Heavy Fighting on Shan-si Frontier.
LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon publishes a dispatch from Ichow, dated October 26, which says heavy fighting has occurred on the mountains on the Shan-si frontier. An Anglo-German force of 1,500 men, commanded by Colonel Von Norman, stormed the Taching Kung pass. The Chinese occupied a strong position on the crest and stubbornly resisted. They poured a hot enflaming fire on the advance party of eighty Germans under Major Von Forrester, but the British general cavalry and mounted sappers, dismounting, scaled the heights, turned the enemy's flanks and relieved the Germans.

Drowned Emperor's Favorite Wife.
BERLIN, Nov. 2.—A special to the Hamburg Correspondenz says: "In a well situated in the imperial palace precincts in Peking was found the body of Emperor Kwang Hsu's favorite wife, Sien Ti, whom the Empress Dowager caused to be drowned before the flight of the court from the capital. The second favorite, Ping Pi, and 100 ladies belonging to the imperial harem prisoners in the hands of the allies."

More Chinese Commissioners.
LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Times says that imperial edict appoints Liu Kun Yi, Viceroy of Nankin, and Chi Ki Tung, Viceroy of Hukow, to be additional peace commissioners on behalf of China.

What Don Carlos Says.
VENICE, Nov. 3.—Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, in the course of an interview had with him, declared that the present rising in Spain is contrary to his orders, and will retard, instead of promoting, his efforts to secure his rights.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—A correspondent of Le Petit Parisien, telegraphing from a point in the French Pyrenees, says that if troops are not sent immediately to Puigorda and Seo de Urgel these towns of great strategic importance will fall into the hands of the Carlists, who will then be masters of the upper valley of the Segre, and will be able obtain arms from France and Andorra. The Carlists in upper Catalonia are armed with Mausers and are well equipped with tents and campaigning material.

London Wants McKinley.
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—London business circles are keenly interested in the American contest, says the Tribune's correspondent. Business in the street and on the Stock Exchange is virtually suspended until the decision of the American electorate can be known on the questions affecting the industrial interests of the world.

America Beats Europe.
NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—In competition with European manufacturers, says a London dispatch to the Herald, an American steel company has obtained an order for $5,000,000 worth of rolling stock for South African railroads. Weyhner, Biet & Co., one of the great South African mining corporations, asked for a bid on coal wagons to be delivered to the mines at the earliest possible date. The Pressed Steel Car Company of Pittsburgh is the successful bidder. The American company not only made a bid a third lower than any other, but beat the best European bidder in time by eight months.

Our Naval Increase.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—As finally adopted, the United States naval increase program for 1901, involves the construction of thirty-two vessels of 151,600 tons displacement, or more than double that laid down in any preceding year. The list which Congress is to be asked to authorize is: Three 15,000 ton battleships, two 15,000 ton armored cruisers, six 2,000 ton gunboats, six 8,800 ton gunboats, ten 200 ton gunboats, three 15,000 ton colliers, one 7,000 ton repair ship and one 7,000 ton marine transport.

Salvation Army Headquarters.
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Commander Booth-Tucker and several other officers of the Salvation Army have purchased homes in Mount Vernon, in which city, it is said, the American headquarters of the Army will be located.

Island Disappeared.
CARACAS (Venezuela), Oct. 31.—Further details regarding the earthquake on Monday last show that San Casario Cua and Charallano were entirely destroyed. An islet, situated at the mouth of the Nexeri river, has disappeared. At Tacarigua, Brochico and Curiepe the damage done was considerable. There are many dead and injured.

HIGH TIDE AT HILO.

Hilo has had another storm and another high tide. On Saturday last the heaviest swell for months past began to roll in and it looked bad for the shipping as well as for the shacks along the beach. The Hilo Mercantile Co. had a yard full of lumber, some of it piled close to the bulkhead which the company built in front of the property.

Saturday night the tide was high but there were no ill effects. Sunday morning there was no let up and watchmen patrolled the beach to notify the company when there was cause for alarm. Up to 11 o'clock at night everything seemed safe, but after that hour the tide rose higher and the situation was critical. The vessels in the harbor rocked quite as much as if they were at sea and additional anchors were thrown out in order to keep the three big sailing vessels from going out to the reef.

Gradually the water was forced under the lumber company's bulkhead and word was sent to the Sheriff to send down help to move the lumber. Besides the Mercantile Co's full force of men nearly all of the prisoners were on hand moving the heavy timbers and boards back into the yard. The sea continued to work until the bulkhead was nearly all washed away, the men working at times when they were waist deep in water. Not a stick of lumber was lost, however. On Monday the work continued, for the force of the water had not abated in the least.

The ship Falls of Clyde was at her moorings with the largest cargo ever brought to Hilo but the hatches could not be broken for it was impossible for the men to stand on deck owing to the continued rocking of ship. The Santiago was ready for sea and anchored, but there was danger of her breaking from her moorings. Captain Ingalls immediately had double anchors rigged to chains so the vessel could have a double hold but the force of the swell was so great that she dragged both anchors attached to ninety-five fathoms of chain. The Falls of Clyde snapped a new eight-inch lawser early Monday morning and later in the day broke her chain moorings. The Martha Davis was moored close to the reef and managed to hold that position though experiencing as much difficulty as the others. None of the captains left their vessels during the storm; their presence was needed at all times. Late Monday afternoon it was thought best by Captain Matson to move the Falls of Clyde to safer anchorage and she was towed to a point opposite Wai-anuene street.

Nearly all of Monday night the tide continued to do damage and early Tuesday morning the underpinning to the building containing the donkey engine used in hauling the rafts from vessels to the Mercantile Company's yards was undermined and one side of the structure gave away. At Reed's bay an old and little used wharf of the Rover company was washed away but the amount of damage was practically all as it was the intention of the company to pull it down later and erect another. Discharging or loading vessels was at a stand still for three days during which the storm lasted and the merchants who had goods on the Falls were kept waiting. Natives engaged on the wharves as stevedores were idle during the time, an idleness which would not have been theirs had there been a breakwater built where it is needed.

In the States the storm and this idleness might have been successfully used as an argument to down a candidate for Congress who was known to be without influence and without friends at court.—Hilo Herald.

Nearest North Pole.

The Duke of Abruzzi, the Italian Arctic explorer, reached Tromsø, Norway, last week in his ship, the Stella Polare, returning from his long polar cruise. The party reached latitude 86 degrees 33 minutes, which is the farthest north ever recorded. Nansen left the Fram in latitude 84 but went on foot to latitude 84.14, or about 4 degrees farther north than any prior explorer had reached. The Duke of Abruzzi has thus exceeded Nansen by 29 minutes of a degree.

Beveridge Says Hold Cuba.

Senator Beveridge of Indiana in a speech at Chicago took an unusually bold stand on the Cuban question. He said: "I speak for myself alone, but speaking thus, I say that it will be an evil day for Cuba when the Stars and Stripes come down from Morro Castle. I speak for myself alone, but I believe that in this my voice is the voice of the American millions, as it is the voice of the ultimate future, when I say that Porto Rico is ours, and ours forever, the Philippines are ours forever, and Cuba ought to have been ours, and by the free choice of her people some day will be ours, and ours forever. We have a foreign nation on our north; another on our south-west; and now to permit another foreign nation within cannon shot of our southeast coast will indeed create conditions which will require that militarism which the opposition to the government pretend to fear. Think of Cuba in alliance with England or Germany or France! Think of Cuba a naval station and ally of one of the great foreign powers, every one of whom is a rival of America! And my answer to Mr. Bryan's comparison is that if we have made a mistake in Cuba we ought not to make the same mistake in the Philippines. And I predict that within 25 years we shall again be forced to assume the government of Cuba, but only after our commerce has again been paralyzed by revolution, after internal dissension has again spilled rivers of Cuban blood, after the yellow fever has again and again crossed over to our southern coast from its hotbed in Havana harbor, and after we have assumed hundreds of millions of dollars of Cuban debt to prevent this island from falling into the hands of a foreign power."

Clever Chinese Mechanics.

Anyone who has lived in China or Japan will tell you that the mechanics of those countries can reproduce almost anything you set before them, no matter how complicated. Bicycles, clocks and similar pieces of complicated machinery are not at all beyond them. A case in point is told by Oberlin M. Smith in the American Machinist.

Some time ago Mr. Smith sent Henry A. Janvier to China to assist in the erection of coining plants for brass and silver currency. One of the tools which Mr. Janvier took with him was a micrometer caliper, made by a well known firm in the United States, and capable of detecting differences of a thousandth of an inch in the thickness of a piece of metal. The superintendent of one of the shops which Mr. Janvier established was named Wai, and he proved a very intelligent fellow. During an interval of about six weeks he borrowed the caliper almost daily, and was rather tardy in returning it. Finally he exhibited to the American a reproduction of the instrument which was perfect except in one respect. Certain tables of figures stamped into the steel by the Yankee maker of the original were omitted from the copy, and in their place were several Chinese characters. The imitation had been made with the rudest of tools, but was a marvel of accuracy. Mr. Wai proposed an exchange to Mr. Janvier, and the latter agreed to the proposition.

Where Shall the Negro Go?

The New York Press, speaking of colored Congressman White's purpose to emigrate from North Carolina with 50,000 of his people, says: "He would be welcomed elsewhere, we know." Will the Press kindly indicate where? Certainly not in New York, where it requires a platoon of 89 policemen to guard 22 colored men walking home. Not in New Jersey, where "manhunts" have been the order of the day during the past week. Not in Chicago, which has had the rope out twice for molesting colored men within the month. Not in Panama or Virden, where colored men were shot dead by platoons for asking for work. Not in Ohio, where Washington, Urbana and Akron displayed the hangman's noose. Not in Boston, where there is no work for a negro to do. Where, then, must the negro go to find this proffered welcome?—Atlanta Constitution.

Contractor Bridges is making rapid progress on the "settlement" building, and will have it ready for the painters.

Mr. Berlowitz, representing Castle & Cook, Peacock & Co., and other business firm in Honolulu, is on Maui this week.

The Wailuku Union School concert has been postponed for one week on account of the storm. Don't forget the date, November 24.

Supt. W. E. Bal, of the Wailuku Water Works, has been confined to his bed for several days past with pneumonia, but is recovering.

Mr. Pat McLane, recent manager of Kamalo plantation, Molokai, has accepted the position of manager of Koloa Plantation on Kauai.

District Court business has been unusually light in Wailuku this week, only two drunks and an opium case, in each of which cases pleas of guilty were entered.

Mr. Brown, manager of the Bismark Stables, left for Missouri last Saturday on account of the death of his father. Mr. Jack Nell will take his place temporarily.

The surface connections at the big Kihai pump are about completed. It is believed that by next Monday morning the big spouter will be ready for a preliminary test.

Mr. J. J. Parmelee, consulting engineer of the famous Baldwin Locomotive Works, of Philadelphia, is looking after the interests of his company on Maui this week.

Mr. C. B. Cottrell, master mechanic, formerly of the O. R. & L. Co., was placed in charge of the machine shops at Kahului on the first of this month. Mr. Cottrell's family will soon join him at Kahului.

The young gentlemen who composed the election board in Wailuku are out in a letter to the Bulletin, in which they show up the News editor in his true light, from their point of view.

Wireless telegraphy has proved a success, messages having been sent from Honolulu to Molokai. The trouble was that the ground wire was in dry soil. A new Oahu station will be established nearer sea level.

Hon. C. H. Dickey and family leave for Honolulu next Saturday, where they will reside permanently. Mr. Dickey will open a general agency, and his business address will be the Makai-Ewa corner of King and Bethel streets.

Mrs. C. D. Stone, who is organizing an Encyclopaedia Club on Maui, has been called to Honolulu on important business, and will not return to Maui till the first of January, at which time she will fill the orders already taken, and enlarge the club.

The special attention of teachers is invited to the change in the date of holding the annual meeting at Maunaloa Seminary. The date has been changed from Monday, December 3, to Friday, November 30. See notice and program in another column.

The "Economic" Shoe Store of Hilo make a bid through the advertising columns of the News this week for the wholesale shoe trade of Maui. The prices quoted on the ad. are surprisingly low, and the News guarantees the reliability of all goods which it advertises.

The auction sale of the effects of James Kennedy at Paia was not held yesterday, for the reason that Mr. George Hons, the auctioneer, found it impossible to reach Paia on account of the washouts on the railroad. As soon as telephonic communication is restored, a new date for the sale will be fixed.

Rev. W. Ault has taken up his residence in Wailuku. He will hold services at the Anglican Church in Wailuku every Sunday morning at eleven o'clock and at Spreckelsville every Sunday evening in the month except one monthly at Lahaina. Tomorrow morning he preaches his farewell sermon at Lahaina.

Storm Raging on Maui.

On Wednesday afternoon it began to rain at Kihai. Wailuku, Kahului and Makawao shared in the down-pour, and toward night the wind shifted to the south, swelled to a gale, and an old fashioned Kona storm was rioting on Maui.

By noon on Thursday, five inches of rain had fallen at Wailuku, and nine inches at Waihee. Thursday morning dawned in a tempest of rain and wind which played havoc with bananas and papayas, blew clothes off the lines, overturned trees, flooded and buried under the mud acres of rice cane, ruined the tempers of neat housekeepers, blew away veranda awnings, tangled and broke telephone wires, blew down or washed out flames, washed out roads,—in short, stopped at nothing that wind and rain can do.

The rain abated temporarily on Thursday afternoon, but the wind blew a gale and on Thursday night the rain began to fall heavily again. Friday morning witnessed further destruction and the storm had settled down to a continuous and steady down-pour of rain, but with less wind. By 2 o'clock on Friday morning, the too river had overflowed its banks and flooded the rice and taro patches, in some instances compelling residents in the valley to leave their houses, many of which were washed away.

An electric storm developed on Thursday night, and by ten o'clock on Friday, the storm was about over. The worst damage was done in Iao Valley. The new six inch pipe of the Wailuku water works was washed out at the first, second and third crossings. At the first crossing, three or four lengths of pipe were carried away. At the second crossing, ten or fifteen lengths are carried away. At the third crossing, 60 feet of tressel and five lengths of three inch pipe were carried away.

It will make a week of steady work to repair the damages. There is not much water in the reservoir, but there is no danger of a long water famine, as its practicable to put in the pipe at the first crossing and fill the reservoir as soon as the storm and water abates sufficiently.

The Spreckels ditch from Waihee was undermined and washed out at the crossing of Iao river. The water of the ditch being liberated, washed away a Japanese cottage near the bank of the river. The tunnel being run by Mr. Waldyer is seriously damaged, but the extent of the damage cannot be ascertained till the water abates.

On Friday morning, Kahului stood in a lake of water which extended to the race track and back almost to the new mill site. Water stood five feet deep in the new lumber yard. The railroad track was out in several places, and the track stood so deep under water that it was impossible to run trains yesterday.

This lake was drainage water from the lands back of Kahului, and rushed into the sea in a river by the side of the fishermen's cottage.

The road between Wailuku and Lahaina is in a deplorable condition. Yesterday, Mr. Carr, the postal inspector, who was at Lahaina, ordered Joe do Rego, the mail carrier, to leave Lahaina for Wailuku with the mail. Joe started on horseback, and reach a point this side of Manlaea Bay, where he was compelled to leave his horse and come to Wailuku on foot, carrying the mail sack on his shoulder, leaving his horse tied by the road side. He reached Wailuku about midnight, on Thursday night.

The storm did much damage at Lahaina, blowing down every tree in the Court House yard, with the exception of the banyan tree. A great many algeroba trees were also uprooted.

No reports have been received from other parts of Maui, for the reason that the telephone lines are down.

The storm was very heavy at Kihai. At Camp 3 no harm was done, except the overturning of two or three cabins. At Camp 2, no harm was done.

The wash from the hills, coming down toward Camp 1 covered the new Risdon pumps with 8 or ten feet of mud on Thursday night. A force of men was at once put to work, and most of the debris was removed on Thursday. On Thursday night, a tremendously heavy rain poured down covering the pump once more with 22 feet of mud. The water also worked its way under the cement foundations, turning them over on the pump. A large force of men are at work clearing off the mud.

Annual Meeting of Maui Teachers.

The annual meeting of the teachers of Maui will be held at Maunaloa Seminary, Makawao, on Friday, November 30. An elaborate and interesting program of practical work has been prepared, and the meeting will be an inspiration to all teachers except those who are working for a salary,—merely.

Word has been sent from the Department of Public Instruction in Honolulu that the various school agents may, upon application, grant teachers permission to close their schools on that day for the purpose of attending the meeting.

Teachers should make application to their respective school agents for leave of absence, and every teacher on Maui should be present, if possible.

PROGRAM OF MAUI TEACHER'S MEETING.

To be held in Makawao, November 30, 1900.

THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA CLUB.

Half Price Rates.

The enterprising firm of Wall, Nichols Co., of Honolulu, anticipating the wishes and needs of Maui, have secured the services of Mrs. C. D. Stone of Chicago to represent them in introducing the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Mrs. Stone has represented the Wernier Company of Chicago for the past twelve years, and is up to date in her line of work. She will not make a house-to-house canvass, as she is not, in the ordinary sense of the term, a book agent, but will call on a few of our leading citizens and afford them the opportunity to join the Encyclopaedia club, which entitles each member of the club to one set of the Encyclopaedias at just one-half the regular price, payable in monthly instalments. The complete set of 31 volumes up to 1900, in a handsome, polished oak case will be placed in your homes on receipt of the cost of the freight, giving members of the club one year to pay the balance.

Should Mrs. Stone overlook you, send your name and address to Wailuku, care of the News office, and she will gladly call and show you samples of the binding and also samples of the complete work.

To the 24 volumes of the original Edinburgh edition, seven volumes have been added, making the American edition. The Encyclopaedia Britannica is too well known to need any commendation, and with the American supplemental volumes, it forms a work that should be found in every American household. This Encyclopaedia contains an epitome of the sum total of the world's knowledge, up to date, and is so indexed that the youth the student, the merchant, the professional man, in short all classes of people can at once find and turn to just what they want. BOWSER OUT RIDING.

TAKES HORSEBACK EXERCISE TO CURE HIS MANY AILMENTS.

But Finds, as Was to Be Expected, That the Cure Gives Him More Trouble Than the Ills of Which He Had Complained.

(Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.)
Mrs. Bowser stood looking out of the window the other evening as Mr. Bowser came home from the office. There was a strange man with him, and they were in earnest conversation. He had a half guilty look on his face as he opened the door, and he seemed to want to be questioned, but the mystery

HE HELPED MR. BOWSER UP, was left unsolved until after dinner. Then she quietly asked: "Well, what have you been buying this time?" "Nothing at all," he replied. "Then you've got some scheme on foot?" "There's no scheme about it. I have simply decided to do what any sensible man ought to do. When a man finds that he is the victim of a dozen ailments, he ought to go at it and cure himself, oughtn't he?" "Of course, but what are your all-but as no one but the boy had seen him he didn't feel very bad about it. He had never been on the back of a horse three times in his life, and he was no sooner up than he wished he was down. The boy got his feet into the stirrups for him and encouraged him with quiet words, and after the horse had walked up and down for five minutes confidence was restored. Then the boy said:

"This horse is one of the easiest lopers in the hull state, and if I was you I'd push him up a bit. When he starts to lope, you'll think you are in a rockin' cheer."

Mr. Bowser doubted it; but, looking over the back fence, he made out Mrs. Bowser standing at one of the rear windows. She had referred to "bounce" and "joggle," and he felt that he was being tested. He drew a long breath, uttered a silent prayer and chirped to the horse to strike into a lope. The horse obeyed. Had the rider caught the motion it would have been plain sailing, but he didn't catch it. There were half a dozen bobs, three or four clutches at his mane, and Mr. Bowser rolled sideways out of the saddle and fell in a heap on a pile of ashes. It was a good boy and a sympathetic boy who had brought the horse around. He helped Mr. Bowser up, insisted that it was an accident that might have happened to the best rider on earth and in various ways encouraged him to try again. The fallen rider kicked at the ash heap and struck at the fence and was for giving it up, but the boy soothed him and made him understand that he would lose prestige if he failed to mount again.

"I intend to, of course," replied Mr. Bowser in defiant tones as he noticed Mrs. Bowser still at the window. "I don't claim to be much of a rider, but I'll get the hang of it in a minute. I think the horse stubbed his toe the other time. Look through that knot hole in the fence, will you, and tell me what you see in my back yard?"

"Do kitchen girl is sittin' on de ground and laughin' herself to death," reported the lad after a look.

"She is, eh? Sent out by my wife to spy on me? Well, let her giggle. I'll stick on this time if I have to have my legs tied under the saddle."

According to our office scales, the book entitled "The Love of Theodore" weighs just 24 ounces. We can't find out that Theodore's love was anything but of a high order, and the fact that he loved for 13 long years before saying anything about it does not recommend him to our estimation. A young man who loves a girl so that he can't sleep nights, and yet permits her to make artificial flowers for 30 cents a day and attempt suicide nine different times, should be chained up to a Digger Indian. The book leaves her clasped to his bosom; but, in spite of his long love, he may have found some other excuse to stand her off. We can't conscientiously recommend the book.

A book which will appeal largely to western sentiment is entitled "Found at Last." The daughter of a New York millionaire has had 40 offers of marriage. She knows that every one of the 40 young men simply wanted her cash. She determines that whoever gets her shall get her through love, and she packs her trunk and goes west and pretends to be poor. She strikes a job of teaching school at $6 a month and board, and after about six months along comes Popsy Harrison, a young man in a red woolen shirt who is head boss in a sawmill. He says "Gosh hang it!" and "Gol darn it!" and he wipes his mouth on the tablecloth, but she discovers that he loves her for herself, and she gives him her heart and a stack of government bonds as big as a house. Things ought to always come out that way, and we hope the book will have a large sale. M. QUAD.

THE ARIZONA KICKER.

Some Book Reviews by Its Energetic Literary Man.

We are in receipt of a new publication entitled "Did She Marry For Money?" As near as we can make out she did, but she got beautifully left. After keeping an old man bobbing around for five years, Lucille hears that he has come into possession of an even million. She then tells him that her love has always been his and hurries up the wedding. The honeymoon is only a week old when her husband is sued for a laundry bill, and it transpires that he isn't worth a red. The book leaves Lucille scattered over the floor in a dead faint, and we are not going to bring her to and ask questions. Let her turn to tapestry painting and make an old man's life happy.

The Test. It is the dead of night. That is not another story, understand. With straining ears the woman listens. She hears her husband enter the house and walk swiftly through the parlor. "Ah, me!" she sighs. "He has knocked nothing over! The room is not yet artistically furnished!" She cries softly to herself awhile and then resolves upon the morrow to buy a few additional loads of trice-a-brac and try anew.—Detroit Journal.

SHIPPING NEWS

On account of the Kona at Kahului, the Maui did not start to Hana till Friday morning at 6. She expected to return to Kahului today, and leave for Honolulu this afternoon.

Joe do Rego, the Lahaina mail carrier, reports that when he left Lahaina on Thursday afternoon a large four-masted schooner, which was unloading lumber at Lahaina for Hackfeld & Co., was dragging her anchor and was almost on the reef. He was unable to give the name of the vessel, and the wire are down, so that there is no communication with Lahaina. He states that Mr. Olson, of the Lahaina store, offered the native seamen $50 to row out to the vessel, but they refused. Finally a native named Koko offered to swim out to the vessel for $25. A note was secured in a bottle which the native tied around his waist, swam out to the vessel, delivered the note and then swam ashore in safety.

The loss of the sailors by the Kinan was nearly duplicated by the steamer Maui on Saturday night when about three miles from Himoa. The steamer was traveling at a great rate of speed and the wind and sea were very high. Two sailors, Kaahu and Ha-maki, had gotten into a dispute on the after deck of the vessel, and from work the men soon came to blows. One of them was getting considerably the worst of the argument, when he closed in on his antagonist and they began struggling. The vessel was rolling at a great rate, and in some unaccountable manner the men dashed up against the rail and were overboard in a jiffy. Companions saw them go over the side and yelled that there was a man overboard. The steamer was stopped and a boat was lowered, although it was a very dangerous undertaking. After a short search both men were found. They had given up their fight and were making for the vessel as fast as they could. When Kaahu was hauled into the boat he was naked, having stripped himself as soon as he found himself in the water. He said it was his intention to swim for the shore in case the steamer did not stop. The other man was found just in time, as he had not been able to get his clothes off in the water and was nearly exhausted when taken into the boat.—Republican.

THE RIDER CLUTCHED THE SADDLE.

ments? Now and then you have a headache, or you get a corn on your toe, but your general health is excellent. It was only the other day that you were boasting how rugged you were."

"My dear woman," he said as he walked about, "you know very well that I am no hand to complain. If I was doing, I should say nothing about it till the last moment. I may have boasted of my health, but is it a husband's place to alarm his wife? You now force me to tell you that I have a dozen different ailments at the present moment, any of which may prove fatal, but that I am going to make a heroic effort to live on. If you hadn't driven me into a corner, I should have kept my secret."

"I see," she quietly observed as the family cat came down stairs and cocked her eye at Mr. Bowser. "Is it a spring tonic or what?"

"I have been recommended to try horseback riding, and this evening I make my first experiment."

"And you imagine you will joggle the complaints away? I think I see you bouncing around in the saddle and the stirrups flying."

"Joggle! Bounce!" he shouted as he turned on her with a gesture which scared the cat out of the room. "You'd be sarcastic if I lay dead in the house! A nice wife you are to encourage a dying husband! Why should I joggle or bounce about in the saddle?"

"You shouldn't," she answered. "However, if you are going to take your first ride this evening I hope you'll stick to the alley and that the horse is a gentle one. I haven't the slightest objection to your scheme. In good, I hope it will do you lots of good."

She spoke so kindly that Mr. Bowser recovered his good nature, and 20 minutes later he was with the boy holding a horse in the alley. It was a soft, moonlight evening, and the unpaved alley was clear of vehicles and just the place for a gallop.

"Is this a gentle horse?" asked Mr. Bowser as he was all ready to get into the saddle.

"He's like a lamb, sir," replied the boy. "Excuse me, but you are trying to get up on the wrong side. That's better. If I was you, I'd let him walk at first. Some folks are dizzy when they first move off. He'll be all right. Mr. Bowser had climbed onto the horse like a cat climbing over a fence

"Dat's de way to talk. When you git into de saddle, jest move with de horse. All ready now."

Mr. Bowser had another climbing match, but in due time he found himself filling the saddle again. Prudence warned him to go slow, but when he thought of Mrs. Bowser and the cook he determined to run all risks. As he got a brace for his feet he struck the horse with his heel, and the animal started away on an easy canter. It was the rocking chair motion the boy had referred to, but Mr. Bowser didn't catch it. He found himself bobbing about and his feet out of the stirrups, and before he knew what he was doing both heels struck the horse and set him off at full gallop. There was a yell that could have been heard half a mile away, and then the rider clutched the saddle, shut his eyes and bade goodby to things of earth—all except to Mrs. Bowser. The horse set off down the alley with his mind full of wonder, but the wonder soon changed to alarm as his burden lurched about, and before he had gone two blocks he made a shy and a kick, and Mr. Bowser went rolling over the ground and brought up against a fence like a barrel of cider.

It was a long time before the world returned to him. Then he opened his eyes, to find Mrs. Bowser, the cook, a policeman, the boy and a workman hovering over him.

"I think he's coming to," he heard the policeman say, "and you can set it down that his neck is not broken. What on earth possessed him to ride a horse, ma'am?"

"He wanted exercise," he heard Mrs. Bowser reply.

"Well, we'll lug him home for you, of course, but it won't do no good. He'll keep right on making a daisy of himself till something drives him through a brick wall."

Mr. Bowser was lugged along the alley to his own back yard gate, his back gathering ashes at every step, and it was not till outsiders had retired that he sat up and said to Mrs. Bowser: "Woman, I understand! I know who threw a club at the horse, and jumped me out of the saddle. Hands off! I want no more of your help, and the cook is discharged on the spot. Follow me into my house. I want you to confess in writing to this attempted assassination, and then we will call in the lawyers and settle matters."
