IAUKA'S BOND.

The Advertiser figures that C P Iauka will have to furnish a bond in the sum of $390,000 before taking office, and thinks that he will have difficulty in getting it. The Organic Act says: "The amount of bonds of the Treasurer and Assessor and Tax Collector shall not be less than the greatest amount of money shown by the books of the County to have been in the hands of the officer at any one time during the preceding year."

There was no "county" and no "county assessor" during the "preceding year," and consequently Section 61 of the law referred to cannot be made to apply to the case. Taxes collected by Mr Pratt have all been Territorial taxes, the property of all the Islands, not of any county.

Chapter 13 of the County Act prescribes that the minimum of the Assessor's bonds shall be $30,000, and in the absence of any county statistics, that sum would most naturally be the amount of the bond. It could not be more, for it has not and cannot be shown that the "County of Oahu" has taken in, through the "county" tax collector a larger sum than $30,000 during the "preceding year," or 1903.

And now we know for certainty that there is no law for contesting an election. It's a fine predicament that the people and country are placed in.

THE MACARTHUR CASE.

General MacArthur, as commander of this military district, had a private military talk with Colonel Jones, commander of the First Regiment, as was his right. His talk was in the nature of cautioning the Colonel as to what should be done in certain contingencies, and of enjoining the Colonel in the matter of increasing the National Guard forces and, incidentally, procuring an armory. Colonel Jones submitted such parts of the talk as he remembered to Governor Carter, which while not improper, was not necessary. Governor Carter gave Colonel Jones' report out for publication, and in so doing betrayed military secrets. The only difference in this case and that of the Dreyfus case is that Carter did not receive pay for the secrets of the military department, and was undoubtedly ignorant of the trouble his indiscretion would cause. General MacArthur will be hauled over the coals by the War Department, and there is bound to be sharp correspondence between Berlin and Washington in regard to the matter, all growing out of a perfectly proper conversation between a commanding officer and a subordinate officer. Carter should quit trying to run a government and go back to football.

"SELECT" WOMEN'S SOCIETY

And so we are to have a new women's society to be called the "Daughters of Hawaii," whose object is "to perpetuate the memory and spirit of old Hawaii and to preserve the nomenclature and correct pronunciation of the Hawaiian language." Only those who were born in the Islands and are descended from residents prior to 1860 will be eligible to membership. From this limitation as well as from the names of those made known, it is another one of the many "select" societies of descendants of missionaries, who have taken upon themselves the right of usurpation as is the custom of that class, especially when there are yet many of the rightful ones who have the prior right to be known as such by birth, descent and nationality.

We do not for a moment deny that Mesdames Dillingham, Severance, Dickey, Weaver and Jones and Miss Anna Paris have no right to be known as such, but we think they should qualify themselves as the "White Daughters of Hawaii," for all of them were accidentally born here, not because they wanted to, but because they could not help themselves, their parents having come here in the course of the Gospel. The only rightful daughters are those of pure aboriginal origin and those tainted, and there are many among them better capable "to preserve the nomenclature and correct pronunciation of the Hawaiian language" than their white sisters. And again, we don't think that these accidental white daughters know the Hawaiian moles so as to preserve the purity of the native language intact from gross and vulgar usage, as many of the present day terms have been mere corruptions of Anglicized words and since become merged in the language of the present. But of the past, its purity can only be found in the moles, legends and myths, with their many hidden meanings in which the language is profuse and rich with references and allusions, at times allegorical, mellifluous, resonant and mellow.

Those who do not mix among the natives, but hold themselves aloof in their narrow and select circle, not knowing the Hawaiian code of morality and virtue, cannot know how to preserve the Hawaiian ideal of purity in their language; that province is theirs alone, and not with the white women, who have nothing in common with their aboriginal sisters. As a matter of fact, they hold themselves far above, both in the moral and social sphere, that their native sisters are too timid and backward in pushing themselves forward to an equality with them, and therefore, for that reason, the white women cannot preserve the purity of the Hawaiian language, for the simple reason they don't know it as well.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

If there is to be no justice left in the country, the sooner the people know it, the better. Then, on top of that, the people should guard themselves and provide for ways of overcoming the difficulty. All is not hopeless, but there's much to hope for.

Introducing a bill in Congress and then holding a town meeting to discuss whether or not such action should be taken is something like locking the stable after the horse has been stolen and shipped out of the country. There has been trickery in this Hatch mission business, and most people are on to the con in the wood-pile. This evening's meeting in Progress hall will give an opportunity for open expression, and an opportunity to cable for the horse that was stolen and for the arrest of the thief.

It is certain that the fleet of Admiral Evans will remain in this port until after Christmas. The Solace will not begin taking on supplies until Monday and as these will have to be assorted and arranged for the different vessels, she will probably not sail from the Coast before the last of next week, which will bring her here after Christmas. It will then take several days to distribute the supplies among the ships. Unless something very serious happens on one side of the Pacific or the other we are apt to have the fleet until after the New Year.

Our investigation of the MacArthur interview affair shows that the responsibility for the distortion and publication of a very reasonable, sensible and timely conversation must rest upon Colonel Jones and Governor Carter. General MacArthur urged upon Colonel Jones the importance of a strong National Guard on Oahu, and in doing so called attention to a number of things that might happen in case of a war with some foreign power, mentioning especially the probable situation in case Germany should attack the Monroe Doctrine. General MacArthur's language was strong, it is true, but it was to military men and for military purposes, and was, therefore, perfectly proper. Colonel Jones overstrained the conversation in his report of it to the Governor and Mr Carter committed the unpardonable blunder of giving Jones' report out for publication. The remainder of the blame lies with a yellow newspaper that exploited the matter in a sensational way. On the whole it seems to us that the blame for the tempest is upon the Governor.
