HAWAIIAN BONDS SELL TO LOCAL CAPITALIST

W. G. Irwin Takes Entire Issue—Illicit Liquor
Selling Decreases—Circuit Court Clerk
in Trouble—Flags For Schools.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS APPOINT.

Harry Copp Captain of Police, Wailuku.—Chas. Gay Road Supervisor, Lanai.—Approve of Salaries and Supplies Demands.

IRWIN HOLDS OLD BONDS.

HONOLULU, Aug. 2.—The man who purchased the Territorial refunding bonds, Mr. William G.
Irwin, is the holder of $369,000 of the five per cent bonds which it is purposed to refund with the three per cents for which the gentleman has given a premium. That fact, however, will but make the transaction the easier to carry out, and the same premium will be paid on the price of this lot as on the balance. The rest of the $600,000 in bonds to be refunded will be called in by the Territorial Treasurer and the whole transaction will be closed up by the first of October.

The most favorable comment was heard on the streets and in financial circles yesterday upon the bond transaction carried through by Acting Governor Atkinson and Treasurer Campbell.
Very generally the opinion was voiced that nothing better could have happened for the credit of the territory. There seems to have been small doubt that there was a combination in Wall street, in a quiet way, to get control of the entire Hawaiian bond issue. It is a good investment for idle money,
and the banks could use the bonds.

And, of course, if the bonds were to be peddled about to the New York bond houses, nothing in the world could have prevented the success of the combination. In fact, under the circumstances, Hawaii has been lucky in the past to sell its bonds as well as it did. For the bond houses would keep each other advised of each new issue, and would not bid against each other. The fact that the refunding bonds have been taken up by local capital breaks the combination absolutely.

ILLICIT SELLING DECREASES.

HONOLULU, Aug. 1.—Since
the new law went into effect 87 retail liquor licenses have been issued on the Island of Oahu alone. A peculiar feature of the law's operations is the taking out of such licenses by firms like H.
Hackfeld & Company which are now in a position to sell drinks at a bar if they want to. They do not do so, but need the retail license in order to be able to fill small orders.

There have been 35 third-class licenses, 49 fifth-class and 128 fourth-class issued under the new law, representing a revenue of $87,400 for the Territory. This year some of this is counterbalanced by advance payments on old licenses, which are deducted when new licenses are paid for.

The third-class licenses are for wholesalers. There are 19 of these on Oahu, 7 on Hawaii, 5 on Maui, and 4 on Kauai. Of the fifth-class allowing sale of liquor in quantities less than five gallons

there are 18 on Oahu, 6 on Maui, and 2 on Molokai. The fourth class, or retail, are 87 on Oahu, 20 on Hawaii, 19 on Maui, 8 on Kauai and 1 on Molokai.

On all the islands licenses have been taken out by Japanese and Chinese stores which have always sold liquor on the quiet in the past.

In the new law it is declared that the payment of the federal special tax for liquor-selling shall be "competent evidence" of the sale of liquor by the party paying such tax. It is this provision which has done much to bring about the reduction in the number of persons paying the special tax.

Another provision of the new law which is believed to have done much to stop the illicit business is that which makes a buyer criminally responsible as well as a seller.

P. D. KELLETT, JR., IN DIS- GRACE.

HONOLULU, Aug. 1.—P. Dan-son Kellett, Jr., clerk to First Circuit Court, is in custody on a charge of embezzlement of trust funds held in his official capacity as an officer of the court. The funds involved in the charge belong to the estate of Barete, and their detention by Kellett has caused, and is causing great distress to the beneficiaries of the estate.

While the amount named in the charge is $834.40, the culprit has admitted detailed charges showing that he has practically wiped out
the entire funds of the estate, amounting to several thousand dollars.

And, worse and worse, the prima facie case involves a separate prosecution for gross cheat, with a tenant of the Barete estate as the victim.

Moreover, there is very liable to be a formidable series of criminal charges against Kellett on account of misappropriations of funds of which he had control belonging to other estates in probate, such as auctioneer's commissions, newspaper advertising bills, etc.

FLAGS FOR THE SCHOOLS.

HONOLULU, August 1.—"I am going to find out the different sizes of flags that are wanted for the several schools by Superintendent Davis," said Superintendent of Public Works Holloway yesterday,
"and order a lot and keep them in stock. And then I suppose that I will have to put flag poles at those schools that have not got them
now. Oh, I don't know how many there are, nor where they are located."

The flag law, passed at the last session of the legislature, provides for the display of the flag on Public School houses, and is generally in line with mainland legislation on the same subject. The theory of the thing is that the flag presents a constant object lesson in patriotism to the scholars, and patriotism is one of the things that the school teacher tries to inculcate.

The habit is to have the flag flying when school is open, the scholars themselves raising it with some appropriate form of exercise. Then, when school is dismissed, the flag is lowered and goes into retirement with the close of the day's work.

The flag idea has been found to work wonderfully well on the mainland, where most of the children are of American blood as well as of American birth, and it is argued that it should work even better here, where the children are of more diverse races,
and where the need for the impressive lessons of patriotism is therefore greater.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS AP- POINT.

The Board of Supervisors of Maui County convened on Monday morning at 11:00 a. m. with all present with the exception of Supervisor
Meyers of Molokai.

The work of the morning session was taken up discussing the sanitary condition of Wailuku and the best means of enforcing the regulations, and other matters preliminary to the afternoon session, when Treasurer Baldwin's report for July was read:—

Receipt for street sprinkling	$23.00
County Tax Fund pro rata	4690.00
	$4713.00
Road Tax Special deposit Lahaina	159.00
" " " Wailuku	1550.00
" " " Makawao	954.00
" " " Hana	1030.00
	$3693.00
	$4713.00

Total $7406.00

Supervisor Henning made the statement that there was undoubtedly an error in the road tax returns from Lahaina as he was under the impression the amount should be something over $1000.00
as reported by the previous road board. The matter will be adjusted later.

Supervisor Church offered a resolution that the sum of $250.00 be appropriated for the period of six months ending December 31st 1905 as a separate fund to be known as the Treasury Warrant Discount Fund. Another resolution by Church was to the effect that the County Treasurer until otherwise instructed be authorized and directed to discount Territorial Treasury warrants at a charge of not more than one per cent of the face value of the warrant. Both resolutions carried.

The night session which met at 7:00 was taken up discussing the demands of the County Officers and business concerns.

Clerk Kaee was instructed to write Supt. Holloway regarding the claim of F. Wittrock for salary for the months of May and June as clerk of the Hana Road Board and to Territorial Treasurer of the claim of H. M. Reuter for Commissions on collections of road taxes from January to July 1905. Adjourned to 9:30 a. m. Aug. 2. The Board met with all present. Supervisor Church was appointed by the chair to confer with the Auditor and Treasurer regarding the drawing up a new demand and warrant form. Discussion regarding the bills presented was had until adjournment. Upon motion a petition from the Kahului Railroad

SATURDAY, AUG. 5, 1905

Purpose of Alliance Eki Hioki, first secretary of the Japanese Legation in an address delivered at the Empire Day Banquet by the United British Societies of Boston, May 24th 1905, in speaking of the purpose of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, said:

"No Japanese need feel himself a stranger when he addresses a British or American audience, excepting for the language he has to use, and in talking to a gathering of Englishmen living in America he doubly feels among friends. We of Japan realize how much we owe to the great Anglo-Saxon nations, how much they have taught us, and how much we have still to learn from them. The object of the alliance, as is well known to you, cannot be better explained than by the language of Lord Lansdowne. In his covering and explanatory despatch to Sir Claude McDonald, British Minister at Tokio, Lord Lansdowne wrote: We have each of us desired that the integrity and independence of the Chinese Empire should be preserved; that there should be no disturbance of the territorial status quo either in China or in the adjoining regions; that all nations within the limits of the Chinese Empire be afforded equal opportunities for the development of their commerce and industry and that their peace should not only be restored, but should in the future be maintained. Here we have in the fewest possible words the spirit that animated Japan, no less than Great Britain. You cannot fail to have been impressed by the spirit of forbearance, patience and absolute fairness displayed by His Majesty's government, and the desire, pushed almost to the extreme limit of generosity to do everything possible to avoid war. But we would have been unworthy of our friends in England as well as in America, we should have forfeited our own self respect, if we had permitted our desire for peace to make us play the part of weaklings and surrender our rights and interests because we were not men enough to defend them. * * * Our national existence was at stake. It is most fitting to quote as an expression of our own desire what was said by President Roosevelt: 'We wish peace, but we wish peace of justice; the peace of righteousness. We wish it because we think it right and not because we are afraid.'"

Mountain Retreat Two hindrances in the past have caused many a tourist to defer his contemplated excursion up to the summit of Haleakala. First the trail has been anything but inviting, and in many places has become obliterated altogether; the other is the matter of accommodations in stormy weather or in case those making the ascent wish to stay over a day and take in the grand sunrise and sunset. As a trail of goodly dimensions will so be made there need be no further comment on this point, but the matter of shelter is one of importance if Maui expects to cater to the tourist trade. The "Retreat" as it has been called, is in a deplorable condition and not fit for human habitation, even for the few hours one has to accept of its shelter. All of the wood work has been used by various parties to make fires; the roof has also disappeared. A list is now being circulated asking for subscriptions in any amount to place the Retreat in proper condition for protection from the elements. The intention being to replace the roof, construct a stone floor in place of a wooden one and make other additions of substantial nature, so that parties desiring to make the ascent can have a suitable covering, and one which vandals cannot destroy. Everyone on Maui, aside from those businesses will derive direct benefit from tourist trade, should assist so far as they are able, to reconstruct this abode. Maui people who have lived on the island for years, make this excursion oftener than residents from the other islands. If the residents then do not take any interest in this matter, it is unreasonable to expect visitors to attempt this trip surrounded by hardships and discomfort.

Dog in the Manger Captain Matson's deal with the Oceanic Steamship Co to take passengers direct from San Francisco to Hilo in the steamer Enterprise is liable to injure Honolulu. It will mean that many tourists will spend a large part, if not all, of their time on Hawaii, giving but little to Honolulu and this island—Independent.

It would be too bad after all the years that Honolulu has enjoyed the privilege of tourists stopping at Honolulu for a few days if a small percentage of this trade should be diverted to one of the other islands first. Yes it might injure Honolulu financially to the extent of a few thousand dollars per annum, but just remember how much Honolulu has injured the other places of interest on Maui and Hawaii, by telling the tourists that there was nothing worth while to be seen on the other islands, that the accommodations were poor etc. That they could see all there was to be seen by staying in Honolulu and spending their money. All kinds of excuses were manufactured to keep the traveling public on Oahu. Talk about your dog in the manger principle.

Our Public Highways The attention of the Supervisors is called to the condition of the roads of the Wailuku district. Travelling men who make the trip from Lahaina to Wailuku periodically are very quick to notice the condition of the roads, and say that it is a very easy matter to distinguish where the roads are within the jurisdiction of the Wailuku board. Undoubtedly the Wailuku road board has more work on its hands to contend with, but where it is possible to do so without sacrificing other work, a public highway like the Pah road, having the traffic it has, should possibly command a little closer attention.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS APPOINT.

By some oversight the labor and police payroll from Molokai was not received.

By a resolution the commission of Charles Buchanan as road overseer for the Lanai part of the Lahaina district was revoked and a commission issued to Charles Gay. Buchanan still holds his commission in all other respects as overseer for the Lahaina district.

At the night session the application of Charles Lake for the position of Captain of Police for the Wailuku district was placed on file. Harry Copp had the support of Sheriff Saffery for this position and upon a motion of Supervisor Cornwell which was seconded and carried, Harry Copp received the appointment.

T. T. Meyers moved that the pay of S. K. Kauihou and S. Kahakaula of Hana as police be increased to $25 per month, motion carried.

Supervisor Cornwell made a motion that the salary of Fukudo holding a special police commission and appointed to Wailuku be reduced to $25.00 per month. A subsequent motion appointed Moses Kahaiwi a special police for Wai-kapu at $25.00 per month.

Adjournment to 9.30 a. m. Aug. 3 was taken.

Aug. 3.—On convening the Board took up the re-consideration of bills 62 and 96. Bill 62 was for the furnishing of telephones to police officers, county offices etc., while bill 96 was for supplies furnished by Kahului Store. Bills approved.

County Attorney Case submitted a draft pertaining to the rights of way for the Kahului Railroad on Maui granting them the rights of way asked. This draft is to be known as ordinance number 1. Leases of the premises over the First National Bank and of Judge Kepoika's offices were signed for one year.

At the afternoon session S. Keilinoi presented a schedule of property in the possession of the Road Board to be turned over to the county. Accepted.

Road overseer Kini was authorized by a resolution to expend $50.00 extra, during the month of August on roads in the Wailuku district.

A communication from Contractor J. Duggan offering to rent the government house and prison vans located at Puuhele for $12.00 per month commencing from July 1st and agreeing to return possession on a written request, was accepted.

The evening session was devoted to the consideration of the sanitary condition of Wailuku and Lahaina. Chairman Henning presented a report from C. B. Cockett on the sanitation of Lahaina. The report was ordered placed on file.

Supervisor Cornwell spoke of the general sanitary condition of Wailuku and particularly of the Waihee method of making poi, and the unsanitary condition of C. Waldeyer's camp.

Supervisor Church, as a committee on claims, pay rolls, and warrant forms, submitted revised forms of demands which were adopted.

Ned Kruger made a verbal application for the position of hack and sanitary inspector. Action on the application was deferred and the Board adjourned to 9:30 a. m. Aug. 4.

Aug. 4.—Morning session. The applications of George Weight, and Manuel Faustino for the position of hack and sanitary inspector were received and ordered placed on file.

The County Attorney was requested to draw up and present an ordinance to regulate the sanitary conditions wherever they may be required.

Clerk Kaae was ordered to have a bulletin board and signs made and put up for the county officers.

The remainder of the forenoon was devoted to drawing up rules of procedure.

Pioneer Industry Plant Sold.

With the selling and razing of the buildings plant, and fixtures of the taro factory of the Hawaiian Fruit and Taro Co., disappears one of the Maui's pioneer industrial landmarks.

The taro factory was built somewhere in the neighborhood of thirty years ago, and was used for the manufacture of taroena, a vegetable food product which is being advertised in the monthly magazines.

Last year a quantity was made up and shipped to New York, and at that time there was some talk of continuing operating the factory, but a sufficient quantity of taro which would warrant making up into taro flower could not be had without paying a prohibitory price.

The ground will revert to the government and will be used for an armory for Company I.

Retires From Politics.

Attorney J. M. Vivas, who at the last county election ran for the office of County Attorney on the Fusion ticket announces that he is out of politics for good.

From what the News considers a reliable source it is stated that the reason Mr. Vivas retires is because the democrats have fused and will work under the Home Rule banner in the future.

Resigns As Treasurer.

Hugh M. Coke has sent in his resignation as Treasurer of the Eighteenth precinct club of Maui County.

Mr. Coke when asked why he took this action intimated that recent recommendations pertaining to county appointments set in by his and other clubs had been flatly ignored.

In his letter of resignation he says his decision is final and under no circumstances will it be reconsidered.

SYNOPSIS

Chapters I and II—Uncle Terry is the keeper of the Cape light on Southport island. He has an adopted daughter Telly (Etelka), grown to womanhood, who was rescued when a babe from the wreck of the Norwegian ship Peterson. C. III—Albert and Alice Page are two orphans with a heritage of debt, living in the village of Sandgate. Albert is a college graduate, and through the influence of his chum, Frank Nason, gets a position in the law office of "Old Nick" Frye in Boston.

C. IV—Frye is a scoundrel and is the attorney for Frank's father, a wealthy Boston merchant. He wants Albert to keep up his intimacy with Frank, who has a yacht, plenty of money and nothing to do but amuse himself. C. V. In an evening's outing with Frank, Albert fritters away $20. At the same time Alice is walking four miles a day to teach school and supporting herself and Aunt Susan. C. VI. At the same time Alice is walking four miles a day to teach school and supporting herself and Aunt Susan. Frye increases Albert's pay from $75 to $175 a month as a bribe to spy upon the Nasons. C. VII and VIII. Albert tells Frank of his debts, Alice's struggles and his dislike of expensive follies. Frank confesses his disgust with an idle life and induces his father to make Albert his attorney in place of Frye. IX and X—Albert has $2,500 a year to attend to Nason's affairs. He takes Frank to his village home for Christmas, with an inevitable result that his friend is smitten with Alice. XII—Frank is delighted with the country holiday of sleighrides and skating. Alice keeps him at a distance and tells her brother that his chum ought to work for a living.

CHAPTER XIII

IN summer Southport island, as yet untainted by the tide of outgoing travel, was a spot to inspire dreams, poetry and canvases covered with ocean lore. Its many coves and inlets where the tides ebbed and flowed among the weed covered rocks, its bold cliffs, sea washed, and above which the white gulls and fishawks circled; the deep thickets of spruce through which the ocean winds murmured and where great beds of ferns and clusters of red bunch berries grew were one and all undisturbed week in, week out.

At the Cape, where Uncle Terry, Aunt Lissy and Telly lived their simple home life, and Bascom, the storekeeper and postmaster, talked unceasingly when he could find a listener, and Deacon Oaks wondered why "the grace of God hadn't freed the land from stuns," no one ever came to disturb its quietude. Every morning Uncle Terry, often accompanied by Telly in a calico dress and sunbonnet, rowed out to pull his lobster traps, and after dinner harnessed and drove to the head of the island to meet the mail boat; then at eventide, after lighting his pipe and the lighthouse lamp at about the same time, generally strolled over to Bascom's to have a chat, while Telly made a call on the "Widder Leach," a misanthropic but pious protegee of hers, and Aunt Lissy read the paper.

Once in about three weeks, according to weather, the monotony of the village was disturbed by the arrival of a small schooner owned jointly by Uncle Terry, Oaks and Bascom, and which plied between the Cape and Boston. Once in two weeks services were held, as usual, in the little brown church, and as often the lighthouse tender called and left coal and oil for Uncle Terry. Regularly on Thursday evenings the few piously inclined, led by Deacon Oaks, gathered in the church to sing hymns they repeated fifty-two times each year, listen to a prayer by Oaks that seldom varied in a single sentence, and heard Aunt Leach thank the Lord for his "many mercies," though what they were in her case it would be hard to tell, unless being permitted to live alone and work hard to live at all was a mercy. The scattered islanders and the handful whose dwellings comprised the Cape worked hard, lived frugally and were unconscious that all around them was a rocky shore whose cliffs and inlets and beaches were so many poems of picturesque and charming scenery.

This was Southport in summer, but in winter, when the little harbor at the Cape was icebound, the winding road to the head of the island buried beneath drifts and the people often for weeks at a time absolutely cut off from communication with the rest of the world, it was a place cheerless in its desolation. Like so many woodchucks then the residents kept within doors or only stirred out to cut wood, fodder the stock and shovel paths so that the children could go to school. The days were short and the evenings long, and to get together and spend hours in labored conversation the only pastime. It was one of those long evenings and when Aunt Lissy and Telly were at a neighbor's and Uncle Terry, left to himself, was reading every line, including the advertisements, in the last Journal, that the following met his eye:

WANTED—Information that will lead to the discovery of an heir to the estate of one Eric Peterson, a landowner and shipbuilder of Stockholm, Sweden, whose son, with his wife, child and crew, was known to have been wrecked on the coast of Maine in March, 1871. Nothing has ever been heard of said Peterson or his wife, but the child may have been saved. Any one having information that will lead to the discovery of this child will be amply rewarded by communicating with NICHOLAS FRYE, Attorney at Law, Pemberton Square, Boston.

"Waal, I'll be everlastingly glad darned!" Uncle Terry exclaimed after he had read it for the third time. "If this don't beat all natur I'm a man!"

It was fortunate he was alone, for it gave him time to think the matter over, and after half an hour of astonishment he decided to say nothing to his wife or Telly.

"I'll jist breathe easy an' sag up," he said to himself, "same as though I was crossin' thin ice, an' if nothin' comes on't nobody 'll be the worse for worryin'."

Then he cut the slip out and hid it in his black leather wallet, and then cut out the entire page and burned it. "Wimmin are sich curis creeters they'd be sure to want to know what I'd cut out o' that page," he said to himself, "an' never rest till I told 'em."

When Aunt Lissy and Telly came home Uncle Terry was as composed as a rock and sat quietly puffing his pipe, with his feet on top of a chair and pointing toward the fire.

"Were you lonesome, father?" asked Telly, who usually led conversation in the Terry home. "We stopped at Bascom's, and you know he never stops talking."

"He's worse'n burdock burs ter git away from," answered Uncle Terry, "an' ye can't be perille ter him unless ye want t' spend the rest o' yer life listennin'. His tongue allus seemed ter be hung in the middle an' wag both ways. I wasn't lonesome," he continued, rising and adding a few sticks to the fire as the two women laid aside their wraps and drew chairs up. "I've read the paper purty well through an' had a spell o' livin' over bygone," and then, turning to Telly and smiling, he added: "I got thinkin' o' the day ye came ashore, an' mother she got that excited she sot the box ye was in on the stove an' then put more wood in. It's a wonder she didn't put ye in the stove instead o' the wood!"

As this joke was not new to the listeners no notice was taken of it, and the three lapsed into silence.

Outside the steady boom of the surf bending on the rocks came with monotonous regularity, and inside the clock ticked. For a long time Uncle Terry sat and smoked on in silence, resuming, perhaps, his bygone, and then said: "By the way, Telly, what's become o' them trinkets o' yours ye had on that day? It's been so long now, 'most twenty years, I 'bout forgot 'em. I s'pose ye hain't lost 'em, hev ye?"

"Why, no, father," she answered, a little surprised. "I hope not. They are all in a box in my bureau, and no one ever disturbs them."

"Ye wouldn't mind fetchin' 'em now, would ye, Telly?" he continued after

She watched him take out the contents, drawing a long whiff of smoke and slowly emitting it in rings. "It's been so many years, an' since I got thinkin' 'bout it I'd like to take a look at 'em, jist to remind me o' that fortunate day ye came to us."

The girl arose and, going upstairs, returned with a small tin box shaped like a trunk and, drawing the table up in front of Uncle Terry, set the box down upon it. As he opened it she perched herself on the arm of his chair and, leaning against his shoulder, passed one arm caressingly around his neck and watched him take out the contents.

First came a soft, fleecy blanket, then two little garments, once whitest muslin, but now yellow with age, and then another smaller one of fannel. Pinned to this were two tiny shoes of knitted wool. In the bottom of the box was a small wooden shoe, and though clumsy in comparison, yet evidently fashioned to fit a lady's foot. Tucked in this was a little box tied with faded ribbon, and in this were a locket and chain, two rings and a scrap of paper. The writing on the paper, once hastily scrawled by a despairing mother's hand, had almost faded, and inside the locket were two faces, one a man's with strongly marked features, the other girlish with big eyes and hair in curls.

These were all the heritage of this waif of the sea who now, a fair girl with eyes and face like the woman's picture, was leaning on the shoulder of her foster father, and they told a pathetic tale of life and death; of romance and mystery not yet unwoven.

How many times that orphan girl had imagined what that tale might be; how often before she had examined every one of those mute tokens; how many times gazed with mute eyes at the faces in the locket; and how, as the years bearing her onward toward maturity passed, had she hoped and waited, hoping ever that some word, some whisper from that faroff land of her birth might reach her!

And as she looked at those mute relics which told so little and yet so much of her history, while the old man who had been all that a kind father could be to her took them out one by one, she realized more than ever what a debt of gratitude she owed to him. When he had looked them over and put them back in the exact order in which they had been packed, he closed the box and, taking the little hand that had been caressing his face in his own moment. When he released it the girl stooped and, pressing her lips to his weather browned cheek, arose and resumed her seat.

"Waal, ye better put the box away now," said Uncle Terry at last. "I'll jist go out an' take a look off'n the 'int, and then it'll be time to turn in."

CHAPTER XIV

"I'VE got ter go ter Boston," said Uncle Terry to his wife a few days later. "Thar's some money due us that we ain't sartin we'll git. You an' Telly can tend the lights for a couple o' nights, can't ye? I won't be gone more'n that. Bascom's to take me up to the head, an' if the boat's runnin' I'll be all right."

This plan had cost Uncle Terry a good deal of diplomacy. Not only did he have to invent a reasonable excuse for going by exciting the fears of both Bascom and Oaks regarding money really due them, but he had to allay the curiosity of his wife and Telly as well. In a small village like the Cape every one's movements were well known to all and commented on, and no one was better aware of it than Uncle Terry. But go to Boston he must, and to do so right in the dead of winter and not excite a small tempest of curious gossip taxed his Yankee wit.

At Bath he had a few hours' wait and went to the bank and drew a sum of money from his small savings.

"Lawyers are sech sharps, consarn 'em!" he said to himself. "I'd better go loaded. Most likely I'll come back skinned. I never did tackle a lawyer 'bout losin' my shirt."

When, after an all night ride, during which he sat in the smoking car with his pipe and thoughts for company, he arrived in Boston, he felt, as he would phrase it, like a cat in a strange garret. He had tried to fortify himself against the expected meeting with this Frye, who, he felt sure, would make him pay dearly for any service. When he entered the rather untidy office of that legal light Uncle Terry looked suspiciously at its occupant.

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?" asked Frye after his visitor had introduced himself.

"Waal," answered Uncle Terry, taking a seat and laying his hat on the floor beside him, "I've come on rather a curis errand. And, taking out the slip he had a few days before placed in his wallet, he handed it to Frye with the remark, "That's my errand."

Frye's face brightened. "I am very glad to see you, Mr. Terry," he said, beginning to rub his hands together. "If you have any facts in your possession that will aid us in the search for an heir to this estate we shall be glad to pay you for them, provided they are facts. Now, sir, what is your story?"

Uncle Terry looked at the lawyer a moment before answering. "I didn't come here to tell all I knew the fust go off," he said. "I know all 'bout this shipwreck an' a good deal more that'll consarn ye, but fust I want to know who is lookin' for the information an' what's likely to cum on't."

It was Frye's turn to stare now. "This man won't be any easy witness," he thought, and then he said, "That I am not at liberty to disclose until I know what facts you can establish, but rest assured that any information you may have, if it be proved of real value, will entitle you to an ample reward."

"I reckon ye don't quite ketch on to my drift," replied Uncle Terry. "I didn't cum here lookin' fer pay, but to see that justice was sarved an' them as had rights got thar dues."

"Well, sir," said Frye in a suave voice, "we, too, are looking to see the ends of justice sarved, but you must understand that in a matter of this importance we must make no mistakes. An estate awaits a claimant, but that claimant must establish his or her identity beyond the shadow of a doubt in order, as you must see, that justice may be done."

"Waal," replied Uncle Terry, stroking his chin with his thumb and finger while he deliberated, "I s'pose I may as well tell ye fust as last. I cum here for that purpose, an' all I want to fix is, if thar's nothin' in it ye'd keep it a secret an' not raise any false hopes in the minds o' them as is near and dear to me."

"It's a lawyer's professional duty never to disclose any business confidence that a client may confide to him," answered Frye, with dignity, "and in this matter I infer you wish to become my client. Am I right, Mr. Terry?"

"I didn't cum here exactly purposin' to hire ye," answered Uncle Terry. "I cum to find what's in the w'nd, an' if 'twas likely to 'mount to anything to tell all I knew an' see that them as had rights got justice. As I told ye in the fust on't, I'm keeper o' the light at the end o' Southport island, an' have been for thirty year."

"One night in March, just nineteen year ago comin' this spring, thar was a small bark got a-foul o' White Horse ledge right off'n the p'int and stayed thar hard an' fast. I seen her soon as 'twas light, but thar was nothin' that could be done but build a fire an' stand an' watch the poor critters go down. Long toward noon I spied a bundle workin' in, an' when it struck I made fast to it with a boat hook an' found a baby inside an' alive. My wife an' I took care on't and have been doing so ever since. It was a gal baby, and she grewed up into a young lady. 'Bout ten years ago we took out papers legally adoptin' her, an' so she's ours. From a paper we found pinned to her clothes we learned her name was Etelka Peterson, an' that her mother, an' we supposed her father, went down that day right in sight o' us. Thar was a locket round the child's neck an' a couple o' rings in the box, an' we have kept 'em an' the papers an' all her baby clothes ever since. That's the hull story."

"How did this child live to get ashore?" asked Frye, keenly interested.

"That's the curis part," replied Uncle Terry. "She was put in a box an' hid 'twen two feather beds an' cum ashore dry as a duck."

Frye stroked his nose reflectively, stooping over as he did and watching his visitor with hawk-like eyes.

"A very well told tale, Mr. Terry," he said at last. "A very well told tale indeed! Of course you have retained all the articles you say were found on the child?"

"Yes, we've kept 'em all, you may be sure," replied Uncle Terry.

"And why did you never make any official report of this wreck and of the facts you state?" asked Frye.

"I did at the time," answered Uncle Terry, "but nothin' cum on't. I guess my report is thar in Washington now, if it ain't lost."

"And do I understand you wish to retain me as your counsel in this matter and lay claim to this estate, Mr. Terry?" continued Frye.

"Waal, I've told ye the facts," replied Uncle Terry, "an' if the gal's got money comin' I'd like to see her git it. What's got'n to be the cost o' doin' the business?"

"The matter of expense is hard to state in such a case as this," answered Frye cautiously. "The estate is a large one. There may be, and no doubt will be, other claimants. Litigation may follow, and so the cost is an uncertain one. I shall be glad to act for you in this matter and will do so if you retain me."

It is said that those who hesitate are lost, and at this critical moment Uncle Terry hesitated.

He did not like the looks of Frye. He suspected him to be what he was—a shrewd, smooth, plausible villain. Had he obeyed his first impulse he would have picked up his hat and left Frye to wash his hands with invisible soap, and laid his case before some other lawyer, but he hesitated. Frye, he knew, had the matter in his hands and might make the claim that his story was false and fight it with all the legal weapons Uncle Terry so much dreaded. In the end he decided to put the matter in Frye's hands and hope for the best.

"I shall want you to send me a detailed story of this wreck, sworn to by yourself and wife," said Frye; "also the articles found on this child, and I will lay your affidavits before the attorneys for this estate and report progress to you later on."

When Uncle Terry turned his face toward home his pocket was lighter by $200.

"I s'posed I'd git skinned," he muttered to himself after he was well on his way home, "an' I reckon I have! A lawyer knows a farmer at sight, an' when he ketches one he takes his hay! He's taken mine fur sartin, an' I begin to think I'm a consarned old fool, that don't know 'nuff to go in when it rains! How I'm goin' to git the wimmin to give up them trinkets 'bout 'lowin' I've lost my senses is one too many fur me!"

Good Times With European Labor

HONOLULU, July 26.—"There's lots of money in Hawaii just now," said Stock Broker William A. Love this morning, "and there's lots more coming, but what good are thousands upon thousands—or millions, if you like—going to do the Territory at large unless we have people in the country through whom the wealth can be put into circulation."

"Millions may roll into the country, millions more wealth than there is here now, but all this money is not going to benefit Hawaii as a people, as a Territory, as a progressive community unless we have enough people of the right class here through whom to increase business and advance financial activity."

"There's plenty of room in Hawaii for home builders. At present the affairs of the community in a financial way are at a standstill. Why? Because there is as much business being done as will ever be done until the gates are opened and thousands more white people are induced to come here and live."

"There are two things which must be done to bring about this immigration and both the Territorial Government and the sugar plantations have the work to do. Conditions must be such that settlers will not have to pay exorbitant prices for land and the plantations must employ white labor. And they must pay white labor what white labor can live on. Here the plantations are paying great dividends. I own a lot of sugar stock and am receiving dividends. I, for one, and I know you will find many more business men in this city who have thought the matter over and who have arrived at the same conclusion, would much rather see the dividends decreased and the differences going to pay white laborers instead of Orientals. And why? Because the business men will come out just as much in pocket in the end.

"Bring on your families of the laboring class from Europe; offer them good inducements on the plantations; give them land opportunities; pay them fair wages, and what will be the result? Money will go into circulation."

Brave Women Outwit Pickets.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Two plucky Chicago women for six weeks have braved rioting in the down-town districts and outwitted the cleverest pickets by delivering meats to restaurants in strike-bound State-street department stores. The women who risked their lives to aid their husbands are Mrs. John Irwin, and Mrs. Alexander Irwin, 5804 Michigan avenue. Their husbands are members of the Irwin Brothers Company, 344 Clark street.

When the strike was declared in April the members of the firm were in a quandary as to how to make deliveries. Every department store was picketed. Than it was that the faithful wives found a solution of the difficulty. The next day the two sisters in law appeared at the downtown store. They wore their best gowns, their prettiest hats and their most sanguine smiles. A horse and buggy were procured and into this were placed from twenty to forty neatly wrapped packages, concealing the choicest cuts of meat that the firm had in stock.

The courageous women then drove down town. They stopped at the Washington street entrance to Marshall Field & Co's, where the clerks received the packages. Pickets guarded the alley and never suspected how the firm was receiving its meat supply. This method of procedure was repeated a dozen times each day.

Vanilla Farm Incorporated.

HONOLULU, July 28.—E. H. Edwards, the well known vanilla bean grower of Napoopoo, Kona, Hawaii, returned today from San Francisco on the Kereka, after successfully launching the "Vanilla Park Estate Plantation Company" which has been incorporated under the laws of Arizona.

"I had to stay in San Francisco for over two months before I could complete my business," said Edwards this morning "but everything turned out most satisfactorily. I took samples of the beans to all of the people interested in vanilla in San Francisco and had much pleasure in having a thorough confirmation of my own opinion as to the excellence of the Hawaiian product. The beans were universally acknowledged to be of superior quality.

"The outlook is particularly encouraging from the fact that the San Francisco market will take all that we can produce for the next three years and when it is remembered that the whole San Francisco market only amounts to about one-twentieth of the New York market some idea may be had as to the extent of the trade. We have 98 acres of land in the estate and it can all be utilized for the production of vanilla."

The prospectus of the new company gives E. H. Edwards as president C. M. Fickert, Assistant U. S. District Attorney as vice-president. W. H. Kent, attorney, secretary and treasurer, J. Connor and A. McD. Riddell directors. Edwards himself who has been growing vanilla here now for two years and a half, had experience fifteen years as a planter in Seychelles, Bourbon and Mauritius.

Sweden Arouses Ire Of Norway.

CHRISTIANIA, July 20.—The Norwegian animosity against Sweden and the Swedes, which was conspicuously absent when the union was broken, is now deep-seated and widespread. Hatred has crept in where in the beginning was only kindness and an earnest desire for pacific settlement.

Even those who most ardently wish for a peaceful outcome admit that the situation has been dangerously aggravated as the result of a "campaign of misrepresentation," which it is alleged the Swedes have systematically carried on. It is declared that the most respectable of the Swedish newspapers have not hesitated to indulge in "detestable lies" regarding the Norwegian mobilization and the Norwegian plans for attacking Sweden, and have even gone so far as to fabricate Norwegian telegrams in their own offices, day after day. Even the Norwegian conservative party, hitherto the most pro-Swedish and pro-union element in the nation, admits that "Sweden has at last come out in its true colors."

The immediate effect of all this will be that Sweden's conditions will not be received by the Starving and people in as conciliatory a spirit as would otherwise have been the case, while Norway may set up conditions of its own.

Begin Work On River Tunnel.

NEW YORK, July 13.—A contracting company has begun work on the Long Island City end of the big Belmont tunnel to go under Manhattan, and the East river from Forty-second street, Manhattan, to Fourth street, Long Island City. William Earle Parsons is consulting engineer for the company. President Turnbull said to-day that the work would probably cost $8,000,000. Construction will probably take three or four years. There are to be two parallel tubes under the river, one for the east-bound track for trains from the Grand Central station to Long Island City and the other for the west bound track. Tunnel trains will be operated by electricity. Shafts are to be sunk, one through Little Rock islet, in the middle of the East river, south of Blackwell's island, another at the foot of Forty second street, Manhattan and a third at Long Island City, so that, with three perpendicular shafts, work can be pushed rapidly by six separate gangs of workmen.

"What has caused the delay in the concert?" asked the manager. "Merely a slight misunderstanding," answered the conductor of the orchestra. "It was necessary to explain to some of the performers why Beethoven had never joined the musicians' union."—Washington Star.

Is Of Vast Importance.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—The announcement that the American Hawaiian Steamship Co. had entered into a traffic contract with the Tehuantepec Railroad of Mexico is almost startling in its commercial possibilities for California. It means competition in freight rates with the great transcontinental railroads—something that California has been praying for these many years.

The transcontinental roads have had such control of the Pacific Mail that the steamship company afforded California shippers no relief. The Pacific Mail's freight rates were fixed by the railroads, and the shippers were taxed all the traffic would bear.

A glance at the map will show the advantage the company will have over the Pacific Mail. The route from San Francisco to New York will be 1500 miles shorter by way of Tehuantepec than by way of Panama.

Freight shipped by Pacific Mail now takes about thirty days between San Francisco and New York. The American Hawaiian Company will make the trip in twenty-five days. When it is considered that the special fast freights of the transcontinental roads consume from sixteen to twenty days in this journey it will be seen how important a competitive factor the big steamship company is to become, and the contract between the company and the Tehuantepec Railroad is to run until the opening of the Panama Canal, or longer.

From E. R. Dimond of the firm of Williams, Dimond & Co., the Pacific Coast agents of the American-Hawaiian Company, it was learned last night that it is intended to put the four single-screw steamers of the company of the type of the Californian and Hawaiian on the Atlantic side of the run, while the three big twin-screw vessels of the type of the Alaskan will be run on the Pacific. These three steamers will handle freight from and to San Diego, San Pedro, San Francisco, Puget Sound and Honolulu. Smaller steamers are to engage in the coastwise traffic. A special effort is to be made to handle the perishable freights of California.

George Gould tried to get the contract with the Tehuantepec Railroad and the owners of the Ward line of steamers also made an effort to secure it. But the American-Hawaiian Company got in ahead and made the arrangements that promise to be of such vast importance to Pacific Coast shippers.

People of Norway Would Welcome Charles.

CHRISTIANIA (Norway), July 12.—The proposal to make Prince Charles of Denmark King of Norway is supported by those having the power of deciding and also would be enthusiastically received by the majority of the Norwegian people.

Riot Leaders Die at Odessa.

ODESSA, July 13.—Twenty-four leaders of the recent disturbances here were hanged to-day in various prisons. Another batch of twenty-seven will be publicly executed upon the arrival here of General Ignatieff, president of the special conference for the revision of the exceptional laws designed for safeguarding public order. The battle-ship Georgi Pobie donosetz has arrived here with a fresh crew for the purpose of taking the mutineers to Sebastopol for trial by court-martial.

Of 202 persons arrested and charged with robbery or incendiarism in connection with the recent riots, seventy-four were acquitted to-day, owing to lack of evidence, and twenty-eight were sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment, the time to include the two weeks which they have already passed in prison. The extraordinary outcome of these trials has aroused much comment here. It is openly asserted that it is a political demonstration against the military government and furnishes evidence of the conflict going on between the municipality and the government, as the judges are elected by the people.

Japanese To Wear Khaki.

LONDON, July 14.—The Tokio correspondent of the Times says The Japanese imperial household has taken up half of the Korean foreign loan. Hereafter the Japanese army of all service will be clothed in Khaki. The officers will be distinguished from the men only by their shoulder straps.

The Laws and Rules of Lawn Tennis, and the Regulations for carrying out Tournaments, together with accepted decisions on disputed points as adopted by the National Lawn Tennis Association of the United States for the year 1904 will govern in this contest.
Game will be called by the Umpires at 9 A. M. August 12, 1905, weather permitting.
The games in the Preliminary and First Rounds will be best two out of three sets; in the succeeding rounds, one set or more at the discretion of the Committee.
There will be no advantage games, that is, the pair that first wins six games in any set, wins that set.
Competitors must be on the ground when their names are called to play; should they fail to appear at that time their opponents will win by default.

J. N. S. Williams chairman, T. B. Thomson, W. Lougher, W. W. Wescoatt, Theo. Nickelson.
Messrs. Whiteside and Wescoatt have withdrawn from the contest on account of accidents and their places were filled by Messrs. Merrill and C. H. Dickey at the request of the Tennis Committee.

Admission Day Sports.

If the earnestness with which the horses now at the race track is a criterion the Admission Day races will be fully up to the mark and compare favorably with the Fourth of July events.
While the entries have not commenced to come in enough has been learned to convince the Association that the Cowboy race of a mile and half will be well filled. The hack race, trotting and pacing, will also be an interesting event as well as a novelty race to a great many of the spectators.
The Executive Committee are making extensive preparations and every thing will be in good order by next Saturday. In as much as Admission Day is a legal holiday most houses and business concerns will recognize it as a half holiday at least, so that a crowd from all over the island will be present.
A ball game between the Lahainas and the Wailukus will be played at Wells Park in the forenoon, and a musical, vanderlike performance and dance will probably hold forth at K. of P. Hall in the evening thus ending an unusually interesting holiday.

Serious Riots in Spanish Cities.

MADRID, July 20.--Serious disorders have occurred at Seville, arising from the general distress. Four hundred farm laborers invaded Seville, looted the bakeries and shops and committed other depredations, until they were dispersed by a strong force of police and gendarmes. A mob stormed the City Hall at Salamanca, broke into the building and sacked it. A member of the Municipal Council, fleeing from the rioters, jumped from a window and was killed.

The Republicans are summoning mass meetings in Madrid and elsewhere. The government fears a spread of the disorders and is taking precautions.

To Resign As Committee Chairman.

NEW YORK, July 20.--A special to the Herald from Washington says: Postmaster-General Cortelyou proposes to resign his position as chairman of the Republican National Committee in about three weeks. This was authoritatively learned here today.

Colonel Harry New of Indiana, vice-chairman, will then be acting chairman until the next national campaign.

With Elmer Dover, secretary of the committee, Cortelyou is now engaged in winding up some routine business left over from the campaign last year.
