This seal was adopted at the July 8 meeting.

ASSOCIATION ON IMPROVE- MENTS.

In the absence of both the president and Vice-President, Hugh M.
Coke took the chair at the Improvement Association meeting on Thursday evening.

The usual number of communications and correspondence were read and ordered placed on file.

The resignation of S. B. Harry was accepted and the resignation of Judge A. N. Kepoikai was withdrawn.

J. L. Coke asked that the Executive committee take up the matter of street name, as confusion and possible litigation might ensue if the dual naming of the streets of Wailuku was not straightened out.
The executive committee was ordered to investigate and report at the next meeting.

C. E. Copeland drew the attention of the association to the fact that with the establishment of County government the usefulness of the Association was enhanced as many of the matters which would up for the consideration and action requested, would now come before the Board of Supervisors where formerly the Association had to deal with the powers that be in the Capital.

Comment on the unsightly billboards and the destroying of the natural beauty of the scenery by these billboards and the enormous lettering and pictorial advertising on roof and sides of buildings was commented upon by C. D. Lufkin, J. N. S. Williams.

C. E. Copeland made a motion that a committee of three be appointed by the chair to take up this matter of objectionable advertising. The chair appointed C. E.
Copeland, C. D. Lufkin and J. N. S.
Williams the committee.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with the proper authorities relative to the condition of the ditch at the corner of Main and Market Street, and to call the attention of the Board of Supervisors to the condition of the side walks and take measures to have new ones laid, also to the dangerous condition of the road leading to Wailuku Mill at the point
Mr. Streubeck and request them to have a fence erected on the Waihee side.

TAFT FOR PRESIDENT.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—President Roosevelt is said to be preparing a letter to a personal friend indorsing Secretary Taft as the logical candidate for the Presidency. This, it is asserted, will be the way the President will show to other prominent politicians within the Republican ranks what he thinks of their aspirations.

Every act of the President's within two months has tended toward such a denouement. He has been making political friends for Taft right and left. The latest instance of it was the Wallace letter. It was all arranged by the President,
so the story runs here, to have Taft demand Wallace's resignation.

Taft is Roosevelt's candidate and the forthcoming letter will make it plain to those who have doubted the President's intention with regard to the Presidency. It is understood the letter will be addressed to Elihu Root, who, of course, will make it public. It will be issued while Taft is away in the Philippines, so he may be spared the trouble of denying that he has his eye on the White House.

WOOD'S HEALTH REPORTED BAD.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—There are persistent reports current tonight that the unexpected visit to the United States of Major-General Leonard Wood is due to the fact that he is obliged to undergo a serious surgical operation. It is said that he has had some trouble with his head which necessitated his return from the Philippines to consult specialists.

Nobody at the War Department seems to know why General Wood came home, and many officers were unaware that he had left the Philippines until they read in the newspapers that he had landed at San Francisco. He obtained leave of absence from General Corbin, and it is not known here whether or not he intends to come to Washington. General Wood has no intention of returning to military duty in the United States. He is considered the logical successor of General Corbin as the commander of the Army in the Philippines when the latter becomes chief of staff, September, 1906.

THE LANDING OF FATHER BACHELOT.

HONOLULU, July 8.—Seventy-eight years ago tomorrow Father Bachelot landed in Hawaii and founded the first Roman Catholic mission in these islands. It is a far cry back to the year 1827 in the light of human achievement during the intervening years and it is hard for the man who walks the streets of Honolulu today to realize just how the straggling grass built village looked in those days
but there remains a mute but eloquent testimony to the devoted priest in the little monument behind the Catholic church, which marks the spot where the first church stood.

There were no special services today to mark the landing of the first Catholic missionary but every good Catholic remembered the day with becoming pride. Ten years after his first coming Father Bachelot imported the first algeroba tree, the tree which still stands just mauka
of the church and spreads its unbragous branches over Fort-street.
The tree itself preaches a strong sermon and a close parallel might be drawn between the faith imported by Father Bachelot and the algeroba itself. Both have spread

TOKIO, July 11.—The Russian forces have withdrawn into the interior of Saghalien. Many Russian political prisoners have been set free by the Japanese troops.

WASHINGTON, July 10th, 1905.

To the JAPANESE CONSUL GENERAL, Honolulu:
Admiral Kataoka's report runs as follows:
Our squadron arrived in the Saghalien waters at daybreak of the 7th inst., and after sea-clearing operations, our transports and a part of the squadron approached the coast.

Our squadron arrived in the Saghalien waters at daybreak of the 7th inst. The position as was previously determined thereupon a part of our army also landed and relieved the naval detachment. In the meanwhile the enemy's fort on the height south of Korsakov opened fire on our ships which were engaged in the clearing of the sea, but later successfully effected operations as was prearranged. No damage to our squadron.

Early on the morning of the 8th inst., three warships and two destroyers were dispatched to assist the movement of the army in occupying Korsakov, but they found Korsakov already occupied by our army. The destroyers entered the Chitose Bay, formerly called the Rososki Bay, when the enemy opened vigorous fire with field guns, which were, however,
finally silenced.

TAKAHIRA.

WASHINGTON, July 10th, 1905.

To the JAPANESE CONSUL GENERAL, Honolulu: (Official Report)
Our Saghalien landing army occupied Korsakov early in the morning of the 8th inst. without much resistance. The Russians burnt the town of Korsakov, where they again attempt resistance, but being dislodged by our pursuing force, retired towards Vladimirovka, about 22 miles north of Korsakov. In this engagement we captured four guns and a quantity of ammunition. No damage on our side.

TAKAHIRA.

LONDON, July 11.—It is reported that 23 mutineers at Libau were condemned to death. The firing squad detailed to execute them mutinied, turned about and shot twelve officers. Cossacks were summoned and in the fight that followed 30 were killed.

SEBASTOPOL, July 11.—The torpedo boat in the hands of the mutineers has refused to surrender. The Kustenji has arrived and its crew has been arrested.

ROME, July 11.—There were 108 cases of sunstroke in this city yesterday and nineteen deaths.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Sunstroke caused ten deaths yesterday and many prostrations

PITTSBURG, July 11.—There were seven deaths from heat yesterday.

DORTMUND, July 11.—A fire has occurred in a colliery here and thirty nine miners, who were cut off, are believed to be dead.

STOCKHOLM, July 11.—King Oscar and the Crown Prince will sail
July 13 to meet the Kaiser at Gefle.

SIHNGPAI, July 11.—It is raining in torrents and all activity at the front has ceased.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Postmaster General has issued a jority today but his works live after

SAILED THROUGH AIR LIKE A BIRD.

TOLEDO, O., June 30.—One of the most remarkable flights ever made in an airship was performed today by A. R. Knabenshue, who sailed through the air a distance of three miles, landed on top of a ten-story office building in twenty-five minutes from the time of startin

and then returned to the spot from which he started.

The day was ideal for the daring feat. A light wind was blowing from the east and Knabenshue sailed his aerial craft directly in the face of the wind. Two days ago he declared he would sail down and alight on the top of a ten-story building. When he left his starting place he directed the ship straight for the city. When half the distance had been covered an upper current of air carried him up to a distance of 3000 feet. But the nery aeronaut did not lose control of his machine for a moment and steered it directly for the heart of the city.

SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1905

Our Mode Of Living To the resident of Hawaii nei the mere thought of being housed up and compelled to live our daily life within four walls is obnoxious. It is the out door life we lead when free from the day's cares which lend a charm to life in Hawaii. Those who have resided in the islands and gone to other climes find there a difference, something which is lacking to make life complete and a constant yearning for the sunny shores of the islands cannot be driven away. How different is the life of the average city man who, after being cooped up all day in a monster office, goes to his home, possibly a mansion on a fashionable thoroughfare or to an apartment hotel where everything is artificial. In New York the mode of living seems to change every decade. At the present time there are sixty first class hotels, with fifteen more building. If these seventy-five hotels were piled on top of one another they would make a structure seven hundred and fifty stories high, or if they should be put under one roof it would be twenty-seven stories high and occupy a ground space of seventeen acres. This great building would, at the individual cost of the buildings, cost $75,000,000, have 22,500 bedrooms and accommodate 50,000 guests daily. Truly one-half of the world does not know how the other half lives.

The Annual Harvest Home What Yuletide is to the Englishman; the winter palace to the Canadian; the Veiled prophets and Madi Gras to the Southerner, so is the annual Harvest Home to the people of Maui. After a hard season's work of making marketable the sugar cane, and the constant strain in all department of keeping everything in good working order is over, comes the time for relaxation and a day's of rather evening's enjoyment in which Maui as a unit takes part. It has been the custom of the present management of the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Co. to lay aside the cares of office and with the other heads of departments unite in a general good time. This is the Harvest Home at Paunene to which the residents of Maui eagerly look forward. The example is one which might well be taken up by other plantations and large business concerns, as there is no question but what this Harvest Home while generally participated in, is the means of cementing the relations of employer and employee and goes a long way towards maintaining the unanimity of interest in the years work.

Our Side Industries On several occasions the NEWS has mentioned editorially and in the news columns various industries which have sprung up from time to time, and which not only enhances the commercial value of our island but gives employment to the poor class. In the case of the Haiku Fruit and Packing Co. it not only employs many hands in the factory, making cans and boxes, and in the preserving of its product, but affords a lucrative livelihood to our residents. The samples of pines exhibited this week are good, not exceptional specimens of the fruit grown at Haiku and used as the canned article. It is no wonder, nor nothing extraordinary, that this fruit should have an unlimited demand on the Pacific coast. It has been said that the sugar loaf or smooth Cayenne grown on the Hawaiian Islands are far superior in flavor to the same species grown in Florida or Ceylon, and surely those grown at Haiku bear out the allegation. What has been made possible in pines is equally possible in rubber, sisal etc.

The Coming Peace Conference President Roosevelt most certainly scored a big success for the United States as a world power when he secured our federal capital for the seat of the peace conference of the two belligerents. The New York Tribune, remarks:

"It is an auspicious incident in the history of this nation and of the world. It is unique, for never before has the American capital been sought as the scene of such a meeting. It gives a new and most gracious emphasis to the characterization of America as a world power. We have been a world power for four generations, but the realization of the fact is made more vivid and more vital, both here and elsewhere, by such an incident as this."

"Such an incident as this" could not have been possible twenty or even ten years ago, and perhaps it would not be going too far to say it would have been impossible to any other than our aggressive president.

The Philadelphia Inquirer in speaking of the new eighteen hour passenger service recently inaugurated by the Pennsylvania Company between Chicago and New York says:

"Annihilation of space and time has become the crux of modern business. There is no time to spend looking at scenery. By this train the New York or Philadelphia man loses no time from his desk and spends on the train the hours which he would otherwise consume at a cafe or in a hotel. There are multi-millionaires to whom minutes are golden, and the smaller business man must compete with them. He can now make the trip without loss of time or abandoning any business considerations, and if he wants he can transact business on the train.

Congratulations to our Board of Supervisors for the thorough business like manner in which they have so far performed the duties required of them. With a continuation of the same broad yet economical method Maui County will, at the end of her first year's existence, show a record she may be proud of and hold up for the approbation of her sister counties.

Hygeia Soda Works.

On page four of this issue is the initial announcement of the Hygeia Soda and Ice Works Co. Ltd., the recently incorporated company composed exclusively of Maui capital.

The works have just recent installed the new machinery which is strictly modern in all parts and built to perform only high class work.

The company make a specialty a siphon soda which is a very convenient form of soda for household use as well as for the bar. All flavors all fruit syrups popular with the soda water lovers are made up in such quantity to guarantee users fresh as well as pure goods.

It is the intention of the company so soon as the ice machinery is installed and from which they propose to make crystal ice from distilled water, to carry in their refrigerators such delicacies as imported cheeses, sausages, California fruits, vegetables and game in season.

1905 Harvest Home.

The year's end of the grinding season for Paunene Mill is always eagerly looked forward to by the residents of Maui, not because it is the end of the grinding season so much as because the aftermath of the seasons hard work is the Annual Harvest Home, which is one of the social events of the season.

Tonight the mud press room of the mill will be shorn of its every day utility and converted into an immense dancing pavilion.

Flags, banners, and streamers will hide the presses and other mammoth machinery and with the ferns, palms and a myriad of electric lights will be transformed into a fairy land.

With the usual generosity of the management, all Maui has received an invitation to attend. Five hundred invitations have been printed and sent out, and it is safe to say that each and every recipient of an invitation to the Harvest Home, will accept of the hospitality of the Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Co. this evening.

Luscious Fruits From Haiku.

Exhibited in the window of Hoffmann and Weight's store this week were four luscious smooth cayenne pines grown on the lands of the Haiku Fruit and Packing Co. of Haiku Maui.

The total weight of the four pines was found to be twenty eight and three quarter pounds, and the individual weights 7 1/4, 6 7/8ths, 7 1/4, and 7 3/8ths pounds. The pines are of the variety grown by the Haiku Fruit and Packing Co. for canning purposes and 10000 of them are planted to the acre.

Mr. W. A. Baldwin has been most successful in growing these pines, canning them and of disposing of the seasons output; in fact if Mr. Baldwin so desired it would not be necessary for him to dispose of single can or case on the islands, as the California Association took all of last season output excepting what was sold to local stores, and have agreed to take all of this seasons canned crop Mr. Baldwin will ship them.

With the method adopted by the Haiku cannery the canned article is just as luscious and holds the natural flavor of the fresh fruit.

Ordered A Lighting Plant.

Aloha Lodge of the Knights of Pythias has in its membership some very progressive members and officers and it is through their instrumentality that this popular lodge will soon be the possessors of an up to date Acetylene Gas plant for lighting their hall. The order for the plant has already been placed.

Sufficient funds have recently been made by concerts and entertainments of various kinds by the members, to permit of the purchase of this plant which will be very complete and of the very latest design and improvements.

A Double Wedding.

The mountain home of Mr. and Mrs. Ahmi will be the scene of unusual gaiety on the twenty second of this month.

Mr. Sen Chong, son and Miss Har daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ahmi are the cause of all these elaborate preparations which are being made for this festive occasion.

Mr. Chong will take unto himself as wife Miss K. S. Wong and Young Kat Hing will look after the future welfare of Miss Har.

The parents of the young people as well as the brides and grooms are well known in chinese circles.

The two boys, Bill and Tom, were fighting. Bill was on top.

"Let me up, durn ye!" bellowed Tom. "Let me up, or I'll tell Rosey-felt on ye!"—Chicago Tribune.

MOTHER: "Been fighting with that Murphy boy again, have you? Why didn't you say, 'Get thee behind me, Satan?'"

BENNY: "Behind me! Gee! I was wishin' he'd get between us!"—Puck.

Admission Day Races.

As Admission Day which has become legalized as a territorial holiday falls on Saturday this year, the Maui Racing Association have decided to give another of their successful race meets.

Eleven races in all will be given and one can rest assured of good interesting sport as the horses are all in good condition for the events. A special race and one which is a novelty on this island will be a one mile back race, trotting and pacing, to be driven by owners or by licensed drivers. There will be three or possibly four stables represented and an exciting race may be expected. Wherever a race of this kind has been given much good natured rivalry has existed and drawn good crowds.

Another feature race will be a mile and a half cowboy race. As the participants will receive their instructions when the race is called, no one contestant will have an advantage over the others. Taken all in all a good program has been arranged, and as large a crowd as was in attendance at the Fourth is expected.

Bested The Alpiners.

Armed with cane knives, Mr. Hugh M. Coke, the wellknown and popular school teacher of Waihee and Mr. Sam Dowdle of Makawao, took to mountain climbing Tuesday of this week which for a jaunt has the local Alpine Club backed off the boards.

In company with a Japanese these two gentlemen attacked Waiehu Valley and cut their way to the summit, and following the ridge worked their way along over to Kukui hill on Iao Valley. Headed by the Japanese, Messrs Coke and Dowdle had to fairly cut their way through the dense lantana and other brush, but as told by them they were royally rewarded for their pains by the view obtained. At one time or another Kahului, Kihui, Olowalu, and Lahaina were all visible in grand panoramic display, and it was the intention of the climbers to make for the later town but on reaching the summits of Iao it clouded up and being lazy they decided to abandon the Lahaina trip this time, although latter they will take the same route, which on account of the trail now being cut, better time can be made when they propose to descend on the Lahaina side.

Confidence

Webster defines "confidence" as a "feeling of security". On the other hand, an act of deception practiced upon someone to his annoyance or injury is sometimes called a "confidence game". There are confidence games in all lines of business. In matters of vital importance, such as the examination of the eyes and the purchase of glasses, it is a comfort to know that you are placing your business where you can also place your confidence.

SYNOPSIS

Chapters I and II—Uncle Terry is the keeper of the Cape light on Southport island. He has an adopted daughter, Telly (Etelka), grown to womanhood, who was rescued when a babe from the wreck of the Norwegian ship Peterson. C. III—Albert and Alice Page are two orphans with a heritage of debt, living in the village of Sandgate. Albert is a college graduate, and through the influence of his chum, Frank Nason, gets a position in the law office of "Old Nick" Frye in Boston. C. IV—Frye is a scoundrel and is the attorney for Frank's father, a wealthy Boston merchant. He wants Albert to keep up his intimacy with Frank, who has a yacht, plenty of money and nothing to do but amuse himself. C. V. In an evening's outing with Frank, Albert fritters away $20. At the same time Alice is walking four miles a day to teach school and supporting herself and Aunt Susan.

CHAPTER VI.

PAGE was a little late at the office the next morning, and Frye was there ahead of him. "I was out with young Nason last evening," he explained as the old lawyer bade him a rather crusty good morning, "and I overslept." "Oh, that is all right," responded Frye in an instantaneously sweetened tone. "I am glad you were, and, as I told you, you are wise to cultivate him. I suppose," he continued, with a leer, "that you were buying wine for some of the gay girls?" Page looked confused. "Well, we went to the theater and after that had a late supper," he explained, "and it was after 1 before I returned to my room." "I don't care how late you are out or what you did," said Frye, still eying Page, "so long as you were with young Nason and kept out of the lock-up. His father pays me a salary to look after his business, and his son is the pride of his heart. I trust you understand my meaning. If you don't feel like work this morning," he continued suavely, "mount your wheel and take a run out to Winchester and see if that mortgage on the Seaver estate has been satisfied. The exercise and air will do you good."

Page was nonplussed. "He has some deep laid plot in his mind," he thought as he looked at Frye. He was glad to escape the office, however, for his head felt full of bees, and, thanking his employer for the permission, he quickly left the city behind him. The crisp October air and exercise soon drove away some of the self reproaches at his own foolish conduct of the night before. The errand at Winchester was attended to, and then he headed back for the city, taking another course. By the time he reached town he was faint from hunger, for he had eaten no breakfast. A good dinner restored him to his natural self possession, and then he went to the office.

For a week he reproached himself every time he thought how much his escapade had cost and felt too ashamed to answer Alice's letter. When he did he assured that innocent sister that he was saving all he could and should send more money as soon as possible. Frank called twice and the second time urged him to join the club, to which Page assented.

"It will serve as a place to spend a lonesome evening," he thought. Several times Frye had made casual inquiries as to the progress of his intimacy with young Nason, all of which led Page to wonder what his object was and why it concerned him. At last, one day at closing time and after he had told the office boy he might go, Frye led a little light into that enigma. "Sit down a moment, Mr. Page," he remarked as the latter was preparing to leave. "I have a proposition of an important nature to make to you." And then as he fixed his merciless eyes on his clerk and began to slowly rub his hands together he continued: "You have been nearly three months in my employ, Mr. Page, and have fulfilled your duties satisfactorily. I think the time has come when I may safely enlarge them a little. As I told you, John Nason pays me a yearly retainer to attend to all his law business. I have reason to feel he is not entirely satisfied to continue that arrangement, and I am forced to find some way to bring a little pressure to bear on him in order that he may see it is for his interest to still retain me.

"Now, I believe John Nason is not entirely happy in his home relations and that a certain young lady receives a share of his attentions. While they are never seen in public together, gossip links their names. What I want is for you to find out through your acquaintance with the Nasons just what bond there is between the elder Nason and the young lady and report to me. I do not intend to use the knowledge for any illegal purpose, but merely as a leverage to retain Nason's business. I am aware that to prosecute your inquiries discreetly by means of your intimacy with young Nason will require more money than I am paying you, and therefore, if I can depend on you to do a little detective work, I shall from now on increase your salary from $75 to $175. What do you say?" The first impulse that Page felt was to absolutely refuse there and then to have anything to do with Frye's nefarious scheme, but the thought of his situation, the unpaid debt at home and the certainty that a refusal would mean a loss of his position conquered his pride and kept him silent. For a moment he reflected, trying hard to see a way out of the dilemma, and then said:

"It is rather a hard task you ask, Mr. Frye, for I am not accustomed to the role of detective, but I am in your employ, and as long as I am I will do the best I can for your interests." It was a temporizing reply, and Frye so construed it at once. "I must insist if you accept my offer," he said, "that you give me your promise to do your best to earn the money. It doesn't pay to be too squeamish in this world," he continued in a soothing tone. "All business is to a certain extent a game of extortion—a question of do the other fellow or he will do you." Then arising and holding out a skinny hand to grasp Page's, he added, "I shall expect you to keep faith with me, Mr. Page," and the interview ended.

When Albert met Frank at the club that evening he was preoccupied and morose, and Frank, noticing his frame of mind, tried to cheer him. "You look as if you had been given a facer, old man," he said. "What is the matter? Has Frye been calling you down for something?" Page looked at his friend a moment, and the impulse to make a clean breast of it and relieve his feelings was strong, but he did not.

"I do not like Frye," he said instead, "and the more I see of him the less I like him. At times he makes me feel as if he was a snake ready to uncoil and strike. Have you ever noticed his eyes and the way he has of rubbing his hands when talking?" "I have," was the answer, "and he has the most hideous eyes I ever saw in a human being. They look like a cat's in the dark. Dad told me once he saw Frye look at a witness he was cross examining in such a way that the poor fellow forgot what his name was and swore black was white. Those eyes are vicious weapons, they say, and he uses them to the utmost when he wants to scare a witness." "They make me feel creepy every time I look at them," said Albert, and then, as if anxious to change the subject, he added: "Let's leave here, Frank, and you come with me to my room, where we can have a quiet talk together. I am in the dumps tonight and want to unbosom my troubles to you."

CHAPTER VII.

WHAT all you, old man?" asked Frank after they were seated in Albert's room and were smoking fraternal pipes. "You look as if you had lost your best friend." "I did, last June, as you know," was the rather sad answer, "and on top of that I hate myself for one or two things—for instance, the escapade we indulged in the other night, and being Frye's slave, for another."

"I am sorry for the first," responded Frank. "It was my fault that you were coaxed into it. I won't do it again, I assure you. Don't worry over it, my boy. It wasn't anything serious; only just a little after theater fun and hearing those sporty girls talk slang."

"Yes, and spending a lot of money for very poor fun," replied Albert. "I don't think any better of myself for doing it, do you?" "Oh, I don't think about it one way or the other," answered Frank. "I have so much time to kill, and that's no worse than any other way."

"Well, of course it's all right, and as you do not think any the less of yourself for doing it there is no harm," replied Albert. "Only I do, and so it is worse for me than for you." "Now, you have a mother and sisters who think well of you, no doubt. How would you have felt to have had any one of them peep in that night and see what manner of company you were in? My mother is in her grave, but maybe she could see where I was and with whom I was that evening, and the thought makes me feel mean. I have a sister, one of the purest and sweetest little women God ever blessed the earth with, and not for all that I can earn in one year would I have her know what a foolish thing I did. For two days I was so ashamed of myself I felt miserably."

Frank sat in stupefied silence at his friend's outburst. "If I had imagined you were going to feel that way, old man," he said at last, "I would never have urged you to go with me. I never will again, I assure you."

"Oh, I am as much to blame as you," observed Albert. "I went willingly, but after it was all over I was sorry I did. I am no prude. I enjoy a little excitement and don't mind a social evening with a few friends, but it doesn't pay to do things you despise yourself for the next day." "But," put in his friend, with a quizzical look, "do you know you are preaching a sermon, and I rather like it, too? It sets me thinking. As for such girls as we wined, I don't care a rap for them. If I could find any other and better amusement they might go hang for all I care. I try tennis and golf with fellows and girls in our set, but that is tame sport. I go to 'functions' once in awhile, and if I dance twice with a pretty girl who has no dot motherly glares at me and says I've no family pride. Most of the girls talk silly nonsense that wears a fellow, and the more passive they are the worse they gush. The only thing I really enjoy is yachting, and then I have trouble to find good fellows who have time to go with me. Once in awhile I get disgusted with myself and wish I had to work for a living." Albert looked surprised. Was it possible that this young and handsome fellow, with dark brown honest eyes, curly black hair and garb and manner of refinement, who never had known what it was to work, really wanted to earn his own way in the world, just from sheer ennui?

"It seems to me you have everything to be thankful for, Frank," Albert said at last in a dejected tone—"a kind father, good home, plenty of friends, a nice yacht, all the money you want and nothing to do. With me it is different. Would it bore you if I unloaded a little of my history?"

"Not a bit," answered Frank. "I would really like to hear it." "Well," continued Albert, "when we were at college I was a little too proud to let you know I was the only son of a poor widow who was denying herself every luxury to educate me, but it was a fact. After we separated I tutored some, read law and was admitted to the bar. I opened an office in my native town and wasted a year waiting for clients, while I read novels, sketched and fished to pass the time. Last June my mother died and left my sister and me an old house that has been in the family over a century, a few acres of meadow lands and maybe $200 in debts. Then I wrote to you. I was more than grateful for the chance you obtained for me to work for even such a man as Frye. I am paying those debts as fast as I can, and my sister is helping by teaching in a crossroad schoolhouse and walking four miles each day to do it."

"And I coaxed you to go out and spend money on a couple of ballet girls!" responded Frank regretfully. "Say, old man," reaching out his hand and clasping Albert's, "if I had known all this that evening I would have bitten my tongue before I asked you to go with me."

"That is all right," replied Albert. "I should have told you that night what I have told you now, but maybe I was a little ashamed to do so." "I would like to see that brave sister of yours," said Frank after a pause. "From what you tell me, she must be a trump."

Albert made no answer, but going to the mantel he took a framed photograph that stood there and handed it to his friend. It was a picture of a young girl with a face like an artist's dream and eyes like two pansies.

Frank gazed at it long and earnestly. "Your sister, I suppose," he said at last, still looking at the face. "I do not wonder you preached me the sermon you have this evening. You must be proud of her." When it came time for him to go the two shook hands with a warmer clasp than ever, and when he was gone the little room did not seem quite so cheerless to its occupant as before.

CHAPTER VIII.

ISHOULD like to be excused tomorrow forenoon, Mr. Frye," said Albert a few days later. "Frank has promised to introduce me to his father."

"Certainly," replied Frye cheerfully. "Take the entire day if you wish, and if you have a good chance try to make the acquaintance of the young lady of whom I spoke to you, or at least take a good look at her. She is the key that will unlock the information I need, and I shall depend upon you to obtain it."

"I will keep my eyes open," replied Albert aloud, mentally resolving that it would not be in the interest of Frye and his sinister plot. The next day he met Frank by appointment, and the two called upon John Nason at his office. Albert was greeted cordially, and after an exchange of commonplaces soon found himself being interrogated by a series of questions pertaining to his home and college life, his knowledge of law and how he liked

Albert was greeted cordially, his present employer. They were for a purpose, as all of John Nason's business questions were, and at their conclusion he said: "I am glad to have met you, Mr. Page. My son has spoken in the highest terms of you, and what has interested me more, Mr. Frye has also. He does not usually bestow much praise on any one, but is more apt to sneer. After you are a little better acquainted with legal proceedings here, come and see me. I may be able to do something for you. You might," addressing Frank, as if to end the interview, "show Mr. Page over the store now; it may interest him."

After an hour spent walking through the vast human hive, where over 1,000 clerks and salesgirls were employed, the two friends returned to their club for lunch.

"Well, what do you think of the old gent?" asked Frank as he sat down. "I like him," was the answer. "He talks to the purpose, though, and I fancy his rapid fire questions were for an object."

"You may be sure they were," replied Frank, "and, what is more, I saw by his expression that you had made a good impression. Do you know what I did the other day? I told him all about our escapade with the two chorus girls and repented all I could recall of the sermon you preached about it."

Albert looked astonished. "I am sorry you did that," he said. "He must have thought me very weak not to have refused in the first place. Do you make a practice of confessing all your larks to your father?" "Oh, I don't conceal much," answered Frank laughingly. "He and I are the best of friends, and he is so good to me I haven't the heart to deceive him. I had an object in telling him of our racket, however." And then, after a pause: "I wish you were to be at liberty this afternoon, Bert. I am going to take the Gypsy round to Beverly to her winter quarters and I'd like your company."

"Well, I can go if I've a mind to," answered Albert. "Frye said I might take a day off if I wished." Frank looked astonished. "Isn't he in danger of heart failure?" he said. "The old buzzard must be getting stuck on you, I should say."

When the two had boarded the yacht and while the engineer was getting up steam Frank showed his guest over that craft. "I am surprised at the size of your boat," said Albert. "Why, she is large enough for an ocean voyager!"

"We may take one in her some day," replied Frank. "I believe she cost over $80,000, but dad bought her for less than half that at an assignee's sale."

When steam was up they took a run out around Mino's light and across to Cape Ann, and as the day was a delightful one Albert enjoyed it immensely. At Beverly they went ashore and, leaving the crew to moor the yacht in the stream between the two bridges, returned to Boston.

It was almost Thanksgiving time ere Albert saw Mr. Nason again, and then one day Frank said to him: "I want you to call on dad tomorrow. He wants to see you."

The next day Albert took the elevator to the fourth floor, where Mr. Nason's private office was, and with beating heart entered. His greeting was more cordial than before, and Mr. Nason, who, it may be observed, was a man that went about business as a woodcutter chops a tree, said:

"Are you under contract or obligation to remain with Mr. Frye any specified time, Mr. Page?" "Nothing more than to give him a reasonable notice that I wish to quit," replied Albert. "I am paid so much a month for the present, as he put it when I went there, and I certainly shall leave him as soon as I see any chance of bettering myself."

"That being the case, I see no reason why you cannot entertain the proposition I have decided to make you," said the merchant, "which is that you sever your relations with Mr. Frye between now and the first of the year, and then take hold and see what you can do in looking after my legal matters. The fact is, Mr. Page, as I intimated to you a short time ago, I am not entirely satisfied with Mr. Frye. Just why need not be considered now. The only point is, do you feel yourself capable of acting as my attorney and assuming charge of any law business that may arise?"

"Well, so far as my knowledge of the law goes," replied Albert, "I passed a good examination when I was admitted to the bar, I had some practice in Sandgate, and since I've been with Frye I've learned a good deal of the usual procedure here. I think I can do all that is necessary."

"My needs in a legal line are not complicated," continued Mr. Nason; "it is mostly looking up deeds and making transfers, seeing that titles are clear, etc. You will have to watch the custom officers, and there are more or less collections to be made. Occasionally I have to resort to the courts, but try to avoid them as much as possible."

"I think I could attend to all such matters to your satisfaction," said Albert confidently; "they are not hard tasks."

"Very well," replied Mr. Nason. "I have decided, partly at the request of my son and partly from my own estimate of your ability, to give you the trial. I will pay you twenty-five hundred dollars per annum to look after my needs, and you are also at liberty to take such other business as comes to you so long as you do not neglect mine."

"I thank you, Mr. Nason, for this offer," replied Albert, rising and proffering his hand, "and I accept gladly and will devote all my time, if need be, to your service."

"Very good," responded Mr. Nason; "separate yourself from Frye at once, or between now and the new year, and in the meantime I would suggest that you rent a suitable office. There are one or two vacant in a building I own on Water street that will serve very well, and when you are through with Mr. Frye come and see me. I shall consider you in my employ from now on, and as you may need funds in fitting up your office I will advance you a little on your salary," and without further comment he turned to his desk and wrote and handed Albert a check for $500. "I should prefer," he added hastily, as if to prevent any word of thanks, "that you make no mention whatever of our agreement to Mr. Frye, or in fact to any one, until after January 1st." Then rising and offering his hand to Albert as if to dismiss him, he added: "Come out to my house any evening, Mr. Page. We shall be glad to see you, and I am usually at home." There are moments when our emotions nullify all attempts at speech, and to Albert Page this was such a one. "Never mind the thanks now," said Mr. Nason as he saw Albert's agitation. "Put your thanks into your work and in a year we will talk it over." "And this is the man I had almost hired myself out to spy upon!" said Albert to himself as he left the store.

Mrs. Beaymer Wins Title to Property.

HONOLULU, July 10.—Judge De Bolt, after a hearing, rendered an oral judgment for plaintiff in the case of Kate L. Braymer vs. Henry Waerhouse Trust Co. and others, action to quiet title. A. S. Humphreys appeared for plaintiff, and A. G. M. Robertson for defendants. The contest was over property in Baretania street, the lot having an area of 6848 square feet. Possession had been taken of it by the H. W. Trust Co., trustee of the estate of the late W. H. Cornwell, and each and all of Blanche C. Walker, Wm. H. Cornwell and Josephine L. Cornwell, children of the decedent, claimed an estate and interest in the property and denied that the plaintiff had any other than an undivided one-fourth interest therein.

Jury was waived and at the hearing the plaintiff exhibited a warranty deed to the property, from her father to herself for the consideration of one dollar and love and affection, the instrument having been executed on December 18, 1902. Judge De Bolt found, the defendants excepting, that the title of plaintiff to the land be quieted in her and adjudged good and valid, and that defendants be barred from asserting any claim whatsoever thereto.

Facts in Our Railroad History.

The first team railroad in operation in this county was used by the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company in 1822 to carry coal from its mines to the canal for shipment to New York. The track was sixteen miles long. The rails, of rolled iron 4 by 21 inches, were spiked, broad side down, to hemlock joists laid on cross ties ten feet apart. The engine in its trial made ten miles an hour.

The Baltimore and Ohio was the first American road to organize on an extensive system. Begun in 1828, it had in 1835 a track mileage of 115.

The first trains between New York and Philadelphia ran on the Camden and Amboy, which road was begun in 1832 and completed in 1837, and is now part of the Pennsylvania Railroad system.

The Pennsylvania was chartered in 1846. Construction was begun in the following year, and the road was opened in 1851. Trains to Chicago were first run over this in 1858, a fact which lends added interest to the present triumph over distance and time in the eight-hour schedule between New York and Chicago.

The first Western State to possess a railroad was Michigan, in 1836. Illinois, Mississippi and Indiana followed in 1839, 1841 and 1842. Railroad building in California began in 1856, and in the sixties seven of our western States followed. Arizona had no railroads prior to 1879, and Oklahoma gave no pasturage to the iron horse until 1886.

In the pioneer days of railroading it was sometimes necessary for the conductor to run forward over the roofs of the cars to shout orders to the engineer. Traveling at night was generally avoided, though one road adopted the expedient of running ahead of the locomotive a flat car loaded with sand, on which a bonfire was kept burning as a headlight. On some early lines horses were used to help the trains on up grades, so that the cry "get a horse" may be of earlier date than is supposed.

In 1898 Germany had 30,000 miles of railroad; Great Britain, 21,000; France, 25,000; Russia, 26,000; and Austria-Hungary, 21,000. No other country had a mileage in five figures—except the United States, with the modest figure of 186,000, nearly 20,000 more than all of Europe.—New York Sun.

Father: "Well, Julia, if I allow young Smithers to become my son-in-law do you suppose he will be willing to work and support you?" Julia: "Oh, papa, how can he when he has promised to do nothing but think of me all the time?"—Chicago Journal.

Norway and Sweden.
 SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—While no agreement has yet been reached whereby the Swedish Government consents to accept Norway's dissolution of the union of the two nations, and some fiery speeches were delivered in the Riksdag during a debate over the submission of a bill of settlement to a special committee, the act of separation will, in all probability, be finally agreed to and Norway's independence acknowledged. There is not enough at stake to warrant an appeal to arms to sustain the union, which has long been to both more a matter of sentiment than one of mutual profit. War between the two countries would only create bad blood and hatreds which it would take generations to eradicate.
 The two nations have had really nothing in common since the bond was formed, in 1814, excepting that they were ruled by one monarch. Each supported its own naval and military establishments. Each managed its domestic affairs independently. Their foreign policies differed radically. This created an anomalous situation in the diplomatic and consular service, which formed the bone of contention and brought about the rupture of the union. In their commercial relations they were as foreign to one another as either was to any alien nation. Premier Ramstedt took the common-sense view of the situation when he advocated, in his speech before the Riksdag, that "a conquered Norway, while of no advantage, would forever be a source of danger." He, therefore, temperately advised that "it is best to assist in the dissolution of the union without harsher conditions than the future safety of the peninsula demands." This is equivalent to suggesting that Norway's independence be recognized, on the sole condition that the two nations shall enter into a treaty for mutual defense. Doubtless the two nations can live in peace and as friendly neighbors, indefinitely, and as each country has an abundance of natural resources which, when developed, will make its people prosperous and happy, there is no reason to assume that the dissolution of the union will affect either injuriously.

Reserves Taken At Their Home.
 ST. PETERSBURG, June 28.—An imperial edict prescribes mobilization for active service of reservists in 124 districts of St. Petersburg, Moscow, Kieff, Warsaw and Vilna. These districts include the cities of St. Petersburg and Moscow.
 The mobilization in St. Petersburg and Moscow began at midnight. Many of the reserve men who did not respond were seized during the time at their homes. All day long men have been marched to barracks under escort. The mobilization includes Tsarskoe-Selo, Cachina, Peterhof and other towns in St. Petersburg province. The workmen are grumbling and trouble is expected, but thus far no rioting has occurred. Sixty thousand men have been called to the colors. Of this number about half will be incorporated into regiments.

Many German Warships Antiquated.
 BERLIN, June 30.—The German Naval League in a regular news bulletin says the lesson of the Battle of the Sea of Japan is that the best type of warship is the battleship of the largest displacement, equipped with the heaviest possible guns and armor. The league notes that the Japanese torpedo boats attacked after the Russian fleet had been weakened.

The armored corvette Hansa, the first warship built under the German Empire and which was laid down at Dantzig in 1872, is offered for sale to the highest bidder. She lies at Kiel with several other old vessels stricken off the navy list.
 A writer in Die Grenzboten, which contains official communications, analyzes the German navy as follows:
 "Of thirty-eight battleships on paper, including those laid down or authorized by the naval program, thirteen are called 'old boxes,' scarcely fit for harbor defense. No. 38 has not yet been begun. Of the remainder, only ten approach the modern battleships of other Powers in size and gun power. The task before the Government is defined to be to replace the antiquated ships with modern vessels."

Genevieve Dowsett Is a Heroine
 San Francisco July 1. The heroine of the hour in social circles in this city just now is Miss Genevieve Dowsett of Honolulu, the beautiful sister of Mrs. Frederick Knight, whose guest she is here. Miss Dowsett has won for herself a reputation for bravery and presence of mind such as might be envied by any one, but bears her honors with becoming modesty and is disposed to make light of her own courage in the matter. She was last week the guest of George Grays of Oakland at their country place at Noyo river with young Prentiss Gray, who achieved considerable fame as left guard on the University of California football team in 1904.

Miss Dowsett was in the bow of the boat and some slight jar resulted in her falling overboard. Gray leaped at once to her rescue, although, as was proved by subsequent events, Miss Dowsett is a remarkably strong and confident swimmer. As he jumped overboard, Gray, in some manner, became unconscious; whether he struck his head on a submerged pile or on the oar, or what was the reason is not known, but as he rose Miss Dowsett saw his condition. She manifested a remarkable presence of mind, for as soon as she grasped the situation, she swam to the young man, seized him firmly and kept him above water until she could receive aid. Gray's sisters and Al Coogan, a fraternity brother, were on the shore, and were greatly alarmed by the occurrence—so much so, in fact that Miss Gray fainted. Coogan started to jump into the water also to relieve Miss Dowsett of her unconscious burden, but she with the calmness which characterized her actions throughout, called to him to get a boat, as he would otherwise be unable to do any good. Mr. Coogan, in his haste, jumped into a boat which was tied firmly to the landing, but soon discovered his mistake, and rowed to where Miss Dowsett and Gray had drifted some distance down the stream. Gray was a heavy burden to attempt to lift into the boat, and in their efforts they nearly caused the boat to capsize. They finally got him to the shore, but he was unconscious for some hours, and great alarm was felt as to his condition. He has since entirely recovered and is now feeling no ill effects from his accident.
 Gray is the football player who went through the great game last November with two broken ribs and a foot in which he had had blood poisoning for two days; but so great was his desire to fill his place on the team that he played during the first half in spite of the excruciating agony he suffered. The result was so serious that it was feared for some time that amputation of the foot would be necessary. Miss Dowsett is a Honolulu girl and has been visiting here for some months past, during which time she has made many friends and has been extensively entertained.

No Mercy To Mitchell.
 PORTLAND (Or.), June 28.—The case of United States Senator Mitchell will not go to the jury before to-morrow night at the earliest and probably not until some time Friday. The session of the court to day was consumed by District Attorney Heney in finishing his argument for the prosecution, and when he completed it court was adjourned until tomorrow.
 Judge Bennett will commence his argument in behalf of Senator Mitchell to-morrow morning and it will be followed by Senator Thurston. Heney will then make his final argument.
 If time remains Judge De Haven will give his charge to-morrow. This, however, seems very unlikely unless the lawyers for the defense consume much less time than it is believed they will.
 Heney in his argument to day traced the transactions of the firm of Mitchell & Tanner in land matters from the time the Senator asked for a copy of the firm's books covering the period from November, 1901, until June, 1902. In his arraignment of the defendant he charged him with having been the cause of the perjury committed by Tanner and his son.
 He also accused the Senator of attempting to suborn his private secretary, Harry Robertson, to testify in accordance with the false defense outlined. Heney was merciless and caused the face of the defendant to flame and pale with passion.

Disowned For Her Perfidy.
 CHICAGO, June 28.—Stung by what he terms "a daughter's perfidy," William Cleaver Wilkinson, professor of literature and criticism at the University of Chicago, and known the country over as the author of the "Chadtauqua series of text books," has disowned his daughter, Evelyn, because of her marriage to Nathan W. Stowell, the Los Angeles millionaire. His action was due to the romance which resulted in Stowell, who is 53 years old, divorcing his companion of years and marrying twenty-two-year old Evelyn.
 The story is told by her father as follows: "When we were in Los Angeles with Evelyn, we were called home suddenly and left her as she had been ill. Mrs. Stowell came forward and out of the goodness of her loyal heart, invited my daughter to be her guest in her beautiful residence. As the invitation came from Mrs. Stowell it was accepted. That was fourteen months ago. For a month my daughter stayed under Mrs. Stowell's roof and partook of her most generous hospitality. Then she came back to us. Unbeknown to us she received letters from Stowell. Then he went to El Paso to take up his pretended residence there so as to be able to obtain a divorce. They were married June 12th and are at present at the Portland Fair."

Swallow Carried Appeal.
 ROME, July 1.—A swallow has been used by a prisoner confined on the Island of Porto Longone to carry a petition to the minister of justice. Signor Jachola, keeper of the Camp lighthouse on the Island of Elba, captured the bird not far from the spot where Napoleon Bonaparte himself was at one time held practically a prisoner. Noticing a scrap of paper which was attached to one of its feet he removed it, and found it was a letter written by Bruno Cataldo, who stated that he had been wrongfully convicted of murder and that he had been in prison since 1855. It added that the swallow, having entered through the grating of his cell, Cataldo had attached the appeal to its foot, hoping that it might be forwarded to the minister of justice or to the king. The letter has been transmitted by Signor Jachola to the department of justice, and the minister of justice has ordered a thorough examination into the case for the purpose of determining whether the prisoner's declarations of innocence have any foundation in fact.

President Sends a Message To Kaiser.
 CAMBRIDGE (Mass.), June 28.—President Roosevelt to-day sent the following cablegram to Emperor William:
 "I have just been visiting at Harvard University, and the Germanic Museum, the foundation of which we so largely owe to your interest. I take this occasion to thank you and the German people for many acts of courtesy and kindness which in recent years have steadily brought closer together the German and American peoples. This growing friendship between the two nations means much for the future welfare of mankind, and I wish to thank you for the efforts you have made to foster it."
"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."
Harvard Honors Choate.
 CAMBRIDGE (Mass.), June 28.—Joseph H. Choate of the class of '52, late Ambassador to Great Britain, was elected president of the Association of the Alumni of Harvard College to day. He succeeds Bishop William Lawrence of Boston. The vice-presidents chosen include President Roosevelt.

More Fever On The Isthmus.
 WASHINGTON, June 28.—Governor Magoon at Panama has reported three new cases of yellow fever.
 Patient: "Doctor, it hurts me awfully to cough."
 Dr. Snapper: "Then I wouldn't do it; wouldn't do it."
 Patient: "But how can I help it?"
 Dr. Snapper: "Ah, that's a question in physiology! You'll have to consult Dr. Groper. I confine myself to pathological cases."—Boston Transcript.

Coke; 2nd assistant chief E. H. Rogers; foreman, W. T. Robinson; assistant foreman, J. F. Welch; delegate, W. E. Bal; secretary, J. Garcia; treasurer, L. M. Baldwin.

Won Fame By His Ability.

John Hay was born at Salem, Ind., on October 8, 1838. He was graduated from Brown University, at Providence, R. I., in 1858, and on leaving college entered the office of Abraham Lincoln, in Springfield, Ill., to study law. He was taken into the latter's law office, and in 1861 was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of Illinois. In that same year he went with Lincoln to Washington and served as his assistant private secretary until Lincoln's death, with the exception of a brief interval, during which he served as adjutant and aide-de-camp to the President, and served in the field for a few months under Generals Hunter and Gilmore. In the latter capacity he rose to the rank of Major, and was subsequently brevetted Lieutenant-Colonel and Colonel.

After the death of Lincoln he was made secretary of the legation at Paris, remaining there until 1867, when he became Charge d'Affaires at Vienna. After holding this post for a year he resigned and returned to the United States, but was sent almost immediately to Madrid as secretary of the legation and remained there until 1870. During his service abroad he gained a valuable knowledge not only of the language and literature of the chief European nations, but also of foreign diplomacy and politics.

On his return to the United States he took up journalism, and was for a time on the editorial staff of the New York Tribune, and published, mostly in its columns, his "Pike County Ballads." After five years' service on the Tribune he married a daughter of Amasa Stone of Cleveland, O., and went to that city to live. He devoted himself mainly to literary work, and occasionally took in politics writing and speaking in the Presidential campaigns.

Madman Saved From Desert.

RIVERSIDE, June 30.—Frank Seaman, naked and with his eyes sunken and cheekbones almost protruding through the flesh, stood on the tracks of the Southern Pacific, out on the desert, twenty miles west of India, this morning and stopped an overland train. When the train crew went toward him he attempted to run away and resisted efforts to rescue him. Seaman had been lost on the desert since Tuesday morning without food or water. He had thrown away all his clothing, a gold watch and a small sum of money. Seaman is now at the County Hospital, where it is said he will recover.

Stanley Dollar in Trouble.

People who have been looking into the Federal statutes governing shipping are inclined to think that if a purely technical point were to be raised against the S. S. Stanley Dollar, that vessel would be liable to fines which would aggregate between $50,000 and $60,000.

The vessel has no licence to carry passengers and this is the reason for her being held up so long in this port but in spite of her not having any licence, she has been housing Japanese passengers or boarders or whatever else they can be called since June 28. The vessel arrived in Honolulu June 27 from Yokohama, the intention being to take 600 Japanese passengers to the mainland. The Japs went aboard of her the following morning but during the day the troubles of the vessel began and some of the Japanese left her. In order to save wharfage fees and to prevent the remainder of the Japanese from leaving the vessel she hauled away from the wharf into the stream. According to the statements of the owner of the craft between 500 and 600 Japs were on her when she went into the stream.

It is now held by some that in taking the Japanese aboard and keeping them there when she had no right to take passengers even though the craft merely went into the stream, a technical violation of the law was committed. The fine for each passenger is $100 so when the passengers are numbered by the hundred, it will be readily seen what a costly proposition the mistake might be. However the matter is purely a technical one and so far as is now known, the authorities do not intend to press the charge against the vessel, but there are some who are of the opinion that the vessel has laid herself liable to seemingly countless number of fines. —Star.
