Where People See People.

"I believe that F street, in Washington, is the greatest place in the world for people to stroll up and down the thoroughfare and scan each other," said a close observer, who has traveled considerably, as he himself walked along the well known street. "It seems to be understood here," he continued, "that promptly at 4 o'clock, when the weather is pleasant, there should be a general promenade. If a woman's or man's dress takes well on F street, it is safe to say that the attire will pass muster anywhere. As to the variety of dress—well, you may see anything on F street from the stylish dressed millionaire's daughter or wife to the schoolgirl. Many of the upper class of young ladies who have carriages at their disposal very often dismiss their coachman when shopping on F street and walk from store to store simply to mingle with the crowd and get a look at the other people.

"F street certainly beats all the other cities for this amusement," he said in conclusion, "and, although I have only been here a short time, the fever has already struck me, and every day at 4 p. m. I feel a desire come over me to dress up and start in at Fifteenth street, and walk along F street and back again."—Washington Post.

A Vacuum Pressure Experiment.

Chemical science has taught us how to overcome the dreaded diseases that have swept away whole cities in the past. It has taught us the manufacture of explosives and munitions of war and has made possible the greatly improved modes of travel, and it may be truly said that to chemistry we owe the most material progress the world has made.

While this little experiment will not deal with the hidden secrets that live in the famous laboratories of treat upon the mystic powers of viscosity and relegation, it will show what power the absence of air has in attracting movable substances into the place that has been vacated by the air. Few think when they breathe the atmosphere that surrounds them that it has a pressure of fifteen pounds to the square inch or that it can attract even a piece of iron into the space which it leaves.

For an example of the strength of air take any tumbler, fill it about half full of tissue paper, set fire to the paper, turn over the glass in a basin containing water about one-half inch deep and then watch the water ascend the interior of the glass.

Ingersoll on Temperance.

Robert G. Ingersoll was a greater orator than John B. Gough, although either of them could captivate almost any audience. The subject matter of their lectures was very different, however; Gough's favorite topic was temperance, and Ingersoll's religion, or anti-religion; but on one occasion, and only one, Ingersoll delivered a temperance lecture equal to anything Gough had ever said on the subject. It was in 1876, in an argument in Munn trial at Chicago, that the great Agnostic incorporated it as follows:

"I believe, gentlemen, that alcohol to a certain degree demoralizes those who make it, those who sell it and those who drink it. I believe that from the time it issues from the poisonous worm of the distillery until it empties into the hell of crime, death and dishonor, it demoralizes everybody that touches it. I do not believe that anybody can contemplate the subject without becoming prejudiced against this liquid crime. All you have to do gentlemen, is to think of the wrecks upon either bank of this stream of death—of the suicides, of the insanity, of the poverty, of the ignorance, of the distress, of the little children tugging at the faded dresses of weeping and despairing wives asking bread; of the men of genius it has wrecked; of the millions who have struggled with imaginary serpents produced by this devilish thing. And when you think of the jails, of the almshouses, of the prisons and of the scaffolds upon either bank—I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against the damned stuff called alcohol."

Didn't Know His Own Child

At Antietam, just after the artillery had been sharply engaged, the Rockbridge (Va.) battery was standing waiting orders. General Lee rode by and stopped a moment. A dirty faced driver about seventeen said to him:

"General, are you going to put us in again?"

Think of such a question from such a source to the general of the army, especially when that general's name was Lee!

"Yes, my boy," the stately officer kindly answered, "I have to put you in again. But what is your name? Your face seems familiar somehow."

"I don't wonder you didn't know me, sir," laughed the lad, "I'm so dirty. But I'm Bob."

It was the general's youngest son, whom he had thought safe at the Virginia Military institute. "God bless you, my son; do your duty," and the general rode on.

A few days ago an elderly gentleman and his wife were walking along the street when a lady in crossing the road fell down. The old gentleman rushed to her assistance and helped her in every possible way. When he returned to his wife, she looked like a thundercloud.

"It's all right; it's all right," he whispered.

"Yes, I know it's all right!" she replied hotly. "Here's an unknown woman falls down, and you plow across the street to help her, and the other day, when I fell downstairs, you wanted to know if I was practicing for a circus."

Lahaina, Maui T. H.

Chief Justice Frear, in an address the other day before the bar association in Honolulu, among other things, said:—"There should be a regulation of the terms of the circuit court so that the court should hold its sessions only at Hilo, on the island of Hawaii and not at Hookena, and at Wailuku only on Maui. Hilo and Wailuku are to be the capitals of the counties, respectively on Hawaii and Maui, the court houses are to be there, the clerks there and the libraries. It is bad for litigants and lawyers and court officers to be dragged needlessly to places where there is little business, and most expensive for the Territory." The truth and justice of the foregoing is so apparent that the legislature will doubtless act on the suggestion.

The people of Honolulu are planning more wisely than they know, in the matter of inducing tourist travel to the Islands. It will come of its own accord, and while no efforts should be spared to further advertise the Islands as a tourists' resort, and stimulate the movement, yet it is no less necessary to plan for their comfort, convenience and enjoyment when they arrive. The main point in the matter is not merely to induce them to come, but rather to induce them to remain here several months when they do come. The time will come when thousands of tourists will spend their winters in Hawaii, and they are the ones we want.

The history of the Chinese empire, as written for the past five, and as it will be written for the next five and twenty years, will be the record of the absorption of an immense empire by foreign nations, with a very small China left, and that under the protection of foreign powers. The NEWS predicted that Russia would never lose its grip on Manchuria, and the truth of the prediction is now practically conceded. The seed of discontent has been sown in China by the presence of foreigners, and the harvest of provinces is ripening for annexation at the first outburst, which is not a far call away.

There are several weak points in the proposed tax law in the county bill, notable the hiatus which will occur between January and June of each year. This however can be provided for in advance, but a more serious hiatus occurs between the assessment and the collection of taxes on transient personal property. So far as such property is concerned the assessor should if possible have power to collect such taxes at the time of assessment, or if that be not practicable then such property tax should be assessable and collectable during the entire twelve months of the year. Otherwise it will escape taxation.

With an epidemic of plague raging in Mazatlan, and its existence openly avowed in San Francisco, the Islands will probably learn something new in the matter of handling this dreaded scourge. It is questionable if such radical measure will be adopted in San Francisco as in Mazatlan, owing to the superior sanitation and climatic conditions of the former city, but the contrast in method of the two cities in handling the conditions will be full of interest and instruction to Honolulu if ever again compelled wage war against bubonic plague.

The Venezuelan situation, so far as the United States and Germany are concerned, is an explosive proposition and needs to be handled with care, or somebody will get hurt. The position of our country in the matter is as clear and as easy to be understood as are the avowed tenets of the Monroe Doctrine itself. England understands the situation, and has thrown out an anchor to windward, and all that Uncle Sam should do at present should be to stand pat and wait in an attitude of prepared expectancy.

A meeting of the citizens of central Maui should be called, and a committee appointed to draft a memorial to the legislature, pointing out the many strong and urgent reasons why the Circuit Court of Maui should not be compelled to pack up its traps and emigrate to Lahaina once a year, to the great inconvenience and discomfort of all concerned. This is not an eleemosynary affair, for the benefit of any one town, but it is an economical question which should be disposed of far above all selfish considerations.

When the cultivation of oranges for profit in Southern California began, the orchardists were met in the outset by the ravages of scales which threatened to destroy their young orchards. No known means of combating the pest was available, but such means were soon discovered, and the powers of the legislature were invoked to compel all orchardists to unite in destroying the pests. The same is true in the Islands. Difficulties will be encountered at first, but the intelligent farmers will win in the end.

The Islands are now on the eve of wonderful developments along the lines of varied industries. It has all the time been a monumental joke to assert that the marvelous fertility of the Islands was adaptable only to the production of sugar, and in the next ten years, the mossbacks will see things in the way of diversified industries which will make their eyes shine.

WAILUKU CEMETERY

The consensus of opinion in Wailuku is that no more time should be lost in taking steps to renovate the Wailuku cemetery, which now presents a most forlorn and dilapidated appearance.

This property belongs to the public, having been conveyed to a chartered company in trust for a cemetery by the old Wailuku Sugar Co., then in the ownership of the Baileys.

Mr. E. H. Bailey is the only officer of the corporation, unless, that is, the manager of the Wailuku Sugar Co. is ex-officio a member.

The last meeting of the board was held in 1890 or 1891. When Mr. Walbridge, then a member of the board left Wailuku, he informed Mr. E. H. Bailey that he had left the charter, books, minutes etc. of the corporation in the vaults of one of the safes of the Wailuku Sugar Co., since which time no one has ever seen them.

Mr. Bailey informs the News that several months ago he asked Mr. Wells to look up the papers, and that Mr. Wells informed him that he had searched for them, but that he was unable to find them at the office of his company.

Mr. W. E. Bal has a map of the cemetery, on which all the plots which have been sold or selected have been indicated, but since 1891 no deeds have been given, and presumably no money has been paid for plots.

Steps should at once be taken to fill the list of officers of the corporation, and Mr. E. H. Bailey, who is the president of the Association, is the proper man to call a meeting. He expresses himself as perfectly willing to cooperate with the citizens in the matter and it is believed that he will soon call such a meeting.

Ukumehame Canyon.

There is, in three hours easy ride of Wailuku, one of the grandest and most beautiful scenes on earth, but owing to its inaccessibility, it is rarely visited, although easily reached on horseback. The place referred to is Ukumehame Canyon, viewed from the table lands mauka of Waikapu.

Recently the News man, under the escort of a famous guide and goat hunter, made the trip. Leaving Waikapu at six in the morning, an hour's ride brought the party to the entrance of a long ravine, about half way between Wailuku and Maalaea Bay. The ascent to the table lands was gradual, along a rocky trail and several rests were required for the horses. At each resting point the wide area of cane lands and distant hill and mountain tops seemed to draw nearer, the illusion being caused by increased elevation. At the end of two hours the party emerged on the table lands consisting of over a thousand acres of level or slightly rolling country covered with a deep, velvety carpet of nutritious pasturage grass, and interspersed with groves of trees beneath which lazily lounged bands of fat horses and cattle.

Crossing the table land, and flushing at intervals handsome pheasants or flocks of screaming plover, one comes abruptly to the edge of Ukumehame Gulch. From the summit, the gorge, which is simply a vast circular basin, drops down till the head grows dizzy in watching the precipitous descent, so steep on all sides that nothing but a mountain goat can climb up and down.

The sun was flooding the canyon with rosy light when the party reached its summit, and far down below on a narrow green ridge which marks the outlet of Ukumehame Gulch into the Olowalu flats, stood a band of tiny animals apparently not larger than rabbits. They were at first mistaken for goats, but upon being seen through magnifying glasses, proved to be a band of horses, whose size was diminished by the great distance. Four silver bands of water torrents came rushing and shining down the opposite side of the canon, so far away and below that they appeared like long quivering bands of silver ribbon, but their distant roar and boom came whispering up the gorge like the faint echoes of a far-off sea beach.

Looking off across the canyon, Olowalu Plantation lies far below like a painted picture belted by the endless blue sea, from which rises further off, the complete outline of the Island of Lanai.

The grandeur of the entire scene, as viewed from the bluffs above, is worthy of half a world's journey and this spot will one day rank among the most noted scenes on earth.

Ah Mi Bribery Case.

The case of Ah Mi, charged with an attempt to bribe Policemen Sequeira of the Wailuku force was on trial several days this week, before Judge McKay, District Magistrate of Wailuku.

The case for the prosecution briefly was that Ah Mi offered and policemen Sequeira accepted $25.00 a bribe to induce Sequeira not to interfere with a pakapio game said to be conducted by Ah Mi at Kahului. As soon as Sequeira received the money, he placed Ah Mi under arrest in the presence of Sheriff Baldwin and Deputy Sheriff Saffery, who had been concealed witnesses of the transaction.

Ah Mi does not deny giving Sequeira the money but claimed that he lent Sequeira the money to buy a horse, and introduced a number of witnesses to prove that Policeman Sequeira had solicited the loan.

Although the case was ably defended by Attorneys Coke and Aluli yet and at its close on Thursday afternoon Judge McKay committed Ah Mi for trial under $500 bonds.

It is an open secret that a pakapio game is running at Kahului, with patrons at Wailuku, Kahului, Puunene and other places. But the police force have great trouble in finding evidence to convict. The Chinese are quite shrewd in the management of such things. The ordinary joint is generally up stairs, and only to be reached through several doors at each of which a guard is stationed with a special password for that door.

A burning brazier is kept in the room, and at the alarm, in case of a raid, all tickets are put in the fire and converted to ashes instantly, so that when the police reach the room, they merely find one or two sleek Chinamen demurely smoking or reading the MAUI NEWS, and all the documents discoverable consist of a pot of boiling rice.

The Fullerton Arrives.

The oil-carrier Fullerton, Captain McDonald, arrived off Molokai on Wednesday, and anchored at Kihai on Friday, 15 days out. On Saturday the work of pumping out cargo was begun, and continued without interruption for 48 hours, when the Fullerton was empty, and ready to clear for the coast, sailing on Tuesday morning. This is the fourth trip of the Fullerton in five months, two of the cargoes being unloaded at Kahului and two at Kihai.

Capt. McDonald states that on leaving San Francisco, his ship was accompanied by a flock of sea-gulls which came two-thirds of the way, when all returned save one gray old fellow, who concluded to visit the Islands. Off Molokai, this gull left the Fullerton, and all day Friday, he was seen flitting along the beach between Wailuku and Kahului. On Sunday morning he took his bearings, flew across the isthmus and rejoined the Fullerton at Kihai, and left with her for the coast on Tuesday.

Death of Mrs. Lamb.

Mrs. Drusilla Lamb, 87 years of age, died last Saturday at Malulani Hospital, where she had made her home for a number of years, and was buried at Wailuku cemetery on Sunday afternoon, the funeral being held at the Episcopal Church, Rev. Canon Ault officiating.

Mrs. Lamb had been for many years a resident of Wailuku, her husband having been employed up to the time of his death as a carpenter and cooper on the plantation. Mr. Lamb was a prominent mason, and the masonic fraternity contributed largely to the support of Mrs. Lamb during her declining years. She had been quite feeble for the past several years, and her death was not unexpected.

Executive Committee Meeting.

The meeting of the Executive Committee of the Wailuku Republican Precinct Club was held on Tuesday evening at the Court house.

Mr. Moses Kauhimahu was chosen to succeed A. N. Kepoikai as member of the district committee, and Rev. J. Nua was recommended as a member of the road board, to succeed A. N. Kepoikai.

An application was received from David Morton, asking for the endorsement of the Executive Committee for his appointment as Sheriff's clerk to succeed Geo. H. Cummings, resigned. Mr. Morton's application was received favorably.

Stray Notes.

The dengue fever is abating in Honolulu.

The legislative caucus are at work in Honolulu this week.

The republican caucus will be king at the approaching legislature.

The dengue is visiting Honolulu and making its presence painfully felt.

The sugar market continues steady, notwithstanding the fluctuation in cable errors.

Attorney General Andrews has appointed E. C. Peters, a former law partner, as his deputy.

The lone sea-gull which visited Kahului on Friday, revived ardent memories of San Francisco tamales.

Tom Fitch has withdrawn from the practice of law in Honolulu, and has gone to "live and die" in other climes.

The beet sugar interests of the United States are lining up for a last ditch fight over the Cuban reciprocity treaty.

A little well directed and conservative enthusiasm is needed at the next meeting of the Maui Athletic Association.

Lahaina is to introduce a bill to have its streets named. Never mind, Lahaina, call it Front street, and let it go at that.

A large number of letters are being received from farmers on the coast, who would like to try their fortunes in the Islands.

Delegate Wilcox has introduced a new election law bill in congress, which makes some radical changes in the present election law.

Miss Bertha Runkle, the young author of the "Helmet of Navarre" is expected to pass through Honolulu, en route to Japan shortly.

England and Japan are liable to have trouble over the determined efforts of the Canadians to exclude Japanese from the dominions.

The Wright and Boyd embezzlement cases will be among the first presented for trial at the present term of Circuit Court at Honolulu.

The News is unalterably opposed to the use of the Portuguese or German language by the incoming legislature. It should be frowned down.

A constitutional amendment has been introduced in Congress, limiting individual fortunes to ten million dollars. This is a direct hit at the News.

Heavy seas have been experienced in the Island channels for the past week, and the boats have not been able to unload much freight at way ports.

Robert N. Boyd, road engineer of the Board of Public Works, has been asked to resign on account of his too extravagant expenditure of public funds.

The Advertiser has taken up the subject of small farming and minor industries, and is printing some very readable and helpful matter on these topics.

A long and very interesting letter from Henry S. Townsend, relative to fighting the cholera in Mindanao, appears in a recent issue of the Advertiser.

The republican executive precinct committee of Wailuku should call a mass meeting to discuss legislative matters prior to the meeting of the legislature.

Joe Rothenberg, a Honolulu barber, was arrested for dealing in lottery tickets, but was released on $500 bonds, and skipped for the coast on the Alameda.

The cable company have accepted the cable line between Honolulu and the coast, and took over its ownership from the constructing contractors last Saturday evening.

Commissioner Pratt now owns the pen, made from an eagle feather taken from the war bonnet of an Arapahoe indian chief, with which President Roosevelt signed the Fire Claims bill.

The Hawaiian members of the legislature should themselves take the matter of using the English language in the legislature in hand, and not allow so much time to be wasted as was done two years ago.

Eleanor G. may be forgiven for wanting the Attorney General to improve the cut of his pants, and her desire for him to "get" money may be overlooked but when she denounced Honolulu as a "jay town" she committed the unpardonable sin.
