BILL SENT TO PRESIDENT

U.S. Congress Extends Tax Reprieve

Legislative leaders who for months have been taking verbal pot shots at each other over a tax repeal bill, this week hailed passage of a U.S. Congressional bill that would delay imposition of the Internal Revenue Code here for two years.

The measure now awaits signature by President Carter, according to a message from Washington Rep. Edward Pangelinan received here Tuesday.

The legislation, if approved by the president, will delay implementation of the IRC in the Commonwealth until Jan. 1, 1983, a year later than had been negoitated earlier. Its effect will be to permit the NMI to rebate taxes on all income received from within the Commonwealth as is being done during 1979-80.

There had been some concern and considerable acrimony over the failure of the two houses of the NMI Legislature to agree on a repeal measure which had been promised to U.S. Congressmen to qualify for an IRC exemption for 1981.

Only last week the House of Representatives issued a newsletter in which it sharply criticized the Senate. The Senate had adopted a bill that would have repealed the entire local tax law, including the repeal provision, and created an advisory commission to overhaul the entire local tax law.

The House passed a bill which would have stricken the tax rebate provisions, but have allowed the tax law to continue while its structure was being revised. It too would have created a commission to redraw the local tax laws, but in a separate bill.

The two houses failed to agree on a single version and accused each other of having gone back on a promise to the U.S. Congressmen.

Acting Senate President Benjamin T. Manglona Tuesday expressed his gratitude for the U.S. legislation and asserted that it was proof that the NMI Senate acted wisely in taking its position. He said the additional time will allow taxpayers to be educated in the complexities of the IRC and will provide a valuable incentive for business to expand and new business to locate here.

Then, taking a swipe at the lower house, Manglona summed up the House newsletter as a "severe propaganda attack to incite the people rather than to explain the truth in a reasonable manner. Hopefully the members of the House of Representatives will learn from their mistake and be more accurate in the future."

Speaker Joaquin I. Pangelinan said that the latest U.S. legislation was more in line with his original proposal that the IRC should not be implemented before Jan. 1, 1984, following discussion with the United States on a financial package for the next five to ten years.

He said that something simpler than the IRC should be enacted in the Commonwealth so that it may reach its goal of economic self-sufficiency.

The Speaker asserted that the IRC would actually

Military Rejects Tinian Oil Port

The U.S. Department of Defense has rejected the construction of an oil super port on Tinian land reserved for military purposes.

An official of the department has notified Gov. Camacho that a sublease to Northville Industries is out of the question on grounds that it could cause future problems.

Franklin D. Kramer, principal deputy assistant Secretary of Defense wrote that his department is confident that funds to exercise its option for approximately 17,000 acres on Tinian would be included in next fiscal year's budget.

Kramer suggested that other sites for the proposed transshipment port be found.

Northville executives had favored the Tinian site with a second choice near Kobler Field in Saipan. However that area has been targeted for more than 400 homestead and Section 8 housing sites, according to NMI officials.

The governor has written Northville, suggesting an alternative site near Obyan Beach. So far, no reply has been received.

Northville officials originally proposed a feasibility study of a $300 million supertanker port facility on Rota. But following an aerial inspection, they favored the Tinian site and the Kobler areas as a second choice.

Camacho then asked Defense Secretary Harold Brown if a sublease on military land on Tinian could be arranged.

Budget Leaves 6.2 Million Deficit

The House of Representatives this week passed a $45 million budget which is $6.2 million short of balancing.

To make up the deficit, as required by the constitution, the Legislature will either have to raise additional taxes, slash costs or both, a House leader said.

After passing the spending figure, the House approved a continuing appropriation bill allowing the government to function until Jan. 31.

Rep. Ben Sablan, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, said by imposing the deadline, he hopes that both houses of the Legislature and the administration will come up with a solution. If the deadline is not met the resolution will either have to be extended or government functions will have to be shut down, a staff member said.

The House spokesman said that the budget which Gov. Camacho submitted in September did not correctly project the deficit and his proposals for raising revenues do not add up to the $6.2 million deficit.

Sablan said the House is considering temporary legislation to raise revenues until a comprehensive study is made of government costs and revenues by an advisory commission.

The budget includes $28 million in covenant funds and $17 million in current and new revenues.

It sets aside $8 million to fund current fuel costs plus debts for the previous year, and $2.2 million for the employee retirement fund.

Christmas Drop Nears Completion

Micronesian News Service

SAIPAN – The 1980 annual Christmas drop for the Islands of Micronesia conducted by the U.S. Air Force 54th Weather Reconnaissance Squardron is about 80% completed and, according to reports coming from the Micronesian outer islands, has been a big success.

Christmas goodies, collected from the civilian and military communities on Guam and Saipan and several military bases on the U.S. Mainland have been dropped via parachutes on small island communities in the Marshalls, Kosrae, Yap, Palau and the Northern Marianas. In addition, an Air Force "Santa Claus" landed on Ponape and Palau with gifts for children and "was swarmed by hundreds of school children" at each stop.

Air drops for outlying islands of Truk State and an airlanding on Moen are scheduled for early this week. The Truk portion of the program will complete this year's effort.

The "Christmas Drop Program" was initiated 28 years ago by the U.S. Air Force 54th WRS and has continued since. Over the years, it has grown in scope and in number of participants.

In earlier years, only few islands received the "Christmas gifts from the sky" collected by few military and civilian communities on Guam. This year, majority of Micronesian outer islands, from Palau to the Marshalls, participated in the program. Gift item were collected from many sources on Guam and a number of military bases in the United States.

People who lived in Micronesia outer islands have come to appreciate this program so much that it is said the U.S. military has more friends in the Micronesian outer islands than the district or state centers.

Yap State Governor John Mangefel's representative on outer of Ulithi sent the following message the other day expressing his people's thanks for those who made the program possible.

"High Commissioner Adrian P. Winkel pass to all who made the Christmas Drop program possible. On behalf of my people in the outer islands of Yap State, I thank you for the Christmas gifts received at Satawal, Faraulap, Woleai, Eauripik, Ulithi, Fais, Sorol, and Ngulu. Many, many thanks. We wish you all a Christmas Blessing and wonderful wishes for the New Year. From the people I send this message." Signed: Governor Yap Representative on Ulithi.

Winkel Commends Salii For Outstanding Service

Micronesian News Service

SAIPAN – High Commissioner Adrian P. Winkel Tuesday presented Lazarus E. Salii the Trust Territory honor award for commendable service, in recognition of more than two decades of outstanding service in legislative and executive branches.

In his letter to Salii, outgoing administrator, Department of Development Services, Winkel said, "The Commendable Service Honor Award I presented to you today is an official expression of appreciation of your contribution to Micronesia over the past more than twenty years. By means of this letter, I want to add my personal word of appreciation.

"I know of no better way to do so than to point out the record of your service with the Government. Your progression in the legislative branch from secretary, Palau Legislature, to Congress of Micronesia Senator, Senate Vice President, and Chairman, Joint Committee on Political Status; and in the Executive branch from junior clerk in Palau District to Administrator, Department of Development Services, at Trust Territory Headquarters exemplify your personal qualities and are evidence of how you have applied those qualities."

Salii who was an unsuccessful candidate for president of Palau, said that he and his family are returning soon to Palau. Regarding future plans, he said, "There is always a possibility of going into private sector, however, I'm still dedicated to offer my service for the benefit of the people. I stand ready to perform whatever service for the people of Palau."

Marshalls Copra Plant Offers Higher Prices

Micronesian News Service

MAJURO – The Marshall Islands Journal, in its most recent edition, reported that the governments of Truk and Kosrae have requested the Marshalls copra processing mill, Tobolar, to purchase copra from their areas.

The report said, "Tobolar not only announced that it was buying copra again after staying idle for several months, but also said it has raised the price of copra to 8.5 cents per pound, or $170 per ton at the outer islands and 10 cents per pound or $200 per ton for copra delivered on Majuro."

"The reason we've raised the price is because of the strengthening of the copra oil market after being down for a year," a Tobolar spokesman said.

Tobolar General Manager John Smith said, "We've been requested by the government of Truk to buy their copra since UMDA no longer buys their copra." A similar request has also been received from Kosrae.

Smith said Ponape "is the only eastern FSM State that we have not heard from so far." But, we are also interested in buying copra from them, Smith said.

The other copra processing plant in the Trust Territory, MIC (Micronesian Industrial Corporation) located in Palau has been idle for sometime.

TO CHALAN KANOA

Clinic Moved From Hospital

The hypertension-diabetes clinic has been transferred from Dr. Torres Hospital to the Public Health Center in Chalan Kanoa.

The clinic is open Monday and Tuesday afternoons. Services provided include yearly blood pressure checks, physical examinations, medication refills, diet counseling, medication counseling, and general family counseling.

Future plans include doing EKG's and lab work so that patients will not have to go to Dr. Torres Hospital.

Other plans include conducting blood pressure measurement at department stores. Blood pressure screenings have already been conducted in several private and government offices.

House To Probe Bradshaw Performance

The House of Representatives has ordered an investigation into the performance of Public Auditor Robert D. Bradshaw.

In approving a resolution introduced by Rep. Pedro T. Nakatsukasa by voice vote, the House instructed its Committee on Judiciary and Governmental Operations to report its findings by Jan. 31..

When contacted, Bradshaw said he had no comment but raised the possibility that the probe of his official conduct might be linked with a forthcoming audit of the governor's office by him and the U.S. Comptroller.

The resolution asks the committee headed by Rep. Antonio Camacho to investigate allegations of "incompetence, fraud, unprofessionalism, partisanship and other improprieties."

"I know some colleagues are ready to vote for a removal of the incumbent public auditor," said Nakatsukasa, "but I think it is imperative of the House to carry out this investigation before taking any action."

Speaker Joaquin I. Pangelinan said the House's approach is in contrast to the Senate's which several months ago asked Gov. Camacho to fire Finance Director Saul A. Newman without any hearings.

Acting Senate President Benjamin T. Manglona said that he feels each house has the right to make any investigation it deems necessary but said that he personally would have favored joint action since both chambers must vote on any impeachment action.

"I have no quarrel with the House to investigate. It's up to them what to do," he said.

But he directly defended Bradshaw, saying that two federal agencies basically agreed with the public auditor's findings of mismanagement in the administration. He also charged that Bradshaw had been consistently denied access to financial record by Newman.

Manglona said that the Senate will investigate the allegations of fiscal management by the executive branch. He said he did not know which committee would undertake the probe but that it would probably be held in January.

Pangelinan said that the House investigation will be a quasi judicial process and follow constitutional procedures.

Any impeachment of the public auditor must be approved by two-thirds votes of both houses. Pangelinan conceded that even if the lower house should vote for removal, it is not likely that the Senate will go along with it.

But, he said that a private party could file a taxpayers suit in court to oust Bradshaw in case any evidence that a felony has been committed is brought out during the investigation.

The investigation resolution was opposed during a debate by Minority Leader Oscar C. Rasa and Reps. Ben Fitial and Misael Ogo.

Nakatsukasa said that the hearings should be public and that Bradshaw be entitled to legal representation of his choosing. The congressman said that it has been six months since Gov. Camacho first made serious charges against Bradshaw (and vetoed funds for his office) and that "it is our duty to conduct this investigation and to once and for all decide whether the incumbent public auditor should be removed or not."

In a related matter, Bradshaw charged in a letter to the governor and legislative leader that while all other civil service employees in the Commonwealth have received salary raises, his six staff members have not.

He wrote that the six were reclassified last July but that neither the planning and budget affairs nor attorney general's officers have taken action to effect the realignment.

"In my opinion," wrote Bradshaw, " there is a possibility that the Administration is attempting to practice discrimination against the six (6) emplyees of this office."

Interim Attorney General Richard Lassman said that PBAO had asked his office for a legal opinion which is being drawn up.

Prison Contract Bids To Be Opened

Bids for the construction of the new Saipan prison are scheduled to be opened during the last week of December, Gov. Camacho has announced.

He said that the engineering and architectural work has been completed with some minor revisions being made by the Department of Public Works and the Criminal Justice Planning Agency.

The new correctional institute, to be located on the site of the present prison, will be able to house 16 adult males, three females and three juveniles, all in separate cells.

According to the governor's annoucement, cell doors will be solid instead of barred, with viewing windows, to provide some privacy to the inmates. The cells can be used for maximum security confinement with use of intercomes and positioning of guards to prevent escapes.

Camacho said that work is scheduled to start in late February or early March and that the prison will be completed late next year or in early 1982.

The prison also will have such facilities as a machine shop, multi-purpose classroom, library, counseling room and medical examination area.

Alarm System Favored

The chief of the federal disaster team said this week that he favors installation of a better typhoon warning system to give residents more time to prepare for an emergency.

Tommie C. Hamner, head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, said that some people apparently did not know of the approach of Typhoon Dinah which had changed paths and failed to close louvres and doors and hang storm boards. This, he said, resulted in considerable rain damage as water flooded houses.

Frank Chong, NMI disaster control officer, said that he has proposed purchase of a warning system that could serve Saipan, Rota and Tinian.

But he also maintained that residents were given sufficient warning about Dinah's approach by police cars which cruised the villages with public address announcements.

Hamner said besides an improved warning system he believes the NMI should adopt a building code and establish some standards, starting with government buildings.

Referring to frequent storms and typhoons he likened the area to "looking down the barrel of a shotgun. We've been here three times since 1976."

Chong said that he has asked for the purchase of a Motorola emergency warning evacuation system which includes the installation of a broadcast console and eight clusters of 16 speakers each. The console would be located in the disaster control office and the speakers would be mounted on steel poles in the villages. The system could be used both as a public address system or to carry signals such as sirens.

The speaker clusters would be placed in villages in Saipan, Tinian and Rota. The system would have backup batteries in case of power failures.

Chong said that public buildings should have concrete roofs and aluminum shutters which would be more resistant to strong winds than wood or glass louvres.

He said during Dinah, considerable water damage was caused because storm boards were not available for a number of public buildings, including schools.

Senator Upset By Mayor's Language

Sen. Ignacio K. Quichocho has asked the attorney general's office to investigate and possibly prosecute Tinian Mayor Felipe C. Mendiola for alleged misuse of the public address system in Tinian.

The Tinian senator charged that the mayor had used the public address system in his office to defame elected officials, including him.

"Although this alone may or may not warrant your intrusion in this matter," Quichocho wrote, "I believe the fact that he is constantly using gross and profane language in his messages to the people warrants an investigation by your office."

Acting Attorney General Richard Lassman said he had received the letter but had not yet decided what to do about the request. He said that a misdemeanor disturbance of the peace charge could be brought if a witness files a complaint.

New Radio System For Police Installed

A new public safety radio system is being installed in Saipan, Rota and Tinian.

The $170,000 Motorola communication system is being financed from federal sources, according to Bill Hanna, federal highway safety coordinator.

He said that the radio will be for internal communications on each island, and in the future will be capable of sending and receiving inter-island messages. Another bonus is that it is able to monitor the civil defense, public works and public health radio systems, he said.

Hanna said that communications between Saipan and Rota will require the installation of antenna towers on both islands and should be completed in about a year. He said it is possible that it may be solar-powered. Such a link would be of great benefit in cases of medical emergencies requiring evacuations, he said.

Mobil Gets Permit For Fire Hose

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has issued a federal permit to the Mobil Oil Micronesia, Inc., authorizing installation of a firefighting water suction line at San Jose Village Wharf in Tinian.

The project consists of installing 4-inch pipe suction line extending from the top of the wharf and down the face of the wharf to the water level mark and into the water. The pipe will be protected by timber on each side.

The State Of World Communism

By Erwin D. Canham

Consider the state of the world's great communist governments as 1980 draws toward a close.

The Soviet Union is in the most acute difficulty. It remains at sword's point with the other Communist world power: the People's Republic of China. It must maintain vast military forces on its borders with China, and watches with apprehension the development of closer and closer American relations with Peking.

That is, of course, far from all. The Soviet Union a year ago embarked upon the invasion of Afghanistan. Twelve months later, the situation is worse than when the invasion began. Something like 100,000 Soviet troops are committed to action in the central Asian nation. But they can do little more than garrison some cities and towns. Everywhere else they are in peril. The loyalty of Afghan military elements is very dubious. If Vietnam was a problem for the United States, Afghanistan is almost equally so for the Soviet Union.

But the most severe challenge to Soviet communism is much closer to home in Poland. This nation on the great plains linking, not dividing, Russia from Central Europe, is now developing a form of authority in which the role of the Communist Party is challenged. Many elements of western democracy are demanded by the militant workers' groups in Poland. These groups have already obtained great concessions. The Soviet Union has mobilized forces on the Polish frontiers, seeking to intimidate the Poles, but is obviously reluctant to launch a military attack. The men in the Kremlin know any such attack would bring the condemnation of much of the world upon them. It would make pacification and control of the Poles far more difficult than ever. It might be an Afghan campaign, with guerrilla forces everywhere.

There are still other problems the Soviets face. Two harvests have failed, the communized system of agricultural planning is manifestly unsatisfactory, and the people are hungry. Soviet defense expenditures are very high, making a severe drain on standards of living, and there are threats of still more costly competition with the United States. The future for Soviet planners must be bleak. Moreover, a change in Soviet leadership is becoming inevitable, as the elder generation is no longer able to carry the burdens. Kosygin has retired; Brezhnev is expected to step down soon. The in successros are only a few years more youthful.

The other Communist countries in Europe are watching the Polish situation carefully, their party leaders with apprehension and many of the people we may believe with hope. They are well aware of Moscow's difficulties. Its prestige sinks.

The other Communist giant China is in a different kind of crisis. The present Communist party chairman, Hua Guofeng, seems to be on his way out, almost in disgrace. His patron, the man who led the Chinese Communist revolution from its beginning, is also being repudiated. Mao Tsetung is being blamed for the cultural revolution, which set the People's Rupublic back many years through its brutality and self-destruction. Hua's expected successor, Hu Yaobang, has already repudiated Mao. The real power in Peking, Deng Xiaoping, is evidently stagemanaging these changes and expects himself to recede into the background before long.

The People's Republic is making a significant break with its historic past, committing itself to revolutionary changes expected to produce growth and strength for the world's most populous nation. In short, the current Chiness revolution seems to be strengthening the system rather than weakening it. The United States, Japan, and various other nations are striving to take part in vitalizing the Chinese economy,

Part of the Chinese revolution, dramatically highlighting the repudiation of the past, is the trial of the "gang of four", with Mao Tse-Tung's widow as the chief accused person. The boldness of this repudiation reveals the strength of the present regime and its determination to set China upon a different path.

While these changes and challenges are taking place in the Communist world, the United States is riding through a shift of administrations and seeks to improve its relationships, especially with its European allies. Secretary of State Muskie, returning from a session in Brussels, finds that the Polish crisis has drawn the Western nations closer together. There is keen interest in the kind of policies the Reagan Administration will bring in . The western world, and Japan, face the steady escalating of oil prices. A new increase is even now being decided at the OPEC meeting in Bali. Inflation and unemployment eat away at these nations. A stable economy is undoubtedly the greatest challenge facing the non-Communist world.

If you balance the magnitude of the problems facing world communism, and those confronting the non-communist nations, it is easy to see that communism is in trouble. The industrial nations, however, must in the next few years face the problems of underdevelopment and starvation in the so-called Third World: the nations largely south of the Equator. Unless they make progress, the whole world is in trouble. The nations are mainly turning to the western world, not the communist powers, for aid in progress and development. They know where economic strength lies. But their problems of starvation and of civil order and human decency will be very difficult to relieve.

Ex-Marine To Be Police Adviser

By Kurt Liepman

Guy Gabaldon who first hit the beaches of Saipan as an 18-year-old Japanese-speaking marine, has been signed to a $2,000 plus a month contract as adviser to Jose Sablan, director of the Department of Public Safety.

Gabaldon who said he talked more than 2,000 Japanese soldiers and civilians into surrendering to him while a front line interpreter and whose exploits became the basis of a movie, will start work sometime after Jan. 1.

He said he will bring his wife, Ohana, and their five children to Saipan after a quick trip to New Mexico for the holidays. The government will pay for the transportation and shipping cost in excess of $11,000, it was learned.

Gabaldon, now 54, said his police experience includes a stint as bodyguard for President Kennedy's visit to Mexico, work as liaison officer for the Tijuana, Mexico police department, and an unsuccessful race for county sheriff in Albuquerque, New Mexico last June.

He said he expects to give the department technical advice and set up a crime stopper program that has proven successful in several parts of the mainland.

Gabaldon also has plans to acquire a cargo plane to bring in shellfish from Pagan.

Judges of the Commonwealth Trial Court are looking forward to a hanging. Lest anyone jump to the wrong conclusion, this involves pictures, not capital punishment.

Ten of Judge Herbert D. Soll's scenic photos taken in Saipan and Tinian will soon decorate the walls of the courthouse offices. The 18 by 24 inch blowups were made from 35 mm slides that the judge took during the past couple of years. The enlargements arrived this week from a New Jersey film laboratory, and will be hung as soon as frames are made.

Although GORCO is resuming shipment of fuel oil for the Saipan power plant after the NMI paid its bills of almost $1.5 million, the company insists that the Commonwealth owes it about $80,000 in late charges.

NMI and company officials huddled this week to resolve the problem.

Commonwealth officials are also still negotiating with another oil company, Mobil, over who is to blame for damage to power plant engines.

NMI officials said they discovered damage to the engines after buying a batch of "bargain" oil from Mobil which they said was contaminated with water. The company is not assuming responsibility for any damages, according to acting Attorney General Richard Lassman who said that technical advice is being obtained.

High Commissioner Adrian P. Winkel refused to go along with a bill that would have created a Civil Aeronautics Board in the Marshall Islands to certify its government airline planes and pilots and ban competition.

The bill was passed hastily after the Australian government refused to extend the certification of the airline's first plane beyond Nov. 30, thus causing the lapsing of insurance. By creating its own CAB, the government hoped to keep the plane flying. But the bill also contained a clause that would have put another airline owned by the political opposition party out of business.

Winkel suspended the bill which means that it is disapproved. Meanwhile the Airlines of the Marshall Islands has received delivery of a second plane from Australia whose government will certify it for an interim period, according to a news story in the Marshall Island Journal.

Winkel assured the Marshallese that he and the State Department will work with them to solve their certification problems.

House Counsel Michael DeAngelo has lost the first round in his bid to be excluded from the government retirement program and to have his contributions refunded on grounds that he and other legislative employees are temporary and could be ousted with a change of the political winds.

His request to Finance Director Saul A. Newman was forwarded to the retirement board. Its chairman, Michael A. White, said that only persons employed for 90 days or less are considered temporary. He said that other employees have the option on termination to leave their contributions in the fund or take them out, plus interest.

DeAngelo said he was not certain of his next step, but said that some amendments to the retirement act are being drafted.

Letters To Editor

Dear Editor:

Pacific Daily News of December 9 carried a picture of French President Valery Giscard D'Estaing walking alone beside the highway on his way to the European summit. There is a President of a large country who has confidence enough in his own people and himself to feel safe walking by himself along a highway without guards and police officers trailing him.

In contrast, here in the Northern Marianas we have a small Governor who will not even walk to his car or to the bathroom without guards and police officers following him and opening doors for him. I don't know what the problem is. It could be a sympton of paranoia, insecurity, lack of confidence, and fear of death on the part the Governor.

When I went to the December meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to hear the Governor's speech, two guards were outside the chamber meeting to make sure that the Governor would not get killed by the members of the Chamber of Commerce. At night when the Governor goes out drinking and dancing at bars and nighclubs, his bodyguards and police officers (paid by the people's taxes) are there guarding him all the time so that he will not get killed by the people of Saipan. This is so ridiculous it makes people either laugh or get sick. While our prison inmates escape and the public suffers from lack of police personnel and police protection, the Governor, who does not need a bodyguard, walks all over this island with guards and police officers trailing him, opening doors for him.

This is absolutely unnecessary. Nobody here in the Northern Marianas wants to kill the Governor and end up in jail. I hope that our next Governor will be more mature, understanding, secure and confident with his people and will be less selfish and arrogant.

Sincerely,
Ramon G. Villagomez
Attorney at Law

Dear Editor:

The House of Representatives Democratic leadership is now "honoring" the community with a new propaganda publication called the House Report. The entire issue seemingly touches on a matter that is dead. The House Democrats led by Speaker Pangelinan are once again simply beating a dead horse.

It is also obvious in this report that Mitch Pangelinan prejudges what others would do on the basis of what he himself would do in similar circumstances. This, I believe, to be the greatest problem in trying to achieve some form of conciliation between the House and Senate.

Sincerely yours,
J.F. Screen

Compact Almost Completed

By Cisco Uludong

Finally after more than a decade of negotiations, there may now be a beginning to an end of the world's last United Nations trusteeship.

In the place of the blemished and yet, in some respects, progressive U.S. stewardship of Micronesia would be a new political arrangement called free association.

Last month in Washington, the United States and representatives of Palau, the Marshalls and the Federated States of Micronesia hurried to initial a compact that would govern the relationship for 15 years after its approval by the Micronesians, U.S. Government and the United Nations.

Working against time, Ambassador Peter R. Rosenblatt and his Micronesian leaders completed the main text, leaving eight subsidiary agreements to be negotiated in the next several months.

And if President-elect Reagan agrees to go along, the Micronesians may be headed for the polls before the end of next year to "exercise their inalienable right to self-determination" by either approving or disapproving the political marriage.

The compact, in the making since 1968, spells out the do's and the don'ts of the parties, meeting the financial and security needs of the Micronesians and guaranteeing the U.S. military interests in the islands.

Although unique for the two parties, free association is not unprecedented in decolonization. A number of Carribean islands are in free association with Great Britain and in the Pacific, the Cook Islands in 1965 entered into a free association with New Zealand.

Free association is the only non-independent status sanctioned by the United Nations as meeting the requirements of a truely self-governing territory.

Because of the strained relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, there is an increasing concern that the proposed relationship may run into a veto by the Soviet Union in the UN Security Council, which must approve the end of the trusteeship.

The concern is prompting talk of bypassing the United Nations; however, that might be shortsighted as the Micronesian mini-states show all the indications of wanting to join agencies of the United Nations in the future.

A suggestion has been made that approval of the compact by the United Nations not be sought until there is a thaw in relations between the two superpowers.

In the meantime, the Micronesians will proceed to enter into de facto free association with the U.S. as the Northern Marianas has done with its Commonwealth status.

Internal Revenue...

cost the NMI an estimated $400,000 a year because its earned income credit provisions under which low income persons would receive money from the government rather than paying taxes.

He said that if the Reagan administration goes ahead with its tax cut promises, the NMI would have to follow, resulting in additional losses.

Notification of the U.S. Congressional action came a few days after Gov. Camacho asked the Department of Interior to administer the IRC and customs services here following disputes with Department of Treasury officials.

Treasury and NMI officials had disagreed sharply over the final authority in the administration of the internal revenue taxes and the legality of the NMI excise taxes.

Holiday Sports Tourney Scheduled

The Department of Community and Cultural Affairs again will be sponsoring the annual Holiday Tournament (formerly Y's Islanders Sports Tournament) during the Christmas holidays, with the finals to be held during Commonwealth Day celebration Jan. 9 and 10.

The Saipan Amateur Sports Association and the YMCA are assisting in the tournament which will be in its fourth year.

There will be competition for the perpetural and high point trophies in five sports in addition to major competition in auto racing and moto-cross. They are basketball, volleyball, soccer, table tennis and running.

The running will consist of a 14-mile relay with five member per team each running a minimum of one mile. The relays are open to both sexes.

The perpetual trophies were donated by Saipan Stevedoring Co., for soccer; Pacific Trading Co., basketball; M.S. Villagomez, volleyball; Y's Islanders for track; Mayor Frank Diaz for table tennis, and the former Municipal Council for women's volleyball and basketball.

This year there will also be individual awards for the first three places for teams or individuals.

Rosters should be turned in to coordinators or Bill Sakovich by this Saturday, Dec. 20. The coordinators are Tommy Barcinas, basketball; Tony Rogolofoi, volleyball; Cal Reyes or Joe Sanchez, soccer; Dan Hughes or Bobby Winfield, running, and Sid Seman, table tennis. The auto racing and moto-cross coordinators are Ric Duenas and George Camacho.

If there are other sports entries, either Sakovich or Gil Ada may be contacted.

Basketball and volleyball are 12-member rosters and soccer is 15. The running is 5 and table tennis-are singles or doubles.

A meeting of all team organizers will be held as soon as all rosters have been submitted. Sakovish said because the tournament is of short duration, all matches will be by single elimination.

Fish Wins Pair Of Doubles

Mark Fish emerged on the winning team in both the men's and mixed doubles in the M.I.U. Holiday Doubles Tennis Tournament which concluded Monday at the Inter-Continental Inn courts.

Fish teamed with Bobbi Grizzard to take the mixed doubles 7-6, 4-6, 6-2 over Frank Reksid and Betsy Robb. During the previous weekend, Fish and Mario Dalla Pozza defeated Reksid and Louie Chong 6-4, 5-7, 7-5 to take the men's doubles.

Irene Alpet and Lucy Selepeo defeated Rose Dalla Pozza and Barbara High in the Women's doubles, 7-5 and 6-2.

The awards will be presented at the M.I.U. Christmas party this Saturday at the Marianas Hotel.

Greetings

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF THE NORTHERN MARIANAS:

My family joins me in wishing each and everyone of you a special Holiday Greetings – "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year", "Felis Pasgua yan Ano Nuevo."

May the year ahead bring joy and peace as we progress in the development of our lives and in our infant government.

I ask and pray for our Lord's blessing for us all as we enter 1981, and I thank the almighty for his gracious blessings during 1980.

I will like to ask for your continued support and cooperation during the coming year.

SENATOR & MRS. PEDRO (PETE) P. TENORIO
PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE

Curfew To Be Enforced By Police

Public Safety officers will start enforcing the 8 p.m. curfew law following an outbreak of crimes committed by juveniles, particularly in the Garapan area, announced Capt. Greg Camacho, commander of the detective division.

He said during the last month more than 10 juveniles were detained by police following a rash of burglaries and malicious mischief cases in Garapan.

He said some stolen goods were recovered with the detentions of the youngsters who were released to the custody of their parents.

"If the parents don't control their kids, we'll have to step in," Camacho said.

He said officers have detained several youths for curfew violations, adding that there have been reports of roving gangs of juveniles in the Garapan and China Town areas.
