The Child's Prayer.

BY EMELINE S. SMITH.

His little dimpled hands were crossed,
His fair locked saintly fair,
With upturned eyes of tender blue
And wave of golden hair,
Beside his dainty couch we knelt
To lisp his evening prayer.

"Dear Lord," he said, "I want to know
If you will bless to-night
All naughty, wild and wicked boys—
The boys who swear and fight?
Please, too, to help those dreadful ones
Who steal and run away,
And never, never do what's right
Through all the blessed day."

Amazed, his mother heard the plea,
And wonderingly she said,
"Why, what, my darling child, has put
Such fancies in your head?
Why don't you pray for brother Charles
And little cousin Fred?"

"Why should I pray for them, mamma?
They're good, and happy, too;
The Lord has done enough for them,
I want Him now to do
Something for those poor friendless chaps
Who must be cross and bad,
Because they've nothing in the world
To make them good or glad."

Oh, wisdom of the child's pure heart!
Oh, sweet and loving creed,
That gives each tender, pitying thought
To those in direst need!
Could wisdom, with their varied lore,
A larger lesson teach?
Or churchmen from the sacred desk
Deeper doctrine preach?

Who Cares?

Who cares for the last year's rose?
Or the flowers of last year's May?
Or the leaf dried sweet in a mouldy book?
Or the love who is away?

Who cares for the cloud gone by?
Or last week's rain and wind?
Or a golden crescent of faded curl
The dead one left behind?

A tress of hair and a faded leaf
Are paltry things to a cynic's eyes;
But to me they are keys that open the gates
Of a paradise of memories.

VARIETY.

An old bachelor says that when he wooed she wouldn't.

A corsair courts the longest way home from singing-school.

French fate: Parisians who lose their money at the gaming-table.

A barber's sign out West reads as follows: "John Jacobs kills pigs like his father."

Punch gives this definition of the word "conscience": "My rule for another man's conduct."

Here is a Newark sign: "Washing, ironing, and going out by days' works taken in here."

The choir sang "Come, ye Disconsolate," at a recent wedding in Lafayette, Ind. The bride, who is forty-one, says she isn't near so disconsolate as she was.

The last meteor is regarded by the Second Adventists as a sure sign that the beginning of the end is nigh. But they hold their corner-lots at the same old prices.

A member of an American club objected to the publication of the list of the meeting nights of the club, "because," he said, "if it's published, we married men will have to account for the off-nights." The motion to publish was lost.

"So," said a lady recently to a merchant, "your pretty daughter has married a rich husband?" "Well," slowly replied the father, "I believe she has married a rich man; but I understand he is a very poor husband."

"Speaking of bathing," says Mrs. Partington, "some can bathe with perfect impunity in water as cold as Greenland's icy mountains and India's coral strands; but, for my part, I prefer to have the water a little torpid."

Frenchman of Tours, to his friend fresh from Paris: "And did you meet my friend Mme. ——?" "Yes, but I saw very little of her." "Ah! She was not, then, in her evening dress?"

Those auburn-haired young ladies with noses suggestive of a cold morning, and who missed fire during the leap year past, now sadly sing, "It may be four years and may be forever."

A pair of Quakers were lately heard in high controversy, the husband exclaiming: "I am determined to have one quiet week with thee." "But how wilt thou be able to get it?" said the taunting spouse. "I will keep thee a week after thou art dead," was the rejoinder.

Mr. Spilkins had seventeen calls New Year's Day. The milkman called first, at 6 a. m.; then came fourteen men, in succession, with snow shovels, to ask if he didn't want the side-walk cleared; the banker called with his bill about three in the afternoon, and finally Spilkins himself called, at 11:55 p. m.

A lady sends to a Chinese laundry a washing list, among the items in which is the following:

1 Frilled White Petticoat—
No Starch.

When the washing is returned, the bill contains the following items:

1 Frilled White Petticoat .... 20 cents
No Starch .... 10 cents

A physician in Aberdeen who had been annoyed by numerous questions concerning the condition of a patient, was stopped while on his busy rounds by a man with the old question, "How's M.?" "Ill," replied the physician. "Does he keep his bed?" "Of course he does. You don't suppose he's fool enough to sell his bed because he's ill, do you?"

A young Frenchman, noted for his grace and coolness as a second in many duels, was asked by a friend to accompany him to the mayor's office, to affix his signature as a witness to the matrimonial registry. He consented; but just as the mayor was ready for the last formalities he broke out: "Gentlemen, cannot this affair be arranged? Is there no way of preventing this sad occurrence?"

"Pa," observed a Danbury boy to his father, "what does Mr. Pitkins and Julia find to talk about in the parlor by themselves, four hours a night every night in the week?" The old gentleman pulled a splint out of the broom, and, slowly prodding his teeth with it, replied: "I got a hunk of meat yesterday, an' we had it boiled for dinner, didn't we?" "Yes." "An' had it cold for supper?" "Yes." "An' your ma hashed it up for breakfast this morning, didn't she?" "Yes." "An' to-day I got another hunk, which is on the same road, ain't it?" "Yes." "Well, that's the way with Pitkins an' your sister Julia."

A man on board the United States steamer Monongahela, whose term of service had just expired, proceeded to take leave of his late officers. Approaching the commander, he invoked the choicest blessings on his head, in a brogue that left no doubt as to his native sod. And as he went from one to another with a "God bless ye!" or "May Heaven reward ye!" till he came opposite the Lieutenant-Commander, who had frequently been obliged to suppress Pat's love for the "ardent" by stopping his leave. With a reluctant touch of his cap, and downcast eye, he mumbled out, "And may God bless you, too, Mister, R——, to a sartin extint!"

Deposits from any portion of the United States, Europe or the Hawaiian Islands, may be sent by mail or express, in coin or currency, or by draft on any business or banking house. A pass book with proper entries will be immediately returned for the same. Remittances in currency will be credited in gold at current rates. The signature of the depositor should accompany the first deposit. Deposits can be made by any one, but can only be withdrawn by the signature of the Party in whose name the account is opened. Married women and minors can make deposits in their own names, and may withdraw the same, upon their own receipts, upon the same conditions as other depositors. No entrance fee or charge for bank books.
The securities for all loans made by this bank, are scrutinized with great care by the Board of Directors, and consist almost exclusively of first class Real Estate with large margins; United States, State, County and City Bonds, &c. All stocks or other securities of uncertain or fluctuating values are carefully excluded. The policy of the Bank, being to obtain first, absolute security for return of the principal, thereafter a rate of interest consistent therewith. Our unusually large and increasing Capital and reserve Fund, no portion of which can be withdrawn by stockholders until all demands of depositors have been paid in full, taken in connection with a careful and conservative management, furnishes to depositors a guarantee of safety as well as remunerative dividends.
Deposits can under ordinary circumstances be withdrawn, as a whole or in part, without notice (instead of six months' notice being required as formerly) as specified in articles 36 and 5th printed conditions of agreement with depositors. Non resident depositors who wish to withdraw their deposits, or a portion thereof, and desire to have the same sent to them by the Bank, may do so subject to the By-Laws, by sending a proper order accompanied by the pass book, with instructions as to the manner in which they desire the money to be remitted. Said remittance however will be at the expense and risk of the depositor. Blank orders for this purpose will be furnished by the Cashier.
Term deposits remaining three full calendar months, will be entitled to dividends of interest. Said dividends are declared, and payable in January and July of each year, and if not called for in one month, will be credited to the account and bear interest as a deposit from date on which they were declared. No dividend computed on fractions of dollars or for fractions of months. Dividends declared by this Bank for the past and previous terms, have been at the rate of 9½ per cent per annum; for the present term and hereafter will probably not exceed 9 per cent.
For further particulars see printed conditions of agreement with depositors which will be forwarded to any address upon request, a copy of which is also appended to each pass book.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE
IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE
THE PUBLIC ARE CAUTIONED AGAINST the unfounded statements frequently made, "that the composition of Chlorodyne is known to Chemists and the Medical profession." The fact is, Chlorodyne was discovered and invented by Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE (ex Army Medical Staff,) and so named by him, and it has baffled all attempts at analysis by the first Chemists of the day. The method and secret of the preparation have never been published. It is obvious, therefore, that anything sold under the name, save Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE, is a spurious imitation.
CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the Inventor of Chlorodyne.
REMEDIAL USES AND ACTION.
This invaluable remedy produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp Hysteria, &c.
EXTRACTS FROM MEDICAL OPINIONS.
The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians, and J. T. Davenport, that he had received information to the effect that the ONLY remedy of any service in Cholera was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.
Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE was administered, the patient recovered.
Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"
Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."
CAUTION.—None genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

The car-house and stables of the Dry Dock Railroad Company, New York, were burned yesterday. One hundred and eighty cars were destroyed, but it is believed the horses were all saved. The Company's loss is placed at $200,000.

Thomas Sayles, patentee of a car-brake, sues George M. Pullman for an alleged trespass on his patent.

Further discoveries of ring frauds in South Carolina are reported.

There is displayed near Fulton, New York, two specimens of California cucumbers, grown from California seed, in New Jersey soil, each of which measures over four feet in length and three inches in diameter. They are hollow and unfit for food.

The New York Times' Washington special says: There is no longer any doubt as to the intention of the Texas-Pacific subsidy lobby to run a candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives. They have selected their man and made their platform, and go into the fight with their colors nailed to the masthead. It is a bold strike for $150,000,000 of the people's money. The candidate selected is Goode, of Virginia.

HAWAIIAN GAZETTE

AN INDEPENDENT JOURNAL,
DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

PUBLISHED AND EDITED BY
HENRY M. WHITNEY.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1877.

HIS Majesty the King sailed on Monday afternoon by the Marion for a brief visit to Kauai.

HER Royal Highness the Heir Apparent returned from Kauai last week by the schooner Marion, arriving in Honolulu on Friday afternoon.

HER MAJESTY QUEEN DOWAGER EMMA left town on Monday on the steamer Robbie for Pearl River and Ewa, and will return in a few days by land, via Waianae and Waialua.

WE publish this morning, on the third page, an account of the new steamer now being built for Captain Hobron. We rejoice that he has seen fit to entrust the work to one of our own firms, instead of sending abroad to have it done. We hail the building of this steamer by Messrs. Tibbits and Sorrensen as the opening of a new chapter in the development of our commercial prosperity. We hope and believe that this experiment of Captain H., in the line of inter-island traffic, will be successful and profitable. We wish him most heartily the reward which we feel his enterprise deserves.

A COMMUNICATION in another column calls attention to the absurd statement of one of the Advertiser's correspondents, to the effect that there once existed a law in Connecticut by which men were forbidden to kiss their wives and children on Sunday, and that spies were set to see that they didn't do it. We should consider the remark in question as too ridiculous for serious notice, were it not that similar statements are continually cropping out both in the columns of the newspapers and in conversation. The persons making these remarks and statements, seem in many instances to labor under the delusion that they are actually telling the truth. With a view of enlightening those who honestly desire to know the facts, as well as for the purpose of refuting malicious slanderers and confounding fools, we purpose writing and printing in the columns of the GAZETTE, at the first convenient opportunity, a brief statement of the truth concerning those so-called "Blue Laws of Connecticut." For the present we will content ourselves with saying that our correspondent is quite correct in his statement, that the law against people kissing their children, as well as a great many other laws which have been cited from time to time as specimens of Connecticut legislation, never had any existence, except in the imagination of certain mendacious and foolish persons, of whom the party signing himself "Justice," in the last number of the Advertiser, is a fair specimen.

A GREAT deal has been said in times past, both in the newspapers and otherwise, concerning the alleged unfitness of the natives to be entrusted with legislative functions. It must be confessed that, as a legislator, the Hawaiian has not been in all respects a success. In fact he has shown himself to be in some matters, rather a conspicuous failure. It is, however, worthy of notice that some of the most objectionable legislation with which this country has been afflicted, has been not of native but of foreign origin. Of this fact, the present tax law, under which—according to our Supreme Court—a considerable portion of the property in this country can be made to pay double and triple taxes, is a striking example. The law in question was devised and drawn up by white men, some of them being at the time officers of the government, and white men engineered it through the legislature and procured its final passage. Substantially the same remarks apply in the case of the twenty-five per cent. tariff law, which is not only deservedly unpopular among our own people, but which has come near involving us in serious diplomatic complications. We believe moreover it would be safe to say that pretty much every peice of personal legislation, legislation that is to say, devised for the especial benefit of certain individuals or cliques, legislation in short with a job in it; had emanated from the same source. The moral of the above is simply this: that the legislative evils under which this country labors are not to be cured by electing foreigners to the legislature instead of natives, unless, at the same time, proper care is taken as to the character and qualifications of the men chosen. The individual and personal application of the above remarks we leave to our readers.

The Tax Decision.

IT is now two weeks since the Supreme Court rendered their decision on the tax law, and during that time we have been waiting with some degree of curiosity and interest, to see if any one in the community, either lawyer or layman, could be found to come forward and endorse that decision or attempt to defend either the justice or the expediency of the law as therein laid down. So far we have waited in vain. The unanimous voice of the press, but expresses the all but unanimous opinion of the public, that the law in question, as expounded by the Court, is oppressive, unjust, and contrary not only to a sound public policy, but contrary as well to at least the spirit and intention of the Constitution. We suppose we must accept the judgment of the Court that it is not contrary to the letter of that instrument. If the view of the Court on this point is correct, we can only regret that the authors of our Constitution should have drawn that document in such a clumsy and slipshod fashion, that the legislature has been able to evade its plain meaning and intention. The fundamental law of the land ought not to be so loosely put together that interested parties can drive a coach and four through it. But although no one has cared to take the responsibility of publicly endorsing the law, we have found one or two persons who, in private, attempted to justify it. The reasons, we have heard, advanced by these parties, have been two in number. The first is that the planters, capitalists and money lenders of this Kingdom have so uniformally, constantly and successfully dodged and evaded their just and fair share of taxation, that some such scheme as this present law was necessary to catch and hold them, and that the legislation in question is of the nature of a retaliatory measure, devised for the purpose of "getting square" with these parties. If we inquire, how a wealthy sugar planter can dodge or evade his taxes any more that any other man; we are told that by his wealth and influence he can often control the appointment of the local assessor, who owing him his appointment, and perhaps holding it virtually at his pleasure, will allow his patron to value his property at as low a figure as he choses. We are also told that when the parties in question have failed to manipulate the assessor as they wished, they have appealed to the Board of Revision and had their assessments cut down. Of course no one cares to make such charges or use such arguments publicly, or over their own signatures, but such statements are made and such arguments are used in private.

Of the truth or falsity of the alleged facts, we shall say nothing, for the simple reason that we know nothing. Of the argument attempted to be based thereon, we have simply to say that it is entitled to no weight whatever. To make the alleged dishonesty and incompetency of the government's own agents, an excuse for resorting to a scheme of multiple taxation in order to get even with the tax payer, is an offense against both law and morals. The simple statement of the case carries with it its own refutation. If assessors and Boards of Revision are found to administer the trust committed to them, improperly, and to favor the rich at the expense of the poor, the remedy is very plain. Let fit and proper men be appointed to fill those places, and then let the government sustain them and back them up in the faithful performance of their duty.

The other argument we have heard attempted to be used, has reference to the taxation of stock in corporations, and is based upon the fact that nearly all these organizations are sugar plantations. It is said that the sugar planter is the party chiefly benefitted by the treaty, and that as he is the one among us who is making the most money, it is proper that he should be made to bear as large a share as possible of the public burdens. The answer to all such style of argument is simply this: that all persons ought to pay one uniform and unvarying rate upon the fair valuation of their property, be the same large or small. Class taxation, like class legislation of all kinds, is, as a rule, offensive, unjust and impolitic. If for any reason it is found impracticable to assess the plantations at a rate which will bear a fair proportion to the annual profits derived therefrom, an income tax can be devised, which will effectually correct that inequality. So much for the only arguments we have heard advanced in support of the measure. Let us now turn for a few moments to the merits of the measure itself. We have said that the law provided in certain cases for a system of double taxation, but even this statement does not express the full proportion of the injustice done. Under certain circumstances very likely to occur, and which perhaps actually have occurred, not only two, but three taxes can be got out of the same property. It is only necessary that a plantation or other property owned and worked by a stock company shall be mortgaged; and behold this brilliant feat of legerdemain successfully accomplished. We will suppose a plantation worth one hundred thousand dollars, we will suppose the same owned and worked by a company having a capital stock consisting of one hundred shares of one thousand dollars each, and finally we will suppose one hundred thousand dollars borrowed on the property and a mortgage given for the same. And now what do the shareholders in that plantation actually own? What is the value of their united interests in the enterprise? How much actual property have they in the concern? They own among them a piece of property which is mortgaged for its full value, and that is all. It is true they have the nominal title of the property in their name, they own what is known in law as the "equity of redemption," but this in the present instance is worth nothing, the mortgage being assumed for the sake of argument and illustration, to be for the full value of the property. Even were such not the case, the equity of redemption could have no possible value except for the amount the property might bring over and above the mortgage. But it may be said: the nominal owners of the property have the use of the same and are entitled to receive and enjoy the income and profits thereof. This is very true, provided there are any profits, but supposing there are none; what then? There is certainly no income or profit accruing to the stockholders until after the interest on the mortgage has been paid, and suppose again, what is by no means an unprecedented case, that the income derived from the property is not enough to pay the interest, or that the business is even carried on at an actual loss. How, then, about enjoying the income and profits? Let us look now a little further at our hundred thousand dollar mortgaged plantation and ask: what is the total value of the various interests of all the parties concerned therein, including the mortgagee? It is just one hundred thousand dollars—neither more nor less. Any attempt of the law to make it appear otherwise or to assess on any other basis, is simply to adopt and make use of a "legal fiction" for the purpose of taxing interests which in reality do not exist.

* This the law, or at any rate the assessor with the approval of the Supreme Court, undertakes to do, and does. This one hundred thousand dollars worth of property he contrives to approach from three different directions, and in each instance sets up the claim of a sole and original discoverer. First he discovers the plantation. Ah! says he, here is real estate worth a hundred thousand dollars which must pay taxes on its full value. Next he calls upon the man who has a mortgage on the same, and says: My dear sir, you hold a mortgage for one hundred thousand dollars; this is clearly personal property, and it is my duty to assess you accordingly, and finally he stirs up the stockholders with the information that they own a plantation worth a hundred thousand dollars, and that they must prepare to pay taxes on their respective shares therein. In other words, the law undertakes to hold, and the Supreme Court decides that it is constitutional to hold, that property may be created by a fiction of the law and may exist for purposes of taxation, without having any other existence whatever. But we must pause. The subject is a tempting one, but we cannot devote more space to it at present. Nor do we think it necessary. If the injustice and absurdity of this scheme of taxation has not been made sufficiently evident by what has been already said, we consider that further argument would be wasted.

After the above was written and mostly in type, we received from his Excellency the Attorney General, a communication on the same subject, which we print in another column, and to which we invite the attention of our readers. Of course, as was to be expected from the lawyer who conducted the case on the other side, Mr. Hartwell dissents from our view of the matter. We see nothing however in his letter to lead us to change the opinions we previously held, or to materially modify our manner of expressing them. One or two points in his Excellency's letter seem to invite comment, but we have no more time or space to devote to the matter at present.

SPEAKING of the Supreme Court reminds us of a certain decision of that tribunal, in the case of a so-called Chinese doctor against the Estate of his late Highness C. Kanaina, reported in the GAZETTE of Sept. 19th. In the course of this decision, the Court twice distinctly affirms that a physician's license is granted without fee or charge. We quote, verbatim, the two passages in which this statement is made: "But it is a fair inference "from the statute that the license is intended "to be granted only to those who have first "obtained the certificate of approval from the "Board, for it is given without payment of fee." And again a little further on occurs these words: "As in our case no fee is charged for "the certificate or license," etc., etc. Upon reading this portion of the decision in question we were forcibly reminded of the fact that when we took out our license to practice medicine in this Kingdom, we were compelled to pay the sum of eleven dollars (ten dollars, as we were informed, for the license and one dollar for the stamp). We hope some one who understands these matters will explain to us how it is that physicians are charged ten or eleven dollars for a paper which the Supreme Court expressly declares is to be given for nothing.

To the Editor of the Hawaiian Gazette:

DEAR SIR:—Allow me to call the attention of your readers to a communication in last Saturday's Advertiser signed "Justice," and particularly to the following quotation: "forbid people from kissing their "wives or children on Sunday, and set spies to see "that they don't do it—as was done in the olden time in Connecticut." The italics are my own. This effusion of the Advertiser's letter writer offers an excellent illustration of the fact that many people are much more ready to use fine words and phrases, than they are to respect the ideas those words represent. Here for instance is a fellow who signs himself "Justice," and who writes in defense of what he considers, or pretends to consider, liberal and progressive ideas. And yet this champion of liberty and enlightenment, publishes a letter which overflows throughout with the spirit of bigoty and uncharitableness, and which winds up with a wilful and barefaced lie. Perhaps among the antiquated restrictions from which we are to be emancipated in the "good time coming," is included the old-fashioned obligation to tell the truth. The same Law giver who said "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it Holy," also said, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." Moses and his law, having become, in the estimation of this liberal and progressive gentleman, quite obsolete, one command can doubtless be repudiated as well as the other. If "Justice" knows anything of the matter he is writing about, he knows that no such law as the one he pretends to quote, ever existed in Connecticut. If he don't know it, he had better not undertake to instruct the public in matters of which he is himself, so profoundly ignorant.

Yours, CONNECTICUT.

American News.

A Final Council with the Sioux Chiefs.

Washington, October 24.—The Sioux and Arrapahoe Indian delegation had their last pow-wow at the Interior Department to-day. Red Cloud said: "My people are opposed to going to the Missouri River, but if we go there all our stock will die. I know that when I go back all my young men and people will feel very badly because we have to go to the Missouri River. All the Northern Indians that have been brought into the Reservations have been brought by Spotted Tail and myself."

Spotted Tail said: "The decision the Great Father made is your decision and not ours. You [illegible] my people to go near the Missouri River [illegible]. Of my delegation here, altogether, we [illegible] that we cannot go to the Missouri River. [illegible] my people I had been ordered to go [illegible] and had sanctioned the order, they would [illegible] over the country. This delegation here [illegible] told you our opinion, and have decided [illegible] but it seems my plans are not entertained. We have picked out a good place and are [illegible] to go on it in the Spring, but we cannot leave [illegible]. We would like to be at peace and keep [illegible] with the whites, but it is impossible for us to [illegible] away this Fall. We want our agency at [illegible] Creek. Your words to me are very [illegible] but we do not want to move to the Missouri [illegible] move back again in the Spring. Where [illegible] at present we are all prepared for Winter. [illegible] never throw away their labor. Where [illegible] have property they live, and it is the [illegible] with us. We don't want to throw our labor [illegible]. If you want us to throw that property away [illegible] should pay us for it, and if you pay us for it [illegible] we can move away; otherwise, we cannot."

Secretary Schurz replied, saying: "You come here [illegible] counsel with your Great Father, and he has [illegible] you kindly. When he became your Great [illegible] he found in the book certain treaties. These [illegible] were a law to him as well as they ought to [illegible] to you. These treaties made it his duty to [illegible] provisions to you and to feed you on a place [illegible] the Missouri River. There are many things [illegible] are not as you desire, and many not as we desire; but, as wise men, we have to accommodate [illegible] to things as they are. Your supplies are [illegible] the Missouri River now. They were carried there [illegible] accordance with the law, so that we might give [illegible] food when you were hungry, and it is now too [illegible] to carry them to any other place. The Great [illegible] was pleased at what you said in connection [illegible] taking a place on White River, and he will be [illegible] pleased if you go near the supplies on the [illegible] River, so that he can help you when you [illegible]. He will not desire you to remain on the [illegible] longer than Winter. He will be glad to see [illegible] settle down on your permanent place, and will [illegible] you in every way, and give all—that is, all the [illegible] nation permits—in the way of mills, wagons [illegible] schools. All he desires you to do now is to aid [illegible] in making it possible for him to help you. This [illegible] you will need food, and inasmuch as food [illegible] be carried near the place where your people [illegible] you will have to go near the place where [illegible] food is."

After a general handshaking the Indians retired. They leave to-morrow evening for home, via New [illegible]. President Hayes was present during the latter part of the conference.

Trinkets.

Secretary Schurz visited the Indian delegation [illegible] morning, and distributed silver medals among them. He says they all appeared to be in very good [illegible] and showed no signs of being disappointed [illegible] the result of the conference.

Public Buildings.

The Commission to examine the various public buildings here as to their fire-proof qualities, will report regarding the Printing Office that it cannot be made fire-proof, but will recommend precautionary [illegible] to protect it. They visited the White House this afternoon.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

☞ The entertainment at the theatre last Saturday evening was well attended, and the receipts, as we understand, amounted to quite a satisfactory sum. Derby and Wessels brought down the house.

News from the Whalers.—The whaling bark Rainbow, Captain Cogan which arrived yesterday brings very good reports from the whaling fleet. For particulars we refer our readers to the report in our commercial column.

☞ The Supreme Court having decided that the law on the subject of illicit cohabitation has already been repealed, we trust there will be no further occasion to discuss the manner in which his Excellency the Attorney General either does or does not perform his duty under said law.

☞ The Pacific Mail Steamer City of New York was telegraphed a little after eleven o'clock yesterday morning, but owing to the unusually low tide she remained anchored outside the harbor until about three in the afternoon. She left at 6 o'clock this morning. She brought no passengers for this port.

☞ The district of Hamakua, Hawaii bids fair to be a large cane growing one; we hear of two new places being started there, one at Paauilo, by Mr. Notley, who has some 60 acres now growing, and that the large and fine tract of Kohalalele, has been leased by Mr. Widdifield, for the same purpose. The two last named tracts are peculiarly adapted for the growing of canes. We wish them all success.

☞ Messrs. Allen & Robinson's new schooner Haleakala left Honolulu on Wednesday afternoon for her first trip to Hilo and arrived at the latter place on Saturday morning, having made the distance in two days and three nights. This is excellent time, especially considering that two stops were made on the way, one at Lahaina and one at Kohala.

The King's Birthday.—The adjourned meeting at the Armory on Monday evening completed their arrangements for celebrating His Majesty's Birthday so far as relates to the proposed regatta, the programme for which will be found in our advertising columns. It was also decided that there should be a ball in the evening at the Hawaiian Hotel and the following committees were appointed for that purpose, viz: Committee of Arrangements—Hon. A. S. Cleghorn, H. Macfarlane and A. W. Bush. Committee on Invitations—J. H. Paty, F. W. Macfarlane, and H. E. Whitney.

Runaway Native Boys.—We have before us a letter from a Hawaiian named G. W. S. Keamohuli, dated Port Gamble, Sept. 26th, from which we learn that there are now at that place, five Hawaiian boys who left Honolulu by stowing themselves away on the barks Atlanta and Victor, when those vessels were at this port. Three of these boys—named Nakai, Kikau and Kanahele—left by the Atlanta, and two—named Kelikipi and Kaaoaoila—by the Victor. These adventurous youngsters being too small to earn their living at such labor as offers at Port Gamble, the writer of the letter has taken them in charge until such time as other arrangements can be made.

Fire.—The alarm of fire about 8 o'clock on Sunday evening, was caused by the burning of a small native house, near the Kaumakapili Church. Fortunately the damage in this instance was small; but every occurrence of this kind is a reminder of the risk we constantly run of a destructive conflagration. Let a fire once get well under way on the makai side of Beretania street, anywhere between Nuuanu and Maunakea streets, and it might easily sweep the whole of that side of the town, clean down to the water. The condition of that portion of Honolulu is a standing invitation to fire, and nothing but good luck or a kind Providence has spared us thus far.

A Lame and Impotent Conclusion.—Our readers, we presume, have not forgotten the excitement caused a few weeks ago by the arrest of a considerable number of persons for violation of the law against illicit cohabitation. These couples, who had been living together for various periods of time as husband and wife, without going through the proper legal formalities in such cases made and provided, were all brought up in the Police Court, and variously dealt with according to the circumstances of their individual cases. Some were fined and some concluded to become legally united as husband and wife, while others would have done so had not former matrimonial entanglements from which they were unable to obtain legal release, stood in the way. One or two couples, however, wiser perhaps in their generation, concluded to appeal to the Supreme Court, and thus we come to have the case of Rex vs. Kalaikoa, the decision of which was announced in last Saturday's Advertiser. The decision is as follows: "The Court holds that the statute defining the offense of illicit cohabitation has been repealed, and that offenses of this kind must be prosecuted as either adultery or fornication." The defendant was discharged. No doubt the defendant is happy. Whether the law officers of the Crown who prosecuted, and the magistrate who convicted him, under a statute which it now appears did not exist, are equally well satisfied, may well be doubted.

Captain Hobron's New Steamer.—Most of our readers are no doubt aware that Messrs. Tibbets and Sorenson of Honolulu, are engaged at the present time on the construction of a new steamer for Capt. Thos. H. Hobron. Having made a visit to the premises of Messrs. T. & S. a few days since, for the purpose of inspecting the progress of the work, we are able to furnish the public some particulars and details which will be found interesting. It may not perhaps be generally known, that this is the largest piece of ship-building yet attempted in this country, and the well known character of the builders affords all needed assurance that they will turn out a piece of marine architecture which will not suffer by comparison with any vessel of similar size and class, wherever constructed. We understand that by the last steamer from San Francisco, Messrs. T. & S. received a considerable addition to their force, and the work is now being pushed rapidly forward. It is expected that the vessel will be ready for launching in January. The following will be the dimensions of the hull, when complete. Length of keel 112 feet, length over all 125 feet, breadth of beam 24 feet 6 inches, depth of hold 10 feet. The registered tonnage will be about 250 tons and her carrying capacity, equal to 300 tons of sugar. The frame is of koa and northwest and she will be completely copper fastened, below the water line. The propelling power will be furnished by a compound engine of 120 horse power, built by the Risdon Iron Works of San Francisco. In fact we understand from Captain Hobron that the engine is already completed. The boiler will be 8 feet long by 8 feet 9 inches in diameter and will be furnished with 176, two and a half inch return tubes. The propeller will be of brass and furnished with four blades, which Captain Hobron assures us will be warranted not to drop off. The speed under steam, to fair average weather, is estimated at 8 knots. It is not intended however that the vessel shall be entirely dependent on steam. She will be furnished with two masts, schooner-rigged, and will be able to use her sails, either as an auxiliary to her engine, or in case of accident to the latter, as an independent means of progression. In addition to her freighting capacity, a small but well fitted cabin will furnish comfortable accomodations for a limited number of passengers.

Various Reports.—The action of the Russian armies in Asia is explained by an official dispatch from St. Petersburg, announcing that an insurrection had started in the central districts of Daghestan about the 12th of September, and had gradually spread until all central and southern Daghestan, including the coast districts, were involved. On the 22nd and 24th the Russians were attacked by the main body of the insurgents, 6000 strong, and defeated and dispersed them. It is now believed the insurrection will not give any further trouble.

The Russians have ordered contractors to construct 186 miles of railroad in Bulgaria, and to build huts for 150,000 men, and hospitals for 15,000.

The Austrian and German Ambassadors, in the name of the Russian Government, have applied to the Porte, in virtue of the Geneva Convention, for a permit to transport timber across the Danube for huts for the Russian wounded. The Porte has deferred a reply until it is made certain that the huts are only to be used for the wounded.

To the Editor of the Hawaiian Gazette:

Sir:—After reading the article on the Sunday law in the last number of the Advertiser I was somewhat puzzled to know just where the writer stood; but reflection leads me to the conclusion that the writer is in the main on sound ground. The seeming want of fixedness of purpose was doubtless caused by a too tender regard for the Sabbath desecrators in our community; their substantial bank accounts or position in affairs of state were not without their influence. From what has been written and said on the question of Sunday laws one would suppose that our law was a very peculiar one, when the fact is that our law is not more rigid than those of Great Britain, and the United States of America, not under the influence of early French or Spanish laws.

Chapter 35 of the compiled Penal Code contains all our enactments on the subject;

Section 1. Prescribes the penalty for anyone who "wilfully interrupts or disturbs any assembly for religious worship."

Section 2. Prohibits "all worldly business, amusements and recreations," and "any manner of labor, business or work, except only works of necessity and charity," and taking part at "any dancing, public amusement, show or entertainment," or "game, sport of play."

Section 3. Prohibits the entertainment of any persons except travellers, strangers or lodgers, at any hotel, inn, victualling house, bowling alley, billiard saloon or liquor shop.

The earliest English statutes of importance on this subject were enacted in the reign of Edward V., which required that this day be "kept holy." The statutes of Elizabeth and James go no further except in providing penalties "for absence from Church."

The Mosaic law contained in the Fourth Commandment seems to furnish the basis for the legislation of the reign of Charles II., prohibiting Sunday labor. The Act of 29, Charles II., on which the present Sunday laws in England and the United States are based, provides that no tradesman, artificer, workman, laborer or other person whatever shall do or exercise any worldly labor or business, or work of their ordinary callings on Sunday. The legislation of most of the United States follows the English law, and evidently intends to compel a general suspension of business or labor on that day.

In New York the Court held that the law was not unconstitutional as "a deprivation of the citizen of his property," which prohibits the opening of theaters on Sunday. And in California the prohibition of all persons from opening places of business on Sunday is held to be Constitutional.

Work of necessity and charity is everywhere excepted by the law, and this is defined by the Massachusetts Supreme Court as not requiring physical or absolute necessity," but any labor, business or work which is morally fit and proper to be done on that day, under the circumstances of the particular case."

There is no doubt what view the Courts in England and nearly all the United States would take of the legality of any contract made on Sunday, or of entering upon any business or recreation for purposes of pecuniary profits.

Travelling on Sunday, although forbidden in Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut and New York is not forbidden here.

The writer so far on this question appear to regard it as an infraction of personal liberty that Mr. Black's public newspaper advertisement for passengers from Honolulu to Ewa on his steam tug, leaving Honolulu on Sundays was not allowed to be fully acted on. Unless the writer in the Advertiser leaves the native Hawaiian out of all consideration, it can be safely asserted that four-fifths of the legal voters of this Kingdom will sustain our Sunday law.

To the Editor of the Hawaiian Gazette:

It seems to me that much of the recent comment on the decision of the Supreme Court concerning taxation of mortgaged property and shares in corporations is unjust, and unwise, and while I do not volunteer an opinion as to the Constitutionality of the law, I desire to show that there are two sides to the question.

No attempt was made by the counsel for the taxpayers, to deny that the statute in plain terms requires this taxation, and does not permit either the corporation or the shareholders to be exempt, or deduction to be made for mortgages on the assessed value of land. There was no question that the Court would declare the law unconstitutional, provided they could find anything in the Constitution to authorise them to do so.

I suspect, also, that the authorities of Courts elsewhere are in favor, generally, of the Constitutionality of such taxation: In Lick vs. Austin, 43. Cal. 590 (1872) the Court held, that the mortgagor is not injured by taxation on his land without abatement for a mortgage debt, on the ground of double taxation.

There were but two points to consider, viz: were these taxes double taxation, and were they a kind of taxation prohibited by the Constitution? Admitting, although it is not clearly so expressed, that the Constitution prohibits double taxation, in the sense of taxing the same person twice for the same property; much is to be said for the view that these taxes are not of that description. It is immaterial, in this view, that property in different forms may receive taxation while in the ownership of different persons who derive distinct benefit from its use. The shareholder who is taxed for his share is not the corporation which is taxed for its corporate property. Shares are property in fact and by statute, and are not corporate property. As well say that all the Bank of England notes should be exempt from taxation in the hands of their "unfortunate" owner, because the bank may be taxed for its corporate property, or for the basis of the notes, or that in case all the notes are destroyed, there would be no loss of intrinsic values. This would ignore fundamental rules of what constitutes wealth, values, or property. Moreover, if corporation or shareholder is to be freed from taxes, which should be exempt? or should the Court "sweep the statute away," and save the country the trouble of paying taxes?

Again, if one owns mortgaged land, he is not taxed twice because the money lender is also taxed. The hardship really is in his paying the same tax for incumbered real estate that he would have had to pay for it if unincumbered. Would he, however, if his land were mortgaged to its full borrowing capacity, admit that he is no better off than if he owned no land, and so claim exemption from all taxation? Not at all, for if so, he would not hold the land merely to gratify that disguised "Pasha" the Tax Collector. He finds that land will produce enough to enable him to raise money by mortgaging it, which he can use in paying for the land, in other business or for his own enjoyment; while the lender is satisfied with the investment. Wealth is actually created, new values arise and fresh avenues or sources of production are opened whenever fresh credits are given.

A proper and just system of taxation is a subject requiring deep study; but is it for the interest of property owners to call this tax law, as reviewed thus far by the Court, "an outrage upon the people, contra bonos mores and opposed to the spirit of the Constitution?" Or to style as "legal quibbles" and "forensic eloquence of the judges of the Supreme Court," the view which declines to set aside the law?

Whatever may be said against legislators or executive officers, I think it is for the common interest to foster a due respect for the decision of the highest tribunal which is the arbitrator of our rights and wrongs. We have none too many land-marks of law, to afford to cast adrift from, or do anything to unsettle or disturb public respect for those we have.

It seems to me that a more searching and a fairer criticism is yet required to make "every intelligent person" feel that those who voted for this law voted for "an outrage on the people," which the Court was plainly bound to annul.

Whether the law be constitutional or not, I regard it as defective, and in some respects impolitic, for the value of corporate property should, I think, be deducted from the value of all the shares prior to taxation of the shares, and I think that by placing a tax on property irrespective of mortgages, there is less encouragement for enterprise and production. But it is impossible for the Court to amend the law. Counsel may feel, as I have done, keen disappointment in losing a case on grounds of which they do not admit the force, and I know no reason why judgment of Courts should not be reviewed and criticised; but let us admit the existence of arguments and facts on both sides.

ALFRED S. HARTWELL.

A Voice from Over the Sea.

Windsor Chambers, Great Saint Helens,
London, 13th Sept., 1877.

To the Editor of the Hawaiian Gazette:

Dear Sir:—In perusing yours of the 8th ult., I was much pleased with your editorial, and glad to see the dazzling sunshine has not caused the press to become bat blind. It is true you are going up in a balloon, but in danger of a rocket stick piercing its tender sides when it would descend much faster than it went up. You say in your article "although this new tariff law has not yet gone into effect it is already evident that it will cause trouble not only with the United States to whom it may well appear almost in the light of an intended insult, but with other foreign nations, whom it should always be our policy to conciliate." I have confidence in our present ministry and trust they may not be prevented from doing the islands justice by opposition from the planting interest. The planters are the great recipients of the benefit of Reciprocity and should make good any loss of revenue in consequence. By the Reciprocity Treaty, island productions got the best of the United States five to one.

After giving Hawaii such an advantage for the admission into the Kingdom duty free without any increase of the tariff on other goods by the United States, Hawaii undertakes to make up her loss of revenue by taxing other American manufactures 150 per cent. advance on the old tax, and after the treaty is signed. I have heard more than one government clog merchant call it a fraud on the United States, and I must say it is the best title you can give it although it is an ugly name. It is no use calling black white.

Again is it fair to other friendly powers that have nursed them to put an excessive tariff on some of their manufactures thereby destroying their business at the islands. Will the islands prosper by doing wrong? Can they afford to do wrong? You have suggested the remedy which as an old merchant dating back to 1833 I fully endorse. During the above 44 years you know of me as a merchant for upwards of 28 years and my experience no doubt will have influence on the minds of some of your readers.

I fully endorse your suggestion as the simplest way of rectifying the mistake that has been made and that the Legislative Assembly be convened immediately that the law may be repealed, and wiped from off your Statute Book.

This is a straightforward way out of the woods without any pitfalls in their path way.

I remain, Your Obedient Servant,
JOHN THOS. WATERHOUSE.

War News.

Our latest intelligence from the seat of war is in the main favorable to the Russians who appear to have gained some important advantages in Asia, as will be seen from the following dispatches:

London, Oct 14.—Fighting has been resumed in Armenia. The Turks, while concentrating at Aladzadagh, were hotly attacked by the Russians. After five hours battle darkness stopped the fighting.

London, Oct. 15th.—A Russian official dispatch states that Moukhtar Pasha attacked the Russian positions at Kabzine, and was repulsed after severe fighting.

London October 16.—A Russian official dispatch says that General Gourko (?) had a complete victory over Mouktar Pasha at Aladzadagh. He took many prisoners and guns.

London, October 17.—Mouktar Pasha, for the most part, confirms the report, stating that he lost 800 men, and that one and a half regiments surrendered. The Russian cavalry and four battalions of infantry were completely destroyed.

By virtue of a decree issuing out of the Supreme Court of Law and Equity of the Hawaiian Islands, in favor of the above named plaintiff, for the sum of $622,28, I shall

On Saturday, the 1st day of December, 1877

At 12 o'clock noon,

On the premises, expose for sale all the right, title and interest of the said defendants, in and to all and singular the mortgaged premises set forth and described in the mortgage of complainant in this cause set forth and described as follows, viz:

The Premises in Kapalama,

Opposite the Reform School.

Being the same as are described in Royal Patent No. 100, and bounded as follows;

Beginning at the west corner, from which point Punchbowl survey station bears N 71° ¾ E (mag) and N gate post at Reform School N 82° W (mag), thence the boundary runs—N 43° E, 214.5 feet along Kuauna;
N 43° W, 264 feet along Kuauna;
N 41° W, 317 feet to bank of small auwai;
S 41° W, 116.2 feet along small auwai;
S 36° E, 168.9 feet along Kuauna;
S 49° W, 74.5 feet along Kuauna;
S 41° E, 414.5 feet to point of beginning, and containing an area of 2 40-100 acres.

Together with all the rights, privileges and appurtenances thereto belonging or thereon situated, unless said judgment, interest, costs and commissions be previously satisfied.

The above offers a fine opportunity to any one wishing Kalo Land; the same, with the exception of the house lot having an undisputed water right.

The terms of the sale are Cash, and the deed at the expense of purchaser.

W. C. PARKE, Marshal.

P. S.—Survey and deeds can be seen at the Marshal's Office.

FLORIDA WATER.
Murray & Lanman's Florida Water!

THIS CELEBRATED FLORAL PERFUME has been a favorite with the fashionable world in all parts of the Globe for nearly half a century, surpassing in delicacy and durability of its odor, the finest Eau De Cologne or other Perfumes that have been hitherto imported into these Islands. MURRAY & LANMAN'S Florida Water is unsurpassed as an EXTRACT for the Handkerchief, and is also superior to any perfume ever used for Bathing, Cleaning the Teeth and Sweetening the Breath. It also allays the irritation caused by ordinary eruptions, and removes Tan, Freckles, Pimples or Blotches from the face, back and arms, it relieves nervous headache and imparts a glow of freshness and vigor, however used and is a most gentle and stimulating odor.

PUBLISHED AND EDITED BY
HENRY M. WHITNEY.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1877.

Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands, October Term, 1877, in Banco.

REX vs. PATRICK THORNTON.

Judd and McCully, J. J. Opinion by Judd, J.

The prisoner with three others was indicted for conspiracy to charge a felony with intent to extort money. The evidence showed that the crime of extortion, the object of the conspiracy, had been accomplished. The prisoner's counsel asked the Court to instruct the jury to acquit the prisoner on the ground that the conspiracy had become merged in the subsequent felony.

By our statute a conspiracy to charge a felony is a felony. The crimes, then, are of equal degree. There is, therefore, no merger, and each is punishable separately. See Greenleaf's evidence, § 90. "Where two crimes are of equal grade there can be no legal technical merger." People vs. Mather, 4 Wend. 265; State vs. Murray, 15 Me. 100. In the last case cited the Court say, "In cases of conspiracy overt acts are laid merely as evidence of the principal charges."

It is not laid in this indictment that the charging of a felony was actually committed, but it was proved before the jury, in order to show that the threat to charge a certain felony, was the means employed for the extortion, and that was the motive for which the conspiracy was formed. By our statute it is clear that it is not necessary to charge that the object of the conspiracy had been accomplished. Section 3 reads "It is not requisite that the act agreed upon should be done or attempted in pursuance of the conspiracy; the conspiracy itself constitutes the offense."

The rights of persons accused of conspiracy are fully protected in Section 7 of the Chapter on conspiracy, which provides that, "Where one is convicted of an offense, he is not liable thereafter to be tried for or convicted of a conspiracy to commit the same; and if a conspiracy to commit an offense and the commission of the same be charged in the same indictment, the defendant is liable to be sentenced for one only." This section would rebut the idea that there could be a merger even if the conspiracy and the offense which it referred to were of different grades. The Court was right in refusing to charge as requested.

The second point made is that the jury should have been charged that unless they were satisfied that the prisoner knew that the crime which the conspirators agreed to charge upon the person from whom the money was extorted, was identical with that charged in the indictment, they must acquit him.

The Court was right in refusing this instruction, for if this prisoner did not know the exact crime which was agreed to be charged, he was not claimed to be innocent of acceding to it, and of receiving his share of the money which was extorted, and this would make him guilty of conspiracy. It must be admitted that if the jury had found on the evidence that the crime to be charged was smuggling opium—a misdemeanor—they would properly have found the prisoner guilty of conspiracy in the second degree. This instruction was not asked for by the counsel for the prisoner, and was therefore not given or refused, and therefore no exception on this point can now be considered. See Dowsett vs. Lipoa, 3 Haw. 625.

Clearly the jury were not authorized to acquit the prisoner on the evidence, and this was the only instruction asked for.

Messrs. E. Preston and T. C. MacDowell for the prosecution; Messrs. S. B. Dole and R. F. Bickerton assigned counsel for the prisoner.

Honolulu, Nov. 1, 1877.

A Utah Divorce Mill.

HOW THEY DO THINGS IN SALT LAKE CITY.

We always knew that Utah was a good place for marrying, but it appears from recent investigations that the business of untying the matrimonial knot is equally flourishing. To those alike who feel that they are not married as much as they would like to be, and those who think they are married too much, Utah affords facilities which it would be hard to beat. Parties desiring divorces are not even required to be residents of the territory. It is only necessary that they should declare their intention of becoming such. When it is not convenient to appear in person, affidavits and other papers can be forwarded by mail, and the obliging judge returns the decree by the same channel. For further particulars we refer our readers to the following:

Salt Lake, Sept. 27.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon the committee appointed to inspect the records of the Probate Court of Salt Lake City, finished their labor and made their report to the Grand Jury. The business of the Grand Jury having been finished, that body appeared in Court at 4 o'clock, and were discharged from further attendance. The utter rottenness of the Probate Court of Salt Lake county has been established and shown up by the investigations of the committee, and the reason of the Probate Judge for resisting the order of the District Judge for an inspection of his records by the committee of the Grand Jury is apparent.

THE REPORT.

The following is the substance of the report of the committee, addressed to M. K. Harkness, Foreman, and the Grand Jury:

Your committee have confined themselves more particularly in their investigation to the branch of divorce business, as carried on in that Court, and we would here say, that it is beyond the limit and power of this committee to give in detail every case of divorce as it appears on the records of the Court; but we believe that the showing of such cases as we present are a fair representation of the practice of granting divorces in this Court, and we think it will fully convinced this jury that the system of granting divorces in said Court is such an outrage on law and justice that measures should be taken to stop such proceedings.

HOW THE WORK IS DONE.

As an example of the practice in said Court, we would state that from the beginning of September, 1876, to September, 1877, there have been upwards of three hundred divorces granted, and at least eighty per cent. of that number were applied for when both parties to the suit were non-residents of the territory and beyond the jurisdiction of the Court. Under this practice it is quite evident that great injustice must be done, and a mockery made of judicial proceedings which are supposed to be the most sacred trust of any Court.

We find that it is the general rule of practice in this Court, where the parties are non-residents and where the complaining party prays for relief from his or her matrimonial obligations, to employ some not over-sensitive or over-scrupulous attorney, whose name is very seldom attached to the complaint, to forward the same to the Probate Court, where the complaint is filed. Accompanying this document is an affidavit from the party complaining, to the effect that the grievances alleged in the complaint are all made in good faith; that he or she, as the case may be, intends to become a resident of Utah, but at present it is out of the power of the applicant; and that the last known place of residence of the defendant is so and so (naming the place). Upon the showing of these valuable single-handed documents, made by the plaintiff, His Honor Judge Elias Smith issues a summons to be addressed and mailed to the last known place of residence as sworn to by the plaintiff, and citing the defendant to appear before his Court in from twelve to sixteen days and show cause why such relief should not be granted as prayed for in the complaint.

Then on the last day given for the appearance of the defendant, His Honor Judge Elias Smith grants the decree as prayed for. Such in brief is the practice of this bogus divorce mill, when the parties are non-residents, and when the complaining party prays for a decree of divorce upon the grounds of incompatibility of temper or different aims and objects in life, etc.

A STILL EASIER PROCESS.

But we find a still more direct mode of shuffling off matrimonial obligations, thus: Husband and wife, both non-residents of the Territory, and either of them making complaint and swearing that the defendant has abandoned his or her home, and filing such sworn statement without any other corroborating evidence, can get the decree granted the same day that the petition is filed. As this may seem too incredible for belief, we will here cite several cases as examples of many:

A FEW STARTLING SPECIMEN CASES.

Rose Barry vs. Dennis Barry—Complaint filed January 3, 1877, and sworn to in San Francisco. Decree granted the same day.

Dominick Morogh vs. Josephine Morogh—Complaint sworn to in New York City, and filed January 3, 1877. Decree granted the same day.

Beatley Stevens vs. Adeline Stevens—Complaint sworn to in Chicago, and filed February 20, 1877. Decree granted the same day.

Robert E. Nesbit vs. Frances Nesbit—Complaint sworn to in Terre Haute, Indiana, and filed February 20, 1877. Decree granted the same day.

Alice Atwood vs Nathaniel Atwood—Complaint sworn to in St. Louis, and filed April 16th. Plaintiff swears that the defendant's last known place of residence was at sea. Decree granted two days after filing the application.

John B. Vail vs. B. D. Vail.—Complaint sworn to in New York, and filed April 5, 1877. Last known place of residence of defendant was in France. Decree granted April 9, 1877.

To further instance the fraudulent and nefarious practice of this divorce business, we would cite the following cases:

Helen Leonard applies for a divorce from Peter Leonard of Ilderington, Canada; files her complaint in this Court, swearing to it in Allen county, Indiana; asks that as personal service cannot be made upon defendant within the jurisdiction of this Court, that the Court direct that service be taken as aforesaid, according to Section 5 of the Utah statutes in reference to divorce. The decree was granted two days after filing the petition.

QUICK WORK.

The Committee then go on to state the time in which one hundred consecutive cases were each disposed of. In 16 of these the divorce was granted on the same day the complaint was filed. In the other 84 cases the impatient plaintiffs had to wait from two to forty days before they could obtain release from matrimonial bonds. The Committee further report that this nefarious business is on the increase, and that other Probate Courts besides that of Salt Lake County are engaged in it; that in a large number of cases the complaint and all the papers in said cases are in the handwriting of Elias Smith, presiding Judge of the Court wherein the cases are pending, showing the questionable proceedings of a Judge practising in his own Court.

The report concludes thus: The developments made by your Committee in their investigations fully vindicate his honor, Chief Justice Schaeffer, for his order enforcing the law relative to the inspection of public records, and furnish an explanation of the resistance of Judge Elias Smith and his clerk, D. Brookbalt.

Hints on the Care of the Eyes.

There are, perhaps, more individuals who ascribe their weakness of sight to a use of their eyes under an insufficient artificial illumination than to any one other cause. In a great many instances this may not be strictly true, but there can be no doubt that faulty artificial light is one of the most productive causes of a certain class of injuries, to which the eye can be exposed. The two sources of trouble with the ordinary artificial lights are—first, they are not pure white, and secondly, they are unsteady. The first defect is found in all artificial lights except the lime, electric and magnesium lights; the second especially in candles and gas. The yellowness is, in a measure, counteracted by using, in the case of lamps and gas, chimneys of a violet or blue tint, and the flickering of the gas may be obviated largely by employing an Argand burner. All things considered, a German student-lamp furnishes the most satisfactory light. The next best is gas with an Argand burner. The chimneys of both may, as above suggested, be advantageously of a light-blue tint.

The position of the light in relation to the body is of great importance. If a shade is used on the lamp or burner (it should, by preference, be of ground or "milk" glass, never of colored glass), the light may stand directly in front of the body and the work be allowed to lie in the light under the shade, which will protect the eyes from the glare of the flame. If no shade is used the back should be turned to the source of light, which ought to fall over the left shoulder. The same rule applies in the management of daylight. In this case the light should come from behind and slightly above, and fall directly on the work, whence it is reflected to the eye. It should never fall directly in the face.

The light in the room during sleep is also not without its influence. As a rule the room during sleeping hours should be dark; and, in particular, care should be taken to avoid sleeping opposite a window where, on opening the eyes in the morning, a flood of strong light will fall on them. Even the strongest eyes are, after the repose of the night, more or less sensitive to the impression of intense light. The eyes must have time to accustom themselves to the stimulus.

Attention should be called to the injurious effects that follow reading on railroad cars. On account of the unsteadiness of the page, reading, under these circumstances, is exceedingly trying to the eyes, and should never be persisted in for any considerable length of time. During convalescence from severe illness the eyes are generally the last to regain their lost power.—Scribner's Magazine.

Selections from the Talmud.

Messrs. Frederick Warne & Co., of London, have recently published, as a part of their cheap series of the "Chandos Classics," selections from the "Talmud," translated by H. Polano, a book that is full of curious and valuable information. Among the contents is a collection of the "Proverbs and Sayings of the Rabbis, from which the following have been selected:

Truth is heavy, therefore few care to carry it.
Say little and do much.
He who multiplieth words will likely come to sin.
Sacrifice thy will for others, that they may be disposed to sacrifice their wills for thee.
Study to-day, delay not.
Look not upon thy prayers as on a task; let thy supplications be sincere.
He who is loved by man is loved by God.
Do not live near a pious fool.
A small coin in a large jar makes a great noise.
Use thy noble vase to-day; to-morrow it may break.
The cat and the rat make peace over a carcass.
He who walks each day over his estate finds a coin daily.
The dog follows thee for the crumbs in thy pocket.
The soldiers fight, and the kings are heroes.
When the ox is down, many are the butchers.
Descend a step in choosing thy wife; ascend a step in choosing thy friend.

Francis Joseph, of Austria.

A French writer thus describes Francis Joseph, of Austria: "The Emperor betrays that kind of chronic melancholy which marks saddened and declining reigns. He is tall, and delicate in health; his gait is elegant and hesitating; he wears habitually the loose undress uniform of a cavalry officer. His foot is small, but he has a large hand; the thumbs are narrow and the nails round. His gesture indicates certain embarrassment, not altogether devoid of dignity; his head is upright, long and well set; his whiskers are fair and straight, and all the court wears theirs in the same style; his hair is bright auburn—he is bald on the back of his head. His eyes are a grayish blue and diamond shape; sometimes they sparkle with impatience, but soon settle again into that look of dull resignation which seems to be a characteristic of sovereigns who last long. He has a short upturned nose, joined to a strong firm and projecting mouth; the short lips covered by a heavy mustache, the small and receding chin constitute the family mark and peculiarity of the House of Lorraine, and of the Imperial Princes of Hapsburg and Bohemia."

Satisfactory—Very.

He was a singularly grave man, even for a sexton. For nearly half a century he had been a public functionary—had performed the conspicuous duties of a sexton; yet no one had ever seen him smile. Occasionally he joked, but he did it in such a funeral manner that no one could accuse him of levity. One day he was standing on the church steps wiping his melancholy features with a red bandanna. A hearse stood near and three or four carriages were drawn up behind it. The notes of the organ floated out of the windows with solemn effect. A stranger came along and said: "Funeral?" And the old sexton gravely bowed his head—it was. "Who's dead?" The old man again wiped his brow and gave the name of the deceased. "What complaint?" asked the inquisitive stranger. Solemnly placing his bandanna in his hat and covering his bald head, the old sexton made answer: "There is no complaint; everybody is perfectly satisfied."
