THE TABIFF DEBATE.

In the tariff debate in the House, April 27th, Brewer of Michigan and Goff of West Virginia were heard in opposition, while Ford of Michigan and Landers of Illinois spoke in favor of the Mills bill. The remarks of Mr. Goff are summarized as follows: He said that action on the tariff should be made by the friends of the protective system and not by its avowed enemies. President Cleveland's cold-blooded indifference to the benefits of the people was entitled to precedence over all the eman ations from the Executive Mansion in all our history. From such a spirit as President Cleveland exhibited, dominating almost with a single im-pulse the Democratic side of the House, he (Goff) would save our in dustries and our homes. The Mills bill was conceived by minds impregnated with economic viciousness, and its passage would be the death knell of protection. If they succeeded now, they proposed next year to take another step and gradually but surely the people were to be marched into camp, at least those who contended for a tariff for revenue only. That system as far as labor was involved and the industries were concerned, was as bad as free trade. George Washington was grandly right when he suggested and approved the first tariff provisions. Grover Cleveland (who he hoped would be our last free-trade Presi dent) was shamefully wrong when he suggested and when he used the power of his great office to secure the destruction of the protective system. The people had been deceived in the last Presidential campaign by the declaration that Cleveland was a protectionist. The hand of Esau would be offered again, but the people would not again be deceived. He did believe in free raw material. There was no such thing as raw ma terial in the sense in which it was sugar plantations of the Mississippi Valley. Wool clipped from the sheep was not raw material; it was the farmers' finished labor, and the farmers had made up their minds that it had to be protected. The duty of 1867 should be restored and an industry so essential to our prosperity as a people, and our independence as a nation should be stimulated. In his discussion he said the protective system enabled Government to perfect a system of finance which was the marvel of the age. It had fostered industries, built up manufactories and opened up a wilderness. It had dignified labor and educated the people. It had made the flag of the country typify all that was great in human action, all that was great in human thought, and God only knew what it would do for our land if the Democratic party would only let it alone.

THE PAPAL RESCRIPT.

An Irish gentleman who had studied for the priesthood says that there will be no open revolt against the that Russia ought to be ready to co- now, for in a short time it would be Papal rescript if Walsh, who ap proved the plan of campaign, is sent back. Absolution was refused to members of the Fenian organizations in the past without breaking them up. If this extreme method is now adopted, even that will not be sufficient to destroy the National League. The Latin document contains no absolute command as to the refusal of absolution. The words in the original text form more of an exhortation than a command. Something, of course, of the Pope's power will be shown in the case of Archbishop Walsh, if Walsh is sent back to Dublin, as 'it is now reported he will be. None of the Irish leaders has yet tains. said much. Parnell is to speak on Thursday next. A friend of mine that at the meeting the Irish leader will make an important pronounceence with Gladstone lately upon the situation he is widely credited with being at least neutral on the subject of the plan of campaign, about which he has complained that he never was consulted. The speech is awaited with the keenest interest.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

W. P. Williams, the engineer of the Nicaragua Canal Company, arrived at are in favor of the new Chinese GAINSBORGUGE, a dark buy Harse with New York from Panama on May 5th black points. Immerted from Sydney, N. S. W., by the steamer Colon. He has been New York from Panama on May 5th making extensive investigations along bred Horse, got by YATTENTON out of ATHOLLINE by BLAIK ATHOLOGY of HABENA, etc. the past two months. He says that a vast amount of work has been done gon. on the Panama canal, but in his judgment much of it in a very uneconomical manner. It is only a question of HAIRU, MADL sufficient to complete the work is benefit of a fund with which it is pro- talists in the future of Vancouver.

about half the requisite amount. At present serious features out side of the new system of locks present themselves in the unruly Chagres river, and in the absence of stone of a quality suitable for making large quantities of concrete for the locks.

One of the most serious difficulties in the way of rapid and economical work is the absence of a sufficient number of skilled men. The substitution of Jamaica negroes has resulted disastrously to economical work. The American contractors are the only ones who have employed laborers of high intelligence.

PROFITABLE FISHING. There is a most extraordinary run of blueback salmon at the Cascades and The Dalles, on the Columbia. One cannery at Dalles secured fourteen tons in one day, and more salmon are being put up there than at all the other canneries on the river combined. The bluebacks are a small variety of salmon, averaging five pounds each. and are very highly colored, but not so oily as the favorite chinooks. Most of these fish are caught in the rapids with dip nets. At the Cascades men perched on frail stagings along the rocky bluffs overhanging the rapids, where a false move is certain death, are making $20 to $50 per day catching bluebacks. One man yesterday made $64. These fish, which two years ago used to be sold for 75 cents a dozen, now bring 41 cts. per pound, and the cannery men pay 51 cts. for them at Astoria. Many Indians are fishing for these fish on the Washington Territory side of the river at the Cascades and averaging $20 a day, spot cash. The wheels at the Cascades are not running yet, except a few on

LIVELY AUSTRIAN POLITICS.

The Unterhaus of the Reichsrath has been the arena of some of the liveliest encounters ever known in the Austrian Parliament. For three days groups forming the majority have been engaged in a fierce attack upon Dr. Gautzch, Minister of Public Instruction, apropos of his education budget. For once, members, old and group, it is thought from utterly opposite reasons. The Germans charged Dr. Gautzeh with organizing Slavism used in this discussion. Coal un- in Austria. RHEUMATISM AND POLITICS.

The return of Prince Bismarck's rheumatism has shown the advisability of an early resort to Ems, but the condition of the Emperor still forbids his leaving his post. The resurrection of the Pan-Slavism party in Russia has reawakened alarm in official circles. The Czar's reinstatement of General Bogdanotich in his former position in the Russian service is not an isolated proof that the open adoption of an offensive policy approaches. The Cologne Gazette suggests that Pan-Slavism is growing mightier than the Czar himself, and may force his hand and cause him to enter into a next hearing of the case. fighting alliance with France. The Official Gazette of Berlin interprets the position in a similar way. It is believed the war party has convinced the Czar that the next French elections will return a war Ministry, and operate with France.

Wells, Fargo & Co., the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the Southern Pacific Company have petitioned Secretary Bayard to negotiate a treaty with Mexico, which will allow the officers of either country to cross the border line in pursuit of criminals engaged in train robbery.

It is formally announced that the Right Rev. John Ireland, the Roman Catholic Bishop of St. Paul, has been made an Archbishop, with jurisdiction over Minnesota and Dakota. Minnesota will be divided into three dioceses, a new one being organized in Southern Minnesota, and Dakota will be divided into two.

The Territorial Democratic Convention of Utah, that met at Ogden on the 5th, is considered the greatest event of its kind in the political his tory of the Territory. Resolutions passed included a declaration against the admission of Utah to the Union before the people come into full ac-cordance with the laws of the land.

General Alspuru, Ruez and Colaresa, who were engaged in the Colombian revolution of 1885, when Aspinwall was burned, have arrived in New York. The Colombian Consul-General in that city has no fears of the revolutionists being able to make any trouble from there, being without means to buy material of war. He says also that the Government of the United States of Colombia is stronger than it was in 1885, and he sees no necessity for watching the actions of these men.

Smith, the well-known attorney, had died sad-denly. The news proved to be only too true. Mr. Smith had been ill for several days, at his lodgings at Mr. Frank May's. He was waited on since Menday, by Messrs. R. S. Serim-geour, Mr. Edward Andrews, and the lady of the house, Mrs. May, On Thursday morning he got up, had a bath and was about to go to his law office, when he fell down and expired office, when he fell down and expired instantly. Deceased was born of English parents, and was at the time of his death in his ferty-first year. He was educated at Punahou, studied law with Judge Pavidson and with Messrs. W. O. Smith and A. S. Hartwell, and also took a course of private reading in medicine. He was a gentleman of fine intellectual parts and was an able writer in the public prints. His writings in the late Saturday Press were general recognized as effective scholarly efforts. He also contributed occasionally, as a correspondent, to all the daily papers, his articles on public questions being invariably characterfired by clearness of thought, coneiscness of style and a thorough grasp of

The funeral took place from the residence of Mrs. Smith, mother of the deceased, on Beretania street, and, though on short notice, was largely attended. [EDITORIAL.]

THE COMING SESSION.

The regular session of the Legislative Assembly meets this day. Ministerial reports should be presented in good season to ensure a prompt settling down to business, as most of the printing offices are now engaged upon those documents. The issues of the session, whether for good or for evil, will depend upon the spirit with which a commanding majority of the Nobles and Representatives approach their duties. If the members in general come up to Aliiolani Hale inspired to work in their best judgment, under all situations and circumstances, with a single eye to the common welfare of the country, all should be well. But if the triumph of different factions be the animating motive in the breasts of the people's elect ones nothing but disastrous breakers ahead may be anticipated for the ship of state. Nobles and Representatives, if they would do their duty by the people who have chosen them, will indignantly spure all approaches intended to inveigle them into giving hampering pledges in the interest of any and every ambitions spirit that may be seeking selfish advancement. There is the nsual stock gossip, peculiar to such seasons, of possible and probable Ministerial changes. Elective members of the Legislature will be false to the conditions under which they gained their positions, if they commit themselves to any aspiring cabal working to secure Cabinet portfolios for themselves or their friends. No good can come from Cabinet reconstruction or supercession accomplished at the dictates of mere personal prejudices or resentments. Let the Ministry, collectively and individually, be judged solely upon the accounts rendered of their stewardship. Unless Ministers prove to have fulled manifestly or egregiously in their duties, the solid sense of a conservative public will indig nantly ask of legislators who join in factional attacks upon the Cabinet, "Who has required this at your hands!" Not only are the eyes of this nation upon the Legislature, but it is eagerly watched by friendly Powers. If the little Kingdom has to encounter the strain of rule by rapidly alternating factions or family its independence is not worth a year's purchase at any period. Contrariwise, if the people and representatives show themselves capable of satisfaction by an administration of good average ability, guided by a dearly honest purpose to do the best in Ministerial power, for the present and ultimate welfare and happiness of every estate in the realm, the sympathies and kindly aids of for eign nations may with confidence be relied upon. With the question of the independent veto judicially settled in favor of the sovereign, it should be in order for both the Ministers and the elective legislators to cultivate friendly relations with the King, gracefully according him his declared constitutional privileges while holding not too lightly their own. While legislation in the way of constitutional amendment can scarce ly be attempted by the present As sembly in consistency with the platform upon which nearly every member was elected, yet, should any members deem the case to be otherwise and make a move in that direc tion, it is fervently to be desired that members should steadfastly aim to avoid every expression in debate that is not strictly decorous and free from the late revolutionary bitterness. The true advice at this time to the legislators would be that they should faithfully pass upon administrative records and policy, so far as laid before them voluntarily or procured through legitimate interrogation, carefully and calmly deal with matters that the ununistakuble voice of the country may ask for action upon, pass the necessary appropriations for the various public services, then quietly be prorogued and give the land a rest rom factional polities until the general election of 1889. Let all hobby riders, or members burning to be regarded in advance of their times, be referred to the Reform platform of 1887, and if their crotchets prove to be undemanded by the strict tenor of that instrument, then the best that can be done with both hobbies and riders is to remofselessly sit upon them. Obviously, to the eye of sober common sense, the supreme duty of the present Legislature is to make the best of all the constitutional advantages that the new fundamental law confers above the old. Let the Reform House hold fast that which it has, and be guiltless of the folly of dividing against itself, either in the futile parsuit of social codes for which the body politic is unsuited and unprepared, or in an unseemly scramble for the "losves and fishes" to fill the emptiness of a few famish-

The directors of the African Associntion have sent an order to Stanley Falls to send out a scouting party in search of Stanley, and to push the expedition with all possible speed. Although the promoters of the Stanley Expedition declare in their public utterances that they will have no cause for alarm, even if no news of the famous explorer reaches them for three months, their tone in private is full of great anxiety.

BUSINESS LICENSES.

Showing the Licenses Issued in Eighteen Years Nationality of Linemanne

A return has been prepared from official sources, at considerable expense of time and cash, on the issuance of licenses during the past eighteen years, showing the number issued in each year, the business for which issued and the nationality of the persons licensed. The document has been got up by an enterprising member of the Legislature, and was handed to our reporter a few days ago. The following tables show the totals of licenses of all kinds for each year and the totals of each kind for the eighteen years, and those issued to Chinese as compared with those issued to Hawaiians and persons of European and American

THE STREET RAILWAY

It must be gratifying to hopes of the continued progress of Honolulu to see the street railway construction Mr. HOBERT HIND Jr., has this day been proceeding. All who have to be about on business, in the heat of a a great advantage, in going to and from their daily toil. Owners of land in the suburbs may erect cottages thereon, with full confidence of having them inhabited at paying rentals. House rents ought to come down a degree in consequence of the reduction of distances making an indefinite increase of available sites for homes. Not the least benefit to the community within both cheap and convenient access. Kapiolani Park will become the weekly resort of family parties that have hitherto only found their way to that delightful spot, at great expense. annually or biennially on occasions of railway have thousands of times tion? failed egregiously in the event. There is always a consideration liable to be omitted in calculations upon the prospeets of any kind of railways. That is the fact that once the new communications are established they make business for themselves. From some of the probable results of the Honolulu street railway above mentioned, it is easy to judge that a large amount of traffic now invisible must spring. It will simply be a repetition of cause and effect. akin to the enor mous increase of travel that has been going on, throughout the world and round the world, ever since the advent of the steam age.

THE AMERICAN TARIFF.

Probabilities are increasing that legislation on the tariff will be impossible during the present Congress. It is still more likely that the sugar duties will not suffer disturbance. Circumstances have become evolved which would indicate that a stand will be made for the defense of the sugar interest by strong contingents in both parties. The news given today, that Kelley of Pennsylvania is fiercely opposed to tampering with the sugar duties, may indicate one of the first results of Mr. Spreckels' large refinery enterprise in Philadelphia. Such an eventuality, that of increasing the interest in having cheap raw sugar, would bear out the sentiment expressed by a prominent planter to two members of the press the other day. This gentleman said that the more refineries Mr. Spreckels established in America the better for of iron workers in Glasgow has introthe planting interests of these duced Russian Poles, bringing the islands. It stands to reason that, while the protection policy of the United States remains, the stronger has been officially brought before the the sugar industry in all branches becomes the more secure will the sugar duties be. Under such conditions with the reciprocity treaty all that this country would have to fear is an overstocking of the raw sugar supply by home production, but this contingency may be set some distance in the future even with the present On THURSDAY, June 21, 1888, at the activity in beet sugar growing. The increase in the consumption of a nation of sixty millions of people will to overtake, besides which there is no doubt that cane sugar will always hold a place of its own in the market.

Mr. Williams, engineer of the Nicaragua Canal, is probably right in the opinion that DeLesseps' estimate of the amount required to complete the is so by one-half is probably an exaggeration in the contrary direction. Even if the opinion is correct to a On THURSDAY, June 21, 1888, at the dollar, there is now not much reason

THE PORTUGUESE QUESTION.

Several self-constituted champions of the Portuguese nationality have been at times fierce in criticising the English press for statements published respecting that people. As we had occasion to tell one of these gentlemen the other day, they would do greater kindness to the Portuguese by giving them sound advice, such as might encourage them to settle as for which this Executive elemency is producers in the country, or lead asked are distressful circumstances of them to hold certainties before rushing to grasp uncertainties. Akin to the eagerness of Portuguese to fly from employment here, and seek fortunes in the Eldorado of the Pacific Coast, is the gregarious instinct or inclination for easy living. perhaps more or less of both, which impels that people to leave the cane fields for the purlieus of Honofulu. A Portuguese working on a Kauai plantation, whose son had a good situation at the residence of the manager, one day intimated his intention of going to live in the city, where he said he believed he could better his condition, and of taking his boy along with him. The manager, while required, as to how they might decautioning the man to know what he fend their rights without injury to was about, had nothing but to give justice or public peace. MATERIAL progress in these Islands is evinced not the least in the raising of fine breeds of horses and cattle on the soil. There ought to be a stock show every year to stimulate this charity and justice while they are branch of industry.

The Papal Decree.

Following is the text of the Papal decree bearing upon affairs in Ireland:

Opinions of the London Papers on the Decree.

The Pall Mall Gazette, commenting on the papal decree, says: "The Pope's blunder amazes us. It will make no difference in the condition of affairs in Ireland, while alliances with the Pope will displease England."

The St. James Gazette asks what Gladstone thinks of his position now, What the Vatican declared to be a damning sin, Gladstone, it says, considers exclusive dealing. The Globe says: him the confidence of the Honolulu Walsh doubtless did his utmost to Advertiser. He should have retired refute Monsignor Perico's statements from the aquatic arena years ago, relative to the condition of affairs in when his brightest laurels were fresh. Ireland." It is possible, as the News intimates, that the Pope has been threatened with something like schism. The decree means law and order, which was menaced by the junction of a strong British party with the Parnellites, and have now. in the Vatican's opinion, overcome the disturbing forces assailing them.

The Star denounces the decree as cruel perilous and wanton. It says Ireland is fighting with her back to the wall, and will never perhaps discover the methods by which this attack was instigated. If Ireland submits to the sacrifice of liberty to a base Tory intrigue, she will be unworthy of the freedom which in a few years Eng lishmen will grant her if she maintains her demands. The paper summons Englishmen to denounce their Ministers' intrigue. Ireland, it declares, will accept political advice and counsel from no power, but her chosen political leaders.

The Standard argues that the effect of the decree will be disastrons to JAPAN is evidently not making the National League by lessening its contributions. The Rome correspondent of the Times says: Most of the Irish ecclesiastics give their cordial adhesion to the Pope's brief. It is reported that Archbishop Walsh said that he never approved of the plan of campaign.

Senatorial Courtesies.

In the United States Senate on May 1st, there was a sirocco between Senators Ingalls and Voorhees, of which part of the report is given be-

Ingalls said the assertion that Voorhees had called Union soldiers hirelings and "Lincoln dogs," and that they ought to go to a blacksmith shop and have iron collars around their necks, with the inscription, "My dogs-Abraham Lincoln," Voorhees said, was a campaign slander and scandal that had been spit upon. That assertion could be substantiated by as creditable witnesses as there were in the city.

Voorhees-And even if Senator Ingalls said it, it would be absolutely false and a palpable lie.

Ingalls—The Senator is disorderly. Yet, continued Ingalls, the Senator rises here and refers to the fact that I served during the war as Judge Advocate with the rank of Major, and subsequently as Lieutenant-Colonel. However obscure or inefficient my services may have been, they were always on the side of my country, not as his have been, always against it.

Voorhees said if the gentleman from Kansas would find one single vote that he had cast against the payment of soldiers for their supplies, for their bounties, or against appropriation for their pensions, he would resign his seat in the Senate. Every word the Senator had stated on that subject was absolutely false by the record, absolutely false.

Ingalls-Did not the soldiers of Indiana threaten to hang the Senator with a bellrope on a train after he made that Lincoln dog-speech ?

Voorhees-The Senator is a great liar when he intimates such a thinga great liar and a dirty dog. It never occurred, never in the world. That is all the answer I have, and I pass it back to the scoundrel behind the Senator who is instigating these lies. (This remark was made in reference to Representative Johnson of Indiana, who was seated at the desk directly in the rear of Ingalls.)

Ingalls-There is a very reputable gentleman in the chamber, a citizen of Indiana, who informs me that the signers of that certificate are entirely single acceptance of the liberal offer. sider that rent agreed on by mutual reputable inhabitants of Indiana, and that he knows fifty people who heard the Senator.

> Voorhees Tell him I say he is an infamous scoundrel and a liar. Tell him I say so.

He acted as editor of to transgress the bounds of Christian the Age and won his spurs in journalism. Feeling that his true field of work was the law, and realizing that his native city did not afford that scope for effort which he stood in need of, young Fuller went West and located in Chicago. His ability was speedily recognized and properly rewarded. For thirty years he has enjoyed a lucrative practice and won distinction among the foremost at the bar. In 1861 he was elected a member of the State Constitutional Convention, in 1862 he was chosen to the Legislature, and although a Democrat running each time in a strong Republican district, was victorious by large majorities. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Conventions of 1864, 1872, 1876, and 1880. In 1860, when in Chicago only about three years, he was selected to deliver the address to Stephen A. Douglass. It was an elequent, scholarly and brilliant effort. His wife is has eight daughters. In personal appearance Mr. Fuiler is unusually handsome; his hair and moustache being silvery, and his features clear cut and intelligent. In stature he is short and slight, compared with his future associates on the Supreme Bench. Mr. Fuller is a man of high scholarly legal talent, and, as an orator, his talents have won him the title of the "Chauncey M. Depew of the West." In politics he is best described as an old school Democrat. He was loyal in feeling during the war, a believer in the doctrine of State rights and an advocate of simple government. He is a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Julian Metz, one of the accom-

Two cases were continued and another me abandoned.

Rev. Dr. Beckwith chose the following text from the Book of Judges: "Zebuinn and Napthali were a people that jeoparded their lives to the death in the high places of the field." The thought suggested by the text, which was from the triumphal song of a loyal woman, was the honor put upon those that fought the battle. This was a warrant for honoring the heroic memories of our patriot dead. The preacher gave a few reasons for paying memorial tributes to the heroes who had fought the battles of their country. It was not that war with its borrors was to be ex-alted, but, notwithstanding the beauty of the white wings of peace, truth, right and justice were better, and when these were in peril they had to be defended. Diplomacy's reason or remonstrance availed nothing against batteries of cannon and gleaming bayonets, which when brought against the cause of liberty had to be met by the like stern means of arbitrament. It was in such a cause that they—members of the G. A. R.—had fought, and thousands of their comrades died. Not the dead alone were honored by their ceremonial, but every flower strown on the graves of the heroes glorified the principles they main-tained. They ought to honor their dead not only for the principles they defended but for the manner in which they main-tained their nation's cause. Instances of bravery and determination were cited from the annals of the late war, and another reason why those patriots should be re-membered, said the preacher, was that they expected this of their country, as the nation indeed had promised them. He read in this connection a letter written by Lincoln to a mother who had lost five sone in the field. Their chaptets should be heaped upon their comrades' graves not only in their own honor but for the sake of mourning fathers and mothers in thou sands of homes all over the Union, who were watching that the memory of their beloved ones should not be neglected by the country they loved and served with such devotion. A story of heroism from Gettysburg was told, the preacher exclaiming,

"Let not then a grave in all the land be left ungarianded!" Not only had their soldiers delivered the bondmen from their chains, but the name of their country from shame. He hoped none of them remem-bered-he wished he did not-the time when in these islands the finger of scorn was pointed at his beloved country. They owed their gallant dead the tenderest tri-bute they could pay them. He thanked the Geo. W. DeLong Post, and these guests from ship and shore, for preserving the memory of their honored dead in these far off islands, and concluded by exhorting the comrades to faithfully observe every At the close of the sermon the choir and congregation sang "America," and the concourse was dismissed with the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Merritt.

In leaving the church the reverse order was observed to that on entering; and both Post and visiting officers dispersed in their several directions after reaching the street

Entertainment at Spreckelsville.

Mr. Editor: Dear Sir: There was a literary last evening at Mrs. Morri-The Hilo Library Association held a son's of Spreckelsville, which will bear musical and dramatic exhibition on Tues- reporting. The railroad train had arday evening of last week to raise funds for ranged to take people over from this part of Maui; and at 6:30 we were at the depot, and the ride over was accomplished in good time and without accident. We found numbers of Makawao people waiting. As the car at the depot was tilled with the people of Wailuku, Waikapu and Waihee, another ear was attached at Kahului, which was also > filled with the clite of that-place. It was near the full of the moon, and the weather was pleasant. The flitting landscape was dim'y seen, and suggested the spiritual nature of the whole affair. The company increased till there was more than a house full, but the spacious verandas were sufficient to accommodate those who could not find room within. Hon, H. P. Bal-Iwin performed in an and the exerciss opened with a solo on the piano by Rev. A. D. Bissell. After him followed a recitation by Willie Dickey, and an essay on "Faith Cures" by Mr.

Then more solos and recitations, among which Miss Paris gave "The Senator," and Mrs. Wilder a solo. An intermission of twenty minutes followed, which was profitably filled up by chatting over an excellent cup of coffee and sandwiches furnished by the bostess.

Then came the cream of the evening; a tableau, or transparency, giving a spirited representation of a love scene in which feathers and horses figured; and it seemed to result in an elopement, broken hearts, etc.: although, as we were behind the scene, we may not have the crowning one The hostess distributed over one hundred neatly printed catalogues of her picture gallery, to which the guests were invited. It proved to be a novel s rt of bounded mirth and admiration when the crowd had had time to realize the very ingenious devices by which the subjects were characterized. The number of subjects on the catalogue extended from 1 to 1,000, though I konestly doubt if all the a dish of water; and the Plains of the Red Sea, by some carpenters' planes near the letter C in scarlet; 560, The Great American Desert, could only be represented by pumpkin pie, of course But it required a real sketch of a bridge, etc., to show a "prominent gentleman of Wailuku."

On the whole, this concluding half hour was very pleasant; but it was brought to an abrupt close by the whistle of the train; to which we betook ourselves without delay, and were soon at home. Whoever furnished that train deserves special commendation; and as we bowled along through the glorious landscape, we could not but remember that those who toiled up the hill to Makawao, or wended their dreary way to Haiku, were worthy of our very quiet commiseration. Think of forty years ago; here were ministers, a doctor, teachers, planters and a large range of business men in an assembly set off by 'beauty" and seasoned by age; whereas, then, all around the fine dwelling of the hostess was a desert. vocate 1. The economical administration | son. of public affairs. This is not intended as a glittering generality, for we proceed at once to the corollary, viz.; the necessity of abolishing the island governorships, as well as every other useless means of dissipating the public funds. 2. The conduct of the civil service on strictly business principles. There should be no removals except for cause. No party or partizan consideration should be allowed the least weight in appointments or removals. 3. The conservation of the political privileges already secured, with a view to their future extension.

The Gazette and ADVERTISEE pledges itself to support these views to the best of its ability, and it will support no one who does not in its opinion represent them. There are, of course, other topics on which we shall formulate a policy as occasion arises. We have purposely confined ourselves here to the statement of a political creed broad enough to unite all the genuine lovers of reform. It is of infinite importance just now that the Reform Party should be reminded one who does not believe in government of what unites it and makes it essent. by the people, in economical adminisally one, before individuals begin to tall | tration, in a prohibitive tariff on fuss out over matters of detail.

The foregoing brief confession of faith will suggest to every one of any intelligence in just what sense we profess and strive to be independent. Our independsomething to which we neither pretend soul with the Reform movement, and will in its opinion tend to carry out the spirit or contribute to the success of that movement.

little find made last week, gives no effectuated as soon as may be without signs of subsiding. The lawyers are at it now, and we believe they stand the best chance of getting it finally. Almost everyone will file a claim. There are Mr. Bradley's beirs, eager for the fray with two rocks to plant their feet on first, ownership of the soil and all that it contains down to the very bowels of the earth, and second, evidence that it was Mr. Bradley's own special plant. Then comes the sovereign, whoever that may be, claiming property in all mines, gold, silver, and by implication greenbackalse, as they are merely the legal representatives of gold. But who is the sovereign? Perhaps a year ago it might have been easy to answer that question, but now we prudently reserve any opinion as long as the great suit of the Minister of the Interior vs. the Kamehameha Trustees is pending. One sees the hungry eyes of His Majesty's assignees on one side, and the representatives of an impecunious Government on the other, all claiming their rights (and other people's, too). Last of all comes the unfortunate finder, also, the source of all the bother, with the most threadbare claim of all. Rumor says now that he remembers burying the treasure twice (evidently a lawyer has jogged his memory. There are a good many big fees in $7,000, as well as a great deal of law, and the law will probably last as long as the fees do.

more general expectation and interest place looks like the scene of an earth-quake. We chronicle these events with the utmost regret, for the injury to these voted to the one which begins this morning. That is no miracle, for there has been in the latter history of this country no more important gathering, unless we except that of the very same body, last year. The public prosperity depends largely on the conduct of this body. If they are intelligent, public spirited and united, it is not unreasonable to hope that the public credit, reputation and solidity will be completely restored. If they are miserably divided, short-sighted or venal, everything which the 30th of last June gained bids fair to be lost, and the country will $12. simply relapse into the old unspeakably bad condition. We do not care to be mired in that slough again.

No Government at all is infinitely to be preferred to Government on the plan which has been followed in these islands for so many years past. It is the simple duty of 'the Legislature to see that there is no return to the old conditions. If it is successful in that, it will be successful on the whole, even though not a single clause in our somewhat hastily drawn constitution be altered, nor a single new The Gazette Company have, as has been reform be carried through. We have not a grain of respect for the unanimity which comes from the lack of convictions, the peace ingloriously purchased by the sacrifice of principles. On the contrary, we are trying to show that unanimity is only obtainable by and through a common principle. There is salvation in that and that only. A house divided against itself cannot stand, and if the men who carried the Revolution through are going to lose sight of every common interest and conviction because they cannot agree on temperance or Chinese legislation, there is no hope of any further political progress; there is little enough of keeping what has already been gained. FNCROACHING WAVES.

A Big Tide at Waikiki-Bamage to Property

The little Kona which swept over the town Saturday evening has been ruinous enough at Waikiki. The strong west wind blew in a furious tide which attacked the beautiful terrace in front of Mr. W. W. Hall's elegant property and entirely demolished it. The plank work which built up the makai side was all washed away in a body, but was rescued by some of the heroic denizens and tied to Mr. Hall's raft. Great masses of turf were hollowed out, resulting in a collapse and disappearance. One after another the line of fine young cocoanuts was undermined and tell with a crash into the water. It was an inspiring sight to see that public dignitary, the President of the Legislature, and a fair young lady personally engaged in the rescue of one of the trees from the avaricious billows. She furnished the head and he the hands and both claimed salvage. The destruction in front of Mr. Afong's place was even more thoroughgoing. His solid cement parapet was all broken and thrown down. There are great stones half buried in the sands. The steps are separ-ated from the walk, only loose blocks of cement lying between. Two splendid cocoanuts have dipped their branches in the water and the whole row is threatened. The tower which stands on the very edge of the beach (a most romantic tower into The country has never waited with a which we confess having surreptitionsly stolen) is half undermined and seems marked by the sea for its own. The whole beautiful homes is really a public misfor-

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the self-government statements made, or opinions expressed by our correspondents.

Mr. Hartwell's Views.

MR. EDITOR:-Believing the enclosed communication contains matter of such importance to the public as to be worthy of publication, I would ask space for it

A prominent citizen of Maui remarked to me recently that Mr. Hartwell was not himself unless he was conservative. He evinces an earnest desire for a good government, and a careful recognition of the rights of all. No citizen who enjoys the benefits of an enlightened, liberal government ought to be satisfied without giving something in return, yielding a cheerful and hearty support.

The administration of the government at this time, I believe, compels respect and confidence. However wide we may differ on questions of public policy, yet we are bound to believe that the present conduct of affairs is a vast improvement on the old. We must not drift back to the old thing, which made every honest and intelligent man blush.

Don't let us forget what we were less than a year ago, or to appreciate the new order of things. Each and every citizen should be mindful of the duty of holding up the hands of our fai hful public servants. I think that radical changes in our government should not be made for the present, except with the utmost care and deliberation. Too much legislation will not add to the public

Dear Sir:-I am delighted to learn that the voters of this country-beginning with Maui-mean to assume their proper responsibility under the present form of government. There was no sort of use formerly in public discussion of public affairs, as long as the King had the power under the so-called constitutional forms, to do precisely as pleased the easily influenced mind of Mis Maje ty. But now that the power has passed out of his hands, never to return, it is essential that the brains and wealth of the country see to it that the political power which is thus set free, be properly distributed, and its exercise by different departments of government properly guarded and checked.

You and I were born and bred in a ountry which started off with a strong, highly cultivated and intelligent selfgoverning people. Our ancestors went from their English homes which were dear to them, to seek in the savage wilderness for the blessings of liberty. They founded as nearly an ideal Commonwealth as the world ever saw, and notwithstanding the flood of European immigration, bringing the ignorant, debased, wealth-hating and yet wealthseeking crowds of voters, to pollute the very fountains of civil liberty, still we all have faith in the permanent and general prosperity.

But in seeking to establish here a self- should not have this benefit here. governing commonwealth, under the monarchical form, which I think was wisely retained, we must bear in mind that we have not the same material which made up the British American Colonies. We have here many Hawaiian, Portuguese, and Asiatic, elements, which are unused to self-government and which only to a limited extent will for many years be capable of self-government. The intelligence of the country must devote itself then to working out a system of government, by which political power shall be safely distributed, and used in such manner as fairly to distribute all the burdens of taxes, to develop the national resources without doing harm to any class or nationality, and to cause the laws to be honestly, impartially, and effectively administered. All or theorizing; but it is not. We cannot ignore facts, if we would.

Now the attempt and intention of those who sincerely took part in the Revolution, to make the King merely the ornamental and representative head of the nation, somewhat like the position of the English Sovereign, was all right, and based on correct political reasoning. It a great gain for the Honolulu, but the was the only thing to do, if Hawaii is to remain an independent nation. But much remains yet to do. I think it wise to adhere to the new Constitution with scrupulous care, to amend it slowly and cautiously, as experience may justify Saturday by batting him with general and require. The turn which the veto question took was a disappointment to many, myself among them. But I am not now prepared to advise an admendment of the Constitution by which to secure, beyond doubt, the control of the veto power with the Cabinet. I think it would be well to amend the Constitution so that twothirds of a quorum of the House-and not two-thirds of all the elective members-can override a veto. This would give the Legislature suffici ut control over its own enactments, and also secure that later second consideration of its bills which is not required by the present system of a one-house assembly I also am inclined to think that Ministers should be elected members of the House of Nobles, so as to require them to go directly before some electora! dis trict, and defend their course and policy. This is the English method, and I see no reason why it would not work well here. But it ought to be carefully considered. I the above mentioned amendments are made, I think that the calling of the Legislature between its biennial Sessions may properly rest with the Ministry. As for the Governors, most of my friends thought they were a useless force. They reasoned well that if the outer districts could get on as they have done, with the functionaries which have been appointed of late years, they could get on with none. They also deemed that the country is too small for such a complicated official system as it has had, and that the beginning of reduction of offices would well be made with Governors.

I think, notwithstanding those facts, that a well regulated gubernatorial system, with men required to give substantial bonds, elected in each gubernatorial district, for a definite term subject to removal for cause by the Legislature, and placed in general charge of the assess ment and collection of taxes, roads and 1836, 1838 and 1853. The premium is bridges, and the administration of the on 1836 with no letters on the edge, on local affairs of their respective districts. would not only well repay the outlay, date, and on 1853 on the one having no but secure far better results in every way arrows at the side of date and no rays on | than are obtainable without such system. back of eagle, the premium is from $8 to the people must become used to the $12. Herbert Adames, suffrage. The qualifications of electors suffrage. The qualifications of electors for governors should be the same as for election of Nobles. This, in my view, would tend to a good beginning of local

Chinese immigration, or, and I think preferably, Japanese immigration seems to be requisite for carrying on the sugar industry on which almost exclusively the revenue and resources of this nation depend. I think a large proportion of females ought to be required to come with the men, in order to avoid the startling dangers of an exclusively male population of that class. It seems unfortunately to be true, that intelligent skilled labor is not available for sugar production. Asiatics are more tractable, more readily held under the laws, if fairly and impartially made and administered, than are Europeans of the same grade in society.

Retrenchment of public expenses sounds well: if it means honest and intelligent expenditure of the public funds, it is what must be insisted on; if it means smaller outlays for public and worthy objects, it is unwise and impracticable. We ought to have much larger appropriation for public education, especially for industrial schools. The teachers ought to be better paid and of a higher grade of ability than many of them are. The Chinese, Japanese, Hawaiian and Portuguese ought to be taught English free of charge. The difficulty in remodelling the judiciary, so as to have a Supreme Appellate Court composed of judges who decide questions of law which lower Courts, and not one of themselves, have passed on, is in the scant available material for new judges. But I hope that this object, which is really very desirable, may yet be attained. The same difficulty applies on nearly all of the islands, in securing for each island a resident circuit judge of legal ability and character sufficient for holding jury trials, and deciding all matters in equity, admiralty, probate and law, which come before him originally or on appeal. And yet that is an end to be attained when practicable. Such a resident judge could correct many of the abuses which are believed to prevail with ignorant and often corrupt magis-

I have kept for the last, your enquiry concerning the temperance question, and restricting liquor licenses outside of Honolulu. The people in the outer dis-tricts ought to be able to govern themselves and decide for the best, whether to have such license

I think the sale and use of bad liquors ought to be controlled. High license fees with large bonds required of the licensees, would lessen the number of liquor shops or saloons, and make it easier to detect and punish abuses or violations of a law framed so as to restrict liquor selling and public drinking. This, I am afraid, is as far as public sentiment will now go.

I have written the above in much haste in the press of office duties. It may or may not contain things worthy of general thought and discussion; but it is one kind of contribution which I think every man of intelligence owes to the country in which he lives. You are free to make such use of it as you think fit, and it is utterly immaterial to me whether you keep it private or not.

But keep up public discussion. The old New England Lyceum and Town Meeting were the best educators of the people. There is no reason why we

Sincerely yours, ALFRED S. HARTWELL.

THE BASEBALL MATCH.

A One Sided Game-Honolula 17, Hawali 4.

The first baseball match of the season between two of the old clubs took place at Makiki on Saturday, when the Honolulu and the Hawaii Clubs contested the this may be called useless generalizing honors. There was not so large an audience as usual, but still a goodly crowd watched the play from first to last. Parker, who had pitched for the Honolulus for seven years, having fallen out with them, was taken by the Hawaiis in exchange for Meek. This was contrary for the Hawaii club. Parker was a good pitcher in his time, but his former comrades have become thoro ghly up to his play, as they showed on facility. On the other hand, Meek effectually baffled his own club associates with remarkably clever pitching, as well as throwing them out at first base with unerring precision and watching all the bases with the vigilance of a veteran. The Honolulus, moreover, evinced the superiority, in all respects, which was to have been expected from their frequent practice and match games during the two seasons in which their opponents organization has been dormant. In consequence of these conditions, as the score below testifies, the game was a losing one for the Hawaiis throughout: HONOLULU.

A Big Find.

Mr. J. P. Bowen, occupying a house and premises on Beretania street, be-longing to Mr. Bradley, is the hero of a sensation. About noon on Friday. he was seen on Merchant street with five tins about the size of baking powder tins. It appears that while digging up worms for chicken feed in his garden, he struck his pick into the head of a tin. On exploring further, himself averse to having more than he unearthed the five tins about which the streets were in a furore of excitement for the rest of the day. The tins did not contain yeast, baking powder, oysters, salmon, peaches, mosquito powder, sausage, Eau de Cologne, Maile, hair oil, dynamite, mushroom, mullet, Worcester sauce, tomato ketchup or sardines. A thousand and one other articles of canned goods might be specified, but none of them were found in those tins. The tins contained mildewed gold coins of the denominations of $10 and $20, with United States greenbacks, folded, compressed, creased and bearing undoubted evidence of age, mould and decay. The appearance of the whole lot shows that the "find" has been under the The Kinau left on Tuesday in the time. The numbers have held their midst of excitement. Late letters—a own on the greenbacks which are own on the greenbacks which are doubtless genuine. The inscriptions on the coins are perfectly distinct. As the report gained circulation on the streets, the usual placid minds of the wiseacres rerused to take it in, but with winks, nods and innuendos, sug-gested that Baron Munchausen had been resurrected, and not a pile of Uncle Sam's gold coin and promissory notes. The total amount of the dug up treasure does not reach the colossal fortune of a Vanderbilt, nor does it fall below the commercial value of a Kalakaua dollar. The net figures stand somewhere between $5,000 and $7,000. Several applications have been made for houses and garden lots in localities supposed to be located on the lead of the Bradley claim, or where the soil is likely to produce chicken feed of similar nutritive qualities.

Mind Reading Performance.

On Saturday next Mr. W. Irving Bishop, the celebrated mind-reader, will give a performance in the Hawaiian Opera House. Proceeds will be for the benefit of the British Benevolent Society, the American Relief Society and the Liliuokalani Educational Society. Mr. Bishop will reproduce all the more difficult wonders of the Spiritualists, in addition to his own marvellous feats in mind-read-

Among the remarkable feats re-corded of Mr. Bishop, as wrought before the Czar of Russia, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and other royal courts, as well as able investigators in Europe and America, are seeing and delineating mental pictures, finding objects concealed at a distance, dis-Trotting race, mile heats, best covering what people are thinking hree in five, $250 a side, about, transmitting melody from mind to mind, deciphering and transcribing scaled writings in foreign languages, and localizing real and imaginary sufferings.

An alarm of fire was sounded Tuesday a few minutes after 2 o'clock. The fire started in an unoccupied house on the west extension of Hotel street. The Volunteer boys of Engine Company No. 2 were first on the spot, the King will open the Legislature in person; that He will not send Governor Dominis to conduct the ceremony.

To our Patrons.

We send out to-day as a Supplement, to our country and Island subscribers, the DAILY PACIFIC COMMERCIAL AD-VERTISER, which will hereafter be published by the Hawaiian Gazette Company, who have purchased it and will in future edit it. The daily Gazette has been discontinued, but the WEEKLY GAZETTE will be printed as formerly, and is now the only weekly issued by our Company. We hope to make the paper acceptable to all its readers, and it may always be relied on as the supporter of good government.

The terms are as formerly-Weekly Gazette $5 a year, or $6 for foreign sub-scriptions. The Daily Pacific Commer-cial Advertiser will be supplied to Island subscribers at $6 a year. Address, "HAWAIIAN GAZETTE COMPANY," H. M. WHITNEY, Manager.

The Combat Deepens-

Engine Company No. 2 held a nominating session Friday night. Unanimity of either voice or vote was not a feature of the meeting. Separate votes were taken for Chief Engineer and the two Assistants.

For Chief, C. B. Wilson, F. Hustace and John Nott were nominated. Wilson got 15, Hustace 7 and Nott a less number of votes. On the second ballot Wilson was chosen. For First Assistant, Hustace, J. F. Morgan and J. W. McDonald were nominated. The result of the balloting was the selection of Hustace, the present incumbent.

For Second Assistant the candidates were Morgan, now in the position, McDonald and Geo. Norton. Mc-Donald was dropped after the first ballot, and then Morgan was chosen by four or five over Norton. The Company adjourned to Wednesday evening. Engine Company No. 4 met at their house, Nuuanu street, Foreman Boyd presiding. The session lasted till ten o'clock. With only one dissentient a choice was made of Wilson, Hustace and Norton-the same as Hook and Ladder's ticket.

The Oahn Musicale

A delightful entertainment was given Friday evening at Oahu College, Punahou, by Mrs. Van Slyke, the efficient instructor in music, and her band of youthful pianists and choristers. The programme, consisted of sixteen numbers, and was generally acknowledged to comprise the largest variety of vocal and instrumental music hitherto brought forward on any similar occurrence at the college. The singing and playing were excellent throughout. The operatic singing of Mrs. Van Slyke and Miss Jennie Grieve in their duet, "Hear Me, Norma," (Bellini), and Miss Grieve's "The Song of the Page," from "Les Huguenots," (Meyerbeer), were rendered in those ladies' flexible voices, with rare power and effect. The efforts of the solo and duet performers were recognized by gifts of Joseph Chamberlain has not a ghost pretty bouquets at the close of their of a chance of securing the approval respective pieces.

The parlors of the domestic hall were well filled with an admiring audience of friends of the institution from town. Both professors and students were warmly thanked by the visitors for their entertainment and congratulated on the proficiency of the musical department at Punahou.

Munificent Plans.

Hon. C. R. Bishop intends to erect a Museum which will be a repository of Hawaiian Archæological articles. The nucleus of the Museum will consist of the collections made by the late Queen Emma and the late Mrs. Bishop and the late Judge Fornander's gatherings of Hawaiian legends. The honorable gentleman also proposes to erect a building to serve the purpose of a Preparatory Department, in connec-tion with the Kamehameha School. The building will accommodate sixty

A Correction.

An error occurred in Thursday's GAZETTE, in stating that the remains of the late Albert C. Smith were laid alongside of the body of the late Capt. Hope, of H. B. M.'s Champion. The remains were buried in the family lot, at Oahu Cemetery, Nunanu, alongside those of his father, the late J. H. Smith, which were interred there on the 24th of May, 1871. Before the above correction was received, the report had been printed in another part of this paper.

Engine Company No. 1.

The members, to the number of 24, of this company met at their hall, King street, Thursday night, Mr. L. Touissant, Assistant Foreman, presiding; Mr. B. Ordenstein, Secretary. Saturday week completed an artesian well on the Mrs. Bishop estate at Chief and First and Second Assistant Waikiki. It is one of the most successful works of the kind that has been ed unanimously. The ticket adopted is: C. B. Wilson, F. Hustace and Geo. Norton. The Secretary was appointed a committee of one to attend to the obtained, which rises two feet from preparation of tickets and other printed matter necessary for the election.

Newspaper English,

"Such wretched English as we get in our newspapers!" exclaimed a certain Chicago clergyman not long since. "There is no polish in the work. It is clamsily done. Words are badly chosen, shades of meaning are lost in bungling composition, and sometimes there are grammatical errors. I can't see why our newspapers cannot be better written." One night last week this clergyman happened to be in the Chicago Tribune office. Near where he stood talking with one of the editors of the paper was a re-porter writing. On the desk in front of him lay his watch open. With one hand the young man was moving a pencil at an amazing speed, and with the other was manipulating a eigarette with that skill and ease which only come of long experience. The clergyman's curiosity was roused. "Why the watch?" he inquired. "O," replied the editor, "the young man has just come in from his assignment. He has been busy all the afternoon and early in the evening gathering information concerning a matter of considerable public interest. He has been doing some lively bustling, and is probably tired. He is also hungry. But his superior has told him that he is to have his copy finished at a certain hour. In two hours he must write a column and a half. That is why his watch is out. He is timing himself. If he finds that he is falling behind, he will work all the harder to One Top Buggy. Shifting Seat ! catch up. That is the way newspapers are made. Would you like to write your sermons in that fashion, and then have somebody go over your work at his leisure and criticise your style and your choice of words?"

An epidemic prevails in the city of Madrid. It is feared the disease is of a choleraic nature, and its spread is attributed to the extreme heat and impure milk.

IMPORTANT TO STAMP COLLECTORS!

HAVE TO THANK THE PHILLATELISTS of Hawaii for the liberal appreciation which my late advertisement has received. It is safe to say that hundreds of thousands of Hawaiian Stamps have been sent away without receiving more than half their value in return, and what is far worse, every collector gets a quantity of useless duplicates. By the pian which I have so successfully weeked up, everyone gets only such stamps as he needs; and besides, he gets full value for each and every kind of Hawaiian Stamp. The prices which I allow are better than those of ANY EUROPEAN DEALER, and are higher than most American Stamp Dealers pay.

I receive frosh sheets of stamps by every steamer, and will send them on request to any address. The prices for these stamps are as low as those of the largest dealers. Hawaiian Stamps are good for exchange, and it should be to the mutual interest of all our Philatelic friends to assist rue in my efforts to make every hundred stamps bring only what will add to collectious, and nor a host of worthless duplicates.

In less than nine months I have an album of nearly Four Thousand specimens by confining myself to the above plan.

HANLAN DEFEATED.

The sculling match over the Paramatta course, Sydney, N. S. W., May 5th, between Peter Kemp of Aus-tralia and Edward Hanlan of Canada was won by Kemp by five lengths.

Kemp took the lead in the start. Hanlan's boat came in contact with Papal rescript on the ground that that of his opponent before the mile post was reached. Kemp stopped to of the people of Clare. let Hanlan pass and then went after him. When off Gascoign's Bay, Han-lan crossed the bow of Kemp's boat and again fouled him. Kemp got lengths.

An enormous crowd was present. This race was for $2,500 and the home rule. championship of the world. CONDITION OF THE KAISER.

The Emperor's sleep was unbroken for several hours toward the morning of the 5th. It was the best sleep he had enjoyed for many weeks. He awoke with a good appetite and in good spirits. He cannot walk a step, though he was able to stand occasionally that day.

The danger is that in the event of a recurrence of the crisis, with his powers of resistance reduced to a minimum, there will be no chance for him to survive long.

The Crown Prince, though absorbed in his extensive duty, confers daily with the Empress, apart from his visit to his father.

The marked change in the Crown Prince's demeanor was coincident with the visit of Queen Victoria, whose success in counseling him proves to be more enduring than was anticipated. The Kaiser's gallant struggle against a fatal catastrophe still continues to give Berliners breathing time. In several churches prayers were offered to end his terrible suffering, but these prayers for death have been severely ridiculed by the German press, and they will be discontinued. The manifestation of sympathy in all parts of Germany is most touching and unbounded

THE TARIFF QUESTION. McKinley of Ohio, a member of the Republican minority on the Ways and Means Committee, has been at work on a tariff bill as a substitute for Mills' bill. It will embody the internal revenue features of the Mills bill, will relieve alcohol used in the arts from taxation, and will either place sugar absolutely on the free list or leave just enough bounty which it is proposed to give the sugar growers. This will not be a bill for which some of the Eastern Republicans can consistently vote. It will not make clean work of the internal revenue system, as not more than half the Republicans believe in wiping out the whisin the House. Kelley of Pennsylvania waxes furious when the subject of reducing the duty on sugar is mentioned.

Randall has declared his strenuous opposition to taking off sugar duties, and in that regard stands on the same platform as Kelley. The Randall bill, which proposes to wipe out the internal revenue system, and to adjust the tariff schedules in the interest of monopoly, would not receive the votes of all the Republicans, and probably not half of them.

The progress of the discussion makes it more and more evident that if there be wise management on the Democratic side, the only bill which can be passed will come from its leaders.

BLAINE OF MAINE.

Emmons Blaine, interviewed at Pittsburg, said the story that his father would accept nomination was news to him, but refused to say anything further. He received from his father a letter dated at Rome a few days ago, in which the writer said that he was in the best of health, and intended leaving Rome for Genoa in a short time to go to Nice by rail.

Chairman Jones, of the National Republican Committee, has denied that Blaine had decided to be a candidate, that he wished his friends to make an aggressive movement on his behalf, that he had written a second letter of declination, and that he Turpentine, Varnishes, would be on the ocean when the Convention met. Blaine was well when last heard from, and might be home next month, or not for two years.

Jones added : "There is no denying the fact that ever since his declination there has been a growing sentiment among Republicans that Blaine should accept the leadership of the party in the next great battle. This movement has great strength, and will be a powerful, if not the most powerful, element in the next convention. I do not think that it is the intention of Blaine to come out squarely for any candidate. He is only human, and may, of course, say soand-so is my friend, and I would like to see him nominated, and such expressions would have great weight."

THE TANGIER DIFFICULTY. The Sultan of Morocco has agreed to submit the differences between his Government and the United States to arbitration on the following terms: The differences shall be settled by an arbitration court; the Moorish Government promises that no time shall be specified for the payment of per-sonal or individual claims, debts or amounts on credit. The condition amounts on credit. The condition And a thousand other Articles that can be seen and will be Sold Cheaper than ever, at the subject to the Sultan's approval is Fire Proof Store, Cor. TRISH AFFAIRS.

A meeting was called by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, at the request of Catholic Members of Parliament, for rescript. Resolutions were adopted traversing the statements by which the Pope justified the rescript and assuring the Pope of the unalterable attachment to him in his spiritual capacity, but firmly and respectfully, but emphatically, refusing to recog nize his right to intervene in Irish politics.

Meetings were to be held through out West Clare to protest against the the Pope is ignorant of the sufferings

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Sindia, January 5, 1880. To J. T. Davenport, Esq., & Great Russell Streat, Bloomsbury, London. Dear Str.—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chiorodyne, has carned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy for general utility, we must question whether a bester is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are surry to say, are now relegated to the nailve banaars, and, judging from their sale, we fancy their sejourn there will be but evanestent. We could multiply instances ad inflation of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhea and Dysentery Spasms Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Prepanary, and as a general sectative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholenaic Diarrhea, and good in the more terrible forms of United Attach, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power, We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's from a firm Conviction that it is decidely the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are all opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a Delimentary Brazen of than Collis Browne's Chemists at Delimentary Brazen of than Collis Browne's Co. THE DAILY GAZETTE IS A LIVE

THE DIFFUSION EXPEDITION

Notes on the Trip-The Makee Sugar Company's Plantations-Personal Items.

There was nothing to excite wonder or stimulate curiosity on the trip of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Co.'s steamer Mikahala, leaving Honolulu on Tuesday the 15th inst, for Kauni. It was a very smooth passage past the island of Oahu, changing to a stiff breeze with lively billows crossing the channel. No whales came up to blow, nor sharks to covet a suppernothing animate amidst the sheen of the waves but sea birds and flying fish. A half-clouded sky, making the uncurtained stars look brighter, a young moon, the bright new mariner's light on Barber's Point, and the mountains receding into distance and night, combined to relieve the throbbing steamer from the solution. Two editors sat or leaned on the stern rall till a late hour, arranging the course of state affairs for a decade in advance.

Speaking of Barber's Point light, Capt. Freeman expressed his gratification at the recent boon. It was a great aid to the coasting trade between Honolulu and Kauai. They could now make the most direct route possible, whereas formerly it was necessary for safety to give the land a wide berth on a dark night, making the passage much longer than with this aid to

Between the rivalry of Neptune and Morpheus in seeking control over the representatives of the press, the latter arcely knew whether their heads or heels were uppermost-their gastronomic diffusion apparatus were certainly upside down—when the signal was given, at three o'clock in the morning. to go ashore at Nawiliwili. A pull of a few hundred rods in a boat landed the half-dozen passengers for that point upon the solid strand. Hon. W. H. Rice's stage coach was waiting, in which a start was shortly made for Kealia, some twelve miles distant. There was another coach standing there bound for Koloa, which looked to be more roomy and painted brighter. True to their instincts of taking the best that was going, the scribes placed their gripsacks on board the wrong coach. They did the same with the baggage and parcels of a lady passen-ger of identical destination. The mis-take was not discovered and rectified a moment too soon, but if otherwise it would have made little difference to the editors, for they never unpacked their (comparatively) good clothes until they returned to town. Besides the lady (Mrs. C. M. White, at whose wedding the writer had been present a few months ago), Mr. J. N. S. Williams was a passenger as far as Lihue.

It was pretty dark in setting outbarely enough starlight to distinguish cane fields from lantana jungles--but our fellow-passengers kindly named localities and indicated points of in-terest. The road winds in a horse-shoe bend over the brink of a precipice several hundred feet above a broad gulch. This is the divide between Libue and Hanamaulu, and the road has recently been changed from a location higher up on the land, in order to avoid the steeper gradient. There ought, however, by all means, to be a stout rail provided at the bend in question, for at present it is imminently dangerous to life. The slightest prank a horse may play at the spot is liable to hurl one or many persons down to certain and fearful death.

The road is in good repair all the way to Kealia, and information is that it is even better beyond to Kilauea. After rain, as on this occasion, the road is from the nature of the soil heavy and sticky; but being dry on the return trip it made one of the smoothest and most agreeable carriage drives. Kauai roads, it cannot be disputed, are kept up to a very good reputation. At the high hills encountered the pressmen got out to relieve the four horses of about 275 pounds burden, but on mounting the coach again brought in on their feet something less than a ton of the "garden" soil.

Day was dawning before half the route was covered, revealing the ocean waves breaking to the right and sublime mountain scenery to the left-the latter varied by broad pastures and meadows, with lowly cabins and little hamlets at intervals. The Wailun river has never had its bridge replaced since being washed away in a flood. and the ceach and four is conveyed across on a punt operated by a native living at the spot. A smaller stream further on is forded with ease, the water not coming up to the axles. During freshets, however, there is no thoroughfare across the beds of these streams, and on the earliest possible opportunity the Government should have causeways, with central bridges above high water mark, constructed at the points in question.

It was clear day when Kapaa was reached. Among the first objects of interest noticed is Col. Z. S. Spalding's race track and stables. Hundreds of cattle are scattered on the plains and meadows between the mountain and the sea. Our fair friend forgets her fatigue and long fast in the kindly effort to acquaint the visitors with the lay of the land. Hon. Geo, H. Dole's breezy perch, in the midst of a beautiful grove on a mountain ridge, is pointed out. Conspicuous at the longest range is the tall, round, stone chimney on the Kapaa mill site. Not a vestige of the mill remains, as, since the amalgamation of the Kapaa and Kealia plantation interests, the milling is all done at Kealia.

As the ceach stops opposite his snug cottage, Mr. C. M. White, principal of the Government school, emerges and joins his returning spouse in a hearty proffer of hospitality to the editorial contingent, which is gratefully accepted more out of pleasure at being entertained by a kindred spirit, than from any fear of having to rough it by going further. After laving hands and faces in cool water, the guests have only a wait of a few minutes for a substantial breakfast-an achievement worthy of note on the part of the host and hostess, seeing that the former has been keeping bachelor's hall for several weeks and the latter has just completed a trying journey by sea and land. Breakfast over there is a goodly interval before school time, improved by edifying discussion of home and foreign affairs, in which the host dispanied to his school, which occupies two well-appointed buildings. He is assisted efficiently by Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Nugent. The pupils of the advanced department were during our visit exercised in dictation, and their spelling and writing approved most careful training. There are Hawaiians, Portuguese, Scandinaviaus, Chinese, Japanese and other nationalities in the school, and representatives of every race do excellent work. Probably the best in all points, of those not born to English, were the Hawaiians. Mr. White is an enthusiastic teacher, his school taking place in his mind to no other concern. An inspection of other work and departments is postponed to an opportunity that, unfortunately, never arrives to the visitors. The restful air makes them averse to activity and thus robs them of much information that would be valuable to carry back to their editorial lairs.

From the schoolhouse to the Kealia mill is only about half a mile, the road passing over a substantial bridge spanning a wide creek. Aloft runs on a huge trestle the plantation flume, extending for miles into the cane fields. The visitors are greeted at the mill by man on horseback! in the person of Hon. G. H. Dole, who is plantation superintendent on the Kapaa division of the estate, as Mr. W. Blaisdell is on the Kealia division. Then with cheery face steps up Mr. Theo. P. Severin, the traveling photographer of Mr. J. J. Williams' studio, who escorts the wanderers into the building where the diffusion process is located. Here we are presented to Mr. John Sherman, who goes all over and explains every point in the process. Col. Spalding himself next appears, piloting a party of ladies through the wondrous labyrinth of massive machinery and apparatus. The colonel spies the invited scribes and coming forward gives them a hearty welcome, followed by a thorough object lesson in the whole process. (The lady visitors afterward complained to the editors that the latter had divided the gallant colonel's attention to them when the diffusion process was only half unfolded to their interested comprehension. This was real mean" on the part of the scribes, although altogether unintentional.)

After infusing all the ideas possible regarding diffusion, the visitors were directed to the hotel just erected by Col. Spalding a few paces from the mill. This has been provided primarily for the benefit of the higher class of workmen in the mill and fields, who have not homes of their own on the estate, and incidentally for the entertainment of visitors and tourists. It is kept in excellent style, skilled cooks and attentive waiters being employed, with liberal supplies to draw from, and the six bedrooms in the second story being fit for princes. The tables are spread with immaculate linen covers and napkins, and the mill hands comport themselves as gentlemen, thus fitly evincing appreciation of the thoughtful consideration that dictated such elegant comfort in their behalf. If similar establishments were provided at every plantation on the group, a great obstacle to internal touring would be removed, while moderate charges to strangers would pay for their entertainment, inter-island trade would be facilitated and, in short, the whole Kingdom be benefited. It was at the lunch table in the hotel on the first day-Wednesday, May 16th-that the deputation was informed of the breakage of an ment to the diffusion plant. As the heads of the twain had just come from beneath the ponderous weights, one of which fell in the accident, they congratulated themselves on having whole eraniums left in which to carry their brains home. Next day another weight fell, and the decree was issued, to clear up for grinding at 6 o'clock in the evening. This gave an unex-pected opportunity of seeing the maceration process in operation. During the afternoon the flumes were altered from delivering to the diffusion plant, and diverted into the crushing mill. At the hour appointed the endless procession of came came rushing down to the mill travelers, the three penderous 10-ton rollers of the first mill began crunching their food, and, after receiving a liberal affusion of hot water from a perforated pipe, the crushed cane with its residue of unexpressed juice moved forward on an endless traveler to the maceration rollers, whence a goodly stream of the saechariferous liquid ran to join the primary stream from the first mill on its way to the clarifiers, while the doubly masticated fibre of the cane moved on by still another system of earriers to be dumped into the furnaces and furnish a large quota of power and heat to the whole vast scheme of sugar manufacture. So day and night the immense operation would continue like clock work while repairs to the diffusion plant could be effected. All the handling the cane receives at Kealia between the field and the crusher or cutter, as the case may be, is to regulate the feeding at the outlet of the flume. The Makee Sugar Company's property combines the former plantations and mills of Kapaa and Kealia, the mill on the latter site now doing the whole grinding. There is a total area of about 58,000 acres, 2,700 to 3,000 being constantly under cultivation. About 1,000 acres are freshly planted every year, the crop taking eighteen months to mature, and another crop is raised from ratoons, or second growth from one planting. The sugar crop this year will be about 5,000 tons. Excellent pasture lands stretch away from the bounds of the cane fields, upon which 6,000 head of cattle graze, with a natural increase of some 1,200 a year. About forty-five or fifty head per month are required for plantation beef, and an equal number are sold to outside dealers. Col. Spalding also owns many horses, including a large proportion of thoroughbred stock. Beside the month of the control of the con sides the race track mentioned previously, he has another in the vicinity of his residence.

Mr. Sherman, the chief engineer of the mill, went over the works repeatedly with the visitors, explaining every part of the manufacture. He has every detail at his finger ends, and his views, on any matter related to the industry, are well worth treasur-ing in memory. In previous portions of this narrative, the different pro-cesses of obtaining the juice from the cane—by maceration and by diffusion—have been described. It should have been stated that the power for the milling operations is furnished by two engines respectively of 80 and 100 horse power. There are special en-gines for running the centrifugal maboth care and labor. An outline of the trio cantered away, the GAZETTE the process of transforming the raw making up for indifferent equestrianjuice into sugar may now be attempted.

From a receiving tank the juice is pumped into the clarifiers, of which there are eight with a capacity of 150 gallons each. Heat is applied by steam pipes until boiling is produced, when lime is thrown into the liquid, bringing a foaming mass of impurities to the surface. This scum is swept off into receivers as the liquor is boiled to a certain density, ascertained by tests, after which the contents are drawn off at the bottom of the clarifiers and conducted to the cleaning pans. There are five of these pans in the Kealia mill, and in them the liquor is further heated and skimmed. Then it is led into two mixers, respectively of twenty and sixteen tons capacity. The mass is now very much thickened in consistency, and is pumped into the double effects, there being two of these great utensils, where it is boiled in a vacuum—the hot vapor from one caldron of the double effect sufficing to boil the mass in the other. The juice has now become molasses and that is pumped into the vacuum pans, there being also two of these apparatusone a monster of sixteen tons capacity made by Dealey of New York, the other holding eight tons made by the Honolulu Iron Works. Here the molasses is evaporated into sugar in a vacuum produced by the condensation of its escaping vapor, but it is such sugar as none of our readers would have his cup sweetened with-a vile-looking, black mud. The boiling in vacuum, as no doubt is generally known, is designed to effect the process in a lower degree of heat than is necessary to boil a liquid in the open air, and the especial object is to prevent the formation of what is called invert sugar-a substance inferior in solubility, sweetness and wholesomeness to the true article, and one which interferes with the graining or crystallization of the product. A fully cooked batch in the vacuum pan is called a 'strike," and it is dropped through the bottom into troughs, whence it is admitted as desired into the centrifugals. There are twelve of these machines, their operation being one of the most interesting sights the mill affords to a visitor. They are globular shaped vessels mounted on upright spindles. with a close-woven web running all round a space inside the shell. The black saccharine product above men-tioned dumped into the vessel, the latter is revolved with extreme velocity. In an incredibly short time— only a few seconds—the mixture is seen to grow light in color until it attains a white-brown. It is comparatively dry, clear and erystallized sugar now, the liquid matter that carried it Only four men are required to attend the twelve centrifugal machines, the same number that it takes to run three or four. The more skilled employees of the mill-chemist, engineer, sugar boilers, carpenters, etc.—are Americans and Europeans, but Japanese are in great favor as sub-engineers and tenders of different apparatus. The Japanese are very teachable and faithful to their duties withal. One of them who came to the mill without any knowledge of the fly of the Makee Sugar Company.

Japan-ese women sew the mouths of the sugar bags, with a celerity that those of other nationalities never attained. Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese divide the labor of the fields, and the company's pay roll numbers seven or eight hundred people. The daily product of the mill, running day and night, is about 40 tons of sugar. Instead of being housed in a single vil-lage, the laborers' cabins are scattered in small hamlets all over the estatethe habitations being usually clustered by nationalities-and this system has the advantage of having laborers living near the different fields in sufficient numbers to work them. As rule, house plots are cultivated as

All the scribbling that has up to this point come out of the editorial visit of the GAZETTE and Bulletin to Kanai has very little of a holiday appearance. Nevertheless pleasure was diffused amongst duty in a very high degree of density. Particularly was this the case with the Bulletin. That paper's representative was his own ss, needing not to write up a "stickful" of his observations unless he pleased. The GAZETTE man, however, being a hireling, was bound to care for his paper's nourishment or become liable to the "grand bounce." There was a centrifugal influence constantly impelling the GAZETTE to fly beyond the Waialeale mountains and see what was on the other side, but the utter inertness of the Bulletin countervailed to prevent the wearisome flight. As the latter personage tipped the sugar scales at 138 pounds—two pounds of increase in two days at the Colonel's hotel—there was a preponderance of five pounds avoirdupois against the GAZETTE's fugitive impulse. Another restraining influence upon inordinate industry was pleasant company of friends discovered at Kealia, who could not do too much to make the visitors' stay enjoyable. Besides Mr. and Mrs. C. M. White's hospitable reception, previously acknowledged, there were Col. R. C. Spalding, Mr. Severin, Mr. G. H. Tweedie, Mr. Nugent and Mr. Chas. Purdy, all of "auld acquaintance," and Mr. Fair-akild Mr. Sharman and Mr. Plaid.

child, Mr. Sherman and Mr. Blaisdell, newly introduced, all of whom did their utmost to entertain the strangers, although doubtless without any motive of accidentally striking an angelic bonanza in either of them. It was well, probably, for the GAZETTE that he lay under the double incubus of a rest-seeking companion's obdurate will and the profuse kindness of a legion of friends. This conclusion may develop in the reader's mind as he pump for feeding the boilers, which is self-regulating and a great saver of Kapaa and Kealia plantations. Gaily are almost perpetually swathed in ism by a determination not to "get left," his intrepidity thus becoming an offset to the gallant bearing of his haughty compeers. It was a delightful ride up the steep and winding road overlooking the village of Kapaa. Refreshingly green pastures, intervales and vegetable gardens, interspersed with the laborer's cabins, formed the near prospect below, with the restless ocean fringed with breakers meeting the farther view; while on the other hand rose the picturesque peaks, notches, turrets and pyramids of the mountain range, with great expanses of cane fields in the foreground. The air was invigorating. Our guide made the remark that the GAZETTE did not look too much like General Grant on a horse. This was taken as highly complimentary, in leaving the inference that the subject of remark looked like the famous

General off a horse. Enquiries of a Chinaman on the road and of Japanese at one of their settlements enabled the party to catch a trail, after several attempts, leading across the Kealia river, that on being reached was easily forded. A magnificent cascade and several smaller but still beautiful ones were seen on either hand. Col. Spalding's residence was descried from a height away down in a gorgeous vale, and it was determined to connect with the main road in that vicinity. But this piece of exploring tactics was easier resolved than executed. A broad irrigation ditch was encountered athwart the trail, requiring not only trained horses but skilled equestrianism to cross. The Bulletin's gallant bearing became modified into a subdued demeanor, as he dismounted to find if his steed could jump the chasm. The animal could and did make the flying leap, when its rider was satisfied, considering it unneces-sary to recross the stream for the fun of vaulting over in saddle. This is where the Gazette's intrepidity scored a signal triumph, making even accounts with the overt sneers, freely east by his companions at his galoping posture. With a Boulanger glance in his eye, disdaining to get off and lead his charger, the hitherto despised equestrian coolly rode to the brink of the gaping void, and in a moment his lively quadruped stood squarely on the opposite bank—the best fun the rider had since he fell off a tree in boyhood.

The hospitable guide was less fortunate, being unable to ride, drag, chase, or by any sort of duress make his beast take the ditch. Then the other horses absolutely refused to turn back, so that with mingled sorrow and apprehension we left the guide, calling on him to meet us "over there," Now presses. Colonel Spalding's retreat reaches a high ideal of rural luxury. An ele-gant house surrounded by beautifully English, about a year ago, has been laid out and well cultivated grounds, taught by Mr. Sherman to keep the its artistic finish scarcely requires the enhancement of grand natural scenery by which it is environed. A checkered pavement in front leads down to a lovely pond fringed with shrubbery. Marvellous strawberries are raised on the grounds. The proprietor was ab-sent, however, and the editors only heard about the berries next day. When the adventurers returned to Kealia, they found that no small con-cern had been felt for their fate, the guide having returned before them over the road by which the party went. His obstinate horse earned him an amount of rather heartless jibing at the hotel table, but his goodnature was proof against everything. Next day the visitors had to take the steamer for home, and in the morning they left their shadows in the photovegetable gardens, giving a thrifty spect to the scene.

All the scribbling that has up to Nawiliwili was exceedingly pleasant, notwithstanding the crowded accommodation. There were nine persons including the driver on the three seatsthe Bulletin says eight, but forgets "that boy" whom the GAZETTE selfishly wished to have postponed his journey-also a very wise-looking parrot that must have been disappointed in hearing no politics from the editors. The Bulletin for the first few miles seemed to be in distress, his misery proving to be of a matchless sort. On getting the last match from his companion, however, he still seemed to be in trouble. An offer of the lee side of the coach to the sufferer being overheard by the two ladies in the middle seat, they very graciously informed him that he might smoke to his heart's content-indeed, it would give them pain if he deprived himself of his accustomed indulgence. This amiable assurance had the effect of quickly changing the appearance of the vehicle—as it might be viewed from a mile away-into that of a locomotive. Parts of the landscape invisible on the up trip were now to be surveyed. They included the plantations and mills of Hanamaulu and Lihue. The cane looked fine, and the mills were grinding. Very neat cabins, regularly ranged in rows, are provided for the labor. Hon. W. H. Rice's residence, beautifully situated on the summit of a hill near the landing, is remarkable for one thing in being embowered in a splendid grove, royal palms being conspicuous among a variety of trees-remarkable, because fifteen years ago there was nothing bigger than a weed growing on the place, and the present umbrageous wealth is the growth almost exclusively from the planting by the fair hands of Mrs. Rice. Neither of the press tourists knew much about Kauai plays resources of argument that the horse power. There are special enhead-tired journalists, when taking opposite ground, find coping with no easy task. The principal is accom-

clouds, and one of the very rare sights of Lihue is a glimpse of their terrestrial sublimities. Nawiliwili landing is, they tell us, always thronged on steamer days. This day there were in the assemblage Hons. W. H. Rice and G. N. Wilcox, Dr. Walters, Messrs. Lucas and Wishard (teachers at Lihue), Sheriff'S. W. Wilcox (coming to town), Willis from Kapaa, Spencer and others. The portly presence of Mr. C. O. Berger on the landing gave a Merchant street wel-come home in advance, besides stirring up fond memories of Honolulu almost diffused away in the Kauaian zephyrs. Mr. Rice, out of compliment, revoked the two newspaper men's coach fares, for which he is openly thanked.

The electric lights of Honolulu were run nearly together in a glowing crescent of brilliants, when seen from far to sea before dawn on Sunday morning. When put out they disappeared all at once like a flash of lightning. Although, according to information freely tendered, we have not seen the best parts of Kauai by a great deal, yet the pilgrimage was to the Diffusion Process of Kealia. If that has been explained with passable clearness, readers may be enabled to diffuse from the mass of arelessly recorded holiday observations, upon other things incidentally viewed, a few grains of knowledge concerning "the garden isle," a territory that might with advantage to the cause of tourist travel have its attractions better advertised.

COMMERCIAL.

HONOLULU, MAY 20, 1888. Owing to the fierce competition for business. New York fire insurance companies have been losing beavily and a movement is on foot to throw several companies into liquidation. Says the Los Angeles Herald: "During the Says the Los Angeles Heralit: "During the month of March the total number of sales of real estate was 3,373; and the gross amount was $7,671.438. This is two millions more than for March a year ago. When we realize that the total sales for the three months just closed reach the enormous sum of $22,000,000 in round numbers, and that this is nearly fifty per cent more than was recorded for the same period a year ago, it must appear that there is really on the whole an acceleration in the "boom." The absence of feverish speculation in this business is no bad sign."

On opening its thirteenth volume the Her-ald thus speaks of the city of Los Angeles: "The Herald in her fifteenth year looks out upon a commercial city whose half score banks control a combined capital of $22,000,-000. She is surrounded by a dozen large hotels and half a hundred private boarding houses. Three and four-story blocks of solid masonary cluster around this office and extend to a great distance on all sides. Nearly one hundred trains a day arrive and depart from our depot."

Laupahochoe Gazettings -- An Apology.

We are sorry, dear Hilo, for all the trouble and vexation we have given in the trial and condemnation of our criminals; and in common with the criminals themselves regret that it was necessary. We regret having caused you this trouble, especially, be-cause we know you had plenty of that kind of work of your own to attend to. But, you see, we trusted that our little But, you see, we trusted that our little calendar would be but a drop in the bucket of your own, and that you would despatch it almost without notice. Besides, dear Hilo, we are young and inexperienced in that sort of thing; mind-wavering and awkward as young love; while you have had a long and varied experience, and when you gather your flowing skirts about you and rise in the dignity of offended instice, you do it with a grace and dejustice, you do it with a grace and determination that cannot be trifled with.

If we have had criminals before we never caught them, or at least never punished them, and hardly know how, now. So that we are very glad to turn them over to you, and it is "awfully" good of you to do it for us. Bear with us a while, sister village; when we have had as many naughty children as you, we shall know how to whip them at home! Besides, you know, dear Hilo, that we dwell in the uttermost parts of the earth, where the "jumping off place" is, and need moral enlightenment - missionaries in fact. These you have not sent us, so we have sent some of our sinners to you for conversion or reform. We have picked out some that we thought seemed to dwell in the deepest moral darkness. Our people are not all so deprayed—in fact, there are a few choice members of the Longfellow Society whom we look on as quite enlightened, and almost fit to live in the outskirts of Hilo and floor and really expired. When this gaze from afar on the temple of "Slim

But if in the future you find you can spare us a missionary or two, other than the sheriff, please do so. We will mell, tramping over each other in not ask for either of your journalistic philosophers; those great and good men you cannot spare, and, any way, their teaching is too lofty for us to attain to. Send us something more elementary and on a lower plane.

We note with satisfaction the appointment of a new government phy-sician for the district of Hilo. What may appear to some the only objection to this appointment, viz.: that the new incumbent is a lady, seems to us one of its principal merits. Aside from the spirit of gallantry characterizing this journal, we remember the fact that women have much more sensitive and delicate organizations than men, and must therefore have more delicately responsive consciences. We fancy the male medical conscience in the public employ is inclined to be a bit tough and leathery, and now we would like to try one of the tender sex. We are ever led by those considerations, together with the remembrance of her fearless horsemanship, to hope that she may occasionally visit even such distant and medically desolate jumping off places as Laupahoehoe.

This journal begs to greet the popular little doctress, with a cordial wel-come. We shall be glad to meet her, sick or well.

The rock train on the Magdalena branch of the Santa Fe Railroad ran away May 1st. A few miles from Socorro the road comes in on a heavy down grade, and when about four miles from the town the air brakes gave away and the engine, not able to hold the train, it dashed through the town of Albuquerque at a tremendous rate of speed. An old Mexican woman, Josefa Jaramillo, walking on the track, was run over and her body was torn to pieces. All the men jumped and saved themselves. The engine and four cars were piled up in the ditch.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church opened its session in the Metropolitan House, New York, May 1st. Long before the appointed hour the vast auditorium commenced to fill up with ministerial delegates. The Bishops occupied seats on the stage. The galleries and boxes were crowded with ladies and gentlemen. Bishop Bowman, the senior Bishop, presided, and conducted the exercises. The number of ministerial delegates elected was 288, and the number of lay delegates 175. Among the lay delegates were six women. Every State and Territory in the Union was represented, and there were delegates from Canada, Mexico, China, Japan, Africa, Italy, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Switzerland and India.

The Democratic State Convention of New Hampshire met on the first of May. It was the largest ever held in the State. J. M. Mitchell, who was elected President, delivered an address, which was frequently applauded. The resolutions adopted heartily indorse the administration of President Cleveland, and earnestly recommend him for renomination. They approve of the President's message to Congress on the subject of tariff reform and the reduction of war taxes. Daniel Conners, Joseph C. Moore, Alva W. Sullaway and Frank Jones were elected delegates to the National Convention. They are uninstructed, but are all for Cleveland. A New York despatch of April 14 has the following: Harriet Beecher Stowe is failing. Her memory grows daily more treacherous. There are intervals not unfrequent during which she forgets the names of friends, loses track of her own business concerns, and cannot speak accurately of events of the past. In some of these forgetful intervals she has denied all acquaintance with people whom she is known to delight to honor. Her condition is not unlike what Emerson became. The authorized biography of Mrs. Stowe will be written by Florine Thayer McCray, whose house is not far from Mrs. Stowe's residence in Hartford.

A newspaper correspondent writing from Berlin, under date of April 14th says: A strong picture of the devotion of the Empress Victoria to her husband is offered. Since her husband's sickness she has not been superintends in the kitchen, cooking the three meals daily that her husband is allowed to take. I am assured by one of her own household that her entire course of reading for the past several months has been confined to medical volumes and essays bearing upon her husband's disease. She has studied works of this kind in the several languages understood by as a competent nurse. She writes down the most minute directions given by the physicians and is tireless day and night in seeing that they are properly and conscientiously carried out. She permits no one else to turn his pillow. That he may be as comfortable as his affliction will allow his medicines are administered by her own hands.

A Peanut Trust has been formed driven fully one thousand and fifty in Norfolk, Va., embracing the firms families from their homes. Porter- engaged in the peanut trade in St. ville is flooded and deserted. The Louis, Cincinnati, New York, Norinhabitants are camped in sheds and folk, Pittsburg and Smithfield, Va.

Pacific Countercial Advertiser

He just and fear not: Let all the ends thou aim'st at be Thy Country's, thy God's, and Truth's.

TUESDAY, : : MAY 29, 1888.

With the present issue of the Datty ADVERTISER it passes into new hands. The Gazette Company have, as has been stated elsewhere, purchased the ADVER-TISER, which they will bereafter publish change in the management will be accompanied by a change in the policy and position of the paper. Although we do not consider ourselves in any way committed to any previous expression of opinion in either journal, yet the two papers will continue to present an independent criticism of public men and affairs from what will probably be essen tially the same point of view as that

Perhaps the present is not an inopportune occasion to indicate the general lines upon which the Gazette and vocate 1. The economical administration | son. of public affairs. This is not intended as a gliftering generality, for we proceed at once to the corollary, viz.; the necessity of abolishing the island governorships, as well as every other useless means of dissipating the public funds. 2. The conduct of the civil service on strictly business principles. There should be no removals except for cause. No party or partizan consideration should be allowed the least weight in appointments or removals. 3. The conservation of the political privileges already secured, with a view to their future ex-

The Gazette and ADVERTISER pledges itself to support these views to the best of its ability, and it will support no one who does not in its opinion represent them. There are, of course, other topics on which we shall formulate a policy as occasion arises. We have purposely confined ourselves here to the statement of a political creed broad enough to unite all the genuine lovers of reform. It is of infinite importance just now that the Reform Party should be reminded of what unites it and makes it essentially one, before individuals begin to tall out over matters of detail.

The foregoing brief confession of faith will suggest to every one of any intelligence in just what sense we profess and strive to be independent. Our independence is as to men, organized parties' particular Cabinets. Independence as to ideas, measures, principles, the independence of venality or indifference, something to which we neither pretend nor aspire. On the contrary, the Gazette and ADVERTISER is heart and soul with the Reform movement, and pledges itself to every measure which will in its opinion tend to carry out the spirit or contribute to the success of that movement.

The huge sensation which Mr. Bowen's little find made last week, gives no signs of subsiding. The lawyers are at it now, and we believe they stand the best chance of getting it finally. Almost everyone will file a claim. There are Mr. Bradley's heirs, eager for the fray with two rocks to plant their feet on first, ownership of the soil and all that it contains down to the very bowels of the earth, and second, evidence that it was Mr. Bradley's own special plant. Then comes the sovereign, whoever that may be, claiming property in all mines, gold, silver, and by implication greenbacks also, as they are merely the legal representatives of gold. But who is the sovereign? Perhaps a year ago it might have been easy to answer that question, but now we prudently reserve any opinion as long as the great suit of the Minister of the Interior vs. the Kamehameha Trustees is pending. One sees the hungry eyes of His Majesty's assignees on one side, and the representatives of an impecunious Government on the other, all claiming their rights (and other people's, too). Last of all comes the unfortunate finder, also, the source of all the bother, with the most threadbare claim of all. Rumor says now that he remembers burying the treasure twice (evidently a lawyer has jogged his memory. There are a good many big fees in $7,000, as well as a great deal of law, and the law will probably last as long as the fees do.

THE country has never waited with a more general expectation and interest for a Legislative session than it has devoted to the one which begins this morning. That is no miracle, for there has been in the latter history of this country no more important gathering, unless we except that of the very same body, last year. The public prosperity depends largely on the conduct of this body. If they are intelligent, public spirited and united, it is not unreasonable to hope that the public credit, reputation and solidity will be completely restored. If they are miserably divided, short sighted or venal, everything which the Both of last June gained bids fair to be lost, and the country will $12.

bad condition. We do not care to be mired in that slough again.

No Government at all is infinitely to be preferred to Government on the plan which has been followed in these islands for so many years past. It is the simple duty of the Legislature to see that there is no return to the old conditions. If it is successful in that, it will be successful on the whole, even though not a single clause in our somewhat hastily drawn constitution be altered, nor a single new reform be carried through. Deficient and imperfect as our new political arrangements may seem when considered in connection with the weekly Gazette, from an ideal point of view, they are yet, and as a substitution for the Daily. The in spite of every deduction, not merely excellent in themselves, but an immense advance on what we have had. They excellent in themselves, because they contain the principles of constitutional government, because they refer the essential power to its only true source, the popular will. Our constitution does not express the idea without some limitations, it is true, but one ever succeeded vet in which the Gazette has expressed for perfectly embodying the true political idea in any constitution or scheme of government, although speculative thinkers have been at it from Plato to Sir Thomas More, and practical statesmen and men of affairs from Solon ADVERTISER will proceed. We shall ad- and Lycurgus to Hamilton and Jeffer-

> LET us not be understood as advocating the policy of standing still or remaining weakly content with what has been accomplished. We are only trying to indicate a solid ground of union on which the Reform party can all rest in spite of endless difference of opinion as to individual measures. We have not a grain of respect for the unanimity which comes from the lack of convictions, the peace ingloriously purchased by the sacrifice of principles. On the contrary, we are trying to show that unanimity is only obtainable by and through a common principle. There is salvation in that and that only. A house divided against itself cannot stand, and if the men who carried the Revolution through are going to lose sight of every common interest and conviction because they cannot agree on temperance or Chinese legislation, there is no hope of any further political progress; there is little enough of keeping what has already been gained. A solid front against everyone who does not believe in government by the people, in economical administration, in a prohibitive tariff on fuss and feathers-and we are safe. Beelzebub is the Prince of the powers of this world, and like the English, he never knows when he is beaten.

IF the conditions thus indicated-the uniting on a common basis, the making a common front against a common foecan be realized, we may confidently hope for a great deal more than merely keeping what we have got. There are evils enough crying to every one with ears and demanding to be remedied. We may dare to hope for a great deal of legislation of the remedial sort, such as new provisions for the purity of elections, for some legislation of a more positive sort, and perhaps for some further changes in the constitution. No doubt some changes in the constitution are eminently to be desired, and should be effectuated as soon as may be without postponing more pressing measures, and without endangering the political stability of the country.

ENCROACHING WAVES.

A Big Tide at Waikiki-Damage to Property.

The little Kona which swept over the town Saturday evening has been ruinous enough at Waikiki. The strong west wind blew in a furious tide which attacked the beautiful terrace in front of Mr. W. W. Hall's elegant property and entirely demolished it. The plank work which built up the maksi side was all washed away in a body, but was rescued by some of the heroic denizens and tied to Mr. Hall's raft. Great masses of turf were hollowed out, resulting in a collapse and disappearance. One after another the line of fine young cocoanuts was undermined and tell with a crash into the water. It was an inspiring sight to see that public dignitary, the President of the Legislature, and a fair young lady personally engaged in the rescue of one of the trees from the avari-cious billows. She furnished the head and he the hands and both claimed salvage.

The destruction in front of Mr. Afong's place was even more thoroughgoing. His solid cement parapet was all broken and thrown down. There are great stones half buried in the sands. The steps are separ-ated from the walk, only loose blocks of cement lying between. Two splendid cocoanuts have dipped their branches in cocoanuts have dipped their branches in the water and the whole row is threatened. The tower which stands on the very edge of the beach (a most romantic tower into which we confess having surreptitiously stolen) is half undermined and seems marked by the sea for its own. The whole place looks like the scene of an earth-quake. We chronicle these events with the utmost regret, for the injury to these beautiful homes is really a public misfor-tune.

CORRESPONDENCE

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the statements made, or opinions expressed by our communication contains matter of such importance to the public as to be worthy of publication, I would ask space for it in your paper.

A prominent citizen of Maui remarked to me recently that Mr. Hartwell was government, and a careful recognition of the rights of all. No citizen who enjoys the benefits of an enlightened, liberal government ought to be satisfied without giving something in return, yielding a cheerful and hearty support.

The administration of the government at this time, I believe, compels respect and confidence. However wide we may differ on questions of public policy, yet we are bound to believe that the present conduct of affairs is a vast improvement on the old. We must not drift back to the old thing, which made every honest and intelligent man blush.

Don't let us forget what we were less than a year ago, or to appreciate the new order of things. Each and every citizen should be mindful of the duty of holding up the hands of our faithful public servants. I think that radical changes in our government should not be made for the present, except with the utmost care and deliberation. Too much legislation will not add to the public confidence.

GOODALE ARMSTRONG. Wailuku, May 20.

Honolulu, April 3, 1888. To Mr. Goodale Armstrong, Wailu tu,

DEAR SIR:--I am delighted to learn that the voters of this country-beginning with Maui-mean to assume their | trates. proper responsibility under the present form of government. There was no sort of use formerly in public discussion of public affairs, as long as the King had the power under the so-called constitutional forms, to do precisely as pleased the easily influenced mind of Mis Majesty. But now that the power has passed out of his hands, never to return, it is essential that the brains and wealth of the country see to it that the political power which is thus set free, be properly distributed, and its exercise by different departments of government properly guarded and checked.

You and I were born and bred in a country which started off with a strong, highly cultivated and intelligent selfgoverning people. Our ancestors went from their English homes which were dear to them, to seek in the savage wilderness for the blessings of liberty. They founded as nearly an ideal Commonwealth as the world ever saw, and notwithstanding the flood of European immigration, bringing the ignorant, debased, wealth-hating and vet wealthseeking crowds of voters, to pollute the very fountains of civil liberty, still we all have faith in the permanent and general prosperity.

But in seeking to establish here a selfgoverning commonwealth, under the monarchical form, which I think was wisely retained, we must bear in mind that we have not the same material which made up the British American Colonies. We have here many Hawaiian. Portuguese, and Asiatic, elements, which are unused to self-government and which only to a limited extent will for many years be capable of self-government. The intelligence of the country must devote itself then to working out a sys tem of government, by which political power shall be safely distributed, and used in such manner as fairly to distribute all the burdens of taxes, to develop the national resources without doing harm to any class or nationality, and to cause the laws to be honestly, impartially, and effectively administered. All this may be called useless generalizing honors. There was not so large an or theorizing; but it is not. We cannot ignore facts, if we would.

Now the attempt and intention of those who sincerely took part in the Revolution, to make the King merely the ornamental and representative head of the nation, somewhat like the position of the English Sovereign, was all right, and based on correct political reasoning. It was the only thing to do, if Hawaii is to remain an independent nation. But much remains yet to do. I think it wise to adhere to the new Constitution with scrupulous care, to amend it slowly and cautiously, as experience may justify and require.

The turn which the veto question took was a disappointment to many, myself among them. But I am not now prepared to advise an admendment of the Constitution by which to secure, beyond doubt, the control of the veto power with the Cabinet. I think it would be well to amend the Constitution so that twothirds of a quorum of the House-and not two-thirds of all the elective members-can override a veto. This would give the Legislature sufficient control over its own enactments, and also secure that later second consideration of its bills which is not required by the present system of a one-house assembly,

I also am inclined to think that Ministers should be elected members of the House of Nobles, so as to require them to go directly before some electoral distriet, and defend their course and policy. This is the English method, and I see no reason why it would not work well here. But it ought to be carefully considered. Is the above mentioned amendments are made, I think that the calling of the Legislature between its biennial Sessions may properly rest with the Ministry.

As for the Governors, most of my friends thought they were a useless force. They reasoned well that if the outer districts could get on as they have done, with the functionaries which have been appointed of late years, they could get on with none. They also deemed that the country is too small for such a complicated official system as it has had, and that the beginning of reduction of offices would well be made with Governors.

I think, notwithstanding those facts, that a well regulated gubernatorial system, with men required to give substantial bonds, elected in each gubernatorial district, for a definite term subject to removal for cause by the Legislature, and placed in general charge of the assess ment and collection of taxes, roads and bridges, and the administration of the local affairs of their respective districts. would not only well repay the outlay, but secure far better results in every w.y than are obtainable without such system. back of eagle, the premium is from $8 to $12. Herbert Adames, May 26th. P. O. Box 441. The people must become used to the suffrage. The qualifications of electors for governors should be the same as for election of Nobles. This, in my view, would tend to a good beginning of local self-government.

Chinese immigration, or, and I think preferably, Japanese immigration seems to be requisite for carrying on the sugar industry on which almost exclusively the revenue and resources of this nation MR. Enron:-Believing the enclosed depend. I think a large proportion of females ought to be required to come with the men, in order to avoid the startling dangers of an exclusively male population of that class. It seems unfortunately to be true, that intelligent skilled labor is not available for sugar production. Asiatics are more tractable, more readily held under the laws, not himself unless he was conservative. if fairly and impartially made and ad-He evinces an earnest desire for a good | ministered, than are Europeans of the same grade in society.

Retrenchment of public expenses sounds well; if it means honest and intelligent expenditure of the public funds, it is what must be insisted on; if it means smaller outlays for public and worthy objects, it is unwise and impracticable. We ought to have much larger appropriation for public education, especially for industrial schools. The teachers ought to be better paid and of a higher grade of ability than many of them are. The Chinese, Japanese, Hawaiian and Portuguese ought to be taught English free of charge.

The difficulty in remodelling the judiciary, so as to have a Supreme Appellate Court composed of judges who decide questions of law which lower Courts, and not one of themselves, have passed on, is in the scant available material for new judges. But I hope that this object, which is really very desirable, may yet be attained. The same difficulty applies on nearly all of the islands, in securing for each island a resident circuit judge of legal ability and character sufficient for holding jury trials, and deciding all matters in equity, admiralty, probate and law, which come before him originally or on appeal. And yet that is an end to be attained when practicable. Such a resident judge could correct many of the abuses which are believed to prevail with ignorant and often corrupt magis-

I think the sale and use of bad liquors ought to be controlled. High license fees with large bonds required of the licensees, would lessen the number of liquor shops or saloons, and make it asier to detect and punish abuses or violations of a law framed so as to restrict liquor selling and public drinking. This, I am afraid, is as far as public sentiment will now go.

I have written the above in much haste in the press of office duties. It may or may not contain things worthy of general thought and discussion; but it is one kind of contribution which think every man of intelligence owes to the country in which he lives. You are free to make such use of it as you think fit, and it is utterly immaterial to me whether you keep it private or not.

But keep up public discussion. The old New England Lyceum and Town Meeting were the best educators of the There is no reason why we should not have this benefit here.

THE BASEBALL MATCH.

A One-Sided Game-Honolulu 17, Ha

The first baseball match of the season between two of the old clubs took place at Makiki on Saturday, when the Honolulu and the Hawaii Clubs contested the audience as usual, but still a goodly crowd watched the play from first to last. Parker, who had pitched for the Importers. Grocers, and Pro-Honolulus for seven years, having fallen out with them, was taken by the Hawalls in exchange for Meek. This was a great gain for the Honolulu, but the contrary for the Hawaii club. Parker was a good pitcher in his time, but his former comrades have become thoro ghly up to his play, as they showed on Saturday by batting him with general facility. On the other hand, Meek elfeetually baffled his own club associates with remarkably clever pitching, as well as throwing them out at first base with unerring precision and watching all the bases with the vigilance of a veteran. The Honolulus, moreover, evinced the superiority, in all respects, which was to have been expected from their frequent practice and match games during the organization has been dormant. In conse quence of these conditions, as the score below testifies, the game was a losing one for the Hawaiis throughout:

Memorial Service.

Central Union Church was completely filled last evening, at the annual service in connection with the observance of Memorial Day by Geo. W DeLong Post, G.A.R. Decorations were in keeping with the nature of the ceremonies. Platform and choir gallery were almost hidden with beautifully variegated bouquets. Two American flags were draped on the organ pipes; similar drapery covered the reading desk, the starry folds opening out to reveal a portrait of Lieut. De Long, the lamented patronymic of the Post. A stand of arms stood on either side in front of the plat-

Rev. Dr. Beckwith chose the following text from the Book of Judges: "Zebulun and Napthali were a people that jeoparded their lives to the death in the high places of the field." The thought suggested by the text, which was from the triumphal song of a loyal woman, was the honor put upon those that fought the battle. This was a warrant for honoring the heroic memories of our patriot dead. The preacher gave a few reasons for paying memorial tributes to the heroes who had fought the battles of their country. It was not that war with its horrors was to be exalted, but, notwithstanding the beauty of the white wings of peace, truth, right and justice were better, and when these were in peril they had to be defended. Diplomacy's reason or remonstrance availed nothing against batteries of cannon and gleaming bayonets, which when brought against the cause of liberty had to be met by the like stern means of arbitrament. It was in such a cause that they—members of the G. A. R.—had fought, and thousands of their comrades died. Not the dead alone were honored by their ceremontal, but every flower strown on the graves of the heroes glorified the principles they main-tained. They ought to honor their dead not only for the principles they defended, but for the manner in which they main-tained their nation's cause. Instances of bravery and determination were cited from the annals of the late war, and another reason why those patriots should be re-membered, said the preacher, was that they expected this of their country, as the nation indeed had promised them. He read in this connection a letter written by Lincoln to a mother who had lost five sons in the field. Their chaptets should be heaped upon their comrades' graves not only in their own honor but for the sake of mourning fathers and mothers in thousands of homes all over the Union, who were watching that the memory of their beloved ones should not be neglected by the country they loved and served with such devotion. A story of heroism from Gettys-burg was told, the preacher exclaiming, "Let not then a grave in all the land be left ungarlanded!" Not only had their soldiers delivered the bondmen from their chains, but the name of their country from shame. He hoped none of them remembered—he wished he did not—the time when in these islands the finger of scorn was pointed at his beloved country. They owed their gallant dead the tenderest tri-bute they could pay them. He thanked the Geo. W. DeLong Post, and these guests from ship and shore, for preserving the memory of their honored dead in these far off islands, and concluded by exhorting the comrades to faithfully observe every recurring memorial anniversary.

At the close of the sermon the choir and congregation sang "America," and the concourse was dismissed with the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Merritt.

In leaving the church the reverse order was observed to that on entering; and both Post and visiting officers dispersed in their several directions after reaching the street.

Entertainment at Spreckelsville,

Mr. Edfor: Dear Sir: There was a literary last evening at Mrs. Morrison's of Spreckelsville, which will bear musical and dramatic exhibition on Tues- reporting. The railroad train had arranged to take people over from this part of Maui; and at 6:30 we were at the depot, and the ride over was accomplished in good time and without accident. We found numbers of Makawao people waiting. As the car at the depot was filled with the people of Wailuku, Waikapu and Waihee, another car was attached at Kahului, which was also filled with the elite of that place.

It was near the full of the moon, and the weather was pleasant. The flitting landscape was dim'y seen, and suggested the spiritual nature of the whole affair. The company increased till there was more than a house full, but the spacious verandas were sufficient to accommodate those who could not find room within. Hon, H. P. Baldwin performed in an able manner the duties of chairman; and the exerciss ened with a solo on th piano by Rev. A. D. Bissell. After him followed a recitation by Willie Dickey and an essay on "Faith Cures" by Mr.

Then more solos and recitations, among which Miss Paris gave "The Senator," and Mrs. Wilder a solo. An intermission of twenty minutes followed, which was profitably filled up by chatting over an excellent cup of coffee and sandwiches furnished by the hostess.

Then came the cream of the evening; a tableau, or transparency, giving a spirited representation of a love scene in which feathers and horses figured; and it seemed to result in an elopement, broken hearts, etc.; although, as we were behind the scene, we may not have caught its full significance.

The concluding exercise was indeed the crowning on 3.

The hostess distributed over one hundred neatly printed catalogues of her picture gallery, to which the guests were invited. It proved to be a novel s rt of art to some of us; but it provoked unbounded mirth and admiration when the crowd had had time to realize the very ingenious devices by which the subjects were characterized. The number of subjects on the catalogue extended from 1 to 1,000, though I honestly doubt if all the numbers between were filled. Eight hundred and eleven, Saxe the poet, was represented by some gunny bags; 202, Burns, by a burning tallow candle; an ancient king of the Sandwich Islands, by a king card set upon some sandwiches in a dish of water; and the Plains of the Red Sea, by some carpenters' planes near the letter C in scarlet; 560, The Great American Desert, could only be represented by pumpkin pie, of course. But it required a real sketch of a bridge, etc., to show a "prominent gentleman of Wailuku." On the whole, this concluding half hour was very pleasant; but it was brought to an abrupt close by the whistle of the train; to which we betook ourselves without delay, and were soon at home. Whoever furnished that train deserves special commendation; and as we bowled along through the glorious landscape, we could not but remember that those who toiled up the hill to Makawao, or wended their dreary way to Haiku, were worthy of our very quiet commiseration. Think of forty years ago; here were ministers, a doctor, teachers, planters and a large range of business men in an assembly set off by 'beauty" and seasoned by age; whereas, then, all around the fine dwelling of the hostess was a desert. Wailuku, May 23d.

was a warrant for honoring the heroic memories of our patriot dead. The preacher gave a few reasons for paying memorial tributes to the heroes who had fought the battles of their country. It was not that war with its horrors was to be exalted, but, notwithstanding the beauty of the white wings of peace, truth, right and justice were better, and when these were in peril they had to be defended. Diplomacy' reason or remonstrance availed nothing against batteries of cannon and gleaming bayonets, which when brought against the cause of liberty had to be met by the like stern means of arbitrament. It was in such a cause that they—members of the G. A. R.—had fought, and thousands of their comrades died. Not the dead alone were honored by their ceremonial, but every flower strown on the graves of the heroes glorified the principles they maintained. They ought to honor their dead not only for the principles they defended, but for the manner in which they maintained their mation's cause. Instances of nation indeed had promised them. He read in this connection a letter written by

of mourning fathers and mothers in thousands of homes all over the Union, who were watching that the memory of their

The hostess distributed over one hun-

The Honolulu Social Club will hold their monthly party at McInerny Hall this The steamer Australia is due to-morrow from San Francisco, with sixteen days' later news. Aiona was fined $300, at Hilo, and other defendants, for illicit liquor selling, from $100 to $300 each. Henry S. Swinton's assignee will apply for the bankrupt's discharge and an order for final dividend at ten o'clock to-day. The extraordinary session of the Legislature is summoned to meet for business at

II o'clock to-day, by Hon. W. R. Castle, President. It rained hard at Wailuku and over East Maui on Saturday last, with the wind from the southward. Crops of all kinds are looking fine. The Nunanu Musical Club give a party at the residence of Mr. J. H. Paty this evening, to which the officers of the Netherlands warship are invited.

The election committee of Pacific Hose

Company, to which was referred the final consideration of a ticket, has agreed upon Nott, Hustace and Morgan, the original choice of the company. The reward has been increased from ten to twenty dollars, for the apprehension of Jas. A. Jackson, apprentice seaman on the Vandalia, who deserted and was supposed at first to have left on the bark C. D

The Blue Ribbon League had an interested audience and a satisfactory programme on Saturday evening. Prof. Van Slyke illustrated his address with chemical experiments showing the alcohols used in spirituous liquors and wines.

The Hilo Library Association held a musical and dramatic exhibition on Tuesday evening of last week to raise funds for the library, and obtained over $100. The Secretary will take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of any books donated from here or elsewhere.

The funeral of the late Alex. Turnbull on Saturday was attended by a representation from the employ of the Wilder Steamship Company, and friends and feilowcountrymen of the deceased. Rev. Alex. Mackintosh read the burial service of the Church of England at the cemetery.

The brigantine Consuelo arrived at Kahului on Wednesday last, the same day as the barkentine Planter here, eighteen days passage from San Francisco, where she left on the 5th of May. As the Planter only sailed on the 6th, she won the race between those vessels and the Alex. McNeil, on which there was a wager.

The entertainment by the Athletic Club of the U. S. F. S. Vandalia, in the Opera | followed a recitation by Willie Dickey House on Saturday evening, was satisfactary to the very large audience that it drew. Everything on the programme was carried out in an orderly manner. Mr. Downey, as master of ceremonies, more than sustained his popularity ashore, There will be a repetition of the entertainment on the 11th of June.

Westerly winds in combination with the full moon have produced unusually high tides. The water has been coming up nearly to the King street bridge floor in the Waikanahulu stream. On Friday night the lower floor of the Myrtle Boat Club house was submerged. Since the foregoing was in type particulars elsewhere reported have been received of serious damage done by high tides at Waikiki.

There was such strong southerly wind at Mahukona that the Kinau could take very little sugar there. During the remainder of the trip fine weather was experienced, From Hilo to Mahukona there was clear dayight, revealing very plainly the picturesque gulches and cataracts of the coast. No less than thirty-five waterfalls were counted by Colonel Ashford at one time while the steamer was opposite a point between Waipio and Waimanu gulches. They were on the bluffs in the gulches and on the land between, and ome of them had a fall of nearly 5,000

Memorial Service.

Central Union Church was completely filled last evening, at the annual service in connection with the observance of Memorial Day by Geo. W DeLong Post, G.A.R. Decorations were in keeping with the nature of the ceremonies. Platform and choir gallery were almost hidden with beautifully variegated bouquets. Two American flags were draped on the organ pipes; similar drapery covered the reading desk, the starry folds opening out to reveal a portrait of Lieut. De Long, the lamented patronymic of the Post. A stand of arms stood on either side in front of the plat-

Members of the above Post, headed by Com. V. V. Ashford, occupied seats in the front center. Rev. W.C. Merritt, Chaplain of the Post, sat beside the pastor, Rev. Dr. Beckwith, assisting him in the devotional exercises. His Excellency George W. Merrill, United States Minister Resident, and Mr. J. H. Putnam, Consul-General, were present, also, in uniform, Captain Schoonmaker and several officers of the Schoonmaker and several officers of the U. S. F. S. Vandalia, Major Hebbard and the other officers of the Honolulu Rifles, Amongst many prominent civilians were noticeable several country members of the Legislature.

In the march from the Post-room, on King street, the Post led, followed successively by the officers of the Vandalia and the Rifles-each in order of rank. On arriving at the church, the Post opened ranks on the march, halted, and faced in-wards, allowing the visitors to pass be-tween; after which they followed in measween; after which they followed in measured tread.

Rev. Dr. Beckwith chose the following text from the Book of Judges: "Zebulun and Napthali were a people that jeoparded their lives to the death in the high places of the field." The thought suggested by the text, which was from the triumphal song of a loyal woman, was the honor put upon those that fought the battle. This
