WAR HAS BEEN DECLARED

Boers Are Advancing Steadily on British Territory.

Orange Free State Makes Common Cause With the Boers—Kruger Stands By at Post of Duty.

Kimberley, Oct. 14.—The report that fighting has taken place at Kraaipan has been officially confirmed.

Glencoe Camp, Oct. 13, 10 a. m.—The Boers have occupied Spitskop, near Newcastle.

Boer's Demand.

The Boer ultimatum to Great Britan on Oct. 10 made the following demands:

First—That all points of mutual differences be regulated by friendly recourse to arbitration or by whatever amicable way that may be agreed upon this Government and her majesty's Government.

Second—That all troops on the borders of this Republic shall be instantly withdrawn.

Third—That all re-enforcements of troops which have arrived in South Africa since June 1, 1899, shall be removed from South Africa within a resonable time to be agreed upon with this Government and with the mutual assurance and guarantee on the part of this Government that no attack upon or hostilities against any portion of the possessions of the British Government shall be made by this Republic during the further negotiations within a period of time to be subsequently agreed upon between the governments; and this Government will on compliance therewith, be prepared to withdraw the armed burghers of this Republic from the borders.

Fourth—That her majesty's troops which are now on the high seas shall not be landed in any part of South Africa.

Britain's Reply.

London, Oct. 12—Following is the text of the British reply to the Boer ultimatum:

"Chamberlain to Milner, High Commissioner, sent 10:45 p. m., October 10, 1899: Her Majesty's Government has received with great regret the peremptory demands of the South African Republic conveyed in your telegram of October 9th. You will inform the Government of the South African Republic in reply that the conditions demanded by the Government of the South African Republic are such as Her Majesty's Government deems it impossible to discuss."

War Declared.

Cape Town, October 13.—9:45 a.m.—A dispatch from Vryburg says that an armored train has been destroyed. It is feared that much loss of life will result. The news has been unofficially confirmed.

Johannesburg, October 12.—War was declared yesterday. The formal declaration goes into effect at 10 o'clok this morning.

Transvaal and Free State.

London, Oct. 12.—In reply to formal inquiry of St. Alfred Milner, Governor of Cape Colony and British High Commissioner in South Africa, President Steyn of the Orange Free State, announces that that State will make common cause with the Transvaal.

President Kruger is credited with declining to quit Pretoria, declaring that, "like a faithful Captain, he will remain on the bridge whether the ship rides safely into the harbor or goes down into the deep."

Latest From the Front.

London, October 14.—The Exchange Telegraph Company has received a dispatch from Cape Town, dated this morning saying that the Boers have blown up another armored train carrying telegraph operators from Mafeking.

The Boers, it is reported, destroyed the railway station north of Fourteen Stream, between Vryburg and Kimberly. Fighting is still continuing in the neighborhood.

According to dispatches from the front the Boers have made several attacks on Mafeking, all of which have been repulsed. In connection with the rumored attack upon Mafekin, a disquieting report comes from Pretoria to the effect that the Rustenburg and Marico commanders have crossed the border and entered the Rooigrend territory between Lichtenburg and Mafeking, blowing up the bridge over the Maloppo river, and destroying a train load of dynamite and track. As Mafeking depends upon Rooigrend for its water supply, the significance of this move is evident.

A dispatch from Pretoria, dated October 14, says:

"General Koch wires from the Natal border that his command has occupied Botohas Pass and also captured the railway station."

The latest reports from Vryburg say that the armored train was destroyed at Kraipin contained in addition to Nesbit's force, a number of workmen and six residents of Marigogo south of Mafekind who on hearing of the Boer advance took refuge in the train.

The following dispatch from Ladysmith has been received at the War Office:

"Sir George Stewart White went in the direction of Van Reenan's at 3 a. m. (Friday) but failed to draw the Boers to the pass. He returned to Ladysmith, where he is now. No engagement occurred.

OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT.

Clay Clement appears this afternoon in the "Corsican Brothers." Tonight the greatest melodrama ever written, "The Two Orphans" will be given. Frank Curtis will appear prominently before the public in the caste this evening. On Monday night the Robertsonian comedy, "Caste," will be put on; Tuesday night one of Clay Clement's masterpieces "The Mountebank."

Shingle Elected to the Exchange.

Robert W. Saingle was this morning elected to a seat in the Honolulu Stock Exchange. He succeeds to the membership of A. B. Wood who finds that with his other interests he has not the time to attend to the increasing stock business of his firm, H. Waterhouse & Co. Mr. Shingle will now enter into the brokerage business for himself but will not sever his connection with H. Waterhouse & Co.

Weather On the Islands.

Very heavy rains are reported on Maui for the last few days; on Hawaii, Hilo leads all other districts in the heavy, continuous drench; Hamakua and Kona are reporting great quantities of rain while very little prevails in the Kau district.

On Kauai wet weather continues and the steamers find it very difficult to make an entrance to the various ports.

For Kapaa Band.

A large and choice entertainment takes place in the sugar shed at Kapaa tonight for the benefit of the Portuguese Brass Band in Kapaa, Kauai; J. Toms manages affairs and also takes part in the performance.

Friedenthal Recital.

There was another large attendance at the Friedenthal concert in the Y. M. C. A. last evening. Friedenthal's piano playing and Dr. O. E. Wall's work on the violin were most excellent.

Miss Castle will appear in the recital Monday evening.

ONLY CALMS AND FOGS

Yachts Can't Get Enough Wind to Warrant a Start.

Will Try Each Day Until a Race Is Pulled Off—No Loss of Confidence in Columbia's Capacity.

New York, Oct. 10.—Hard luck continues to pursue the big single-stickers. On the three days of last week when the yachts made attempts to sail, the light wind left them stranded on the course when the time limit expired.

To-day the fog bank prevented them from leaving their moorings inside the slip of land which forms Sandy Hook, at the entrance of the lower bay. This was by far the most discouraging of all.

Sir Thomas Lipton and Mr. Iselin had agreed at nine o'clock not to sail unless the fog lifted. There was considerable wind, but the big sailing boats lay idle all day at their moorings.

The next attempt will be made on Thurday, and daily thereafter until the series is completed.

On board the Erin the Englishmen were in the dumps. A fluke or two they could stand, but such beastly luck crushed them completely. Some of them have engaged passage on the Oceanic, which will sail tomorrow. They are going home without seeing a race. Sir Thomas, disappointed as he was, maintained an outward show of good humor.

New York, Oct. 12.—A blanket of fog over the course and an utter absence of wind caused the fifth successive failure when another attempt was made to sail the first race of the Shamrock Columbia contest for the international trophy. The yachts will try again tomorrow.

New York, Oct. 13.—The winds asleep in their caverns and a covering of white fog drawn over the bosom of the droway ocean to day lengthened the unprecedent record of flukes in the cup contest to six. As on Tuesday, the yachts did not leave their anchorage inside Sandy Hook. It was useless to make another attempt in such weather.

New York, Oct.14.—At the sun rise the sky was overcast, a light haze rested over the upper bay and a light breeze was blowing from the eastward with a tendency to work southward. On the whole the prospects for a race between the Columbia and the Shamrock for the America's cup were brighter than at any time during the week, but it will require a decisive race under favorable conditions to re-awaken the interest in the present contest for the coveted America's cup. Both boats arrived at the lightship at about 10 o'clock, the Shamrock in the lead. With the racers was a committee boat and behind them several miles astern steamed the Erin.

Twelve o'clock came without any improvement in conditions, although the shore stations sent word that a breeze was blowing about six knots an hour along the coast At 12:04 o'clock, Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan went aboard the judges' boat in his launch. He said to the judges:

"You had better let the boats get back."

The signal indicating that the next race would be on Monday was then run up.

More Sugar Beet Land.

Stockton, Oct. 11—A big deal in land for the purpose of raising sugad beets has been closed, and next spring the California Beet Sugar Company will plant some 2600 acres of the Naglee-Burke land on one of the islands to beets. Some idea of the size of the deal may be obtained from the statement that the annual rental of the land will amount to more than $18,000.

DEATH OF REV. LANE

The Rev. J. F. Lane of the Episcopal Clergy of Honolulu, died at Queen's hospital this morning at 3 o'clock from blood poisoning.

Rev. J. F. Lane was born in Halifax, Yorkshire, England, 26 years ago. He leaves in his home town a father, mother and several brothers and sisters.

It was about two years ago that Mr. Lane arrived here and went immediately to Iolani College as master.

He was ordained deacon in the Episcopal Church here and was later on ordained priest, the full order of the Church.

Outside of his school work at Iolani Mr. Lane for the past two or three months did mission work in Kalihi.

Mr. Lane was perfectly well last Saturday and was on the cricket grounds playing with the boys. He was taken down with blood poisoning from a malignant pimple on the cheek last Wednesday and sent to the hospital where he died this morning.

The body was removed to St. Andrew's Cathedral at 11 o'clock this morning, the Bishop and the Clergy carrying it to the chancel.

The funeral will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the Cathedral. The services will be conducted by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Willis, assisted by Rev. V. H. Kitcat. The surpliced choir will sing "On Resurrection Morn" and "Thine Forever" at the church.

The members of the Iolani College and the Honolulu Cricket Club will attend in a body. The latter organization will place a beautiful wreath on the coffin.

Stricken With Typhoid Fever.

Mrs. H. G. Purinton (nee Helen Wo.thington) wife of one of the American officers now in the Philippines arrived in the America Maru yesterday afternoon. When two days out from San Francisco she was taken with typhoid fever and, upon arrival here, she was removed to the Queen's hospital in the ambulance Her case is not a very bad one but is sufficient to make a continuance of her journey to the Philippines impossible just now. Mrs. Purinton comes from the same place as Assistant Deputy Attorney General Webber and was a schoolmate of Miss Rhoda Green.

Filipino Treachery

Manila, Oct. 13. Lieutenant Sandago of the native police has been arrested and lodged in jail, his subordinate having reported to the authorities that he was endeavoring to enlist them in a plot to turn the police against the Americans in the event of an uprising.

20th Kansas Home.

San Francisco, Oct. 11—The Twentieth Kansas Regiment and the 400 discharged soldiers, who arrived here last night on the transport Tartar, were landed today, after being anchored in the stream all morning.

Ottawa, Ontario, October 13. — At a meeting of the Cabinet today a decision was reached to send 1000 Canadian soldiers to South Africa as Canada's contribution to the British force now fighting the Boers. This is double the number of troops asked for by the Imperial Government.

In the Police Court this forenoon, Henry Vida, charged with selling liquor without a license, was discharged, the prosecution admitting there was no evidence to convict.

In the "Two Orphans" at the Opera House this evening Mr. Lansdale will sing "Calvary" in the church scene and every lover of a baritone voice should be there to enjoy this young English artist.

TO MAKE TAMASESE KING

Samoan Natives Not Inclined to Accept Rule of Consuls.

German Correspondents Intimate That a New Zealander Is Stirring up Trouble—Disrespect to Osborn.

Chicago, October 14.—A special cable to the Chicago Tribune from Berlin says: News comes from Apia that the natives have proclaimed Tamasese as King despite the recent agreement of the United States, Germany and Great Britain to abolish that office.

The Cologne Gazette's Apia correspondent sends a long indictment of the Consular Government. He says the natives do not conceal their disrespect for the representatives of the treaty powers, relating a singular incident as an illustration. Tamasese invited the officials and the leading white citizens of Apia to a wedding feast. All went except Germans.

The American Consul, Mr. Osborne, made a speech, thus giving the affair official recognition. Thereupon Tamasese's followers danced and sang impromptu songs, proclaiming Tamasese as King, announcing the destruction of the opposing natives if they resisted his authority.

When the letter was mailed, September 8th, hundreds of Tamasese's and Tanu's followers were gathered at Apia preparing to swear allegiance before the eyes of the foreign Consuls by presenting gifts and attesting homage. The letter says a New Zealand lawyer named Gurr is managing the affair.

Australia's South Trip.

San Francisco, Oct. 11.—The steamer Australia arrived from Honolulu yesterday after a stormy voyage. The last two days she shipped sea after sea, and the decks were awash all the time. Captain Houdlette stated that it was the roughest October weather he ever struck. The steamer came into port with very little coal in her bunkers. There is a coal famine at Honolulu, and the steamer's officers found great difficulty in getting fuel.

In Social Circles.

Outside of a few dinners, there was nothing much doing in society circles this week. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Campbell gave a dinner to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilder Thursday. On Monday next Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Wilder will give a dinner to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilder. On Tuesday Miss Widdifield will give a luncheon.

McKinley in South Dakota.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 14.—At 8 o'clock this morning, President McKinley's special arrived in this city over the Milwaukee line. At the depot a large crowd gathered to see the first president of the United States who has ever visited the Dakotas since statehood.

Marconi and Hawaii.

New York, October 12. — Signor Marconi has completed the usual perfect arrangements for sending bulletins of today's yacht race to The Call and Herald.

Signor Marconi tonight received a telegram from San Francisco to the effect that Mr. Cross of Honolulu is now on his way to New York to consult with Marconi relative to the establishing of a system of inter-island wireless telegraphy for Hawaii. Instruments for experimental stations on the different islands have already been ordered, and will be in Honolulu by the first of November. Mr. Cross has urged Marconi to make a trip to Honolulu, and it is not unlikely that he will go.

London, October 12.—The Linotype Company, London, cabled to its Chairman, Joseph Lawrence, who is Sir Thomas Lipton's guest on board the Erin for the yacht races, asking him to ascertain how far Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy has proved successful in reporting the yacht races. The following reply was received:

"After full investigation I am satisfied that wireless telegraphy has been fully successful in the present instance and promises to be of utmost utility in future for newspapers. JOSEPH LAWRENCE."

BISHOP POTTER COMING TO HONOLULU

New York, October 5.—Bishop Henry C. Potter is going to the Philippines. This was learned positively last night, although the Bishop himself is reticent as to plans, and refused to admit anything more than that he was going to Honolulu. He will, however, visit the Philippines as well, and has allotted three or four months for his trip. He will probably start today or tomorrow for the West.

Rev. Percey Stickney Grant will accompany the Bishop on his tour. He will not leave until early next week, and will join the Bishop in San Francisco, whence they will sail on the steamer Gaelic for Honolulu either on October 22d or 23d.

Boxing a Valuable Exercise.

The value of boxing as an exercise is fully recognised by the schools and colleges of today, nor is it's use confined to the younger generation. Hard headed commercial men and statesmen appreciate the art. Conklin and Roosevelt today are its devotees. Aside from the value of personal defense, boxing exercises every muscle in the body, produces a cool self-confidence, destroys dyspepsia and proves a healthy relaxation to the tired brain. The Oceanic Athletic Club should be welcomed and its exhibition of the "manly art" held next Friday between Denny and Armstrong patronized by all as a practical lecture on physical culture.

SALICYLIC ACID.

Salicylic acid is an organic acid. It has powerful antiseptic qualities, prevents the souring of beer, also the development of bacteria contained in fluids. Applied externally it will remove corns and warts. TAKEN INWARDLY salicylic acid rapidly lowers the bodily temperature, reduces the pulse rate, blood pressure, and rapidity of respiration; some people being peculiarly susceptible to its action.

The Board of Health has condemned all beers containing salicylic acid. Among those proved to be free from this adulterant was the OLYMPIA BEER, sold by Larry Dee of the Hoffman Saloon.

Real Merit

Is the characteristic of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is manifested every day in the remarkable cures this medicine accomplishes. Druggists say: When we sell a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla to a new customer we are sure to see him back in a few weeks after more—proving that the good results from a trial bottle warrant continuing its use. This positive merit possesses by virtue of the Peculiar Combination, Proportion and Process used in its preparation, and by which all the remedial value of the ingredients used is retained. Hood's Sarsaparilla is thus Peculiar to Itself and absolutely unequalled in its powers as a blood purifier, and as a tonic for building up the weak and weary, and giving strength to the nerves. Be sure to get

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The lots will be sold at the lowest prices in the market, with which other real estate agents will not afford to compete.

BRIG GENEVA'S $5000 FINE

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 9.—By supposing that Honolulu was a full-fledged American port, Capt. Aas of the brig Geneva has incurred a fine of $5000 for his vessel and an expense of $300 for towing his vessel 200 miles, together with incidental costs. The Honolulu authorities gave the brig a clear bill of health. Seeing the American flag flying from the custom house, his vessel having been examined and certified to by American officials, Capt. Aas naturally concluded he was clearing from one American port to another, and that his next encounter with quarantine or customs officials would be at Tacoma. He accordingly sailed past the quarantine station at Port Townsend, favorable wind bringing thim nearly to Tacoma before a tug was needed.

Last night the tug Boyden, from Port Townsend, appeared and notified Capt. Aas that he had violated the quarantine laws and must return to Port Townsend. With many anathemas and forceful inquiries of the official as to "how a skipper was to know where he was at" in these days of annexation, the Geneva's captain hoisted anchor and returned to Townsend in tow. As usual, an attempt will be made to have the government remit the fine.

Declared to Be High Treason.

Earthquake Spreads Death.

Amsterdam, Oct 12.—A dispatch to the Mandelsblad from Batavia, capital of the Netherlands Indies, Java says that a violent earthquake has visited the south side of the island of Ceran, next to the largest of the Voluucas, between Booroo and Papui, completely destroying the town of Ambei and killing instantly some 4000 people, as well as injuring some 500 others.

Lawsuit Dismissed.

San Francisco, October 6.—The half-milion dollar lawsuit recently begun by the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company against the Maui Island Railroad Company, Rudolph Spreckels and C.C. Spreckels has been dismissed by stipulation, a settlement of the dispute having been reached.

Ship Charles Moody Reinsured.

San Francisco, Oct. 13.—The American ship Charles Moody, owned by Lewis, Anderson & Co. of this city, is quoted as overdue at Honolulu from Norfolk, Va., with coal for the Government naval station at the Islands. The Moody is quoted locally at 45 per cent and is 178 days out, many weeks more time than is usually required to make the voyage.

Purchased for $40,000,000.

London, October 10.—It is reported that at the coming session of Parliament the formal announcement will be made of the cession of Delagoa Bay, and the surrounding territory in Portuguese East Africa, to Great Britain. The price is said to be $40,000,000.

Daisy Leiter Engaged.

Calcutta, Oct. 8.—The engagement of Miss Daisy Leiter, youngest sister of Lady Curzon, to Major Colin Campbell of the Second Central India Horse, has been announced.

SATURDAY, OCT. 21, 1899.

As failures the international yacht races are becoming highly successful.

Boston's anti-imperial sentiments were expressed in the greeting to Admiral Dewey, it is apparent Atkinson is one of those prophets without honor in his own bailiwick.

Hilo contemplates sending a representative, possibly two, to Washington. The more business representatives this territory can have before Congress, the better. A delegation from Honolulu ought to be selected before Congress meets.

Germany is playing the game in Samoa, by making the best of the opportunities offered while Great Britain and the United States have more important troubles on their hands. Another outbreak among the natives will not be among unexpected events.

It will be unfortunate if the Hawaiian Executives personal agent and unofficial delegate does not meet the President during the western tour and tell him just how he volunteered to assist the United States in establishing its power in the Pacific in time of war.

WAR IN THE TRANSVAAL.

After years of friction, failures to reach satisfactory conclusions, temporary concessions and occasional civil strife, the Transvaal question has reached the court of last resort, the arbitrament of arms. With hard headed men confident of justice of their claims on either side of the controversy this appeal has been considered inevitable, it being merely a question of time when the breaking point in relations with Great Britain should be reached.

The question at issue is clear cut. Great Britain demands recognition of its paramount power in South Africa. This is disputed by the Boers, who maintain the right to conduct their own affairs in their own way. It is the British Uitlanders against the Dutch farmer and the probable result will be the rule or ruin of the Boer by the British.

The British have no small task on their hands. The Boers are a hardy people, reared on the plains and possessing much the same character as the pioneers of the American west. They know how to fight and natured in a life that is a constant struggle for existence, the hardships of warfare will not fall as heavily upon them as the British forces.

If the two contending nations are left to themselves there cannot be a question as to the outcome. A united nation stands behind the British Government; there is no dissension like that which offered no small assistance to the American colonists in their fight for independence. The only ray of hope for the Boers is the possibility of European nations taking the opportunity to interfere. Should this interference take active shape, the long predicted European war would be at our doors. The sentiment of the continent is strongly in favor of the Boers, not for love of them or the principle they fight for, but because of hatred for British power.

The United States has found occasion to reciprocate the friendly neutrality of Great Britain at an early day, thus satisfying an obligation and making more apparent that in future years Europe must reckon with the English speaking brotherhood.

AMERICANS PROTECT BRITISH.

London, Oct. 12—The Colonial Office announces officially that Mr. MacCrum, the United States Consul in Pretoria, with the consent of his Government, has taken charge of British interests in the Transvaal.

London, Oct. 12—The afternoon papers express great satisfaction that the American Government has undertaken to protect British interests in the Transvaal They say that the Americans are certain to show the same tact in discharging the responsibility which aroused the enthusiasm of "our kin beyond the sea," when the British undertook a similar task in their behalf.

PELE IS RESTIVE.

P. Maurice McMahon, writing from the Volcano House, near the crator of Kilauea, October 16, says: "Madam Pele is waking from her restive slumbers, for she's puffing away at her pipe vigorously, though the brand of tobacco she uses is not a very sweet one. * * I began this note in ink, but the cold drove me from the reading room into the parlor, where a couple of logs are hissing in an open grate.

"He Mistakes the Effect for the Cause"

That is what the person does who tries to cure rheumatism or any other disease by relieving the symptoms. Hood's Sarsaparilla attacks the cause of these diseases. It neutralize the acid in the blood and thus permanently cures rheumatism. It tones and strengthens the stomach, restores its natural digesting fluids and permanently cures dyspepsia.

Hood's Pills cure constipation. Price 25 cents.

MUST HAVE CUBAN SUGAR

Havana, Oct. 12.—The Patria says today: "There is no need to fear that the United States can get all the sugar needed by the Americans from the American sugar island. The most that Porto Rico can produce is 100,000 tons. Hawaii could not produce 450,000 tons. The Philippines are as yet unconquered, and moreover, they are twenty-five days distant. Hawaii, counting the freight by sea to San Francisco and the railroad freight to the Eastern coast, could not compete in the Eastern States with Cuban sugar, which takes only five days to reach New York.

"The annual consumption of sugar in the United States is not less than 2,000,000 tons, and it is steadily increasing. If we take away the 550,000 tons supplied by Hawaii and Porto Rico there is a balance of about 1,500,000 tons to be obtained from Louisiana and the Philippines. Louisiana supplies only 250,000 tons, which she will not be able to increase on account of the lowering in prices caused by allowing Hawaiian and the Philippine sugar to enter the United States. The Americans, therefore, will be compelled to apply to Cuba

The exhibition is given under the auspices of the Oceanic Athletic Club and with the sanction of the local authorities. The event will be a refined and scientific test of strength agility and endurance. A couple of preliminary bouts will be given by lesser lights while several vaudeville artists will do a turn. Purser Beckley of the Kinau reports six inches of rain at Pauhau during the last week and ten inches at both Honokaa and Kukuihaele.

President Dole was among the arrivals in the Kinau today having been summoned from Hawaii to attend the funeral of the late Captain J. A. King.

Alexander Young and family, C. Von Hamm and wife and F. S. Nichols of Wall, Nichols Co., Ltd., are some of those booked to arrive here per S. S. Australia, Oct. 25.

Among the arrivals in today's Kinau from Hilo and way ports were R. H. Pratt and wife, J. E. Bush, J. A. Scott, Paul Jarrett, E. J. McFadden, R. H. Baker and E. P. Walsh.

A social by the employs of the Honolulu Iron Works in honor of the completion of E C. Roe's 22d year with that company will be given at the home of Mr. Roe, this evening.

The concert last evening was a very watery affair. Just about eight o'clock a most copious downpour of rain put an end to the music and a very wet crowd wended its way homeward.

When the America Maru left San Francisco, over one hundred persons were booked for Honolulu by the Australia, to have left the Coast on the 18th instant and due to arrive here on the 25th.

T. G. Ballentyne, H. L. Herbert and W. Horace Wright have been appointed by the Honolulu Cricket Club a committee to arranged a Cricket Club smoker the date and place for such entertainment to be announced later.

Finke & Co., floriste, Fort street, opposite the Catholic church, have quite a rush of orders in hand for funeral decorations. A number of chaste designs in cross, wreaths, etc., may be seen in the firm's window.

There was a surprise party tendered Mr. and Mrs. W. E Sharp by about twenty-five of their friends at the Vida Villa last evening. The evening passed very enjoyably. Singing and dancing were engaged in and a tasty supper under the supervision of Mr. Keo was appreciated by all.

The Ministerial Union will hold the next meeting on Monday morning, Oct. 23, at 10 o'clock. Forty minutes will be devoted to personal recollections of the late Dr. C. M. Hyde, at which service all members will have opportunity to participate. This will be followed by a paper on "The Revelation of St. John" by Rev. B. L. Hawe.

"And what a wealth of enjoyment did the first detachment of America's army of invasion derive from this day at Honolulu." From On To Manila.

CUCUMBER PICKLES.

Two Recipes From an Excellent Household Authority.

To fulfill its mission as a tempting relish a pickle should be not too large, but firm, crisp and well flavored. For the realization of this condition the cucumbers must be well selected and a good formula for their preparation carefully followed out. In Table Talk, Cornelia C. Bedford gives two pickling recipes. The first is for "sweet pickled green cucumbers," as follows:

For one-half of a bushel of small cucumbers allow one-half of a pound of white mustard seed, one-half of a pound of black mustard seed, one-half of an ounce of whole allspice, one-half of an ounce of peppercorns, one-half of an ounce of mace, one ounce of freshly grated horse radish, one-half of an ounce of celery seed, one-half of an ounce of stick cinnamon, one dozen red peppers and one-half of a pint of white button onions. Pour boiling water over the cucumbers and let them stand until cold, then drain. Sprinkle them with salt, one-half of a pint to each 100 cucumbers, and again cover with boiling water. Let stand in this brine for 24 hours, drain and cover with fresh, cold brine of the same strength. Drain daily for six days and cover with fresh brine. On the seventh day drain and wash in fresh water, cover with weak vinegar, heat slowly and keep at a very slow simmer for five or six hours until the cucumbers look plump. Drain them, wipe dry and pack in jars, adding to them the mixed spices. Cover with boiling hot cider vinegar, to which is added for each quart one-half a pound of [illegible] sugar.

Recipe No. 2 reads thus: Select the smallest cucumbers possible. To each 100 allow one ounce of whole cloves, one ounce of white mustard seed, one large tablespoonful of salt, one cupful of sugar and two small red peppers. Put the spices in thin muslin bags, lay them in a [illegible] with the washed cucumbers and add sufficient vinegar to cover. Heat slowly to the scalding point. Skim from the fire and bottle. Examine them every week or ten days after they are first put up to make sure that they remain firm and solid. If soft soften, remove them and drain the vinegar from the remainder. Add one-half of a cupful of sugar to each 200 pickles, scald the vinegar and pour it boiling hot over the pickles.

Summer Curtains and Awnings.

Thin white curtains in a window always suggest daintiness and refinement, but where the sun shines strong they make too glaring an effect inside. For this reason, says Harper's Bazar, the softer, sheerer muslins, those with less reflective surface, are to be preferred. Yellows and pinks in soft shades and sheer materials are in use. When the eye of the neighbor has to be considered, a pretty fashion is to have a thin curtain next the window, this curtain to be drawn back or looped or so arranged as to look well from the street, a sheer transparent color being hung straight, inside, next the room. No one from outside can see through, and those inside can see out without being deprived of any light. Heavy curtains are used inside of these when required and are generally of silk or chintz in a bedroom, of silk, tapestry or rich stuff in a drawing room or library. In summer, when awnings are used, these thick curtains are taken down. Green or white awnings, by the way, should be used instead of the blue or the red and white.

Expressed In His Own Way.

A certain Sunday school teacher who has a class of boys of "assorted sizes" established the custom in her class of repeating each Sunday a Scripture passage in unison until it was firmly implanted in the "vagrant minds." The selection for the Sunday in question was "'Tis I, be not afraid," and after the usual mental gymnastics had been gone through, after an expectant hush, one promising youth volunteered the information that he knew. "Well, what is it?" asked the teacher. "It's me; don't get skeered," was his rendition of the verse

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

Are you in search of anything?
Have you lost anything?
Have you found anything?
Do you WANT anything?
} Advt. in WANTS.

Housekeepers, we can fill your rooms; losers of property, we can find it; owners of articles desiring to exchange them, we can do it.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

Valuable Suggestions For Avoiding Heat Prostration.

First of all, keep the brain cool. Wear the lightest possible covering on the head. The cork helmets, such as are worn in tropical climates, are the best summer headgear. These may be made to keep the wearer still cooler by placing in them a moist sponge, which, indeed, may also be attached to the interior of any style of hat. Do not worry.

When you rise from bed on hot summer mornings, take a cold bath. Now there are few simple things in life that are less understood than the fine art—for it is a fine art—of bathing. Most people spend from half an hour to an hour every time they bathe. That is not the kind of bathing I mean. The cold bath in the morning should consist merely of one plunge into cold water.

Avoid as far as possible the heat of cooking. Cook no more than you can help, and if possible let what little cooking you do be done in the open air.

Take no alcoholic drinks or other stimulants of any kind. Injurious as alcoholic stimulants are at all times, except in certain diseased conditions of the system, when ordered by a thoroughly competent and conscientious physician, they are more than usually deleterious in hot weather. Nevertheless that is the very time of year when the consumption of them is greatest. To quench the intense thirst which is an inseparable accompaniment of a high temperature many persons have recourse to beer and other alcoholic drinks. There could be no greater mistake. There is only one fluid that will quench thirst, and that fluid is water. Every other known liquid tends to increase thirst rather than to assuage it. Still the devotees of King Alcohol continue to pour his fiery potations down their already parched throats in hot weather. That is the surest possible way not to keep cool and to predispose yourself to a heat stroke or sunstroke.

Sponging the entire surface of the body with tepid water, to which a little bay rum or alcohol has been added, is very cooling and may be practiced frequently during the day, alcohol, when applied externally, being quite as beneficial as it is injurious when absorbed into the circulation through the medium of the stomach.

No two people should sleep together in hot weather. Every individual should have a bed to himself or herself.

Though drinking iced water tends to lower the temperature of the body, yet if we drink it at all we are apt to be tempted to an immoderate use of it, which is to be decidedly reprehended. It so lowers the temperature of the stomach as to temporarily check digestion, and its effects are injurious in other ways.

How to Keep the Hair In Curl.

Take the root of althaea boiled in water, one-eighth pound to a gallon, and thin to suit, and apply to the hair to keep it in curl, at the seaside or anywhere else. After applying put the hair in the desired position and allow it to dry. If too much shows on the hair, brush it out or off. The curl will remain.

How to Iron Linen.

Wash the linen carefully and thoroughly; then let it hang in the sun just long enough to iron nicely without being forced to sprinkle it. When the wrinkles have once dried in the linen, it is very difficult to remove all of them with the iron. Next have a very hot iron, not hot enough to scorch, but sufficient to dry the linen rapidly when passed over it. It must be ironed until perfectly dry; otherwise the luster and brilliancy that are so attractive will not be obtained. Upon good linen starch should be avoided just as much as upon silk fabrics. Starch may give "body" to some cheap thin grades of linen, but it is entirely out of place on good linen.

The Last Car.

The last cars of the King street line going to Waikiki and Palama pass the Anchor Saloon. The cleverest mixologists in the city are there always to put you up anything you may desire. Drop in and take a drop before you take the car. The celebrated Seattle beer is to be had here on draught. A full line of liquors including the famous A. A. Jesse Moore Whisky etc., always on hand. Received per Warrimoo, Rainier Bock Beer on draught. The Anchor Saloon is here to please its patrons.

Seattle Beer.

This ever popular Rainier beer is becoming a household word and "will you have a glass of Seattle" is more often heard than anything else. The Criterion Saloon have the beer on tap or in bottles.

It would not sound proper to say, "Like Kelley does," neither would it be proper to look for pictures in a blacksmith shop, when you have a store like King Bros.' to go to. They make a specialty of pictures, and the framing of pictures.

Chemist Schneider Bunkoed.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—William Schneider, a chemist from Honolulu, is a weary of the American game of stud-horse poker. He landed in this city on Tuesday, and yesterday morning fell in with four men who were d sirous that he meet a mythical Meyers from Honolulu. Schneider went to 123 Powell street, lost $15, and then gathered together $100 more, which he also lost. He objected and was given $10 and advised "not to be a fool and make a roar."

Despite the advice, Schneider made a roar, and Harry Walton, Harry Robert, alias Martin, Charles Crawford and James West were arrested by Police Officers Geiman and Feld and booked at the City Prison on charges of grand larceny. Crawford is well known to the police.

The Uncle John Ashore.

Victoria, Oct. 10.—The Barkentine Uncle John, bound from Honolulu to Puget Sound, went ashore on Sunday night on the west shore of Vancouver Island She is a total loss.

The Uncle John left Honolulu on September 18th and made a good passage toward Port Townsend, where she was to receive orders. She was driven ashore during the gale of Sunday night. The officers and men escaped by taking to the boats.

There has recently been discovered a process of printing ordinary photos in gold and silver by which the most beautiful effects are produced. Mr. W, Y. Itow while in Japan, expended considerable time and money in learning the process, with the result that he is now able to give to the people of the Islands the benefit of his study. Wax For Floors.

The best wax for hard wood floors is a preparation of turpentine and beeswax, properly melted together. The chief mistake that amateurs make is to apply this wax too generously. An expert in this matter says that a pound of wax ought to cover 300 feet of surface. After the wax is applied and rubbed in with a weighted brush it should be allowed to stand for awhile and a second coat applied before the floor is used.

How to Cook Spinach and Sardines.

Cook your spinach, boiling a small onion with the leaves. Strain when done and chop it fine. Skin and bone a dozen sardines, mince them fine and stir into the spinach. Mix a dessertspoon of butter and the same of flour to a paste and dilute it with a cup of broth. Stir it to a thick sauce, then mix in the spinach and sardines. Garnish with white of egg chopped fine and a mass of fine crumbled egg in the center.

Already the tide of the eel skin skirts is turning, and a refreshing fullness appears on many of the leading Parisian models. Many bear witness to actual fulling at the back. Some have little tucks about 3 inches in length in the center of the back, from which the skirt sets out in graceful folds. Having assisted joyfully at the birth of the tight skirt, the Parisians are now prepared to do equal honor to its obsequies. Soft black flowing skirts, with blouses, are extremely fashionable.

On To Manila devotes an interesting chapter to the reception of American troops in Honolulu.

THE BULLETIN can satisfy all your WANTS. It has established a WANT COLUMN.....

Pretty Lively Eating.

When one grows weary of the eternal ices, blancmanges, charlottes and puddings served to us year in and year out for dessert, it is pleasant to hear of an innovation. A traveled American remarked that she once had the felicity of sitting down to a Japanese dinner at which were served such dainties as melons, ices, fruits and sea frogs. There was in addition to these sweets a covered dish, into which, at the beginning of the dinner, a bottle of wine had been poured.

When the sea frogs and other dainties had been discussed, the cover of this dish was removed, and a number of sandhoppers, hilariously intoxicated and jumping about in the wildest manner, were presented to the gaze of the astonished American guests. The lively dessert, so the fair traveler says, was caught by the Japanese with little bamboo sticks and eaten with great gusto.

Chinese Torture.

The ingenuity of the Chinese in devising punishment for offenders surpasses that of the most cruel people of the middle ages. Some time ago a boy was kidnaped from a village about 30 miles from Chin-Kiang and brought to that city to be sold. The kidnapers were arrested and returned to the village, where the people dug a hole in the ground, like a grave, about three feet deep, covered the bottom and sides with unslaked lime, placed the offender, with his hands and feet tied, upon the lime and covered his body with the same material. Then they filled the hole full of water and as the lime slacked he was roasted alive and his body consumed.

The New Way.

The cannibal chief stood with his hand shading his eyes. A solitary figure was timidly creeping toward him from the jungle. Suddenly the old chief started. He took a quick step forward. "It is," he cried, "it is my son! He is coming home again!" Then with his eyes still fixed on the slouching figure he shrilly called to his head hunter: "Mbongwa, the prodigal is returning! Kill the fatted Kaffir!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"BEST" CLEANING MIXTURE.

How to Make Fluid That Restores Cloth to Its Pristine Color and Freshness.

"Best" is the name given to a cleaning fluid that should be in the possession of every housewife, be she wife and mother or only aunt or housekeeper. The proportions are:

Four ounces alcohol, four ounces ether, eight ounces ammonia.

Let your druggist mix this for you and never take it near a fire. Next take a half pound of best castile soap, cut up, add a pint of hot water and dissolve. Then add a gallon of water and boil. Put into a demijohn with a very tight cork and add when cold a pint of the "Best" mixture. Shake them together and you have the most efficacious cleaning fluid that can be mixed. It removes grease, stains (except when the color is already destroyed) and it softens the goods.

Fill a washtub with warm water about four inches deep (not hot water), add to that about a teacupful of your "Best" mixture and then throw in your cloth, four or five breadths, and wash by squeezing the water through the fabric; do not rub. The suds will be very thick and the more the cleaning water is forced through the meshes of the goods the better.

From this tub take each piece and rinse in clear water of the same temperature as that at first used. This keeps the material from becoming harsh. Rinse until the water is not discolored, and then, if the goods be black, throw into a pan of blue water so dark that it is nearly black itself. Take out, fold in regular way and put through a wringer; do not twist. Then hang in the shade, but in the open air, if possible, to dry.

Next comes the pressing. If the material is black, it should be ironed upon a black ironing sheet always; if white is used, all your trouble is for nothing, as the lint will enter into it and never come entirely out.

In all cases where cloth is used the pieces before marked in pairs should be laid right to right side and pressed together slowly with heavy irons not hot enough to leave any mark either of yellow or of the shape of the iron upon the ironing sheet. A very hot iron kills the life of a wool material and also destroys the new nap effect that is produced by ironing two pieces face to face, as before suggested. The pressing of the cloth is as important as any part of the work. Do the ironing upon a broad table top, so that the pieces need not be ironed until finished, and then lay them, still together, somewhere where they may lie smooth until absolutely stone dry.

As for the lining, wash it in the water used for the stuff and press. If the material washed is of a light color, it is best to do only one piece at a time and not allow it to soak. The washing water must be changed as soon as discolored so that for economy very little water should be put in the tub at a time. Remember that the whole fiber of a fabric is dyed by the water in which it is washed or rinsed, and if light gray is to be washed, or white, the water must be absolutely pure. A little of the mixture on a sponge will clean spots from coat or waist.

Electric Railway Up Mont Blanc.

The successful application of electricity to so many mountain railways in Switzerland has lately given rise to the discussion of an electric road to the summit of Mont Blanc. The plan provides for a tunnel to enter the mountain just below a ridge that extends along the side of the mountain, avoiding in this way the glaciers which do not pass over the ridge. The total length of the line will be about six miles, and it will run to a point about 800 feet below the actual summit, which consists of a mass of ice. The lower end will be constructed first, and it is the intention to have the workmen live in the tunnel and gradually become accustomed to working at the higher levels. Power to operate the railway will be furnished by a waterfall in the vicinity, and, as is the case with the most recent Swiss mountain railways, it will be of the rack and pinion type electrically driven. The cost of the project is estimated at about $2,000,000.—Boston Transcript.

Manila Hemp.

It is worth noting in regard to the famous hemp produced exclusively in the Philippines that the plant yields, in fact, two qualities, with important industrial or commercial adaptations in each case. From the best, or fibrous outer leaf, comes the coarse, strong fiber, which is the best material used for sailcloths and cordage, it being particularly recommended by the fact that it is not easily rotted by salt water. The fiber yielded by the inner stalks is fine and weak, and from it are woven textile fabrics superior in softness and lightness to those made of the best Russian hemp, these fabrics, however, being seldom exported, as they are bought by Chinese merchants at Manila for local consumption. It is found that, under the best conditions, the Manila hemp produces the very large quantity of 3,000 pounds of fiber to the acre, and, though between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 bales have been exported in the last ten years, the industry is admitted to be still in its infancy.—New York Sun.

OCEAN CURRENTS.

Casks to Be Set Afloat In the Arctic Ocean.

Our government, at the suggestion of the Geographical society of Philadelphia and with the co-operation of the whaling fleet, will make experiments this year with a view to determining the currents in the Arctic ocean north of America. Fifty casks designed for the purpose, says the New York Sun, are being sent up to Bering strait to be set afloat by the whalers in various parts of the Arctic ocean. Each of these casks will contain a record of the time when and place where it is thrown overboard, and it is hoped later that a considerable number of them may be picked up by other vessels, and thus it will be learned in what directions they are carried by the currents.

It is not likely that any of these casks will be carried clear across from Bering strait to the Atlantic ocean, for the intricate channels among the islands and the ice masses would probably prevent such a drift. But it is probable that the prevailing current across the American Arctic ocean is from west to east. Pretty good proof of this fact was furnished by an abandoned ship of one of the Franklin search expeditions, which drifted from the central regions north of this continent east to Greenland waters and south into the Atlantic. The currents, however, of the western part of this Arctic domain are little understood, and perhaps the floating casks will throw more light upon them.

Of course it was known long ago that the northwest passage for which mariners had sought for centuries really exists. Sir John Franklin, on the expedition that cost the life of every man in his party, nearly completed the passage, for, advancing from the east, he came within 90 miles of the point reached by vessels from Bering sea and in 1850 McClure, who entered the Arctic ocean through Bering strait was able to advance from the west till he reached the northeast extremity of Banks Land and overlooked the waterways that Parry, advancing from the east, had navigated in 1819. It was thus conclusively shown that there is continuous water communication throughout the sea north of America, and McClure received from the British parliament the sum of $50,000, which it had voted to give to the discoverer of the northwest passage.

Cycle Factories as Arsenals.

The United States navy department is laying in extensive new stocks of naval ordnance, and the bids which are being opened from day to day show that one of the effects of the recent war has been to build up a large number of small factories capable of producing war supplies. Factories heretofore engaged in making bicycles, rivets, castings and tubings learned while the war was in progress that the making of war material was profitable employment. By slightly adding to their plants they are able to make shells, projectiles, etc., and they are now among the regular bidders for supplies of naval ordnance. A cycle company, a rivet and screw company and several tubing factories were among those whose bids for several thousand shrapnel and shell, from 4 inch to 12 inch were opened by the navy department recently. The result of this general competition is to considerably reduce the prices of war supplies and at the same time to give the government the benefit of very extensive facilities in time of emergency.—Denver Republican.

Patent Hat Cooler.

One can wear a silk hat and keep the head cool, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, by adopting the invention of a London hatter. This invention consists of a silk hat lined with felt or flannel. About half way down the hat is a gauze netting which opens like a door. With each hat is provided a mass of textured vegetable fiber. This is kept for an hour or so in a refrigerator, where it has the peculiar property of absorbing cold. Then it is placed in the prepared cell in the hat. The result is that the head of the wearer remains cool for hours.

Derided.

An Austin colored waiter told a Boston man at a hotel that in early times a white man had married a negro woman.

"Was he not derided?" asked the Bostonian in the classic speech of the Hub of Culture.

"He was, sah," beamed the negro; "they rided him out ob town on a rail."—Household Words

SUBSTITUTION.

Matthew Elder, editor of The Inner Circle, had gone out for half an hour to synchronize his watch, and his assistant, J. Graham Champnies, reigned temporarily in his stead.

A clerk had just laid on Champnies' desk the form which a visitor had filled up:

"Name—Miss Cynthia Page. To See—The Editor. Business—Private. Date—3.5.99."

"Well, I'll see her," said Champnies. He had seen the name of Cynthia Page in good magazines appended to curious and interesting stories.

He was not ill pleased when the clerk showed her in to find that she had youth and beauty on pale and mystical lines. J. Graham Champnies found himself hoping that Matthew Elder, after synchronizing his watch, would find it necessary to go and see a man about a dog—or, at any rate, would delay his return.

"I am speaking to the editor?" said Miss Page, a little doubtfully.

"The actual editor, Mr. Elder, is not in at present, but I have full power to act for him."

"I see." She was still in doubt.

"Pray be assured of it. I can make contracts with you, accept stories from you, sign checks for you, so if you have anything to propose"—

"Oh, it's not that! In fact, I came in consequence of a proposition which he had already made to me."

"Well, I shall be very glad to carry on anything that he has begun. As a rule he mentions these things to me, but this time I am in the dark."

She smiled mysteriously. "But you can't be sure that you would wish to carry on what he has begun."

"As Mr. Elder is the supreme authority here, I should have no choice. But even if I had, what you suggest is extremely unlikely."

"Why unlikely? No two men can have minds exactly alike. It's such a funny arrangement you have here."

"It works well enough in practice. We both know the character of our paper and what our public wants. I say that it is unlikely that I should be unwilling to carry on whatever Mr. Elder has begun, for this reason and also because I know and admire your work."

"Oh, do you think it's any good?"

"Of course I do."

"Speaking frankly?"

"Speaking frankly, it's full enough of faults; some of it seems to have run away with you and got all over the place. But it's horribly interesting all the same. You see, it's original."

"Oh, yes," she assented. "I am original. If I were not, I shouldn't be here."

"That sounds cryptic," he said. "Possibly I shall understand it when I know the nature of Mr. Elder's proposal. He wants some stories from you?"

"No, no."

"Then what is it?"

"Do you know that I am afraid I can't tell you."

"Very well, then, there's nothing more to be said. Mr. Elder is out at present. You'd better call again. I suppose you think it would make some difference whether Mr. Elder went on with this business or I did?"

"I'm sure it would—the greatest difference."

"You think I shouldn't do as well?"

"Not as well. You'd do better, infinitely better. Oh, I must go." She blushed, arose, goodbyed and faded out of the office.

Ten minutes later Mr. Matthew Elder, middle aged, bald and cheerful, sauntered into the room with his hands in his pockets.

"Well, Bill! Everything all right?"

"No," said Champnies shortly, still irritated by his interview with Cynthia Page. "Quart into a pint pot. Plagued with ads, and Rowse has just sent up that he'll want another half page. We shall have to leave over everything that'll wait and some things that won't."

"Ah, you don't keep a tight enough hand on Rowse."

"Step in and tackle him yourself. Here, this woman called to see you—wouldn't tell me her business."

Matthew Elder took the paper slip and sank down in a chair.

"Bill, this is rather bad. I ought to have been in. What with my unfortunate enthusiasms and my wretched memory, I shall get myself into trouble. I met this girl two or three times a year ago; never gave her another thought till I came on a story by her that was perfectly magnificent—oh, horribly good!—probably the best story that has been written this century. I dashed off a letter to her at once and so worked myself up about it that I said, to show my sincerity, that if she liked I'd marry her, and she could call at the office this morning with her answer. She'd have refused me, of course, as they all do, and perhaps I'm better single; but, none the less, it would have been more civil not to have forgotten the appointment."

"Really," said Champnies, "you must be a little mad."

"Undoubtedly," answered Elder cheerfully. "It's the price one pays for being so excessively intelligent."

Champnies stared blankly at the desk, trying to recall the exact words of his conversation with Cynthia Page.

"Look here, Bill," said Elder, "write and say you want to see her about a story, then when she comes do the explaining for me. Say I was called away by telegram. Say it was from motives of delicacy. Say anything."

The following is from a subsequent issue of "The Tea Cup; a Journal Conducted by Ladies For Ladies:"

"One of the most brilliant of our lady writers, Miss Cynthia Page, is, it is whispered, shortly to be led to the hymeneal altar. The fortunate partner of her future joys and sorrows is Mr. J. Graham Champnies, a young journalist of great promise. Our heartiest felicitations. Speaking of weddings, have you seen the really beautiful designs in pearlettes—indistinguishable from real pearls—now being shown in the windows of—?"—Black and White.

The title of "majesty" was first given to Louis XI of France. Before that time sovereigns were usually styled "highness."

An X Ray Chorus Maiden

A Strange Freak of Nature in the Boston Lyric Chorus.

There is a petite maiden with tropical eyes, a luscious mouth, a winsome way and a rollicking disposition singing in the chorus of the Boston Lyric Opera Company recently discovered, accidently, that she possessed a most remarkable physical phenomanon She has X ray eyes. Her name is Marion Affie Rae.

Outside clothing, underwear, linen, human skin and flesh are as nothing in her sight and the bones of the subject stand out in bold relief, and the interior arrangement of the person upon whom she may be looking is spread before her as though on a chart. Furthermore—the most important of all—Marion Rae's miraculous eyes behold the human anatomy inits true colors, red, white, brown, even to the blue veins. This is impossible with the X ray. Under its use everything appears the same shade.

But this supernormal gift entails its responsibilities. Miss Rae is unable to remain under hypnotic influence longer than ten minutes at a time and when awakened from the trance is at first weak and faint. It is undoubtedly a great strain upon her nervous system and she will not undergo it, except occasionally at the request of physicians and scientific persons and not oftener than once a month.

In a recent experiment performby her with Leslie J. Meacham, one of the most celebrated hypnotists in America, Miss Rae described a peculiar formation on Mr. Meacham's elbow joint, known only to Mr. Meacham and Dr. E. L. Keys of the Cornell medical School and only revealed to them by means of the X ray.

Last June Miss Rae was calling upon the family of Dr. Allen, and Mrs. Allen, the doctor's wife, asked her if she could describe her ailments. Miss Rae thought she could and was hypnotized. She at once described all the symptons of gouty rheumatism, even going so far as to describe the chalky deposits in the joints; she also told of the thickening and inflammation of the right ciatic nerve. The diagnosis according to Dr. Allen, himself, was exactly right.

One of the strongest and at the same time emphatic experiments that Miss Rae ever performed was that of the case of Mrs. Bolton of St. Paul, Minn., during the time the Boston Lyric Opera Company was playing a summer engagement at the Metropolitan theatre there in July. Miss Rae was visited by a prominent physician, associated with St. Luke's hospital in that city, who had become acquainted with Miss Rae's peculiarity through a medical friend of his in Bellone Hospital, New York City.

Mrs. Bolton visited the doctor's office; she had heard of Miss Rae and was anxious to meet her. She was then a fine figure of a woman and apparently in the best of health with the exception of a somewhat troublesome cough. Mrs. Bolton asked Miss Rae if she could tell her what was the matter with her. Miss Rae thought she could, she was hypnotized and examined her.

I can see a big sore on your lungs just where the two are joined together, and around it looks as though it had been bleeding.

That was enough for the patient, she left the office in a hurry, and when she had gone, the doctor told Miss Rae that the lady in question had had two hemorrhages within a week, although she made little of them.

It was but a few week later that Miss Rae received a note from the St. Paul physician saying that Mr. Bolton had just died from hasty consumption.

When recently asked by a committee of physcians who called upon Miss Rae when the Boston Lyric Opera Company was playing an engagement in Minneapolis, as to how things appeared to her when hypnotized. She told them that a pale green light surrounds the object at which she looks emanating from it. This is exactly the same as the effect of the Crooks tube.

When she was recently shown the Fluroscope at the Mechanics Fair in Boston, she threw it down and said: "Pooh! I can see plainer than that with my own eyes."

A Sadly Lost Time.

When last in New York, Carnegie had a little experience with a messenger boy, whose tardiness in delivering a business message came near upsetting a deal of great importance. Referring to this incident while at dinner with friends that evening, he told of an office boy who worked for him many years ago when he was of far less importance in the commercial world.

"James," said Mr. Carnegie, "was a willing boy, but his ability as a stutterer was simply wonderful, and I often found it more convenient to attend to little errands myself than to wait for his explanations. One day a neighbor wanted to send a nice note clear across the city, and I permitted James to carry it for him. The trip was a long one, and James was gone quite three hours. When he returned, I asked him how much he had charged for his services.

"'Fi-fi-fi-fi-fi-fi-fi-fifteen c-c-c-cents!' was the gasping reply.

"'Why didn't you make it a quarter?' I asked.

"'I c-c-c-c-c-could-could-couldn't s-s-s-s-say it,' he replied, with tears as well as hyphens in his voice.

"Right then I made up my mind never to give any one my services without first making sure that I could recite my price without stuttering, and I never have."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Return of the Rations.

In the civil war our soldiers faced privation and hunger. A little story in H. Clay Trumbull's book, "War Memories of a Chaplain," tells of the spirit in which they sometimes did it.

While before Petersburg doing siege work in the summer of 1864, our men had wormy hard tack served out to them. It was a severe trial to the men. Breaking open the biscuits and finding live worms in them, they would throw the pieces in the trenches, although the orders were to keep the trenches clean.

A brigade officer of the day, seeing some of these scraps along our front, called out sharply to our men:

"Throw that hard tack out of the trenches." Then, as the men promptly gathered it up, he added, "Don't you know that you've no business to throw hard tack in the trenches?"

Out from the injured soldier heart there came the reasonable explanation, "We've thrown it out two or three times, sir, but it crawls back."

Delicate Measuring.

Almost incredible as it may seem, the largest weight which the government assayer employs in making an analysis of gold bullion is the infinitesimal French half gram, or about seven and three-fourths grains troy, and the balances used in this work are so sensitive that a weight of one-twentieth of a milligram, which is less than one-thousandth part of a single grain, will cause the indicator needle to deflect a very appreciable distance from the zero point on the graduated scale marking the equilibrium. These minute balances are, of course, inclosed in glass cases provided with sliding windows to exclude any draft of air. The beam is usually made of aluminium, and the knife edges rest on jewels. The weights are made of gold, silver and aluminium and are graduated from the half gram, which is arbitrarily denominated "one thousand," down to the ten-thousandth degree.—New York Sun.

An Old Ash Wednesday Custom.

At one time it was on Ash Wednesday the custom to appoint an official of the English palaces to crow the hours of the day, like a cock, as a reminder of the denial of St. Peter. This practice excited the furious indignation of George II. His ignorance of English made it very difficult for the courtiers to explain that the royal cock crower was not making fun of him. The cock crower was a salaried officer at the English court as late as 1823.

An Undesired Ally.

"How is Mud Slinger going to side in this race? Is he for you?"

THE BREAD BOX.

How to Keep It in Order—Care of Cake and Bread.

The bread box and all other jars for cookery should be kept fresh and sweet during warm weather, as mold and mustiness gather quickly. Clean them often; always when a new baking is to be put in. It is but little trouble, says Christian Work.

Remove the contents, shake out the crumbs, throw in a teaspoonful of pearline, pour in some boiling water and shut down the lid or cover to insure a thorough steaming. After remaining a few minutes wash out, rinse in clear water, wipe dry and turn on its side to air in an open window or some spot out of doors that is perfectly clean and secure from cats, dogs or chickens. Inexperienced housekeepers sometimes put away the bread or cake while still warm. This is a great mistake. It should be perfectly cool in order to keep well. However, one should not go to the other extreme and leave bread and cake uncovered until they are hard and dry.

It takes quite a quantity of butter to butter the tops of a large baking of bread. Try wetting the crusts in cold water instead, being careful it does not trickle down the sides or between a double loaf, as this would cause soddenness.

Waste bits of bread may be saved by crisping them in the oven. Tie them in paper bags away from the dust, and they will be ready at any time for milk toast, frying crumbs or dressing. Corn or graham bread may be saved in the same way and for the same purpose. Indeed, many like them better for cream toast, while for dressing for meat or fowl the color is unimportant. Fish, however, should have only a white dressing.

How to Gloss Shirt Fronts.

Pound two ounces of fine white gum arabic to a powder, put it in a pitcher and pour over it a pint of boiling water. Cover and let it set all night. Carefully pour from the dregs into a clean bottle. Cork and keep for use. One tablespoonful stirred into a pint of starch produces a lovely gloss on linen and is quite harmless to the material.

How to Avoid Consumption.

The New York Medical Record gives these nine concise rules for avoiding tuberculosis: A generous dietary of nitrogenous food. Free ventilation of dwelling and sleeping rooms, by open windows, with wiregauze blind. Adequate house heating in winter. Boil all milk or cream previous to using. Obtain eight hours' sleep, if not sound sleep, contract hours to seven and rest during the day. If debilitated with weak digestion, rest in a recumbent position shortly before and after meals. Wear loose clothing, especially around the waist and lower ribs, to afford freedom in respiration. Take systematic daily exercise in the open air on foot. If means and station in life admit of a long holiday, from time to time, live during fine weather in a tent in the open air or in a summer house for most of the day, and, if unemployed, pursue a hobby to occupy the mind.

How to Make Orange Syrup.

Grate the yellow peel from one dozen ripe, juicy oranges, cut them up and press out the juice, and to each quart of orange juice add a pint of water. Add six pounds of sugar, previously well mixed with one-half of the grated peel. Dissolve by gentle simmering, then strain.

How to Bake Turnips and Cheese.

Cut up six medium sized turnips and boil them tender in two quarts of water, to which are added one lump of sugar and one teaspoonful of butter. When the turnips are tender, drain them and beat to a pulp, with one small teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and one tablespoonful of butter. Spread a layer of the turnips on the bottom of a buttered baking dish, then a layer of gruyure cheese cut into shavings and a light sprinkling of dry white bread crumbs. Fill the dish in the order named, cover the top with crumbs and bits of butter, and brown in the oven.

How to Stew Cucumbers.

Peel and cut in quarters rather large cucumbers and boil them in water to their level, slightly salted, until tender. Drain, dip each piece into a good brown gravy; put into a saucepan; pour some more gravy over it and cook to slightly reduce five minutes more.

NOT MUCH OF AN EATER.

It Took, So He Said, Very Little to Satisfy Him.

Captain B. W. Morgan, every inch a Welshman himself, likes to tell this story when there is another Welshman in hearing: He went home to dinner one day and found a paper hanger at work in the house. He asked the time, and Captain Morgan told him it was noon.

"I guess I'll knock off and go home to dinner then," the paper hanger remarked.

"Stay and eat with us," the captain said, and the invitation was accepted.

Captain Morgan was attentive to his guest during the meal. He had a prodigious appetite. The captain helped him to roast beef several times, until at last he had some curiosity to see just how much the fellow would eat without crying enough. The game was growing quite interesting when the fellow began to show signs of quitting.

"Will you have some of the plum pudding?" the captain asked him to revive his failing appetite.

"No, thanks," he replied. "I've had enough, I think."

"Oh, take a small piece of the pudding!" the captain urged. "It's genuine English plum pudding and homemade at that."

"Well, I don't mind trying it," he said.

The captain helped him to a section of the pudding weighing about a pound, and he ate it with much relish. Then he shoved his chair away from the table and leaned back for an after dinner chat.

"I'm not much of an eater," he said, not noticing the smile on the captain's face. "It takes very little to satisfy me. Say, you ought to see the Welsh eat."

"Are they hearty eaters?" asked the captain.

"Hearty eaters?" repeated the fellow. "Say, they eat like a lot of hogs."

IT WAS GENUINE.

The Signature of William Shakespeare That Admiral Luce Had.

At the time of the New Orleans exposition, in the winter of 1884-5, Admiral Luce was in command of the north Atlantic squadron and was sent down there to add to the gayety of nations, which no other old seadog could do better than he. Upon his return the flagship was anchored in New York bay, where it was visited by many people. One day a party came aboard which included among others a very pretty girl and a very dignified and learned Englishman. As Admiral Luce was entertaining them in his cabin he asked the pretty girl if she would like to see an original autograph of William Shakespeare.

At this the dignified and learned Englishman pricked up his ears and remarked that he had made a study of the autographs of Shakespeare and was positive there was no authentic example in America. Admiral Luce replied that he was very positive his was authentic and that its genuineness had never been questioned. This made the Britisher quite mad, and he delivered a lecture on the fraudulent autographs and manuscripts that were brought over to America and exhibited as originals.

"Well," replied the admiral, "I am convinced that my autograph of William Shakespeare is genuine, and I am going to have the pleasure of showing it to this young lady." Whereupon he went to his desk, took out his visitor's book, turned back a few pages and then pointed out the signature, "William Shakespeare, mayor of New Orleans, Jan. 12, 1883." The Englishman gave a painful gasp and retired.—Chicago Record.

The Clever Romans.

It seems quite surprising that the ancient Romans did not acquire the art of printing with movable types, inasmuch as they came so very near to it. They had wooden blocks carved with words in reverse, by means of which they stamped those words on pottery, while the latter was as yet unbaked and soft. Incidentally it may be mentioned that they knew the modern method of mending broken pots by means of rivets, and many pieces of pottery thus restored have been dug up.

In ancient Rome there was one daily newspaper, which was written entirely by hand. Furthermore the Roman senate had a publication which corresponds to The Congressional Record, being a report of the daily proceedings of that important legislative body. It likewise was written by hand. Speaking of baked clay, one might mention the fact that the little boys of Rome 2,000 years and more ago were accustomed to play knuckle down with marbles of that material just as children do now.

Goat's Milk.

Modern Medicine says that goat's milk, contrary to the general impressions, differs from cow's milk not in being more digestible, but in being less digestible and less nutritious, although it contains a larger amount of solid matter than cow's milk. It is indeed the most indigestible of all milk.

Goat's milk has a peculiar and unpleasant odor and flavor, due to hircic acid or hircine. It contains an excess of fat and is therefore altogether too rich for an infant's diet.

DRESS AND FASHION.

FLUFFINESS AND FRIVOLITY RULE IN LATEST GOWNS.

White Taffeta In High Favor—Newest Garnitures of Threaded Velvet and Ribbons—Shoulder Draperies, Scarfs and Fichus.

Beauty and elegance have become common things where fashion congregates. The proof of this lies in the fact that gowns pass our notice now without so much as leaving an impression which formerly we would have thought models of luxury, and it requires something quite out of the common to arrest attention and excite comment. The present season is quickly fretting out its little hour and has reached the period where little that is new is to be noted in the kingdom of fashion; what is is, and few changes occur worth noting.

White taffeta, indeed, is high in the regard of the leaders of dress at present; tunics and polonaises of taffeta are much worn over underskirts and bodices of lace, caught at the waist by a clasp or button, and they are minutely tucked all over till the silk looks as if corded. On bodices this tucking is often advantageous, for the present close fitting, unadorned style does not suit too slender figures, and the tucking gives roundness without taking away from the fit.

A touch of black is the acme of smartness on light gowns, but another idea is a chou of shaded pansy velvet, from light to dark, on the left side of the bodice, or a yellow chou, from delicate maize to rich orange. The idea is to give a strong dash of color somewhere.

Sleeves are being made with a band of three tucks round the armhole, so as to keep them quite flat and yet give a little relief to the severe outlines which not every shoulder can do with. A sloping shoulder line is once more an accepted standard of beauty.

One of the latest forms of trimming resolves itself into a threading of black velvet or ribbon, through the material itself or the embroidery. This may be gathered from the accompanying sketches, the first two gowns both being threaded in this manner. The one on the left has a tunic of mauve taffeta, completely covered with narrow tucks, fastened with large strass buttons. The revers and underskirt, of ecru guipure, are slashed with black velvet. The other gown is in pastel rose voile, the tunic having a large semiloose double plait of cream lace, with black ribbon passed in and out. Narrow tucks edge the tunic, which is fringed with black silk.

The second group of sketches consists of a dress of ecru guipure over white voile, the tunic fastening down the right side with a latticed ribbon velvet. The yoke is draped round the shoulders fichu fashion with black mousseline de soie. The overdress in the second figure is laced down with silk cord and edged with fringe. The shoulder drapery is in two shades of silk muslin.

Many Parisian models have a long, fluffy scarf or shoulder drapery in chiffon or mousseline, even cloth gowns being treated with this fichu-like style. Formerly we should have considered such a mixture of the severe and the frivolous, the thick and the thin, as incongruous and out of keeping, but incongruity is not now in the dictionary of fashion.

HOW CHICKENS TALK.

A Language You Can Understand if You Will Observe Closely.

Chickens talk in a language that human ears learn readily to comprehend. For the most part it is instinctive. A fuzzy toddler six hours out of the shell has five distinct calls. The first and loudest of them is the lost note, uttered when he loses sight of his mother or finds himself out in the cold. It is loud and very shrill: "Pee-ee-op! Pee-ee-ee-op! Pee-eee-op!" The second, the hungry notes, is as shrill, but more plaintive, running somewhat thus: "Yeap! Yeap! Yee-eeap!" As soon as eating begins it changes to a sort of satisfied chittering: "Wit-wit! Wit-wit! Wit-wit-weet!"

After eating they grow sleepy and cry to be hovered. The note is somewhat like that of hunger, with a peculiar tremolo breaking it in the middle. "Yee-pi-lee-pi! Yee-pi-lee-pi!" does not fully represent it, but comes as near as the limitations of vowels and consonants admit. Very rarely do the mothers disregard it, though they may be eager to go foraging over grass plots or down hedgerows. Sometimes, if they themselves are still hungry, they run about at a great rate, clucking strenuously. In that case the sleepy chicks huddle and tumble about their feet, and the most agile among them fly upon the mother's back while she is still in motion. That generally fetches her to terms, though occasionally she shakes down the saucy fellow and pecks him roundly for his impertinence.

The fifth note, chir-r-r of fright or astonishment, is the quaintest of all. The chicks themselves appear to find something in it distinctly humorous. When they are a few days old, if a big wriggling worm or a fat juicy bug be thrown to them with their usual food, they will first draw away from it, chir-r-ing in concert; then, after eying it a minute, seize upon it and toss it about with faint, immature chuckling cackles. This chir-r develops at last in the grating call of warning, at the sound of which from their mothers even the youngest scatter and scutter to cover.

Anything, a bird, a kite, even a very small passing cloud sailing in the sky overhead, will evoke this warning cry. Let one hen sound it, every other will take it up. Often, oftener than not, indeed, the alarm is a false one, but centuries of hawks have impressed upon each feathered mind that "danger cometh out of the air," and they govern themselves accordingly.

Everybody knows how hens cluck to their broods, but it may be news to many that, though a hundred hens may be clucking in the same inclosure, the voice of each will be individual and unmistakable to her immediate family. A chick just out of the nest may not be able to discriminate, but let him follow for a day and he is past making mistakes. Even more wonderful is the hen's ability to differentiate her brood from all the rest. With spiteful, ill tempered fowls this often leads to pitiful barnyard tragedies. An intruder, feeding peacefully among chicks of his own size, shape and color, has often been slain with one single blow of a sharp and angry beak.

Upon finding food a hen calls her chicks somewhat thus: "Co-cu-co-cu-cu-cu-cu!" The cock calls his wives about him to share in some dainty with nearly the same notes, but deeper and more resonant in the beginning and running at the end into a high pitched treble. There is something clownish in his cackle. He cackles only to express a pained astonishment or else by way of chorusing the hens, with whom cackling is a favorite diversion, quite independent of the matter of egg laying.

A cock, especially a gamecock or one of Spanish breed, has a wonderful variety of crows. By means of them indeed he runs the whole gamut of expression—hope, fear, defiance, love, hate, rage, vanity and a fine ineffable conceit. He has besides a sort of wheedling scowl for use against such of his wives as are especially trying. He sidles up to the culprit or calls her to him with a make believe worm, and when she is close at hand gives her a sharp peck, at the same time raising the upper feathers of his crest and uttering the wheedling scowl. The make believe worm is a very common trick. Young cocks often resort to it in the effort to draw to themselves the mates of the "cock of the walk."

It is the hens without families though who are the true barnyard gossips. Any fine day, outside molting time, you may see them standing in groups, their heads close together, chuckling and chattering like so many blackbirds, or else wallowing in light earth, pecking lightly as they scratch and wallow and evidently finding it good sport to throw dust well over each other. A hen, save when sitting, will never wallow alone. And when sitting she is not normal, but a ragged, unkempt and very ill tempered shadow of herself, scowling and pecking at whatever comes near her.—Martha McCulloch Williams.

EIGHT ROOM COTTAGE.

Handsome and Convenient and Can Be Built For $2,500.

The designs here shown represent the plans for a neat and conveniently arranged eight room cottage. It is intended to be located on a plot of not less than 50 by 100 feet and should be placed some distance from the street to secure a good sized front yard. A cellar extends under the entire building. The foundation walls are of field stone or brick laid to a line on both sides in cement mortar. The piers which support the veranda and back porch are of brick.

The first story comprises a parlor 14 by 1[illegible] with a corner fireplace, and is lighted [illegible] two windows in front and one on [illegible] side, and communicates with the hall a[illegible] dining room by large openings which [illegible] provided with curtains, poles and rin[illegible] at the top, to which suitable curtain[illegible] may be attached. The woodwork abou[illegible] these openings is so constructed that fold[illegible]ing doors can be substituted for the cur[illegible]tain arrangement at any time. Adjoining the parlor is the staircase hall, 17 by 10 [illegible] size, which communicates with the dining room by a hinged panel door at the back and is entered from the veranda through an extra wide front door. The dining room, 12 by 10, is lighted by a bay window of the full width of the room—which gives a cheerful effect inside and an exceedingly picturesque appearance on the exterior. The dining room communicates with the kitchen through the pantry and with the sitting room through the large opening similar to the parlor. Underneath the front stairs is the china closet, fitted up with shelves and suitable drawers for cutlery. The sitting room, 12 by 14, opposite the dining room, gives the proper balance to the plan in appearance and convenience. A veranda extends across the front of the house and on the side the full depth of the parlor.

A pretty porch over the front protects the steps. A sash door opens from the sitting room directly upon the veranda, which is a very convenient feature, especially for warm weather. Lastly is the kitchen 12 by 12, with back stairs to the second story and stairs to the cellar, with a closet for stores between the doors as shown. The pantry is conveniently placed and is fitted up with shelves in the usual way. The kitchen is provided with a sink and portable range without a brick opening. Two reasons may be given why this is preferable to the brick set range. First, it is cheaper, and second, it is cleaner. The kitchen is wainscoted 3 feet high to protect the walls. The outside kitchen door is also protected by a handsome porch. In the second story are four good sized chambers, with a closet for each, a large hall, back stairs leading to the kitchen and a flight leading to the attic, which is simply floored and the whole left unfinished. The building is of wood above the cellar, constructed with balloon frame, the walls sheathed with surfaced boards and covered with waterproof paper, and clapboarded on the outside, with the exception of the gables, which are shingled. The walls and ceilings on the inside are hard finished on two coats of brown mortar and seasoned lath. The floors are of dry North Carolina pine; all other woodwork, except the railing and newels of the stairs, is of white pine, painted two coats; all roofs shingled; linings of valleys and all flashings, leaders, etc., of I. C. tin; all exterior woodwork painted two coats.
