OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH,
HONOLULU, Hawaii, Dec. 20, 1905.

At a meeting of the Board of Health held December 6th, 1905, the following additions and amendments to the Rules and Regulations of the Board of Health were regularly adopted, viz.:

EXPECTORATION.

RESOLVED, That no person shall expecto-rate upon any public place, sidewalk, street crossing, or upon the floor of any street car or railway car, or any other public conveyance, or of any public building or any building common to the use of the public. Street gutters are excepted.

REGULATING THE SPRINKLING OF LAUNDERED ARTICLES.

RESOLVED, No person or persons, ironing or performing any act, in the laundrying of clothing or any article belonging to another, or in the laundry-ing of clothing or any article for hire, shall spray any article so laundered with liquid sprayed or projected from the mouth of said person or persons.

CARBAGE REGULATIONS.

24. No garbage or offensive liquid or matter shall be thrown or deposited in any highway, street, lane or public place within the Territory of Hawaii.

25. No garbage or offensive liquid or matter shall be kept upon any premises except in covered containers of not less than 12 cubic feet capacity and shall be removed from said premises or disposed of within not less than one week, unless otherwise ordered disposed of by the Board of Health or its duly authorized agents.

26. No garbage, stable manure, night soil or animal or vegetable refuse of any nature whatsoever which is subject to decay shall be used for grading purposes or for filling in house lots or any other tract of land.

27. No person or corporation shall convey through the streets of any city, town or village of the Territory, any garbage, offensive liquid or matter, soil or filth, except in such containers as will prevent spilling and leakage.

28. Public dumping grounds for the dumping and disposition of garbage shall be designated from time to time by the Board of Health and no garbage shall be dumped or deposited in any place other than the place or places so designated by the Board of Health.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

By its President:

L. E. PINKHAM.

Attest:

C. CHARLOCK,
Secretary Board of Health.

I hereby sanction and approve the foregoing Rules and Regulations.

THE KONA SCHOOL DISTURBANCE SETTLED

The disturbance over in Kona caused by Mrs. Mary H. Atcherly, representing Mrs. A. Davis, and a number of others, taking possession of the Holualoa school house and resisting arrest, has been quelled. Territorial high officials were summoned from Honolulu and together with local county officials they succeeded in securing the arrest of the disturbers of the peace.

Mrs. Atcherly took possession of the school house, claiming that the Department of Public Instruction had no rights there, and refused to treat with the school agent, M. F. Scott, on the grounds that he was without authority.

Sheriff Keolanui was summoned to make the arrests, and arrived Monday, but declined to serve the papers for reason that they contained defects that left him without warrant in making such arrests. School Agent Scott had reported the state of affairs to the Territorial authorities and High Sheriff Henry, Deputy Attorney General M. F. Prosser and Superintendent of Public Instruction Babbitt arrived on the scene Wednesday.

Papers were sworn out by School Agent Scott, charging those forcibly holding possession of the school premises with civil and criminal offenses and the offenders were arrested and brought before Judge Clark of the District Court of North Kona. The report is that conviction was secured on the criminal charges and that all were fined, which report, however, is not confirmed.

The school authorities are in possession of their property and school may now be resumed after a week's enforced vacation. County Attorney Chas. Williams was summoned Thursday to take charge of the case and relieve Deputy Attorney General Prosser and permit his return to Honolulu. High Sheriff Henry and Supt. Babbitt were to return by the Mauna Loa Tuesday.

French-Venezuelan Difference.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The trouble between France and President Castro of Venezuela is reaching a crisis.

To Investigate Charges of Graft.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The City Council has appointed a committee to investigate charges that graft to the extent of five million dollars of the city's money has been distributed during the past decade to contractors and officials.

Invites Investigation.

Washington, Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt sent a message to Congress yesterday inviting scrutiny into the administration of the Panama Canal project. He says in his message that several sensational charges, which have been made of jobbery and immorality in connection with the matter are absolutely unfounded.

Coal Cargo Afire.

Valparaiso, Jan. 9.—The American ship Bangalore, Capt. Blanchard, of 1560 tons, which sailed from Philadelphia on October 8th for Honolulu with coal consigned to H. Hackfeld & Co., Ltd., and was spoken November 11th in 11 degrees south latitude, 34 degrees west longitude off Aracajo, Brazil, has arrived here with her cargo burning.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—Morales at Santo Domingo has offered to resign if he be allowed to leave the country.

Fisheries Case Decided.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The Supreme Court of the United States has decided the fisheries case of Joseph O. Carter and other trustees under the will of Bernice Pauahi Bishop, deceased, vs. the Territory of Hawaii, against the Territory. The decision reverses the decision of the Territorial Supreme Court.

The "Fishery Cases" have been hanging in the local courts for nearly four years awaiting the decision in the above case. They will now all be tried and it will be necessary under the Organic Act for the Territory to then institute condemnation proceedings to recover the rights for the benefit of the citizens of the United States.

In a previous case involving S. M. Damon's rights, the United States Supreme Court held as it did yesterday, but the case decided yesterday is much more sweeping in its scope as the rights were not claimed under patent, but as ancient privileges which had become vested rights.

The cases which can now be tried are brought by the following plaintiffs: The Kapiolani Estate (two cases); J. O. Carter, et al, trustee (Bishop Estate) (seven more cases); Mary E. Foster, et al, Henry Smith, trustee; Guistan F. Ropert, trustee (the Catholic church); Mark P. Robinson; Catherine Stewart; Nanie R. Rice; Oahu Railway & Land Co.; Bruce Cartwright, trustee (three cases); Queen Liliuokalani; Mary Lucas; John H. Estate, limited; Kaneohe Ranch Co.; Heeia Agricultural Co.; Domitila Paiko; J. M. Monsarrat; Samuel M. Damon; thirty-one cases in all, in the first circuit. Cases were also instituted in other circuits which have been likewise held up.

Martial Law.

St. Petersburg, January 7.—On account of the serious condition of affairs along the Siberian railway, seventeen districts may have been put under martial law.

De Witte May Retire.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 6.—It is now reported that Premier De Witte is slated to retire upon the assembling of the Russian Parliament.

Strenuous Campaigning.

London, Jan. 6.—During the progress of his speech at Manchester last night, ex-Premier Balfour was frequently interrupted by the rowdy element.

Home Rule For Ireland.

London, Jan. 6.—The Earl of Morley, Deputy Speaker of the House of Lords, has come out in advocacy of the election of a legislative body to control Irish affairs under the direction of Parliament.

Revolutionists Control Caucasian Town.

Odessa, Jan. 6.—The steamer Nicholas which arrived here today reports that the town of Novarossiysk in Caucasia, is in the hands of the revolutionists and the governor and other officials of the Russian government have fled.

Numerous Army Changes.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—General Leonard Wood will, on February 1, relieve General Corbin now in command of a department in the Philippines. General Weston will command the department of Luzon, General Williams will command the department of the Visayas, while General Corbin will succeed General-Weston in command of the department of North St. Louis.

Seek Freedom From Oppression.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 4.—Nine thousand Jews have recently emigrated to America.

Chinese Students Strike.

Peking, Jan. 4.—Eight thousand Chinese students in Japan are on strike and under official supervision. They threaten to return to China.

Millions Lost Through the Strikes.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 4.—The Putiloff Iron Works have decided to close. They have lost millions by the strikes. Resumption has been declared impossible.

New Year's at White House.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—A brilliant reception was held at the White House today by President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Quiet in Baltic Provinces.

Riga, Jan. 1.—The situation in the Baltic provinces is improved. There have been no serious outbreaks in that section of the Empire recently.

THE desire of the members of the Board of Trade for a greater manifest interest in its work on the part of the public found voice at the annual meeting. The efforts of such an organization as promoters of the public good, commercially and otherwise, certainly ought to have the support of every man who has interest in the welfare of his community. That a board of trade, or similar organization, is important, is a necessity, indeed, in an ambitious town, scarcely admits of argument; it is a universally admitted fact. On the mainland, from cities down to aspiring towns, all maintain such an organization. The public is personified in the board, in effect, if not always in fact, and through it the public has voice and action. In no city can this kind of a public organization be more useful than in Hilo. Our board is performing valuable service for this community, and is a necessity here for special reasons. The men who have been serving on the board have given not a little of their valuable time to its work and as individuals their service is recognized. The Hilo board is broadly representative of the business interests of the place; all should unite in giving it co-operation and support.

THE fruit industry has had slow growth on the island of Hawaii. The lack of adequate shipping facilities has hampered it and this from no fault of the transportation companies. Steamers do not come where there is no business for them and, on the other hand, fruit will not be produced where there is no means in sight of getting it to market. It will require a getting together of producer and carrier to make the business, and this may be a slow process of commercial growth. The era of more rapid development of the islands seems to be at hand. With the more improved facilities for handling fruit the industry will take new life. For the immediate future, money, which is life blood of all business, is believed by those who have been making the subject a study, is to be made in canning the pineapple. In this issue, the TRIBUNE publishes the conclusions of a long-time resident of the islands, which have been reached after making an exhaustive and intelligent study of the question.

At a recent meeting of Chinese guilds and American merchants held at Canton, China, twelve changes in our exclusion law were formulated, the granting of which would, they thought, end the boycott on American goods in China. Among these was this: "That Chinese laborers should be admitted into the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, provided the local authorities were willing." The Outlook, New York, in this case as usually, is in accord with the administration view of the question. It says: "We may well give immediate heed to most of these demands: not to all, certainly not to the one which concerns the admittance of Chinese laborers to the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands, a request which ignores the supremacy of the United States over these insular possessions." The Outlook is wrong, in this at least, in including the Hawaiian Islands amongst the "insular possessions," for they are part and parcel of the United States; their citizens are voters and the islands have been designated by an act of Congress as the "Territory of Hawaii."

INSTALLATION AND BANQUET.

Hilo Masons Enjoy Evening of Good Fellowship.

Kilauea Lodge No. 330, F. and A. M. Saturday night installed officers for the year 1906, as follows: Worshipful Master, Wm. T. Baldwin; Senior Warden, E. N. Holmes; Junior Warden, Wm. McKay, Jr.; Treasurer, Adam Lindsay; Secretary, G. H. Vicars; Chaplain, Chas. W. Hill; Marshal, James Henderson; Senior Deacon, D. A. Loebenstein; Junior Deacon, R. C. Kennedy; Senior Steward, Thomas Guard; Junior Steward, A. C. Gibb; Tyler, Wm. S. Bobm.

There was a large attendance of members of the order from Hilo and vicinity, and a number were present from the other islands and several from abroad.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies, those assembled repaired to Hotel Demosthenes, where an elaborate banquet had been prepared for them. After enjoying the good things of the table, toasts were responded to, interspersed with music, in accordance with the following program, Wm. McKay, Jr. presiding as toastmaster: "The Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of California"; Bro. F. A. Medical, P. M. Music; Hawaiian Quintette Club "The President of the United States"; Bro. C. W. Hill "Kilauea Lodge No. 330, F. & A. M."; Bro. G. H. Williams, P. M. "The Master and Officers of the coming Year"; Bro. W. T. Baldwin, W. M. Music; Hawaiian Quintette Club "Our Visiting Brethren"; Bro. G. H. Pierce "Our New Temple"; John Truop Moir Music; Hawaiian Quintette Club "Our Departed Brethren"; In Silence To all Masons, whithersoever dispersed. Auld Lang Syne.

The chief topic occupying the attention of the speakers of the evening was the new temple which the Masonic Hall Association has decided upon building.

Plea for Defense of the Islands.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the present session of Congress may witness some practical action looking to the development of our naval and military defenses in the Hawaiian Islands. One project which is specially urgent is the dredging of Pearl Harbor, which, in the nature of things, is destined to become one of our most important naval bases in the Pacific Ocean. The required improvement of Pearl Harbor has already been too long neglected, and should receive immediate attention if we are to retain our naval prestige in the Pacific and gain our proper proportion of the growing commerce of those waters. Lying midway between our Western seaboard and the Philippines, Hawaii occupies a position of extraordinary importance to naval and commercial interests in the Pacific. Properly fortified and provided with a naval base capable of affording shelter, repairs and supplies for our warships, Hawaii would be a powerful factor in the whole system of national defense, but if Oahu is left undefended it would be a source of weakness rather than of strength, offering an attractive invitation to attack from the enemy's fleet.

Pearl Harbor is peculiarly adapted to the needs of a great naval base, and with the proposed improvements it will be one of the most important strategic outposts in the Pacific. The first need is to dredge the harbor, and that should be done without further delay. The dredging of the harbor of Honolulu at a cost of $400,000 is now approaching completion, and when it is finished the three big dredges in use there will be available for similar service at Pearl Harbor, so that it will be possible to do the work without having to buy a new and costly outfit. Lieut. Commander Albert P. Niblack, U. S. N., in charge of the naval station at Honolulu, is deeply interested in the proposed improvement of Pearl Harbor, and has labored most zealously to enlist official interest in the project. He believes, as do other careful students of the situation, that our future, in a naval as well as in a commercial sense, is bound to center largely in the Pacific, and so believing, he feels, as do all our officers, that enlightened self-interest requires the prompt and thorough development of our defenses in Hawaii.—Army and Navy Journal.

Carter on the Labor Question.

From a letter addressed to Gorman D. Gilman of Boston, by Governor Carter, treating of labor and financial conditions in Hawaii, and made public, the following extracts are made:

"So far as immigration is concerned, I am not yet convinced but that there may be a solution to it without the necessity of congressional action. There are a few here who are making every effort to work out their own solution. This would be far more simple if only our immigration laws were construed to permit the Territory itself to assist in securing people from some foreign country who could become citizens. How can we increase the population of these islands and thus develop them, isolated as they are in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, without providing the means of transportation?"

"As these islands are an integral part of the Union, they are subject to all laws passed by Congress, and our Federal legislative machinery is of such magnitude that it is almost impossible to make Congress realize that tropical conditions in Hawaii require that she be excepted and exempted from the operation of many laws which are passed, with sound reason, to meet conditions which exist on the mainland. And if success is to crown American control of Hawaii, these facts must not be lost sight of, and as she can not for some time be admitted as a state, then she must have, because of her unique position, special legislation from time to time."

"Hawaii's main industry and her principal source of wealth is the production of sugar, and from the wealth so obtained she has in the past secured the means for her progress and advancement. Whether wisely or not, she built up an industrial system by using the machinery, brains and capital of the Occident in combination with labor from the Orient, and she justifies such a course by pointing to the fact that no other tropical country in so short a period of time has made such a record."

"Unless an increase of population can be obtained from some source, the excess of departures over arrivals among the Orientals will sap the foundations of our industrial structure."

"Thus the first thing needed is a modification of our immigration laws by which we can in some way build up the population of these islands and re-enforce the supply of labor that is now slipping away from us."

Henry Fires His Deputy. High Sheriff Henry will summarily discharge the jailer at Wailua, who was absent from duty and intoxicated when he was wanted in the Johnson murder case. When Johnson was arrested for the killing of the little Wharton boy the jailer was not to be found at his post of duty and there was no one to look after the prisoner. Investigation showed that he was out with a jag negotiating for more booze on credit.

Two Islands For Sale.

The British government has advertised for sale by public auction, without reserve, in one lot, the Island of Fanning, situate in 3 degrees 39 minutes North Latitude, and 159 degrees 20 minutes West Longitude; and the Island of Washington, situate in 4 degrees 30 minutes North Latitude and 160 degrees 12 minutes West Longitude. Fanning island is well known. It used to be a port of call for the Oceanic steamers plying between Honolulu and the Australian ports, and the Canadian Pacific steamers now stop there on their way up from the Antipodes. Both Fanning and Washington were originally cannibal islands. It is a judicial sale of the fee simple title to the two islands, the sovereignty not being affected. The sale is a part of the result of the litigation between Auditor James Bicknell, of Honolulu, and the Greigs who have an interest in the islands. Bicknell lately won his claims to an interest in the islands in the High Commissioner's Court in Suva.

To Load Large Sugar Cargo.

The S. S. Alaskan will take one of the largest cargoes of sugar to Delaware Breakwater, that will be sent from these islands this season. She is to load 11,400 tons of sugar at three Hawaiian ports. The allotment is as follows: At Honolulu 6902 tons; at Kahului 2936 tons and at Hilo 1562 tons; total 11,400 tons.

The vessel left Puget Sound January 2 and is due at Honolulu about Wednesday, January 10. The S. S. Arizonan and S. S. Texan are the same size as the Alaskan, and they will also load similar sized cargoes during the season.

The next vessel of the American-Hawaiian line to leave San Francisco for Honolulu, will be the S. S. Nebraskan on January 18. She left Kahului December 28 for San Francisco, with a full load of sugar. She is expected to reach her destination tomorrow.—Star.

Governor Carter Withdraws His Support.

Governor Carter has withdrawn his support from Judge W. J. Robinson for renomination for a second term as Third Judge of the Circuit Court of the First Circuit. "I have decided upon this action," the Governor said, "owing to an incident that had occurred some little time ago which, it was fortunate, had not resulted in a greater loss of dignity for Judge Robinson's court." Governor Carter added that he had cabled his withdrawal of support from Judge Robinson to Washington. Judge Matthewman, of the Third Circuit, who arrived from Kailua the week before, was closeted with the Governor a few minutes prior to Judge Robinson's interview.

The Changed Bag

[Original.]

How it happened I can't explain. I remember being at the glove counter and laying my shopping bag on the counter. Then I went to the other end, where there was a lady for whom I was obliged to wait before getting room. I bought a pair of gloves, opened my bag and put them in. I did so without looking into the bag. I passed the lady for whom I had waited. She was standing at the end of the counter I had first visited, and I remember seeing a bag before her that looked so like mine that I looked down to discover if I had my own bag in my hand and saw that it was an exact duplicate of the one before the lady. I thought nothing of this, for they were a very common type.

When I got home I tossed it into a closet. The next day, before going out with it, I opened it to put in some samples. I was surprised to find in it a purse containing $20, a few samples and a letter, the envelope of which was missing. Eager to learn what these things meant, I read the letter. It ran:

Dear Julie—Meet me Thursday afternoon (3:15) at the northeast angle of the open square. I shall disguise myself as an old man. Wear the costume of an old woman. Mary doesn't suspect anything. Don't fail. GILBERT.

I was petrified with horror. I was Mary; Gilbert was my lover. The writing was disguised, but the longer I looked at it the more I was convinced that it was a bad attempt to conceal the hand of Gilbert Merriman. I glanced at the clock. I had just half an hour to get to the place of meeting.

When I reached the square the clock in St. Paul's spire stood at 3:10. I walked to the northeast angle, drawing a heavy veil down over my face, through which I could see, but not be recognized. I concluded to sit on one of the benches and wait. Several women came in, but they were all young and passed on. Five minutes before the appointed time an old woman came by with a basket of apples on her arm. As she passed me I asked if she would sell me one. She held out her basket for me to choose, but did not speak. I looked into her face and felt sure that I had caught my bird.

"Julie?" I asked. She gave a repressed shriek. "You and Gilbert are mistaken in thinking Mary does not suspect. You must have lost Gilbert's letter, for Mary has it and will be here—perhaps is here now—to expose you. As soon as he comes both of you follow me. I will take you to a place where you can confer in safety."

"Dear, dear woman, how kind you are! There he is now. I'll go and tell him."

An old man, much bent and leaning heavily on his cane, came in at a side entrance to the square, and the old woman hastened toward him. They stood talking excitedly, the man looking at me with evident suspicion. The woman was apparently begging him to do as I had suggested, but he appeared to be of a different mind. A policeman happened to stroll by, and the man called to him and said something to him, and they both started for me, followed by the woman.

I began to be frightened. When they reached me the old man called to "Julie" to come forward. "Is that your bag?" he asked. "Heavens, yes! I didn't notice it before."

In my excitement at my discovery of the letter on leaving the house I had snatched up the bag with its contents, and there it was hanging to my wrist. The old man took it from me and opened it.

"Here's your property," he said to the woman, "and here's the thief. Take her along, policeman."

"Not unless you'll agree to appear against her."

The man promised, giving his name and address. I was startled to hear him say not Gilbert Merriman, but George Gilbert. The policeman took the bag and its contents and—great heavens!—marched me to the police station.

The only person in the world on whom I could rely to help me out of the scrape was Gilbert Merriman. I vowed that I would be tried and convicted as a thief rather than send for him. Indeed, they took me to the very door of a cell before I succumbed. One look inside the horrid place was enough.

"Wait," I said. "I'll send for a friend."

They took me back to the office, gave me pencil and paper, and I wrote a note to Gilbert begging him to come to me at once. The messenger was a long while finding him, and when he came I was ready to collapse. I never shall forget the look of pained wonder on his face when he saw me.

"What in the world is the meaning of?" "Oh, Gilbert, I've been very silly. Yesterday I changed bags while shopping with a woman at a store. There was a note in the bag I picked up signed 'Gilbert' to a girl named Julie, appointing to meet her in the park. I went there expecting to catch you. Instead I—"

"Caught a tartar." He went to the desk and explained the matter to the inspector. Then he returned to me and led me out, every one present laughing at me, I red as a cock's comb from my neck to my hair. Gilbert was perfectly lovely to me about the matter, never referring to it, but I never can forget it. As for the other couple, the man gave a false name and never appeared against me, nor did they claim the bag or its contents. ANNIE E. NICHOLS.

CAMERON THE PLUMBER

FRONT ST., OP. SPRICKEL'S BLOCK

AT ST. BARNABA'S FAIR

By Martha McCulloch-Williams

Margery's eyes danced wickedly; she sniffed battle afar. Miss Catherwood, waddling majestically from booth to booth at St. Barnaba's fair, had stopped short at sight of her, setting her nose at least an inch higher and sniffing audibly. Since they were fellow church workers it would not do to say Miss Catherwood hated Margery, but even since young Warwick had fallen under Margery's spell the elder lady had shown herself spiteful beyond words.

All Eppington laughed at her, of course covertly. She was in a way its great lady, owning the biggest house, the handsomest grounds and nearly the biggest bank account in the village. Young Warwick's uncle, the major, had a thought more ready money, but since he lived modestly, never subscribed to anything in public and gave away by stealth more than half his income he was no such personage as Miss Catherwood, whose joy in life was to write her name in front of a good round sum at the head and forefront of every important list.

Margery said audaciously that it was Miss Catherwood's habit to let both hands know all that even her little finger did. Possibly it was that speech, with the necessary accretions from mouth to mouth, which first made Eppington's Lady Bountiful so high and haughty toward its prettiest girl.

Margery Lane was easily that and much more. There was a sweet soul at the bottom of her velvet eyes, wit and spirit a-plenty under her mop of flax silk curls. All the finest young fellows of the village wore her charms and sworn champions, even to the two or three who had tried to be something more. Margery's compelling gayety shed sentiment as a duck's wing sheds water. Thus she had laughed her would be swains out of sighing into a consciousness of what she persisted in calling their mistakes. When she had fully persuaded them to take her own sane view she sent them rejoicing on the way to court and marry other girls.

Thus in her own way she was easily as much a power as Miss Catherwood. Otherwise she would not have been what she was at the fair. Miss Catherwood was the fair's moving spirit. If she had dared she would have ignored Margery. Since she did not dare, she wisely resolved to make the utmost possible out of her enemy. Consequently Margery had the stall which dispensed impartially candy, cut flowers and literature. The girl's chums had behaved nobly in the matter of buying, to say nothing of her lovers, actual, possible and impossible. Major Warwick put himself at the head of the impossible, vowing things were at a pretty pass, indeed, when the girl he had brought up specially for himself was whisked away from him all in a wink by his scapegrace of a nephew.

Melville Warwick, the nephew, had been Miss Catherwood's protegee since he was in short frocks—this in spite of his own smoldering rebellion. His mother, a gentle half invalid, was devoted to Pamela Catherwood, and Melville never willfully crossed his mother in anything. He had worn Catherwood leading strings with what grace he might up to the day he was sent away to college. When he came back from it to find tomboy Margery a creature of infinite and tricky charm, withal the one woman in the world for him, he let it be seen he meant henceforth to have his own way. Within a fortnight he had courted Margery openly, getting a nay-say, of course, but equally, of course, whistling it down the wind.

"I'll give you time to find out your own mind," he had said. "It may take two years, but what is that beside living a whole life without you?" Now he leaned upon the flower counter so ostentatiously rapt in the choice of a rose that Miss Catherwood had to speak twice before he answered.

"What is it, Aunt Pam? You want a rose? Let me beg you choose instead some of those choice chrysanthemums. You see, everybody wants roses, and all the flowers ought to go. The chrysanthemums swamp any woman less majestic than yourself. A dozen of the biggest and hairiest, please, Miss Lane. Change? Outrageous! Whoever heard of change at a fair?"

"I don't want flowers. Keep your money, or, if you needs must spend it, come to some of the sensible tables," Miss Catherwood said with what she meant for a withering glance at Margery, who smiled amiably.

"Do take him away, dear Miss Catherwood!" she murmured. "I have done my best to get rid of him this last hour. If he stays longer all the rest will hate me. You are an angel to deliver me from such a dreadful fate."

"You mean I am an angel. Angels are all masculine. I leave it to the highest authorities if that is not true," Melville said, standing stock still, his folded arms propped upon the flower table. Margery looked at him reproachfully. "You are blocking the way of trade," she said. "I have somewhat of conscience, however you may be lacking in it. These flowers have got to be turned into flannels and soap and shoes for poor folks. Are you willing to pay in advance for all I don't sell?"

"Willing enough—more than willing!" Melville retorted. "Only show me how. I've been here three hours. Well, after this I can give pointers to the poor man who fell among thieves!"

"Melville! For shame! What shocking irreverence! Still I am not altogether astonished," Miss Catherwood interrupted, raising her eyes to the ceiling. "Now, if you please, we will be going. Miss Lane, sell my chrysanthemums over again—and don't forget to add what they fetch to the amount of my original donation."

"Unless you buy them yourself, nobody will," Margery said, with a smile of infantine malice. "They are so big and dull and bricky red everybody has snuffed at them. Indeed, Mr. Salmire told me when he fetched them in, Pamela Catherwood is your one chance for these."

"Indeed!" Miss Catherwood was so near apoplexy she could not get beyond the word. "I'll give you a dollar apiece for them," she said, "and you can send them straight to the Home of the Homeless." Then, with a hissing shriek: "Girl, where is my purse? I had it a moment back—and laid it right there under your hand!"

"Yes, I saw it," Margery said, hurriedly turning about masses of blossomy green. Miss Catherwood watched her suspiciously, crying jerkily all the while: "My purse! Gold mounted, the clasp set with diamonds, and a hundred dollars! What have you done with it?"

"Hush!" young Warwick said imperatively, making to lead her away. People were gathering, staring, listening, craning necks, to see all about.

Margery fell full her hands, saying quietly, "It is not here." The words took away Miss Catherwood's last vestige of composure. With a plunging lurch she overset the flower table, clutched Margery by both shoulders and shook her hard, hissing out: "You! You little bold faced thief!" Stunned silence for a breath; then label broke loose. Suddenly some one cried, "Miss Catherwood, there's your purse tangled up in the lace and jet on your hanging sleeve!"

Miss Catherwood raised a massy arm. There, true enough, the bauble gleamed. With one gasping look at Margery's set, white face, she fell all in a moaning heap at the feet of the girl she had accused, in her fall jarring down a big lantern and overturning it amid the rubbishy decorations. Instantly there was a threatening flare. The flames ran leaping vengefully toward the groveling woman. If she breathed them once she was lost. Margery stood over her, her slight figure outlined against a heavy rich hued rug. Before another hand could be raised her arms went up, she tore the rug loose and, holding it banner-wise around and above her, dropped and smothered with it the flare at her feet.

An hour later Dr. Archer was saying as he patted Margery's burned fingers: "Little girl, it was a heap more than a life for a life. You thought only of your enemy, but you saved your friends as well. If the fire had gained headway every home in Eppington might be in mourning."

"I'm not trying to pay you, Margery—money cannot do that," Miss Catherwood supplemented from the depths of her easy chair. "But you shall be my heiress to prove you truly forgive me, and you shall marry Melville Warwick to show riches make no difference in a true woman's love."

Bluffed and Lost.

An English nobleman was once present at a church service when a collection was announced for some charitable object.

The plate began to go round, and the duke carefully put his hand into his pocket and took out a florin, which he laid on the edge of the pew desk before him ready to be transferred to the plate.

Beside him sat a little snob, who, noticing this action, imitated it by ostentatiously laying a sovereign alongside the duke's florin. This was too much for his grace, who dipped his hand into his pocket again and pulled out another florin, which he laid by the side of the first. The little snob followed suit by laying another sovereign beside the first.

His grace quickly added a third florin, which was capped by a third sovereign on the part of the little snob. Out came a fourth florin to swell the duke's donation, and then the little snob triumphantly laid three sovereigns at once upon the board.

The duke, not to be beaten, produced three florins. Just at that moment the plate arrived. The little snob took up his handful of sovereigns and ostentatiously rattled them into the plate. The duke, with a grim smile, put one florin into the plate and quietly swept the remaining six back into his pocket.—London Globe.

Disraeli and Carlyle.

No incident in Disraeli's career is more pleasant than his offer of a pension and a G. C. B. to Carlyle. A friend of Sir William Fraser walked with Carlyle for two hours on the day on which Disraeli's letter arrived. Carlyle described the letter being brought to him by a treasury messenger, the large black seal, his wonder as to what the official envelope could contain and his great surprise on reading the offer, conveyed in language of consummate tact and delicacy. Carlyle said: "The letter of Disraeli was flattering, generous and magnanimous. His overlooking all that I have said and done against him was great."

He added: "The accurate perception of merit in others is one of the highest characteristics of a fine intellect. I should not have given Disraeli credit for possessing it had it not been brought home so directly to me." He repeated the words "generous" and "magnanimous" several times. Disraeli's letter, by the way, though it entirely deserves the praises above quoted for its tact and delicacy, is by no means impeccable in grammar, for it contains within a dozen lines two instances of the hanging "and which."

Deserves Consideration.
 A proposition to open a piece of road in Kaiwika homestead was made to the Board of Supervisors in December by School Inspector King and the matter was placed in the hands of Supervisor Desha for investigation. The school house is now on a by-road owned by Peter Sylva who built it at an expense of about $400. This road he now talks of closing to public use, but, in case the supervisors order it opened as a public road, asks the sum of $100 for right of way and improvements made. In this connection, Mr. Sylva feels that he has a just cause of grievance against the territorial government in that, on account of the variable interpretation and execution of the land laws, his application for the purchase of the tract of land on which the school house is situated was canceled on the grounds of failure in the residence clause. He gave the ground for the school house, in the first place; then lost his land and had to buy back his improvements, and now does not feel like giving this road way and his improvements made upon it to the public.

Board of Trade Annual Meeting.
 The annual meeting of the Board of Trade, adjourned from the previous Friday evening, was held at Fireman's Hall last Friday evening, for the election of officers and other business. Officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows: President, J. W. Mason; first vice-president, J. A. Scott; second vice-president, Dr. Henry Hayes; treasurer, C. A. Stobie; secretary, H. Vicars. The executive council elected for the coming year were, E. N. Holmes, L. A. Andrews, Adam Lindsay, C. Castendyck, C. E. Wright, L. Turner, J. T. Moir, D. E. Metzger. The report of the secretary, showing the work accomplished during the year, also the annual report of the shippers' wharf committee, were read. The question of how to arouse greater public interest in the board and the matters that come up before it for consideration was discussed, and the suggestion made that the meetings be held twice a month in Fireman's Hall, and that the public be invited to attend and hear the proceedings.

Around the Island by Auto.
 Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Kennedy, who have just completed a circuit of Hawaii in their Oldsmobile touring car, report a most interesting trip. In all they covered a distance of 455 miles, using 25 gallons of gasoline. The roads are all in fair condition with the exception of the Kau lava flow, where there is the foundation for a fine road but there being no top dressing there was difficulty from wheels slipping on steep grades. In Kona all the sights were taken in; going to Kailua, where the first church on the island was erected in 1820; also to the ancient fort of Kamehameha I, and to an old stone palace supposed to have been the first of its kind. At Napoosoo a fine view can be had of the cliff with ancient burial caves, and just across Kealakekua Bay, Captain Cook's monument can be plainly seen. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy stopped with Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, where they viewed an interesting collection of Hawaiian curios recently found by Mr. Forbes.

New Masonic Temple.
 The Masonic Hall Association at its meeting Saturday last decided definitely to build a fine brick or stone building upon their lot recently purchased of the Territory at the corner of Waiannuue and Bridge streets. The lot extends 75 feet on Waiannuue, and 100 feet on Bridge street. The building will be two stories in height with basement and, it is estimated, will cost at least $30,000. The upper story will be used for lodge purposes, while the lower will be constructed for the use of business houses, etc. The building will be an ornament to a very prominent corner. Construction will begin in the summer, the Association not coming into possession of the property till July, at the termination of the leases now in effect on the property.

THE POSSIBILITIES IN FRUIT CULTURE.

Wealth Derivable From Hawaii's Undeveloped Resources. Results of Experimentation with Fruits—Observations on Fruit Growing and Marketing—Present Advantages in the Canned Pineapple Industry.

The second only in importance to the sugar industry on these islands, is the fruit industry. Small it is at present, to be sure, but still established and giving promise of great development with proper management. The people of the islands are waking up to the possibilities in this direction and to the opportunity here afforded for the establishment of an industry that should give profitable employment, utilize resources now undeveloped, and bring in good returns to the islands as a whole and to those engaged in the industry in particular. The banana shipment business is already well established, as is also that of the pineapple, but in a small and as yet not satisfactory way, the future success of the shipment of fresh fruit depending in large measure upon adequate shipping facilities. As a more profitable means of handling the pineapple crop pending the improvement of transportation service, the process of canning this fruit has been taken up, and the experiment has proved most successful and promising. Oahu has two canneries; the island of Maui, also, has its plant of a similar kind. The project is receiving serious attention here. The man on the island of Hawaii who probably has studied the question of fruit growing and shipment most thoroughly, systematically and intelligently, is ex-Sheriff L. A. Andrews, of Hilo. He has turned his attention to the pineapple canning proposition and, as a result of his investigations, has become much impressed with the possibilities of the business in this direction.

SHIPMENT OF FRESH FRUIT.

In regard to the marketing of fresh fruit, Mr. Andrews says that the most important market is in the United States, which already takes a large amount of the product of these islands; and that the demand from there can be increased to an almost unlimited extent, as soon as we have crops large enough to command the services of fast steamers fitted up especially for the fruit trade. The United States Department of Agricultural Farmers' Bulletin No. 140, on pineapple growing, states on page 18, as follows:

"Pineapples will stand more rough handling and keep for a longer time than any other tropical fruit that is transported in the fresh condition. Its ability to stand rough handling and its good keeping qualities make it possible to ship it to the centers of population of all the great nations of the world. Europe is supplied mainly from Northern Africa, the Madeiras, the Canaries and the Azores; the eastern portion of the United States is supplied from the West Indies, the Bahamas and from Florida, and the western portion of the United States from the Hawaiian Islands. A large area of the United States is still left unsupplied."

It is well known that pineapples have been sent from Honolulu to Washington, D. C., and arrived in good condition.

ADVANTAGES OF CANNING.

The canning of the pineapple, however, Mr. Andrews is assured is the present requirement. He says that the canned pineapple trade will take all our output until we have enough to load fast fruit steamers. Two such steamers coming here would furnish a service every nine or ten days. Three steamers would furnish a weekly service. They will be here for the business as soon as we have the loads for them. Then we can deliver fresh fruit at all points west of St. Louis and Chicago in the same length of time it now takes to get to the California market. Some of our conservative men think, he says, there may be trouble in finding market for our canned goods.

It is true that if several of the large sugar plantations were to convert their fields from the cultivation of sugar cane to the cultivation of pineapples, it might not be long before the American market would be over-supplied with canned pineapples. But the plantation owners are not going to do that. They can see, as well as others, that it would not pay to raise fruit for a glutted market, and the field is now open for a Hilo company to get in on the ground floor.

At present the United States supply of canned pineapples comes mostly from Singapore and the British West Indies. The Florida crop goes into the fresh fruit market. We have some advantage over them, in that they cultivate under the protection of sheds, which costs from $350 to $600 per acre. We have in the pineapple business the benefit of a protective tariff of 35 per cent. on foreign goods, which gives us a great advantage.

Some claim that the American demand for canned pineapples is increasing so steadily that there is no danger of our reaching the point where it will be overstocked. Under existing conditions, we can produce and deliver perfect pineapples to a cannery at less cost per ton than the American canneries pay for fine peaches and pears for canning. Our canned pineapples can stand side by side with the American canned fruits in the grocery stores and sell at the same price with a good profit to the merchants and to ourselves.

It is claimed by some, that pineapples can be made to ripen in Hilo every month in the year. This is due to the peculiarity of our climate. It has not been fully demonstrated yet that we can make the largest part of our pineapple crop mature in the winter and spring. Some plants will necessarily go over to the summer crop time to bloom, and some will bloom ahead of time if planted for the winter crop. One thing, however, is certain, viz.: that we can with intelligent handling, have our crop come along throughout the year and thus a cannery be able to pack many times more per year, than where the fruit ripens in three or four months of the summer, and the same holds good as to the fresh market.

The market is already waiting for it, especially during the months when the American fruits are out of season from December to May or June.

SOME VALUABLE BYE-PRODUCTS.

Pineapples make fine sweet pickles and a large amount of our fruit can get to market in that form.

The pineapple is one of the best of fruits to use in the manufacture of candied fruit. The demand for this product is large and the market price so high that there is much more profit in it than there is in the canned goods.

Pineapples make a fine preserve, somewhat like the Chinese preserved ginger. The market in this line could be worked up to a very considerable extent.

Vinegar made from pineapple juice is of fine quality. It is claimed that brandy distilled from pineapples is the very best.

Pineapples will yield more tons of fruit per acre than bananas. And to raise pineapples for distilling purposes alone should be more profitable than to raise bananas for that purpose. The delicious odor of the pineapple is located in the peel or rind of the fruit. The extract of this is valuable.

All the waste from peeling, sizing and slicing of pineapples is utilized by converting it into one of the above named bye products. The fiber of the pineapple leaves is of extraordinary strength, fineness and beauty, being used in the manufacture of the far-famed Pina silk of the Philippines, which commands wonderfully high prices. Where the leaves are produced in large quantities as will be here, there is no reason why machinery should not be made for extracting this fiber and preparing it for fine fabrics, baggings, twine, cordage or paper of high value.

As Viewed at a Distance.

News correspondence from Washington "from official sources" contains some pretty straight talk directed at the Hawaiian planters, on the labor question. It reads:

Washington, Dec. 25.—One of the greatest questions that has ever been before Hawaii is the immigration problem that now confronts your local administration as well as your planters. It must be considered in the intensity of its seriousness. As I said last week: "If Hawaii is going honestly into the effort to bring white people there, it must not fall in the same mistake it has made in the past." It must be in earnest.

An Associated Press dispatch, that has been published here within the week, states that one plantation has arranged for the settlement of a part of its lands by one thousand Japanese laborers; also that the Japanese are acquiring coffee and vanilla lands. If this be true, it will not help Hawaii in seeking special legislation at the hands of Congress during the present session. Such a policy is in direct opposition to the wishes of the administration. Not this alone. It may lead to a closer investigation of the methods now in vogue in Hawaii, whereby Japanese labor is being regularly imported for plantation purposes. This can be promptly stopped.

Notwithstanding the official sanction given to Hawaii, whereby its Board of Immigration may secure European labor, it is not known here that any action has yet been taken in this direction. It is only through the Territory, and its officials, that labor will be allowed to enter Hawaii. The indiscriminate importation, for it is no less, of Japanese labor will soon be peremptorily forbidden, even if the Commissioner of Immigration is not already preparing instructions to that end. There will be no consultation with planting interests. Federal officials of the Executive and Immigration departments may soon receive their orders, when the Territorial Board of Immigration will be held strictly responsible for any attempted technical infringements, while the literal execution of all directions will be under the immigration officials. Plantation personality may be divorced from the Territorial Board.

Terms to be offered to European immigrants are far from satisfactory to the officials in Washington. But, and solely through the vigorous personality of Secretary Atkinson, they have been accepted as a tentative effort in the direction of more enlightened labor conditions in Hawaii. A man can not support a family on the limited land area that is now to be offered to European laborers. Even the added wage is insufficient to enable this—"on American lines." Planters must remember that the days of cheap plantation labor are ended. Hawaii is now part of an enlightened nation. The policy of the administration will not be sidetracked.

Speaks Well of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. John Main, Manager for P. J. Petersen & Company, Bloemfontein, So. Africa, makes the following statement for the benefit of the public: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a big sale here and as we have been handling it for several years, we can confidently say that we sell more of it than we do of any other preparation of that kind. 'This medicine is especially recommended for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough and can be given to the little ones with absolute security. For sale by Hilo Drug Co."

Publicity vs. Graft.

There is almost certain to be a contest over the proposed enforcement of the law requiring all corporations in the Territory to file annual exhibits of their condition with the Division Assessor, according to the Honolulu Star, on the grounds that the act was not legally and regularly passed. The recent circular sent out from the attorney general's office calling attention to requirement and the $5000 penalty for non-compliance, local Honolulu merchants characterize as a bluff. They do not want to file returns annually as required, and they will probably take the matter into court. The case opens up a possible contest over the legality of the volume known as the "Revised Laws" of Hawaii. It is a compilation of all the laws of the Territory, with numerous corrections, in one volume. It was made up by a Code Commission and the last legislature passed it in a lump, by an act declaring it to be the laws of Hawaii.

In the corporation law in question, there is an important amendment which was made by the Code Commission. The law was broadened by verbal changes, made by the Code Commission, so that the failure to file a return is claimed to be punishable, whereas only a false return was punishable before. It is claimed that this amendment like many others, was made without the members of the legislature even knowing they were doing it. The laws in question were never read in either House and did not go through any of the forms required ordinarily in passing laws. Hundreds of amendments to laws were made by the Code Commission and then the legislature declared the amended book to be the law of the Territory, without reading it at all.

Governor Carter has taken up the matter and is insisting that the corporations be compelled to comply with the law. "Openness and publicity," he says, "furnish the best preventives of graft conditions and the law must be complied with." "The penalty clause," said Attorney General Peters, "applies generally to any violation of the law. It is not merely a penalty for making a false return, but it is a penalty for any failure of any kind, to comply with the law. One of the requirements of the law is the filing of these exhibits, hence a failure to file an exhibit is a failure to comply with the law and subjects those responsible to the fine."

At the Crater's Brim.

A party to the volcano watched the old year out at the crater. They sent a full account of their trip in a communication to a Honolulu paper and thus describe their impressions:

"There was a hurried unpacking of champagne bottles, a chorus of popping corks, and with glasses held aloft, we toasted Madame Pele an the tick of twelve, casting bottles and glasses into the depths below.

"As if in response to the toast, the mists of the pit lifted, and we, crouching on the crumbling brim of the crater saw a fountain of fire; rising, falling and rising again.

"It was a thrilling moment. The guide, Hawaiian John, doffed his hat and broke into wild song—whether an invocation to the Goddess of Fire, or a praise-song, we of the 'Haole' knew not. But the weird scene will ever remain stamped upon memory.

"As we left the volcano, a soaking rain began to fall. Four miles of broken lava to be crossed, and a trail standing on end to be climbed! We sang all the way—to keep up our horses' courage.

"It was the wettest rain in the memory of old inhabitants; but the game was worth the candle, several times over. We, the undersigned, testify to it. J. T. CONNOR.

Cotton From Oahu.

A very interesting shipment in the cargo of a steamer from Honolulu recently was six bags of cotton grown in Nuuanu valley. The cotton was the second crop that had been obtained in that section and the raising is as yet in its experimental stage.

The tree were planted in Nuuanu valley for the purpose of serving as wind breaks but they have thrived very well and from about 120 trees 240 pounds of cotton were gathered this year. The particular shipment will not bring very much in way of financial profit for cotton sells for 3 1/2 cents a pound. The entire shipment is worth therefore about $8.40. However one fact is demonstrated and this is that an excellent grade of cotton can be raised in these islands. Some of the seeds were sent to various people in Kona some time ago with the request that experiments be made in planting.

It is not thought however that the cotton industry is likely to cut any material figure in the development of industrial in these islands.
