Does Gold Grow?

Professor George Davidson is skeptical on the subject.

"Does gold grow? It is just as unlikely as that diamonds are forming under the conditions at present existing. But there I am tripping myself up. It's a fact that not many years ago a piece of an aegolite fell, down in the Canada del Diabolo, in Arizona, and in it there was a little cavity lined with microscopic black diamonds. The way they came to find them was that the circular disk they were trying to slice off a cross section with, broke, and they were obliged to break open the aegolite, and when they cracked it open there was a little cavity lined with diamonds, and it was those little microscopic crystals which had broken the steel.

"Now, whether those stones existed in the aegolite when it left its mysterious starry home, or whether they formed by the excessive friction and changed conditions it encountered after it entered our atmosphere, of course no man knows, but I incline to the opinion they were already there when the stone started on its long journey through space. Of course we have actually seen diamonds manufactured by science, but this was accomplished by such extraordinary processes that the minute crystals resulting cost altogether too much to be made an article of commerce. If gold should be determined to be composed of two or more elements should be discovered, I predict that the cost of the process will be so prodigious that none of us will care to undertake it. It is possible that gold may be held in solution, and that under some peculiar conditions it might be deposited by nature, but as to the stories we sometimes hear concerning its unaccountable appearance in mines or ledges which were previously known to be barren, just put me down as a skeptic."

Mr. A. S. Cooper, State Mineralogist of California, says:

"We know that gold accumulates from solutions and is thereby left in rock veins. In other words, these solutions rise in fissures in the rocks, and the other elements disappear or are decomposed, leaving the gold behind, sometimes in actual crystals. "Certainly I admit that gold may prove to be a combination of elements rather than the simple element it has hitherto been supposed to be. For that matter I am ready to admit that gold and all other elements may yet prove to be one and the same—different forms of hydrogen, perhaps, which possesses the lightest atomic weight of all known substances, and may therefore be logically supposed to be capable of being converted into the greatest variety of forms and substances through strictly mechanical metamorphoses, along lines in which men of science are now studying and experimenting."

From another man of note formerly occupying a high official position in the State's employ, Louis Falkensau, once State Assayer of California, comes the following opinion:

"Does gold grow? I admit not only the possibility, but the probability that gold may not be a simple element, but may be found to be a simple element, but may be found to be composed of two or more elements. Indeed, I believe the time will come when our list of simple elements, now comprising seventy-three, including the recently discovered argon and helium, will be reduced to a very few. Should gold be eliminated from these and placed in the list of compounds, this would of course, make it possible for it to now be in process of formation somewhere, say in the center of the earth, beyond the reach or inspection of man. That it can now be formed under conditions at our command, however, I greatly doubt, and I am of opinion metals, such as gold, silver and platinum, which are not easily acted upon, will not be easily decomposed or recomposed. In fact, were I to turn alchemist and experiment in search of some manner of accomplishing this end, I should confine my experiments to metals more easily acted upon, in the hope of learning through them something that might enable me to work successfully upon the noble metals.—S. HAWAII'S FUTURE.

Now that the stock market has taken a vacation as it were, and the fever of speculation has abated, would it not be wise for our good citizens to devote a few moments to consider the political future of the Islands and carefully study the provisions of the organic law proposed by the committees in the Senate and Congress having the Hawaiian question before them.

The proposed law which we have published in our last issues contains some points of merit and several provisions which seem to indicate that the framers of the law have not grasped the true situation here or have been misled by false information furnished by the selfish clique that has no regard for the people but simply looks after its own interests and gain.

There are numerous questions which should be studied most carefully by every man and woman having an interest in Hawaii nei. The all-important labor question is before us and while the government and the planters are trying to rush in the most undesirable element of cheap laborers, our Christian men and women sing in high key to the praise of Ewa, Oiaa Wahiaua and Keyhigh. Several thousand Japanese have been ordered and our police records tell us daily about murders and riots committed by that class of citizens. The Portuguese colony have shown their dissatisfaction for many a day. They have suffered for lack of work and been brought to the verge of absolute starvation because they cannot compete in cheap living with the Asians who are here without families and are trained to live at the very smallest cost. And yet several hundred Portuguese are now on their way to Hawaii to meet the same disappointments as those experienced by their countrymen here and to swell the brigade of the discontented citizens.

And while Galician laborers, induced to come here under false pretenses, are parading the streets daily in prison garb and treated as criminals in this Territory of the free (!) Republic of the United States, 600 Italians are being shipped to Honolulu for the benefit of a few planters and to the ruin of the people of Hawaii and our body politic. These Italians will be brought here under the same false pretenses which induced the Galicians to leave their native hearth. They will sell their little belongings and travel in roeate dreams to rudely awaken by finding the grim reality on a sugar plantation and then a striped suit and a cell in Oahu Jail. But what do the men who induce these poor devils leave their homes care. Should the deceived slaves get ugly, the police and military forces are here to protect the plantations and the planters—well, they are of course in their baronial mansions in San Francisco, Bremen or Paris. Let the Portuguese kick the heads of a few lunas and let the Italians tickle the ribs with their knives of a few managers. What are the odds to the sugar barons? Other lunas and other managers can be obtained, all they care for is cheap, cheaper and cheapest labor, and high, higher and highest dividends.

If the people of these islands continue in their apathetic attitude towards the future of Hawaii and without a protest allow the agents of our millionaire planters to carry things in Congress in the sole interest of their employers, they deserve to be pushed to the wall and to find themselves some day crowded into the sea of poverty by the cheap ignorant hordes with which the country is to be swamped by the Government of Mr. Dole, at present President of the Hawaiian Republic by the grace of W. G. Irwin & Co.

The official organ has expressed deep regret recently because the Kamehameha schools were located in Honolulu and it predicts disaster to the Hawaiians who leave their rural districts and go to the cities. It would evidently have suited the Advertiser to have the Hawaiians treated as the North American Indians are, and placed on Reservations on Molokai and in the valleys. The Hawaiians have found out however, that they must take their stand in the battle for existence in which the fittest survives and they have learned that nothing can be gained in sitting on the banks of their taro patches and seeing plantations taking their water or forcing them into costly lawsuits and watching the Chinese cultivating plantation lands and underselling the products of the Hawaiians. The Kamehameha schools are in the right location, near the throbbing center of this little country. Here the young generation will learn the stern demands of life, will understand that life is not beer and skittles, and we trust will devote a serious thought to and take an active interest in the future of Hawaii.

THE HAWAIIAN GOVERNMENT BILL

Synopsis of the Bill as Introduced in Congress, and Amended, by Senator Cullom

(Publication Commenced on June 8th.)

Section 94. That the following officers shall receive the following annual salaries to be paid by the United States; the Governor $5000; the Secretary of the Territory $3000; the United States Marshal $2000; the United States District Attorney $2000. And the Governor shall receive annually, in addition to his salary, the sum of $500 for stationery, postage and incidentals; also his traveling expenses while absent from the capital on official business, and the sum of $2000 for his private secretary.

Section 95. That imports from any of the Hawaiian Islands, into any State or any other Territory of the United States, of any dutiable articles not the growth, production or manufacture of said Islands, and imported into them from any foreign country after July 7, 1898, and before this Act takes effect, shall pay the same duties that are imposed on the same articles when imported into the United States from any foreign country.

Section 96. That the Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries of the United States is empowered and required to examine into the entire subject of fisheries and the laws relating to the fishing rights in the Territory of Hawaii, and report to the President touching the same, and to recommend such changes in said laws as he shall see fit. The sum of five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be immediately available for the purposes aforesaid.

Section 97. That all laws of the Republic of Hawaii which confer exclusive fishing rights upon any person or persons are hereby repealed, and all fisheries in the sea waters of the Territory of Hawaii, not included in any fish pond or artificial inclosure, shall be free to all citizens of the United States, subject, however, to vested rights; but no such vested rights shall be valid after three years from the taking effect of this Act unless established as hereinafter provided.

Section 98. That any person who claims a private right to any such fishery shall, within two years after the taking effect of this Act, file his petition in a circuit court of the Territory of Hawaii, setting forth his claim to such fishing right, service of which petition shall be made upon the Attorney-General, who shall conduct the case for the Territory, and such case shall be conducted as an ordinary action at law.

That if such fishing right be established, the Governor of the Territory of Hawaii, may proceed, in a manner provided by law for the condemnation of property for public use, to condemn such private right of fishing to the use of the citizens of the United States upon making just compensation, which compensation, when lawfully ascertained, shall be paid out of any money in the treasury of the Territory of Hawaii not otherwise appropriated.

Section 99. That quarantine stations shall be established at such places in the Territory of Hawaii as the Supervising Surgeon-General of the Marine-Hospital service of the United States shall direct, and the quarantine regulations for said Islands relating to the importation of diseases from other countries shall be under the control of the government of the United States. The quarantine station and grounds at the harbor of Honolulu, together with all the public property belonging to that service, shall be transferred to the Marine Hospital Service of the United States, and said quarantine grounds shall continue to be used and employed until the station is changed to other grounds which may be selected by order of the Secretary of the Treasury.

BY AUTHORITY.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE,
HONOLULU, H. I., June 13, 1899.
Notice is hereby given that RICHARD IVERS has this day been appointed Collector General of Customs for the Hawaiian Islands, vice Frank B. M. Stocker, resigned.
(Signed) S. M. DAMON,
122½ St. Minister of Finance.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

L. A. T., the D-vil's partner is sick again and will, according to his organ, depart by the Rio Janeiro. What scares you this time, Lorrin dear, is it Oiaa?

It was whispered on the waterfront to-day that the non-arrival of the Nippon-Maru was due to the fact that the Captain had lost the Maro on the way and was afraid of being arrested if his ship should appear in port without a Maro for indecent exposure.

The June term of the Supreme Court will open on Monday next and will be held in the room on the first floor formerly occupied by the Legislature. The change has been made owing to the Chief Justice being temporarily crippled, probably as a result of having his leg "pulled" by the recently departed E. Allen Sherman.
