post.

Then in his second administration, George Q. Cannon, first counsellor of the Presidency, who has twice visited Hawaii, was arrested on a charge of being a polygamist. He had been in hiding for sometime or on the "Underground Railway," as hiding was referred to. He escaped while being brought to Salt Lake. When Cleveland's appointee to the Federal bench of Utah, Judge Sanford, came out and took office, Cannon surrendered. He explained to the Governor that he had been in fear of his life had he surrendered while the former judge was in office. It was at this time that Governor West went east and had the memorable conference with President Cleveland, the fruit of which was the Amnesty Proclamation.

Governor West expresses himself as well pleased with his visit to Honolulu. "Honolulu is a beautiful city," said he, "and it is certainly a place in which to get complete rest. And this sea-bathing, why its the finest I have ever experienced. It reminds me much of the bathing in Great Salt Lake in Utah."

The Governor is reticent concerning Utah affairs at present. He states that he has certain views concerning the conditions there now, but owing to the position he holds in the government, does not care to express them. He stated, however, that he knew a great fight was being waged by the Gentile papers against the domination of the Mormon church in polities and business, and was following it with interest. On Learning that there was a large Mormon colony at Laie, Oahu, Governor West said he might take a trip to the plantation and get in touch with Bishop Woolley, head of the mission in the Hawaiian Islands.

WELCOME REDMOND

Irishmen Ready to Greet Their Distinguished Parliamentarian.

The Irish community of Honolulu, which is a large and influential section of the city's population, was thrown into something of a flurry yesterday when it became known that one of the most distinguished members of the English Parliament, Mr. William Redmond, brother of the equally distinguished John Redmond, was expected to pass through town today as a passenger from Australia on the steamship Ventura.

"We do not know positively that he is coming," said Thos. F. McTighe, President of the Ancient Order of Hibernians," but we think he will be on board, and are making arrangements to give him a fitting reception."

WILLIAM REDMOND.

The following reception committee has been appointed to meet the steamer and, if Mr. Redmond is on board, extend to him the hospitality of the Irish Hawaiians: Thos. F. McTighe, President of A. O. H.; P. F. Ryan, J. J. Sullivan, P. McInerny, John Sheehan, John A. Hughes, E. A. McInerny and C. J. McCarthy. In addition to these, a committee of reception has likewise been appointed by the Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H.

The committee will meet the steamer with a tally-ho, and the entertainment will include a drive to the Pali and to other points of interest in and about Honolulu. Afterwards there will be luncheon at the Moana Hotel at noon. Between one and two o'clock in the afternoon a reception will be tendered to Mr. Redmond at the Moana, at which citizens may pay their respects to the distinguished Irishman.

Mr. Redmond's visit recalls that of the Irish leader, John Dillon, M. P., and Sir Thomas Esmonde, M. P., sixteen years ago. They stayed over a few days, in which a committee entertained them with a drive and a banquet at the Hawaiian, both of them delivering speeches at the festive board. Mr. Dillon and Sir Thomas were also presented to King Kalakaua at Iolani Palace.

M. 3. LEVY DEAD.

Michael Sigismund Levy died at the residence of C. H. Ramsay on Sunday morning, after a long siege of stomach trouble. He was a native of Posen, Prussia, and 53 years of age. His wife died nine years ago. The late Mr. Levy was formerly in the dry goods business here and latterly was a business solicitor for the Star. Having been a resident of Honolulu for twenty years he was well known, and a man of quiet and courteous manners he was well-liked. His funeral was held on Sunday afternoon with Hebrew rites, the burial taking place at Pearl City cemetery. S. Ehrlich, brother-in-law of the dead man, was in charge of arrangements.

TELLS ABOUT GARDEN GOAT

An Agricultural Department Expert Studies Despised Animal.

A considerable part of the lamb and mutton handled by the great packing houses, and by wholesalers and retailers all over the country, says the Washington Star, is nothing in the world but goat, according to a bulletin issued by the Department of Agriculture.

It has been a long, long time since the common garden variety of goat has been treated with such respect and consideration as is shown in the department's circular. There is no undue prominence given to the animal's gastronomical peculiarities, although the bulletin says that a couple of active, able-bodied goats 'n good health and with normal appetites, can clear a tract of land of brushwood, briars, stubble, grass, tin cans, waste paper and other foreign substances more quickly and economically than the same number of men working double time. It also gives a list of the animal's virtues that make it appear as one of the most ill-used and misjudged creatures extant.

For several years the experts of the bureau of animal industry of the department have been bothered by inquiries as to the possibility of creating a goat industry in the United States. The experts maintained a dignified silence until some time ago, when Mr. George Fayette Thompson, editor of the bureau, turned himself loose and prepared to give the goat a send-off.

GENEALOGY OF THE GOAT.

Mr. Thompson studied the subject at great length. He looked up the pedigrees of Angora and other registered goats until he had a genealogical tree about as high as a California redwood. Then he devoted his time and attention to the common goat.

Mr. Thompson believes in doing things thoroughly. He didn't send out and have a goat brought to him, as he might well have done. He went to the goat. He visited the large cities, located the vacant lots and studied the goat at home.

He counted goats, measured goats and photographed goats, and finally he lived for a week on goats' milk, roast goat, boiled goat and goat a la Newberg. Consequently Mr. Thompson's associates in the bureau think that his utterances on the goat question should be heard with respectful attention.

Mr. Thompson says that the inquiries as to the possible creation of a new industry in the United States come principally from persons with considerable capital, a good deal of worthless land and plenty of time to think. He believes that when these people learn that the United States imports $25,000,000 worth of goat skins annually and that conditions in this country are extremely favorable for goat raising, that they will surely sit up and take notice.

The bulletin devotes considerabe space to explaining that the term "common goat" doesn't indicate any special breed, and isn't meant to be contemptuous, but that it covers all sorts of mongrel goats without regard to size, conformation, color or character.

According to Mr. Thompson there are about 2,000,000 goats in the United States, 700,000 of which can recognize their parents. New York has 1316 within its borders, as compared with nearly 700,000 for Texas. Rhode Island can boast of only twenty-three. They are all common goats, but twenty-two of them have risen in the social scale and now furnish the motive power for a similar numbers of go-carts. The twenty-third has a bad reputation.

GOAT AS A DELICACY.

Expert Thompson makes the following serious reflection on goat as a table delicacy:

"It is generally agreed among those who speak from experience (Mr. Thompson's associates say that his impersonal manner of putting this is due to modesty and not to goat) that the kids of all breeds of goats are a table delicacy. It is true that among the great masses of the people of this country there is a remarkable and well-grounded prejudice against anything bearing the name of goat.

"Within the environments of the larger cities are found many kids, and it is evident that only a few of them ever grow to maturity. What becomes of the rest? Butchers and meat dealers answer this question by saying that they are sold as lamb. No meat dealer has ever heard a complaint against the quality of such lamb.

"A considerable number of middle-aged and old mongrel goats are purchased by the packing houses of the larger cities. They are purchased as goat, but are sold as mutton, and many of those who so strenuously condemn goat have eaten it a score of times."

Mr. Thompson adds that the elderly goat is not as good as good mutton, but that it is not any worse than bad mutton. He insists that the prejudice against it would disappear if people would only make a test and eat goat, as goat instead of as lamb. He is not very hopeful, however, of such a result.

THE GOAT AS A LAND CLEANER.

Mr. Thompson reports that after an exhaustive study he is able to say that a common goat can eat as many different things in a given space of time as an Angora goat, and that it is certainly foolish to employ a force of men to clear a tract of land at a cost of from $5 to $40 an acre, when a goat will do it for nothing and be glad of the chance.

In regard to breeding, the circular says that the Angora is given to triplets, while the common goat sticks to twins. The twins usually arrive a good deal oftener, however, and consequently more common kids than Angora or other registered stock enter the lamb and mutton markets every year. At the time of Mr. Thompson's report the skins of Angora preferred were quoted at 28 9-10th cents a pound, while kid common was rated at 24 3-10.

NO NEED OF DOCTOR.

Pains in the stomach and attacks of colic come on suddenly and are so extremely painful that immediate relief must be obtained. There is no necessity of seding for a doctor in such cases if a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is at hand. No doctor can prescribe a better medicine. Keeping Promises

Honolulu Appreciates Always When Promises Are Kept.

Every time you read about Doan's Backache Kidney Pills you are told they cure every form of kidney ill, from backache to urinary disorders. How are our promises kept? Ask any citizen who has tried the treatment. Ask the following Honolulu man.

W. J. Maxwell of this town, Truant officer, writes thus: "I suffered with a horrible pain in the small of my back (an almost invariable symptom of kidney trouble) for a number of years. I was advised to take some of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and following the suggestion I went to the Hollister Drug Co's store, Fort street, and got some of these. Having taken them, they relieved me straight away, and are, I may say, the best and in fact the only cure for backache. I have mentioned the virtue of this wonderful remedy to several persons, among whom is my friend, Mr. Frank Metcalf, who found relief, and he is now a firm believer in Doan's Backache Kidney Pills."

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are sold by all chemists and storekeepers at 50 cents per box, six boxes $2.50, or will be mailed on receipt of price by the Hollister Drug Co., Honolulu, wholesale agents for the Hawaiian Islands.

THE MEDICAL BOYCOTT.

That rule of the Board of Medical Examiners which prescribes that no physician or surgeon shall be eligible to practice in the Territory who is not able to take an examination as to his qualifications in the English language has attracted attention in high official quarters, and it is altogether probable that there will be doings in the near future. Because it is recognized that the rule is absurd.

The matter has been called to attention just now by the recent action of the President of the Board of Health in visiting his wrath upon Japanese so-called doctors who are practicing medicine without the formality of examination and by the position which the local Japanese newspapers have taken relative to the conditions here. It is claimed by the Japanese newspapers, with strong show of reason, that where a majority of the people of the country are of one race and in the mass unable to make themselves understood properly in the official language, it is a hardship to impose conditions that will keep them from consulting a physician of their own race, no matter how conveniently he may live to them, and make it incumbent upon them to employ only an English speaking doctor, no matter how far away he may be, or how steep his charges.

In effect, the Japanese papers claim that the Japanese plantation laborers will patronize doctors of their own race to whom they can detail their symptoms in their own language, no matter what the law may be, and so the law becomes in fact inoperative as well as absurd. The illicit practitioners continue to practice, taking their chance of getting caught.

This condition of affairs has drawn official attention to the rule of the Board of Medical Examiners, and may draw closer attention to it. Likewise, it has drawn public attention. The Medical Examining Board, consisting of Dr. George Herbert, Dr. James R. Judd and Dr. A. N. Sinclair, inherited its rules, it is said, and among them the rule as to language, from its predecessors. The rule has the honor of age, therefore, if no other.

The point that is being raised now is, by what right was such a rule passed and by what right is it enforced? A Board of Medical Examiners, presumably, is for the purpose of examining physicians and surgeons as to their medical and surgical qualifications for the practice of their profession, not as to their linguistic accomplishments. Knowledge of medicine and surgery is not confined to the peoples that speak the English language. There have been some noted, some very noted doctors indeed, who spoke German, for instance, and some who spoke French, and a few, it may be, who could express themselves with much more facility in Italian, say, than in English.

Nay, there have even been great doctors who could express themselves in Japanese, and who could not speak English at all. Of these was the great Doctor Kitasato, the man who isolated the bubonic plague germ, and who found out more about that dread scourge than any living man before him knew. And he not only did not speak English, but could not write of his discoveries in that language. Dr. Kitasato visited Honolulu last year, and was treated by the physicians of Honolulu, the English speaking physicians, with the distinguished consideration that his transcendant learning deserved. A reception was given for him at the Japanese consulate, which the principal doctors of Honolulu and many of the distinguished laity attended, and the Territorial Medical Society gave him a banquet at the Pacific Club, at which the Japanese physician spoke in German, not being able to express his sense of the courtesy of his hosts in their own language, Dr. Hoffman acting as his interpreter.

And yet, under the rules, if Dr. Kitasato were to apply for a license to practice his profession in Hawaii he would be denied without going into his professional ability at all. He cannot express himself in English. Similarly, Dr. Koch might be debarred, if his linguisitic facility was confined to his native German, and Brown-Sequard, if he were found to speak only French and the continental languages, would be ruled out. Which is absurd.

Another point is that the rules of the Board of Medical Examiners have never received executive approval of any kind, and do not need it. This would seem to be a case for the corrective hand of the legislature, for as matters stand the Examiners constitute a law-making body over which no executive has the veto power. The rules are not on file in the Governor's office, nor the Secretary's office, nor the Board of Health. In fact, the Board of Medical Examiners is about the smallest and closest corporation in this Territory.

Wherefore, high official attention has been turned upon it, and it is entirely probable that there will be some kind of a radical change as soon as it can be brought about. Of course the President of the Board of Health should have and will receive all the help he needs to drive out practitioners who have not the requisite qualifications for the practice of medicine, speaking from a professional standpoint, but there are as good medical colleges in Japan as anywhere in the world, and it is entirely possible that young graduates of these colleges might be as well equipped as their American confreres and yet know not a word of English.

Speaking of doctors, by the way, it is interesting to know that all the doctors propose to fight the license tax levied at the last session of the legislature.

There is considerable envy mixed up in the attacks upon John D. Rockefeller just as there was in those upon W. W. Astor and millionaire Van Alen, attacks which drove them and their capital out of the country. Doubtless England is grateful to us for sending her such rich men and lives in hope that she may also acquire Mr. Morgan and Mr. Rockefeller. With Mr. Astor's $100,000,000 and Mr. Alen's $40,000,000, adding thereto Mr. Morgan's $200,000,000 and Mr. Rockefeller's $500,000,000, to say nothing of benefits derived from the Carnegie fortune, England would have reason to thank fortune that America's envy of the Croesuses she has produced has a free voice.

A sign that Russia has no faith in the peace conference may be seen in the movement of troops. Some time ago a Russian force from Vladivostok crossed the Tiemen or Toomen river into Korea. It did not go far from headquarters, but it accomplished the feat of keeping the Czar's flag on the enemy's soil. Now these troops are being rapidly withdrawn either to strengthen the defences of Vladivostok or to aid in the defence of the railroad connecting the Russian seaport with Harbin. All this means that St. Petersburg expects such conditions to be reached at Portsmouth as to make another great battle in Manchuria inevitable.

The Japanese invasion of Honolulu trade has reached the liquor business and demoralized it. Most retail dealers are complaining because the price of alcoholic drinks at Japanese bars, has gone down to ten cents—a drop from twenty-five cents three or more years ago and from fifteen recently. White dealers who have employed Japanese about their bars have drilled them well and are now reaping what they have sown. Even the beer saloons are badly hurt owing to the Japanese cut in prices. At present it looks as if the Japanese would, in the course of a few years, control the entire liquor trade of Hawaii.

The man who wants to buy old Hawaiian numeral postage stamps will not find the market here overstocked. The price of $1000 per set has stood for too many years to enable anybody to pick up such luxuries in the street. There are probably a good many of the numeral stamps in existence but the most of them will be found in the attics of New England seaport houses on mildewed letters from the whaler grandfather who perished long ago.

The reason why Russia is so eager to retain Saghalien, apart from its mineral riches, is that the great island commands the mouth of the Amur river, one of Siberia's arteries of trade. That is also a reason why Japan proposes to keep it. Possession is hers now and is nine points of the law. The other point, later on, must be conceded by Russia.

Uncle Sam seems to have the Governor of Newchwang on his side. The Governor has warned boycotters of punishment by death. It is understood that they will merely be beheaded, not water-cured.

It is to be hoped that the kiawe beans sent from here to the Philippines carry rules for their planting. Kiawe beans will not grow if planted whole. They must first be cut until the inner bean is exposed. Kiawe trees that come up wild are the products of beans that have first passed through the intestines of animals.

A wide belief prevails that the Czar had rather see Linevitch's soldiers exterminated by the Japanese than brought back to Russia in their present state of mind.

It is hardly thought that Diamondfield Jack will stop off in Honolulu any longer than is necessary to buy a hotel and a plantation.

Apropos of the Maui case, a man might easily die of heart disease if he found himself on fire with gasoline-soaked clothes.

A THREATENING INCIDENT.

The heart to heart talk between Gov. Carter of Hawaii and President Roosevelt has closed the threatening Hawaii incident, and Gov. Carter withdraws his resignation. He found the President to be a fine fellow, while the President pronounces him a "brick." It has been said that the boy in Mr. Roosevelt keeps him strong and fresh. So it does. —Boston Herald.

CORDIAL INVITATION
ADDRESSED TO WORKING GIRLS

Miss Barrows Tells How Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Helps Working Girls

Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female disorders, especially those who are obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night in stores or factories.

Day in and day out the girl toils, and she is often the bread-winner of the family. Whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, she must get to her place of employment, perform the duties exacted of her—smile and be agreeable.

Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach. In consequence of frequent wetting of the feet, monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently there are faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden. All of these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism which can be easily and promptly cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Abby F. Barrows, Nelsonville, Athens Co., Ohio, tells what this great medicine did for her. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I feel it my duty to tell you the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier have done for me. Before I took them I was very nervous, had dull headaches, pains in back, and monthlies were irregular, I had been to several doctors, and they did me no good.

"Your medicine has made me well and strong. I can do most any kind of work without complaint, and my periods are all right.

"I am in better health than I ever was, and I know it is all due to your remedies. I recommend your advice and medicine to all who suffer."

It is to such girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her long record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

AUGUST LANDSCAPE IN SOUTH ISLAND, NEW ZEALAND.

BURGLAR'S AWFUL MISTAKE

Broke Into a Lunatic Asylum, Was Caught and Put Away With the Crazy People.

New York Press.

"That Steve Lowder, who has just been sent up, took the cake in the burglar business," declared the old Sergeant, stretching out his long legs in front of the desk in the police station. "Why, that chap was one of the most conscientious fellers I ever knew."

"Must have been very touchy, considerin' the business he was in," remarked a patrolman. "I reckon the Court gave him a certificate of good moral character when he was sent up?"

"No; he didn't get a certificate, though he ought to have had one," pursued the Sergeant. "Steve was no ordinary crook. He looked upon burglary as a regular callin' an' tried to foller it in an honest, straightforward way. If he got into a rich man's house or into a bank, or some other place where they could afford to lose, that was all right. That was earnin' a livin' on the square, he thought. But if he happened to rob some poor person of what little he had, an' found out afterward what he had done, he was all broke up about it.

"Why, once he stole $150 from a poor old man—all the old chap had in the world — an' what d'ye s'pose Steve did when he discovered it? He jest tied the money up in a package, an' the next night he left it hangin' to the doorknob at the old man's house where it could be found in the mornin.'"

"I reckon he put in a dollar or two extra as interest for the use of the money, didn't he?" questioned the patrolman.

"An' went back the next night an' stole it ag'in?" added another.

"You fellers needn't laugh about it," said the old Sergeant warmly. "When you've been on the force as long as I have ye won't be so smart, an' will know more. That Steve Lowder wan't no common burglar. One night he was wanderin' 'round through the country, thinkin' he would strike the house of a rich farmer that he knew had taken a wad o' money out of the bank that day. Well, in some way Steve got lost, an' couldn't find the place. He traveled 'round for several hours, an' then he come to a large, fine brick building—big enough for a hotel. It was standing back from the road in sort of a park, an' Steve concluded it must be of a mighty rich man who owned all that, an' he would go in there, as he couldn't find the place he was lookin' for.

"So, in he goes through a basement window, which he pried open, an' after gatherin' up a few silver spoons which he found down below, he started upstairs to the rooms above. But the minute he got to the top of the stairs he heard such a yelin' an' talkin' that he thought the family must be up an' some sort of a fandango goin' on. He made up his mind it would be safer for him to get out of that, which he did. He was about half way across the park when two men jumped out from behind a tree an' grabbed him.

"'Hello, Johnny! You thought you'd escape, did ye?' said one. 'Well, I guess you'd better go back in there where you belong.'

"'I don't belong in there, an' I'm not goin' back,' said Steve, an' he knocked the feller down an' started to run.

"But the other chap tripped him, an' then the two got on to him, an' in spite of his kickin' they pulled him back into the buildin.'' A tall, sallow-faced man that they called doctor walked up and looked Steve all over. Said he was in an awful bad way, an' ordered him to be put into a strait jacket an' a big blister placed on the back of his neck."

"Why, what kind of a place had he got into?" asked the patrolman.

"He'd made a mistake an' broke into an insane asylum—that's what! An' they kept him for two weeks before the doctors an' the rest of 'em found out that he didn't belong there an' let him go."

"But I don't see how his conscience could trouble him about that."

"You don't, eh?" and the old Sergeant gave a sniff of contempt. "That is because you don't know Steve Lowder as well as I do. Why, jest as soon as he got out he robbed a postoffice in a country town, an' from the money he got he sent $10 to the asylum authorities to pay for his two weeks' board. Told 'em he was no pauper, to be supported by the benevolence of the state. If that doesn't show he had a conscience, what does?"

"Great Scott! Did he have any more of them conscientious spells?"

"I should remark that he did. One Sunday when he was doin' nothin', he went to church—for Steve had been brought up mighty strict, ye see. When they passed round the collection plate he whips out a five-dollar bill an' puts it in. It was a counterfeit, but Steve thought the heathen wouldn't know the difference and he wanted to help things along. An' there's where he made a mistake an' give his conscience an awful twinge. A few nights later he broke into a store, an' it happened to belong to one of the deacons of the church, an' in robbin' the safe he took all the missionary money that the deacon had charge of. Of course, Steve didn't know that at the time, but he found it out the next day, for there in the pile of bills was the counterfeit five he had put in. Well, sir, it ever there was a feller teetotally flambergasted an' busted up in his conscientious feelin's it was Steve Lowder when he saw that bill."

"What did he do about it?"

"For a while he didn't know what to do. He wanted to get the money back, but how to do it without givin' himself away was the question. He thought of sending it by mail, an' would have done it that way if it hadn't been church money. Bein' as it was a church he had robbed his conscience wouldn't let him do any sneakin' work to right the matter. So, after a deal of considerin', he broke into the deacon's house one night an' walked right into his bedroom. The deacon saw him an' was about to get up, when Steve covered him with a revolver.

"'Lie still, Deacon,' he said, 'or your preacher will have some funeral exercises to 'tend to day after tomorrer. Now, listen to me. I robbed your store the other night, an' by mistake I took some money that your church had raised for the heathen. I've felt awful bad about it ever since, an' have brought it back. Here it is.'

"'Did ye bring back with it the money you stole from me?' asked the Deacon, anxious like.

"'Not much,' said Steve. 'I draws the line between deacons an' heathen, though in some cases I can't see much difference between 'em. By the way, that's a mighty nice gold watch on the table there, an' maybe you've got some loose change in your clothes. Keep still, Deacon, this pistol might go off.'

"The Deacon ducked under the quilts very sudden, an' Steve put the watch an' what money he could find into his pocket, an' left the house. He'd cleared his conscience an' felt better."

"I s'pose," said the patrolman, "that he was more careful after that as to what money he took, wasn't he?"

"Yes, he tried to be. But, for all that, it was his conscience that got him into this last trouble. Ye see, Steve was an expert burglar, an' last month he broke into the vaults of a safety deposit company an' carried off a big package of money. In the mornin', when he saw the owner's name on the package, he almost fainted away. He hurried right off to a police station, handed over the package, an' give himself up. Told the Captain his conscience would never let him keep an' use that money."

"Why, who did it belong to?"

"It belonged to the Standard Oil Company," replied the old Sergeant calmly.

THE RICHEST FARM.

FOUR HUNDRED ACRES OF FINE LAND IN KANSAS.

Property of Standard Oil Company Has an Annual Output of $8,000,000 and No Produce.

The onslaught of Kansans upon the Standard Oil company has called attention to the fact that near this city John D. Rockefeller has what is undoubtedly the richest farm in the world, and not a dollar's worth of produce is raised upon it. The farm consists of 400 acres of fine land. Its value is nearly $2,000,000 and its annual crop amounts to about $8,000,000, says a Neodesha (Kan.) letter to the New York Sun.

Mr. Rockfeller doesn't try any experiments with corn or wheat, nor does he try to increase his wealth by engaging in the raising of cattle, sheep or hogs. The Rockefeller farm is purely a tank farm, and is so called in the neighborhood. At approximately the same distance apart on the 400 acres are 50 big oil tanks, each having a storage capacity of from 35,000 to 60,000 barrels of oil. A space of eight acres is set apart for each tank, and around each is a dyke of earth about five feet in height, thrown up to catch the oil should a leak be sprung or to fight away the flames should they come in the wake of a stream of oil that had burst its confines.

Each of the tanks is made of sheet steel, and cost about $4,000. They are about 50 feet in diameter and 30 feet high. They rest lightly on the ground. The steel floor is covered with heavy black oil paper, and a conical roof surmounts the whole. A stairway leads to the roof from the ground. In the middle of it is a door locked with a Rockefeller padlock, a special design, which cannot be duplicated, and to which only trusted employes carry keys.

In these tanks is stored the surplus oil of the Kansas field. The production has been increased greatly. A year ago it was about 13,000 barrels a day; now it is more than twice that figure. The Standard refinery here can take care of only 2,500 barrels a day, but at Sugar Creek, near Kansas City, the company is putting up an immense one. Even this, however, would have been inadequate.

If the state is going to put the company out of business in Kansas the Standard will lose several millions in investments such as the tank farm which cannot well be moved without great impairment. There are smaller farms at Humboldt and Caney.

These tank farms are connected with the oil fields everywhere. Big mains run into each of the six large producing counties, and from these laterals extend to wherever there is any oil. The moment an operator can show a production of 50 barrels a day the Standard will build him a pipe line. Until the recent fuss this was the rule, and gangs of pipe layers were kept busy all the time, many wells being capped awaiting the arrival of the pipes.

More than $6,000,000 is invested by the Standard in pipe lines in this state. Solid trainloads of pipe and sheet steel were daily sights in the field last summer. Each main line is supplied with a pumping station which forces the oil through the pipes. Where oil does not run by gravity the Standard has been paying a cent a barrel for the steam used in pumping, which in itself has been a good source of income for the operators.

Forty men are employed to ride the pipe lines and gauge the oil. Their business is to look for thefts and leaks. Oil stealings have not been infrequent in the past. A line will be tapped at some secluded point and a wagonload of oil taken, to be sold later to the refinery people.

These gaugers visit the oil wells, measure the oil and run it into the line. They give the operator a ticket and he sends the acumulated ones to the headquarters on the first of the month and gets his check. An affidavit must accompany each claim, in which is set out the name of the owner of the royalty. Few of the wells are operated by the owners of the land, most of whom take life easy on their monthly royalties. These they receive direct from the Standard office. In this way they feel sure the operators are not defrauding them.

The Kansas field is divided by the Standard into two districts The dividing line runs just on the north side of Neodesha. The company does not believe that the oil in the north end of the field is as good as that in the south end, and a difference of 20 cents a barrel is made. The man with a well just north of the line gets that much less than a man with a well a hundred feet away, but on the south side of it, and this has aroused much feeling. The company retorts that it must make the division somewhere, and somebody must get hurt. Very heavy oil is produced in the north end.

READ THE ADVERTISER— WORLD'S NEWS DAILY

WEEKLY CROP BULLETIN.

For the Week Ending August 12, 1905.

Honolulu, T. H., August 14, 1905.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

Warm weather has continued throughout the past week, attended by strong trade winds. In Hawaii, good rains have fallen along the windward coast and in portions of the Kona and Kau districts, but in north Kona rain is much needed. In Maui, heavy rains have occurred over windward sections, causing considerable damage, in the Hamakualoa district, to ditches and roads throughout the country, while dry conditions continue in leeward districts. Heavy rains have also fallen in practically all sections of Oahu, and in eastern and northern Kauai.

The warm and moist conditions prevailing throughout most sections of the group during the past week have been exceptionally favorable for the rapid advancement of growing cane. In the Hilo district of Hawaii, and the Puna district of Kauai, there has been too little sunshine to allow cane crops to make the greatest possible growth, while in some sections a slight interference in plant growth, at times, has been caused by the very heavy rains. Rice at Waipa, Kauai, which was planted late in season, is now being harvested; in other localities the planting of second crop rice is almost completed. Summer crop pineapples are ripening in large quantities and the young plants are growing nicely, in all sections. Coffee in Oahu and sisal in Maui are reported as doing very well. Pastures in north Kona, Hawaii, are beginning to show the effects of the dry weather in that locality, but in most other sections grass is plentiful and stock of all kinds is in good condition.

An earthquake shock occurring at 8:45 p. m. of the 4th, is reported from Kona, Hawaii.

REMARKS BY CORRESPONDENTS.

ISLAND OF HAWAII.

Kaumana—With the exception of the 9th, which was stormy, the weather throughout the past week has continued favorable for growing crops; on night of 8th, some trees were blown down by the high winds, but no damage was done to crops; cultivating and harvesting cane.—J. E. Gamalielson.

Hilo—Warm, showery weather continues; young cane, taro, etc., making rapid growth.—L. C. Lyman.

Papaikou—Weather wet and stormy, with fierce gusts of wind; streams very large; good rains here, heavier on upper lands; weeding, stripping and cultivating.—John T. Moir.

Pepeekeo—A little too much rain at times, and too little sunshine; good growing weather, especially for cane crop; weeding, hoeing and fertilizing.—James Webster.

Honomu—Warm and showery weather all week, with a very heavy rain on 8th amounting to 2.78 inches; hoeing, cultivating and fertilizing; young cane looking well.—W. K. Andrews.

Hakalau—Weather still favorable for all growths; heavy rainfall accompanied by strong southeasterly winds on the 9th; total rainfall for the week, 5.20 inches.—Geo. Ross.

Laupahoehoe—Stormy most of week with heavy rains on 8th and 9th, and rough sea; weather very warm.—E. W. Barnard.

Ookala—No change in weather conditions—still continues warm and showery; 4.22 inches of rain fell here on 9th; hoeing and fertilizing cane.—W. G. Walker.

Paauhau—Strong trade winds accompanied by heavy rains on 8th and 9th; stripping and cultivating operations are continuing; crops growing steadily.—H. Glass.

Honokaa—Weather warm; storms of wind and rain on night of 8th and morning of 9th; plowing, planting, stripping, cultivating and harvesting cane.—C. H. Bragg.

Niulii—Strong winds during the major part of week, with heavy rains on 8th and 9th; plowing and fertilizing ratoons; cultivating, hoeing and stripping plant cane.—Robt. Hall.

Kohala—The good rain of 9th instant of much benefit to crops; weather conditions very favorable this week, especially for planting operations; hoeing, planting and cultivating.—W. O. Taylor.

Kohala Mission—First half of week very dry, followed by high winds and abundant rains.—Dr. B. D. Bond.

Puakea Ranch — The heavy rains which fell on the 8th and 9th were of great benefit, especially to lower pastures, which were much in need of moisture.—A. Mason.

Kamuela — Moderate temperatures throughout week; strong wind, and heavy rain (1.10 inches) on 9th.—Mrs. E. W. Hay.

Puuwaawaa—Excessively dry weather, with very high winds, spoiling the effects of the last good rains; cattle beginning to show effects of the drought.—Robt. Hind.

Honokahau—Weather during the past week has been all that could be wished for—bright, warm days, with heavy showers during nights; pastures at their best, and stock doing well.—F. R. Greenwell.

Kealakekua—Very warm and sultry weather, with good rains all week; earthquake shock at 8:45 p. m. of 4th.—Robt. Wallace.

Pahala—Early part of week dry with high winds, but a good soaking rain fell on night of 8th, benefiting young crops and pastures considerably.—H. D. Harrison.

ISLAND OF MAUI.

Kipahulu—Weather throughout week very warm, with sufficient rain for crops; cane making good progress and looking well; plowing, planting and weeding 1907 crop.—Andrew Gross.

Hana—Weather continues warm, with light trade winds; some rain in early part of week, but insufficient; young cane doing well; planting, cultivating and weeding.—N. Omsted.

Nahiku—Cloudy weather during latter part of week, with heavy rain on night of 9th; clearing land and preparing to plant rubber trees.—C. O. Jacobs.

Huelo—Very heavy rainfall during night of 9th, causing considerable damage to ditches and roads throughout the country; stock of all kinds looking fairly well.—W. F. Pogue.

Peahi—Fine crop weather at beginning of week, but a big storm from the north on 9th, over 6 inches of rain falling in 12 hours.—Geo. Groves.

Haiku—Weather warm and showery, very favorable for plant growth; summer crop pineapples ripening in large quantities, and the young plants growing finely; sisal doing well; plantation irrigation ditches running full capacity.—D. D. Baldwin.

Paia—Storm from northeast on 8th giving 1.76 inches of rain; except in planting, artificial irrigation unnecessary for the present.—J. J. Jones.

Puunene—.78 inch of rain on 8th; fair ditch supply of water, and pumps working only part time; good weather for crops in ground.—J. N. S. Williams.

Wailuku—Hot weather with stiff trades all week; good rains latter part of week, and lightning during night of 8th; fine growing weather for cane and vegetables; plenty of grass; setting out rice about finished.—Bro. Frank.

Kaanapali—Strong north to northeast winds during week; good steady rain on 8th and 9th; all vegetation looking well.—Wm. Robb.

ISLAND OF OAHU.

Ahuimanu—Warm and moist weather during week; very heavy rain on 9th, which is doing a great deal of good; crops and pastures in good condition.—E. Knust.

Maunawili—Warm and showery during week; 2.53 inches of rain fell on 9th; coffee doing very well; pastures fair.—John Herd.

Waianae—Weather remains warm; had a good rain on 9th, amounting to 1.60 inches; growing cane in good condition.—F. Meyer.

Waiawa—Warm and showery weather most of week, but more rain needed; pineapples ripening very fast.—W. R. Waters.

Kahuku—Weather warm and cloudy; heavy rainfall on 9th, and artificial irrigation has been suspended for a few days; still harvesting 1905 cane; planting and fertilizing.—R. T. Christophersen.

ISLAND OF KAUAI.

Makaweli—Very warm all week; high winds on several days and light rains on 8th and 9th; work in field and mill progressing steadily.—Hawaiian Sugar Co.

FREE TO MEN!

A BOOK FULL OF FACTS ABOUT

DR. McLAUGHLIN'S ELECTRIC BELT FOR WEAK MEN

I KNOW THAT NO MAN REMAINS A WEAKLING BECAUSE HE WANTS TO; I am sure that you want to overcome every indication of early decay that has shown itself on you. I don't think the man lives who would not like to feel as big and strong as a Sandow, and I know that if you have a reasonable foundation to build upon I can make you a bigger man than you ever hoped to be. I want you to know that, you who can't believe it, and I want you to have my book, in which I describe how I learned that manly strength was only electricity and how I learned to restore it; also I want to tell you the names of some men who will tell you that when they came to me they were physical wrecks and are now among the finest specimens of physical manhood.

I want you to read this book and learn the truth about my arguments. If you are not as vigorous as you would like to be, if you have rheumatic pains, weak kidneys, loss of vitality, prostatic troubles, nervous spells or any ailment of that kind that unmans you, it would assure you future happiness if you would look into this method of mine. Don't delay it, your best days are slipping by. If you want this book I send it closely sealed, free, if you send this ad.

GREAT SUBMARINE DESERTS WITHOUT LIFE OF ANY KIND

Prof. Alexander Agassiz has reported that he has discovered a hitherto unknown submarine desert, "3000 miles long and 1200 miles wide, in the eastern Pacific, between the Galapagos Islands and Easter Island."

That portion of the Pacific, from the Galapagos—through which the equator passes—on the one side, to Easter Island, the barren rocks of Sala-y-Gomez, Pitcairn and Ducie Islands on the other, has long been known as a sea unusually barren of life, either on the surface or below, says a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette. Sea birds, though they abound on Pitcairn, Oeno and Ducie Islands, and the Galapagos, are rarely seen in the wide area between the equator and the tropic of Capicorn and from Pitcairn Island to Juan Fernandez. Sometimes one may see, high in air, above this desolate sea, the widespread wings of a frigate bird, sweeping toward land that may be a thousand miles away, but the ocean itself seems devoid of life.

The writer of this article well remembers making a passage in a small schooner from Easter Island to Manga Reva, in the Gambier Group. Midway between Easter Island and Pitcairn Island we met with what our American captain described as a "blazing, furious calm." For six days we lay baking under a torrid sun with the pitch bubbling up in the deck seams, and during that time we did not see a single living thing of any kind—either bird, fish or any of those floating minor organisms usually met with when a ship is becalmed in tropic seas. When we left Easter Island we had been attended by seven pilot fish which kept with us for four or five days. Then, as the wind died away, they left us—a most unusual thing, for, as a rule, these beautiful creatures will attend a ship for many days, even weeks. Evidently they knew that there was no food for them in this desert part of the ocean, and so declined to keep us company any further.

I have knowledge of two of these barren ocean patches in the South Pacific. One is off the island of Eua, in the Tongan Archipelago, the other at Nieu (Savage Island), 300 miles to the eastward. One day I, accompanied by a native lad, was pigeon shooting on Eua, and stopped to rest and lunch on the summit of the northeastern cliffs, which here start sheer up from the sea 400 feet below.

"Jaojai," I said, as we looked down at the smooth blue sea, "the water is very deep here, the cliffs come straight up from the sea. It should be a good place for big fish.'

"No, indeed. It is no good at all. There is nothing lives there; it is oge (literally, hungry, foodless). You might fish all day, either close into the cliffs or for half a league from them, and catch nothing except a few small rock cod."

"Why is it so?"

"Because there is nothing there for the fish to eat—no growing coral, no seaweed. It is because of the strong current, I think, which sweeps through the straits between this island and Tongatabu and then curves around this point. The bottom is of hard, flat rock, with here and there great piles of smooth white stones. When there is no wind you can look down for twenty fathoms and see the bottom and the stones, but naught else. There are other places like it in Tonga between Kao and Tofoa where fish cannot live. But there it is oge because of the volcano, which sometimes causes the sea to boil, and the water is poisoned with sulphur and ashes from the great eruption long since."

A day or so later I took a boat and sailed around opposite to the cliffs, and anchored in fifty fathoms. For an hour I fished without getting a bite, then went in close under the grim cliffs, and with a water glass examined the bottom at a depth of about twelve fathoms; I could see nothing alive—not even a crab.

Sailing round the weather side of the island I brought to again off the south point, and here in less than an hour my crew of four and myself caught several hundredweight of fine fish, principally great red rock cod, and a fish like the New Zealand yellow tail.

The barren patch at Savage Island lies off a point between the villages of Alofi and Avetele. It is about five miles in circumference and devoid of life, the bottom covered with huge white boulders and not a living bit of coral to be seen. There is also another—and much more extensive—sea desert near the volcanic island of Ambrym, in the New Hebrides, and a fourth between the islands of Maiua and Tutuila, in the Samoan group. This latter place is a patch of rock, sixty fathoms below the surface and of about a mile in circumference. I discovered its existence in 1875 during a calm by sounding, and at once began to fish. In two hours I was satisfied it was also oge. Almost anywhere else in the South Pacific thousands of fish would frequent such a comparatively shallow spot and eagerly take the hook.

"He called me a —— ——, then he plugged me in the jaw, and then we had a fight, and so I want him arrested."

That was Chas. Freeman's explanation of the outcome of a little difficulty yesterday afternoon on the deck of the British bark Lord Templetown. Freeman is a stevedore boss, and Kalino, part Hawaiian and part negro, is a plain, every-day stevedore. Kalino acquired something of a jag after lunch time, and didn't report back to work in the afternoon. Freeman put another man on in his place and when Kalino came back he found his job gone.

According to Freeman, Kalino took this to be a reflection on his ability to do stevedoring and after calling him a bad name, landed a heavy one on his jaw. Then there was a lively scrap and Kalino, after getting some bruises, went ashore. Freeman took a policeman into his confidence and a search was made for Kalino, who was finally found leaning against the bar of a waterfront saloon, slaking his thirst with a glass of lager. Kalino looked as though he had gone through a mill. Bumps and scratches appeared all over his head and features. Freeman looked as if he had been used for a chimney sweep.

Kalino told the police that the stevedore boss started the row, and so to even things up both were entered on the visitors' book for affray, and will tell Judge Whitney all about the affair this morning. Kalino is over six feet tall, and is one of the crack tug-of-war men.

SHERMAN SAILS FOR MANILA.

The transport Sherman departed at 5 o'clock last evening for Guam and Manila. The big, white troopship was handled from the naval slip to the channel by the tug Fearless. The army people aboard were gay with leis and numerous friends were on the dock to bid them good-bye. The vessel discharged a lot of hay and other stores for the local quartermaster depot.

The coast files brought news of the operations of some thieves aboard the vessel on the up trip to San Francisco, one of the passengers missing a valuable tea-set from his room. It was afterwards found in the refrigerator of the vessel.

Captain Niblack of the Naval Station sent an assortment of trees and seeds on the troopship for distribution at Guam and in the Philippines. There were 2000 ironwood trees, 200 silver oak trees, 200 Brazilian rosewood trees, 2000 cypress trees, 2000 alligator pear seeds and a dozen sacks of kiawe beans.

DREDGER WORKS LIKE A GIANT.

Some idea of the solidity of the foundation of this island of ours may be obtained by watching the giant set of teeth of the dredger Governor crunch its way into the coral strata underlying the new Alakea slip. That it is solid is attested by the terrific strain to which the long arms of the dredger are subjected. After repairing the massive upper arm which gave way the other day and getting started again just recently, another mishap occurred yesterday, when the thick steel cable on the forearm snapped. Work had necessarily to be delayed until a new cable could be reeved over the big pulleys.

Dredging is a slow operation nowadays for all hands except the men who operate the arms and steel-toothed jaw of the dredger. The big dipper is frequently sent down a dozen times without taking up more than a few pounds of coral, small bits which are but the edges of the crust. That coral is like flint. The strongest pressure of the scoop, biting into it a dozen or more times, often fails to make much impression. Then suddenly a huge piece weighing tons will be broken off and a few dipperfuls are brought up.

The dredging work is one of the sights of the front. Hacks, buggies and all manner of vehicles may be seen at any time of the day grouped along the edge of the new slip, and dozens of loiterers fringe the bank, everybody intensely absorbed in the exhibition of steam and modern appliances endeavoring to undo the work of the billions of tiny coral insects.

STANLEY DOLLAR AT COAST.

The British tramp Stanley Dollar of the Dollar Steampship Company arrived in port yesterday with a part cargo of Oriental goods. The steamer is sixty-six days from Hongkong via Puget Sound, where she put in to land Japanese laborers taken on at Honolulu. Being of foreign register, the vessel had to land her immigrants at Victoria, from which place they were transported overland into Washington, to work on the railroads. In Honolulu the Stanley Dollar had considerable trouble with the immigration officials, as the result of attempting to carry passengers without a license. However, the business of bringing Japs to America is sufficiently lucrative to pay for the trouble, and it is probable that on the return half of her next trip the vessel will again stop in at Honolulu for several hundred brown men. It has even been stated that a steamer for this purpose is to be placed on a regular run between Honolulu and Victoria by the Dollar Company. This, however, the officials of the company will not corroborate.

Captain Bruce, now in command of the Stanley Dollar, will be succeeded by Casey, the mate, upon the next voyage.—Examiner, August 3.

WILL WAIT FOR THE IRIS.

Until the U. S. supply steamer Iris arrives here from San Francisco with naval supplies, the U. S. S. Iroquois will not proceed to Laysan and Midway islands. The Iroquois on leaving Honolulu will make a search for the missing schooner Chas. Levi Woodbury, Captain Harris, calling at Laysan Island, where the schooner may have proceeded to make repairs, if she escaped the big gale.

It is said that the Woodbury sprung a leak either at the time she left Honolulu or while en route. When the vessel arrived at Laysan the crew was engaged in pumping water out of the boat.

ALDEN BESSE MAY BE SOLD.

The bark Alden Besse, a fine vessel of her class, and long in the sugar trade between here and Hawaii, may be sold by the Spreckels Company to a Japanese firm. The Japanese are negotiating for the bark, and it is probable that the deal will be consummated. In the event of the transfer, the Alden Besse is to be used to carry freight from Puget Sound to Japan.—Chronicle.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The Oceanic liner Sonoma is due to arrive from San Francisco tomorrow morning.

The Oceanic S. S. Ventura is due this morning from the Colonies. She will probably leave for San Francisco about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

J. J. Cook, colored, a Civil Service employe, entered on his duties yesterday as messenger at the Naval Station. Hans Friedel of Wailuku was enlisted yesterday at the Naval Station as seaman's apprentice. He is 17 years of age.

The schooner Marston was shifted over to the old Kinau wharf yesterday afternoon to make room for the Ventura at the Oceanic dock. The missionary steamer Morning Star is still on the marine railway with considerably more patching yet to be done to the hull, and the Marston will have to wait the completion of these repairs before the leak in the schooner's hull can be fixed.

HIS MOTHER MADE RICH

Two Japanese are Held for Wife-Selling Conspiracy.

Wong Kwai Has Default Opened--Campbell Will and Other Matters.

Judge Robinson appointed Hawaiian Trust Co. executor of the will of James Dean, deceased, without bonds. Harry Armitage, Jas F. Morgan and M. T. Simonton were appointed as appraisers. The estate is worth about $30,000. An alowance of $100 a month, pending settlement of the estate, was ordered to be paid to the mother of deceased who lives at Rothers, Morayshire, Scotland, and to whom the entire estate is bequeathed. She was represented at the hearing as being a poor woman, so that her son's bequest will be a great fortune for her.

OTHER PROBATE CASES.

The final accounts of Philip and Solomon Peck, executors of the will of Ely Peck, were approved by Judge Robinson, who ordered their discharge on filing final receipts.

E. M. Watson was appointed administrator of the estate of Manuel P. Ferreira, deceased, under $250 bond, by Judge Robinson. The estate consists of a claim against the Rapid Transit Co. on account of the killing of decedent.

In the suit for construction of the will of the late James Campbell it is stipulated by Holmes & Stanley, attorneys for complainants, that Abigail W. Kawananakoa, one of the respondents, shall have twenty days to present any pleading advised.

WONG KWAI WINS.

Judge Robinson granted the two motions of Wong Kwai in the suit of H. Hackfeld & Co. against him, respectively to vacate summons and to open default. Thompson & Clemons for plaintiff; C. W. Ashford for defendant.

FAULTY SERVICE ALLEGED.

A motion to vacate the service of summons has been filed by defendant in the suit of M. Phillips & Co. vs. Wong Kwai. He says in an affidavit that he was in and out of his office on July 27 and could easily have been found, and on returning to his office from an errand his clerk handed him a document purporting to be a copy of the summons. Except for that, he had not been served with process or shown the original.

LIBEL SUIT DEMURRER.

Judge Robinson heard argument on demurrer yesterday in the libel suit of A. V. Gear vs. Hawaiian Gazette Co. J. J. Dunne supported the demurrer in a speech of three hours. A. G. M. Robertson for the plaintiff replied, beginning at 3 p. m. and continuing until 4, when the hearing was continued to 2 p. m. today, at which time Mr. Robertson will complete his argument.

SALE OF WIFE.

Kurakichi Kamatani and Morioka were committed to the Federal grand jury by Commissioner W. B. Maling for violating 5440, U. S. Revised Statues, the offense being conspiracy to sell the wife of Kamatani to Morioka for a criminal purpose. District Attorney Breckons prosecuted and Mr. Shiozawa acted as Japanese interpreter. A Honolulu household loses a cook in one of these committals.

DAMAGE SUIT.

Omoto Bunhichi by his attorneys, Lorrin Andrews and W. S. Fleming has given notice that on Thursday he will move to set for hearing on demurrer his damage suit against Honolulu Rapid Transit & Land Co. He has also entered a joinder in demurrer.

HALEIWA.

The Haleiwa Hotel, Honolulu's famous country resort, on the line of the Oahu Railway, contains every modern improvement and affords its guests an opportunity to enjoy all amusements — golf, tennis, billiards, fresh and salt water bathing, shooting, fishing, riding and driving. Tickets, including railway fare and one full day's room and board, are sold at the Honolulu station and Trent & Company for $5.00. For departure of trains consult time table.

On Sundays, the Haleiwa Limited, a two-hour train, leaves at 8:22 a. m.; returning, arrives in Honolulu at 10:10 p. m.

BRECKONS MAY MANDAMUS MERRIAM

Attorney-general Andrews has been asked for an opinion by Registrar Merriam upon the status of the change made in the record law by the last legislature, the question arising over the offer of United States District Attorney Breckons to file the deed to the Waterhouse property at Waikiki, with plat attached. The property was a part of that secured for purposes of fortification by the United States government. Merriam declined to accept the deeds, stating that under the new law, Act 23, he is not allowed to do so. The act contains a section declaring that it shall be unlawful for the registrar to accept any more plans for record. Since the act went into effect Merriam has been accepting plans only for filing, but the United States attorneys, Breckons and Dunne, declined to accept this as a proper record.

A mandamus suit is talked of, to settle the matter in court. Merriam has asked the Attorney-general to give an opinion and if the opinion sustains his view and he still refuses to accept the plans for record, suit may be brought to compel him to do so. The federal government will have a lot of titles to place of record in the near future, and a test may be made in the Waterhouse case.

UNITED STATES AWARDED TITLE

A decision was rendered by U. S. Judge Dole yesterday in favor of plaintiff in the suit of the United States against Lunalilo Estate Trustees, Haleakala, Hinau, Kaeo, Chuen Yet and Yee Chu Fan. It was an action to determine the title to a piece of land adjoining the barrack site.

The Lunalilo estate deeded land, including the premises in dispute, in exchange to the Hawaiian Government in 1879. King Kalakaua in 1882 deeded a portion of the land to defendant Hinau, who thereupon took possession of it and has held it since. This conveyance was not claimed to have been legal, but defendants relied on it as showing the beginning of adverse possession.

Judge Dole quotes the doctrine that adverse possession does not run against the government, also finds that the conveyance in exchange from the Lunalilo trustees was valid. Therefore he awards title to the plaintiff.

District Attorney Breckons and Assistant District Attorney Dunne for plaintiff; Smith & Lewis for Lunalilo Estate, and A. G. M. Robertson for the other defendants.

WALTER LEE A BOLD FOOTPAD

The climax in the criminal career of Walter Lee came yesterday morning in police court when Judge Whitney sentenced him to three years in Oahu Prison on the charge of highway robbery. The sentence came after his conviction on the charge of stealing $20.30. Last Thursday Lee developed into a highwayman. On the Pali road he held up a Japanese named Nihara. The amount taken from the Jap was $1.75. This was in the afternoon. A little while afterward a Chinaman named Lee Sin was compelled to throw up his hands and the $8.75 in his pockets was transferred to those of Lee. That night Lee armed himself with a revolver, hired a hack driven by Ah Tong, and drove down to Kewalo. In the vicinity of the Union Feed Company Ah Tong was held up and delivered of $9.80, the three sums making up a total of $20.30.

The case was placed in the hands of Harry Flint and Lee was run down. Two or three years ago Lee was brought into court by his father, who was killed in the Palolo Valley quarries. The father told the court the son was disobedient and he at that time wanted the judge to send him to jail. Lee is considerably over 21, but the father thought he had some rights over him and invoked the aid of the law to compel him to lead a straight life.

Full moon Aug. 14th at 5:00 p. m.

Times of the tide are taken from the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey tables.

Hawaiian standard time is 10 hours 30 minutes slower than Greenwich time, being that of the meridian of 157 degrees thirty minutes. The time whistle blows at 1:30 p. m., which is the same as Greenwich, 0 hours 0 minutes. Sun and moon are for local time for the whole group.

CLARENCE WHITE EXPLAINS REPORT

"One of the evening papers seems to have misunderstood my report on the Garbage Department,' said Chief Clerk Clarence White of the Public Works Department yesterday. "I do not say anywhere that the men did not receive Sundays that they were entitled to.

"The men received pay for 642 days. Of these, sixty-six were Sundays and holidays. Mr. Trent's figures make only sixty-two Sundays and holidays. I do not admit that I made a mistake in my figures, but even at that the difference in only four days—which is not much, considering the intricate system of figuring. I am most emphatically in favor of a flat daily wage rate."

Acting-Governor Atkinson found Mr. White's report on his desk when he reached his office yesterday morning, and has it now under consideration. In the meantime, news of the garbage muss has reached Sam Johnson, on the way to Seagirt, and yesterday Supervisor Jack Lucas received a cablegram from the Road Supervisor, in San Francisco, asking whether Sam should return to Honolulu. Mr. Lucas replied to this that there was no occasion to come back, and told Captain Johnson to go on to Seagirt and shoot. In other quarters, there were no further developments yesterday in the affair, although Clarence White handed a copy of his report to County Attorney Douthitt.
