ALLIED ARMIES DEFEATING TURKS EVERYWHERE

MANEUVERS DECLARED SUCCESS

Oahu's Natural Defenses Show Up in Weakness or Strength

BY LAURENCE REDINGTON
[Star-Bulletin Staff Correspondent with the Red Army]

HEADQUARTERS RED ARMY, Pearl City, Oct. 26.—With the invasion of Oahu at an end, the soldiers of the Red army, who since Monday last have been forcing their way across the island in the face of a determined resistance by the Blues, have discovered that they are quite ready to go home. It will not be a case of dropping the rifles for the plow, for they are soldiers first, last and always but with the cessation of hostilities yesterday, the period of field training for the year came practically to a close. There will be no more practice marches, and no more campaigning for some time to come, and every one is looking forward to the return to hum drum garrison life.

At that, the department maneuvers just ended have been successful not only from a purely technical and strategic standpoint, but also from the personal side with both officers and men. A general vote polled by the Red army would show a large majority in favor of the week's campaign. It has been hard work, about as hard as soldiers are ever required to do in peace time, but it has been interesting work at that, and the personal spirit that indisputably sprang up as the war game progressed has kept everyone tuned to high pitch. Before the final engagement yesterday, the Reds had worked themselves up to such a pitch of enthusiasm that they almost believed themselves to be at war with the Blues. In fact as well as in fancy.

Last night's camp at Pearl City was a cherry one, for two reasons. Firstly, the men felt that they were bound for home and all that home meant after a week's hiking over dusty roads and muddy ravines. Secondly, they came back yesterday afternoon to a ready-made camp, and did not have to go through the hard work of pitching tents and unloading the wagon train.

Homeward Bound.
This morning the Red army started on the last leg of its homeward journey. Promptly at 7 o'clock the first squadron of the Fifth Cavalry, commanded by Captain Pritchard, trotted up the road that leads to the main trans-island artery, and soon afterward Batteries E and F of the First Field Artillery. Then followed the First Infantry, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Hirst, the transportation of all organizations following as one wagon train. In charge of Captain Offley, chief quartermaster of the Red army.

Naturally a week of the war game has led to many discussions as to the value of maneuvers of this sort, and the consensus of opinion is that it has been a good thing for the army of Oahu. It has given the officers both field and company, added experience in handling their commands, and has given the men a lot of practical instruction in looking after themselves in the field, and also in operating in connection with other arms of the service. As nearly as possible conditions of real warfare have been followed, and everything has been done to make the game as realistic as circumstances permitted. Fields Are Obstacles.

However, there has been one great drawback toward the successful maneuvering of two armies, and that is the amount of cultivated ground, out of which the troops have been forced to stay. This confined them to the roads, which in the face of heavy artillery fire, is the very last place that they would have been. The Schofield reservation is about the only place in which troops can be distributed as they would be in real fighting, and the engagements of Tuesday and Wednesday near the post were more like the real thing than those that followed. Thursday's pursuit of the Blues by the Reds from Schofield to Pearl City was more or less realistic, for the retreating army

Blue Army Makes An Excellent Record

BY CHARLES NORTON
[Star-Bulletin Staff Correspondent with the Blue Army]

ENCAMPED WITH THE BLUE ARMY, PUKAKI HILL, Oct. 26.—At twelve o'clock noon, Friday, October 26th, the "war" was officially declared ended.

It is the unanimous opinion of every officer of the Blue Army that Col. Wilder handled his Division in a masterly manner. Owing to the peculiar nature of the country his work was no sinecure, and great credit is due to him. He was particularly fortunate in the selection of his staff, or perhaps it would be better to say, used good judgment in choosing them. Army Breaks Camp.

Promptly at six o'clock this morning the Artillery, Captain F. E. Hopkins, Commanding, left Fort Shafter, followed shortly after by the Cavalry. At 6.30 the Second Infantry marched from the late encampment, with the exception of the Third Battalion, which returned to Fort Shafter, where they are quartered. The troops were all in excellent spirits, and the Star-Bulletin Correspondent is "up against it" for suitable adjectives to express proper appreciation of them all, owing to the extreme poverty of the English language. Artillery (Cavalry, Infantry, Signal Service and Hospital Corps are all "stars" in their particular line. Thanks From "War Correspondents." The Star-Bulletin takes this opportunity to thank the Colonels Commanding and their officers and men for the consideration shown to its correspondents at all times. Maybe they were a pest, at times as all eagle hunters for news are apt to be, but no obstacle was put in their way throughout the entire campaign.

At the conference of the Blue officers at Fort Shafter, Friday afternoon important matters were discussed, which no doubt will have a direct bearing on future strengthening of fortifications and increase in number of troops stationed here. A prominent officer of well known military ability said that with the forces now here it would be well nigh impossible to hold in check, say, 30,000 men with good artillery.

Circuit Judge Whitney today granted divorce to Sakumitsu Sakumoto, who accused Tomo Sakumoto of desertion. The father was granted the custody of the ten-year-old child, the two other children being left to the mother. Circuit Judge Cooper yesterday returned judgment for Z. Tanaka in the replevin suit brought by him against Kihachi Oba, to recover a team of mares, a drag and two sets of harness, worth a total of $350.

TAX RETURNS TO BE OPEN TO PUBLIC

Territorial Treasurer D. L. Conkling has promulgated a new tax office feature, today issuing an order to assessors on the Islands that hereafter all valuations of property returned to the assessors by the owners shall be open to public inspection at all times.

It has been found that there is no law providing either for or against this kind of publicity, and the Treasurer, while not hinting that any property owners might return lower valuations than their holdings should warrant, is inclined to believe that the publicity of their figures may have a salutary effect and prevent possible errors from creeping into the records.

It has been customary heretofore to make public the assessment figures on properties, but these were the figures finally accepted by the assessor. The original returns, made by the owners, has been held inviolate—not that there was any law or rhyme or reason for it, but just because it "happened that way" in the beginning.

MYSTERIOUS GIFT OF $10,000 TO LEAHI HOME

Another mysterious philanthropic gift of $10,000 has been received, and this time by the Leahi Home at Kaimuki. This is the second instance during the last month that some unknown philanthropist has donated a sum of this amount to charitable institutions of the city, the first gift being received by the King's Daughters. Nothing could be learned today of the circumstances surrounding the gift to Leahi Home.

Kalaniana'ole Says That Fisher Agreed Trouble in Administering Land Laws

[Special Star-Bulletin Aerogram]

HILO, T. H., October 26.—The Republican mass meeting held last night in the national guard armory here is declared to have been the largest ever held in Hilo. People from outside districts came in by the trainload. Kuhio, who has recovered his health sufficiently to speak, made an address, receiving a great ovation.

R. W. Shingle, chairman of the Republican Territorial Central Committee, and W. T. Rawlins, who came to fill the dates that Kuhio could not, also spoke, while Beckley and Fernandes, candidates for the senate, and John Ross, running for supervisor were on the program, too.

Indications are that Kuhio will sweep Hawaii by a greater majority than two years ago.

[Special Star-Bulletin Aerogram]

HILO, October 26.—Delegate Kuhio has recovered from his attack of dengue fever, enough to be able to start today on his campaign tour through Kona and Kau, returning to Honolulu on the Maunaloa next Tuesday.

In his address at the big armory meeting last night, he said that Secretary Fisher had agreed that the trouble in Hawaii has been in the administration of the land laws, that not enough land has been given to home steads. He said that at least fifty acres should be given.

Kuhio declared that he has not been and is not opposing the sugar interests except where they hurt the small men. He told the crowd that he is paying his own traveling expenses, that the sugar interests are not putting up for him.

BOTH PARTIES GO CAMPAIGNING DOWN THE ISLAND

With song and feasting the Republicans will carry the county campaign down the island today, marching on Laie and Waianae afterwards and spreading the G. O. P. gospel of prosperity as they go.

Early this morning some of the candidates left for Laie, but the majority go down this afternoon on the 3:15 train. Going through Waialua the train will pick up extra cars filled with loyal Republican voters and Democrats who it is hoped will become Republicans. The train will go to Laie and the Koolau and Kahuku trains will bring in the voters from their respective territories. Many autos are also making the trip. At Laie tonight there will be a big rally, with music, moving pictures and a great luau, and then the visiting campaigner will return to the Haleiwa hotel for the night. Tomorrow morning a special train will run from Waialua to Waianae and there will be a luau at the latter place from 12 to 1 o'clock. The Honolulu folks will take the regular evening train back to the city.

The Democrats go down this afternoon for a meeting at Waianae, the following notice being given:

Democratic campaign meeting for Saturday, October 26, 1912, Waianae. All the senatorial ticket, supervisors, candidates that are running at large including the representatives of the Fifth district headed by L. L. McCandless. No meeting in town tonight.

LAST DAY TO FILE NOMINATION PAPERS

The period for filing nominations of candidates on Oahu with the Territorial Secretary ends at midnight tonight, after which all ballots for the Territory will be prepared. So far as known all candidates had filed their nomination papers at noon today except two. Home Rule senatorial nominees and four Home Rule representative nominees. These probably will be on record in Mott-Smith's office before the closing hour.

Becker Fights For Delay

[Associated Press Cable]
NEW YORK, N. Y., October 26.—Regardless of the final decision in the Becker case, the appeal of the police lieutenant is likely to delay his execution one to two years, because of the technical postponements that will be taken and the press of legal matters before the courts.

DROUGHT ON OAHU BROKEN EFFECTUALLY; RAIN HEAVY

Waialua and Oahu Plantations Report Plenty of Water At Last

For Waialua plantation the prolonged drought has been effectually broken. Manager Goodale telephoned in this morning that the Waialua reservoir had risen ten feet, bringing the depth of water up to about thirty feet. Montague Lord, luna on the plantation, is in town and confirms the good news with further information. He says the additional ten feet all came in within six hours. It began raining heavily at midnight, making the streams run torrents. Up to now, since the rainy season started, water gulches are running flooded and all the ditches are filling up. It is still raining in the mountains.

Shipping

Claudine Collided With Bark Nuuanu.

With the result of a denied plate, the American bark Nuuanu escaped with slight damage in a collision reported to have occurred with the inter-island steamer Claudine on the occasion of the last visit of the steamer to the port of Hilo.

The Nuuanu has been lying at the wharf during the past week and occupied the position usually taken up by the Claudine on her arrival from Honolulu and Maui ports on Sunday mornings.

In order to put her passengers ashore and to discharge her cargo she attempted to swing in behind the windjammer.

As she was doing so, however, she bumped into the other vessel and damaged some of the plates. The damage is estimated at between one and two hundred dollars.

Mauna Kea Prepared for Mile Trip.

A fair crowd will depart for Hilo this afternoon as passengers in the inter-island steamer Mauna Kea. The vessel returned this morning with few passengers and freight including the following: 140 packages sundries, 4 crates celery, 4 barrels tallow, 10 cords wood and shipments of chickens and turkeys. According to reports, the weather was cloudy along the coast was the rule. The steamer Kauai was passed at Papahou and the Keauhou at Kawaihewa.

Schooner Spokane Has Sailed for the Sound.

Following the discharge of a full shipment of lumber, the schooner Spokane, an arrival at Hilo on October 4th, was made ready for sea and dispatched for a return trip to the north Pacific coast on last Friday. The departure of the Spokane from the wharf made a berth for the schooner Tanager, which has been lying in the stream awaiting an opportunity to discharge Sound lumber.

Shipper Takes a New Command.

Captain Ingalls, former master of the American ship Falls of Clyde that is now a station and storage ship for the Associated Oil Company at the port of Honolulu, is reported to have assumed new responsibilities in joining the ranks of the beneficiaries. Captain Ingalls is said to have taken to himself a bride, the young woman being Mrs. Berna Nottitt of the post office clerical force.

Nuuanu Delayed for Lack of Ties.

Owing to the shortage of hardwood railway ties, the American bark Nuuanu has been delayed in a departure from Hilo for San Pedro. The vessel had received 1900 ties at the time the inter-island steamer Mauna Kea departed from Hilo for Honolulu. It is believed that the bark will be able to get away for the California coast by the middle of the coming month.

Barkentine With Lumber at Hilo.

With a large shipment of lumber, the barkentine Kikikat has arrived at Hilo, the vessel coming inside the harbor on last Wednesday morning, according to report which reached this city today with the arrival of the inter-island steamer Mauna Kea. The Kikikat sailed from Port Gamble and was twenty-two days in making the passage.

Instant Brought Varied Cargo.

Sugar made up the bulk of the freight brought to the port with the arrival of the inter-island steamer Instant. This vessel is being discharged of cargo including sundries, 25 head cattle, 2750 sacks sugar and a quantity of empties. The vessel sailed from Kawaihewa, and also the Maui ports.

Likeliest From Hilo.

Bringing cargo loaded at Hilo and the way ports, the inter-island steamer Likeliest was an arrival today, the vessel returning with a quantity of sugar machinery for repairs, 750 railway ties, 21,115 paving blocks, 10 cords wood, and 60 head cattle.

New Minnesota Ready for Service.

Representatives of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company have been advised that the steamer Minnesota, the first of the eight big freight and passenger liners ordered from the Maryland Steel Company, has been completed and is ready for service. The new vessel was given her builder's trial recently and fulfilled all requirements. The Minnesota is a steamer of 9450 tons dead weight capacity, 415 feet long, 53.6 feet beam, with a draught of 28 feet and can maintain a speed of twelve knots an hour.

The placing of an order for eight steamers by one company is unprecedented in the history of American shipbuilding.

The vessels are being built in preparation for the additional traffic which is expected to follow the opening of the Panama canal. They are similar in design and construction to the Kwantchuan and Georgian, now in the Atlantic service of the company. The route on which the vessels will ply is from New York to San Francisco, the Hawaiian Islands and Puget Sound ports, by way of the big ditch.

The new liners are fore and aft schooner-rigged, with steel masts and four king posts. The masts have eight booms each, one on the foremast being of thirty-ton capacity. The longitudinal system of framing has been used in the construction of the vessel, and the double bottom extends the entire length of the liner. The propelling machinery is located amidships, just forward of which is a deep tank with an eight-center bulkhead for carrying either coal, cargo or fuel oil.

Japanese Shipping Subsidies.

In his report for 1911, Mr. E. T. Crowe, Commercial Attaché to the British Embassy at Tokyo, says that some alterations and reductions have been made with regard to shipping subsidies with the result that there has been a net decrease of $2,977, from $1,116,923 in 1910 to $1,113,946 in 1911. The most important change is the new grant of ¥75,000 ($2,566) to the South Sea service, which is to be doubled in 1913 and 1914.

Two ships of over 2,000 tons with a speed of more than 10 knots will maintain a monthly service on this line, which is to be opened with a view to helping the export of Japanese goods to Japan, Manila, etc. It has not yet been decided to what company this subsidy will be given, nor have any definite plans been arranged, but it is thought that a company promoted by Messrs. Oaki and Harada will start a service in October next.

On the China route a reduction in the grant has been made of ¥40,000 ($1,366), while a similar reduction has also been made in the Taiwan line, and the Shanghai service subsidy has been decreased by ¥75,000 ($2,566). The Formosan and Korean Government-General gives subsidies to the extent of ¥100,000 and ¥23,000, respectively.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The Alaska-Pacific Steamship Company has closed negotiations with the American Mail Steamship Company of New York for the purchase of their steamer Admiral Farragut. The vessel will be delivered to the company on the last of this month and made ready for her new owners the last of this month and made ready for her new owners the last of this month and made ready for her new owners the last of this month.

Death of Captain J. W. Ekstrand.

The death occurred in Yokohama, says the Japan Chronicle of Sept. 19, of Captain J. W. Ekstrand, at the advanced age of 80. Captain Ekstrand was one of the oldest foreign residents in Japan. He came out in the early sixties and entered the service of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha. Lett on, when the steamship company organization was effected, Captain Ekstrand joined the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, and remained in the service of that company until about six years ago, when he retired. The N. Y. K. making him a very handsome present on his retirement.

Captain Ekstrand made very many friends during his long service on the Japan coast and was for years one of the best-known figures among the foreigners in the Japanese mercantile marine.

To Salvage Steamer St. Paul.

Salvage operations upon the hull of the ill-fated San Francisco and Portland steamer St. Paul, which was wrecked above Eureka several years ago, will again be undertaken in the near future. The steam schooner Acme, equipped with powerful tackle which will be used in an effort to raise from the sunken steamer the big forty-ton boilers. Several efforts have been made during the last year to take out of the wreck some of the valuable boiler portions now submerged, but this is the first time that a vessel of sufficient size to handle the larger portions of the wreck has been dispatched to the scene.

W. B. Grace & Co. for whom several new liners are being built on the Atlantic, have announced the names of four of the vessels as the Santa Cruz, Santa Clara, Santa Catalina and Santa Cecilia.

The name of the Santa Cruz has been previously announced and she will be the first one of the new liners to come to this coast. She is now nearing completion and will arrive on the Pacific after the first of the year. The four vessels whose names are given are being constructed by the Cramps, Grace & Co., and also building new steamers in Europe for use when the Panama Canal is opened. This concern operates extensively between the North Pacific and the west coast in the lumber and general cargo trade.

The local United States quarter-master department has received five thousand tons Japanese coal as a result of the extended call of the transport Dix at the port of Honolulu. The Dix was dispatched for Seattle last evening, after having discharged of fuel brought from Mitsui, Japan. It is expected that the Dix will again visit this port in November, with a large shipment of horses and mules destined for the Philippines.

MAUI REPUBLICAN GO ONS BALLOT, BUT NOT PARTY NAME

Attorney General Thus Interprets Decision of Supreme Court Yesterday

The eight Republican legislative nominees from Maui may have their names on the ballots—the supreme court has decided this—but their party affiliation will not be placed on the ballots, opposite their names. This is Attorney General Lindsay's interpretation of the court's decision, and he has so advised Territorial Secretary Mott-Smith, who has the duty of preparing the ballots.

"The decision of the court, as I understand it," said the Attorney General today, "is that the law does not make mandatory the filing of the party affiliation by the candidate, but that if such affiliation is filed it must be given at the same time that the nomination paper is placed in the Secretary's possession; otherwise it cannot be considered.

"Thus, although the party affiliation was made known to Mott-Smith before the nomination papers of the Maui candidates had been formally placed on his file, yet they were not made known at the time the papers came into his possession, therefore the later notification cannot be considered."

This ruling does not displease the local Republicans. In fact, they assert, it will tend to simplify the matter of voting. Voters on Maui will now be instructed merely to put their marks opposite all names which are followed by a blank space, and in so doing they will be casting their ballots for the Republican nominees.

The candidates affected are H. A. Baldwin and H. B. Penhallow, candidates for senator, and G. P. Cooke, P. J. Goodness, G. K. Makela, A. F. Ivarsen, E. Walaholo and J. Wiccox, nominees for representative.

CAMPAIGN ON HAWAII QUIET, LITTLE MONEY IS BEING SPENT

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

HILLO, Oct. 26.—Although there is plenty doing in political circles at the present time, matters are running along well defined grooves and there is a pleasing lack of the personal element that has been so noticeable in local Honolulu politics.

ment that has been so noticeable in local Honolulu politics.

One of the main elements in making matters quiet here is given out as being the unusual lack of funds, each of the candidates having to supply his own ammunition and thus being very careful about making the fight any hotter than is absolutely necessary.

Speaking of politics in general one of the well known local politicians yesterday stated what he thought was the reason for the lack of general campaign funds this year.

"It all resolves down to Kuhllo," he stated "and the fact that while he is being supported in his fight for reelection as Delegate to Congress by the common people, the big business interest are against him and have not loosened up the purse strings.

"From what I can hear the plantations will vote for McDaniel this year, not because they like him and not because they think that he has any chance of being elected but merely because he is against Kuhllo. They will not make any open fight on his behalf but I think that you will find that when the count is made that Kuhllo will not have as large a majority this year as when he ran before.

"If there was a fight to put Kuhllo in you would see the purse strings opened and the money would be flowing like water. As it is there is nothing doing and there seems to be no general campaign funds either for the Republicans or for the Democrats.

"The election here will be one of the most open ones that have ever been seen and it is almost impossible at this stage of the game to make any predictions as to who will be elected. There are so many cross interests at work that election to any office must be an entirely open question."

Railroad Extension Progresses Fast. Bridge by bridge and cutting by cutting the way is being prepared along the Hamakua coast by the Hilo Railroad Company for the thin blue ribbons of steel that will connect the outlying plantations with the town and which will spell prosperity and progress for the merchants who have placed their faith in Hilo's growth.

Maulua tunnel was started; the next thing known was that it was finished and work had begun on the bridge. An engine and material were slung across the 1500-foot gulch, work was started on the other side and before anyone realized it, trains were running across the completed bridge, and work had started on the Laupahoehoe tunnel and bridge.

Now comes word that this is practically finished and that by tomorrow the riveting in the bridge will be complete and the forces are already at work on the first of the big Kaawali cuts.

So the fight goes on. While we sit around and complain there is nothing to do and nothing to talk about, out at the end of the ribbons of steel are the overland engineers, worrying, planning and working that in a little while we may travel along the coast and, sitting at ease, see the wonderful scenic panorama thrown upon a screen of Nature.

Out at the great Kaawali cut the earth is being torn down and washed from the way of the steel ribbons by a rushing stream of water. Next week will see a start made on the bridge that is to span the gulch and then will follow the work of cutting a pathway through the hill on the other side.

When the Cynics come to sneer take them for a run on the train and turn their sneers into applause, for this is something real and tangible, and a part of Hilo's growth.

To Open Waialea Lands. On Tuesday, of this week the first step toward the opening of the makai Waialea lands was taken in Honolulu.

Under the instructions of Governor Frazier, Land Commissioner Tucker called upon Managing Director Swanzy, of T. H. Davies & Co., agents for the Waialea plantation, with the request that the matter be taken up.

When asked for further information on the subject Wednesday morning Mr. Tucker had nothing to say, save to confirm the report that he had called upon Davies & Co.

When asked for information in the matter Mr. Swanzy said:

"Yes, you have been correctly informed in regard to the call which Mr. Tucker made on this firm. He brought with him a map showing about twenty blocks of land, as laid out under the proposed street system for Waialea, which the government desired the plantation to give up at this time for residence purposes. This is the first time that the matter has been brought to our attention. Some time ago I say in the Advertiser that the Waialea Mill company had been written a letter in regard to the matter, but this letter was never received and we find as a matter of fact it was never written.

This matter is one which must be taken up at a meeting of the board of directors and, as we were only approached, upon the subject yesterday you can understand that there has been no time for such action. I have already told the Herald that the Waialea plantation is favorable to the opening of this land, as it has shown in the case of the animal quarantine station and at other times."

Tennis is Booming. Interest in local tennis playing should be stimulated by the fact that the firm of E. O. Hall & Sons, of Honolulu, has donated a handsome silver cup to be played for by the tennis enthusiasts of this island. The cup, which will probably be given to the winner in handicap doubles, is one of the handsomest ever seen on this island and stands nearly a foot high while the bowl is six inches across.

The conditions under which it will be played for have not been fully arranged but will be such as to allow the out of town players an opportunity to compete, as the idea is that the matches shall only be played on Saturday and Sunday and may be either upon the local or the out of town courts. It is understood that the Olia Club will welcome such an arrangement and it is also hoped that Haka-lau and possibly Laupahoehoe may come in under such conditions.

It is hoped that some good tennis may be seen in this city on Saturday afternoon. Among the arrivals by the Mauna Kea were Messrs. Walter and Harold Dillingham, who have won many trophies in Honolulu tournaments by their playing in doubles and if their business dates can be arranged so as not to interfere, they may be induced to take on a couple of local players for a few sets. They will probably be too strong for the Hilo tennis experts but a hard match should result, nevertheless, as it is understood that the Honolulu players are out of practice, which would make the match more even.

Hawaii Notes. Owing to the fact that there is no appropriation money left twelve schools in this county have no desks and the children are compelled to sit on makeshift benches or on the floor.

The sum of $3861.71 was allotted to Hawaii but there is only $338.29 available, according to Superintendent Pope's figures.

The following officers were elected at the meeting of the Burns club held last Saturday. President, A. Robertson; vice-president, B. Macdonald; treasurer, J. Corstorphine; secretary, P. M. Lindsay; master at arms, W. M. Burnett. The club's new club room in the old Masonic building have been fitted up well and a movement is on foot to put some new life into the association and make it one of the liveliest in Hilo. A smoker is to be given on November 2.

O. A. Ganaha was lowest bidder for building the new school house at Napo-poo. His figure was $7754, the appropriation being $8000.

At a meeting of the Republican County Committee held last Saturday the following officers were elected. Chairman, Weatherbee; vice-chairman, Weight; secretary, Macey and treasurer, Beveridge. Carlsmith was elected as campaign manager by the re-organized committee.

Hawaii Team Wins Baseball Cup. The Hilo Baseball League season has been completed and the Hawaii team have won the championship, with an excellent record of fourteen games won and but two lost. Two games remain to be played off by the Whites, which was called off by the officials of the league, and the other a tie between the C. A. C. and the J. A. C. teams. The result of these will not affect the standing of the teams which is as follows:

Team	P.	W.	L.	Pct.
Hawaii	16	14	2	.875
C. A. C.	15	11	4	.733
J. A. C.	15	6	9	.400

HALAWA CANE IN BIG FIRE

The Kohala Midget tells of a disastrous cane fire at Halawa last week. The Midget says:

Some workmen who were employed in getting stone for approaches to the bridge the county is building, made a fire, so it is alleged, last Friday morning, to burn obstructing leaves, too near the cane, and a Halawa cane-field took fire. The wind made

THE CLARION

CRISP CRACKERS

Love's Bakery

The flames uncontrollable, and before the fire burned out ninety acres of the 1913 crop were burned over. The mill has started on grinding this before it scours. Last Saturday wagons from Kohala and Hilo were assisting in hauling. Between four and five thousand bags were needed, and it was found that Honolulu was drained dry, so Manager Wright, who grasped the situation vigorously, sent to Hilo for bags.

Niuli and Union mills have been assisting in grinding, and Halawa mill has been running full tilt; but even if the cane is all ground before inversion sets in, there will be a loss which one sugar man estimates at two tons of sugar per acre, owing to the immaturity of the cane. This would make a heavy loss on the ninety acres, with sugar at $32.20. We understand that the county officials have been notified that the county will be held responsible for the damage; $15,000 has been asked by some as the amount which the county might have to stand for, and those whom we have heard discuss the matter seem to think this is very moderate, when the extra cost of grinding and hauling is added to the loss in sugar.

"The county attorney directed Road Overseer Nafpo to investigate the origin of the fire, and the damage done and he had the road gang on the rack at the courthouse on Saturday. It seems that the gang was in charge of Koolau, whose state of mind can hardly be blamed. If he did as charged, it seems like a piece of inexcusable childishness to attempt to get rid of the leaves in such a dry and windy time by burning them off, save the trouble of raking them off."

THE ROOSEVELT SHOOTING AS A VOTE-MAKER

Editorial comment in this paper on the day after Col. Roosevelt was shot, to the effect that his courageous bearing and the dramatic incidents surrounding that narrow escape from tragedy would be a powerful factor in his favor politically, is abundantly borne out by the comment of the mainland press. Two conspicuous examples are the San Francisco Examiner and the San Francisco Call, both of which have bitterly opposed the Bull Moose. Says the Examiner:

"Roosevelt speaking an hour for his cause, with his garments bloody and with a jagged bullet in his breast, wins more votes by his courage and sincerity than he had captured by his earnest speech."

"Woodrow Wilson, generously refusing to fight a fallen antagonist, and canceling his dates upon the hustings until Mr. Roosevelt is ready to resume his canvass, appeals by his magnanimity and will doubtless win as many votes by the speeches he does not make as by those which he has delivered."

The Call comments: "Nation-wide horror and distress over the news that a madman had shot Mr. Roosevelt at Milwaukee was followed quickly by rejoicing that the crazy, cowardly attempt to kill him had failed—that the wound he sustained was not likely to cause him great suffering nor seriously to interfere with the progress of his personal campaign."

"And as the details of the news trickled into the newspaper offices and to the bulletin boards, relief was succeeded by new admiration of the superb nerve and courage of this red-blooded, stout-hearted American."

"It is the rare, the exceptional man, who, a bullet just fired deep into his body, his clothes soaking with blood, his whole nervous and physical organization profoundly shocked, can hold himself in hand, can think first of saving his would-be slayer from mob violence, can bend his mind to and resolutely perform the task of the hour."

"It was characteristic of Roosevelt that he should go on and address a great audience when most men, even the gamiest, would have been down and out, sick, preparing for death."

"I'll make my speech or die!"—and he made the speech. It is easy to picture how he set his jaws when he said it—how imperiously he waved back the followers who would have supported him when they saw him weakening on the platform. He is of the do-or-die breed; no molly-coddle about Theodore Roosevelt."

POLITICAL WAR QUESTS

Few indeed will be the people who are not staggered and shocked by the revelations before the senate committee investigating campaign funds. Not staggered so much by the fact that "big business" has helped finance the campaign, because the busy pen of the muck-raker has prepared the American citizen for almost anything in the way of exposure. It is the size of the "chunk" required to see a candidate through the pre-November activities that is the staggering thing.

Statistics as to the money spent before the Civil war are lacking, but probably the individual candidates seldom went over the ten-thousand mark, and most of the funds went out in buying hard cider for the electorate, getting signs painted for the processions and other arguments of a rude but evidently convincing nature. Tradition says that seven hundred dollars secured the nomination of Honest Abe Lincoln in 1860 and Lincoln's campaign all told is said to have cost in 1864 only $100,000.

These primitive conditions rapidly gave way to more elaborate campaigns. Samuel J. Tilden, one of the old school of campaign organizers, ran up the figures in 1876 to $800,000 for both parties, the Democratic war chest standing most of the "tap". About a million dollars was spent in 1880, Blaine personally putting in between $100,000 and $200,000 and even then Cleveland's exchequer is said to have been the larger. The campaign funds have been swelling steadily ever since. Mark Hanna, the "maker of presidents", is credited with collecting sinews of war to the extent of $15,000,000 in 1896, but good authority says that only $6,000,000 was spent. Those were the days when Hanna's lieutenants coolly informed big railroads and life insurance companies that contributions of $100,000 or $200,000 would be welcome—and there are few instances of rebuffs. The campaigns of 1892 and 1896 were probably the most cold-blooded of all, in the brutality with which great corporations were told to "come through".

Mr. Cortelyou has stated that the Republican fund in 1904 was $1,900,000, and puts it as about half as large as the funds which were behind Cleveland in 1892 and McKinley in 1896. He recently testified before a senate committee that he never knew that the insurance companies had contributed to the fund of that year until the fact was brought out in the New York insurance investigation. While he places the Republican fund of 1904 at $1,900,000, certain New York newspapers assert that it amounted to $11,000,000.

Mr. Cortelyou's itemized statement of expenditures throws an interesting light upon the cost of the different activities financed by a national committee. First of all, of the $1,900,000 he says was received some $700,000 was contributed to the various state committees. For literary work and advertising the expenditure approximated half a million dollars, while the speakers' bureau cost $175,000. For lithographs and other work of that kind $100,000 was required, and for headquarters $150,000. The committee had a surplus of approximately $100,000 at the end of the campaign. On the Democratic side August Belmont has placed the expenditures at about $700,000, of which he contributed $250,000. William F. Sheehan puts the total at about a million.

As a matter of fact, no living mortal knows, within millions, probably, what was spent in any campaign of recent years, prior to 1908. Political managers have always made it a point not to know too much about such things. Records were destroyed, and evidences of full war chests covered up as much as possible.

Col. Sam Parker, aside from interviewing himself each morning with remarkable frequency and at remarkable length on remarkable issues, has sprung a new one. He says that Charley Hustace has got to quit inventing roorbacks about him. If Charley Hustace has really invented a roorback, he ought to be elected to some of these honorary scientific societies along with Thomas Edison and Luther Burbank. We had never supposed Mr. Hustace would invent anything more deadly than a canard or a hoax. By the way, Colonel, what is a roorback?

The International Peace Congress at Geneva has been marked by friction and riven by faction, and the shadows of the Balkan war have fell athwart what should have been a great gathering of men sincerely devoted to international amity. The congress is not an official body, but its recent conduct is such as to delay instead of hasten the objects for which it was formed.

Those who have thought that Hawaii takes politics pretty seriously evidently have been laboring under a misapprehension. Over in Cuba the two parties are shooting at each other—and it isn't any of this theoretical warfare, either. Some of the patriots are getting hit.

Citizens of Hawaii will do well to heed the request for local support of the Congressional bill providing federal aid for vocational schools. Education along practical lines is the surest guarantee of progress that the territory can give its children.

Police Lieutenant Becker of New York was convicted without the evidence of his former accomplices of the underworld. A verdict of not guilty in the face of the overwhelming facts established would have been a scandal.

Honolulu is beginning to get results from the installation of water meters. Three years ago there wasn't a businessman to be found advocating the system.

We are disappointed that the Republicans and Democrats will not clash at Aala park on the night of the big rallies. For awhile it looked as if there might be excitement.

It is safe to say that the runners employed by the political parties this fall are not competing for mere love of outdoor athletics.

A glance at the sporting pages would indicate that football is having a lively tussle of it trying to relegate baseball to the bench.

Gen. Felix Diaz, the latest Mexican rebel, has been sufficiently punished. The federals have shot two of his officers. Peste!

Old Doc's Talk

THE COUNTRY QUACK

My son, don't scare at a name. Look at it and see if it is going to hurt you before you turn your back on it. It might prove to be your best friend. There are lots of human jackrabbits who leap, at the first unfamiliar sound, scamper off over the plains of Life with their feet in the air, only to meet disaster at the hands of some hunter coming the other way.

The world is quick to call names, my son, because it is aware that they strike more terror into the average heart than demons and snakes do in an ordinary attack of jim-jams.

Names have their proper place, my son, in life as well as in dictionaries, and if you only take time to learn their meanings, you will never peel your shin-bones against them in the dark.

And names are much like people, my lad,—much like the men and women who use them. It's wonderful how the fiercest, most formidable-looking name will melt down into the kindest sort of good-nature if you get well acquainted with it.

"You're a darn anthropomorphite," said a country editor to his opponent who was on speaking terms with the name, bowed his acknowledgement and kept his temper. He knew that his friend meant to call him something else—but that didn't matter!

A man, my boy, who is in the habit of hobnobbing with all shades and complexions of words, who has no verbal race prejudice, as it were, is fortified against the devices of the devil. Nothing can faze him. By the use of a few of his intimate and friendly names, he can turn down calumny, saw slander in two, twist a newspaper attack into smitherens, and make mashed potatoes of any one who tries to bamboozle him.

They nick-named Jesus and Copernicus and Galileo and Savanarola and Lloyd Garrison with epithets which Time has condensed into diadems, my son, and there isn't a name in all Webster's dictionary that can hurt a man who lives straight and treats his fellows on the square.

"Crank," "infidel," "unbeliever,"—they're nothing any more but shells which can't explode, my boy. They used to fly over into the enemy's camp and cause great consternation, but that day's gone by. We've picked all the meat out of these ancient explosives by getting acquainted with what was inside 'em.

You can't get even with a man now—days by throwing names at him—you'll have to get down to hard facts and say something.

PERSONALITIES

A. I. SILVA, of Melner and Co., will arrive here by the Sonoma Monday. Mr. Silva has been on a two months' business trip to the mainland and went as far as New York, and on October 14 was in Washington D. C.

PIERRE ALBERT DE LA NUX, son of Mr. and Mrs. de la Nux, of this city, died yesterday at the home of his parents. He was a young man, twenty-two years old. Besides his parents, he leaves three sisters, Mrs. W. J. Harting and the Misses Zelida and Evelyn de la Nux.

A. G. SMITH, assistant Attorney General, returned this morning from Hilo, and reports he has made satisfactory arrangements with Attorney Harry Irwin, whereby the latter will interview the homesteaders to determine how many desire additional time to make good on their claims. On a change of venue the ejectment suit of the Territory against Lucas which Smith expected to try at Hilo, will be brought into the court of land registration at Honolulu, so that the records of the main land office may be brought into evidence.

EDUCATIONAL NOTES.

Nearly two-thirds of the American public school enrollment is in the rural schools.

The largest public school building in Europe is the new continuation school in Vienna.

Home economics is to be made compulsory in the primary school of Sax-Weimar, Germany.

The educational expenditures for Scotland for the past fiscal year was $18,300,000, of which $840,000 was for continuation schools.

An investigation of the Prussian schools shows that an average of 16 per cent of the pupils evade the prescribed physical exercises by physician's certificates or other means.

A traveling school of domestic science has been instituted in the department of Yonne, France. The school will make a stay of three months in any commune where an attendance of fifteen is guaranteed. Similar itinerant schools for domestic science exist in Ireland.

Some of the exciting experiences of teachers and others in service in Alaska are told in recent reports received by the United States Bureau of Education. One of the most interesting reports describes the eruption of Matmai Volcano, in western Alaska which destroyed a native village and buried the country for a hundred miles around in volcanic ash. Three feet of pumice covered the ground where the village of Katmai formerly stood, and the natives had to flee for their lives. They were eventually rescued by the U. S. Revenue Cutter Manning and taken to a new site on Ivanoff Bay, where the Government has set them up in housekeeping. A school will probably be established in the new village.

BARRON DEMANDS JUDICIAL RECALL

"Soapbox" Barron today again assumed charge of the "barrel" of prosperity set up the other day by the Republicans to replace the soapbox. He graciously allowed two Republicans to start the chin music, Frank Archer in both English and Hawaiian being one and another native in his vernacular the other.

In replying to Archer the Democratic wind artist called on all not born in this country to get out, Archer having referred to him as one without the advantage of Hawaiian birth.

"If three men up in the supreme court can set aside a law made by 200,000 people, then it is time we had the recall," said Barron in reference to the decision on the Republican nomination on Maui.

Answering a statement said to have been made by a Republican, that the Democratic party here had been built up by accretions of Republican soreheads, Barron triumphantly asked someone to come forward and tell why the Republican party produced soreheads. For the rest of an unusually short speech for him, he attacked the supervisors for rejecting the mayor's nominations of Democrats to office.

Having challenged "Johnnie Anderson and Cooper of the board of health," during his speech and at the close, to come up and prove that he (Barron) was talking tommyrot, and no need being paid to him by them or any other Republican, Barron put up a native Democrat.

LEGISLATIVE NOMINEES RESIGN PUBLIC OFFICES

Governor Frear has accepted the resignations of three public officials who are now candidates for election as members of the legislature, and expects within the next few days to receive a number of other resignations from others who are confronted by the same legal condition. The resignations accepted this morning are those of Carlos A. Long, who retires from the board of license commissioners for the city and county of Honolulu; James K. Lota, who quits the board of supervisors for Kauai and the loan fund commission, for the same island; and Clarence H. Cooke, who is removed from the license commission for Honolulu.

Should any of these men not be elected to the legislature they may be reappointed—that is, the law permits such action; but they cannot be reappointed to these positions if elected, nor can any other member of the legislature later be appointed to the vacancies.

A disastrous panic was narrowly avoided when a moving-picture show in San Francisco caught fire last night. Quick action got everybody out of the building in time.

THE PRESS and the PEOPLETHE LATEST TRIUMPH OF SURGERY.

We may with justification rail now and then at the appendix-hunting doctor, and in the consciousness of professional over-zeal, we may hold that the surgical fraternity makes grievous mistakes; but occasionally there must be acknowledgment of genuine triumph in this field.

Such an occasion is recently of record. The thing achieved was the transplantation of healthy bones to the permanent curing of club feet, an operation performed at Waterbury, Conn., by Dr. Frederick H. Albee, a young surgeon of the Post Graduate Hospital, New York.

To the lay mind there is something of a gruesome aspect to the case. The bones transplanted were secured from the feet of two healthy children who had died by strangulation. They had been procured by the surgeon to provide against just the sort of professional contingency which arose, and had been kept healthy by cold storage. The bones were reshaped to fit the feet of the crippled patient, a little 2-year-old boy. There was careful splicing with all anti-septic precautions known to modern surgery. When the operation was completed the feet were enclosed in plaster casts, which were broken when the bones were fully knitted together. According to the report of the case the feet of the child, who otherwise would have been a cripple for life, were restored to perfectly normal shape and use. This is what we might designate as constructive surgery of a very efficient type. It suggests the ultimate possibility of correcting even the most abnormal physical defects, except perhaps those which involve the breaking and welding of bones that protect vital nerve centers or ganglia. Even in such cases the progress that is made in surgery leaves skepticism without an absolute leg to stand upon. The operation described was a bold undertaking, and from the lay viewpoint impossible of achievement; but the fact speaks for itself, and it is a big fact as denoting the advance of surgical science.—Portland Telegram.

ARNOLD BENNETT ON AMERICAN SCHOOLS.

The individual classrooms, in some of which I lingered at leisure, were tonic, bracing, inspiring, and made me ashamed because I was not young. I saw geography being taught with the aid of a stereoscopic magic-lantern. After a view of the high street of a village in North Russia had been exposed and explained by a pupil, the teacher said: "If anybody has any questions to ask, let him stand up." And the whole class leaped furiously to its feet, blotting out the entire picture with black shadows of craniums and starched pinafores. The whole class might have been famishing. In another room I saw the teaching of English composition. Although when I went to school English composition was never taught, I have gradually acquired a certain interest in the subject, and I feel justified in asserting that the lesson was admirably given. It was, in fact, the best example of actual pedagogy that I met with in the United States. "Now can any one tell me?" began the mistress. A dozen arms of boys and girls shot up with excessive violence, and, having shot up they wiggled and wagged with atrocious impudence in the air; it was a miracle that they remained attached to their respective trunks, it was assuredly an act of daring on the part of the intrepid mistress to choose between them.

"How children have changed since my time!" I said to the principal afterward. "We never used to fling up our hands like that. We just put them up. . . . But perhaps it's because they're American."

"It's probably because of the ventilation," said the principal, calmly corrective. "We never have the windows open winter or summer, but the ventilation is perfect."

I perceived that it indeed must be because of the ventilation.—Arnold Bennett, in Harper's Magazine for October.

ROOSEVELT.

The first twenty-five presidents of the United States possessed talents in varying degree. Some were less forceful, some less courageous, some less broad-minded, some less far-seeing than others, but all were conscious of the dignity of the great position, all were deeply impressed by cognizance of their grave responsibilities, all recognized their own limitations, all were appreciative of the influence for good or ill of their personal examples, all strove assiduously and successfully to exemplify the qualities which inhere in men of honor and breeding.

Roosevelt was the first president whose chief personal characteristic was mendacity, the first to glory in duplicity, the first braggart, the first bully, the first betrayer of a friend who ever occupied the White House. It is with distaste amounting almost to nausea that we are forced, in performance of public duty, to recall his speaking of his solemn pledge to the American people to observe the most vital of their great traditions; his disingenuous evasions; his brazen disregard of his own written promise; his blatant professions of exceptional probity at the very moment when he was bartering his official influence for large sums of money to be used in the corruption of voters; his boisterous and profane denials of accusations which he knew to be founded in fact; his precipitation of a panic by unconscionable mouthings; his cynical rejoicing at pecuniary losses which he had brought upon a few without heed of the havoc which he had wrought for the many; his hasty and frightened yielding to pressure exerted by interested persons when he became convinced that common calamity was impending; his flagrant violation of his oath of office when he agreed to suspend the enforcement of specific laws; his deliberate stoppage of prosecution of a trust which the official inquiry ordered by himself had shown to be guilty, at the behest of one who had added the savings of the poor to his corruption fund and who continued to be his chief supporter.—Col. George Harvey in North American Review.

AN UNDESIRABLE BARGAIN.

Mr. Hargreaves of London offers to trade the British colony of Honduras for the equal treatment of British ships with our own in the Panama canal. We decline without delay.

In the first place, England has no substantial grievance in the matter of the Panama tolls—only a mere form of one. The preference which we propose to give to vessels engaged in the coastwise trade, English vessels are excluded from that already and could not break into it by any concession regarding Panama tolls. Whether the domestic monopoly of the coasting trade be wise or not, there is no doubt of its existence and there is no prospect that it will be given up. Consequently England suffers no discrimination from a favor which we propose to extend to a class of vessels with which her vessels cannot compete.

England therefore would secure nothing substantial in exchange for the colony of Honduras, and we emphatically do not crave the colony. We have too many outside interests and liabilities now. Mr. Hargreaves urges that if we possessed Honduras we should be in a position to establish a protectorate over all Central America. We should be in a position where it would be necessary to establish such a protectorate, and to maintain a considerable force of troops to enforce it and preserve the peace, and that certainly is not a thing which we desire to establish.

Europe would be only too glad to see us assume the responsibility of maintaining peace and order in Mexico, Central and South America. Several English writers have been obliging enough to point out to us the path of duty in this direction. We decline the advice and repudiate the obligation. The fortunes of war threw upon us, or moved us to grab, the responsibilities of Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. The construction of the canal has obliged us to take possession of the isthmus. That is quite sufficient. We need no more. In waiving canal tolls in the case of our coastwise shipping we are inflicting no real discrimination upon Great Britain and we have no use for the crown colony of Honduras.—Newport (R. I.) News.

THE SALOON IN SOCIETY.

The saloon is always on the wrong side of every public question. When did it ever take up the cudgels for any decent proposition? What value is it in the scheme of civilized society? What human need does it supply? What pain or sorrow does it alleviate? Does it add thrift to any farm, skill in any mechanic, brilliancy to any brain, nobility to any character? None, absolutely none. Bankers help to reform banking laws and to prosecute embezzlers. Lawyers help to reform government and administration of justice. Doctors have been foremost in legislation against malpractice. The miner, the merchant, the baker can always be counted on to co-operate for better laws and regulations of civic affairs, including their own peculiar business. But what about the saloon and the saloonkeeper? If ever any of you saw him lined up on the side of the right in any fight for civic decency or social or political progress, your experience and observation has been broader than mine.

No, fellow citizens, the licensed saloon, high or low, is never an aid in any contest between right and wrong. It neither can nor will help to abolish the liquor traffic or any of the evils which flow from that traffic. It is a bad business, and somebody has said: "The proper place to curtail a bad business is just back of its ears."—Attorney General Dawson of Kansas, in "The American Issue."

THE SCRATCHER'S OPPORTUNITY.

of a number of candidates. Good men not a few in each list lure our franchisees. One really feels the king an American elector is, when he enters an election booth blind to such frivolities as party names in local elections. The machines are to be thanked for making it plain to the weakest-minded voter this year that it is his high privilege to choose between the chaff and the wheat. There is plenty of both on each of the two tickets. The treatment of Messrs. Bernad and Towse ought to provoke lively scratching. But after all, what a farce nominating by convention, partyless in local elections, and endless elective officers are in this day of the direct primary and the short ballot. Moral: vote for the best men regardless of the meaningless party title tacked to their names.—Dr. Scudder in The Friend.

OUR NATION'S GREATEST CRISIS.

Boards of health, armed with the police power of the state, eradicate the carriers of typhoid and quarantine the victims, but alcohol—a thousand times more destructive to public health than typhoid fever—continues to destroy. Alcoholic degeneracy is the most important sanitary question before the country, and yet the health authorities do not take action, for alcohol is entrenched in politics. Leaders in politics dare not act, as their political destiny lies in the hands of the agents of the liquor traffic.

We are face to face with the greatest crisis in our country's history. The alcohol question must be settled within the next ten years or some more virile race will write the epitaph of this republic.—The Union Signal, September, 1912.

MRS. LANGTON
BUYS PARADISE

For about a minute yesterday, "Bob" Breckons, Uncle Sam's law oracle, Wyoming colony chief, Republican politics big injun and all-round philosopher and friend, was sole proprietor of the Paradise of the Pacific periodical and its plant.

Two bills of sale of the even date of October 25 were executed, in one of which, for the consideration of one dollar, William M. Langton and Elinor A. Langton sold to Robert W. Breckons the entire property of the Paradise printing, engraving, publishing and binding business, situated in the Waverley block, at Hotel and Bethel streets, also the lease of the second story of that block held by W. M. Langton from W. Mutch.

In the second bill of sale Mr. Breckons, for the consideration of fifteen thousand dollars, conveyed the same property and lease to Elinor A. Langton, referring for description thereof to the other bill of sale of even date.

WEEK'S SALES SHOW DECLINE OF $16,000

Sales of stocks and bonds on the local exchange for the week ended at noon today amounted to $108,701.12, against $120,061.12 for last week, a decline of $11,360.

Today's business was just about the average daily record for the week, being $17,159.37. Oahu shows a recovery of a quarter point, half of it made in recess sales of 50 and 5 shares at 25.50, and an additional eighth point on the board, where 171 shares in six unequal lots brought $5,62 1/2. LOGGING IN A HOUSE OF MIRTH

A place once sacred to Orpheus, and where the plans of high and low degree find the boards to the intense edification of crowds of enthusiastic Orientals, was made to degenerate into a phony logging house, through the efforts of a band of a dozen Little Brown Brothers from the Philippines, until a time set for a visit from Chief of Detectives McBuffie.

The big chief descended upon a local Chinese theatre at the wee small hours of the morning, and before he had left the place the squatters came to the conclusion that they could not have been more thoroughly aroused from peaceful slumber had a battery of Big Ben been touched off in their immediate vicinity.

For some nights complaint has been registered with the police that a contingent of Filipinos have been finding their way into the premises with the close of the performances, and using the place as a free lodging house.

The Filipinos are now to be better cared for, at least for the next thirty days, as Judge Larnach, presiding at District Court this morning gave each defendant a pressing invitation to become a guest at Hotel Asch for one month.

The men when arraigned failed to give a clear and connected account of themselves. They have become tired of plantation life and sought the gay delights of the metropolis.

The trial and domestic troubles of the Millers was a matter that occupied a few moments of the time and attention of the court this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller declared that they proposed to again try dwelling together in peace and harmony. Both parties displayed marks alleged as derived in a recent encounter. The case of assault and battery was therefore dismissed.

Special Officer Calvert, who looks after the wharves in the interest of the harbor commission, was the cause of four offenders of the anti-smoking regulation facing court and entering pleas of guilty as charged. Judge Larnach fined each $2 and the costs, but announced from the bench that infractions of this Territorial regulation in future would meet with a heavier penalty.

A charge of larceny has been preferred against Antonio Soares, who is alleged by the police to have made away with a collection of cloth and suitings to the value of over one hundred dollars. Soares will be given opportunity to enter a plea with the first of the week. Chief of Detectives McBuffie was fortunate in recovering all the material alleged to have been stolen from a Chinese tailor.

"BIRD OF PARADISE" MAY FLIT TO HAWAII

Ollie Morosco, the noted theatrical magnate, wishes to bring the successful Hawaiian play, "The Bird of Paradise" to Honolulu and has written Manager Robert McGreer of the Consolidated Amusement company to that effect through his own manager. Morosco, however, wants a staggering sum and McGreer hesitates about bringing the Tully play here on account of the cost.

IN CAMP AND FIELD WITH REDS AND BLUES DURING MANEUVERS

Cultivated Fields Found an Obstacle to Free Maneuvering

would have been forced to keep to the highways to a great extent, and the rear guard action by the cavalry would have been carried out in something of the way in which it was. However, the Red cavalry would have been able to make a much more energetic pursuit had the troopers been allowed to cut fences and spread out over cultivated fields. When the Blue artillery opened on the Red dependent cavalry at Kipapa Gulch, for instance, it would have been a matter of only a minute or so to cut the wire fence and lead the horses under cover of the shoulder of a hill. But they had to remain in the road, and the situation was thereby complicated.

Yesterday's Combat Confusing

Yesterday's combat reconnaissance by the Reds of the Blue's strong position on Halawa ridge was about the most confusing and realistic of any action of the war. Hedged in by cane fields on each side, the Reds had to advance along the roads, every foot of which were known to the Blue leaders, who could train their guns in advance on certain points and then wait for the proper moment to turn them loose. Everything was theoretically this, or constructively that, so that usually the umpires themselves hardly knew what rulings to make. When dismounted cavalry in an open road is theoretically invisible in the cane, advancing against the fire of five imaginary companies of National Guard and one actual company of cadets who are unable to fire owing to lack of ammunition, the situation takes on the aspect of a Chinese puzzle. It is even a question if conditions so utterly dissimilar to actual warfare point any lesson of real value to soldiers.

However, yesterday's situation was the exception. It is a pity though that from the spectacular standpoint it was the principal one of the week, for the people who blocked the roads in autos and rigs saw mimic warfare from its least realistic side. Had they seen either of the engagements at Schofield, of the running fight of Thursday, they would have been treated to something far more interesting to the average observer.

Presumably, also, the majority of the spectators yesterday missed the point of yesterday's problem. The comment was heard all along the line that the Reds had failed to take the Blue position, and that the advance on Honolulu had been checked. As a matter of fact, the Reds made no attempt to take Halawa ridge. Such an operation, against a force of equal strength, would have been suicidal and without result. The Red commander was merely reconnoitering in force to develop the Blue position, so that the length and strength of the line could be fully established when the theoretical brigade of Red reinforcements came up in the afternoon. Of course, there being no more Red troops in actuality, the problem was over when the battle went off. The Reds accomplished their mission yesterday, and that is all that can be said about the result.

Blues Impregnable.
Owing to the amount of cultivated land, the Blues' position yesterday was even more impregnable than the one taken by the Reds last Wednesday. Unless his orders had forced him to, Colonel Wilder would surely never have tried to drive the invaders from that point of vantage north of Schofield, and to have tried to assault Halawa hill would have been equally as hopeless for the Reds yesterday.

There are all sorts of interesting and amusing incidents connected with a maneuver campaign, and for the next few weeks funny stories will be going the rounds at Schofield. The theoretical injuries received on the field, designed to give practice to the hospital corps, are perhaps as fertile a field for humor as any.

Yesterday, for instance, the umpires were supplied with regularly printed tags, to fasten onto the men supposed to be wounded. These tags described the nature of the wound, and the hospital men were supposed to dress the injury as they would on a real firing line. Men whose wound entitled them to get back to the dressing station were supposed to do so, while those seriously hurt were to stay where they "fell" until first aid arrived.

Back To The Hospital

During a brisk rifle engagement between some Reds on the crest of a small rise and some Blues firing from the shelter of a bridge one of the umpires walked up to a man who was needlessly exposing himself and fastened a tag on him.

The soldier looked up in surprise, and then scanned the writing on the tag.

"Say what's this?" he asked.
"You're wounded," replied the umpire. "Don't do anything until the hospital corps fixes you up."

"How'd I get it," persisted the soldier, again scanning his tag.
"Why, from that bridge over there," the umpire replied impatiently. "You made an easy target standing up like that."

"Well, that's funny," replied the man. "This says 'saber cut on right cheek,' and I haven't seen a cavalryman this morning."

One of the most amusing bits of work of the morning was the capture of the led horses of K troop by C troop. When the second battalion of the First Infantry, commanded by Captain Newman, acting as an advance guard, deployed to the left of the road in splendid style and poured a heavy fire into hostile cavalry on the ridge north of Ewa, the Red cavalry was permitted by the umpires to advance across the divide. Evidently the Blues didn't know of the infantry support, and supposed that the Red cavalry was still dismounted and firing at them, for when Captain Duncan Elliott at the head of C troop broke from cover, the led horses were surrounded and taken completely by surprise. The Blue detachment, under Lieutenant Cunningham, was making a desperate attempt to regain their mounts, but they were too late, and dodged back under cover, climbing the ridge and getting away.

Later, when Captain Deems was investigating a place for his battery, these same dismounted cavalymen jumped out from behind a house, leveled revolvers at him, and told him he was captured. Their success didn't last for long, however, because a whole battalion of Red infantry fired on them, and the umpires ruled the horseless cavalymen, lifeless as well.

Yesterday afternoon General McComb paid the Red camp at Pearl City a visit, and went over the purposes of the problem with the unit commanders and a number of the company officers. On closing he thanked everyone present for the interest taken in the weeks maneuvers, and complimented the Red commander, Colonel George K. McGunagle, on the way in which he had conducted the invasion of Oahu.

If the old saying that an army travels on its belly holds good, the Reds could have traveled fast and far under the guidance of Captain Carey, chief commissary. Captain Carey is post commissary at Schofield, and as chief commissary of the Reds he saw to it that each organization had its proper amount of rations on the dot. There were no hitches under his administration. The same, with regard to transportation and forage, can be said of Captain O'Leary, chief quartermaster.

Colonel McGunagle, is a soldier who has seen more actual service with troops than probably any officer of his rank in the United States army. He isn't given to lengthy analyses and discussions, but what he does say carries added weight for this very reason. Therefore his size-up of the army can be taken as the highest compliment he could have paid it.

"If I had to go into a real campaign with a force of this size, and had the pick of the army," said Colonel McGunagle, "I would make no changes either in staff or in troops."

PIERRE DE LA NUX DIES

After an illness of six weeks Pierre Albert de la Nux son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. de la Nux died yesterday afternoon at 3:45. The remains are at the undertaking parlors of H. H. Williams. The funeral will be arranged for upon the arrival of Mrs. de la Nux on Tuesday morning from Hawaii.

Governor Marshall, running mate of Wilson, is now stomping California.

BLUE ARMY WORK IS EXCELLENT

All officers of the Blue Army agree that the maneuvers were a great success from all points of view. It was demonstrated that the artillery can be depended upon to give a very good account of itself, as evidenced by the remarkable work done by Captain J. E. Hopkins and his men. The Cavalry did splendid scouting, and much of which the correspondents could not get hold of, but hope to, as the many interesting stories are told. Their able commanders, Orton, Hall, et al. did some Col. Mosby and "Jeb" Stuart stunts, which in real warfare would have made them famous. Captain Day was highly complimented by Captain Hall for his splendid work. The Star-Bulletin correspondent has a few stories from active participants in this cavalry work which will appear later.

The efficiency of the Hospital Corps, Commanded by Captain Culter, would be hard to improve upon. During every action this Corps took up positions back of the firing line and where the wounded would be most likely to wander, such as toward cover or the led of streams where they could get water and also shelter from the enemy. The Signal Service, Commanded by Lieut. Gregory was at all times effective, both night and day and did some "tall climbing" establishing stations. And finally, the old reliable Second Infantry, Col. French, Commanding the "mud crushers," as the facetious cavalry are wont to call them (stable "chambermaids" they are dubbed in turn) their work in the last campaign is well known and they can do it again tomorrow.

WHEELMEN WILL TRY OUT AT KAPIOLANI TOMORROW

The Honolulu Century Wheelmen will hold a try-out at Kapiolani Park tomorrow morning in preparation for the race against the Japanese team that will be held as soon as arrangements can be made to secure Athletic Park for the event.

The following members of the organization will turn out: "Soldier" King, Timothy, O'Brien, Silver, Achu, Gonsalves and Chamberlin. Next week the members will get together and elect officers.

COMMON

NOT CONTROLLED BY THE BIG INTERESTS

As soon as our Legislature is wrested from the control of the BIG INTERESTS and a Commission appointed, composed of men whom the PEOPLE'S SENATE can endorse, to enquire into our GENERAL UTILITIES, conditions will change in Hawaii.

Times will be better for all the people and not for the favored few only.

Ernest N. Smith, special correspondent for the Star-Bulletin, under the heading of "COMMON PEOPLE COMING TO THEIR OWN IN STATE OF CALIFORNIA," which appeared in the Star-Bulletin of October 23, writes an article which should be read by every voter in Hawaii. He tells of how the Southern Pacific R. R., the Telephone Company and other big trusts controlled California for years, by having its creatures in the Legislature, etc.

He tells how the people have risen and with the battle cry, "LET THE PEOPLE RULE," are sweeping everything before them.

Through Commissions appointed to enquire into the methods of corporations, rates have come down for railroad travel and freights. Telephone companies and other corporate utilities have been compelled to reduce their charges. The result is that the business of railroads, telephone company, etc., has increased so largely that they are taking in just as much. But they have to employ more people to take care of the extra business. The people get the service cheaper while the wages of employees go up—even the corporations can't kick and "EVERYBODY IS HAPPY."

It proves that to have good government and prosperous conditions, THE PEOPLE MUST RULE.

Corporation rule has always been short-sighted, narrow-minded, despot and unlovely.

Why are the big corporations unpopular? "There is always a reason." Let us take as a test from the book of California.

We can make conditions here ideal if the voter will use a little horse sense.

As long as you are influenced by the shouts of the paid howlers to vote the straight ticket, so long will conditions remain rotten.

NOMINEES ARE TO BE IN RACE

Denying the contention of the Democrats on both points raised, the supreme court yesterday ruled that the errors committed by the Republican legislative nominees on Maui do not disqualify them, and that all eight candidates shall have their names placed on the official ballots for voting at the coming election a week from next Tuesday.

Of the first contention raised by the Democrats, that the Republican candidates had failed to comply with the law in the omission to state that they were candidates of their respective districts, the supreme court says:

"The written acceptance of the nominee of the foregoing nomination," his declaration that he is "qualified to be a candidate for Senator for the Second Senatorial District, Territory of Hawaii," and the signature and address of the nominee "show" the understanding of the nominee as to "what he was requested to become a candidate for and what he consented to."

"In construing the paper we should assume that the persons who signed it intended to do something which they had a legal right to do, and that they did not intend to do a vain and frivolous thing. Section 31 of the Revised Laws provides that no person shall be permitted to stand as a candidate for election to the legislature unless he shall be nominated and so requested in writing, signed by not less than twenty-five qualified electors of the district in which an election is ordered, and in which he is requested to be a candidate. The persons who signed the paper are electors of the second senatorial district. They had no legal right or authority to request anyone to become a candidate for senator except for the second district. Furthermore the paper was dated at Wailuku, the county seat of the county of Maui, which is embraced in the legislative district mentioned, and it mentions that an election has been ordered for senators for the second senatorial district."

"In view of all this the only fair, reasonable and sensible conclusion that can be given the paper is that it is a nomination of the person addressed to be a candidate for senator for the second senatorial district and a request that he become such candidate. The court is in duty bound to give a proper and legal effect to the paper unless there is something on its face or in connection with it which would prevent its being given validity. In giving this paper the effect above indicated no violence whatever is done its

IN RAIN

Under the rainy sky and with a few spectators hiding under the trees and umbrellas, the Democratic candidates and their lieutenants last night held a meeting on Kaneohe IV road, at Kailua.

The speakers were unable to attract the attention of the scattered crowd of listeners, and after shouting loudly against the Kailua breeze, which came down the valley, the Democrats abandoned their atmospheric attempts and went to their homes.

Deputy Sheriff Rose and "Soapbox" Barron had a short conference by themselves in front of the E. O. Hall store, King and Fort streets, and talked Democracy. As usual, Barron boasted that he is the man of the hour, politically, and expressed his readiness at all times to challenge the Republican leaders to debate on the soapbox. Rose, a gentleman, only smiled and said nothing.

Up at Pauoa, Mayor Fern, who intended to speak to about fifteen people, voters and non-voters, was disappointed to find a small crowd assembled in the park, where the Democrats held another meeting. At this place the rain interfered so much that the candidates and the crowd went away.

Republican candidates and speakers splashed about in the rain last night and though it poured so hard in Manoa the third precinct rally was not a success, the meetings at Kakaako and at River and Vineyard streets were well attended. Both Sam and Robert Parker made hits and all the candidates were very well received.

language, and nothing is read into it which is not clearly inferable from the paper itself. The paper is construed according to the manifest intent of the parties who signed it. What we have said applies equally to the papers of the several nominees as candidates for representative. It is accordingly held that the nomination papers were sufficient in substance."

This settles the more important of the two points raised. As to the failure of the candidates to specify their party affiliation, in writing on the nomination papers originally submitted to the Secretary, the court holds that this "will not justify or require the omission of the candidate's name from the official ballot."

KANEHOE VOTERS
HEAR GOOD TALK
BY CAPT. PARKER

Republican campaign speakers and candidates made a successful invasion of Kaneohe yesterday afternoon and returned later in the day well satisfied with the results of their trip to windward.

The Kaneohe people greeted the Republican candidates with leis in front of the Lee Wo Chong store.

Dowsett, Renton, Paris and practically all the candidates pointed out to the Kaneoheites that it is to their advantage to vote for the Republican ticket.

Col. Parker, for mayor, made several good points.

Dowsett, in defending his position from the attack which Link McCandless and his lieutenants have been making to the voters in Kaneohe, said that Link possesses more sugar stock than he, and invited the electorate to scrutinize "Linkona's" schemes carefully and thoughtfully before they cast their ballots on election day. The speaker made a strong speech.

Renton pointed out to the Hawaiians that Prince Kuhio, the standard bearer of the Republican party, is their leader, and invited them to place their confidence in him. He was given prolonged applause and a salvo of "Sura kela."

Paris and Bartlett, for supervisors, appealed to the voters to vote the straight Republican ticket on election day.

George E. Smith, for treasurer, told the Hawaiians that he was "makakau" in the performance of his duties and asked them all to vote for him and the entire Republican ticket.

C. A. Long, for supervisor, made a convincing speech in Hawaiian. The presentation of his arguments before the electorate apparently converted a number of the Democrats present. One of them, at least, told the Star-Bulletin man that Long was "pololei and sure kela." Asked whether he would vote for Long, he vociferated in the affirmative.

A. L. Castle, S. K. Mahoe, E. K. Fernandez, for representatives, and J. B. Enos, for supervisor, made short talks to the electorate. Senator Kalepou appealed to the Kaneoheites to vote for a straight Republican ticket.

The meeting was presided over by John Bell, candidate for Deputy Sheriff.

When the citizens of Kaneohe saw Captain Robert Parker mount the bench beneath the big mango tree, yesterday, they gave him a noisy welcome and the musicians broke into a song written for his benefit, which by the way, also had good things to say about other candidates on the Republican ticket.

Speaking in Hawaiian, Captain Parker told the people that he wanted their support for his election as sheriff. For a score of years and more he had been tried in public service; his record would speak for him. He referred to the great Chinatown fire in Honolulu, in 1900, during the days of the plague, and told how, when one of the "sanitary" fires had gotten away from the control of the fire department, the flames had swept the district toward the waterfront, spreading so rapidly that panic ensued among the people, Hawaiians, Chinese, Japanese and others. The militia was out, but the men of the militia seemed confused; at any rate they were making matters worse by herding refugees in the wrong direction, so that some of them were in danger of being forced back into the flames.

Captain Parker was then captain of police, and with his officers he jumped into the confusion and took hold of the situation. He organized some degree of order among the frightened people and particularly devoted his attention to the rescue of women and children from burning buildings and other dangerous places. Men and women were risking their lives trying to save articles of household possession, often of little value. Captain Parker and his men, few as they were, accomplished more than could the militia. Discipline did it, discipline and training, said the speaker. Now he asked for the votes of the people that he might become sheriff. He would devote to the discharge of his duties as sheriff, the same energy and the same discipline and experience and training that had come in so opportunely during the exciting, terrible days of the Chinatown fire.

POLITICAL MUSINGS

The patience of Job was rewarded—stay with it, Link!

What is the use of saying that Fern will attempt to block Col. Sam Parker's triumphal march to the mayor's chair? What will it amount to if he does?

Sam Parker has shown that, when he is mayor, he will be capable of doing his own thinking, gesturing and talking.

Cheerfulness, good humor, good logic and good three-rail-fence common sense regarding what a mayor should stand for, are qualities that are piling up a big stack of votes for Col. Sam.

Aviators are not the only people who take desperate chances. Independent candidates, for instance.

What a dull mayorality administration the coming one will be if Col. Sam Parker is not elected, after all the things he has pointed out that should be done, and would be done by a live-wire mayor.

POLITICS MIXED
WITH KAIMUKI
STAG SOCIAL

Kaimuki's initial get-together stag social, at the new Liliuokalani school last night, was a successful illustration of the possibilities of community benefit in the use of public school buildings by the people outside of school hours for purposes of legitimate recreation and intellectual enjoyment.

For more than two hours a gathering that filled the large assembly hall to the doors was entertained with song, musical instrument, story and athletic performances, contributed by members of the improvement club, men from Fort Ruger and guests from other parts of the city. Although many numbers on the prepared program failed to materialize, the president of the club, H. G. Davis, had no difficulty in having the gaps filled by performers on the spur of the moment. Among the members, Father Valentin easily made the hit of the evening with two vocal solos. J. Walter Doyle, among the guests responding to calls, gave a laugh-provoking impersonation of a sideshow speller. A splendidly contested wrestling bout, ending in a draw, was given by Messrs. Derby and Clymer. Messrs. Bardsley and Rounds gave fine exhibitions of dancing, and Mr. Lau, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., skilful exhibitions of club swinging.

Messrs. Dix and Larimer were the accompanists on a fine piano purchased by the club for the assembly hall, other instrumental performers being Messrs. Schroeder, Finchun, Davis and Mades.

Near the close visitors were called on for remarks, among those named and the only ones responding being Supervisor McClellan and Charles Hustace, Jr. Mr. McClellan's speech was diplomatically worded, so that its bearing on his candidacy for re-election was only evident by inference. Mr. Hustace, however, made a direct appeal to the residents of Kaimuki to vote for himself for mayor. His remarks were received with good-natured applause, but many of those present were indignant that such an advantage of hospitality should have been taken by an ambitious politician. Some left the hall in protest and others expressed themselves in no uncertain tones after the meeting.

With joined hands the gathering dispersed about 10:30, singing "Auld Lang Syne."

RAN MARATHON
FROM UNCLE SAM

Tiring of serving his country's cause in the capacity of a soldier, with its attendant military problems remaining unsolved and a series of make-believe engagements with a friendly enemy, Charles A. Lester took French leave of the United States army as a member of Company F, Second Infantry, and would become a small farmer or squatter on the large landed estates of Samuel Damon at Maunaloa.

Special Officer Carter made a little excursion into the rural districts yesterday with the result that he came upon Lester engaged in the attempt to tickle a livelihood out of the soil.

He was dwelling in a native hut on the Damon estates when approached by the officer and asked why he was not with the bold and mirthless warriors who were then at the front where the "battles raged."

Lester failed to advance a real good reason for his non-combative attitude at that particular moment.

Carter insisted that the man accompany him to the police station. A perusal of the records in the police morgue developed the fact that Lester was a much-wanted man in military circles. He is listed as a deserter and has been under this category since the first part of July when he disappeared from the haunts of the soldiery at Schofield Barracks.

The man was turned over to the military authorities today, who will dispose of his case.

Lester is alleged to have done some marathon running stunts in the Islands. He is credited with having attempted to get away for the Philippines on one or more occasions, as army transports called at the port.

'TUBERCULOSIS DAY' TO BE OBSERVED IN CHURCHES

Tuberculosis Day" will be observed by many of the churches of Honolulu tomorrow at which time the different ministers of the city will deliver strong sermons against the dread disease with the hopes of heightening the enthusiasm in the fight for its extermination. Following this the religious organizations will launch a campaign for the prevention and possibly the wiping-out of the disease.

James A. Rath, of Palama Settlement, and a member of the directing committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis League will speak at Kaumakapili church.

A short time ago the national headquarters of this league in New York sent letters to all ministers throughout the United States asking them to observe October 26 as "Tuberculosis Day" and to give their co-operation in their respective cities toward the extermination of the disease.

CRAFTSMEN CLUB
HOLDS FIRST MEETING

The Craftsmen's Club, a newly organized class in manual training, met for the first time at the carpenter shop of the Y. M. C. A. this morning at ten o'clock.

This class was started last year and proved one of the big features among the members of the boys' department, and this year it has begun again with a larger attendance, and

Chester Carter, instructor in manual training at Mills College, will direct the class. It is the plan of the association to give instruction in all forms of carpentry to those who join the class, so that if a boy wants a surfboard or a coaster, he will be able to make it himself and not depend upon his father for the necessary money to purchase it.

The class will meet every Saturday morning at ten o'clock, and one of the features will be the monthly visit to one of the large industrial plants in the city so that the boys may have a chance to see different things in the process of manufacture, and at the same time get some knowledge of machinery.

MOTOR CAR GOSSIP

VON HAMM-YOUNG COMPANY SAYS LOZIER IS BECOMING POPULAR

Meadowbrook Roadsters in Demand—H. G. Smart Takes One in San Francisco—News and Notes from Gasoline Row

Among the big automobiles now being built the Lozier is fast becoming one of the most popular cars. The great racing stunts which the Lozier have performed in the last five years and the wonderful efficiency which the touring cars have given has brought them into great prominence. The Lozier has always built very characteristic models and have always shown a great deal of class in their designing. This year they are branching out with the left hand wheel steer and center control of gear shift and hand brake. This is a very drastic change and one which many of the other high class makers are beginning to follow, as its superiority over the right hand wheel steer and right hand gear and brake control is being manifested at all turns.

The von Hamm Young Co. who are agents for the Lozier car for the Hawaiian territory, delivered this week one of the popular Meadowbrook roadsters to Mr. H. G. Smart. Mr. Smart has taken delivery of this car in San Francisco and expects to do considerable touring through California before he returns to Honolulu.

The Meadowbrook runabout has been built to meet the large demand for a runabout looking two passenger car. The chassis is identical with the Lakewood and Briarcliffe models in all principal details, except that the gasoline tank and tires are carried on the platform back of the front seats. A side seat on the running board is provided for the chauffeur. The steering column of the Meadowbrook, like that of the Lakewood and Briarcliffe is longer than in the touring car and is placed at an angle which brings the steering wheel directly in front of the driver. The driving position is as comfortable as a seat in a big library chair. Stripped of fenders, the Meadowbrook is the Lozier model which has won so many notable victories in the great races of the past 3 years.

The specifications of the big Lozier type for 1913 are as follows:

Motor: H. P. A. L. A. M. rating, 51, c.

Cylinders: 4 1/2 x 5 1/2 inches. Valves on opposite sides.

Ignition: Bosch double, two point, high tension magneto and storage battery.

Lubrication: Circulation trough system—automatically increasing oil level as throttle is opened.

Clutch: Multiple disc type, all steel disc in oil-bath case.

Transmission: Four speeds, selective type. Direct on third. Speed on high 60 miles per hour and upwards.

Rear axle—shaft drive, full floating type.

Brakes: All on rear wheels, equalizing bars and hand adjustable.

Springs: Semi-elliptic front, platform rear.

Front axle—single piece chrome nickel steel.

Gasoline tank—26 gallon capacity, pressure feed.

Frame—drop rear, bottle neck front. Alloy steel heat treated in lead.

Steering gear—specially constructed.

Wheels—36 x 4 1/2 front, 37 x 5 rear. Continental demountable rims, interchangeable front and rear.

Wheel base 131 inches, tread 56 inches.

The Lozier Motor Car Co. have gone into the small car class hot and heavy this year and are bringing out a 6 cylinder touring car for $3250 I. O. B. factory. This is called the Model "L".

self seller. This is a wonderful car for the price. Think of it! A six cylinder Lozier car for $3250 with the same high class workmanship and material as is in the big car. It is designed, built and guaranteed by the same organization that produces the only motor car in America which for eight years has commanded and still commands a price of $5000. The Lozier "Light Six" does not need an introduction filled with superlatives to prove that it is a good car.

Lozier products—bicycles, marine motors, motor boats and motor cars have all been noted for their high quality. The Lozier "Light Six" is no exception to the rule.

Dealers from coast to coast who have investigated the car thoroughly say it is the greatest motor car value they have ever seen and that it is a "self-seller." Many of these men have been in the automobile business since beginning in America. They are "men who know."

The Lozier "Light Six" meets a real demand in the motor world. A demand for a six cylinder car of ample power, maximum comfort, aristocratic appearance and recognized quality at a moderate price.

The popularity of the six cylinder car is admitted. Thousands of people are ready and waiting for a light six produced by manufacturers who have had a wide experience in designing and building cars. Good Looking Car.

Views from an angle the "Light Six" is a swell looking car. It has the distinctive radiator used on all Lozier cars, the graceful sloping hood and the symmetrical cowl. Also the substantial windshield and the bullet electric headlights and dash lamps.

The rear view shows the wide bonnet which seats three passengers comfortably, the patent tire carrier, from which a tire can be removed in a few seconds; the platform spring and the gasoline tank, with automatic gauge showing the exact supply of gasoline.

The seats in this car have 10 in. cushions and high backs with 8 in. upholstery. These comfortable seats, the platform spring in the rear and the long spring in front, coupled with the perfect balance of the whole car, make the Lozier "Light Six" one of the easiest riding cars which has ever been produced.

The specifications of the new little six Lozier are as follows:

Motor—38 h. p., developing more than 50 actual brake horse power. Six cylinders, 36 x 5 1/2 inches. "L" Head. Cast iron block. Motor, clutch and transmission, unit system, special suspension.

Ignition—Bosch magneto. Dual system.

Lubrication—Force feed for crank shaft bearings. Splash for connecting rod bearings. Separate troughs under each connecting rod.

Clutch—Multiple disc type.

Transmission—Selective, three speeds forward, one reverse.

Rear Axle—floating type, differential in pressed steel housings.

Brakes—Two brakes, both rear wheel expanding internal, 14 in. diameter.

Springs—Semi-elliptic front, platform rear.

Front Axle—I-beam dropped forged.

Gasoline Tank—20 gallons capacity, suspended in rear. Pressure feed.

Steering Gear—Worm and gear type, irreversible.

Wheels—Regular wood artillery type—10 spokes front and 12 rear.

Tires—36 x 4 1/2 front and rear. Demountable and Q. D. rims.

Wheel Base—127 1/2 inches.

Tread—56 inches.

Equipment—Gray and Davis electric starter and electric lighting system complete, Warner speedometer. Electric horn, clock, top windshield, patent tire carrier in rear, extra rim, robe rail, foot rest and tool-kitt.

Finish—Nickel trimmings.

Color—Standard Lozier Blue.

The steamer Wilhelmine is expected to bring to the von Hamm-Young Co. on her next trip down here, one of the wonderful Lozier "72" cars. The arrival of this car is awaited with a great deal of interest, and it will probably create a great sensation in the automobile world when it does come.

smooth working machines.

Both teams have suffered to some extent from the loss of last year's veterans by graduation or otherwise, but from the ranks of the incoming Freshmen and the classmen have been culled the nucleus of two strong aggregations.

Both McKinley's line and backfield are outweighed by Punahou, the High's line being about 150 pounds Punahou averaging 152 pounds. McKinley's backfield is 146 pounds, while that of Punahou is 155. But it will not be so much the weight of the teams that will count but the speed is the thing. During the first part of the season, the High's line was pretty slow, but this difficulty has been overcome and the lines of the two teams are evenly matched.

The headwork of the Punahou team is done largely by Capt. Schuman, who holds down the position of quarterback. Hitchcock does the punting and McKinley holds the center of the line. For the Highs, Brahm boots the pigskin and Melin will be back in his old position of quarterback. Cassidy is another man expected to do great work for the Highs. This is Cassidy's first real introduction to football, although he has seen some of the game before the season last year, but was unfortunately out of the game due to an injury which he received.

The students from each school who form the noise part of the game, are on the field in full force to cheer their teams on to victory.

KEEP SCHOOLS CLEAN

The Boys Should Be Warned Against Professionalism, Says Leader

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—James E. Sullivan, president of the metropolitan association of the A. A. N. and a great friend of schoolboy athletes, issued a warning to schoolboys to keep away from the money game. Sullivan, in an interview recently, stated that the idea of amateurism is untenable so long as we intend to make athletics the great force that they are in this country today.

"To maintain any such idea as that which has been advanced about school-boys taking money for Sunday games is all wrong," said Mr. Sullivan emphatically. "It's going back that's all. The idea is just this: There must be a sharp dividing line between the professional and the amateur and it must not be transgressed so much as one inch.

"The best reply that I have ever seen to such a proposition was published in the 'Harvard Lampoon,' when some one wrote a letter and asked why a student should not be allowed to play ball for money when he could earn something from law, music and the like. It is said that literature, music, languages, architecture and the like were business occupations and were to be the professions of those who studied. Therefore it is only right and natural that they should yield money. Go ahead and realize all you can from them. Athletics, however, are our play, and they must be kept for such. The line between the amateur and the professional must be sharp. For Recreation Only.

"This does not mean that the professional is any better than the amateur, for sometimes he is not so good, but simply that athletics must be reserved for recreation.

"Here is the wicked feature of this thing: Suppose a boy takes $5 for pitching a game of ball on Sunday; what's to prevent him from taking $10 to $20. That's what the good semi-professionals get for a game of ball, and I tell you that once you break down the barrier there will be no stopping and all branches of athletics will be filled up with professionals. There then can be no means of limiting the thing, and that's where the real evil lies.

"If they want to have professional teams in the schools, let them; but they must brand them as such and have them play only among themselves. There can be no objection to that except that I think that it is backsliding pretty far and I would regret such a thing. But to have professionals play with amateurs is to promote deception and is not to be countenanced.

"One of the greatest benefits of school athletics, when properly conducted, is to teach boys upright ways of living and to like manly sport. That is impossible under such conditions as are suggested, and I am sorry to hear them brought forth. It is the same as advising boys to break the rules.

Rely on the Schools.

"I understand that the advocates of this proposition know that they would have to begin at the top and go to Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton and all the other big universities and persuade them to admit boys in good standing who had played for money. You see, if a boy should take $5 for playing a game of ball he would

"The question of a plebe team is a little different from that of the freshman organizations at other schools," said Lieutenant Howard, "for we allow our entering classmen to play on the varsity team, whereas the college freshman is not eligible to the varsity.

"I have sixty men in the fourth class who want to come out for the varsity team, but I won't be able to handle them all. There are ten who look promising and they will probably have an opportunity to show whether they are of varsity caliber. My present idea is to keep about ten plebes on the varsity squad all autumn, and keep a squad of about forty plebes, as such, in the field. From this lot I can pick the plebe team and if a man plays exceptional football I will give him a chance on the varsity squad and send some fourth class man back to the plebe squad.

"The plebe team plays three outside games—against the Gettysburg Reserve, Tomie School and Williamson School. Some day we may be able to meet freshmen teams from the colleges, but at present I don't think it would be practicable.

Lieutenant Howard has forty men hammering away at one another now, and although they hope to defeat every team that faces them, their ultimate object is to rout the aggregation that will go from West Point to Philadelphia on November 30, with the sole object of annihilating the salt water players on Franklin Field.

Both Navy and Army football men fight to the finish. This is true of any team in varying degrees, but it is no discredit to the others to say that these two teams, which represent the acme of sportsmanlike fighting spirit, it has come to be generally conceded that the Army-Navy football game is the event of the sporting year which carries with it the greatest rivalry.

One may perhaps see better football played at the Yale-Harvard or the Harvard-Yale games, and those teams at the climax of the season may be superior as football machines to Army-Navy or West Point, but even in these classic events there is not the spirit of rivalry nor the determination to do or die that there is in the Army-Navy game.

The fact that members of the President's family, if not the President himself, the Secretary of War and the Navy scores of men high in the army and navy, and, of course, hundreds of pretty girls attend the game adds to the spirit of the affair. Differences Between the Old and New Styles.

At Annapolis there are many evidences of this spirit. The Navy backs charge like mad. Rhodes and Nichols and McReaver are hard to stop when they have the ball. There is no hint of hesitancy when a tackle dives for them. The two men crash together like weights hurled by catapults, and it takes a strong man to hold the backs, even when he has his arms locked around their legs and his shoulders jammed against the lever age point at their waists.

It looks mighty unhealthy to stand in the path of the 175 pounds of bone and muscle charging at the rate of 10 yards in about ten flat. Many a West Pointer will testify to that after last year's experiences.

As nearly as can be told at this early stage of the game, the Navy line looks in practice as if it might be about as pregame as armor plate. In the case of a forward pass when the team plays in open formation the men seem to be everywhere—where the ball is, in particular. When it comes to line bucking Brown, Redman, Howe and Ralston close up so that you couldn't pry the small end of a marlin spike between them, and it is going to be hard to break the formation. The backs close in with a crash calculated to knock the whole mass backward and throw the runner for a loss. Lieutenant Howard is alive to the changes in play which the new rules promise to bring about.

would forever be barred from amateur sport.

"At the Olympic games they ask us where we get our fine athletes and the answer is that we train them from the time they enter the elementary schools. They don't do that in Europe. Here we have an army of thousands of lads in the schools, some of whom are sure to be members of the Olympic team at Berlin in 1916. Wouldn't it be a shame, to have them barred for any such reason, as that? Other countries wouldn't allow them. The idea of amateur sport now are unanimous throughout the civilized world. The different nations may have peculiar ideas about what should be accepted as prizes and what should be considered expense money, but they all agree in the law that no amateur shall accept money.

"This thing comes up every year and I have been fighting it for thirty-five years. I hope I can make it clear that the principle is wrong. I have no doubt that those who advance the proposition are entirely sincere and that they really wish to benefit sport. "Every teacher of physical training in the public schools should be made to take an examination on the rules of sport, and it should be his duty every day to explain them to the boys and to tell them what they must not do in order to avoid violation of the rules."

Center Control

Touring Cars, Five Models, $5000

Limousines, Landaulets, $5000

Center control logically follows left-hand drive, and is sure to become standard on all American motor cars. Center control as adopted by Lozier for 1913 eliminates the one great objection to the popular fore-door body.

The first fore-door car built in America was the Lozier Lakewood, now in its fourth successful season. This innovation in design met with the instant approval of the public and fore-door bodies are now standard on all open cars, in spite of the fact that manufacturers have never been able to perfect a fore-door body on a right-hand drive car, because of the position of the control levers.

The adoption of left-hand drive on the 1913 Lozier has made it possible to place the gear-shifting and emergency brake levers in the center of the car, in a position convenient to the driver and at the same time, entirely out of the way of occupants of both front seats. The bug-bear of the body designer has been eliminated.

The accompanying illustration will give you only a general idea of the beautiful Lozier fore-door bodies. You must see the car itself to appreciate its good looks; you must ride in it to realize how far it is ahead of other motor car mechanicals.

In the Type 72 1913 Lozier you get Left-Hand Drive, Center Control, Automatic-Level Oiling System, Double Magneto with Triple Ignition, a Six-Cylinder Motor which develops more than 80 actual horse-power—and all the other features which have led men who have owned many makes of cars—"Men Who Know"—to call the Lozier the best car built in America.

It's really worth your while to investigate this remarkable car. See it at our salesrooms and arrange for a demonstration. 32-page catalog on request

CUB REPORTER COMES TO GRIEF WHEN TACKLING FOOTBALL STORY

BY THE CUB REPORTER.

The Sporting Editor and the Sob Miss had just gotten married and had gone away for a three-month's honeymoon trip, and the City Editor had a worse grouch on than ever.

"That's just my luck," he said, as he threw some copy marked "hed to kum" in the box; "to have the sport scribe go and get married at the beginning of the football season, and leave it all to me to get somebody to cover the games. Talk about a person having hard luck I'll be the subject of conversation. I actually believe that if it would start to rain, soup I would be outside with a fork."

During all this time the Cub Reporter had been sitting quietly at his desk, pounding out a story on "How Free Lunches Have Benefitted Humanity." As he arose and walked over to turn it in, the City Editor spoke to him:

"Willie," he said, "seeing that the athletic genius of this sheet has tied himself up in the bonds of matrimony and has left for parts unknown to spend three happy months of bliss, it looks very much as if it is up to you to cover the football games."

"That's me," answered the Cub, "but I don't know the first thing about the game. If you would ship me out on something like a game of ping-pong, I could come through with the goods, but as to the gridiron game, I don't know any more about it than a jellyfish does about a clean shirt."

"Well," resumed the C. E., "of course in order to cover the games it will be necessary that you know something of the rudiments of football. If there was anybody else that I could send out on this you wouldn't have to do it, but as there is no one else, you're the goat."

"Do you know the game?" asked the Cub.

"Of course I know the game," answered the City Editor. "Didn't I use to play full when I was going to Hardup College?"

"That's a nice way to play, isn't it?" said the Cub.

"Isn't what a nice way to play?" came back the jinks.

"To play full. Why didn't you go to the game sober?" was the Cub's reply.

"Look here, young man, don't you accuse me of being full," was the angry reply of the C. E. "and—"

"Well, you said it yourself," said the Cub, lighting a pill.

"I didn't mean intoxicated; I mean that I played the position of full back," said the City Editor. "Now if you will listen closely, I will try and give you a few pointers about the game of football. In the first place, the game is played with eleven men on a side, and with a leather-covered ball called a pig-skin."

"Oh, this is a skin game, then?" broke in the Cub.

"Certainly not," said the C. E.

"Just keep that hole in your face closed and listen. Four of the men in the team compose the back field, which is the halfback, the fullback, and the quarterback."

"Are there any hunchbacks in the game?" inquired the Cub.

"Of course there are no hunchbacks in the game," said the City Editor.

"Oh, I see," said the Cub. "The players are hunchbacks after they quit the game. Is that it?"

"Besides the back field, there are seven men on the line. When two teams are ready to play, they line up."

"Who is going to buy?" broke in the Cub.

"Buy what?" asked the C. E.

"The drinks, of course," said the Cub. "You said that everybody lined up, didn't you?"

"You don't understand what I mean," said the C. E. "They line up in front of each other on the football field. Now the side that has the ball is trying to make a touchdown. Now we will suppose that you are playing halfback on the side that has the ball. You have a number. The quarterback calls your number and at the signal the center passes the ball to the quarterback, who, in turn, passes it to you, and—"

"And I drink it," said the Cub.

"Drink what?" exclaimed the C. E.

"Why, the highball, of course. Did you think I was going to let it pass me?"

"Oh, you boob!" groaned the City Editor. "Who said anything about a highball? I mean football, understand?"

"Football?"

"I get you, Stephen; resume," said the Cub.

"Now, when you get the ball, you run," continued the C. E. "I haven't done anything," said the Cub.

"You run because you are trying to make a touchdown, and the other team is trying to stop you from doing it," said the jinks. "If they catch you, they throw you down and jump all over you."

"That's nice, isn't it? They pull me down and jump all over me! Is that one of their forms of politeness?" said the Cub.

"Certainly. If you make a touchdown, you are the hero of the game," said the C. E.

"Well, I don't care to be a hero then," answered the Cub.

"Do you think you know a little about the game now," asked the City Editor.

"Sure I do," said the Cub.

"All right, then. Beat it over to your typewriter and pound me off an explanation of a football game."

The Cub went over to his machine and started in. After a few minutes he placed his copy on the City Editor's desk. He picked it up and read it. It went something like this:

"Football was invented so that there would be some use for collar bones. In the early days the game was played with a pigskin inflated with air—sort of a skin game, as it were. A football team is composed of eleven men, and always has a halfback, a quarterback and a fullback. There are no hunchbacks in the game but after the game. The man who plays the position of fullback does not necessarily have to be full. That is just the name of the position."

"Every football game is made up of twenty-two players, five hundred doctors and the rest noise. In order to become a football player one must be handsome, have plenty of long curly hair and be able to get the nosebleed at any moment. It is necessary that every player get hurt at some time or other in order to square himself better with the red-headed skirt on whom he spends all his money for violets and sachet powder. Every—"

The City Editor threw down the copy and tore his hair.

"Why," he yelled, "were Cub reporters ever invented?"

"Don't you know?" broke in the Cub. "Why, Cub reporters were invented so that the City Editor would have something on which to vent his wrath!"

SOCIETY

THOUGH the society folk are gradually coming back to town and entertaining again, there have been, as yet, very few functions. This week the only two affairs of elaborate size were the wedding of Miss Juliet Cooke and Mr. Edmund Melanphy on Thursday evening and the dance at which Mr. and Mrs. John Guild entertained last evening for their house guest, Miss Helen Coulter, and their daughter, Miss Dorothy Guild. From appearances there will not be so much social gaiety this season as there was last spring. Of course the coming to Honolulu of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. Templeton Crocker was the inspiration for many large functions as well as innumerable dinners and luncheons. This season, however, no social favorite from the mainland has as yet announced her intention of coming to Honolulu. Several affairs have been planned for the coming week, the largest of which is the dance at the Country Club given by Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary.

An unusually large number of Honoluluans have spent and are spending several months in the East and no doubt when they return there will be a number of entertainments.

Melanphy-Cooke Nuptials.

It has been some time since stately old Saint Andrews, which has been the scene of so many weddings, has been filled to such a capacity as it was on Thursday evening when Miss Juliet Cooke, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Cooke became the bride of Mr. Edmund Melanphy, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Melanphy. This wedding, though simple, was one of the prettiest of the year. The bridal party was preceded up the aisle by the vested choir. Following the songsters were the six ushers, Mr. Reginald Melanphy, Mr. Reynold McGraw, Mr. Percy Deverill, Mr. John Catton, Mr. Arthur Hubert Jones, and Mr. Jack Guard. Then came the little flower girls, Miss Martha Cooke, Miss Anna Cooke, Miss Caroline Cooke and Miss Marjorie Atherton. These dainty little misses were led by Master Herbert Richards. The little girls wore pretty white frocks and quaint lace caps ornamented with pink roses, and each one carried a little basket filled with pink roses. The flower girls were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Elsie Lydgate, a cousin of the bride. Miss Lydgate wore a gown of soft pink material and a large hat trimmed with pink. She carried a shower of pink roses. The bride entered the Cathedral leaning on the arm of her father, who later gave her into the keeping of the bridegroom. Miss Cooke made a stunning picture in her trailing gown of soft white material, trimmed with point lace and ornamented with pearls. Her veil was arranged in the Juliet fashion and was caught with orange blossoms and fastened to her court train with orange blossoms and lilies-of-the-valley. The bridal bouquet was a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. Mr. Melanphy was supported by Alfred D. Cooper.

The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents in Kaimuki, to which only relatives and intimate friends of the bride couple were bidden. At a late hour Mr. and Mrs. Melanphy departed for their honeymoon. Upon their return to town they will remain with Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Cooke for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Guild's Dance.

The dance at which Mr. and Mrs. John Guild entertained at the Country Club for Miss Helen Coulter and Miss Dorothy Guild was the largest social affair of the week and was also one of the most enjoyable functions yet given for the members of the younger set. Never has the spacious club looked cooler or more attractive than it did with the simple decoration.

Who is the house-guest of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Burdette Ingalls. Great branches of pepper were arranged through the lani and many beautiful ferns and palms were seen. Of the nearly two hundred guests that were invited the majority accepted. Girls in shimmering frocks called forth much admiration from the youths and the affair lasted till a late hour and was altogether delightful.

The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Guild and Miss Coulter and Miss Dorothy Guild. Kaa's Quintet Club furnished sweet Hawaiian music during the evening and at a late hour refreshments were served.

The invited guests included: Miss Ruth Anderson, Miss Katherine Ashley, Miss Carrie Akerman, Miss Irene Aiken, Miss Laura Atherton, Miss Juliette Atherton, Miss Violet Atherton, Miss Angus, Miss Katherine Blake, Miss Geraldine Berg, Miss Vivian Buckland, Miss Hazel Buckland, Miss Helen Burton, Miss Blacow, Miss Margaret Creighton, Miss Julia Campbell, Miss Rennie Catton, Miss Louise Churchill, Miss Daphne Damon, Miss Lucy Dimond, Miss Garda Everton, Miss Louise Effinger, Miss Marjorie Freeth, the Misses Ferguson, Miss Forbes, Miss Tia Ferguson, Miss Marjorie Gilman, Miss Hazel Gear, the Misses Greenfield, Miss Edith Gibb, Miss Helen Girvin, Miss Agnes Gibson, Miss Ghirardelli, Miss Alice Hoogs, Miss Fanny Hoogs, Miss Rosalie Herbert, Miss Bernice Halstead, Miss Muriel Howatt, Miss Dorothy Hoogs, Miss Ruth Johnston, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Margaret Jones, Miss Katherine Jones, Miss Maud Jones, Miss Isabelle Kinmann, the Misses Kopke, Miss Latham, Miss Elizabeth Low, Miss Olive Lindsay, Miss Callie Lucas, Miss Mary Lucas, Miss Sarah

Miss Brown to Wed Mark Hanna's Nephew.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Brown and Miss Helen Brown will be interested in reading the following from the San Francisco Examiner of October 16:

En route to Columbus, Ohio, where she will wed Stephen Hanna, nephew of the late Mark Hanna, Miss Helen Brown, daughter of Raymond Brown, diplomatic agent in the service of Uncle Sam, arrived from Honolulu yesterday on the transport Sherman.

Miss Brown, who is one of the prettiest society buds of Cleveland, and known throughout the Buckeye State for her accomplishments, was accompanied by her mother, with whom she has spent several weeks in Hawaii.

Although the engagement had previously been known to only a few intimates, the story became known among the passengers and Miss Brown soon received the undivided attention of every passenger on the steamer.

According to some of these passengers, the marriage of Miss Brown with Hanna, who is one of the wealthiest citizens of Columbus, is the outcome of a romance of romance.

It is said that Hanna had heard a great deal from his friends about the many accomplishments of Miss Brown and had become quite anxious to meet her. This desire became greater when he chanced to view the young woman's photograph at the home of a friend.

Hanna's opportunity came about a year ago when, just previous to Brown's departure for London upon a diplomatic mission, he was introduced to Miss Brown.

He immediately became devoted to his attentions and shortly afterwards the engagement became known to a few of the young people's friends.

Mrs. Dreier's Pol Supper.

Mrs. Emma Dreier entertained at an elaborate-pol supper on Monday evening. The table was prettily decorated with ixoras and the lani was a bower of ferns and flags of all nations. In the dining room hung great baskets of maiden hair ferns and American Beauty roses were placed about the room. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. August Dreier, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Chillingworth, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Chillingworth, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Widemann, Mrs. I. M. Silver Wedding Celebration.

Daintily engraved in silver comes the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder to the dance in celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The invitations are attractive, bearing as a heading the double monogram of Mr. and Mrs. Wilder, and also the year of their marriage the present year. This entertainment is to be a large affair and will be in the nature of a dance at the Oahu Country Club on the Seventh of November.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Young Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Young entertained informally at dinner at the Rathskeller last evening for Mrs. Howard and Dr. and Mrs. McNab who are visiting Mrs. Alexander Young.

Mrs. L. M. Stephens' Informal Bridge Party.

Mrs. L. M. Stephens entertained informally at bridge Wednesday afternoon at her Navy Yard home. The color scheme for the decorations is pink and will be developed with delicate pink flowers. The invited guests are Miss Nora Sturgeon, Miss Margaret Walhouse, Mrs. George Isenberger, Mrs. Kirby Smith, Mrs. Albert Atong, Miss Edith Cowles, Miss Julia McStocker, Mrs. Ross Kingsbury, Mrs. Gerald Johnson, Mrs. Douglas McDougal and Miss Harriet Hatch.

Picnic for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baldwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baldwin were the complimented guests at a picnic at Mokolie on Sunday at which Mr. Walter Dillingham was host. The party motored to the country in the morning and returned to town at sundown. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. George Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rice, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, Miss Marion Scott, Mr. Robert Atkinson, Mr. William Roth and Mr. Collins.

Informal Birthday Dinner.

Mrs. Maxwell Murray entertained at an informal birthday dinner last Friday evening at the Moana Hotel. The table was prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and the centerpiece was a birthday cake ornamented with candles. Covers were laid for six including Miss Harriet Hatch, Miss Murray, General Macomb, Lieutenant Andrews, and Mr. and Mrs. Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Baldwin of Maui, who have been in Honolulu for a short time, left for their home in the Mauna Kea Wednesday.

Women's Auxiliary of Outrigger Club Expands.

The following statement has been received from the Women's Auxiliary of the Outrigger Canoe Club:

During the month of August, 1912, over one thousand names were registered in the record books of the Women's Auxiliary of the Outrigger Club some seven hundred and fifty in round numbers, and the balance of two hundred and fifty, of guests. As this would indicate considerable activity in the club and frequent use of its privileges, a few words regarding its status, may be of interest.

It was in March, 1909, that the Women's Auxiliary was organized in response to a request from the Outrigger Club, which request was coupled with the offer of certain rights on the grounds. For a year or two, the Auxiliary went on its quiet way housed in primitive fashion in a grass thatched building and possessed of a comparatively small membership, but being of value to the young girls, the mothers of small children, teachers and other women workers for whose benefit it was primarily planned. After a time however, as the quarters were enlarged and improved and the entire premises became more attractive, its desirability from the social standpoint evidenced itself more and more.

This was shown by the frequent use of the banquet room for tea parties and supper in connection with swimming parties, as well as bachelors. Finally on account of the ever-increasing number of applications for membership and the non-elasticity of accommodations, it was decided after due notice and proper consideration, to limit the membership to two hundred, and the necessary change in the constitution was made at the last annual meeting in January. Since then the waiting list has grown larger each month though every effort has been made to admit as many as possible by allowing substitutes in place of members not able to use their cards for one reason or another.

Early in December however, a request was made by the Men's Club that such members of their families as were still on the waiting list of the Women's Auxiliary or desirous of becoming members should be permitted to join at once in view of the fact that the Auxiliary owes much to the courtesy and consideration of the Outrigger Club and that according to the consensus of opinion, a second women's annex on the grounds would not be desirable from any standpoint this request was acceded to. Arrangements were accordingly made as speedily as possible for a suitable addition to the women's bath house and the admission under a special dispensation of those ladies belonging to the families of men members whose names had been proposed and passed by the authorized committee of the men's club. The membership cards have now been issued and the women's bath house is ready for the use of all members. Between sixty and seventy new members have thus been added to the Auxiliary, their rights and privileges to be exactly the same as those of the earlier members. Just how the expense of the new addition to the bath house with plumbing and lockers, amounting to $700 will be met by the Women's Auxiliary is a problem.

Unfortunately even after the removal from the waiting list of all applicants belonging to the families of men members it still remains a lengthy one.

Social Notes

Mrs. Louis Schubert, whose picture appears in today's issue, is an attractive young society matron of the Northwest and an accomplished musician, who is visiting in Honolulu. Mrs. Schubert is the house guest of her sister, Mrs. Arthur B. Ingalls. During her short stay here many informal entertainments have been given in her honor, and those who have met Mrs. Schubert regret that she is not to remain in Honolulu for any length of time. Five years ago she visited this city as Miss Arline Barber and attended Oahu College, where she made many friends. Since her return to Washington, however, she has married a promising young business man. Mr. Schubert is an architectural sculptor and he is soon to move to San Francisco, where he will be occupied with work on the Fair buildings.

Mrs. Melvia Shingle is hostess at a delightfully appointed luncheon at the Country Club last Saturday afternoon. The color scheme for the decorations was pink and lavender and was developed with pink and lavender asters and tulle of the same soft shades. Covers were laid for Princess Kalaniana'ole, Princess Kawakana, Mrs. Mark A. Robinson (Miss Agnes Armour), Mrs. Erminia Dargie, Mrs. Charles Chillingworth, Mrs. Booth, Mrs. Robert Shingle, Mrs. S. G. O. King, Mrs. Carl Widemann, Mrs. A. P. Taylor and Mrs. Melvia Shingle.

Miss Gracie Bulkeley and Mr. Bayard Hyde-Smith are well known in the social circles of Honolulu as well as those in San Francisco and in the east. Particularly at the Capitol. Their engagement was one of the pleasant announcements of the last season and now comes to Honolulu the invitation to their wedding and reception which reads as follows: Captain and Mrs. William Andrew Gill request the honor of your company at the marriage reception of their daughter, Gracie Virginia, and Mr. Bayard Hyde-Smith, on the evening of Wednesday, the Sixth of November, one thousand nine hundred and twelve, at nine o'clock. The Portland, Washington, D. C.

The Donna Bridge Club met on Monday evening at the Donna. The first prizes, silk hose, were given to Mrs. Hill and Mr. Anderson, and the consolation prizes were given to Miss Hill and Mr. Hill. Miss Hill received a bouquet of roses and Mr. Hill was given a deck of cards. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

The Manoa Bridge Club was entertained by Mrs. William Goetz at her home in Manoa on Wednesday.

Mrs. Chapman Catt, the president of the National Woman's Suffrage Alliance, is due to arrive here in the Chiyu Maru next Tuesday. Mrs. Catt has been visiting in the Philippines and is now on her way home. She will not remain in Honolulu any length of time, but will continue her journey to the mainland in the Chiyu.

Mrs. Levi C. Lyman of Hilo, who has been visiting in this city for a short time, will return to her home by the Mauna Kea today.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenze Barney, of San Diego, Cal., have spent one month at Honolulu on their honeymoon, and as guests of Bishop and Mrs. Restarick at Bishop's House, Emma Square during the last week of their stay.

Mrs. Barney, nee Miss Lillian Powers was one of the most popular young ladies in San Diego and her wedding on September 12 was one of the most brilliant functions that has even taken place at the First Presbyterian church in that city in a long time.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney were departing passengers in the Manchuria.

Mrs. Maxwell Murray and Miss Murray of San Francisco will be the guests of Miss Wilhelmina Tenney at the Volcano House next week. The party will leave here in the Wilhelmina on Thursday, and upon reaching Hilo will motor to the Volcano. They will return to Honolulu in the Wilhelmina.

Miss Gladys Halstead, Miss Mary Smith, Miss Carol Reed, Miss Ruth Stacker, Miss Grace Johnstone, Miss Alice Yauborough, Miss Kate Singlehurst, Miss Mildred Chapin, Miss Gertrude Ripley, and Miss Ruth Farringham, ten girls of Oahu College, spent the morning at Waikiki, enjoying a swim and a picnic lunch, and in the afternoon attended the football game at Alexander Field to cheer for the Punahou team.

On Thursday Mrs. W. L. Emory entertained informally at luncheon for Mrs. R. R. Reidford who has recently returned from the mainland and Mrs. Robert Steere who has shortly returned from Rhode Island where she spent the summer. Covers were laid for Mrs. R. R. Reidford, Mrs. F. E. Steere, Mrs. Walter Coombs, Mrs. C. F. Hemenway and Mrs. W. L. Emory.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Robinson (Miss Agnes Armour) whose wedding was one of the important society events of the past week, were outgoing passengers in the Manchuria Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will spend several months touring the States and will return to Honolulu shortly after the first of the year and will make their home here.

Mr. George B. Torrey, who has been a visitor in Honolulu for several months, was a departing passenger in the Manchuria Wednesday. During his stay here Mr. Torrey has made several excellent portraits of some of Honolulu's society folk.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Swanzy are issuing invitations for a dinner to be given on the ninth of November in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. The dinner is to be followed by a new mode of dancing.

It is quite a coincidence that two of Honolulu's well known families should celebrate their silver weddings in the same week. Both of these functions will be large and are being anticipated with much pleasure.

Mrs. Erminia P. Dargie, who has been a guest at the Moana hotel for several weeks, and who has been extensively entertained during her visit to the islands, was a departing passenger in the Manchuria.

Mrs. Schlaser of Fort Shafter entertained informally at luncheon on Wednesday for six of the ladies of the Army set. The table centerpiece was of white asters. Covers were laid for Miss Ethel Spalding, Mrs. J. M. Kennedy, Mrs. McAfee, Miss McAfee, Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Schlaser.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ivers are entertaining at a picnic at Kaiala tomorrow.

Mrs. W. C. Neville has invitations out for a dinner to be given next Wednesday evening.

After a visit in Honolulu covering a period of seven months Col. A. G. Hawes returned to the mainland by the Manchuria on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. V. King are receiving congratulations from their friends upon the arrival of a little King in their home.

Mr. and Mrs. T. V. King have as their house-guest Mrs. King's mother, Mrs. Newbegin of Mill Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph G. Moore, who have been spending the summer at the Hau Tree have returned to their home on Kinau street.

Miss Dorothy Guild and her house-guest, Miss Helen Coulter, are booked for the Volcano next Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Deerr have moved from the Colonial and are settled in their new home in Manoa Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Lillie Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Innes Lillie entertained informally at dinner at the Palm cafe Tuesday evening. The dinner was followed by a theatre party to the Ye Liberty theatre. Covers were laid for Miss Anne Drumm, Miss McDevitt, Mrs. Hansen, Miss May Ferguson, Miss Fairweather, Miss Swain, and Mr. and Mrs. Lillie.

Mrs. Kirby Smith has invitations out for a bridge party to be given on the first of November.

Mr. Walter Dillingham left in the Mauna Kea Wednesday for a short trip to the other islands.

Miss Helen A. Alexander left in the Manchuria for a trip to the mainland.

MISS COOK, TEACHER, FIRM BELIEVER IN EQUAL SUFFRAGE

That woman's suffrage should be advocated in Hawaii is the opinion of Miss Bernice P. Cook, teacher of the Kalaupapa school. In an interview yesterday, Miss Cook told the Star-Bulletin representative that after studying local conditions thoroughly she concludes that it is to the advantage of the taxpayers of the territory that the right of suffrage should be extended to the women, who, she claims, could vote intelligently for men who are best qualified to become lawmakers. Miss Cook argues further that a large number of the women, especially those who are teachers, have read the constitution of the United States thoroughly, and know and understand the significant points which are apt to influence them, as future voters, to cast their ballots wisely on election day.

EMPRESS EUGENIE IS VERY FEMININE

PARIS—The Empress Eugenie has always had many admirers in England not only because of memories of her exquisite beauty, but chiefly because of the tragic death of the Prince Imperial when fighting under the British flag in the Zulu war. Her name now rarely appears in the public prints, and when it does most readers feel a sense of astonishment that one who took such a brilliant part in the now almost forgotten days of the Empire should still be alive. But that something of the old spirit which made the Empress Eugenie the dictator of fashion for all the courts of Europe is still alive is seen in a delightful story which is told of her when on a recent visit to Paris. The Empress Eugenie, in spite of her great age and her constant mourning, says Le Cri de Paris, remains as courageous as toadflax, as gawwaw and furbelows, as they called them in the days of her pride. On her last visit to Paris she gave herself "a delight of the eyes." She asked one of her ladies-in-wait to bring in the house the most elegant of her friends, dressed in their newest toilet.

These ladies flattered to appear before one who had been a queen, got themselves up in their best, and the Empress gazed in ecstasy at the marvelous robes with which she saw herself surrounded. She could scarcely have enough of regarding, of admiring, of being shown and having explained all the minute details.

"What artists your dressmakers are!" she exclaimed. "Ah, if those of my time had dressed us like that, what a France I would have made of it; what fates I would have given!" All at once a practical idea, worthy of an economical old lady, came to her. She demanded the price of these gowns. At the sums mentioned she cried out in astonishment, asked if it were possible, and then said: "But it is ruinous. Imagine that when I was on the throne I never paid for one of those robes that I was not reproached for spending so much."

Miss Gertrude Rothschild, daughter of the late V. Henry Rothschild of New York, is soon to be married in Paris to Enrique Pua's de Frere, Argentine consul general to Belgium.

The shortage of Marshall Black accounts in the Palo Alto Building & Loan Company now amounts to over $150,000. Black is still in jail in San Jose unable to obtain bail.

ORGANIZING NOW FOR MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT

Executive Committee Meets and Special Committees Are Named

The newly organized executive committee of the Men and Religion Forward Movement met at the University Club yesterday noon for the purpose of appointing various chairmen of committees for work in the coming campaign. Harry N. Holmes, advance man for the Smith-Robins tour, spoke a few words of appreciation on the splendid cordiality with which he had been received by the citizens of Honolulu, and the committee voted its great appreciation of Mr. Holmes' splendid leadership in helping Hawaii prepare for the coming of this great movement.

The committees were organized as follows: L. Tenney Peck, chairman of the committee of one hundred; F. C. Atherton, vice-chairman of the committee of one hundred and chairman of the executive committee; John Guild, treasurer; A. A. Ebersole, recording secretary; and Paul Super, executive secretary. The chairmen of committees were appointed as follows: W. A. Bowen, of the committee on special functions; J. R. Galt, of the committee and institution on social service and boys' work; Rev. R. E. Smith, of the committee and institution on evangelism and Bible study; A. F. Griffiths, of the committee on publicity; W. G. Hall, of the committee on community extension; Dr. J.

W. Wadman, of the committee on auxiliary towns; and T. Hori, of the committee on other nationalities.

After a preliminary statement by L. Tenney Peck on the purpose of the gathering, Mr. Holmes spoke somewhat in detail on the men and Religion Forward Movement. After this, Paul Super presented a program for the eight-day visit of Messrs Smith and Robins, planning the details of the visit and the various meetings. This was adopted with the understanding that it is to be referred to the two men composing the team for their suggestions to the local committee for development and elaboration.

It was moved, seconded, and passed that the various chairmen complete their committees in consultation with the pastors of the churches and the officers of the movement and submit a list to the general chairman, Mr. Peck, for ratification and appointment. It was voted on that upon the completion of this committee of one hundred the members be invited to attend a dinner to be given during the latter part of November. At this dinner the various committees will present the outline of their plans. The arrangements for this dinner were left to W. A. Bowen, chairman of the committee of special functions.

During the meeting questions as to the financing of the campaign were raised. The consensus of opinion was that the movement be underwritten by private subscriptions and that no collections be taken during the campaign.

his subject "Choosing a Husband."

Don't forget the Epworth League service at 6:30 p. m. We can assure you a very pleasant hour at this meeting. A prominent speaker will be in the chair.

Ours is a people's church. People from every walk of life will find a cordial welcome awaiting them at all our services. You will find here a beautiful, well-ventilated church building, a homelike atmosphere, good music by a chorus choir, evangelical preaching and inspiring and helpful devotional services. Tourists and settlers, strangers and the well known, malihinis and kamaainas, are all alike cordially invited to enjoy all the privileges of the church.

Come thou with us and we will do thee good.

ADDRESS ON TUBERCULOSIS.

Tomorrow being the fourth Sunday of the month, the morning service at Kaunakapili church will be in English. Mr. James A. Rath of Palama Settlement will address the congregation on the vital question of "Tuberculosis." Everybody is cordially invited, and a large congregation is expected. The service is at 11 o'clock.

NEWCOMERS' CLUB TO HAVE TIMELY TOPIC

The Newcomers' Club, which meets every Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. always takes up timely topics under the general heading "The Principles of Jesus." The discussion for tomorrow afternoon will be on a modern topic, the subject being "Jesus and Politics."

Some of the questions which will be asked are, "What Was Jesus' Political Status?" "Was He a Political Reformer?" "Did He Violate Any Laws?" "Does He Sanction the Violation of Laws?" "What Are a Christian's Duties?" "Can a Christian Vote a Straight Ticket?" and "Would Jesus Vote for Men or Principals?"

There is sure to be a lively discussion, as these are questions on which twenty men will have twenty different opinions varying from an emphatic "no" to an equally decided "yes."

Anderson's orchestra will play in the lobby from four until four forty-five, rendering the following program: 1—Funicula-Funicula..... Gulbo 2—Violin solo, "Serenata Moskowskii"..... G. Domingo

FAVOR MRS. H. E. WILEY.

Friends Urge Her Appointment to Board of Education.

Friends of Mrs. Harvey E. Wiley wife of Dr. Harvey E. Wiley, former head of the bureau of chemistry, Department of Agriculture, are urging her appointment to the board of education of this city. Two vacancies exist on the board at present, owing to the fact that Miss Mabel Boardman and William L. Houston, who were appointed in the summer to fill vacancies caused by resignations, declined to serve.

Dr. John R. Francis and George Collins are being advocated in some quarters for the position left vacant by Mrs. Houston. The two vacancies will be filled in October, when the Supreme Court of the District meets.

MUSICALES AT CENTRAL UNION ARE RESUMED

All lovers of good music will be pleased to hear that the monthly Sunday Evening Sacred Musicales at Central Union Church, which last year proved so popular, are again to be resumed. The first of these musicales is to be given Sunday evening, at regular church service hour, 7:30 p. m.

Mr. A. B. Ingalls, Director of the Chorus Choir, has arranged an attractive program which includes the following numbers:

Organ Prelude—Procession of the Minister..... Wagner
Quartet—"Evening Shadows"..... Miss Collins, Mrs. Weight, Mr. Wall, Mr. Brown.
Double Quartet—"Arise! Shine"..... Buck
Solo—"How Lovely Are Thy Dwelling-ings"..... George A. Andrus.
Offertory Solo—"O had I Jubal's Lyre!"..... Oratorio of Joshua Handel, Miss Collins.

Anthem—"God Hath Appointed a Day"..... Tours
Organ Postlude Grand Chorus..... Lemaignre

The double quartet which has been recently reorganized is made up of the following well known singers:

Soprano—Miss Edith Rosslyn Collins, Miss Ethel M. Damon.
Altos—Mrs. Charles S. Weight, Mrs. Chester J. Dunn.

Tenors—Mr. Arthur F. Wall, Mr. J. A. Hill.

Basses—Mr. George A. Brown, Mr. Clifton Tracy.

Mr. George A. Andrus, Director of Music at Kamehameha Manual School, will be heard for the first time by a Central Union audience in a solo. Mr. Andrus is a graduate of the Conservatory of Music at Oberlin, Ohio, and possesses a tenor voice of rare sweetness.

The concerts are open to the general public. So little opportunity comes to the people of Honolulu to hear the best sacred music that Central Union Church desires that all should share the delights of these musicales.

SUNDAY MORNING BIBLE CLASS NEARS 100 MARK

The Lecture Room of the Kiloheana Art League furnishes quite an ideal meeting place for a large Bible Class such as the Sunday morning class which Mr. Ebersole, Associate Pastor of Central Union Church, is conducting there each Sunday morning from ten to eleven o'clock. Sixty-five young men and young women were present at the opening class last Sunday morning, and enough more have already enrolled or expressed their intention of enrolling to bring the attendance well up to the one-hundred mark. Two large committees, one of young men and another of young women, are endeavoring to enroll all the young people who are not already members of some other church. A most cordial invitation is again extended to all the young men and young women of the city.

The introductory lectures which Mr. Ebersole is giving for the first few Sundays are of peculiar value to all who care to be informed on the origin and history of the New Testament records. Tomorrow morning he will present in diagram the story of how these records have come down to us including the study of the various existing manuscripts and the different versions through which they have had to pass before being edited in their present form.

The class meets promptly at 10 o'clock and dismisses in time for the morning church services.

That Little Hacking Cough

Hard coughs are bad enough, to be sure. But it's often the little, hacking, tickling, persistent cough that means the most, especially when there is a history of weak lungs in the family. What should be done? Ask your doctor. He knows. Ask him about the formula on the label of every bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask him if this medicine has his full approval for throat and lung troubles. Then do as he says.

MARQUETTE, Michigan, October 25.—Colonel Roosevelt, through his attorneys, filed suit here today against George Newett, editor of the leading paper in this city, demanding $10,000 damages. The basis of the suit as stated is the use by Newett of "intemperate language."

Guiding his instruments by the X-ray, Dr. J. T. O'Brien at Petaluma, Cal., today removed a small gold beauty pin from the stomach of the month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Volkers. The operation was performed without an incision. The doctor inserted an instrument through the child's throat into the stomach, picked up the "object" and removed it through the mouth. The baby had swallowed the pin about a week ago.

A Turkish army of 22,000 men, commanded by Riza Bey, is faced with the alternative of unconditional surrender or useless slaughter near the town of Servia, Turkey, according to a special dispatch received in London from Athens, Greece, today.

The Crown Prince of Servia was in charge of the artillery during the battle of Kumanova, in which the Servians claim to have won a great victory over the Turks, inflicting a loss of 5000 men, twelve guns and an enormous amount of ammunition.

A bloody battle between Conservatives and Liberals, during which several hundred shots were fired and thirty or forty persons killed or wounded, broke out after midnight in Central Park, in the heart of the city, at the close of a meeting of supporters of Vice President Alfredo Zayas, who is a candidate for the Presidency.

Colonel Roosevelt took up his active work of the campaign, for the first time since he was shot in Milwaukee, eleven days ago.

The Colonel was not able to do as much work as he wished. He has not overcome the effects of the nervous exhaustion from which he suffered after spending a week in bed in Chicago.

With a view to inspecting the fortifications of San Diego, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood left Los Angeles for that city tonight. During his stay in Los Angeles, General Wood made several impromptu talks at entertainments given in his honor. The General advocated stronger fortifications and a larger and better equipped national guard for California.

"Few United States citizens realize the danger to our insular possessions," said General Wood today. "None of them is threatened now, but it may come any day. There is nothing to hinder a foreign Power seizing Hawaii and then making an attack on the Pacific Coast. It is our sacred duty to teach as many citizens of the United States as we can to carry arms."

That Grand Duke Alexis, heir to the Russian throne, who is lying ill in the imperial hunting lodge in Spaul, Russian Poland, was stabbed by a nihilist and is in grave danger, is the report in circulation here today.

The duke, who is but eight years old, it is asserted, was stabbed by the nihilist, who lay in wait for him as he came for a walk with his nurse. It is also claimed that the Czarina attempted to hurl herself from a window when she learned of her boy's injury.

The fact that all the churches in Russia are offering up prayers for the recovery of the czarvitch is believed to indicate that he is in grave danger.

HARVEST BEATS
ALL RECORDS

Henry Clews drops into a suspicion of humor in his special letter of October 11, when he says that "in the first half of the week, baseball, battleships and the Balkan war were too strong a combination of diversions for the stock market." The letter begins with latest harvest figures and cheerful comment thereon as follows:

"This harvest has surpassed all records, and such brilliant results as were indicated in Wednesday's government report cannot but have a further stimulating effect upon business. The results compared with last year are as follows:

	1912.	1911.
Wheat, bls.	750,000,000	620,000,000
Corn, bls.	3,016,000,000	2,531,000,000
Oats, bls.	1,417,000,000	922,000,000
Rye, bls.	35,000,000	33,000,000
Barley, bls.	224,000,000	160,000,000
Potatoes bls	401,000,000	292,000,000
Hay, tons	72,425,000	55,000,000

"Not only are these crops the largest on record, but in most cases, what is highly important, quality is exceptionally good. It should also be noted that the fruit crops as a whole have been unusually abundant, and that never in its history has the nation been so generally and so generously favored by nature. All food products derived from plant life should be relatively cheap this year and aid materially in keeping down the cost of living. Only meats are likely to be dear, since the supply of these has been actually declining. If the cost of living is to be reduced, it can only be accomplished by larger product and less waste both of materials and labor. Estimates now place the value of agricultural products this year as high as $10,000,000,000. Possibly this figure is excessive, but it is safe to say our farmers will produce at least $500,000,000 more than last year. With such a marvelous increase in the bounty of nature, it will be impossible to prevent an active fall and winter trade. Pessimism must shrivel away before such results."

Mr. Clews says that intrinsic conditions continue satisfactory, the volume of trade being large and constantly increasing. All records in some respects are being broken in railroad traffic, but he complains that the Interstate Commerce Commission is dominated by anti-railroad sentiment. Following are some keynote remarks by the New York financier:

"No better evidence of business activity can be found than the tremendous demand for iron and steel. Present indications point to the largest production of pig iron and steel ingots on record during the calendar year of 1912.

"In the textile trades business is also active. Liberal orders have been placed for many fabrics, and the lower price of cotton has served to place that branch of our textile industry upon a much firmer foundation than existed six months ago.

"A still more convincing proof of business activity is found in bank clearings, which last week showed an increase of 23 per cent over last year; this increase being well distributed among all our leading business cities.

"In the money market a somewhat better feeling prevails and further stringency may be averted until the usual pinch around January 1. The situation, however, is not free of doubt. Gold imports from Europe have been delayed by the Balkan situation; and the possibility of stringency has induced our government to express its willingness to give whatever relief may be necessary. It seems quite certain that the government will use every legitimate effort to counteract stringency.

"Very soon the market will be watching election day and endeavoring to discount its result, so that conditions suggest a somewhat unsettled and fluctuating market.

"Our agricultural prosperity is a rock of strength and has not yet been fully discounted."

EDITED BY DANIEL LOGAN

SIX SUGAR STOCKS HAVE DECLINED IN PAST SIX DAYS

Business on the Honolulu Stock and Bond Exchange for the six days ended at noon yesterday shows a decline of only 50 shares of stocks and of $5540.87 in proceeds from stocks, as compared with the corresponding period ended last week. Sales of bonds were less by $19,000 for this same time, so that the total deficiency this week is $24,540.87. Sales of stocks for the week beginning on Saturday last were 2536 shares, with aggregate prices $64,858 and of bonds at par value of $28,000, making a total of $92,858 of business for six days.

There was a generally declining market for sugar stocks, only three out of nine dealt in holding their own, and none showing an advance. Taking last sale prices on Saturday and yesterday, the following declines are noted: Ewa, 29 to 28.50; Hawaiian Commercial, 41.75 to 40; McBryde, 5.75 to 5.37 1/2; Oahu, 26 to 25.37 1/2; Olan, 5.62 1/2 to 5.12 1/2; Waiola, 115 to 110. Honokaa, Kahuku and Pioneer are unchanged, but with little doing in them. In other than sugar, Pineapple has advanced from 44 to 45.50, and Telephone from 25 to 26.25, while Oahu Railway is unchanged.

Transactions in detail are as follows:

Stocks.
Ewa Plantation Co., 50 shares for $1425; price, 28.50.
Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Co., 236 shares for $12,218.25; high, 40.25; low, 40.
Hawaiian Pineapple Co., 325 shares for $14,405; high, 44.50; low, 44.
Hilo Railroad Co., common, 10 shares for 85; price, 8.50.
Honokaa Sugar Co., 135 shares for $1112.75; price, 8.50.
Kahuku Plantation Co., 10 shares for $160; price, 16.
McBryde Sugar Co., 350 shares for $1932.75; high, 5.50; low, 5.37 1/2.
Mutual Telephone Co., 105 shares for $2756.25; price, 26.25.
Oahu Railway and Land Co., 8 shares for $1200; price, 150.
Oahu Sugar Co., 568 shares for $14,624.25; high, 26; low, 25.37 1/2.
Olan Sugar Co., 305 shares for $1643.75; high, 5.75; low, 5.12 1/2.
Pioneer Mill Co., 40 shares for $1240; price, 31.
Waiola Agricultural Co., 100 shares for $11,000; price, 110.
Bonds.
Hawaiian Irrigation sixes, $7000 at 101.
Hilo Railroad Extension sixes, $5000, at 97.75.
Hilo Railroad 1901 sixes, $2000 at 102.25.
Honokaa sixes, $10,000 at 102.50.
McBryde fives, $1000 at 100.

BUSINESS NOTES

Honolulu Iron Works Co. has been awarded the contract for 10,000 feet of pipe for the Palolo extension of the water works.

Applications for trees for Arbor Day planting should be made at the government nursery not later than November 5, in person or by mail.

Oahu Sugar Co. will not pass its regular monthly dividend of 25 cents a share, but it is authoritatively stated that no extra dividend can be expected for the coming season.

Onomea Sugar company's stock is now on the basis of a capital of $1,500,000, increased from one million. Prior to the change the stock was at $7.50 last sale, and it is now quoted at 39 asked.

Treasurer Conkling reports a net increase of $18,900,000 in the assessed value of real and personal property in the Territory, and he anticipates that a lowering of the tax rate may be practicable.

A value of $18 a square foot has been put on the land occupied by the Office Supply Co. Fort between King and Merchant streets, by an expert witness in the third condemnation suit for the Federal building site now on trial.

Wireless communication was opened this week on the Marconi system between Seattle and Honolulu, the event being marked by an interchange of greetings between the editors of the Post-Intelligencer of Seattle and the Star-Bulletin of Honolulu.

A reduction of 20 per cent has been made in the meter rates of water furnished to consumers along the Honolulu waterfront, or from $2.50 to $2 a thousand gallons, to take effect January 1 next. It is estimated that the reduction will mean a saving of $7500 a year to the shipping interests.

In two months the Lord-Young Engineering Company expects to be able to begin work on its contract for reclaiming lands on the Kewalo flats, Honolulu, under the sanitation law passed by last legislature, which the supreme court has lately pronounced valid. The price of this first job is about $160,000.

L. S. Connors, promoter of the Hilo street railway for which he obtained a franchise from Congress last session, has given out a statement that work on the first section will shortly be started, the $5000 bond to the county of Hawaii required having been approved by Governor Frear. Front street, which has a heavy traffic, will be the thoroughfare principally covered in the first section.

D. S. K. Pahu, a young Hawaiian who went to take a civil service examination in Manila last year, is reported to have become associated with business men there in a new sugar plantation project. They are said to have 2000 acres of land and expect to have 10,000 acres altogether. Mr. Pahu may return to Honolulu when his two years' engagement is up and place an order here for the sugar mill.

It is not a new story that peaches may be grown successfully in these islands, but Dr. Wilcox, of the Federal experiment station, has discovered some particularly fine peaches raised by R. Sida at Makawao, Maui, there being a very good harvest on a plot of two acres. It is pleasant to note that the Mediterranean fruit fly has not reached these peaches, but Dr. Wilcox considers them good enough to advise their protection with bags while ripening.

One hundred thousand dollars is the estimated cost of the new buildings to be erected by the Hawaiian Pineapple Co., to replace their present cannery and office at Iwilei. Catton, Neill & Co., Ltd., has taken out a permit for an office building at Alakaa and Queen streets to cost $20,000. Theo. H. Davies & Co., Ltd., has taken out permits for alterations in buildings on Kaahumanu and Halekui streets aggregating $4500 in cost. E. W. Sutton is having a $4450 dwelling erected in Maona.

For the year ended July 31, 1912, the trustees of the estate of the late W. C. Lunallilo, the king who devised all his property to found the Lunallilo Home for the Aged and Indigent Hawaiians, report that receipts were $72,490.30 and disbursements $70,178.69. Investments and securities totaled $210,333.28, of which $54,694 represented real estate book values. On the date mentioned there were 60 inmates in the Home, 38 males and 22 females, and the institution was being well kept by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith.

The Territorial Library Association has been organized, absorbing the Honolulu Library and Reading Room Association and the Library of Hawaii, the new organization being a self-perpetuating body, to have charge of the Carnegie library building in Honolulu and its contents. Officers and directors are the following named: M. M. Scott, president; W. D. Alexander, vice president; J. H. Fisher, secretary (also auditor); A. Gartley, treasurer; Charles H. Atherton, Frank E. Blake, P. L. Weaver, Anthony Loftus and A. Lindsay.

Hawaii is going to have a revival of the kukui nut industry, dormant for a generation or more, if the efforts of Dr. E. V. Wilcox, director of the Federal experiment station, to that end succeed. He is working on the problem of what percentage of oil can be extracted from the nut, and what the cost of gathering and manufacturing will be. Kukui nut oil is valuable for paint mixing, being better than the best linseed and worth a dollar a gallon. Customs records of the fifties show an annual export of the oil as high as ten thousand gallons. Lately the utilization of the algaroba bean in the commercial manufacture of a feed-stuff has been added to local industries, making a fine source of income to many young and old people in gathering the beans. Two factories working different processes of reduction of the beans are in operation in Honolulu.

Within a space of four days instruments were filed for record cover-

HAWAII'S TRADE THIS YEAR WITH MAINLAND $85,000,000

The trade of the United States with its noncontiguous territories will amount to 250 million dollars in the calendar year 1912. Tables completed by the division of statistics of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce and Labor show that during the eight months ended August 31, 1912, merchandise shipped from the United States to the noncontiguous territories amounted to 74 million dollars in value against 61 million in the same months of last year, and the merchandise received from these territories amounted to 97 1/2 million dollars in value against 80 1/2 million in the corresponding months of last year. This showing of an increase of 30 million dollars—a gain of more than 20 per cent in the single year—gives assurance that the total value of this trade in the current calendar year will reach and probably exceed 250 million dollars in value.

The gain in the trade with the noncontiguous territories has been far greater than that in the trade with foreign countries. The figures of 1912 will exceed by 150 per cent those of a decade ago, while the trade with foreign countries for the same period shows a gain of approximately 75 per cent. The first year in which accurate figures with all of the noncontiguous territories were available was the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903. Prior to that time no official data was procurable of the trade with Alaska, and figures were refused by those engaged in the trade with Hawaii and Porto Rico after their annexation to the United States and establishment as customs districts. This condition was, however, remedied by an act of congress which required statements of this traffic to be made in terms similar to those in which the trade with foreign countries is shown, and in consequence of this enactment full statistics of the traffic have been available since 1903. These figures show that the trade with Porto Rico in 1903 amounted to about 23 million dollars in value, while in the current year it will amount to about 75 million dollars, or more than three times as much as a decade ago.

The trade with Hawaii in the year ended June 30, 1903, was 37 million dollars in value, and in the calendar year 1912 will amount to about 85 million dollars, an increase of over 130 per cent in a decade. With the Philippines, the trade in 1903 was 15 million dollars in value, and in the calendar year 1912 will amount to about 45 million dollars, having trebled in that period. With Alaska the trade of 1903 was about 1 million dollars in value and in the calendar year 1912 promises to be about 125 million dollars, an increase of approximately 125 per cent in the period in question; these figures being exclusive of gold received from Alaska, which seems likely to be greater in the current year than ever before—the figures of the eight months ended August 31, 1912, being 713 million dollars against a little less than five million in the eight months of 1910.

Manufactures form the bulk of the 110 million dollars' worth of merchandise passing to the noncontiguous territories in 1912, and sugar, tobacco, fruits, fish, copper and hemp are the principal articles forming the 140 million dollars' worth of merchandise received from Hawaii and Porto Rico; hemp and sugar are the largest single items from the Philippines, and canned salmon and copper the largest in the merchandise received from Alaska.

FORMER HAWAIIAN PLANTER MANAGER IN PHILIPPINES

All of the many friends of L. Barkhausen, formerly manager of Pioneer Mill Co.'s plantation at Lahaina, will be interested in the following account of a large new plantation in the Philippines of which he is the manager. It is from the Manila Times of September 23:

L. Barkhausen, the well known Hawaiian planter, has consented to return to business for the purpose of developing Calamba sugar estate, has completed his preliminary survey of the project and sketched in outline the work that he is to direct as manager. He went to La Guna early last week and spent several days on the property; he returned enthusiastic over what he saw and ready for business. He has already begun placing large preliminary orders for material and supplies and within the next week actual work is to commence. The problem ahead of him is a two-sided one, involving on one hand the construction, assemblage, and operation of a great modern sugar mill, and on the other the simultaneous development of a great sugar plantation that will be ready to furnish cane in large quantities when the central is ready for operation.

Two years' time and two million pesos have been allotted to this great task and the plan of their expenditure includes many features of large interest to the people of the Philippines. First in order comes the treatment of labor which is to be on the contract and premium system, a form of profit sharing, a company ing amounts totalling $403,100, or an average of $100,000. One was a mortgage for $20,500 by the Kapioiani Estate to Charles G. Macomber, late owner of the Kahuku Ranch, on property in Honolulu. Second, a deed of trust from the Kehena Water Co., Ltd., to E. L. Spalding and F. Klamp, of the property of the company including that of the Kohala Ditch Co., Ltd., to secure an issue of $250,000 of bonds, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to completing subsidiary ditches and reservoirs. Third, a mortgage by Alfred W. Carter, trustee of Annie T. K. Parker Emart, to Bishop & Co., for $100,000 advances made for the purchase of property on the island of Hawaii, the mortgage covering 147,472.29 acres of land in Waimea and Hamakua districts. Fourth, a deed from Mrs. Walter Macfarlane to Mrs. George C. Beckley, of land at Waikiki forming part of the estate of the late James Campbell, the consideration being $32,600.

store where goods will be sold at prices which will merely cover administrative expenses and half a dozen schemes designed to contribute to the material and moral welfare of the employees. Both in machinery and planting Calamba sugar estate is to be made a demonstration and experiment station for the benefit of the sugar industry at large. Workers are to be housed in sanitary barracks and they and their families are to be encouraged and assisted to develop small plantings of their own and domestic household industries.

Mr. Barkhausen, in an interview with a representative of this paper, made the following statement as to the estate and the plans for its development:

"First a word about the country. I liked its general appearance very much. Somewhere I got the impression that it was low-lying and unhealthy. I found that it was neither and not only the country but the people look healthy. As far as I could see the soil looks good for cane and the analysis of it is good. I saw considerable quantity of cane and, considering that the islands have had an exceedingly dry year, that no fertilizers have been used on it and that the plying is shallow, it looks very good. The property lies well and will be easy to work.

"Our first work will be the construction and equipment of a branch railway to connect the mill site with Manila railroad. Our mill site is distant about one and one-half miles from the railroad line and we can undertake no large work until its operation, because over it we must handle our material and supplies. Later we shall extend the line through the Calamba estate and on to Santa Rosa and Binan, this to handle cane and work the plantation, and eventually will have about 15 miles of railway.

"The mill will have a capacity of 1200 tons of cane daily and it will be designed for future enlargement to 2400. It will be a 12 roller mill and the contract for its construction will be awarded shortly. The plans for it are completed and they call for all of the latest modern improvements and ideas. We expect delivery nine months from the date of the award and to have the mill in operation by December 1, 1914. The boiling house will be correspondingly equipped and with them will be modern machine and carpenter shops an electric plant and an ice plant.

SUGAR PRICES WILL DECLINE

According to Willett & Gray, the world's prices of sugar the coming season are bound to average much less than for two years past, no matter whether manipulated abroad as usual or not. Following is Willett & Gray's review of the raw sugar market under date of October 3.

October is the opening month for raw beet crop quotations, and the passing over from the September old crop to the new was marked, as usual, with a large reduction in quotations.

It is a matter of congratulation on our side of the water that our local supplies of raw sugar have become so sufficiently large as to make us almost independent of the world's prices, so much so that while European refiners have been paying full-up prices of the world quotations, our refiners have been able to buy at much lower parity, the benefit of which has gone to the consumers of sugar.

All crop news is favorable with few exceptions, and it is the general opinion abroad that beet sugar will decline to about 9s. (now quoted 9s. 6d. to 9s. 9 1/2d.).

Cuba crop centrifugals are now offered at 2 1/2c. c. & f. for early next year delivery, but buyers' views are not above 2 1/2c. c. & f. for such shipments.

It is reliably said by some Cuban estate owners that at 2 1/2c. c. & f. there is little or no profit now, owing principally to the high prices paid for cane and to the labor conditions in the island, caused by the political and other circumstances. There is little doubt that cane enough is in the fields this season for a two million crop of sugar, but it remains to be seen if labor and weather conditions will permit of such final result.

In any event, with the large European beet crops well assured, the world's prices will average much less than for two years past, with or without the usual interference with normal conditions by the Sugar Exchange manipulations abroad.

Centrifugal quotations remained unchanged most of the week at 2 1/2-16c. c. & f. and 4 1/2c. per lb., duty paid, for 96° test basis. The amount of business doing has been limited by restriction of offerings.

Philippine sugars to arrive are offered at last price paid, basis of 3.40c. for 88° test.

The former purchases of European beet sugars are arriving and do not look quite as cheap now as at the time they were secured, but still they are required to fill the demand until new crops are available for use; the making of such purchases is one of the risks refiners are obliged to take in preparing to meet the demand.

October shipments of beet sugar are on offer as low as 10s. 6d. c. & f. (4.01c.), and even 9s. 10 1/2d. c. & f. (4.01c.), from which port freight rates are unusually low and much less than from Hamburg, from which port the offerings are at 10s. 4 1/2d. to 10s. 6d. c. & f. (4.09c. to 4.12c.). Fimne shipments require about 30 days for arrival, against 15 days from Hamburg.

While the offers to sell centrifugals at 2 1/2-16c. c. & f. are generally withdrawn from absence of supplies, yet it is a little doubtful if this price is available from buyers, who are inclined to wait further developments of the October situation abroad; at the close a sale is reported of prompt Cubas at 2 1/2-32c. c. & f., reducing spot quotation .08c. to 4.14c., which is .08c. above the parity of European beet sugars for October shipment.

ber 1, 1914 and the plantation work will be carried forward simultaneously. Orders have been placed for the necessary plowing equipment and delivery is expected in December or January next. Pending delivery we shall clean a large area of land and have it ready for the plowing machines. We plan to plow the same with day and night shifts, using powerful search-lights to guide the latter.

"We have given a great deal of thought to the treatment of our laborers and have several plans that we intend to put into effect. Speaking generally, we shall use the contract or premium system of payment. In cultivation we shall make computations as to acreage and set a price on it allowing a reasonable time for its completion. We shall then award the work to individuals or groups and give them a chance to earn a premium on it. It is an incentive to the men, it increases their pay, it secures quick and satisfactory results for us. Other contracts like loading cane will be based on a day's work per man, and here again the men by industry can add materially to normal earnings. This is being done with Filipino workers in Hawaii and the great majority of them are now making much more than they originally contracted for.

"I have always been against the so called company store and find my associates in the same attitude so there is to be no company store, in

PHILIPPINE LABORERS DO WELL IN HAWAII

Royal D. Mead, director of the labor bureau of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association, arrived in Manila recently to look over the work of his agents in the islands, says a late Manila paper. Mr. Mead is probably the best-informed man on labor for the tropics in the Pacific. His bureau has imported laborers from Southern Europe, Japan, China, Korea and the Philippine Islands.

Regarding the earnings of Filipino laborers on the sugar plantations of Hawaii, Mr. Mead said: "The minimum wage of our laborers is $20 U. S. currency per month of 26 days. In addition to this, on the first of this year we adopted a system of bonuses, approaching profit-sharing, which bonus is based on the price we receive for our raw sugar. If this price averages for the year $71 per ton, a bonus of 1 per cent of his year's earnings is paid to the laborer receiving $24 per month or less, and this bonus is increased 1 per cent for each dollar increase above $71 in the average price of sugar. For the last ten years the price of sugar has averaged approximately $80 per ton, so that we estimate that the bonus will be about 10 per cent per annum.

"Nearly all of our work, however, is done under contracts, and the earnings of laborers under this system are far greater than under the wage system."

Mr. Mead stated, as an instance of how well the contractors do, that shortly before he left Honolulu ten men, Filipinos, came to his office and told him they were returning home to the Philippines; he ascertained that they each had considerable money, and, being interested, wrote to the plantation where they had been employed, for their record. He found that these men, together with eight others, had been working under a cultivation contract from July, 1910, to December, 1911; their earnings during that period were $124 U. S. currency per day. At the expiration of this contract the men worked with Japanese head contractors cutting, packing and fluming cane until June, 1912, and during these seven months their earnings were $126 U. S. currency per day. Mr. Mead said, "I consider these men, and we have many other Filipinos equally as efficient, were quite up with the average workman of any of the other nationalities on the plantations."

"Our association recognizes the fact that in order to get good results labor must be profitable for the laborer and the conditions under which he lives must be comfortable. The standard of living on the plantations in the Hawaiian Islands is such that the Filipino soon desires more in the way of living than he is used to in the Philippine Islands. They live in good houses, dress as well as the other laborers and while they naturally associate with each other, yet they come in contact with a large extent with laborers from other countries and the effect is invariably that they take on a higher standard of living and their opportunities for advancement broaden. I believe that the Philippine Islands gain by sending Filipinos to the Hawaiian Islands to learn the sugar business, and this will be more apparent as the sugar industry here increases, as there will be a supply of skilled men to be drawn on for the cultivation of the Philippines sugar fields."

"The businessmen of the Hawaiian Islands realize the advantage of closer relations between the American possessions of the mid-Pacific and the far Pacific, and I believe that the coming to the Philippine Islands of the Hawaiian businessmen will be a large factor in the development of industrial and commercial relations."

the popular sense, at Calamba. There is to be a store but it will not be run for the profit. It will carry supplies of all kinds but they will be given to the men at a price which will merely cover administrative charges. It will be an up to date institution and will include a cold storage plant, along the lines of the several excellent ones that Manila has.

"We shall give a preference to the labor of La Laguna. We want to encourage all of our men to cultivate small tracts of land and shall set aside land for all who want it. We also shall encourage them in domestic and household industry, giving them practical aid to make a start and assisting them in marketing their produce. On the plantation and in the mill there will be light work for the women and older children can do and here again there is to be a preference for our own workers."

"We have plans for what we believe will prove the model barrios of islands. Sanitation is the chief aim but there will be comfort as well and other things have not been overlooked. There will be a school, a picture show, a band and we hope several baseball teams. Several artesian wells will be driven because pure water is the first essential to health."

"We intend to make machinery demonstrations and to do a large amount of experimental work. Our experience in Hawaii has taught the value of co-operative experimental work. We would like the planters of the Philippines to know that and to feel that we can be counted on for co-operation any assistance we can give."

"Work is to commence at once and, as I have said, its key is the spur of railway that will connect us with the Manila railroad system. That will come first, the rest as soon as that line is ready for business."

WHAT SMART WOMEN WILL WEAR THIS SEASON

Blouse for the Tailored Suit.

Latest Thing in Fancy Veils.

NEWEST among models in long coats is the very practical looking affair seen in one of the winks. It is made of tan colored Scotch worsted. Three rows of broad crossing each shoulder and running to the waist and front emphasize the long slender silhouette. Perfectly fitted to the arms, this by exceptionally long armholes partially covering the large and straight sleeves, which are sewed into a waist coat of matching material worn under the coat for additional warmth. The top of the blouse is finished with a row of small, round, fancy silver and the buttoned boots are in leather that is impervious to dampness. This leather lends its polish by the simple means of a soap and water bath. Precisely matching the shade of the full blown Caroline Testout rose of velvet and satin, the circular shaped bridge bag of moire swings from heavy rose silk cordage hangers intended to attach the receptacle to the wearer's girdle while playing cards. The bag, which is mounted on a skeleton frame of dull gold, is decorated on one side with medallions of rose enamel, gold encrusted and flanked by fresh water pearls, and on the other side with a tiny watch surrounded by a wreath of enamel and pearls. Inside the bag are compartments for bills, coin and the usual vanity articles.

The slashed tunic, opening over a skirt of contrasting material, is a feature of the fall fashions, and some of the French couturiers have specially favored this effect. The suit shown in one of the pictures is of dark blue cloth, and the tunic opens over a petticoat of the same shade. The coat combines a straight cutaway suggestion, the fronts being slashed away, while the lines at side and back are slender and straight.

The neck is cut out in a V over a high collared chemise of lace and the fronts are finished with a double trim of black lace with a band of green satin on which are posted tiny blue buttons not very close together. To paraphrase the saying, "every garment has its own story," the lovely cobwebby accessories are allowed to float apparently at will, but in reality they are securely pinned, as is this one, to both the trim and the crown of the hat. An attractive combination of two colors is shown in this separate blouse of blue net, dotted with white pin dots and sprinkled here and there with large coin spots of deep blue satin. NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Russell Sage has bought Marsh Island, La., for $150,000 and will make it a refuge for birds. Control will be placed either in the hands of the Federal Government, the State of Louisiana or an association organized for the purpose. Marsh Island is the most important winter feeding ground for wild ducks and geese in the South, with the possible exception of Currituck Sound. Wild fowl of the Central United States go to it in winter for food and shelter when more northern streams are under ice. Millions of birds have been slaughtered there. With the cessation of this wholesale killing American wild fowl will increase enormously in number, experts say. This latest of Mrs. Sage's benefactions, which now approximate $27-

000,000, is in line with the interest she has shown in animals in the past. She has been interested in the feeding of the Central Park squirrels, the protection of robins and the work of the Audubon Society. She has contributed frequently to organizations caring for animals. Where Market Hunters Thrive. Marsh Island is on the Gulf coast, southwest of New Orleans. Herons, bitterns, loons, rails and many varieties of shore birds, as well as ducks and geese, winter there. It is the most popular shooting ground in the south for market gunners. Eighteen miles long and nine miles wide at the broadest point, the island contains about 75,000 acres. The bird refuge question was brought before Mrs. Sage by Edward A. McIlhenny of Avery Island, La., who, with Charles W. Ward of Michigan, recently gave a 13,000-acre bird refuge on Vermilion bay to the state of Louisiana. Mr. Ward founded a magazine, the Illustrated Outdoor World, to further the work of establishing a chain of bird refuges across the continent. The first issue, in April, made announcement of the plan and of the purchase of an option on Marsh Island by Mr. Ward for $12,500. After George B. Grinnell, acting for Mrs. Sage, had investigated the island as a preserve for wild birds she decided to buy the entire island. Pending final disposition of the property, title has been vested in Mr. McIlhenny, who is in active charge of the plans. A Step of Great Value. "It is the most important move in behalf of the birds of North America since the will of David Wilcox provided for financing the National Audubon Society," said Dr. W. T. Hornaday at the New York Zoological Garden yesterday. "Every person who knows about the great annual migration of birds from the upper lakes and plains down the Mississippi valley to the gulf will appreciate the vital need of feeding grounds along the gulf that are protected from gunners. Today bird sanctuaries are just as necessary as bird food. The feeding grounds for birds in Louisiana and the absence of adequate laws for bird protection have made that state until this year a veritable dark and bloody ground. The slaughter of wild life has been incredible. It is a matter of official record that during one season, that of 1909-1910, a total of 4,265,685 game birds were killed in Louisiana.

BRACELET WATCHES A FAD

The fad for bracelet watches and mesh bags is increasing. So say the jewelers, despite the prophecies last year that their popularity was on the wane. It is impossible for manufacturers to meet the demand for mesh bags. The designs are innumerable, ranging from platinum and solid gold to some of the cheaper metals, such as German silver.

Many of the designs worked by handcraft are exclusive and original, with extravagant display of jeweled ornamentations.

Tiny watches are a fashionable novelty. A day or so ago one of the oldest watchmakers was requested by a customer to change a key-winding watch into a stem winder. The watchmaker acquiesced, but was somewhat taken aback when the customer produced a watch having a diameter of one-quarter of an inch.

Another remarkably small watch from a firm in Geneva, Switzerland, is inclosed completely in a fine button-shaped pearl about one-half inch in diameter. The price was $6000. Not only are women partial to the watch bracelets, but this year the importers are selling them for men, as they prove more practical than the old-fashioned pocket timepiece.

Here is a recipe for cleansing laces which an old lacemaker who has woven many a gossamer web for the great connoisseurs and lover of laces, Madame Modjeska, gave to her pupil and patron: Spread the lace out on paper. Cover with calcined magnesite, place another paper over it and put away between the leaves of a book for two or three days. Then all it needs is a skillful little shake to scatter the powder, and its delicate threads are as fresh and clean as when first woven.

Potpies a Staple Dish.

"Nor does that include the vast numbers slaughtered by negroes and poor whites for food. At New Iberia, a short distance north of Marsh Island, at least 10,000 robins are killed annually for food. "I think that Marsh Island is destined to play an important part in preserving the unfortunate snowy and American egrets—birds cursed by the poisons of the plumes which are literally worth their weight in gold. In two years time egrets of the Avery Island rookery, founded and protected for twenty years by Mr. McIlhenny, will find that Marsh Island is a safe haven of refuge. They will colonize it, and twenty years from now it will contain 20,000 breeding pairs. "Marsh Island is a great achievement. In its purchase and its dedication to the birds of America, Mrs. Sage has done a great public service."

SOME GOOD DISHES

CHAFING DISH SALMON.

One small, flat can of salmon, one-half of a teaspoonful of mustard, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half of a cupful of vinegar (if very sour vinegar is used, dilute a little before measuring). Simmer for about 10 minutes.

CARROT SALAD.

Line a salad bowl with cabbage that has been shredded and soaked in chilled water for several hours. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Have ready some very small beets and carrots that have been cooked until tender in boiling salted water, and have been marinated in French dressing for two hours. Arrange these in alternate colors, sprinkle lightly with horseradish, add a French dressing and serve.

SARDINE SALAD.

Arrange on a platter crisp lettuce leaves, place on the lettuce leaves the contents of a box of sardines after straining the oil off. Make a dressing of the strained oil by adding two tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup, one tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, three-fourths cupful of vinegar, one saltspoonful of salt, one-half saltspoonful of pepper; mix it all well together and pour it over the sardines and lettuce. Garnish it with slices of hard-boiled eggs. Any dressing that may be left over can be put in a bottle and kept for another salad.

BEEF CANNELON.

To one pound of hamburger steak add one well-beaten egg, a level teaspoon of salt, one rounding tablespoon of soft butter, a saltspoon of pepper and a level teaspoon of mixed cloves, allspice and cinnamon. Make into a roll, lay on a buttered pan and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Baste with melted butter and serve with a tomato sauce made like a white sauce, using a cup of strained tomato instead of milk.

PEAR CHARLOTTE.

This is a dish for immediate use. Pare, quarter and core two quarts of pears; put them in a saucepan with one tablespoonful of butter and enough water to prevent burning, and cook slowly until tender. Butter a charlotte mold and fill it with a layer of pears, then a layer of bread alternately until it is filled. Bake three-quarters of an hour in a hot oven and serve with any desired sauce. Pears for this should be nearly ripe, and good windfalls are easily used in the above recipe. The bread should be well buttered. Toasted bread, while not called for, would be advantageous.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The Countess of Aberdeen, as president of the International Council of Women, has issued the third annual report of the fifth quinquennial period of the council, writes a London contributor to the Christian Science Monitor. Lady Aberdeen congratulates the National Council of Women in Germany on the results of the exhibition and congress held by them recently, and asks whether it would not be possible for each national council to bring the work they are accomplishing before the public of each country in an attractive and pictorial way. By this means, says the president, men and women would be induced to support the organization, which has the power of accomplishing very much for the welfare of nations.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

In selecting a refrigerator, consider those with rounded corners. A refrigerator of this style not only saves space, but the flat top serves, in itself, as an extra shelf.

The fancy jelly glass with corrugated or fluted sides makes a prettier mold on the table than the ordinary tumbler. These glasses, too, are excellent for individual molds for desserts of any kind.

A cutting board with a slightly depressed center answers the purpose of a bread-and-meat board as well as a chopping bowl. They are to be had in several sizes.

Plain-blown thin glass tumblers are always in good taste; it is well for housewives to lay in a stock when the price is attractive.

In getting clothes for the boy, it is wise to select suits with extra pair of trousers, for, as a rule, a coat will wear two pairs of knickers.

TO HOLD COLOR OF WASH COTTONS

Most colored cottons are wash-proof, even when in unusual colors. If they are to be used on an elaborate piece it is safer, however, to set the color first. This is particularly necessary if some of the shades are of makes not used previously.

Have a number of cups filled with strong salt water. Loosen the skeins, but do not untie the connecting cross-piece, and put a skein in each cup and let it stand overnight. Rinse next morning in lukewarm water, press in the hands to get out most of the moisture and hang up to dry in a shady place.

ACCEPTANCE OF OBLIGATIONS AND WHAT IS ENTAILED BY IT

Favors Given and Received, From Standpoint of a Woman

Many a life is spoiled by false pride. A "sponge" is not admirable, but far more women err on the other side and cannot accept a favor graciously.

A woman of wealth and influence was taken to task for her kindnesses to a daughter of a school friend, while apparently neglecting the daughter of her sister, a girl of the same age. "My niece is too independent. She makes me feel patronizing some times, again acts as if the kindness I offered was insignificant and she does me a favor by accepting it. Nanny is big-natured enough to accept obligations graciously and always shows her appreciation."

That is the secret of many a girl's good times—taking a favor graciously and being grateful for it.

There are some persons from whom we could take nothing. To do so means too great loss of self-respect. Usually such donors are but near friends. The true friend, if she is in the least tactful, will not make her kindnesses a burden; and the right kind of a girl will accept them in the kindly spirit in which they are offered.

Not all girls who put themselves under obligations do it gracefully. Therein lies the secret of popularity. To accept a kindness as a right is promptly resented; to gush over much sounds insincere and doubtless embarrasses the giver.

The girl whom it is a real joy to befriend does not expostulate or gush she looks and acts her appreciation rather than speak it. Her thanks are heartfelt, but simple. She does not protest. "Oh, I can never take that from you," meaning to all the time; nor does she ever hint that the kindness might put her under obligations that she would feel irksome. This attitude at once destroys the pleasure of the giver.

The girl you like to befriend never makes the fatal blunder of indifference. She is too clever not to realize that no benefactor enjoys the feeling that her thoughtfulness doesn't "cut much ice."

But the truly clever girl, she who is apparently showered with attentions, always shows her gratitude, though she may talk comparatively little of it. She realizes that nothing she may do can repay the favors received; but she masks the effort. Unobtrusively, perhaps very simply, she becomes the bestower of kindnesses. It may be only by taking upon herself the duty her benefactor finds irksome, or she may make her unexpected little gifts, inexpensive trifles, things she has worked herself, but trifles that stand for appreciation and gratitude. And be sure this appreciation will be appreciated. No one does a kindness hoping for returns, but no one likes such kindness to be taken too casually. The girl who grabs at it as a right rather than a favor, soon has nothing to grab at. The most generous spirit being worked.

REMARKABLE SCENES IN ULSTER WHEN CITIZENS SWORE THEY WOULD NOT YIELD TO HOME RULE PLAN

Solemn Pledge Taken by Thousands, With Prominent Men as the Leaders

The recent remarkable scenes in Ulster growing out of the Home Rule for Ireland controversy, have filled the British press for weeks. Mr. W. R. Castle, who is travelling abroad, has sent to the Star-Bulletin the following article from the London Daily Mail of September 4, which sets forth the gravity of the Ulster protest:

At the meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council yesterday the following resolution was unanimously agreed to, on the proposition of the Marquis of Londonderry, K. G.:

The Pledge.
Inasmuch as we, the duly elected delegates and members of the Ulster Unionist Council, representing all parts of Ulster, are firmly persuaded that by no law can the right to govern those whom we represent be bargained away without their consent, that although the present Government, the services and sacrifices of generations of our race having been forgotten, may drive us forth from the Constitution which we have ever loyally upheld, they may not deliver us bound into the hands of our enemies, and that it is incompetent for any authority, party or people to appoint as our rulers a government dominated by men disloyal to the Empire, and to whom our faith and traditions are hateful;

And inasmuch as we reverently believe that as in times past it was given to our fathers to save themselves from a like calamity, so now it may be ordered that our deliverance shall be by our own hands, to which end it is essential that we be knit together as one man, each strengthening the other and none holding back or counting the cost;

Therefore we loyalists of Ulster ratify and confirm the steps so far taken by the special commission this day submitted and explained to us, and we reappoint the commission to carry on its work on our behalf as in the past;

We enter into the solemn Covenant appended hereto, and, knowing the gravity of the issues pending on our faithfulness, we promise each to the others that to the uttermost of the strength and means given to us, and not regarding any selfish or private interest, our substance, our lives, we will make good the said solemn Covenant.

And we now bind ourselves in the steadfast determination that whatever may befall, no such domination shall be thrust upon us, and in the hope that by the blessings of God our union with Great Britain, upon which are fixed our affections and trust, may yet be maintained, and that for ourselves and for our children, for this province and for the whole of Ireland, peace, prosperity, and civil and religious liberty may be secured under the Parliament of the United Kingdom and of the King, whose faithful subjects we are and will continue all our days.

The Covenant.

The following is the text of the Covenant:
Being convinced in our conscience that Home Rule would be disastrous to the material well-being of Ulster, as well as to the whole of Ireland, subversive to our civil and religious freedom, destructive to our citizenship, and perilous to the unity of the Empire;

We whose names are underwritten, men of Ulster, loyal subjects to his Majesty King George the Fifth, humbly relying on the God whom our fathers in days of stress and trial confidently trusted, hereby pledge ourselves in solemn covenant throughout this our time of threatened calamity to stand by one another in defending for ourselves and our children our cherished position of citizenship in the United Kingdom, and in using all the means which may be found necessary to defeat the present conspiracy to set up Home Rule in Ireland.

In the event of such a Parliament being forced upon us, we solemnly and mutually pledge ourselves to refuse to recognize its authority, in

A. BONAR LAW.

Who said: "I can imagine no length of resistance to which Ulster will go in which I shall not be ready to support them."

sure confidence that God will defend the right.
Hence we subscribe our names, and further we individually declare that we have not already signed this Covenant.

First Signatures to the Covenant.
Belfast--Monday.

If courage and enthusiasm, if devotion to a leader, if foresight and preparation are the conditions or victory, then Ulster must win.
Some people may imagine that where so much fervor and energy are manifest there can be little preparation. They are mistaken. This is no forlorn hope of desperate men; it is an organized campaign in which nothing has been left to chance. When the day of battle comes, it ever it does come, it will find the forces ready and the plan of action ready.

Yesterday the standard of Ulster received the blessing of the Church. Today the council of war assembled and arrived at certain grave conclusions. If these martial metaphors sound like picturesque exaggerations, the impression is due to distance. Here they are commonplaces, for they undoubtedly describe both the temper and the atmosphere of the Province of Ulster.

This morning 450 men met in the Ulster Hall. They came from every part of the province, from every town and hamlet, and from every country-side. They were elected representatives, invested with authority to pledge the word and the action of every Unionist in Ulster. To this council of war was submitted by the Marquis of Londonderry a resolution binding them in a solemn league and covenant to maintain the Union with Great Britain, and promising "each to the other that to the uttermost of the strength and means given us, and not regarding any selfish or private interest, our substance, our lives, we will make good the solemn covenant."

Each member of the Council appended his name to the covenant, which will be signed by hundreds of thousands at the end of the week. The council also ratified and confirmed the steps taken by the special commission to carry on its work to the end.

No decision appears to have been taken on the proposal to establish a

Ulster; while his speech gave proof that he has not put himself at the head of this movement without having counted the cost to others as well as to himself.

In solemn tones, and in words that created a profound impression, Sir Edward Carson declared that this action was the gravest matter he had ever had to consider, and "the more I consider it the more certain am I that it is right. I am prepared to go on to the end, and in the march I will have all that is best and honest, not only in Ireland, but also in the United Kingdom."

He defended himself from the charge of having threatened with the fate of Lundy any who refused to sign the covenant. What he said was that the man who after signing betrayed his comrades would be branded as a successor of Lundy.

Upon one point, Sir Edward was emphatic. He will listen to no proposal for separating Ulster from the rest of Ireland. "That is not and never has been a policy of ours," he declared. "We will have nothing less than the Parliament of the United Kingdom." To separate Ulster, he argued, would be to sacrifice the Protestants in isolated parts of the south and west of Ireland.

The delegates cheered this declaration, and made it clear that in the present stage of the conflict no compromise will be considered. It is to be a fight to the finish, and the gatherings today have shown that neither promises nor threats will move Protestant Ulster from this resolution.

(Lord Lundy was Governor of Londonderry when it was menaced by King James, and he used all his efforts to paralyze the defence of the city. He had to escape disguised from the popular vengeance; but was apprehended in Scotland and sent to the Tower of London. He was excluded from the Act of Indemnity of 1690.

Lord Londonderry and the Campaign.
Lord Londonderry, speaking at the luncheon, said the prosperity not only of Ulster but also of Ireland was due entirely to the Union, and it was on that account that they were determined not to give up the Union. (Cheers.) There was no precedent for any community being driven out of their country simply because they were loyal, industrious, and had affection for the Mother-country. However, they had now got the enemy in retreat, and they must turn it into a rout. (Cheers.)

Sir Edward Carson said: "When I entered upon the leadership of the Irish Unionist Parliamentary Party I took up the onerous duties of that office with no desire of any reward or any glorification. ('Hear, hear.') Everything I have ever done in my time to serve you, to serve Ulster, and to serve my country I have done absolutely from my heart and solely with the idea of bringing our cause to a victorious conclusion. (Applause.)

"There are no animosities in our country, but there is a national indignation and a national horror of men in power who have tried to betray us. ('Hear, hear.')

"Not once or twice but always I have warned every man that he ought not lightly or without grave consideration to sign so sacred a contract—a contract which will bind each and every one of you to each other in a sacred compact that we shall march forward as one man in the hour of danger. ('Hear, hear.') And yet I am represented in the 'Westminster Gazette' as having said that any Ulster man who does not sign the covenant must be regarded as a successor of the infamous Lundy."

"I said no such thing. It is an absolute falsehood. (Applause.) So far from using any threat towards any man, I warned them that they ought not to sign unless the signature came as well from their heads as from their hearts. (Applause.) What I object to especially about this class of journalism is that in the very paper in which they make that accusation against me they had an accurate report of what I did say. Therefore I charge them with having made a purposeful false statement."

"What I did say was that having considered the question and the seriousness of the matter any man who did enter into the covenant and thereby led on you and me into the belief that he was with us, and who afterwards went back on it would be branded as a successor of Lundy. (Applause.)

"I am sorry that the 'Westminster Gazette' should have joined the yellow Press, but I suppose in the exigencies of business they do not like to see the 'Cocos Press' going to much ahead. (Laughter.)

"I tell those who criticize me that we do what we believe is right because it is dictated to us by our consciences, and we shall not alter the path we have mapped out for ourselves at the dictation of any man. We have behind us the only free Democracy in Ireland the Democracy of Ulster. (Cheers.)

"Does any man believe that I lightly took this matter in hand without considering with my colleagues all that it might mean? It is the gravest matter in all the grave matters in the various offices I have held that I have had to consider, but the more I consider it the more I believe it is right, and because I believe it is right I, at all events, am prepared to go on to the end. (Loud cheers the audience rising in token of approval.)

"We will take no separate treatment of Ulster. (Applause.) That is not our policy and has never been our policy. We want no separate Parliament. We want and we will take nothing less than the Parliament of the United Kingdom. (Applause.)

"I am dubbed daily a rebel and a traitor, but at all events I shall never be a rebel or a traitor to you. (Applause.) Names cannot alter realities. What is right is right, and no Act of Parliament can make it wrong. If it is wrong to love your King and try to save your Constitution, to preserve your civil and religious liberty, then I glory in being a traitor." (Cheers.)

Good Meals

at Camp Comfort

The boys at Camp Comfort are using the same stove that they had last year. It was the best they could get. It was a

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

This year they got a New Perfection Oven. Also a New Perfection Toaster. Also a New Perfection Broiler.

"Can you make a difference in the meals a good stove makes," said one of the boys. And they will all their mothers and wives about the stove, too. For the New Perfection Oil Cook-stove is so convenient for the home as for the camp. It will bake, broil, roast and toast as well as a regular coal range.

BEST PIANO THE WORLD PRODUCES

FOUR GENERATIONS OF STEINWAYS have made it their life work to scientifically develop a superior piano. It is not Steinway money but Steinway brains and energy and family pride that has placed this piano so far above all other pianos.

There are a number of high-grade pianos, some with old and honored names, all made of the best material and workmanship, all on the same lines. The very best scientific development has been neglected on account of the demand for low-priced pianos. Old names have gone into combination with cheap makes to reach the market. We have several high grade pianos that we guarantee to be equal to any but the STEINWAY that we sell at a low price.

We have good new pianos from $250 up; Used and second hand from $125 up.

ROOSEVELT MANAGERS SAY LEADER CAN WIN IF HE SUCCEEDS IN CARRYING GREAT STATE OF NEW YORK

Will Then Get More Than 300
Votes in the Electoral College

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 16.—If Roosevelt and Johnson win the 45 electoral votes of New York, they will be elected President and Vice-President of the United States. If they can carry the Empire State they will have possibly 300, or even more votes, in the electoral college. Two hundred and sixty-six is the majority necessary.

As the campaign approaches the close, hopes of Progressive success are mounting higher and higher. The reports from Eastern States, emanating from a great variety of sources, continue to be increasingly encouraging. At the State headquarters here the Progressive leaders have been slow to accept the good news, because it seemed like too good news. This attitude has applied particularly to New York.

New York Swings to T. R.

The word from the Empire State has become so emphatic in its assurances, however, that a completely changed view has been taken. It is explained in the dispatches that the large manufacturing population is going over in a body to the Progressive party. The definite proposals of the Progressive platform to correct labor oppressions and its demands for social and industrial justice are having a great appeal. Furthermore, the nomination of Oscar Straus for Governor has given a great impetus to the new party, among other things solidifying the anti-Tammany sentiment in its support.

It is very clear that what looked like an impossible situation for Roosevelt and Johnson a few weeks ago has now turned to one of at least good prospect. The positive assurance that Roosevelt will carry New Jersey against Wilson is most significant. That tends to justify the claims that are made in behalf of New York. The success of Roosevelt at the primaries in Massachusetts last spring also tends to justify the reports that there is an excellent prospect for the Progressive ticket in New England. Nevada Progressive.

It looks as if the old standards of political estimate will not hold in the present campaign. For example, conditions in Nevada have indicated that there was no chance there whatever for the Progressive ticket. State Chairman Daniel A. Ryan asked three men who made trips into separate regions of the Sagebrush State to make diligent inquiry. He told them he wanted the facts, no matter whom they favored, for he did not wish to be misled. All three of these men returned with the information that everywhere men were talking Roosevelt as their choice. All three believe that the Progressives will sweep the State.

Chance in Doubtful States.

Of the doubtful column there is a very good chance that Colorado will go for Roosevelt. There are encouraging signs in Delaware and Connecticut. Louisiana is really a strong Republican State, but the race question has kept it in the "solid south." It has recently been shaken up by a successful reform movement, which represents a completely new order of things. Maine is either Progressive or Democratic. In a table of party claims there is good reason to count it for Roosevelt. Progressives of Montana vigorously protest that they will carry that State. There is a chance, possibly remote, that the Progressives will carry Nevada. Tennessee will likely be for Wilson, although East Tennessee is strong for Roosevelt. The Democrats seem to have the better of it in West Virginia. Of the column claimed for Roosevelt there is no doubt as to California, Idaho and Illinois. There is some as to Indiana. The recent poll of the New York Herald, hostile to the Progressives, conceded that ex-Senator Beveridge, Progressive candidate for Governor, would be elected, but claimed the State against Roosevelt. Progressive leaders say, however, that Indiana will certainly respond, as will her neighbors, Illinois and Michigan.

Further, the sensible estimate is that if Beveridge wins Roosevelt also will. The claim of Massachusetts is hotly protested by the Wilsonites. There is no reason to believe Roosevelt will not win the State as he did at the Presidential primary. His strength there has improved since then as a matter of fact. There is no question as to Michigan, Minnesota and Nebraska.

Teddy Votes to Spare.

From this distance it hardly appears reasonable that Wilson and Taft cannot carry their home States of New Jersey and Ohio. Yet Eastern Progressive leaders declare New Jersey to be absolutely theirs, and assert that the recent political upheaval in Ohio has all been to the overwhelming advantage of Progressivism. Roosevelt will undoubtedly sweep Pennsylvania as he did last June. La Follette's defection will not prevent a Progressive triumph in Wisconsin. Governor McGovern and many other leaders are strong for Roosevelt.

Roosevelt and Wilson and possibly Taft will win some of the votes from the doubtful column. In the table Roosevelt could lose any one of Ohio, New Jersey or Indiana and win. If his gains are of any consequence from the doubtful column he could afford to lose two of them. If his acquisitions are as great as some of his enthusiastic friends assert they will be, he could stand to lose all three of them. However, New York seems to be essential.

PAIN IN THE STOMACH.

It is most annoying, as well as disagreeable, to be troubled with pains in the stomach, and there is no need of it, for one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will allay the pain. Try it once and be convinced. For sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., agents for Hawaii.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Tells How She Keeps Her Health—Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house."

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her."

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine."

—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

FREE TREES—ARBOR DAY

Persons on the Island of Oahu and outlying districts of the other islands not provided with sub-nurseries desiring trees for Arbor Day planting should make application at the Government Nursery, King Street, Honolulu, not later than November 5th. Application can be made by letter, postal or personal call.

Sub-nurseries are located at Hilo, Hawaii, and Homestead, Kauai. The former is in charge of Brother Mathias Newell and the latter in charge of Mr. Walter McRyde. Persons within a reasonable distance of those sub-nurseries should apply direct to the gentlemen named.

Each applicant may obtain free trees, the number not to exceed 24. Those in the neighborhood of Honolulu or the other two sub-nurseries are requested to provide containers to pack them in.

Copies of Circular No. 2 of the Division of Forestry, containing useful information on the planting and care of trees, will be mailed to persons applying for same. Copies can also be had at the Government Nursery and at the sub-nurseries.

The following list gives the names of trees available at the Government Nursery, Honolulu, for planting on Arbor Day, November 8, 1912: Blue Gum, Lemon Gum, Swamp Mahogany, Ironwood, Monkeypod, Silk Oak, Sugi (Japanese Cedar), Monterey Cypress, Royal Poinciana, Pink and White Shower, Pink Shower, Golden Shower, Jacaranda, Yellow Poinciana, Pepper tree.

TAFT ADDRESSES BUSINESSMEN

American Industries for October contains a statement by President Taft explaining why he believes he will have the support of labor in the November elections. The president says:

"I have every confidence that will receive the support of the great army of business in this country and of that large portion of labor which is employed by these comparatively smaller concerns and industries."

"My policy has been perfectly consistent and undeviating. I have maintained, and the Supreme Court has upheld my contention that combinations effected with the purpose of acquiring a monopoly were illegal. And when the Department of Justice has acquired evidence of such an intent I have instructed it to bring suit, and if the evidence warranted it, to institute criminal proceedings."

Interests of Smaller Business.

"In this policy I have been promoting the interests of the great majority of the comparatively smaller business men and manufacturers of the country, and of their great army of employees. The number of concerns affected by the prohibitions of the anti-trust law is very small when compared with the great number of producers and manufacturers and business men in this country whose interests are promoted by the strict and impartial enforcement of that law."

"The aggregate capital of the comparatively smaller business men, producers and manufacturers will far exceed that of the so-called trusts, or those who may be tempted to form trusts, and the employees of the former will far exceed those of the latter. And these smaller business men and their employees represent the bone and sinew of the industry of the United States. To them I look for support in the coming election because I have served them faithfully and have safeguarded their interests against those who, actuated solely by selfishness, would have injured them."

"This army of comparatively small manufacturers, producers and business men would be the first to suffer from the general depression which would inevitably follow the victory of those who oppose protection and advocate measures which run the gamut from radical tariff reduction to absolute free trade. They are the ones who would have suffered most from the enactment of the ill-considered tariff bills passed by the Democrats. And they would suffer severely from the uncontrolled combination of business, which is prohibited by the Sherman law."

Veto of the Tariff Bills.

Referring to his veto of the Democratic tariff bills the President said:

"Take the steel bill, for example, its passage would not seriously have affected the steel trust with its vast ore holdings. But it would have ruined hundreds of the smaller manufacturers. As I sought to make plain in my veto message, there were 245 industrial concerns, scattered through eighteen states which would have been seriously injured by the Democratic bill. Many representatives of organized labor testified that they would be seriously injured by its passage, and urged me to disapprove it. Take the manufacturers of machine tools alone. There were 225 of them who testified that the provision placing machine tools on the free list would compel them to close their factories and to throw all their employees out of work."

Taft's Constant Aim.

"It has been the constant and undeviating aim of my administration to protect the great number of comparatively smaller business concerns of the country from extortion by those who have sought to acquire monopolies on the one hand, and from that injury which must inevitably result from the ruthless destruction of the protective tariff on the other, and in affording this protection to the employers the administration has been equally benefiting their employees."

"These are the reasons why I believe that, although big business may strenuously oppose my re-election, and may finance with a liberal hand the campaign funds of my opponents, I can rely on the support of the great army of comparatively smaller business men and their host of employees."

Small Federal Garrison at Lexington, Mo., Besieged Ten Days by Large Force of Confederates Under General Sterling Price—Colonel James A. Mulligan's Heroic Defense—His Own Modest Story of the Siege—Furious Fight in Town Cemetery—Surgeon Captured and Held by the Enemy—Hospital Also Taken. Hospital Retaken in Thrilling Charge—Mulligan Surrenders to Stop Slaughter.

By Captain GEORGE L. KILMER, Late U. S. V.
[Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.]

AFTER winning the battle of Wilson's Creek, Missouri, on Aug. 10, 1861, the Missouri Confederates, led by General Sterling Price, took possession of Springfield and controlled nearly the whole of western Missouri as far north as Lexington, which is on the Missouri river, about 150 miles north of Springfield. This post was occupied by a small force of home guards only until reinforcements arrived on Sept. 9. Meanwhile Price was hastening northward, joined at every step by recruits, who flocked to his victorious standards. He reached Lexington on the 12th. The garrison there assembled was under command of Colonel James A. Mulligan of the Twenty-third Illinois. Mulligan fought for ten days in the trenches at Lexington, Mo., then surrendered because his men had no water, no bread and no cartridges. Three years later he died like a hero at the battle of Winchester. The following interesting story of the siege was told by himself, and it is true:

COLONEL JAMES A. MULLIGAN, HEROIC DEFENDER OF LEXINGTON, MO.—COLONEL MULLIGAN WAS KILLED AT THE BATTLE OF WINCHESTER, VA., THREE YEARS AFTER THE LEXINGTON SIEGE.

Mulligan's Own Story.

"On the night of the 30th of August, 1861," said Colonel Mulligan, "as the 'Irish brigade' (Twenty-third Illinois) lay at Jefferson, Mo., I received orders to cut my way through the enemy, go to Lexington and hold it at all hazards. Next morning the brigade started with forty rounds of ammunition and three days' rations. We marched nine days without meeting the enemy, foraging upon the country for support. The trouble was not so much in getting into Lexington as in getting out. We found there Colonel Marshall's cavalry regiment and 350 home guards. Colonel Peabody joined us Sept. 10 with the Thirtieth Missouri. He came into the trenches with General Sterling Price and 10,000 Confederates at his heels.

"I took command of the defense. We mustered 2,780 men, with seven six-pounders and forty rounds of rifle cartridges and but few rations. The enemy had five batteries, numbering sixteen guns. We commenced throwing up intrenchments on College hill, an eminence overlooking Lexington and the broad Missouri. All day the 11th our men worked with pick and shovel. That evening our pickets were driven in. We waited until the morning of the 12th, vigilant and without sleep, and then a messenger rushed in, saying, 'Colonel, the enemy is pushing across the bridge in overwhelming force.' With a glass we could see them as they came, General Price riding up and down the lines urging his men. Two companies of the Thirtieth Missouri, with Company K of the Irish brigade, drove the enemy back and burned the bridge.

"The enemy now made a detour and approached the town on the Independence road. Six companies of the Missourians and the cavalry met them in Lexington cemetery, and the fight raged furiously over the dead. We succeeded in keeping the enemy in check and meanwhile had thrown up intrenchments three or four feet high. At 3 o'clock the engagement opened with artillery. The contest raged half an hour, when a lucky shot knocked over the enemy's big gun and exploded a powder cask. The fight continued until dusk, and as the moon arose the enemy retired to camp, two miles away, and Lexington was our own again.

Intrenching Knee Deep in Mud.

"On Friday, the 13th, it rained all day, and the men stood knee deep in mud building intrenchments. A quantity of powder was obtained, and our cisterns were filled with water. The men made cartridges and cast 150 rounds of shot for the guns. All this time our pickets were engaged with the enemy. On the night of the 17th we heard sounds of preparation for attack in the enemy's camp.

"At 9 o'clock the 18th the drums beat to arms, and the terrible struggle commenced. The enemy's forces had increased to 18,000 men. They came on in one dark, moving mass. They planted two batteries in front, one on the left, one on the right and one in the rear and opened with a terrible fire. Our spies informed us that the enemy intended to make one grand rout and bury us all in the trenches of Lexington. The batteries opened at 9 o'clock and for three days never ceased to pour deadly shot upon us. About noon our hospital was taken. It was outside the intrenchments. I had taken it for granted that it was not necessary to build fortifications around the sick men's camp. But I was inexperienced. The hospital was taken, and from the balcony poured a deadly fire into our intrenchments.

"The hospital contained our chaplain, surgeon and 120 wounded. It could not be allowed to remain in the possession of the enemy. Two companies of Missourians were ordered in turn to retake the hospital, but both refused. The Montgomery guards, Captain Gleason, of the Irish brigade, were then ordered in. The commander, with a brief exhortation to uphold the historic name they bore, gave the word to charge. The distance was 800 yards. They started, first quick, then double quick, then on a run, then faster. The enemy poured a deadly shower of bullets upon them, but on they went up the slope to the hospital door and, with irresistible bravery, drove the enemy before them. The hospital was retaken. Captain Gleason was shot through the arm and through the face.

"Toward evening word came from the enemy that if the whole garrison did not surrender before next day they would hoist the black flag and give no quarter. We told them when we asked for quarter it would be time to settle that. We were in a terrible situation. The men caught rainwater in their blankets and ran it out into their canteens for drinking purposes. Our surgeon was held by the enemy against all the usages of war. Captain Mortimer went to the hospital and, with nothing but a razor, acted as surgeon.

The Famous 'Mulligan Charge.'

"On the morning of the 19th the firing was resumed and continued all day. The day was signalized by a hours of terror and had fallen on the field. Sadly we buried them in the trenches.

"The morning of the 20th broke, but no reinforcements appeared. Still the men fought on. The enemy had constructed movable breastworks of hemp bales, rolled them up the hill and advanced their batteries in a manner to command our fortifications. Heated shots were fired at them, but they had taken the precaution to soak the bales in the Missouri. The attack was urged with new vigor, and during the forenoon the outer breastworks were taken by a charge. The whole line was broken, and the enemy rushed in. At first the bales were dipped in the river to wet them, but the water so increased their weight that the men could scarcely roll them to the crest of the hill where they were most needed. After a time they were rolled into position and then saturated. The Federals having a second time been dislodged from the hospital height, the Confederates threw out from that position wings on the right and the left, covered with the wet hemp bales. These furnished protection for several hundred men. The commander of the assaults at that point says that on the morning of the surrender he advanced his defense of hemp bales very near to the Federal intrenchments and opened fire with fatal effect.

"Captain Fitzgerald, whom I had known in my younger days and whom we called by the familiar name of 'Sax,' was then ordered to oppose his company to the assaults. As I gave the order, 'Sax, go in,' the gallant fellow, at the head of Company I, with a wild yell rushed upon the enemy. The firing suddenly ceased, and when the smoke arose from the field I saw the Michigan company, under its gallant commander, Captain McDermott, also charging the enemy and driving them back.

"Many of our good fellows were lying dead, our cartridges had failed and it was evident the fight would soon cease. It was now 3 o'clock, and all on a sudden an orderly came, saying that the enemy had sent in a flag of truce. With the flag came the following note from General Price: 'Colonel, what has caused the cessation of the fight?'

Surrender Stops Butchery.

"I returned it with the following message written on the back:

"I hardly know, unless you have surrendered. He took pains to assure me that was not the case. I learned soon after that that our home guard had hoisted a white flag. The lieutenant who had hoisted the flag was threatened with instant death unless he hoisted it down. At that one of the officers exclaimed, 'This is butchery!' The conviction became general, and a council of war was held. The place was given up, and the enemy came pouring in. We were placed in the and led through the streets of Lexington. As we passed the ladies came from the houses and jeered us. We the officers were then taken to a hotel with no provisor and no rations. After we had boarded there for some time we started for 'the land of Dixie.'

"Thus ends Colonel Mulligan's story. When he and his field officers offered up their swords General Price said: 'You gentlemen have fought so bravely it would be wrong to deprive you of your swords. Keep them.'

When Mulligan entered Lexington he got possession of nearly $1,000,000

fierce bayonet charge upon a regiment of the enemy which showed them that our men were not completely worried out. The officers had told them to hold out until the 19th, when they would certainly be re-enforced. Through that day our little garrison stood with straining eyes, watching to see if some friendly flag was bearing aid to them, with straining ear awaiting the sound of a friendly cannonade. But no reinforcements appeared, and with the energy of despair they determined to do their duty at all hazards. The 19th was a horrid day. Our water cisterns had been drained, and we dare not leave the crown of the hill and make our intrenchments on the bank of the river, for the enemy could plant his cannon on the hill and bury us. The day was burning hot, and as the men bit their cartridges their lips were parched and blistered. But not a word of murmuring. That night two wells were ordered dug. We took two ravines and expected to reach water in about thirty hours. During the night I passed around the field, smoothed back the clotted hair and by the light of the moon shining through the trees recognized here and there the countenances of my brave men who had fallen. Some were my favorites in the days gone past who had stood by me in those belonging to the State Bank of Missouri, $105,000 of the amount being gold. The treasure was buried in the principal fort under Mulligan's tent and remained there during the battle.

Price gained nothing but glory and about 3,000 prisoners by capturing Lexington, for General Fremont, commander of the Federal army in Missouri, advanced against him promptly and soon occupied Springfield, in Price's rear.

Colonel Mulligan was held as a prisoner until the 30th of October, being accompanied by his wife, who had been an eyewitness of the siege from the town. They journeyed in General Price's private carriage and (Mrs. Mulligan says) received "every possible courtesy from the general and his staff." They returned to St. Louis under escort of forty men and a flag of truce. In Chicago and elsewhere Colonel Mulligan was received with enthusiastic honors.

After his exchange Mulligan returned to service in the Shenandoah valley. He fell at Winchester with three mortal wounds. Some of his officers attempted to carry him from the field, but he stopped them, saying, "Lay me down and save the flag." After obeying his command they returned and carried him to the surgeon.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Physicians Prescribe Castoria.

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: 1st, The indisputable evidence that it is harmless; 2nd, That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food; 3rd, It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for castor oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any opium, morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrup, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a medical journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hill's Journal of Health.

The signature of Dr. H. H. Hill guarantees genuine Castoria.

"Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."
WILLIAM BELMONT, M. D.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."
S. A. BUCHANAN, M. D.,
Philadelphia, Pa.

"I take pleasure in recommending your Castoria, having recommended its use in many instances, and consider it the best laxative that could be used, especially for children."
NATHANIEL K. KING, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. Two formulas are excellent."
R. J. TAYLOR, M. D.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

"I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known and I recommend it."
R. E. BENTLEY, M. D.,

"Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

CHAPTER XV. Jan's Story.

"M'IEUR," began Jan in the low voice which Thornton was beginning to understand, "I am going to tell you something which I have told to but two other human beings. It is the story of another man—a man from civilization, like you, who came up into this country of ours years and years ago and who met a woman, as you have met this girl at Oxford House, and who loved her as you love this one and perhaps more. It is singular that the case should be so similar, m'sieur; and it is because of this that I believe our Blessed Lady gives me courage to tell it to you, for this man, like you, left a wife and two children when he came into the north. M'sieur, I pray the great God to forgive him, for he left a third child—unborn."

Jan leaned upon his hand so that it shaded his face.

"It is not so much of that as of what followed that I am going to tell you, m'sieur," he went on. "It was a beautiful love on the woman's part, and it would have been a beautiful love on the man's part if it had been pure. For her he gave up everything, even his God, as you would give up everything and your God for this girl at Oxford House, m'sieur. I will speak mostly of the woman now. She was beautiful. She was one of the three most beautiful things that God ever placed in our world, and she loved this man. She married him, she loved him, was ready to die for him, to follow him to the ends of the earth, as our women will do for the men they love. God in heaven! Can you not guess what happened, m'sieur? A child was born!"

So fiercely did Jan cry out the words that Thornton jerked back as though a blow had been struck at him from out of the gloom.

"A child was born," repeated Jan, and Thornton heard his name ringing in the air. "That was the first curse of God—a child! Corridor, beast of carnal, that is what we call them—beasts of carnal and carnal eaters, breeders of devil and sin! My God! That is what happened. A child was born with the curse of God upon him!"

Jan stopped, his hands clenching deeper, his breath escaping from him as though he had been running.

"Down in your world he would have grown up a man," he continued, speaking more calmly. "I have heard that since. But here it is different. The curse never dies. It follows, day after day, year after year. And this child, more unfortunate than the wild things, was born one of them. If the winds had whispered the secret nothing would have come near him. The Indian women would sooner have touched the plague. He would have been an outcast, despised as he grew older, pointed at and taunted, called names which were worse than those called to the lowest and meanest dogs. That is what it means to be born under that curse—up here!"

He waited for Thornton to speak, but the other sat silent and motionless across the table.

The curse worked swiftly, m'sieur. It came first—in remorse—to the man. It gnawed at his soul, ate him alive and drove him from place to place with the woman and the child. The purity and love of the woman added to his suffering, and at last he came to know that the hand of God had fallen upon his head. The woman saw his grief, but did not know the reason for it. And so the curse first came to her. They went north—far north, above the Barren Lands, and the curse followed there. It gnawed at his life until he died. That was seven years after the child was born."

The oil lamp sputtered and began to smoke, and with a quick movement Jan turned the wick down until they were left in darkness.

"M'sieur, it was then that the curse began to fall upon the woman and the child. Do you not believe that about the sins of the fathers falling upon others? It is so, it is so. It came in many small ways, and then the curse it came suddenly—like this." Jan's lips now.

Thornton could feel his hot breath as he leaned over the table, and in the darkness Jan's eyes shone like two coals of fire. "It came like this," painted Jan. "There was a new missionary at the post—a Christian from the south, and he was a great friend to the woman and preached God, and she believed him. The boy was very young and saw things, but did not understand at first. He knew afterward that the missionary loved his mother's beauty and that he tried hard to win it—and failed. For the woman would not love only the one to whom she had given herself first. Great God, it happened then—one night, when every soul was about the big fires at the caribou roast and there was no one near the lonely little cabin where the boy and his mother lived. The boy had no mission now except to roam in his forests. He went down the Hayes, getting his few supplies at Indian camps and stopped at last, with the beginning of spring, far up on the Cut-away. Here he built himself a camp and lived for a time, setting dead falls for bear. Then he struck north again and still east, keeping always away from Lac Bain. When the first chill winds of the bay brought warning of winter down to him he was filled for a time with a longing to strike north and west, to go once more back to his Barren Lands. But, instead, he went south, and so it came to pass that a year after he had left Lac Bain he built himself a cabin deep in the forest of God's river, fifty miles from Oxford House, and trapped once more for the company. He had not forgotten his promise to Thornton, and at Oxford House left word where he could be found if the man from civilization should return.

In late midwinter Jan returned to Oxford House with his furs. It was on the night of the day that he came into the post that he heard a Frenchman who had come down from the north speak of Lac Bain. None noticed the change in Jan's face as he hung back in the shadows of the company's store. A little later he followed the Frenchman outside and stopped him where there were no others near to overhear.

"M'sieur, you spoke of Lac Bain," he said in French. "You have been there?"

"Yes," replied the other. "I was there for a week waiting for the first sleigh snow."

"It is my old home," said Jan, trying to keep his voice natural. "I have wondered if there are changes. You saw Cummins, the factor?"

"Yes, he was there."

"And—Jean de Gravois, the chief man?"

"He was away."

"The factor had a daughter, Melisse?"

"She left Lac Bain a long time ago," m'sieur said the trapper. "M'sieur Cummins told me that he had not seen her in a long time. I believe it was almost a year."

Jan went to the company's store. He took his pack to the sledge and dogs in the edge of the spruce, and Kazan leaped to greet him at the end of his halibut. That night as Jan traveled through the forest he did not notice the stars or the friendly shadows.

"A year," he repeated to himself again and again, and once when Kazan rubbed against his leg and looked up into his face he said: "Ah, Kazan, our Melisse went away with the Englishman. May the great God give them happiness!"

The forest claimed him more than ever after this. He did not go back to Oxford House in the spring, but sold his furs to a passing halfbreed and wandered through all of the spring and summer in the country to the west. It was January when he returned to his cabin, when the snows were deepest, and three days later he set out to outfit at the Hudson's bay post on God's lake instead of at Oxford House. It was while they were crossing a part of the lake that Kazan leaped aside for an instant in his traces and snarled at something in the snow.

Jan saw the movement, but gave no attention to it until a little later when Kazan stopped and fell upon his belly, biting at the harness and whining in pain. The thought of Kazan's sudden snap at the snow came to him then like a knife thrust, and with a low cry of horror and fear he fell upon his knees beside the dog. Kazan whimpered, and his bushy tail swept the snow as Jan lifted his great wolfish head between his two hands. No other sound came from Jan's lips now, and slowly he drew the dog up to him until he held him in his arms as he might have held a child. Kazan stifled the whimpering sounds in his throat. His one eye rested on his master's face, faithful, watching for some sign, for some language there, even as the burning fires of a strange torture gnawed at his life, and in that eye Jan saw the deepening reddish film which he had seen a hundred times before in the eyes of foxes and wolves killed by poison bait.

A moan of anguish burst from Jan's lips, and he held his face close down against Kazan's head and sobbed now like a child, while Kazan rubbed his hot muzzle against his cheek and his muscles hardened in a last desire to give battle to whatever was giving his master grief. It was a long time before Jan lifted his face from the shaggy head, and when he did he knew that the last of all love, of all companionship, of all that bound him to flesh and blood in his lonely world, was gone. Kazan was dead.

From the sledge he took a blanket and wrapped Kazan in it and carried him a hundred yards back from the trail. With bowed head he came behind his four dogs into God's House. Half an hour later he turned back into the wilderness with his supplies. It was dark when he returned to where he had left Kazan. He placed him upon the sledge, and the four huskies whined as they dragged on their burden, from which the smell of death came to them. They stopped in the deep forests beyond the lake, and Jan built a fire.

This night, as on all nights in his lonely life, Jan drew Kazan close to him, and he shivered as the other dogs slunk back from him suspiciously and the fire and the spruce tops broke the stillness of the forest. He looked at the crackling flames, at the fitful shadows which they set dancing and grimacing about him, and it seemed to him now that they were no longer friends, but were tanning him—glowing in Kazan's death and telling him that he was alone, alone, alone. He let the fire die down, stirring it into life only when the cold stiffened him, and when at last he fell into an uneasy slumber it was still to hear the spruce tops whispering to him that Kazan was dead and that in dying he had broken the last fragile link between Jan Thoreau and Melisse.

CHAPTER XVI. The Music Again.

JAN went on at dawn, with Kazan wrapped in his blanket on the sledge. He planned to reach his cabin that night, and the next day he would bury his old comrade. It was dark when he came to the narrow plain that lay between him and the river. The sky was brilliant with stars when he slowly climbed the big barren ridge at the foot of which was his home. At the summit he stopped and seated himself on the edge of a rock, with nothing but a thousand miles of space between him and the pale glow of the northern lights. At his feet lay the forest, black and silent, and he looked down to where he knew his cabin was waiting for him, black and silent too.

For the first time it came upon him that this was home—that the forest and the silence and the little cabin hidden under the spruce tops below held a deeper meaning for him than a few hours before, when Kazan was a leaping, living comrade at his side. Kazan was dead. Down there he would bury him. And he had loved Kazan. He knew now as he clutched his hands to his aching breast, that he would have fought for Kazan—given up his life for him—as he would have done for a brother. Hot tears blinded Jan's eyes, and he covered his face with his hands, and sobbed as he had sobbed years before, when in the southern wilderness word came to him that Melisse was dying.

"Melisse—Melisse!" He moaned her name aloud; and stared through the hot film in his eyes away into the north, sobbing to her, calling to her in his grief, and looking through that thousand miles of starlit space as though from out of it her sweet face would come to him once more. And as he called there seemed to come to him from out of that space a sound, so sweet and low and tender that his heart stood still, and he stood up straight and stretched his arms up to heaven, for Jan Thoreau knew that it was the sound of a violin that came to him from out of the north—that Melisse, an infinity away, had heard his call, his prayer, and was playing for him and Kazan!

And suddenly as he listened his arms fell to his sides, and there shot into his eyes all of the concentrated light of the stars, for the music came nearer and nearer and wither to him, until he caught Kazan in his arms and ran with him down the side of the mountain. It died now in the forest, then rose again, softer and more distant it seemed to him, luring him on into the forest gloom. For a few moments consciousness of all else but that sound remained with him only in a dazed, half-real way, and as John Cummins had called upon the angels at Lac Bain many years ago when he, too, had gone out into the night to meet this wonderful music, so Jan Thoreau's soul cried to them now as he clutched his dead dog, Kazan, to him and stumbled on. Then suddenly he came upon the cabin, and in the cabin there was a light!

Gently he laid Kazan down upon the snow, and for a full minute he stood and listened and heard, lower and sweeter still, the gentle music of the violin. Some one was in his cabin—living hands were playing! After all, it was not the spirit of Melisse that had come to him in the hour of his deepest grief, and a sob rose in his throat. He went on, step by step, and at the door he stopped again, wondering if he was mad, if the spirits of the forest were taunting him still, if—

One step more—

The great God, he heard it now—the low, sweet music of the old Cree love song, played in the old, old way, with all of its old sadness, its whispering joy, its weeping song of life, of death, of love! With a great cry he flung open the door and leaped in, with his arms reaching out, his eyes blinded for a moment by the sudden light—and with a cry as piercing as his own something ran through that light to meet him—Melisse, the old, glorious Melisse, crushing her arms about his neck, sobbing his name, pleading with him in her old, sweet voice to kiss her, kiss her, kiss her—while Jan Thoreau for the first time in his life felt sweeping over him a resistless weakness, and in this vision he knew that Jean de Gravois came to him, too, and held him in his arms and that as the light faded away from about him he still heard Melisse calling to him, felt her arms about him, her face crushed to his own. And as the deep gloom enveloped him more densely and he felt himself slipping down through it he whispered to the faces which he could no longer see:

"Kazan—died—tonight!"

For a long time Jan fought to throw off the darkness, and when he succeeded and opened his eyes again, he knew that it was Melisse who was sitting beside him, and that it was Melisse who flung her arms about him when he awoke from his strange sleep and held his wild head pressed against her bosom—Melisse, with her glorious hair flowing about her as he had loved it in their old days, and with the old love shining in her eyes, only more glorious now, as he heard her voice.

"Jan—Jan—we have been hunting for you—so long," she cried softly. "We have been searching—ever since you left Lac Bain. Jan, dear Jan, I loved you so, and you almost broke my heart."

"Dear, dear Jan," she sobbed, stroking his face now. "I know why you ran away—I know, and I love you so that—that I will die if—you go away again."

"You know," breathed Jan. He was in his cot and raised himself, clasping her beautiful face between his two hands, staring at her with the old horror in his eyes. "You know—and you come—to me?"

"I love you," said Melisse. She slipped up to him and laid her face upon his breast, and, with her fingers clutched in his long hair, she leaned over to him and kissed him. "I love you!" Jan's arms closed about her, and he bowed his face so that it was smothered in her hair, and he felt against it the joyous tremble of her bosom.

"I love you," she whispered again. And under her cloud of hair their lips met, and she whispered again, with her sweet breath still upon his lips, "I love you."

"I love you!"

Outside Jean de Gravois was dancing up and down in the starlit edge of the forest, and lowa was looking at him. "And now what do you think of your Jean de Gravois?" cried Jean for the hundredth time at least. "Now what do you think of him, my beautiful one?" And he caught lowa's hand in his arms for the hundredth time, too, and kissed her until she pushed him away. "Was it not right for me to break my oath to the Blessed Virgin and tell Melisse why Jan Thoreau had gone mad? Was it not right, I say? And did not Melisse do as I told that fool of a Jan that she would do? And didn't she hate the Englishman all of the time? Eh? Can you not speak, my raven haired angel?"

He hugged lowa again in his arms, and this time he did not let her go, but turned her face so that the starlight fell upon it.

"And now what if Jan Thoreau still feels that the curse is upon him?" he asked softly. "Ho, ho, we have fixed that—you, my sweet lowa, and your husband, Jean de Gravois! I have it here in my pocket—the letter signed by the subcommissioner at Prince Albert, to whom I told Jan's story when I followed his trail down there—the letter which says that the other woman died before the man who was to be Jan Thoreau's father married the woman who was to be his mother. And now do you understand why I did not tell Melisse of this letter? It was to prove to that fool of a Jan Thoreau that she loved him whatever he was. Now what do you think of Jean de Gravois, you daughter of a princess, you—?"

"Wife of the greatest man in the world," laughed lowa softly. "Come, my foolish Jean, we cannot stand out forever. I am growing cold, and besides, do you not suppose that Jan would like to see me?"

"Foolish, foolish, foolish," murmured Jean as they walked hand in hand through the starlight. "She, my lowa, my beloved, says that I am foolish, and after this! What can a man do to make himself great in the eyes of his wife?"

ALAKEA AND BERETANIA

KRYPTOK LENSES

Why Look Older Than You Are?

The gentleman to the right of the reader (sketched from life) is wearing old style or pasted double-vision lenses. The lines of the reading wafers are noticeably prominent and he has difficulty in adjusting his eyes to the lenses. The cement used to join the two lenses has become clouded and has made his glasses misty.

The two figures to the left (sketched from life) are wearing Kryptok double-vision lenses. There are no seams on these glasses, because the reading lenses are fused invisibly within the distance lenses. These latter two persons are at ease, look dignified and comfortable.
