KAPIOLANI.

A noble lady, loyal to her Hawaiian subjects, a good woman beloved and respected by all, passed away this morning, when her soul went to the unknown land, the destiny of all.

Kapiolani, the gentle Queen, is dead, and the Hawaiians bewail the misfortunes which caused grief to the royal family of their high chiefs. Only a few months ago the remains of the sweet young Princess, the pride of Hawaii, was carried from under the dome of the old Stone Church to the Royal Mausoleum, and now again the people of Hawaii are called upon to follow one of their illustrious chiefs to the last resting place.

The late Queen Kapiolani was a grand type of the civilized Hawaiian. She belonged to the class of Hawaiians which, alas! is fast disappearing; the men and women who believe in honorable principles and, although ignorant of the language, customs and manners of the foreigner, are superior to many a man or woman boasting of civilization and of the virtues of the Anglo-Saxon race.

The late Queen was always generous, but she was not a spendthrift. She did not throw her money away, but she was always ready to help where help was needed, and many Hawaiians will deeply miss their royal benefactress. She took a deep interest in the welfare of her people, and at her request the Kapiolani Maternity Home was established, an institution which has been of enormous benefit to the Hawaiians, and which will stand as an honorable monument to the memory of the late chiefess.

Queen Kapiolani was born on the 31st of December, 1835, and brought up as the young aliis were in those days. She married David Kalakaua who, in 1874, was elected king, and as his consort she became Queen of Hawaii. She visited the States and Europe at Queen Victoria's 50 years jubilee and great attention was shown to her in London and other capitals of Europe. After her husband's death she went into retirement and appeared rarely at any official or public functions, but at all times did she take a deep interest in the affairs of the country, and when the fact became known to her that the independence of her country was lost, that the flag, which had floated over her while a Queen had been lowered, she lost heart and, we believe, welcomed the call of the grim reaper.

The deceased Queen had no issue. The two princes, her nephews survive her and mourn in her death the loss of a devoted friend who has been as a mother to them. And with them does Hawaii weep at the irreparable loss of one who always will be remembered as a true and good royal woman and a noble Hawaiian.

The President is more than ever determined to enforce the censorship on despatches from Manila, and General Otis has firmly warned the press correspondents of the consequences to result from attempting to evade censorship.

OUR FOURTH ANNIVERSARY.

To-day we very modestly raise our beavers to ourselves, and most courteously greet ourselves with the toast to ourselves of "many happy returns of the day to ourselves—THE INDEPENDENT—and long may we wave."

On the 24th day of June, 1895, we were impelled upon the community through certain social and political conditions then existing. We met with attack and re-attack, persecution and re-persecution, butts and rebuttals, and even threats of imprisonment, destruction and annihilation but our cause must have been just for we have thriven upon the treatment.

We are small, but we are lusty and are very rapidly outgrowing the "dress" we wear. We are, however, very sympathetic with our old clothes, but we fear we soon be compelled to discard them and appear in the more fashionable garb of our inflated contemporaries, for our patronage is swelling beyond our powers of accommodation with the means at hand.

If THE INDEPENDENT is to be judged by the popular favor accorded to it during its progress on the path of opposition to things that should lawfully be opposed, and in encouragement of those things that should be popularly encouraged, it has no cause to regret its appearance and continuance on the public stage. Planted as a little acorn it has developed into a stalwart young oak tree whose spreading branches bring hopeful relief to many.

We again eventually salute ourselves, and quoting from Horace, he of ancient days, says:

"Serus in coelum redeas, dinque Laetus intersis populo," which being metamorphosed into dog-English may mean:

Don't go to Heaven too soon, but let thy reign With bounteous blessings fill thy wide domain.

Aloha! INDEPENDENT.

The Hawaiian Labor Problem.

Reports from Washington are to the effect that the rapid increase of Japanese immigration to Hawaii has attracted the attention of our Government and has given rise to no little concern in official circles. It is added the Bureau of Immigration has undertaken to devise means whereby the immigration may be checked, but inasmuch as Congress failed last winter to enact any permanent form of government for the Islands, it is not easy to see what can be done.

The subject was discussed at some length during the last session of Congress, and it was noted even then that the Japanese immigration was growing to ominous proportion. Statistics were cited showing that from August 12, 1898, when our flag went up at Hawaii, to January 6, 1899, there were imported 7630 contract laborers of all races, and from January 6 to February 2 there had been added 2782, making 10,412 in all. Some were Europeans, but most were Japanese and Chinese, the Japanese being in the majority.

It is now asserted on authority of an official report from Honolulu that since the annexation of the Islands more than 12,000 Japanese have arrived at that port, and no reason exists in believing the report to be exaggerated. In fact, Japanese labor has been highly valued on the plantations, and the planters are doubtless doing all they can to encourage its immigration.

We directed attention a short time ago to the unsatisfactory situation of white labor in the Islands, as reported by the Hawaiian papers themselves. It seems to be generally accepted there, as has been repeatedly said by The Call, that white labor is unfitted for the cultivation of tropical sugar fields. Of course the United States cannot consent to permit the planters to import coolie laborers to compete with the white labor of this country. Hence the concern among the official at Washington and the efforts now being made to devise some means of preventing a further Japanese immigration.

According to the Inter-Ocean, Senator Cullom, president of the Hawaiian Commission, said in a recent interview that the commission has already done its duty in this case. It has given the planters of Hawaii to understand that if they do not conform to the general policy of this country to prevent labor importation the plan of government for Hawaii now pending in Congress will be changed, and be less satisfactory to them.

It is clear from the reports of the increase in the importation of cheap labor that the menace of the commission is not so effective as Senator Cullom thinks. The Government at Washington will have to exert itself vigorously to put an end to the evil, and the sooner the exertion is made the better.—S. E. Call.

They Are Premature.

The "warlike" members of the Anglican Church who apparently desire to break up the Church in Hawaii have felt very jubilant because Bishop Thompson of Mississippi has been invited to visit the Islands. The following paragraph from the latest number of the Diocesan Magazine may be of interest to the clique who tries to control the Church in Hawaii.

IT WOULD BE UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

If, as stated by the Hawaiian Star of June 6, Bishop Thompson, of Mississippi (not Louisiana) intends paying a visit to the Islands, it is safe to say that his visit will be wholly unofficial. It would be contrary to the Constitution of the Church in the United States for him to act here in the manner indicated by the Star. Art 4 of the Constitution enacts as follows:

Every Bishop of this Church shall confine the exercise of his Episcopal Office to his proper Diocese, unless requested to ordain, or confirm, or perform any other act of the Episcopal Office in another Diocese by the Ecclesiastical Authority thereof.

We are in a position to state that Bishop Thompson has received no such request from the Ecclesiastical Authority of the Diocese of Honolulu.

DEATH OF QUEEN KAPIOLANI.

Hawaiians Mourn The Loss of a Noble Chiefess.

Queen Dowager Kapiolani, relict of the late lamented King Kalakaua died this morning at her Waikiki residence at 8:45, after a prolonged illness and in the presence of her nephews, Prince David Kawanakoa and Prince Kalaniansole, and a number of her retainers.

The late Alii had been sick for several months and life was prolonged only through the careful attendance of Drs. Herbert and Humphries who did all in the power of medical science to preserve the life of the royal lady or at least alleviate her sufferings.

Queen Kapiolani went to sleep this morning, the sleep from which there is no awaking. She passed away without a struggle or pain to join the beloved friends who have gone before.

The Hawaiians were sadly grieved when the death message was sent to them and a large number proceeded at once to Waikiki to offer their help and wail over the beloved Queen.

When the news of the death of Her Majesty reached the Executive the flags on the government buildings were immediately lowered at half mast and the services of the police department placed at the disposal of those having charge of the funeral which probably will take place about three weeks from to-day. The representatives of the foreign powers were notified of the sad event and at once placed their flags at half mast.

Arrangements are being made for the erection of a suitable building in which the remains of the noble Alii can lie in state and receive the homage which Hawaiians and foreigners alike will offer to her memory.
