"LOOKOUT CHARLIE," of Diamond Head, has not yet reported the Flying Squadron.

"REPUBLIC of the Pacific" sounds well, really better than "Paradise of the Pacific."

IT REQUIRES scarcely more than hint to the community to insure the success of the G. A. R. benefit entertainment.

IF THERE were no opium cases the district and circuit courts throughout the group would have their labors reduced one third at least.

News sent from here by the next mail to the Coast will furnish the papers of the States material for further comment on the diplomacy of the Cleveland administration in its dealings with Hawaii.

The Island of Hawaii cannot for many years elude the attention of the class of men who believe that the railroad is the affair that opens up a country most effectively and that gives it rapid growth.

THE legislature will very properly be requested to afford relief to the rice industry. This is an earnest and struggling business which has received rather harsh treatment and which certainly is deserving of encouragement as either sugar production or coffee growth.

IT IS FIGURED that there are in Europe 18,000,000 armed and disciplined men actually under marching orders, ready to wage war upon any other christian people indicated by their christian masters. The rulers of this horde of fighters are seemingly restrained by but two considerations. The first is that defeat and loss of territory and prestige may be the result of campaigning. The second is that ready metal money in large quantities is required for the purposes of a war.

TRULY can the message be sent from Hawaii to the disturbed and exciting world that in this isolated corner of creation all is well. Peace and prosperity exist with the outlook for continued tranquility and further development of vast natural resources. The Island Government and civilization has its problems and some of these are serious indeed. But by a firm and just course wisely followed it hopes to manage its home affairs for the best interests of all the people.

THE attention of the Citizens' Sanitary Committee and of the Board of Health is respectfully called to Potassiumorthodichromate, a new antiseptic discovered in Germany. The inventor decided that this name was a little long, even for German, and as the article is intended to be used generally, it is also called antinonin. One part of the substance in from 1500 to 2000 parts of soapuds is destructive to all the common parasites injurious to plants. Yeast used in brewing remains fresh for a long time when treated with it; it destroys all bacteria, and yeast can endure a solution as strong as 5 per cent of the substance. It is odorless and very cheap.

FOUR bills relating to immigration are now pending in Congress at Washington. This is the record. Senator Lodge has introduced into the Senate a bill designed to restrict immigration, whereby provision is made for the exclusion from admission to the United States of all persons of between fourteen and sixty years of age who cannot both read and write the English language or some other language. A similar bill has been introduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman Walker, while Congressman Morse has introduced another bill tending to the same end, which provides for a tax on steamship companies of $10 a head for every immigrant they bring. A fourth bill is introduced by Congressman Stone, providing that no immigrant shall be admitted into the United States unless he can show a certificate signed by the United States consul at the place nearest his last residence, setting forth that he does not belong to any of the classes excluded under the terms of our immigration laws.

AT VARIOUS times in different western towns gamblers and other roughs, with their attendant evils have become offensive and too strong for the decency of the community. Since legal methods succeeded the rule of the ready popular tribunal, the remedy has always been the same and the result un-failing. The men were arrested as vagrants and if they escaped through the judicial meshes the first time another try was had at them. This was repeated indefinitely till the objectionable characters were routed. Now, there is ample room in the cane fields for the couple of thousand vagrants of various nationalities in Honolulu.

Timely Topics.

January 21, 1895.

The last mail brought good news for the people of these islands. It is stated that there will be no grinding of sugar cane in Cuba this year, owing to the rebellion, and consequently the world's supply will be decreased by 1,000,000 tons, one-fifth of the entire production of the world. A considerable increase in prices is therefore certain. On top of this comes the information that Senator Perkins is making a strong fight to secure a higher tariff on sugar, as he wished to encourage the beet sugar planters of California. Senator Perkins believes that where the Republicans can secure control of the Senate protection will be granted by bounty or increase of duty. The San Francisco Bulletin in commenting on the proposition says: "Senator Perkins has introduced a resolution instructing the Finance Committee to report an amendment to the revenue bill increasing the duty on raw sugar. He will support the resolution with a speech intended to enlighten the Senators as to the value of the beet-sugar industry. The beet-sugar industry is in line with the iron and steel industry, the woolen industry and the manufacture of tin plates. Sugar can easily be produced in the United States in quantities sufficient to supply the home demand, but the cost of production in this country is greater than in countries from which we import sugar. It is just a question whether the government shall impose duties on foreign sugar equal to the difference in the cost of production or whether we shall continue to buy our sugar abroad. This is a branch of industry in which farmers may be directly protected. So long as we export wheat we can extend to the farmer only indirect protection. But if we place a duty on sugar the producer is protected to the full amount of the duty. Farmers who find it difficult to make the two ends meet in producing wheat at present prices may make a good profit in producing sugar if the duty is raised to about 1 cent a pound." If the duty mentioned, is placed on sugar, Hawaii will be just that much ahead as our product will go in free under the terms of the Reciprocity Treaty.

Some say that the mongoose is a curse to this country; others think not. We have no opinion to express but have some good rat traps for sale. They will catch either rodents or mongoose and hold them fast. Recent arrivals brought us some handsome little Ormulu clocks. Keep perfect time. Are both good and cheap. You won't lose your keys if you have a ring. We have some in polished nickel-steel. Get one; you won't regret it. A handy little pocket piece is a combination nail cutter, cleaner and filer. They close up like a jack knife and don't cost half as much. Hunting season is now on. You may want a set with a game carver. Call and see one. Hanging lamps in all styles and sizes. Chandeliers in many patterns. Pretty boudoir lamps just opened. Any amount of new goods.

COFFEE ESTATE AND LANDS FOR SALE. I am directed to sell at Public Auction on Wednesday, May 27, 1896 at 12 o'clock noon of said day at my sales room on Queen street, in Honolulu unless sooner disposed of at private sale the following described property, namely: A tract of land about 2,300 acres in the simple situation of Kolo and Olopanoana in South Kona, Island of Hawaii, about eight miles by a good road from Hookeana, one of the largest villages in Kona. There is an excellent landing on the land itself from where the coffee and other produce could be shipped at a very small cost for a mile near the landing. Fifty acres of land are in coffee, and the remainder is in splendid coffee land lying all in one block on both sides of the Government Road. Eight hundred acres lying above and to the East of the one hundred acres above mentioned is also excellent land and although at a higher altitude is no doubt also well adapted for coffee culture. The lower land below the coffee belt is suitable for pineapples and such. There is a drying house, store and work rooms, a Gordon's Pulper, laborers quarters and water tanks at the plantation and the land is partly watered. There has never been any blight on this land, although coffee was planted there a great many years ago. Old residents of Kona like the late Dr. H. Kahiho, J. W. Kaimuki and others have testified to this fact. There is a sea fishery appurtenant to Olopanoana 1/2 mile long and the purchase price can remain on mortgage at eight per cent per annum. Deeds and stamps at the expense of purchaser. A map of the property can be seen and further particulars obtained at my sales room.

Increase of Chinese Leprosy. Leprosy is said by the Chinese to result from the eating of too much fish, but the real cause, I believe, still a mystery. Poor blood and unhealthy habits have doubtless a great deal to do with it, but a satisfactory investigation as regards the best means for its prevention and cure is much needed. There can be no doubt that in the south of China the disease is greatly on the increase. The number of victims sent from Hong-Kong to Canton is becoming larger year by year, and unless some effective means are adopted to prevent its spreading, there seems to be no reason why it should not be and by invade the more northern latitudes, which have been until now exempt from its ravages.—Gentleman's Magazine.

When They Meet and Part. An Englishman salutes his friend with "How do you do? Goodby, Farwell." Similarly the Dutchman, "Van weel, and the Swede, "Farvel." A Frenchman says, "Bon jour! Au plaisir!" (i. e., "Be you revolved?"). An Italian, "Buon giorno! Addio! A rivedere!" A Spaniard, "Buenos dias! Adios! Hasta la vista!" (French, "Au revoir.") The Turk folds his arms across his chest and bows his head toward the person whom he salutes. The common Arab says, "Salem aleikum" ("Peace be with you") and then lays his hands on his breast in order to show that the wish proceeds from his heart.—Landscape and Volkskunde Magazine.

John's Escape. This story is of how Mr. Whackem, a ferry schooner-master, came to lose a scholar one day. The class was parsing a sentence. "What is the imperative of the verb 'to go'?" asked Whackem of Johnny Fitzelot. "I don't know." "Corrected and ordered," production of the voice, based on natural and artistic principles, and applying the Fothergill Method to Zepheric singing, regulating and developing the voice equally throughout its entire range. Lessons given by the month, Quarterly, or by a series of eight, twelve, or twenty-four lessons. Apply personally or by letter. "MIGNON," Beretania St. Formerly res. of Chas. B. Atherton. 354 1/2 St.

A MODERN NOVEL. Which Shows to the Present Style the Comportment of Homer Fort. Homer Fort sat in the parlor nervously toying with an ivory paper knife. She had not yet come down. He was in evening dress, and as he leaned forward and caught a glimpse of his face in the looking glass he was surprised to see that he was pale. But he felt it to be the supreme moment of his life—the one on which his whole future hung. He had not decided to ask Beatrice that evening to be his wife? He heard the rustle of skirts and saw a quick, involuntary breath. But it was Mrs. Hildehart, the mother of Beatrice, who entered. She was a widow and lived alone with her daughter. "Ah, Mr. Fort," said the lady, extending her hand graciously, "you are quite deserted here, are you not?" "Yes, a matter of great importance. I have had it in mind some time, and although it is an awkward and painful subject it cannot be avoided longer." "Homer Fort entered an inarticulate reply and swallowed a lump in his throat. "You have now, Mr. Fort, been visiting my daughter Beatrice for almost a year. Your calls become more frequent, and they grow longer. You do not deny this, Mr. Fort?" "Poor Homer shook his head and changed to the arms of his chair. He could feel his heart throbbing in his bosom like some great piece of machinery. "I approved of you when you would not. Beatrice does not. Mr. Fort, as you know, I have been to considerable expense during the past year in visiting the World's Fair and repairing my carriage home. This, added to the notorious extravagance of the times, has seriously affected my purse. Now, Mr. Fort, you must know that in sitting up here so often and so late with Beatrice you have been doing me a great deal of good. I do not ask you, Mr. Fort, to furnish this wood; but, my dear young sir, I must insist on your doing it in the future. You will of course comply with my wishes in the matter." "She swept out of the room. Homer Fort hid his face in his hands. "How long he sat thus he could not guess, but he was crossed by a soft touch on the head. He started up, and with a little cry Beatrice knelt back. "I thought you were asleep, Mr. Fort," she said, bushes jostling one another on her face. As she stood there in the mellow light she seemed more lovely than ever, and she was known to be the most beautiful girl in Binghamton. "With a strong effort Homer spoke. "Do you know all?" he asked. "All," she replied, and her eyes sought the floor. "What can I say? Tell me." "She tapped the toe of her boot impatiently on the soft carpet, but did not raise her eyes. "Say nothing," she replied, with intense earnestness. "Say nothing, but saw wood!" She turned and walked to the sofa, and from under it drew a large red buckaw, with a glittering blade and great, jagged, savage teeth. She held it up toward the young man. "Saw wood," she repeated. He sank back in his chair and looked at her as in a dream. "See," she cried, speaking rapidly and controlling herself with an effort, as she reached behind a little brocade barye on the mantel and took up a bacon rind daintily between her thumb and finger—"see, it will grease the blade! I smuggled it from the breakfast table this morning in my bonbon box." She rubbed the rind up and down the blade with nervous haste. "Saw wood," she said again. "You know you were center rust at college a year ago, and the rind will help, oh, so much!" Homer Fort, though young, was a man of resolution. He rose and drew himself up to his full six feet. "I am ready," he said slowly, scarcely believing his lips. The words came from the very depths of his soul. He followed her through the kitchen and into the woodshed. There he found a pile of shellbark hickory wood and a sawhorse. Beatrice held the lamp. Then for two hours he saw rasped and torn and edged till the cool air of the wood shed was foggy with sawdust. Sometimes he would stop for a moment, and the girl would apply the bacon rind to the hot and quivering blade. It would hiss and spitter, but in a moment the saw would be jumping like a living thing through a hickory knot. At last it passed for lack of food. He stood by the young girl, with his face flushed. "Beatrice," he said softly, but his voice did not falter. "My Beatrice, with you by my side I could saw wood—forever!" She looked up into his face, trust and happiness deeper than words could tell shining from her eyes. As they went into the house he saw a future as in a vision stretching away before him, but through all the years he could see no parting from the woman by his side. The hoarse growl of a cat followed them from the wood shed. "Tom has found the bacon rind," whispered the girl.—New York Tribune.

A MISSION BOOK.

It is a Novelty and Certain to Become Popular.

"What I Told Dorcas." A story to be read at the meetings of missionary societies, and in monthly installments, is a peculiar conception. Yet this is what Mary E. Ireland says here. "What I Told Dorcas" was intended for it. It is non-sectarian, and purposes to unite all denominations in missionary work. As published, with illustrations by E. P. Dutton & Co., New York, at $1.25, the book is attractive, external as well as internally.

The object of the author in writing this book was to make it not only of value to all interested in missionary work but to supply a need of something for reading at meetings of missionary societies. The plan is to relate, in more or less connected sketches, what was accomplished by one missionary society both in home and foreign work. While the scheme of the book is to instruct, its author tells not only an entertaining story, but pictures some very interesting characters. Not the least value of the book is its presentation of the influence of work of this kind in its local application. The author shows a decided familiarity with her subject, so that her suggestions have an especial value.

This is an excellent missionary story. It is given as told from time to time by the narrator to Dorcas, the heroine. The reader is taken through the different experiences of missionary societies, missionary conventions, and missionary meetings, and learns of the work of the missionaries among the Indians and among foreign heathen. The book is admirably arranged for reading aloud in missionary meetings. Mrs. Ireland has done her work well. She has sprinkled enough of neighborhood gossip and racy chat through her pages to keep her story from being dull.

Mary Ireland is not unknown in Hawaii. She sent her book here to the mother of Dr. Cooper. Mrs. Cooper spoke enthusiastically of the writer.

The signs of the times. All point one way, and that is towards the fact that nearly, if not all, the people of Honolulu and suburbs will soon be reckoned as patrons of Kerr's store. All well posted people know where to buy dress goods, ribbons, hosiery, gloves and untripped hats, at the lowest possible prices for cash. For variety and quality Kerr stands pre-eminently.

WE WANT NAMES. NOTABLE MAN'S DEATH.

ONE WHO MADE A DISCOVERY OF VALUE IN AGRICULTURE. Science of Local Enrichment of the Soil—Tribute to One Who Labored to a Purpose.

EDITOR STAR:—Speak to the Earth and it will teach thee.—Job. "And this our life teacheth from public man."

Flourishes in trees, books in the running brooks, Surnames in stones, and good in every thing.—Shakespeare.

Quite recently passed away one of the scientific men of the day, Hermann Hellriegel. Born in Saxony in 1831, he died last October, having just completed his 64th year. To many in these islands whose interests are closely connected with agriculture, his discoveries are of special moment, and so perhaps you will give space for reference to a notable man's work.

Twice ten hundred years have rolled by since Varro, the Roman scholar, told the world interested in such matters that leguminous plants, like beans, lupines, etc., had a marked fertilizing effect upon soils whereon they were grown. To Hellriegel in our own day it was left to discover the cause of their strikingly useful properties. On Sept. 20th, 1886, he notified the agricultural chemistry section of the Naturforschers Vereinigung, held that year in Berlin, of the nitrogen gathering power possessed by the leguminous plants through the parasitical micro-organisms located in nodules formed on the roots of the plants named.

Hellriegel's work has been verified by many investigators both in the United States and Europe. In officially announcing his death to the Societe Nationale d'Agriculture in Paris, M. Sagnier referred to him as the "immortal author of the discovery of the fixation of gaseous nitrogen by leguminous plants, through the medium of their root nodules."

"Jimmy" Fell Asleep.

J. J. Williams, the photographer, met with an accident on Hawaii. He was riding on top of the volcano stage at night. The road so smooth, the rumble of the wheels so soft, the breeze so gentle and everything so soothing that the artist fell asleep. Presently he rolled off of the bus. A foot was caught by a wheel and bruised. The injury is not serious, and Mr. Williams is continuing his duties.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures of bad colds. It opens the secretions, relieves the lungs and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. If freely used as soon as the cold has been contracted, it will prevent its settling in the system. It greatly lessens the severity of the attack and has often cured in a single day what would have been severe colds. NEVER A MORMON WIFE.

KATE FIELD WAS NOT SEALED TO BRIGHAM AS NO. 13.

A Tale of the Correspondent That is Wildly Unique and Humorous—Her Mormon Record.

Miss Kate Field has naturally proved more interesting than any newspaper correspondent in this field since the American journals considered it worth the while to send representatives to the Islands. Of great volume is the gossip concerning the little lady with the powerful pen. Much is said of her professionally and personally. Most of it is kindly, some of it is spiteful and lots of it quite beyond the realm of fact.

One story recently given currency will amuse Miss Field as much as it will those who know her. She will not be half so angry about it as some of her friends and admirers.

The yarn was told a STAR man several days ago and is quite good to keep. It was to the effect that Miss Field was the 13th wife of Brigham Young, the Mormon king who has "gone before,"—no body knows where. This romance fantastic continued that Miss Field was so strong minded and so given to the weaknesses of dress and dressmaker, that she was cast out of Deseret.

Now Mr. Young died in 1876 and had acquired his thirteenth wife twenty to thirty years before that, or say forty or fifty years ago. Miss Field is over eighteen, but she is not old enough to have been the thirteenth wife of Brigham. Moreover, from her earliest days in print, Miss Field has been the uncompromising antagonist of Zion and its institutions. She has been a success, too, and any connection with the number thirteen would have Jonah'd her. No, she was never a wife of Brigham and is to this day a thorn in the side of the whole Mormon hierarchy and people.

The Honolulu people who have "sent back" for Miss Field's "records" are hereby assured positively that there is nothing in this particular story.

The illustrations in the book will be a remarkable feature. Prof. Musick has been fortunate in securing rare historical scenes and views of places never before in the ordinary lists. They are from Honolulu, Oahu, Kaula, Maui, Molokai, Hawaii and Laysan Island. There are also appear cuts of President Dole, Chief Justice Judd, Prof. Alexander, Col. Soper, Dr. McGrew, Capt. Houdell, and the Board of Education, group pictures and a number of prominent natives, including Liliuokalani.

The book will most likely be called, "The Republic of the Pacific." Twenty-seven of its forty chapters will be devoted to narrative of travel. It will contain a trip from the east side of America, across the Continent, an ocean voyage and then the tour of the Islands. The first chapter will be entitled "Across the Continent." It will treat of the route over the United Pacific, and dwell a bit on San Francisco. Second chapter will describe incidents of the voyage and then the tour of the Islands.
