Honolulu Day At Stewart

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Two hundred Honoluluans held a grand reception at the Hotel Stewart last night. It was decided to make it an annual reunion event of all persons whatsoever connected with Hawaii. The date set for the annual event was August 19.

BATTLESHIP RUNS AMUCK

MARE ISLAND, Cal., Aug. 20.—The battleship South Dakota broke her mooring lines today and drifted out into the stream, colliding with the tugboat Unadilla, badly damaging the smaller craft. The South Dakota finally grounded on a mud bank. It is expected that the ship will be floated at high tide.

EXHIBITION CITY BURNED.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 20.—A raging fire destroyed the business district of this city today. The loss will amount to millions of dollars. No lives are reported lost.

BULLETIN PARTY IN YOSEMITE

Pleasantly Referred To By Evening Press Of San Francisco

The San Francisco Bulletin of Aug. 4 says of the Bulletin party: "The six young ladies who were the successful candidates in the voting contest of the Honolulu Evening Bulletin arrived in this city from Honolulu on the Matson Navigation steamer Wilhelmina, en route to Yosemite Valley and the Mariposa Grove of Big Trees, and are at the Mans Hotel. They will leave this city via the Southern Pacific at 9:49 this evening, to be gone one week. The party will return to Honolulu on the Wilhelmina, sailing August 31.

The following make up the party: Miss Emma Akamu, Miss Emma Sasaki, Miss Angie Pangolinan, Miss Sarah Coakett, Miss Mary McCabe, Mrs. C. W. Moore and Mrs. C. J. Beggs, chaperon.

The post of the same date says: "A party of six young women who were successful candidates in a voting contest recently conducted by a Honolulu newspaper left today from here for the Yosemite and Mariposa Grove of Big Trees. They will remain there one week, and will return to Honolulu August 31. They arrived here July 29.

Besides the chaperone, Mrs. C. J. Beggs, the party includes Misses Emma Akamu, Emma Sasaki, Angie Pangolinan, Sarah Coakett, Mary McCabe and Mrs. C. W. Moore.

FAMOUS VIOLINIST ENTERTAINS HOTEL GUESTS

CIRCLED GLOBE FIVE TIMES

When the American bark Nuuanu sailed from the port of New York the first part of this month, bound for Honolulu with a large shipment of general merchandise consigned to the agency of T. H. Davies & Co., Captain Walter Lyman Josselyn then commenced what is claimed his fifty-seventh voyage around Cape Horn.

The Nuuanu is now fourteen days out from the Atlantic coast port. For the smart bark to make the round trip to the islands required the great part of one year.

Captain Josselyn has to his credit twenty-five trips around the Cape of Good Hope, five times around the world and now has in his present trip to this port commenced his thirteenth voyage around the Horn as master of the bark Nuuanu.

Captain Josselyn has followed the sea for fifty-two years and it is said to his credit that he has spent this entire time with but six vessels.

The skipper of the Nuuanu will be remembered here as having written an interesting as well as elaborate history of his career.

In a statement made in New York before sailing for Honolulu, Captain Josselyn is credited with saying that he has served under five masters, four of whom went insane.

The Nuuanu is credited with having made some smart passages to the islands. Her cargo generally includes most everything ranging from kitchen ranges to needles or works of art. Staple groceries and the finest of silks and laces vie with each other in taking up the available cargo space of the four-masted bark.

The vessel is one of the few whose arrival here is always looked forward to with pleasurable anticipation.

How can a bachelor of arts be wedded to his art?

AFFIDAVITS PRODUCED IN ANDREWS CHARGES

$500 DRAFT ACCUSATION--$2500, ANDREWS DENIES

Before the Territorial Central Committee this afternoon, J. C. Cohen admitted that he had authorized Lorrin Andrews to draw a draft for $500. Cohen stated that this money was for "personal services" and had no connection with political work. The draft, Cohen admitted, was cashed during the early part of March, the time mentioned by Buchly in the charges against Andrews.

"I have borrowed money from Andrews and he has borrowed money from me," declared Cohen. "The $500 was for personal services."

Last night Cohen stated that he had never paid Andrews a cent.

Backed up by affidavits, the charges that have been made against Lorrin Andrews and J. C. Cohen were again brought before the Territorial Central Committee at its meeting which convened shortly after noon today.

In support of his affidavit, declaring that Cohen had stated to the executive committee of the anti-prohibitionists before the plebiscite that Lorrin Andrews would promise that no anti-liquor plank would be incorporated in the Republican platform, Buchly made a statement in which he declared that $500 of the funds contributed to the anti-prohibition fight here was sidetracked by Cohen for the benefit of Andrews.

Buchly further stated that for the $2500 asked for by Cohen in Andrews' behalf, that Andrews would further promise that no anti-liquor or anti-prohibition nominee would find a place on the Republican ticket.

"It was during the last week of March," stated Buchly, "that Andrews came to my office and made the proposition of $2500. We turned him down, and then he stated that he could get the money on the Coast. I went to the Coast on the same boat with Cohen, the Sierra, and a conference was held in San Francisco, at the office of the Calwa Wine Distributing Company, on the condition that would be made to assist in the anti-prohibition fight here.

Protect the Draft.

"At this meeting Ross of the Italian-Swiss Colony stated that $5000 would be contributed. Cohen then stated that the draft for $500 would have to be protected—that draft that went to Lorrin Andrews, according to Cohen's statement. Ross then stated that his contribution would

RATES RAISED HILO KICKS

Matson Line Said To Have Boosted Tariffs

Hilo business and commercial interests are said to have become much exercised over what is termed an increase of forty cents to the cost of bringing every ton of merchandise to that port. They charge the Matson Navigation line with levying a higher tariff, and the prediction is now made that the American-Hawaiian line will follow suit.

It is claimed that the rise in the freight tariff is a direct result of the combination that is claimed to have been effected between the Matson and the American-Hawaiian companies, which was first noticed in a decided jump in the rates on gasoline. Hilo people believe that they have been singled out as the only port where the reported raise will go into effect.

There is some talk of attempting to bring the matter before the Territorial authorities. It is claimed that the raise in rates is a direct violation of the Sherman act, and it is contended that it is a matter that should receive the attention of United States Attorney Breckens.

The charge is made nominally as lighterage between the ship as she lies in Hilo bay and the warehouses.

The Hawaii Herald claims that "the charging of forty cents per ton lighterage, however, will probably be received with a great deal of complaint, as it gives a tremendous profit to the company doing the work, which is, of course, the Matson company. According to two of the best authorities on this kind of work in Hilo, both being men who have personal contact with the work, the actual cost of lighterage is less than one-third of the extra sum demanded. One of those men estimated the actual cost as being eleven cents per ton and the other placed it at twelve cents. From this it will be seen

MANOA'S DEFY ON ANDREWS IN THEIR PRECINCT

Honolulu, T. H., Aug. 19, 1910.

A. L. C. Atkinson, Esq., Chairman, Republican Central Committee, Honolulu.

Dear Sir:—A request has been made to the undersigned, a committee appointed as a result of a meeting of a number of Republican voters in the 3rd Precinct, 4th District, that we appear before the committee appointed to consider the management of the Republican party and campaign in this County by Mr. Lorrin Andrews. This we do not care to do. We have no charges to prefer against the management of the party affairs at large by Mr. Andrews.

We believe, however, that the methods pursued by him in our precinct have not been for the good of the party, nor are they methods which we can countenance.

Accordingly we are continuing the fight we made against these methods at the last precinct election by planning to elect and send to the coming conventions delegations which, in our opinion, fairly represent all the voters of our precinct, including the business element.

Our ticket is already made up, and Mr. Andrews' name is not on it.

Therefore, whether or not, Mr. Andrews is retained by your committee, we propose to continue our fight along the lines indicated.

Truly yours,

WAIMANALO PAU GRINDING SOON

Crop Exceeds Estimate And Prospects Are Bright

Waimanalo plantation will finish grinding next week, and the total tonnage of sugar will amount to about 3500 tons. The estimate at the beginning of the season was 3500 tons, and Manager Chalmers went very near in estimating the exact figures.

All the company's cane has been harvested, and the mill at present is grinding outsiders' cane. The mill is running very slowly as the cane is being brought from little farmers' patches all over the place. The cane is going high in sugar contents, and the crop has been satisfactory in every way.

It has been the practice at Waimanalo, for the past twelve years, to burn instead of stripping for the last time. The burnt cane is harvested and ground within thirty-six hours, and there is little or no deterioration if it is all through the mills within that time.

Waimanalo young plant and ratoon cane looks remarkably well at present, and an abundant supply of water is increasing the tonnage per acre considerably. On the better lands Yellow Caledonia is planted, and on the slightly inferior fields, Rose Bamboo holds sway. The plantation is remarkably free of weeds and every indication of careful cultivation is to be seen on all sides.

The mosquito pest is somewhat abated at Waimanalo, and the little buzzers have been blown away by the stiff sea breezes that have been prevailing lately. The police who were down at Waimanalo with Sheriff Jarrett during the strike, had a terrible time with mosquitoes, and yesterday it was quite a pleasant surprise to find that the insects were not nearly so bad as they were at the time the trouble occurred the plantation.

COUNT OKUMA IS REMEMBERED

Abe Praises Hawaii's Hospitality And Beauty

Count Okuma, President of the University of Waseda, one of the most prosperous educational institutions in Japan, will be presented with special walking-sticks made in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The cane is in possession of Prof. Abe, the director of the Waseda baseball team, which is visiting Hawaii. It will be presented to the Count, upon the Professor's arrival in Japan. It is most magnificently polished, and is the gift of Rev. Sokabe of Honolulu, Hawaii.

Prof. Abe, who, through his manly and gentlemanly way, has won the confidence of Hawaii's people, is another lucky individual. He too, has been presented with a good and valuable walking stick by the reception committee of the Japanese Young Men's Association of Wailukea. The Professor is exceedingly pleased, because of the fact that it is made of a special specimen of Hawaiian wood. The Professor stated this morning that the crater of Kilauea was a marvel. He had seen volcanoes before, but none of them could be compared in beauty and splendor with that of Maunaloa.

The receptions tender them, he said were excellent, and the people whom they had met were most hospitable.

Judge Dole Declares And Void In Case Of Saiki

Judge Dole handed down decisions in the Federal Court morning by which both Neki and Jiro will have to pay back to the receiver from one Saiki just before he went into bankruptcy.

The cases in which the decisions were given were those of Hare Spencer, as trustee of M. J. Saiki against S. Nekomoto, and against S. Jiro.

The suit was brought in each case by a decree declaring the fact of money by the bankrupt to be referents to be null and void, but defendants be made to receive within four months the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. In his opinion in the case, Judge Dole states that it is perfectly clear the transfers were made in preference to these two creditors. Saiki owed Haddock & Co. and Neki & Co. large sums, which had promised to pay on a certain date, and instead of paying, he paid to various Japanese to whom he indebted the sum of $3000. He stated to the two largest creditors that he paid this money in preference.

The evidence proved, in the case of Judge Dole, that Saiki gave credit when he knew he was going under, with no intention of paying.

The payment of $500 to Neki and $670 to Jiro is declared void and sold, as both had reason to believe that they received this through preference.

WATERFRONT NOTES

IT IS REPORTED that with the first of the year the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company will inaugurate a six-days' service between Salina Cruz, San Francisco, Puget Sound and the Hawaiian Islands. At present the company has a five days' service in the big triangular route from Salina Cruz and San Francisco to Puget Sound and the Islands.

GARDEN ISLAND polo enthusiasts were in the main responsible for the early appearance of the steamer Kinau at the port this morning. This vessel is scheduled to arrive at Honolulu on Sunday morning.

IT WAS ANNOUNCED at San Francisco on August 1 that Bates & Chesbrock have purchased from the underwriters of London the wreck of the Pacific Mail steamer Indiana, which lies on Santa Marguerita Island.

THE MATSON Navigation steamer Nevada is scheduled to sail from Honolulu on Monday evening and will take on a shipment of eight hundred tons of sugar at this port before leaving for Port Allen, Kaunapali, Kahului and Hilo.

WITH THE BARKS Andrew Welch and Annie Johnson of the Matson Navigation Company laid up in Oakland Creek and the prospects that several other well-known sugar packers will shortly follow suit, it appears that the sailing ship service between San Francisco and the Hawaiian Islands has seen its best days.

SHIPPING at the port of Hilo at the time of departure of the steamer Mauna Kea included the American schooner Weatherwax and Gamble discharging lumber at the Railway wharf.

HENRY BRAUKSCHULLE, a fireman on the freighter Alaskan, was severely burned at San Francisco on August 1 when an oil heater exploded in the fore-cabin of the vessel.

TWENTY-THREE horses to be used by the Maui polo team in today's game arrived at the port last evening by the steamer Waiiale. This vessel also brought some stock and 200 cases of honey.

ACCORDING to a report brought to Honolulu by the steamer Mauna Kea the steamer Kaulani was loading at Honolulu, the Hilo at Kohala and the Nihaun at Honokaa at the time of departure of the Honolulu bound steamer.

THE STEAMER Nooka from Kaula ports has arrived with the following lines of cargo: 622 sacks paddy, 225 sacks rice, 29 bundles of hides and a quantity of sundries.

PURSER DONALD Kent of the Kinau reports the following sugar awaiting shipment on the Garden Island: K. S. M. 2000, G. & R. 1337, V. K. 1099, L. P. 3510, M. A. K. 37,802 and H. M. 5130 sacks.

THE BARKENTINE Irngard made an eighteen days' voyage from San Francisco to Hilo. The vessel is credited with being one of the smartest sailers that make the Hawaiian Islands.

THE SCHOONER S. C. Holmes with a full shipment of hard wood rail way ties taken on at Hilo departed for Redondo on last Wednesday.

WATERFRONT NOTES PASSENGERS ARRIVED

CAPTAIN KITT, acting skipper of the Pacific Mail steamer Monocella evidently did not make a hit with some of his passengers according to the story told by a San Francisco paper which states that the ship was in oriental waters on Independence day and the passengers decided to make the celebration of the fourth a big affair, for the reason, apart from the day itself, that they were on board one of the few ships that carried the American flag across the Pacific.

WITH A very large list of cabin passengers, the steamer Mauna Kea from Hilo and way ports has arrived.

THE AMERICAN-Hawaiian freighter Mission with a large shipment of general merchandise and supplies is reported to have sailed from Seattle for Honolulu on last Thursday.

A WIRELESS received last night from the Pacific Mail steamer Tenyo Maru announces the probable arrival of that vessel at Honolulu on or about eight o'clock on Monday morning.

THE INTER-Island steamer W. G. Hall will be dispatched for Kaula ports on Sunday morning taking the polo enthusiasts who arrived here this morning by the Kinau.

SUGAR to the amount of 5325 sacks from Hawaii ports has arrived at the port by the steamer Likelle. A shipment of 54 head cattle was brought by this vessel.

ACCORDING to a wireless the Matson Navigation steamer Enterprise from San Francisco for Hilo is expected to reach the Hawaii port on Monday.

THE BARKENTINE Benlela, bringing 930,000 feet of lumber for the Hilo Mercantile Co., arrived Tuesday afternoon, sixteen days out from Aberdeen.

CONSERVATION IS THE WORD

WOULD ACT NOW AND WAIT FOR BETTER LAWS.

First. Shall the remaining natural resources belonging to the Government, that is to the People of the United States, be administered in accordance with the best modern thought, in the interest of the Nation, or shall they continue as in the past, to be exploited under laws that admittedly work to the benefit of speculators and adventurers and often lead to spoliation and graft. The necessary corollary to an effective attempt to handle the natural resources for the benefit of the people is that where the existing laws are unutilized or insufficient to secure the desired ends, new legislation must be enacted by Congress that shall enable such results to be attained. This is the question now before Congress.

Second. Granting that it is desirable that the remaining natural resources be handled in a more systematic and less wasteful manner than they have been in the past, or than they can be under existing laws, shall the attitude of the executive officer charged with their administration be that of the strict constructionist, who says in effect "Is there any express and specific law authorizing or directing such action?" and who having found none, does nothing; or the attitude advocated by the law officers of the Roosevelt administration who said "Is there any justification in law for doing this desirable thing?" and having sought and found a legal justification, does what the public good demands be done. As Mr. Pinchot expressed it in his New Orleans speech last November, it is "the first duty of a public officer to obey the law but it is his second duty, and a class second, to do everything the law will let him do for the public good."

It is on this point that the differences of opinion between Mr. Pinchot and Secretary Ballinger chiefly hinge, apart of course from any personal considerations that may have come in on either side. Mr. Ballinger is a strict constructionist who while he declares himself to be strongly in favor of Conservation, holds that until there is a specific law to direct him, he may not legally take action, desirable though such action might be. Mr. Pinchot taking the other stand, says that unless the present laws specifically forbid doing this desirable thing, which is admittedly for the public good, let us, while working to get new and better laws enacted, take such action now, in line with the general intent of the whole body of the law, as will safeguard the public interests that are now in danger. Often it happens that to effect such action must be taken without delay. While we are waiting for new laws to be enacted, the coal or the water powers may be permanently lost to the people, beyond recovery. Are we not justified then in using such tools as we now have—presidential orders, temporary withdrawals and the like, until we can get better, provided always that the action taken is in line with the spirit of the law and is for the public good.

Third. And this is really the big question, for public opinion has now been so aroused that few thinking men are willing to be reckoned as contemplating the continued waste of our natural resources—and the second question is in the last analysis, after all but a phase of this larger question—this third question is then, "For whom are the natural resources to be exploited?" Are they for the permanent benefit and continued use of all the people, or are they to go to swell the private fortunes of a few greedy corporations? On the control of the remaining natural resources, more especially of the coal and the water powers, is going to depend pretty largely the outcome of the question, who is to determine the future development of the country? Is the control to rest with the people or with a merciless monopoly? This question, therefore really resolves itself into the still greater issue, is this nation to be managed by men for human welfare, or by money for profit?

Recent Events.
 To return now to the events of recent history. Just prior to going out of office Secretary Garfield set apart under an order of temporary withdrawal some 3,970,000 acres of public land controlling water powers throughout the West. Being a blanket order the total area necessarily included many small areas of private land, which being owned in fee simple by individuals obviously could not be affected by the withdrawal, although embraced within the total area covered by the order. Soon after coming into office Secretary Ballinger revoked this order and turned back into the class of land open for entry a considerable part of the area that had been withdrawn. This led to protests from the Forest Service and others, as the result of which, after some delay, a portion of the original area was again withdrawn. One of the contentions made in regard to Secretary Ballinger is that the opening up of these lands gave unnecessary opportunity to certain corporations to make filings on land controlling streams from which hydro-electrical energy can be developed. About this time, too, Secretary Ballinger revoked an arrangement between the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the Forest Service, whereby Indian forest lands belonging to certain tribes were being managed for the benefit of the Indians by the trained men of the Forest Service, under forest regulations. The Secretary claimed that this transfer of authority was not permissible, although it had previously been approved by the Secretaries of Agriculture and of the Interior. This action led to more ill feeling between the Departments, which was still further added to by the charges made in August by Mr. L. R. Glavis, Chief of the Field Division of the Land Office, that the high officials of the Interior Department were unduly favoring the claimants of certain valuable coal lands in Alaska known as the Cunningham claims. The gist of this matter is that within the boundaries of one of the National forests in Alaska are highly valuable coal fields. Many of the entries made on these lands are suspected to have fraudulent, through dummy entries and the like, but the claimants were pressing for the issuance of patents. Subsequent to his resignation as Land Commissioner and prior to his appointment as Secretary, Mr. Ballinger had been retained as counsel for the Cunningham interests. Briefly Glavis' charges are that on his return to office the Secretary unduly favored these claimants. Mr. Glavis submitted his charges directly to the President, who in a long and carefully worded letter, issued in September, stated that he failed to find the charges substantiated. Accordingly he exonerated Secretary Ballinger of all blame. Glavis was thereupon dismissed from the public service. At the same time President Taft issued a letter endorsing the policy of Mr.

RULES GOVERNING THE WRITING OF FORMAL NOTES

Correct spacing in writing a formal invitation or acknowledging one bespeaks good breeding. For example, in formal communications no word may be divided. If all syllables can not go on one line, the word must be begun on the line below. This is a rigid and inflexible rule, the only greater selection being to divide a proper name. To do this is absolutely unpardonable. Therefore to have invitation or acknowledgment, be it regret or acceptance, look as it should, care must be given to spacing, for margins on both left and right sides must be conformed to, although that on the right may be a trifle ragged in line. Yet the more perpendicular this can be made the better, and by writing a draught first the communication, when copied and sent, will be better.

Another point to be adhered to is that proper names shall be on lines by themselves, just as in engraved invitations, although there is more latitude in this. The word "accept" or "regret" may be on the first line with the name or names of those writing or sending, but under no circumstances may a word precede a name on a line. Whatever is written before must go on the line above. No line of a formal communication may begin with the word "and," or, indeed, any conjunction or preposition. When wording requires the use of such, spacing is always to be arranged so the small word will be the last on the line above, and sufficient should be made to make each line read as a phrase unbroken, as "accept with pleasure." Instead of "accept with," on one line, "pleasure" beginning the line below.

Also it is imperative that an invitation or acknowledgment written in the third person shall be kept on the front page. Etiquette does not approve of carrying it over to the fourth, and with planning this can always be done. Better use a larger sheet, limiting the phrases to the first page, than a smaller one, and turn the page for the finish.

Formal communications always have the date written in full at the lower left-hand corner.

Palmer Wood is mentioned as a possibility for the office of county treasurer of Hawaii. He is looked upon as the only man who can give La'ue the present incumbent a hard run for the office. As a Democrat, Woods is considered a strong man for the office.

Pinchot—Secretary Ballinger and Mr. Pinchot having crossed swords a few days earlier at the irrigation Congress at Spokane and at other meetings.

Ever since the early summer Collier's Weekly, in company with two or three other magazines, had been waging a campaign of increasing hostility against Secretary Ballinger. This apparently culminated in an article by Glavis, published during the autumn, in which he reiterated his charges against the higher officials of the Interior Department, when for a while things seemed to quiet down. In December Secretary Ballinger issued his annual report in which he recommends far reaching legislation in favor of Conservation. Indeed his suggestions are in practical accord with the most advanced utterances of the extreme conservationists, the essential points recommended being the systematic classification of the public domain, new coal land laws, the repeal of the "Timber and Stone Acts," the amendment of the Carey Act, and a comprehensive outline of a law for the control and administration of water power sites.

But this stream though calm on the surface was troubled. Criticism of the Interior Department did not cease, and finally in December came the demand for an investigation. After a vigorous debate in Congress the scope of this investigation was widened to include the Forest Service in the Agricultural Department as well as the Department of the Interior. While the appointment of the investigating committee was under discussion in Congress, a letter from Mr. Pinchot was read on the floor of the Senate by Senator Dolliver of Iowa in which Mr. Pinchot in defending two of his subordinate officers in the Forest Service, Mr. Overton W. Price, Associate Forester, and Mr. A. C. Shaw, Law Officer, both of whom had been active in keeping up the fight for the retention by the Government of the Cunningham claims, openly championed Glavis as a "most vigorous defender of the people's interests." This letter led President Taft, on January 7, to dismiss Mr. Pinchot, together with Messrs. Price and Shaw, from the Forest Service on the ground of insubordination.

A few days later the President transmitted to Congress a strong message in favor of Conservation, recommending that the suggestion in Secretary Ballinger's report be carried out. Simultaneously bills prepared under the direction of the President were introduced into Congress. These bills are now awaiting action, being items on the program of legislation advocated by the administration. The more important bills meet with the approval of the leading exponents of Conservation and whatever the outcome of the present investigation of the Interior Department, ought to be enacted into law. As has already been pointed out the revision and amendment of the existing laws relating to the natural resources is of the utmost importance, and must not be lost sight of in the dust raised by the side issues of this controversy.

President Taft has repeatedly shown his belief in the principles of Conservation. A further evidence of his attitude was the appointment (to succeed Mr. Pinchot) as Forester of the Agricultural Department of Henry S. Graves, Director of the Yale Forest School. Unquestionably next to Mr. Pinchot Prof. Graves is the most prominent forester in the United States. From his training, experience and long and intimate association with Mr. Pinchot in forest work, the Nation may rest assured that under Mr. Graves not only will the National forests be sanely and efficiently administered but also that the policies inaugurated by Gifford Pinchot will be continued and carried out.

This brings the matter down to date, for the investigation of the Interior Department now going on in Washington does not fall within the scope of this paper. The questions there involved are but incidental to the main problem that now waits to be settled; they constitute only a small part of the Conservation controversy. Until the investigation of the Interior Department is completed, the conservative thing is obviously to suspend judgment on the Secretary of the Interior, for before the investigation is over there should be ample opportunity for all the facts to be made known. It might however be said that to get at the truth of the matter one should rely on a study of the full report of the hearings and not on the faulty and often garbled accounts that appear in the newspapers.

It cannot too often be said that the real questions at issue are these: First: Shall the remaining natural resources be conserved? And second: If so, shall they not be administered for the benefit of all the people rather than for the use and profit of greedy monopolists? These are the questions that are before Congress; the issues that confront the Nation. Unless action is taken, and that speedily, damage will be done that will be irreparable. Unless new laws are enacted the coal, phosphate deposits, minerals, oil and water powers remaining in public ownership will pass into private control and be lost forever to the people as a whole. The issue is one that touches the very life of the Nation. The time for action is now. It is the duty of every man to be awake and to do his part.

COHEN'S $500

J. C. Cohen now admits that he paid Lorrin Andrews the disputed five hundred dollars "for personal services." Now who has Andrews been serving, Cohen or the Republican Committee? Presumably the purposes for which Cohen paid Andrews this money, is "my business."

THE "HARING."

After hearing the statements made at the noon meeting of the Republican Territorial Committee, it is certain that Lorrin Andrews has made it his business to eliminate certain elements of the Republican party and one of these is whatever element may be represented by the vote supporting John W. Cathcart for County Attorney.

WHAT ANDREWS DOES NOT DENY.

It is all very well to shout Democratic conspiracy and call hard names in connection with the definite charges that have been placed at the door of Lorrin Andrews and Joel C. Cohen. What the people want is the facts and all the facts.

Andrews in responding to the affidavit the contents of which he does not know, enters a sweeping denial. But he fails to tell his story until he has seen what the other fellow said.

Cohen also enters an equally sweeping denial and then in a controversy over a conversation with John C. Lane, declares that he told Lane that he, Cohen, was paying runners whose names Andrews sent to him.

Thus we have it on the assertion of Cohen, which Andrews heard and did not deny, that the manager of the Republican party who is paid a regular salary by the Republican committee was, during the plebiscite fight, sending men to Cohen and these men Cohen was paying.

Cohen says that what he did with his money, is his business. What the community wants to know is whether the Republican Territorial Committee can view with unconcern, and then endorse the action of their paid officer, who in his capacity as the manager for the party was naming men to be paid by Mr. Cohen in any of his political or semi-political enterprises.

faithful or faithless to his trust. That's the point at issue. This talk about conspiracy and turning the Republican party over to the Democrats is buncombe, as far as the average man can make out. Each of the men whom Cohen makes the special object of his attack, has declared publicly and privately that the present liquor law is all right and should stand as it is. If it were true that the Republican party was to be padded over to the Democratic fold, and if it were possible to deliver any such foolish package, the Democrats would hardly be such fools—though the Democrats do some silly things—to come out with any scheme for tampering with the liquor law. They, or any other party approving such a move, would be so unmercifully dumped that they wouldn't know which end they were on. The people would do to them what they did to the Prohibitionists, and then some.

So this argument of Cohen's does not work out. He can make all the charges he wants regarding conspiracies, but the public in its final analysis takes into consideration the horse sense of all men. What's more, in this particular connection, the facts will show that the charges laid by men associated with the liquor business, which charges implicate Andrews and Cohen, were not made on their own initiative but were presented to citizens of Honolulu in refutation of the reckless assertions that Cohen has been making in his fury to gain support for his Senatorial candidacy.

The pith of the situation so far as the Republican Central Committee has to do with it, is the activities of Andrews. He, at the time this is written, has not been heard in specific answer to the affidavits.

As remarked before, Cohen declared openly that he, as an Anti-Prohibition worker, was paying men that Andrews, the manager of the Republican party, named for him. Andrews heard this and did not deny it.

Now what business had Andrews as the organizer of the Republican party to have any finger in the plebiscite pie anyway?

Was it not distinctly understood that the plebiscite fight was to be conducted entirely independent of the political parties?

Was it not accepted that the Republican organization of all other organizations should keep out of the bitter strife which the Prohibition contest was certain to engender.

Did J. P. Cooke, when he employed Andrews, tell him that it would be all right to pick out Republican workers or Cohen's service?

If not, what in the name of all that is decent and fair in politics and the ordinary square deal, was Andrews doing furnishing any Prohibitionist or Anti-Prohibitionist with the names of men associated with the Republican organization, these men to be paid by Joe Cohen or any other plebiscite campaigner, for Prohibition or against it?

That's what the party managers went to face as one point deserving most serious consideration in this matter even with the facts that are now known and admitted.

Was Andrews, as the paid organizer of the party, authorized to turn over to his workers, or pick out Republicans to be paid by Cohen or anyone else? If he dabbled in the plebiscite politics was he doing his duty?

And do the Republican managers feel that Andrews was true to his trust as the party representative when he thus connected himself and his party in the mix-up of the plebiscite?

The people await with more than ordinary concern the action and declaration of the committee, that will show what sort of political methods are upheld by the men primarily responsible.

And the more children a woman has the less time she has for attending mothers' meetings.

Porto Rican Takes Cash From Man At Point Of Gun

At nine o'clock last night a call was sent to the police station for an officer, and the hurry-up message came from a store at the corner of King and Punchbowl streets. It appears that a Porto Rican dashed into the store, just as the Chinese proprietor was closing for the night and, drawing a knife, demanded that the contents of the till be handed over to him. The Chinese at once closed with continued.

the holdup man, and wrested the knife from his possession. The Porto Rican, thereupon, drew a revolver, and compelled the Chinaman to drop the knife, and hand over all the cash he had in his possession.

Bicycle Officer Holbron, who arrived on the scene a few minutes after the alarm had been sent into the police station, was within a few yards of the store when he heard a scuffle, and then saw a man dash out of the store and make towards the Territorial Stables. The officer followed the man but lost him in the darkness.

Chief McNeill was notified of the affair, and at once took up the hunt; the Porto Rican, who is described as being very dark, and having peck marks on his face, was traced to the stables, but nothing else was seen of him last night. This morning the Chief had a couple of Porto Ricans arrested on suspicion, and some time today they will be confronted with the Chinese who was robbed of the sum of $9.39, which was all the store till him. The Chinese at once closed with continued.

The 1911 Chalmers

A Triumph in Initiative Rather than Imitation

In length of wheel base, type of motor, suspension and price, the Chalmers 1911 remains the same. In point of refinement, finish and luxury it is advanced—thus giving more than ever before, for the same price. Proved by every test, practical and theoretical, the Chalmers Car today remains the WORTHIEST car built in America, for a moderate price.

In the manufacture of automobiles, BRAIN POWER counts for more than HORSE POWER. Designed by one of the greatest of automobile engineers, the 1911 Chalmers, detail for detail, is the result of far sighted initiative, and executive ability to the extent that the Chalmers HAS NEVER COPIED competitors, while THEY HAVE ALL COPIED THE CHALMERS.

While the Chalmers construction, size and price remain the same, others have not only had to copy the size, details and construction of the Chalmers as nearly as possible without infringing, but have also had to increase the price and yet give less than the Chalmers.

Our allotment is decreasing and our orders are increasing.

SENATOR FRYE ILL. AND MAY RETIRE.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 15.—The Maine Legislature will have to elect two United States Senators. Senator Hale has announced that he will retire, but has retracted the announcement, according to his friends, and will be in the contest. In any event the Legislature must elect some one to the Hale seat this winter. Senator Frye, whose term does not expire until 1913, is at the Hangeley lakes so ill that it is expected he will announce his retirement in time for the Legislature to act. Former Governor Cobb and Judge Frederick A. Powers of the Maine supreme court are the contestants for Senator Hale's place. Representative Burleigh has been slated to succeed Senator Frye. VATICAN AWAITS SPAIN'S ACTION

ROME, Aug. 19.—Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state, remained today at his summer villa on Monte Mario. His absence from Rome was construed generally as indicating that no immediate developments bearing on the strained relations between the Vatican and the Spanish government were expected.

It was learned that the attitude of the Holy See is unchanged. The reopening of the official negotiations is considered impossible, unless the government of Spain exhibits, not only by its words but through its deeds, a sincere desire to reach an understanding by acting. It is said, as any correct government would act in the premises. By this is meant that Spain would withdraw the legislative matters that deal solely with the contended points.

IN BUSINESS CIRCLES

This has been what might be termed an averagely dull week in business circles but there have been not a few events that have served to bring out in concrete form the splendid prosperity which the city and the Territory have been and are now enjoying.

First of all was the annual report of the President of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Morgan was able to secure for his report the figures on our commerce for the fiscal year closed with June. These show that during the year just closed Hawaii's exports to the mainland and to foreign countries reached the record-breaking total of $46,486,412, and our imports amounted to $25,138,247.

The major portion of our exports is sugar but the new industry of pineapples is coming up to a figure that is worth noting. The output of pineapples has increased from 1909 cases in 1909 to 519,909 cases for the season just closed. Rice has nearly surrendered its position held so long as the export second of importance. The crop of the Territory is now valued at $2,500,000.

Coffee is steadily increasing as a profitable crop in spite of the general opinion that it is a ruined industry. Although the Chamber of Commerce report did not happen to mention the fact, the output of the great coffee district, Kona, will be larger this year than ever before in the history of the islands. Sisal is also doing well and cotton is making some tremendous strides to the front as an industry of no mean proportions. Trees of some of the larger rubber plantation will also come into bearing this year.

Tobacco is making a place for itself and according to all indications in Kona, where the largest tobacco enterprises are being carried on, some splendid financial results are to be scored this year for tobacco. A great crop is being grown that is giving the tobacco company all it can do to provide the barns. The leaf is good and the people cultivating it are entirely satisfied with the returns. The people who cure, handle and market the crop will also make a first class profit unless something goes wrong with the curing process, or unexpected and untoward happening that sometimes dog the path of the pioneer, are experienced.

All these things spell prosperity and in all the newer industries it is noticeable that the homesteader, or small individual planter predominates. Everyone should give thanks that he is successful.

There is not an industry in the list of any considerable proportions, that is not a standing argument for home investment of funds reaped from the productive fields of the islands.

Oahu Railway.

Another interesting and important reflection of the prosperity of the island of Oahu in particular was the report of the Oahu Railway & Land Co., that held its annual meeting on Friday afternoon. This important transportation, enterprise showed gross earnings of over a million dollars for the year closing with June 30. The net earnings of the company for 1910 were $28,717.68 in excess of 1909. The number of passengers carried in 1909 were 494,487 and for 1910 617,719. A dividend of nine per cent was maintained throughout the year. The rolling stock and equipment of the company are in good condition and the extensions have made good.

Sugar Prices.

Reminders that the season has not seen the best of the sugar price came in the form of an advance in the price of sugar to 4.425, where it has held for several days and today further advanced to 4.43. There are several thousand tons yet to go to the market, and the prospect is that the average price for the full season will rule above 4.27, which was the average secured for the crop up to Saturday last.

Stocks have not followed the trend of the sugar market by any means. There seems to be a general feeling that stocks reached their top notch during the last season and now lower figures in the price of sugar may be expected, and stocks go down. The average man can't believe that Hawaii is to have three good seasons, one right after the other, but the sugar circulars now coming in bear no witness of any serious drop in the price of raws. Willett & Gray's latest circular in giving a quotation for new-crop sugars for October-December delivery of 4.46 parity. This indicates that a good level of prices will be maintained though there appears to be no threat of such a shortage as held the market so strong this year. Europe will suffer in its total output on account of the poor seed for the beet fields.

Stocks.

Stocks have been dull though the money market is very easy and no good loan goes begging. In the number of shares Olan has held the lead for the week. This stock started up the early part of the week and gradually strengthened till the last sale on Friday was made at 6.75. Good reports continue to come in from the plantation and the advance of the stock to 7 and 8 and so on up the line is confidently predicted. For a dull season in speculating, it is doing very well.

McBryde has weakened, the last sale being at 6.125. This is brought about by the short crop, but the condition of the plantation has steadily improved so far as water and new crop—the important details—are concerned.

Waiaina has strengthened up quite a little although the once expected extra dividend, will not be forthcoming. The stock sold at 139 the latter part of the week, and will probably hold in the vicinity of that figure.

Oahu has had the usual vicissitudes. On Tuesday it sold at 31.125 and on Friday fifteen shares came out on the board at 30.50, which seems to bear out the prediction that Oahu may go to 30, at which price there are plenty of buying orders.

Ewa has sagged an eighth, the last sale being at 33.625. Hawaiian Commercial is strong at 41. Onome came out on Friday the first time for a long while. It sold between boards at 48.25, the last previous quotation being 45.50. The bidding has become up in a way to suggest that someone expects something special. Honokaa has gone up an eighth, and is now being bought readily at 18.375.

These cover the stocks on which there has been any active bidding. Outside the sugar list, Brewery has sold at 21.875, Hilo Railway common at 12 and Hawaiian Electric at 150, the last previous reported sale being at 150.

Wharves and Landings.

Another of the numerous commissions appointed by the last Legislature has turned in its report, the Commission to Investigate Wharves and Landings. On general principles the Commission believes in government ownership or control under government supervision, but it finds a condition at the small landings that makes public control inadvisable. The business of the smaller landings is so small that the Government could not only not afford to operate in an independent competitive landing, but could not take over the property and operate it as cheaply and efficiently as is now being done by private holders. The commission finds a condition at Kahului not altogether to its liking but it suggests a practical way out of it.

Among the new transportation ventures now talked about is the Kona Railway scheme of Surveyor Wall and his associates to whom a franchise was granted by the last Congress. Mr. Wall went to Kona this week to start his surveys. He was accompanied by Col. Samuel Parker, who will look over the situation from an investor's standpoint.

Chas. J. McCarthy announced this week the sale of his famous Criterion saloon to C. A. Peacock. The price is reported to be $25,000.

Forester Hosmer reports that the reforestation project on the mountains above Waiaina has been nearly completed. This will be one of the most comprehensive reforestation projects that has been undertaken under Territorial control.

Attention was called to the tourist business this week by the arrival of the magnificent liner Zealandia on the Canadian-Australian run and the coming of the Mongolia with a large list of through tourist passengers. According to all reports the tourist season is now all the year round. Every steamer brings a sprinkling of visitors, sometimes larger and sometimes smaller, but always some.

Japanese about town have the report that the steamers of the Japanese lines will not stop at this port when the deal is completed with the Western Pacific Railway, as a result of which the T. K. K. boats are presumed to be free from the agreement with the Pacific Mail. The report has not been authoritatively confirmed.

Owing to the renewed interest in sugar price conditions the following from Willett & Gray's latest circular is given:

Raws. When it is considered that two of the largest refineries in New York continued closed in consequence of later troubles, thus materially reducing the demand, the raw sugar market has done well to remain steady throughout this week.

A fair volume of business has been done at current quotations of 3c. & f. for Cuba, and 4.36c. landed for Porto Rico, including prompt shipment and second half August clearance to New York, and part for Boston; during the early part of the week the sales were made privately.

Some holders think they will do better by waiting for the expected increased demand after the strike is settled, and they may not be disappointed.

Receipts at the United States four ports for the week were heavy, 56,311 tons, but will probably be smaller next week, while meetings (45,000) keep up pretty well notwithstanding the strike.

The receipts in Cuba continue rather larger than last year's, and the weather there is favorable for the next crop.

Our usual cables giving total Cuban production to end of July, and exports from Java for month of July, have not yet been received.

Java is not freely offered, and those obtainable are wanted more in Europe than in America; a bid of 14s. 1-1-2d. "floating landing" (equal to 13s. 7-1-2d. c. & f. to New York, or 4.70c. landed) was made by United Kingdom buyers, and was refused for a cargo shipped first half July. The American refiners are not interested in Javas at present, as they can buy Cuban sugars and carry them more cheaply, until the time when Javas can arrive.

In response to our special inquiry, we have today received cable advice from Batavia that India will probably import this year more sugar from Java than last year, notwithstanding the increase in the sugar crop of India. Java makes a grade of sugar specially suited to the wants of India, the trade in which is growing rapidly.

As Hongkong must also draw on Java more heavily than formerly to replace the Philippine sugars now unavailable for that port, it is evident that the shipments from Java to Europe and to America this year will be considerably reduced.

Our special cable advices received today show large shipments (20,000 tons) from the Philippines to the United States during July.

European markets are 11-24, lower for cane sugars, but 3d. higher for speculative, beet sugar, August delivery, being quoted at 14s. 11-1-4d. f. o. b., Hamburg, the parity of 5.18c. for centrifugals at New York. September beet is quoted at 13s. 11-1-4d., the parity of 4.97c. for centrifugals, which looks low to some people compared with August, but it is really full up, being 3-4d. higher than the quotation by mail. During September the old beet crop merges into the new crop, the balance of the old and first production of the new crop being available during that month.

New crop beet for October-December delivery is quoted 3-4d. higher for the week at 11s. 7-1-2d., the parity of 4.46c. for centrifugals, and this should be taken as an index of values two or three months hence.

Reports of the new European beet crops are generally favorable, except in France, where the roots suffered from too much rain during July, but some improvement there has recent, ly been noted. We give elsewhere statement of preliminary tests of the growing beets taken in Germany, showing a better condition than at same time last year, but not up to that of two years ago.

FIRE PIT

CHANGES FORM

Letters from the Volcano House state that a wonderful transformation was made in the crater of Kilauea's volcano this week. The report states that an island of black lava has formed in the center of the active fire and that from the opposite ends of this island two cones are spouting red hot lava to a considerable height. Presumably the change there was a great lava slide which carried much of the old rim into the crater and following this the sulphur and smoke cleared from the crater and remained so for several days. The crater at present says the writer, "resembles a red sea of water with a volcanic island in the center."

PINCHOT TALKS OF HIS TRIP

Former Forester Denies Having Posed as Representative of Roosevelt.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 10. — Theodore Roosevelt held a secret conference today with James R. Garfield of Cleveland, former secretary of the Interior, and Gifford Pinchot of New York, deposed forester, who are regarded as two of the most ardent insurgents.

The two men whom Roosevelt numbers as among his closest friends, protested that they could not talk about their plans or the significance of their visit to Roosevelt. Pinchot said: "Colonel Roosevelt invited Mr. Garfield and me to visit him, and that's all there is to it."

When asked about his California trip he said that he made speeches there in behalf of Hiram Johnson, a candidate for the republican nomination for governor, and for William Kent, a candidate for the republican nomination for congress from the Sacramento district. "I delivered eight speeches, which is four more than I intended to make," he said. He was told that since his departure from New York Colonel Roosevelt had received many inquiries from California as to whether the former forester had gone there as his representative to support Johnson and Kent.

He answered that he had never had any such idea, had given no such impression and that he had gone to California entirely on his own responsibility.

"How did I find the sentiment in the west in regard to the Roosevelt policies? Very enthusiastic," said Pinchot with emphasis.

"What do they think of the Taft administration?"

"What do you think of the weather?" was his reply. It was raining hard just then.

CROWN IS WORTH HALF A MILLION

From the financial standpoint the crown of England is worth about $500,000, says the New York American.

Around the circle there are 20 diamonds, each worth $7500, making $150,000; two large center diamonds, each valued at $10,000; 54 smaller diamonds, placed at an angle to the former, each worth $500; four crosses, each of 24 diamonds, $60,000; four large diamonds on the top of the crosses, $20,000; 12 large diamonds containing the fleur-de-lis, $50,000; 141 diamonds, $25,000; 26 diamonds in the upper cross, $5500, and two circles of pearls about the rim, $15,000.

George Westinghouse May Be Forced From Great Electric Company

[George Westinghouse.]

NEW YORK, July 31.—Almost on the eve of the annual election of officers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company Wall street was surprised to get word of a fresh attack on the present management by President George Westinghouse, who is now at his country place at Lenox, Mass. It has been a matter of common knowledge that President Westinghouse has not worked amicably with the management which took charge of the company's affairs after the discharge of the receivers in 1908. In fact, during that time he has had two six months' vacations when the friction between him and the other officers, notably Robert Mather, chairman of the board, became acute. He is at present on one of these vacations, which was scheduled to last until August 1, and Wall street was inclined to regard the latest episode as a confirmation of rumors which have been current since the spring that a new president would be elected this year. It was said with great positiveness in the streets that Robert Mather, who came over to the company from the Rock Island at the time of the reorganization and has been the representative of the banking interests which rescued the company from the receivership, would be re-elected to his present post. Who the successor to President Westinghouse may be gossip had not decided, but it was said with seeming authority that the senior vice president, E. M. Herr, would be the choice of the banking interests who dominate the affairs of the company. Mr. Herr, like President Westinghouse, is a practical man and has been long identified with the electrical and mechanical end of the business.

five minutes was given to allow Cohen to produce the document.

Before the recess was taken, Chairman Atkinson asked Buchly how he knew that only the $4500 had been received for expending in the campaign here, the remaining $500 being left in San Francisco to protect the Andrews draft.

Buchly then stated that the money was paid over by check in the office of Frank Thompson, and that receipts were signed for that amount—the $5000 contribution of the California wine growers, less the $500 for which Andrews was authorized to draw—according to the charges presented.

Buchly's statement was clear and to the point, and showed conclusively that a draft for $500 had gone astray and the members of the Territorial Central Committee were left to judge where, Cohen having told Buchly it went to Andrews.

Br Bartlett's Statement.
Charles R. Bartlett of the Honolulu Brewing Company was called for a statement. He declared that a draft for five hundred dollars was sent Andrews and that the money was drawn from Bishop bank by him. He introduced a Mr. Rowatt, an employee of the brewery who declared that he overheard Andrews engaged in conversation with the cashier at Bishop bank concerning the draft. Rowatt also saw Andrews produce a letter pertaining to the drawing of that five hundred.

Bartlett further stated that there was nothing of a confidential nature in his meeting and subsequent conversation with Andrews. He gave the assistant secretary carte blanche to go ahead and tell all that he knew concerning the alleged deal. Bartlett stated that Andrews went to the office of A. W. Peters and wanted $2500 put up for conducting the present campaign. This occurred just after the brewery man had returned from a business trip to Hawaii, the latter part of March.

"A few days later," said Bartlett, "Cohen came down to the brewery and told me that Andrews wanted to talk over matters with me. I met Andrews and he said that if the liquor interests would raise $2500 he Andrews would guarantee that there would be no one nominated on the Republican ticket for the house of representatives without my approval."

"A week before the plebiscite election in a conversation between Cohen, Waterman, Buchley and myself, Cohen said in our presence that he knew that Andrews would like to throw Joe Cooke down. I believed that the five hundred dollars that Andrews is understood to have received had been devoted to the payment of runners in the present Republican campaign."

"I never believed that Andrews possessed any such power as he claims he had over the destinies of the Republican party."

"Why, Joe Cohen came to me and said that he would write the platform of the Republican party and Mr. Buchley was present when this statement was made."

When further questioned concerning the amount paid by the California liquor interests Bartlett stated that he knew of $3000 being handed over in one draft while the other check represented $1500. He further stated that Cohen told him that he could secure ten thousand dollars on the coast, at any time.

"Cohen did little to assist the liquor people in the last campaign stated Bartlett. He denied that he was trying to oust Andrews from the office of assistant secretary and organizer until Andrews began working against his interests.

Lorrin Andrews followed the presentation of Bartlett's affidavit with a statement.

Andrews insisted that for some months past he realized that a pre-concerted effort was being made in certain quarters towards ousting him from the office of organizer.

"I had nothing to do with the re-organization of the Republican party of the Territory until the latter part of March," said Andrews in his own defense today.

"When I came to the assistance of its managers the party was thoroughly disorganized. I had left the party in the best of condition. When I returned to the work I found it honey-combed with a lot of hangers on who were a detriment to its best interests. It took time to get the scattered lines together. I talked with the various interests and endeavored to work out a scheme for harmony. I noted that along towards the middle of June that there was an element who wanted to sell out the party."

"Bartlett came to my office some time in March and he told me that he had always been a consistent worker in the Republican camp. He declared that he was a Republican, that the Brewery directors were Republicans, and that its employees were also aligned with that party. Joe Cooke was working in the interest of prohibition. He wanted to know what stand the liquor interests should take in its affairs."

"I told Mr. Bartlett," continued Andrews, "that I believed that the liquor men were in splendid condition for the coming campaign. I advised him to come into line, support the party as it should represent all peoples. I believed that there was a place for the liquor men in the Republican party."

"Why should I want to throw down Joe Cooke, as has been intimated and charged against me?" declared Andrews, facing his accuser.

"This is absolutely false upon its face. I told Bartlett that I thought that the Republican party was hardly in a position where it could pledge itself to prohibition. I believed that the general sentiment was against such reformation."

"Bartlett then told me that if the Republican party could not pledge itself to their interests the liquor people would be obliged to go over to the other party, which I presumed meant the Democrats. I contended that it would cost about $3000 to carry the campaign on this island."

Andrews insisted that during his work as a reorganizer he never stood for any particular wing or faction of the party.

He denied ever having asked that the liquor men contribute the sum of $2500 to assist in carrying on the coming campaign.

At the conclusion of this statement coming from Andrews, Bartlett arose and declared that Andrews uttered a deliberate falsehood.

AFFIDAVIT IS TO POINT

Island of Oahu, Territory of Hawaii

Charles G. Bartlett, being first duly sworn, on oath deposes and says: That he is and during all the times hereinafter mentioned was the treasurer and manager of the Honolulu Brewing & Malting Co., Ltd., a corporation organized under the laws of the Territory of Hawaii, for the purpose, among other things, of the manufacture and sale of malt liquors, and that the brewery and principal place of business of said company is at Honolulu, City and County of Honolulu, Territory aforesaid:

That said Bartlett is also and during all the times hereinafter mentioned was the vice-president and a member of the executive committee of the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association of Hawaii, a corporation organized for the mutual protection of the wholesale liquor dealers of the Territory of Hawaii;

That during all the times hereinafter mentioned there was pending in the Congress of the United States a bill to provide for a plebiscite in the Territory of Hawaii for the voters to decide whether or not the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors should be prohibited by law in said Territory, the Senate having reported favorably upon said bill and it then being under consideration by a committee of the House of Representatives;

That one, Lorrin Andrews, is an attorney at law with offices upon the date hereof in the Yokohama Specie Bank building in said Honolulu, and formerly on the third floor of the Judd building in said Honolulu;

That the said Lorrin Andrews is and during all the times herein mentioned was the assistant secretary of the Republican Territorial Central Committee, and as such is informed by the said Andrews, has for over one year last past worked and endeavored diligently and assiduously to rehabilitate the Republican party in the Territory of Hawaii by reorganization of the precinct clubs, encouragement and enlistment of party workers and the allaying of dissension among the rank and file of voters, to the result and with such success, as aforesaid was informed by the said Andrews, that he, the said Andrews, personally, could control the next Republican primaries held in the City and County of Honolulu, and that he could control the Republican votes in every precinct within said city and county with the exception of four precincts, and that he, the said Andrews, by reason thereof, would be the leader in and absolutely control the next Republican county convention of the City and County of Honolulu to the extent of individually, arbitrarily and absolutely naming in advance the nominees of such convention;

That the foregoing information concerning the political success and power of the said Andrews was imparted to aforesaid by the said Andrews under the following circumstances:

This aforesaid, being notified by J. C. Cohen, Esq., representing himself to come from the said Andrews and to have been sent by him, that he, the said Andrews, desired to see aforesaid, on or about the 30th day of March, A. D. 1910, called upon the said Andrews in his said office in the Judd building, whereupon the said Andrews discoursed at length upon his control of the Republican party machine as hereinbefore stated and then and there further informed aforesaid that J. P. Cooke, Esq., whom this aforesaid knew to be an acting and influential worker in the Republican party, as well as one of its most important avenues of financial assistance, was insisting that the Republican party endorse prohibition within the Territory of Hawaii and that leaders of the party start a movement for the adoption by the next Republican Territorial and county conventions of a prohibition plank in the party platform and that he, the said Andrews, feared that if said Cooke's request were rejected that the said Cooke would refuse further financial assistance and could prevent financial assistance from others; that he, the said Andrews, desired to be independent of the said J. P. Cooke, and desired assistance not coupled with a demand for prohibition; but that he required money for independent work in securing his position as leader of the Republican party and the reputation of both Mr. Cooke and prohibition meant the cutting off of funds; Mr. Andrews then offered that if the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association of Hawaii would pay him, personally, the sum of $2,500, he would repudiate Mr. J. P. Cooke and guarantee that no prohibition plank would be adopted by the Republican party either in convention or otherwise; that no one would be nominated by the next Republican City and County Convention that was inimical to the liquor interests in Hawaii, and to secure his good faith, he, Andrews, prior to the nominations at such convention, would submit to aforesaid the names of the proposed nominees, for his (aforesaid's) approval.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

Joe C. Cohen says he represents the majority of the reputable liquor interests of the Territory.

He also says that he paid runners, whose names Lorrin Andrews, the Republican manager, gave him during the plebiscite.

Lorrin Andrews says that he didn't do a thing that the Manoa people and certain affidavits said he did.

He claims that a trick, when it is a political trick, may be an honest trick, and that is the way he seems to excuse the manipulation of the ballot in the Manoa precinct contest, although when it comes to a show-down he lays all the blame on the secretary, Buffandeau, who, Andrews says, did all the ticket-making, and he, Andrews, didn't know a single thing about it.

These are some of the salient points that were brought out at the Republican Central Committee meeting last evening, held for the purpose of finding out what is the matter with Andrews.

Cohen also declared that everyone else in the liquor business is engaged in a conspiracy to turn the Republican party over to the Democratic party. Jack Atkinson, incidentally, told him that he did not know what he is talking about.

The Affidavit.
It was what might be called a very uninteresting meeting until Atkinson brought forward information regarding affidavits he had seen bearing on the activities of Andrews and Cohen. It was a meeting in which there was an apparent majority for the benefit of Andrews, as John Waterhouse was on hand with a motion to vote the continuation of Andrews in office, despite the side-winder that the Manoa opponents of Andrews sent in. They said in effect that they didn't care what the committee did, they were going to fight Andrews and keep him out of the convention, as they have no sympathy with his system of politics.

Another very impressive feature of the meeting was that while Andrews denied sweepingly, flatly and broadly and vigorously all that Atkinson said was contained in the affidavit of Charles Bartlett, he admitted that he had had a conference with Mr. Bartlett and at the same time absolutely refused to give an account of what went on at that meeting or conference, until he had read what Bartlett has to say in his affidavit.

Cohen and Conspiracy.
Joe Cohen also made the statement, after declaring that a great conspiracy was on foot, that some months ago a conference of liquor men was held in the office of Attorney Emil Peters, at which Emil Peters recommended the liquor men to combine with the Democratic party, as that was the party from which they would get the most assistance, but that he, Cohen, opposed the move strenuously. Cohen said that the liquor men did not follow Peters' alleged advice, but Cohen did not seem to appreciate that what was done after that meeting and the advice of Peters has been an absolute refutation of the charge made by Mr. Cohen that the liquor men wanted to wreck the Republican party.

The meeting room of the committee was scarcely well filled, so slight was the general interest in the meeting. Jack Atkinson, the chairman of the committee, and Fred Macfarlane were late. They had been holding a precinct meeting out at Wai-kihi. John Waterhouse and King, and John Lane and Voeller, of the committee, were there, making a quorum and also a preordained majority for Andrews. On the sidelines were Andrews, newspaper men, Cooper, and Glade from Manoa, and some of the men from Kakaako who were presumably prepared to declare that Andrews did not say what these near the stand when he spoke in the Sixth Precinct understood him to say about the candidacy of Mr. Cohen for the Senate.

The Manoa Letter.
The meeting started in with the reading of the letter from the Manoa committee which gave expression of what that committee thinks of Andrews' methods in the following terms:

Then Mr. Atkinson asked if anyone cared to be heard. Alfred D. Cooper was there, and when called upon gave an account of the details of the trouble in the Manoa precinct. He showed where the Manoa people had no predisposed antagonism for Andrews until the representative of the Republican party came into the precinct on the side of Buffandeau and actively supporting his side of the Manoa controversy. He told of Andrews serving as a judge of an election in which he was the candidate for president. He told of how Andrews had a policeman on hand to keep order among the peaceful citizens of Manoa, something that was considered quite unnecessary, and when the Manoa people told the policeman to get out he straightaway got on his horse and geed-dawped. He showed a sample of the ticket, the Andrews-Buffandeau ticket, on which there was some tricky arrangement of the names. It was not passed around for inspection, although Atkinson, when he looked it over, showed that he immediately saw that the arrangement of the names was to begot rather than enlighten the party voter.

Andrews in Reply.
Cooper made a clear case of Andrews' meddling in partizan and factional politics when he was supposed to be a party harmonizer and not a promoter of strife, and police protected politics.

During Cooper's talk he was interrupted by King, who showed himself to be an active partizan of Andrews.

Andrews, making reply, opened out by arraying or trying to array the business or haole element of the Manoa precinct against the Hawaiian and Portuguese.

"Manoa is not a haole precinct," were Andrews' opening words. He then said there were a lot of people in Manoa whose Republicanism was to be doubted, and they were opposed to the Hawaiians and the Portuguese. He went into the precinct and after sizing up the situation decided to align himself with the "workers," as he called them, meaning to infer by his remarks that the business men now opposing him were not the workers and not in sympathy with the Hawaiian and Portuguese residents of the precinct. Andrews played out this string at every opportunity, lining up the Cooper-Hemenway-Steele people as against the Hawaiians and the Portuguese.

He then said that he did not want to be the chairman of the meeting and had himself asked Hemenway to preside when objection was made to him and his policeman.

Atkinson then drew Andrews' attention to the form of the ballot to which the Cooper crowd objected the tricky ticket.

An "Honest Trick." Andrews looked at it and said at first that it was all right. Then when Atkinson reminded him that he ought to be bright enough to see that the arrangement of names was a trick, Andrews acknowledged the trick, and intimated that it was an honest trick. Then, when Atkinson asked him if he were responsible for it, he said, "Oh, no"—the secretary did that, and as for himself he would never have done such a thing. The switch of Andrews on this point was amusing. Another amusing feature was when he said he did not know what was on the ticket and had never seen it, although he had paid the bill and took Cooper to the Advertiser's office to see about the ballot. Andrews' ignorance is at times intense, and poor old Buffandeau was made the goat of that incident.

Andrews said he tried to harmonize things by telling Cooper he could have his place as president of the club. Cooper responded that he and his friends were out to defeat Buffandeau and he was not looking for personal honors.

Then Mr. Glade wanted to know about the mixing of names in connection with the judges of election. Andrews didn't know anything about it, but thought the whole trouble was because the morning paper did not have the name of the man whom Glade mentioned. Asked who took the list of officers to the morning paper, Andrews said that he did, but the error of leaving the name out was one of those shortcomings to which all newspapers are liable. So said Andrews.

Andrews wound up by saying that he was ready to deny everything, only he wanted all those who had an objection to him to come out with it and say it in the open.

After the Manoa fracas was finished, Atkinson asked if anyone else wanted to say anything, and, no one responding, Atkinson said he would undertake the unpleasant duty of calling Mr. Cohen's attention to something Lane had said Cohen said about paying Andrews' men to do work for him. That is, the idea was that Andrews named the men and those men went to Cohen for the money.

Cohen Is Angry.
Cohen immediately got hot in the collar and it was hard to make head or tail of what Lane charged and what Cohen said was not true. It seems they had a conversation, all right, and Cohen talked about the men on Andrews' list that he, Cohen, was paying money to.

Cohen gave his account of the conversation, stating that he was talking with Lane about the plebiscite. He, Cohen, told Lane that in getting his workers for the plebiscite in the cause of anti-Prohibition he had gone to Andrews to get the names of men whom he, Andrews, would select, and that he, Cohen, had paid these men. Cohen said the money with which these men had been paid was money secured from the liquor interests of California. "I represent the liquor interests of California," said Cohen, "and what I did with that money is my business."

But Cohen declared vehemently that, notwithstanding he was so intimate with Andrews and notwithstanding he was paying good money to the men whom Andrews would name to work for him against Prohibition, he did not know where Andrews stood in the matter of his candidacy for the senatorial nomination.

To those who could not understand the childlike trust that existed between Cohen and Andrews, it was hard to understand how so much money could have been paid out by Cohen to Andrews men in connection with the plebiscite and that money have no influence or bearing on the candidacy of Cohen for the Senate. But Cohen said with his own mouth that all he could ever get out of Andrews in connection with his candidacy was that Andrews would support him heartily if he got the nomination.

Lane did not agree with all that Cohen said he said. Their memories diverged on quite important points, but Cohen had full opportunity to establish the fact with his own testimony that during the plebiscite fight he was furnishing Andrews' men—Cohen called them Republicans—with money to do his, Cohen's, work.

A Flat Denial.
 Cohen having got so warmed up over this that his shirt began to ruffle in the back of his neck, Atkinson evidently thought it was about time to give him the other barrel.

So Atkinson asked him if he had ever had a conversation with Bartlett, Buchly, McCarthy, O'Neill and some others in Waverley Hall, in which he had said that for $2500 Andrews would see to it that the liquor interests were not troubled by the Republican party and that men favorable to the liquor interests would be put in the convention.

Cohen made a flat denial of the whole business. As Atkinson brought out each point of an affidavit the details of which he could not remember exactly, but which he had read, Cohen denied the truth of the whole business.

Then he launched out into a tirade against his fellows of the liquor interests. "This is a conspiracy," said Cohen several different times. He declared that the men whose names were mentioned as on the affidavit represented the minority liquor interests and they wanted to turn the liquor influence into the Democratic party, overthrow the Republican party, get a new liquor law, do away with the license commission, and put the control of the liquor traffic in the hands of the boards of supervisors.

Jack Atkinson rather punctured one of Cohen's flights of oratory in this connection, when he shunted all his associates into the Democratic party, by remarking that he "happened to know that that was not so."

"This is a conspiracy," shouted Cohen, "and Charlie McCarthy is at the head of it. The reason why they hate me is because I wanted to work through the Republican party in the plebiscite campaign. That's why they haven't any use for me."

Joe didn't stop to comment on the fact that the day after the plebiscite vote both Bartlett and Buchly, against whom his speech given reasons to have been registered, stated publicly and over their own signatures that they considered the vote an endorsement of the present liquor law.

Cohen wanted it made plain in the minds of those present at the hearing that he was the martyr in the case. He said he represented the California liquor interests, and while away on a trip to the Coast had secured $1000 to assist in the anti-Prohibition campaign; he had come back to Honolulu, given $3000 of that money to the other fellows and kept $200 to be expended by himself. Apparently he thought that by reason of that $2000, the Republican party had been raved through him. What he did with that money, he said, was his own business, but it was safe to presume from what he had said previously that it went to pay the runners whom Andrews sent to him, and was to have no effect whatever on his candidacy for the Territorial Senate.

Cohen Claims Many

According to Cohen, he is the only white he's chicken in the whole liquor business of the islands. He said he represented the majority of the reputable liquor houses of the city and Territory. Someone asked him how he did it and he said he sold California wine to the majority of them.

Cohen's answers to questions were such as to give the impression that firms like Schaefer & Co. and Hackfeld & Co. were with him and not with the alleged conspirators. No one stopped to ask him how he, Cohen, with his views on immigration, hypnotized firms like Schaefer and Hackfeld & Co. to believe in him.

After several different explosions had occurred in this connection, Atkinson then said he had also seen an affidavit in which Andrews was represented as having offered to guarantee the protection of the liquor interests by the Republican party if he were provided with $2,500 so that he would not be subject to the will and finances of J. P. Cooke. Atkinson said that he had been allowed to read the affidavit made by C. G. Bartlett to this effect, but was not allowed to keep it. He could not give the whole details of it, but it was three pages long and what he remembered was the gist of it.

Wanted to Wait.
 Andrews got up and said that this was what interested him, and wanted to know why the affidavit was not produced.

Andrews denied everything that Atkinson said was in the affidavit. He admitted that he had had a conference with Bartlett and also with Mr. Lishman, but he did not want to say anything about what he had said in that conversation with Bartlett until he had seen what Bartlett had sworn to.

Somehow it did not seem to occur to Andrews that if there was no doubt of what he had said, it didn't make any difference on earth what Bartlett had said, and the truth from Andrews' standpoint would be just as sweet and pretty, right there before the Territorial committee, as it would after he had read what is in the Bartlett affidavit.

But the committee did not force this point and no one but Andrews raised it.

The general sentiment of those present was that it would be much better to have the original documents to work from. Atkinson said he had been allowed to see the affidavits and had been told that he could use the information contained in them, but he was not allowed to have the documents; for what reason he did not know.

John Waterhouse, during a full session in the proceedings, stated as it was about time to introduce the motion he appealed to have heard by the committee and he moved that the committee vote its confidence in Andrews and continue to employ him, pursuant to the same salary.

Just at this point Fred Macfarlane stepped in and suggested that the affidavits contained in the affidavits was of such a serious nature that the committee could not ignore them, as had been suggested by Mr. Waterhouse. The people holding the affidavits should be asked to produce them, and then, if they refused, the statements would be entitled to the highest consideration. On the other hand, if the affidavits were produced, the subject matter should be gone into thoroughly.

That was where the matter was finally left. Waterhouse said he didn't care so the thing was not dragged along for a week or two weeks, as a constant source of trouble and no result.

It was finally voted to hold the meeting at noon on Saturday, which would give time to have the affidavits published in the afternoon papers. Andrews said he wanted time enough to make reply so that the Bulletin would not come out with a bare headlines over the affidavits and call him a scoundrel.

So the meeting adjourned. It developed the fact that Andrews is going to slide out from under Macfarlane, Cohen or anyone else through whom he thinks he may get into trouble for what has been going on among his immediate political friends. He also very clearly showed that he is trying to line up the Hawaiians and the Portuguese of the Manoa precinct against the white business men of the so-called clean politics supporters.

Cohen showed that he intends to harp on the conspiracy business, despite what anyone else may say to the contrary, and he will try to make the public believe that he is the only real martyr and political purist that ever lived.

POSTPONE THEIR ACTION

During the last few minutes of the session the discussion between McCarthy and Cohen was warm in spots and then John Wise stated emphatically that Andrews had offered him $100 and then $150 per month to work for Cohen.

Andrews denied everything and said he was ready to reply to every charge then. This was not considered advisable and Atkinson said he should have a longer time to prepare his answer. At this point Committee Chairman Boeller took the floor and made a motion that in order to avoid any further discord and for the best interests of the party the office of assistant secretary should be abolished, this motion being seconded by Lane.

Atkinson asked for time and stated that he believed, as the charges against Andrews were so serious that the committee should go into executive session and consider them or that another meeting should be held within a few days.

This idea prevailed and upon withdrawal of Boeller's motion another motion was passed adjourning the meeting until Monday afternoon at four o'clock when in executive session the whole matter will be thrashed out.

GUARDS TO PLAY SAINTS, MILITARY ENGAGES PUNS

New League to Continue Series This Afternoon—Two Good Games to Be Played—A Big Crowd Expected.

This afternoon at the league grounds, the N. G. H. baseball nine will go up against the St. Louis College Alumni, and a rattling good game should eventuate, as both teams will be out for glory.

The Oahu College Alumni will in future be known as the Punahou, and a strong bunch of players is available to do battle on behalf of the old school.

It is to be regretted that all the men did not turn up for practice, as it is only by sticking together, and working hard, that the Puns will have a chance against the Saints.

The second game this afternoon will be between the Military and Punahou teams, and it, too, should be an exciting struggle.

Johnnie Williams will be on the job this afternoon, and this great young pitcher will doubtless do good work as usual.

The new league is making desperate efforts to get people interested in the grand old game, and to draw the crowd out to the league grounds.

The low score tournament that will run along for the next few months at the Country Club, will be the source of much interest for some time to come.

There will be a great time at the Country Club tomorrow, when the two ball foursome is played off.

JAPANESE COME BACK TO TOWN

NIPPONESE 'VARSITY MEN DO WELL ON MAUI

Visitors Created Good Impression Everywhere They Went—Will Play Final Game on Sunday—Sail on Maru, Monday.

"Katta yo! Katta yo! Katta—Katta." That was the first thing said this morning by the Waseda boys, as they shouted from the upper deck of the flagship Manna Kea of the Inter-Island fleet, as she docked at her berth, a few minutes after seven o'clock.

The yell means "victory" over the Mauians, who struggled with the Wasedas in a final baseball game yesterday. It also means "victory" over the enemy. It further means "victory" over any other individuals or things which confronted them in any kind of struggle.

After visiting Hilo and Maui, where they went to show the people what they can do in one of the most interesting and cleanly games in the world, the Waseda boys, or rather, the Japanese baseball players returned today, highly pleased over their successful games with their kamaaina opponents.

Whatever they did on those two islands, they did it with vim and determination to win. When they were out on a baseball field, they played a cleanly and sportsmanlike game. They did it because they wanted to show the kamaaina that they were there, not only to play ball; but to play it in such a way as to make it interesting to the spectators.

In Hilo, they played three games with the defenders of the Hilo baseball honor; they won two games out of three. On Maui, it was their fortune again to floor the Mauians twice winning the first, losing the second and winning the final game.

Prof. Abe, the conductor of the Waseda baseball team stated this morning that the reception tender them on Hawaii and Maui was magnificent. The boys, as usual, played fine ball and behaved remarkably well; where ever they went they were the center of attraction.

After resting good and well today they will struggle with the Marines tomorrow afternoon in the Athletic Park. The crowd, it is expected, will be the largest ever seen here in Honolulu.

Tonight the visiting maibinis will be given a banquet at the Young Hotel under the auspices of the Oahu Baseball League. Tomorrow night they will be the guests of honor at the Japanese School on Nuuanu street. The local Japanese will entertain them there at a tea party.

Prof. Abe and his boys will then return to their homeland on the Japanese liner Tenyo Maru, due to arrive from San Francisco Monday morning.

Tomorrow morning that St. Louis College team will tackle the Wahiawa ball tossers and a great game is expected.

BOXING CONTESTS ARE ARRANGED

GOOD PRELIMINARY TO CORDELL-CORNYN GO

Joe McGurn, the "Game Irishman," Will Box Jack Coll of the Marines—Contests to Be Pulled Off at Orpheum.

All has been arranged as regards the Cordell-Cornyn boxing contest and next Saturday night the men will meet at the Orpheum Theater, which has been rented for the occasion by Love, who formerly ran the Aloha Park.

Besides the Cordell-Cornyn contest there will be a preliminary go between Joe McGurn, the game Irishman, and Jack Coll, of the Marines. Joe McGurn will be watched with interest, as he has a record for gameness that is hard to beat, and he is also a rugged boxer who can land a wallop at times that will bring home the big end of the purse, if landed in the proper place.

McGurn blew into town with Jack Cordell, and he has been boxing a lot with the man who is to fight Cornyn on Saturday night. While not impressing people as a very clever boxer, there is no doubt that Joe can hit and take a hit with the best of them.

Coll is well known to the Honolulu fight fans, as he has been seen in action a few times in this city. At one time he met McCollough, the Fort Shafter "Ironman" and only for lack of condition might have done much better than he did. Coll is handy with his mitts but has about as much chance of knocking out McGurn as he would have of polishing off Jack Johnson. Still Coll is clever, and it will be the points that will count—if the contest does not end in first couple of rounds.

Jack Cordell is working faithfully for his match with Cornyn, and the go should be a good one from the first on of the going to the finish. Cordell is taking care of himself this time, and he is confident that he can win from Pat. Jack is doing a lot of road work, and that is helping him out with his wind; he is doing some swimming also and, besides all that, works out a Camp Very with Joe McGurn as a punching bag.

Pat Cornyn is doing strenuous stunts at the Fort Shafter gymnasium, and he is in the pink of condition. Patrick looks and feels well, and he will step into the ring prepared to fight for his life; he can stand a lot of punishment, and he showed in the last go with Cordell that he is a clever boxer, with a left that can do excellent work.

The public wanted to see a return contest between the two men, and now that everything is settled, everybody is satisfied.

The Wasedas got a good reception this morning when they returned from the other islands where they have been playing a series of games.

Mike Paton will referee the Cordell-Cornyn contest next Saturday night and a better man for the position would be hard to find.

BASEBALL AT MAKAWELLI PROVES VERY EXCITING

Portuguese Nine Defeats Pakalas by Score of 5 to 3—Sugar Growers Very Excited.

From Makaweli, Kauai, comes a story of a baseball game that was played between the Portuguese team of the plantation and the Pakalas. It was a bad day for the latter layout, as the Portuguese won out by a score of 5 to 3.

The game was played at Makawelli, and a large crowd of fans attended to watch the play. When the mill men got ahead in the score, there was much excitement and the sugar growers rooted in great fashion.

Victor Cordello and John Gabriel formed the battery, and they did good work right through the game. Cordello has a good in curve, and he used it to advantage on the unfortunate Pakalas. Gabriel has a fine wing and he nailed several men at second.

The lineup of the victors was as follows: V. Cordello, p; J. Gabriel, c; M. Duarte, 1b; Ventura, 2b; Vincent, 3b; A. Silva, ss; Joe Level, rf; C. Louis, lf; Frank Cordello, cf. This combination regrettably very much that the Wasedas did not visit Kauai, for there would have been something doing for sure in the way of whitewashing—and it might not have been the Makaweli bunch that would have got the lime.

GAME ON VALLEY ISLE

Thousands of Japanese From Maui Plantations Attended Games—Much Interest in Series.

(Special Correspondence.)

Waikuku, Aug. 19.—The Wasedas arrived here last Tuesday afternoon per steamer Claudine from Hilo, fresh with laurels from the rainy city. The Kahului wharf was crowded with Japanese in honor of the arrival of the lovers of the great American game from the Japanese university.

The collegians played a series of three games with a picked team representing the pick of all Maui in the national game.

Mr. W. S. Mountcastle, of Kahului, was manager of the home defenders. The first game was played at Kahului, Wednesday afternoon, and the visitors won out, the score being 9 to 9.

On Thursday afternoon the two teams met again at Wells' Park, and in a hard fought battle the Mauians won, the score being 3 to 1. This fact increased the faith of the local team in their ability to win the deciding game, which was played at Kahului this afternoon. But their hope was disappointed, when at the end of the game the score stood 14 to 4 in favor of the athletic collegians, who towered above the home team, not only in their skillful knowledge of the great game, but also in every other respect.

The series was well patronized by the sport-loving people of central Maui; the plantation managers let the men early each day in order to attend these games.

It will be many a long day before Maui will ever have the pleasure again of playing and entertaining such a lot of genteel and scholarly looking youths.

GASOLINE GOSSIP CLEANED AT GARAGES

The Associated Garage received three cars on the Navadan, and two of the machines are Hudsons of a new type. They can carry twenty-five gallons of gasoline, and the tank is not as large as a person would imagine. These huge tanks can run a car for a long time, and the receptacle is placed where the rumble of the ordinary car is generally situated. Manager Seymour Hall recommends these cars to everybody, and the lack of necessity of filling the gasoline tank frequently appeals to many people.

The Hudson roadster is attracting a lot of attention, and the Associated Garage manager is kept busy answering questions about the machines. The factory is running overtime and even then has run short of its orders. A touring car, pony tonneau, and torpedo body will also be turned out by the factory and that type of car should prove very popular.

The 1911 Chalmers will have a lot of improvements, and several alterations have been incorporated. The tonneau of both the "30" and "40" have been made longer and broader. The fenders have been changed slightly and the change lends to the grace and beauty of the machine.

The Schuman garage received two Mitchells per the Navadan, and the fine looking machines have been taken to the show rooms. The Mitchell car is becoming more popular every day, and the 1911 models will surely cause a rush for these automobiles.

The Locomobile is also going strong at the Schuman garage and many of these cars have been bespoken by purchasers. The Locomobile is a handy car, and it runs so evenly that it can hardly be heard moving.

Some years ago the Mitchell was introduced into Hawaii and, at the present time several of the old model machines are doing good work on the other islands. The engines of the old Mitchells were very powerful, and the new models of the year 1911 are the same.

The repair shop at the Schuman garage has been kept very busy lately and many machines of different makes have been in for treatment. A corps of experts is always on hand, and the work they do is up-to-date, and of the best possible description.

Almost every state that enacts a new law for the guidance of motor car users these days devotes a special paragraph to rules for lamps. The general requirement is that the rear number shall be illuminated sufficiently to be visible for a distance of fifty feet at night. With the lamp equipment of some cars the ingenuity of the owner is rather thoroughly tested to find a way to make the rays of the rear lamp shine on the number plate.

In order to allow owners of its cars to comply strictly with both the letter and spirit of the law as exemplified by the Callan bill in New York the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company of Buffalo has added to the regular equipment of its cars a sixth lamp for the sole purpose of number plate illumination. This lamp is of peculiar construction. It is like a tube cut in half—about six inches long and an inch and a half in diameter.

It is electrically lighted and can be turned on or off by the switch that operates the side and rear lights. When it is on its rays cover the entire number in a way that would insure any owner against arrest for a violation of this particular section of the law. The addition of this lamp makes six that are included in the Pierce-Arrow equipment without counting the small one that lights the oil gauge at night.

The von Hamm-Young Company's Automobile Department had another busy week. Even though the quarters have been doubled in size they are hardly large enough for the ever increasing number of automobiles which require attention.

The specifications for the 1911 Cadillac which have been announced by the von Hamm-Young Company during the week have created quite a stir. The beautiful Cadillac demonstrator will soon be here. On the mainland the Cadillac agents are now making it the custom to go to the factory and drive their demonstrators home themselves. The following report in reference to this matter reached the von Hamm-Young Company by the last mail:

MANY CADILLAC DEALERS DRIVING NEW CARS HOME

Six 1911 Models Tryout on Roads East, West and South From Detroit.

To the east, the west and the south, the 1911 Cadillac cars have been leaving the factory at Detroit, traveling over the roads and driven by Cadillac dealers. Not less than 50 representatives have taken their home cities by the overland route.

This is a custom which began in a small way several years ago, and has found great favor among Cadillac dealers in many sections. This is the banner year, however, because never before have so many dealers tried out the new models with road work.

To date Cadillac dealers from the following cities have visited the factory and driven home in their new cars: White River Junction, Vt.; Youngstown, Ohio; Pittsburg, New York; Jersey City; Jacksonville, Fla.; Fitzgerald, Ga.; Laumont, Mass.; Sioux City, Ia.; Minneapolis; Oshkosh, Wis.; Waterloo, Ia.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Elmira, N. Y.; Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Ft. Dodge, Ia.; Providence, R. I.; Johnstown, Pa.; Worcester, Mass.; Louisville, Ky.

The Cadillac is getting to be more and more a favorite in municipal government circles all over the mainland, as evidenced by the following report:

Another City Buys Cadillacs. That the adaptability to and usefulness of the Cadillac Traction to municipal service is becoming more widely recognized seems to be evidenced by the recent installation of two of them in Harrisburg, Pa.

One has been placed at the disposal of the head of the water department and the other is in the service of the highway department. Here as in New York, Brooklyn and Louisville, Ky., the Cadillac was selected in competition with other cars.

New York probably holds the distinction of first seeing the usefulness of the automobile in municipal work; and stood by its conviction by the installation of fourteen Cadillac ambulances.

Brooklyn was almost as early in the field of motor-using cities with three in its city departments.

Shortly afterwards the Police Department of Louisville added three Cadillacs to its equipment, in order to strengthen its efficiency.

Following its first experience with the Cadillac, Brooklyn recently added four more to its thorough equipment; and New York bought ten additional Cadillacs. The action of Brooklyn and New York was based on a systematic up-to-date record, which showed that the Cadillac were more economical to operate and maintain than any of the other makes in the municipal service.

During the week the long list of Cadillac purchasers was added to by Mr. W. H. Crow, who has just purchased of the von Hamm-Young Company a 1911 Cadillac touring car which is to be delivered to him shortly.

Another sale made during the week by this firm was that of a high-class 5-passenger Stevens-Duryea to Mr. W. F. Heilbron, who is taking great pleasure showing his beautiful car to his friends.

Mr. W. E. Brown, who returned to Honolulu on the Mongolia, has just taken delivery of his beautiful 1911 Packard touring car. Mr. Brown, who has been visiting in the East, has found that there the Packard is by far the most popular of the highest class of American cars.

During the week Mr. A. W. Eames purchased a pretty little runabout from the von Hamm-Young Company's salesrooms, and drove the car the same day to his home at Wahiwa.

A great deal of interest has been centered in the phenomenal success attained by the Buicks in various races meets at Buffalo and Milwaukee. The von Hamm-Young Company, the local distributors of the Buick, have just received the following:

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 25.—Going through a hard six-day run, the brake, clutch and motor tests and a rigid final technical examination without demerit, a Model 19 Buick, entered by the Hokanson Automobile Company of Madison, Wis., and driven by Emil Hokanson, won the $1000 Milwaukee Sentinel trophy, the first prize in the Wisconsin State Automobile Association's first annual reliability tour. The Pope-Hartford T model, entered and driven by Emil Esteborg of Milwaukee, was awarded second place, with a total penalty of three points. The Model G. Franklin, nominated by the Franklin Auto and Supply Company of Milwaukee, and driven by L. M. Springer, was third with six demerits.

BUFFALO, July 25.—Racing for two days at the Port Erie track under the auspices of the Automobile Trade Association ended Saturday. Over 5000 attended the final meeting.

The track was the regulation oval, and the competitors in the various events were hidden for part of the distance under a pall of dust. The smallness of the fields alone made it possible to try for any speed. The events generally had only two or three entrants, which robbed them of the spectacular features of large and hotly contested races. The Buick entries outclassed their rivals so as to render the majority of the events one-sided.

The Buick team had practically their own way in the majority of the contests.

The Buick car is going to be one of the most popular cars in Honolulu this year. Already a number of orders have been placed for both touring cars and runabouts—the latter especially being a great favorite.

The chances are that if your particular friends were more particular they wouldn't be your particular friends.

Cut out the unnecessary talk and you'll be surprised at the little you will have to say.

SONG OF THE JOY RIDER

(As Tennyson Might Have Sung It.)

I swoop around a sudden turn,
I make a careless rally,
And, feeling not the least concern,
Go zipping through an alley.

Fast thirty, cops I hurry down,
I bump o'er rats and ridges;
I scatter havoc through the town
And flash across the bridges.

I see the red light's warning glow,
But do I heed it? Never!
For men may come and men may go,
But I tear on forever.

I rattle over stony ways,
I crash through traffic's jumble,
And end their troubles and their days
Who hesitate or stumble.

With many a curve I, somehow, get
Around the drays and 'busses,
And do not stop to feel regret
Because some tenniser cusses.

I hurry, hurry, crouching low;
I try to jump the river;
For men may come and men may go,
But I tear on forever.

I flash about in and out,
A thousand dangers daring;
I hear the mad policeman shout,
But have no time for caring.

And here and there I gladly break
A speeding street car's tender;
I never hesitate to take
A chance, however slender.

I lay old men and children low,
I make the horses quiver,
For men may come and men may go,
But I zip on forever.

I tear through lawns and grassy plots,
I crash through leafy covers,
I crush the sweet forget-me-nots
And cripple happy lovers.

I slip, I slide, I skid, I glance,
I scound the bumps and hollows,
I scorn a foot and take a chance,
Too gay to care what follows.

The public wants me squelched, I know,
But do I mind it? Never!
For men may come and men may go,
But I crash on forever.

THE CRIPPEN MURDER

LONDON POLICE ARE FOOLED BY DOCTOR

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The crime for which Dr. Crippen and his typist have been arrested in Montreal has excited a great sensation here. Search for clues revealed that Belle Elmore was last seen alive here by her London friends on Feb. 2. It was common knowledge to them that she was disturbed by the continued employment by her husband of Ethel Clara Le Neve, a typewriter, who disappeared last Saturday, as did her employer.

Toward the end of last February Dr. Crippen, accompanied by Miss Le Neve, who he introduced as his wife, attended a ball given by vandeville artists. The pretty typist wore a seal-skin coat and jewelry which was recognized as the former property of Belle Elmore. The latter's death must have preceded by only a short time the ball, at which Dr. Crippen and his typist were among the merriest of the dancers.

Miss Le Neve had been in Dr. Crippen's employ for about ten years and when the subject of the woman's discharge was made an issue last January, it is known that Dr. Crippen refused to grant his wife's demand. The dentist made the statement a month ago that he had married Miss Le Neve, who had lived in the same house with him, but in the absence of documentary proofs, friends of Belle Elmore and Dr. Crippen declined to accept the latter's statement.

The remains unearthed under the cellar flooring have been removed. They are unrecognizable. Dr. Pepper, a London criminologist who has assisted the police in solving former crimes, has made a careful examination of the body and is searching for traces of poison. Because of the fact that the head is disfigured, proof that would at present be accepted by the law that the body is that of Belle Elmore, is not available. However, Scotland Yard accepts it as a fact that the remains are those of Belle Elmore.

Body Dissected, Bones Missing

Although no official statement was made tonight, it is feared on excellent authority that Dr. Pepper's examination disclosed that the victim was subjected to much mutilation. Obviously the body had been dissected before burial and a gruesome fact in this connection is the discovery that practically all of the bones of the skeleton are missing. When disinterred the body was in portions. Owing to the burial in quicklime, experts may have some difficulty in determining the true cause of death. There were found with the remains strands of fair hair and what looked like a piece of clothing. It is a matter of conjecture whether the missing bones will be found, but the police search will be continued with a view to their discovery.

The murderer's intent for destruction by quicklime had been frustrated somewhat by the nature of the soil in the cellar, composed of clay, which prevented air and moisture from reaching the lime, thus retarding its destructive action.

Dr. Pepper states that the remains are those of a woman and that the length of limb correspond to measurements of Belle Elmore. The stomach has been removed to the laboratories of the Home Office and preliminary analysis is said to have shown traces of poison.

Dr. Crippen rented an office on the first floor of Craven House, Kingsway, where he carried on a business under the name of the Aural Remedies Company. He had not been seen at the office for nearly a year, however, a woman calling for the mail.

Dr. Crippen was last seen about noon two weeks ago Saturday, when he hoodwinked the police in spite of the fact that their suspicions might be supposed to have placed them on their guard. He told a plausible story of his wife's death in San Francisco, whether she had eloped. Not until he failed to produce a mortuary urn containing ashes did Dr. Crippen admit to the detectives that the story of his wife's death and cremation was untrue. He had stated previously that he received the urn from California. When challenged by the detectives he said he concealed the cremation story because he did not want the neighbors to know he had quarrelled with his wife.

Showing Detectives Even Into Cellar. Following the confession of falsehood, Crippen took the officers all over his house and even into the cellar, where the body was found later. Three detectives were assigned to "shadow" Crippen, but they let him slip through their fingers.

The capture of Crippen on the transatlantic steamship Montrose at Montreal clears up the mystery of his get-away, and as soon as extradition papers are fixed up Dr. Crippen and his stenographer will be returned to this country to stand trial for murder.

THIRD DEATH IN THREE MONTHS

Francis Dower Fell Two Stories and Never Became Conscious.

The third death in the Dower family occurred yesterday afternoon when nine-year-old Francis Dower fell from a second story window of total school building.

The windows of the second story were being washed by some of the boys when Francis crawled too far out on the ledge and fell to the ground where he was found a few minutes later, no one seeing him fall.

As soon as he was seen he was picked up and taken to the office of Dr. Sexton and from there to Queen's Hospital where he died an hour later never having regained consciousness after the fall.

The funeral was held at Silva's Undertaking Parlors this afternoon at two o'clock.

The other deaths in this family during the past three months were Mrs. Rubele Dower, the mother, on May 23, and Eddie Dower aged 12 on May 28. Captain John Dower, the boy's father, died March 7, 1907.

BISHOP STREET EXTENSION SOON

Superintendent Marsden Campbell of Department of Public Works has received a reply to his cable from Rudolph Spreckels regarding the property condemnation for Bishop street extension.

Mr. Spreckels refers the whole matter to L. A. Thurston who he says has full power to act in the matter for the Spreckels interests.

This will facilitate the matter of starting on the extension of the street as the whole matter can be settled in Honolulu and there will be no need of sending any papers or having correspondence with Mr. Spreckels at San Francisco.

CARDINAL SENDS PREMIER REPLY

Secretary's Note to Be Submitted to Congregation of Extraordinary Affairs.

ROME, Aug. 3.—The note which Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary that of Premier Canalejas will be submitted to the congregation of extraordinary affairs. The contents of the note will be kept secret.

The Giornale d'Italia publishes an interview with Cardinal Vannutelli, who describes Premier Canalejas as a "terrible man," adding that it is impossible that King Alfonso approves his anti-clerical policy.

Cardinal Vannutelli goes on to point out that the blue is a forest Catholic by sentiment and tradition, but that he is too young to accept with the situation and must be seriously embarrassed.

He adds that the Spanish people themselves disapprove of the policy of the premier as shown by the attitude of the people of Bilbao and other important places.

LATIN AMERICAN PROGRESS MAKING GREAT STRIDES

That the commerce of the twenty Latin American Republics lying to the south of the United States is increasing with such remarkable strides that it is deserving of particular attention is proved by the special report of Director John Barrett of the International Bureau of American Republics to the Tenth Pan-American Conference, which was held at Buenos Aires, the capital of the Argentine Republic. At the conference it was pointed out that the work and correspondence of the bureau have increased one thousand per cent. since the last conference in 1906; that last year it was directly responsible for $52,000,000 of new trade exchange in the Pan-American field; that it distributes 150,000 pieces of printed matter descriptive of Pan-American relations in contrast to 50,000 four years ago; and that it has been an active and useful factor in numerous ways for the promotion of Pan-American friendship, peace and commerce.

Some new facts about the foreign commerce of the twenty Latin American republics will astonish most persons. The latest statistics just compiled in the International Bureau of American Republics for this report show that in the year 1909 the twenty republics south of the United States bought and sold in trade with the rest of the world products valued at the splendid and surprising total of two billion, one hundred and twenty seven million, three hundred and one thousand dollars ($2,127,301,000). Assuming that there are 70,000,000 inhabitants in Latin America, this gives a per capita trade of approximately $30. The foreign commerce of China and Japan, combined, with a conservative estimate of their population at 350,000,000, was approximately $1,000,000, or only half that of Latin America, giving a per capita of less than $3 per head, or only one-tenth that of Latin America. This comparison is not in any sense intended as a re-fection on Japan, which is a wonderful and most progressive country, nor upon China, which has vast latent wealth and enormous potentialities, but simply and solely to emphasize the remarkable importance and progress of Latin America, which are not sufficiently appreciated.

Analyzing still further these instructive and even fascinating figures, we find that this grand total represents an almost phenomenal increase in one decade, as over the average foreign trade for the years 1896-7-8, of $1,203,516,000, or 428 per cent. Latin America can well be proud of such a record. It must convince the most hard-headed doubter that the twenty nations which reach in unbroken array from Mexico and Cuba south to Argentina and Chile are indeed worthy of the admiration and study of the rest of the world, and particularly of the United States, which always prides itself on its trade growth and material prosperity.

The total of Latin American foreign commerce for 1909 divided into exports and imports shows a notable balance of trade in favor of Latin America. The exports were valued at $1,222,105,000; the imports at $295,195,000, or a favorable balance of $926,905,000. Exports, moreover, show an impressive increase in ten years of 145 per cent, and imports of 115 per cent.

The United States bought and sold to Latin America in 1909 products valued at the large total of nearly $600,000,000. The exact figures were $589,302,000. The average for the three years of 1907-8-9 was $538,509,000. Now contrast this total with the average of a decade ago, or for 1896-7-8, and we find the latter was only $236,379,000. In other words, the exchange of trade between the United States and her sister republics more than doubled itself in approximately ten years.

Taking $600,000,000 as high-water mark of the trade Latin America and the United States exchanged last year, what becomes of the complaint of the uninformed men that the United States is being outstripped rapidly by Germany and France? When one-fourth of all Latin America sells to the world, and sells to it one-fourth of all it buys, no one can logically say that the United States and Latin America are losing their commerce with each other through the competition of Europe and that the International Bureau of the American Republics is failing in its work of making North and South America better known to each other.

AMERICAN COURTS SLOW

"We Are a Century Behind England," is the Opinion of Investigating Attorneys.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—John D. Lawson of St. Louis representing the American bar association, and Edwin R. Reedy of Chicago, representing the American institute of law and criminology, have been in London for three months studying English criminal procedure. They are preparing a report for their organizations and also for President Taft, with the view of inaugurating a campaign for American reforms. They were given credentials by President Taft which secured aid from the English courts. A portion of the report will be as follows:

"We are a century behind England in our criminal procedure, chiefly on account of our technicalities. England has a more businesslike way of procedure. Although they have the outward appearance of form in the way of wigs, sheriffs, etc., they really are less formal than our own justice. The most striking difference is the system of selecting juries and the short time between sentence and final judgment on appeal.

"One difference we noted was the absence of challenging juries. England allows no cross examination of jurors, apparently considering it no more necessary to examine the jury than to examine the judges.

CALIFORNIA CONTRALTO IN CONCERT.

Estelle Heartt Dreyfus.
"If any little word of ours can make one life the brighter,
If any little song of ours can make one heart the lighter,
God help us speak that little word, and take one bit of singing,
And drop it in some lonely vale and let the echoes ringling."

On Thursday evening, September first, in the concert room of the Moana Hotel, Estelle Heartt Dreyfus will present to a Honolulu audience an evening of song. The program will be varied in its form and will include songs of the Italian, French, Spanish, German, English and American schools. Among the last named will be a song of unusual merit, written especially for Mrs. Dreyfus by the well known composer, Frederick Stevenson.

Mrs. Dreyfus comes to us from Los Angeles, California, where her contralto voice is well known in the concert, oratorio, recital and drawing room field. Her work is chiefly characterized by an earnestness of expression, a softness of tone and a clearness of diction.

The New York Musical Courier has said: "She has a contralto voice of beautiful quality, she possesses temperament and magnetism, and she sings with artistic finish. Her rendition of certain songs is a revelation of what can be done in a perfectly simple straightforward way—beauties and meanings never heard before are presented."

Mrs. Dreyfus says that here, as in no other land she knows of, are the beauties of nature so abundant, music is fresh and appreciated accordingly. She is anticipating with much pleasure an appearance before a Honolulu audience.

It is her keen regret that she has not longer time in Honolulu, so that she might present some of her specialized work, such as her own "Purpose Programs," a work in which she is much interested, for she says that in music as in all things else there exists the desire for a definiteness of purpose, a thematic construction, having one theme and all songs chosen bearing upon the thought to be worked out. In California, where she has given many such for clubs, etc., she has created the demand for these "Purpose Programs" until the clubs seek to put before their audiences programs with meaning, instructive and well as entertaining. Another branch in the recital field that she has been carefully working out is the "Concert for Children," as she chooses to call in the "Story Songs for Children." These programs, she says, "are composed of songs wherein are expressed sentiment understandable to the child mind, thereby impressing and establishing in their young musical cognizance a connection between musical sounds and the things and thoughts they already know."

SPANISH PRESS UPHOLDS SCALP.

MADRID, Aug. 8.—The liberal press definitely denounce the intentions of the "Cala" that it only demanded the withdrawal of the bill prohibiting further religious orders, until the concordat had been revised, and also insists that the bill in question did not violate the concordat, which recognizes only three orders.

El Liberal says Pope Pius X is now awaiting a wind to reach a port in following the advice of the Spanish exiled.

Vincent Astor's Newport gossip, has declared both in the wrong and that their troubles of the past must be forgotten.

ROCKEFELLER IS SERVED

Oil Magnate Greets Court Officer: Cordially Placing Carriage at His Disposal.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 4.—John D. Rockefeller today was served personally with summons to appear in court in the suit for $150,000 damages brought against him and the Standard Oil Company at Findlay, O., last week by Thomas H. Kelly and others.

Deputy Sheriff Halborn took the summons to Forest Hill, the Rockefeller home. Gatekeeper Pat Lynch sent the deputy on to the house in a carriage.

Mr. Rockefeller was standing on the front porch when Halborn arrived. He cordially greeted the officer and asked him into the house.

The carriage was again placed at Rockefeller's disposal when he left. He was heard saying he would rather walk than ride about the grounds.

"If you want to walk," said Mr. Rockefeller, "go this way. It is much better than the accompanying Halborn."

The officer in the case recited that he was the majority of the Standard Oil Company's oil company has caused the complainants to lose the amount sued for.

JAPANESE WILL FLY

Government is to Buy Wright Machines and Officers Sent to Master Art.

RIGHTON, Aug. 5.—The Japanese military commission, which for several months past has been studying military conditions in Europe, has arranged with the company controlling the Wright aeroplane plants in Germany to buy a number of Wright machines.

The Japanese government will send to Germany four captains and 21 lieutenants of the army, and these, by agreement with the German government, will receive instruction in aeroplane flying.

Some of the officers have already left here and begun to take part in the management of the flying school.

BULLETIN ADS PAY

This car will add new luster to an honorable name

THE most valuable asset the Cadillac Company possesses is its good name—a good name which is not merely the result of popular caprice but has been earned by what the car has done and what it has been. The Cadillac is, as you know, unique in the kind things that are said, and thought, and felt about it by thousands of people.

This good name, and the extraordinary good will which it has engendered everywhere, we interpret as an obligation to build a car so fine as to remove itself automatically from the likelihood of competition.

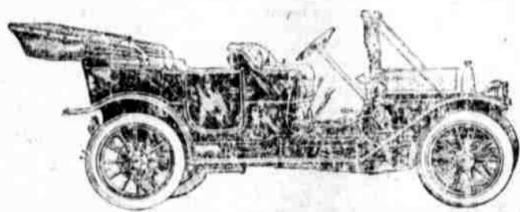

For 1911, therefore, our first thought—our one and only thought, in fact—has been to satisfy that widespread and implicit confidence which always expects the exceptional from the Cadillac. We believe we are justified in saying that in this larger, more powerful, more luxurious car, the Cadillac organization has surpassed itself.

In spite of ten years of devoted adherence to the manufacturing principle that any one of ten thousand Cadillacs should be interchangeable in its parts with any other Cadillac of the same type, we were not ready so short a time as twelve months ago to build a car as worthy and as wonderful as this.

Manufacturing plants, like men, must fit themselves to do truly great things. Even with the system of standardization, which has no equal in the world, and which insures an absolutely perfect alignment of parts and the almost final elimination of friction, the value of 1911 was not possible in 1910.

You are receiving now, we verily believe, the most advanced type of exact and scientific motor car manufacture which the industry has produced.

Please co-operate with your Cadillac representative by the earliest possible inspection.

Important Improvements in 1911 Cadillac "Thirty"

- INCREASED POWER. Cylinder bore increased from 1 1/4 inches to 1 1/2 inches. This, with more efficient carburetor, (Schebler) which is water-jacketed, effects a material increase in power. Piston stroke, 4 1/2 inches. The four cylinders are cast singly, with copper jackets applied, retaining the exclusive Cadillac leaf-thrust throughout.
- INCREASED COMFORT. Wheel base increased from 110 to 116 inches, making the car easier than ever.
- IMPROVED APPEARANCE. Double drop fns, 2 1/2 inch drop, which makes car set lower, and this with the larger hood and more roomy tonneau greatly improves the appearance.
- LARGE RADIATOR. The radiator is slightly larger, hence has greater cooling capacity. This is notwithstanding the fact that the Cadillac was never deficient in that respect.
- TIMKEN AXLE. Full floating type. Timken roller bearing rear axle. This is the same axle as used on a number of America's highest priced cars.
- LARGER BRAKE DRUMS. More powerful brakes, more evenly applied and greatly increased efficiency. Contracting and expanding double acting brakes, both equalized.
- TWO IGNITION SYSTEMS. Two complete and independent ignition systems, each with its own set of spark plugs. The two ignition systems consist of Bosch high tension magneto and the new and improved Delco system with single unit coil, high tension distributor and controlling relay. Either system alone is efficient for operating the car.
- ENCLOSED WIRING. All electrical wiring enclosed in copper tubes.
- COPPER MANIFOLDS. Copper manifolds are used for water inlets and outlets in the circulating system.
- REMOVABLE CLUTCH. Catch may be removed in a very few minutes without disturbing other members.

FOREST FIRES AGAIN RAGING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Five additional companies of regular troops have been ordered out to help the civil authorities and volunteers fight rapidly-spreading forest fires in the Glacier Park, Blackfoot and Flathead reservations. The War Department announced that it would furnish all possible aid to the forest rangers in trying to stop the fires.

More Troops Called For.
PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 19.—Forest fires are spreading in southern Oregon and in Washington. More troops have been called for by the Government rangers. It is believed that without additional help the fire-fighters can not conquer the flames until timber worth many millions is destroyed.

Several rangers and campers are hemmed in by the fires, and they may lose their lives unless they are rescued immediately.

ROME, Aug. 19.—During the past twenty-four hours nineteen new cases of cholera have been reported. There have been twelve deaths in the same length of time.

SEE KAUAI ISLAND NATURE'S FAIRYLAND

Fancy a sheer drop of three thousand feet from summit to base, the pile rising so close to the sea that the shadows fall on the water. Let your imagination go a little further and see in your mind's eye pieces of burning light-wood, taking a zigzag course from the summit, leaving a trail of fire similar, but smaller, than was left by Halley's comet a few months ago, and you get an idea of the scenery along the Kauai coast. The mountain cliffs appeal to the artist-mind of men and women who see them; nature has left her imprint in the marvelous colors for which Kauai foliage is noted. In a measure it is primeval, for the hand of progress and the sign of commercialism is not in evidence along the windward side of the island.

Few persons visit that section of the island, because there is no steamer making regular trips. The grandeur of the scenery is understated and appreciated when viewed from the sea. The only time anyone has an opportunity to see it is when in the goodness of its heart the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company yields to popular demand and dispatches a special steamer to make a circuit of the island. The first-class, A1, floating palace, Mauna Kea, will start on a circuit of Kauai on the evening of August 27—just a week after full moon. A stop will be made at Nawiliwili in the morning, and a number of Kauai people will join the party. From there the steamer will go to Hanalei for a stay until noon. This will give the passengers a chance to enjoy the splendid sea bathing there, as well as to visit the Kauai Electric Works. The cruise around the island will enable the passengers to see the beauties of Kauai from the deck of the steamer. The cost of the trip will be ten dollars. This will include all expenses. Booking is now being done at the office of the company, Queen street.

MRS. RUSSELL SAGE HAS CAUGHT "AERO FEVER"

Says, Before Seeing Flight, She'll Aid Any Woman Inventor of Aeroplane.
NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Mrs. Russell Sage, who yesterday announced her willingness to aid any woman aeroplane inventor, today saw the flight of a heavier-than-air machine for the first time.

At the aviation field near Mineola she watched Captain Thomas S. Baldwin make a number of speedy circles of the course, marveled at Clifford B. Harmon's eleven-minute continuous flight at a height of 200 feet and saw George S. Russell go through the familiar stunts that characterize the evolution of a fledgling.

She confided to Joe Seymour after the flights: "I've caught the aero fever. I like to see them fly. It's a marvelous demonstration of the capabilities of human achievement. I want to see them again. I'll be here often during the summer."

CHAPTER XXI

FLIGHT.

STEELE mounted the stairs to the attic. From the high window there he could see, around a curve in the row, a tottering figure. Quickly coming down to the second story, he began cautiously to examine from the windows the situation of the house in relation to adjoining grounds and neighboring dwellings.

To the right the top of the high wall shone with the customary broken bits of glass; the rear defenses glistened also in formidable fashion. He noted, however, several places where this safeguard against mounted invasion showed signs of deterioration. In one or two spots the jagged fragments had been broken or had fallen off. These slight breaks in the continuity of irregular, masonry glass bits he fixed in mind by a certain shrub or tree. Against the rear wall, which was of considerable height, he heard his neighbors low conversatory, almost spinning it from side to side.

"Sure, sir, I don't know whether it's breakfast or supper that's waiting for you." Captain Forsythe's man had reappeared and stood now at the top of the landing looking at him. "It's a sound sleep you've had."

John Steele glanced at the clock. The afternoon was waning.

The servant was now enjoying the visitor dubiously. John Steele wheeled, a perfumery answer on his lips, and, going to the dining room, swallowed hastily a few mouthfuls.

He made up his mind as to his course then, the last desperate shift. Amid a turmoil of thoughts a certain letter he had had in mind to send to Captain Forsythe occurred to him, and, calling for paper and pen, he wrote there, facing the window, feverishly, hurriedly, several pages. Then he gave the letter to the servant for the postman, whose special call at the hour knocked without had just sounded.

The letter would have served John Steele if it had fallen into his enemies' hands, but only in the care of the postman as it would be safe. If it were found that person at the gate and not come one—

"One moment, please!" The man pointed. "Of course you will make sure it is the postman?"

"As if I didn't know his knock!" he said, departing.

John Steele's pulses now throbbled excitement. He had obtained a key to the gate and moved toward the front door. By this time the darkness had deepened, and a key in hand, he stepped out.

As he walked toward the front of the gravel that the servant might hear him, but near the entrance he paused, he flitting to look out. As he remained thus some one who had been standing not far off drew near. John Steele stole toward the place until he reached the back wall.

There he examined his position, felt the top, then placed his fingers on the wall. It was about six feet high; but, setting hold, he was about to spring into the air, when behind him, from the direction of the rear, a low metallic sound caught his attention. The front gate to the Forsythe house had suddenly clicked. Some one had entered.

John Steele looked back. Even as he did so a number of figures abruptly ran forward from the gate. He waited no longer, but drew himself up to a level with the top of the wall. The effort made him acutely aware of his wounded shoulder. He winced, but set his teeth hard and swung himself over until one foot came in contact with the iron frame of the greenhouse next to the doorway. To crawl to the end of the lean-to, leaning to hold to the wall and then to lie himself down, occupied but a brief interval.

He heard behind him an imperative knocking at the front door of Captain Forsythe's house, succeeded by the voice of feet hastening into the house.

For some time nothing save these sounds was wafted to the listener. Then a loud, dissonant voice, sounding like another voice, came from a half closed window. John Steele stood still no longer. Great hazard, almost certain capture, lay before him in the direction he was going—the street this garden had to be watched—but he could not remain where he was. He moved quickly forward. As he neared the house, more imposing than Captain Forsythe's, a stream of light poured from a window. Through this bright space he darted quickly, catching a fleeting view of people within, several with their faces turned toward him. Close to a side of the square looking house he paused, his heart beating fast. To attempt to reach the gate, to get out to Surrey road, little doubt existed as to what awaited him there. He remained motionless. Sharp twinges again shot through his shoulder. Then on a sudden he became unmindful of physical discomfort. A plan of action that had flashed through his brain held him oblivious to all else. It covered only the remotest chance of escape, but still a chance, which he weighed, determined to take. It had come to him while standing in the merry voices within the room near him talking of the dinner just ended, of the box party at the theater that was to follow.

Already cats were at the door. A servant walked out and unlocked the gate, and with light badinage the company issued forth. As they did so John Steele, undisturbed, stepped forward. In the semi-darkness the party passed through the entrance into the street. Taking his place among the last of the laughing, dimly seen figures, John Steele walked boldly on and found himself a moment later on the sidewalk of Surrey road. He was aware that some one, a woman, had touched his arm as if to take it, of a light feminine voice and an abrupt exclamation of surprise. Walking swiftly to one of the last cabs, he sprang in.

"A little errand first, driver," he called out. "To—and mentioned a street—as fast as you can." The man straightened, touched his horse with his whip, and, wheeling quickly, they dashed away.

As they did so John Steele thought he heard exclamations behind. Looking through the cab window, he saw at the gate the company gazing after him, obviously not yet recovered from their thrill of surprise following his unexpected action. He observed also two men on the other side of the street, who now ran across and held a brief altercation with one of the cabs. As they were about to enter the cab several persons in the party apparently intervened, expostulating vigorously. It was not difficult to surmise the resentment of the group at this attempted summary seizure of a second one of their cabs.

"These men must not overtake us, why. Go where you will! You understand?"

The man did. His fingers closed quickly on a sovereign, and once more he hushed his horse. For some time they continued at a rapid pace, now skirting the confines of the park, now plunging into a puzzling tangle of streets, but wherever they went the other cab managed always to keep them in sight. It even began to creep up nearer. From his pocket John Steele drew a weapon. His eyes gleamed ominously. The pursuing hansom drew closer. Casting a hurried glance over his shoulder, he again called up to the driver.

"It's no use, guv'nor," came back the reply. "This 'oss 'as been out longer than 'is."

"Then turn the first dark corner and slow up a bit, for only a second. Afterward go on your very best as long as you can."

Another sovereign changed hands, and shortly afterward the vehicle dashed into a side street. It appeared as likely a place as any for his purpose. John Steele, hardly waiting for the man to draw rein, leaped out as far as he might. He landed without mishap, heard a whip snap furiously and darted back into a doorway. He had just reached it when the other cab drew near. For an instant he felt certain that he had been seen, but the pursuers' eyes were bent eagerly ahead.

"This'll mean a fiver for you, my man," he heard one of them shout to the driver. "We've got him, by"—A harsh, jubilant cry cut the air; then they were gone.

John Steele did not wait. Replacing the weapon in his pocket, he started quickly around the corner. His cabman could not lead them far; they would soon return.

Which way should he move? His face burned with fever; he did not heed it. A long, broad thoroughfare as he walked on had suddenly unfolded itself to his gaze. One side of this highway shone resplendent with the blaring lights of numerous stands and stalls displaying vegetables and miscellaneous articles.

About to turn back from this animated scene, John Steele hesitated. The road ran straight and sure toward the destination he wished to reach, while on either hand lay a network of devious ways.

He decided, crossed the street. Lights gleamed in his face. He pushed his way through the people unnoted and strode on, followed only by the noise of passing vehicles and carts.

On, on John Steele moved; on, on. Time passed. It would be a hard battle, but once in that part of the city he was striving to reach he might find those willing to offer him shelter—low-born, miserable wretches he had hoped. In their midst was the one man in the world who could throw a true light on the events of the past, enable him to—

Behind him some one followed, some one who drew ever nearer, with soft, skulking steps which now he heard—

"Mr. Steele?" Even as he wheeled his name was called out.

Before the sudden fierce passion gleaming on John Steele's face, the bright flame of his look, the person who had accosted him shrank back. His pinched and pale face showed surprise, fear. Almost incoherently he began to stammer.

Steele looked about. They two, as far as he could see, were alone.

"I ask your pardon." The fellow found his voice. "I'll not be troubling you further, Mr. Steele."

"You were about to beg—of me?" John Steele smiled.

Dandy Joe began to shuffle off in a spiritless way when—

"You are hungry?" said John Steele. "A little, sir."

"A modest answer in view of the actual truth, I suspect," observed the man. But although his words were tame, they were in his case. A sovereign it was all he had left about him. When he had departed, foot-holds for Forsythe. How he took refuge in a trench, a ditch, with funds for a moderate period. A contingency he should have foreseen had arisen. For the present he could not appear at the bank to draw against the balance he always maintained there. John Steele fingered that last sovereign, started to turn, when he caught the look in the other's eyes. Did it recall to him his own plight but a short twenty-four hours before?

"Very well," he said, and was about to give the coin to the man and walk away when another thought held him. This fellow had been a link in a certain chain of events. The temptation grew to linger with him, the single, tangible, though pitiful and useless figure in the drama he could lay hands on. John Steele looked around. In a byway he saw the lighted window of a cheap oyster buffet. Motioning to the man, he wheeled abruptly and started for it.

A few minutes later found them seated in the shabby back room. A number of faded sporting pictures adorned the wall. One how John Steele started!—showed the Frisco Pet in a favorite attitude.

Steele spoke now. His dark eyes shone strangely. A sardonic expression lurked there. The proprietor could bring his companion a steak if he had one. Large or small? Large, with an emicomatic smile.

The proprietor bustled out. A voice, hoarse, that of a man, was heard:

"The blasted fog is coming down fast."

The smaller man drew back. A shiver seemed to run over him. "They are a long while about the steak," he murmured.

"Your testimony helped to send him over the water, I believe," said Steele, pointing out the picture of the Frisco Pet to Dandy Joe.

"How do you— I ain't on the stand now, Mr. Steele?" A spark of defiance momentarily came into Dandy Joe's eyes.

"No, no!" John Steele leaned back. "The harm's been done so far as you are concerned. You as a factor have disappeared from the case."

"Glad to hear you say so, Mr. Steele, I mean," the other's voice was uncertain, cautious, "that's a matter long since dealt and done with. But as for my testimony helping to send him over the water—"

"Or under?" sotto voce.

Joe swallowed. "It was true, every word of it."

"Good!" John Steele spoke almost listlessly. "Always stick by any one who sticks to you, whether a friend or a pal or a patron."

"A patron?" From the other's lips fell an oath.

"But even if there had been something not quite strictly in accord—which there wasn't—quickly—a man couldn't gainsay what had been said," Dandy Joe began.

"He could," indifferently.

"But that would be—"

"Confessing to perjury? Yes."

"Hold on, Mr. Steele!" The man's eyes began to shine with alarm. "I'm not on the—"

"I know. And it wouldn't do any good if you were."

"You mean—in spite of himself the fellow's tones wavered—"because he's under the water?"

"No; I had in mind that even if he hadn't been drowned, you?"

"What! Hadn't?"

"That," said John Steele, "doesn't matter. The principal subject of any consequence relating to you is the steak, which is now coming." As he spoke he rose, leaving Dandy Joe alone at the table.

For a time he did not speak, sitting before a cheerless fire that feebly attempted to assert itself.

Once when the proprietor stepped in he asked, without looking around, for a certain number of grains of quinine with a glass of water; they probably kept it at the bar. Yes; the man always had it on hand and brought it in.

By this time Dandy Joe had pushed back his chair. His dull eyes gleamed with satisfaction, also perhaps a little calculation. He was thinking. A certain matter in which self interest played no small part had come to mind. Joe regarded him covertly.

"Asking you pardon for referring to it—but you've helped so many a poor chap—there's an old job of mine which is down on his back, and he was asking of me for a good lawyer who could give him a present talk."

"I am not fit present!"—Steele experienced a sense of grim humor—"looking for new clients."

"Well, I thought I'd be mentioning the matter, sir. You see, he's been out of old England for a long time and was going away again, when wot should he suddenly hear but that his old woman that was died and left a few hundred pounds or so—enough to start a nice little pub for him and to run—only it's in the hands of a trustee, who is waiting for him to appear and claim it."

"You say he has been out of England?" John Steele stopped. "How long?"

"A good many years. There was one or two little matters ag'in him when he left home, so he wanted to see a lawyer and find out, in any case, how he could get his money without—"

"The law got 'em hold of him. What is his name?"

"Tom Rogers."

The blood surged to Steele's temples. "You can give me the Tom Rogers' address?" He could hardly control his voice in his agitation.

CHICKENS AND OTHER POULTRY

(By Joseph R. Farrington.)

Geese raising is a branch of the poultry industry that may be made immensely profitable, if one has a liking for the business. First, there is the feather crop as a source of revenue, whether one keeps five geese or twenty, whether one is aiming to get only enough feathers to supply one's own household, or is raising them for market. Every six weeks from May to October there is a crop of feathers for the picking, and they bring about a dollar a pound, each goose producing about one-fourth pound to each picking. You can safely figure that each goose will give you a dollar's worth of feathers in a season, and a goose will live to a great age, 20 years or more. Young geese commence to lay at one year of age, but the first clutch of eggs is worthless for hatching purposes. They may be sold from the egg of a mature goose by the fact that they are smaller in size and more nearly round. We like to save these eggs from the young geese as feed for the young goslings when they hatch. Geese begin to lay (mature stock) in February. They each produce about 15 eggs before preparing to sit. The eggs will be found on the ground and buried in straw or litter; hence it is better to keep the geese shut up in a pen till about noon during laying season, or many of the eggs will be lost. Eggs may be successfully hatched in an incubator and reared by hand or by hen mothers. We like to set several hens on goose eggs at the same time as the incubator so as to have them care for the goslings. A hen will hilly care for five or six goose eggs, but she can, if given a nice warm coop, care for 15 goslings. Goslings require a little over four weeks to hatch, and it is best to always keep a layer of flannel on top of the eggs in the machine; it tempers and directs the rays of heat from the water pipes, which come nearer to the large eggs than is the case with hen eggs. It is well also to sprinkle this flannel with warm water once a day, when you have aired the eggs; goose eggs seemingly require more moisture than hen eggs.

When one is short of laying geese it does very well to let one goose sit; then when the incubator comes off let her and her mate take care of the entire bunch in the daytime, catching up the little fellows at night and tucking them up snugly in a flannel lined basket. We have reared large numbers of geese in this way without mothers or hovers, but a goose mother in the daytime relieves one of a great responsibility. The gander looks out for the family as faithfully as the mother, and was into any cat, dog or pig that dares molest the little flock. They should have a nice, dry, comfortable coop for stormy days, and the little ones should spend most of their time in the warm basket till a week or ten days old. Feed the tiny goslings on the immature goose eggs, boiled hard and mixed with finely minced onions and green grass. Give them grit and water in the little fountain so they cannot get wet. Little geese well started are very easily reared and live almost entirely on grass and insects. They pasture almost like pigs, plenty of fresh water and good grass or alfalfa being about all they need.

The reason so many fall with young geese is that they try to set the first eggs of their young geese, which are never fertile, or at least never hatch livable goslings. Then, after they have wasted the time on those eggs, it is too late in the season to have the geese lay out another clutch of eggs and hatch more goslings. Keep the old geese laying by breaking up the first attempt to sit, using hens or incubators to do the hatching. Then the young geese will, if not allowed to sit, lay a second clutch of eggs which will be fertile and produced in time to hatch out a profitable crop of goslings. A good long pasture will confine grown geese if one wing is kept clipped, and, if no cross hogs are kept, such a place is ideal. A low shed where the geese may be bodied down like hogs is the best sort of housing for them. Geese are seldom bothered with vermin or disease.

If only a trio of geese is kept, one gander to two geese is sufficient, but

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day or two, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Coddin's, Soothing Syrup and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the drug should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics. It bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy." J. A. FERRIS, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"For several years I recommended your 'Castoria' and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results." ROBERT F. TAYLOR, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a nutritious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies." J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

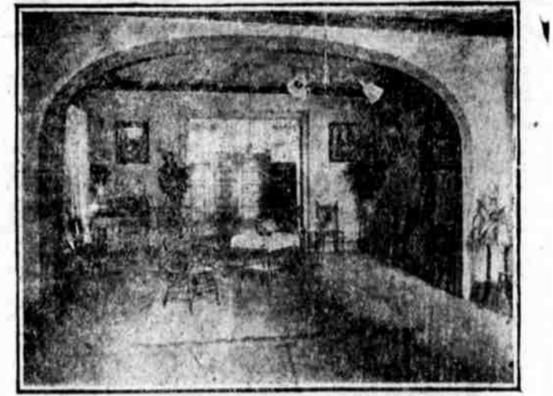

"Your Castoria holds the center of the medicine profession in a manner held by no other proprietary formula and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments." J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.
