BIG KAHUKU RANCH IS SOLD

Mrs. Thelma Parker Smart Buys Great Property for $90,000

Mrs. Annie T. K. Parker Smart, owner of the Parker Ranch, has had the famous Kahuku Ranch added to her domains. The price is $90,000. Madame d'Herblay, the sweetheart of the late Colonel Sam Norris in the troubled sixties, has accepted a compromise of her much larger claim against his estate for $5250, and her suit in the New York courts has been discontinued.

All this news developed this morning. Yesterday the sale of the Kahuku Ranch by Macomber to Alfred W. Carter, trustee of Mrs. Parker Smart, was concluded, and today the deed was ready for recording from the hands of Kinney, Prosser, Anderson & Marx. The same law firm represents the heirs of Colonel Norris. The terms of Macomber's settlement with the heirs of Colonel Norris are private, but that matter and the d'Herblay matter are finally disposed of. Area of 170,000 Acres. There is an area of 170,000 acres in the Kahuku Ranch, which is situated on the slopes of Mauna Loa, the great

DETAILS GIVEN OF BURNING OF TOBACCO CROP

Hackfeld & Co. Receive Particulars of the Destructive Fire at Kona

ENTIRE 1911 OUTPUT GOES UP IN SMOKE

Hawaiian Co. Is Loser to the Extent of Over Ten Thousand Pounds

LOSS BY FIRE OF KONA TOBACCO CO. Entire 1911 crop. 7685 pounds of the 1912 crop. 10,155 pounds of Hawaiian Tobacco Co.'s crop. Stock of the cigar Company. The fermenting house. Estimated loss, $35,000 to $40,000.

Particulars of the fire in the plant of the Kona Tobacco Company on Wednesday evening last came to H. Hackfeld & Co., Ltd., in the Mauna Kea's mail this morning. A summary of the disaster is given above. Mr. Rodiek is still unable to give an exact statement of the loss, for the same reason as he gave yesterday, on the meager telegraphed report—namely, that it depends on just what grades of tobacco were in the burned building.

A. R. Gurrey, secretary of the board of underwriters, will act as adjuster for the insurance companies, and go to the scene of the fire to appraise the losses falling upon the insurers. Mr. Rodiek, in answer to a question this morning, expressed the opinion that the loss was probably about as stated above, between $35,000 and $40,000, depending on the grades of tobacco that were in the fermenting house.

The officers of the Kona Tobacco Company are: W. R. Castle, pres-

900 MARINES BATTLE WITH BIG REBEL ARMY

Struggle Began At Daybreak And Is Still On--U. S. Forces Capture One Fort And Are Storming Second, Rebel Leader Killed

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Oct. 5.—A force of 900 American marines commanded by Rear Admiral W. H. Southerland, is engaged with an overwhelming force of Nicaraguan rebels in a battle which has been raging all day. The American forces advanced to the storming of Masaya, the rebel stronghold near here, at daybreak, and carried the first position with a loss to the Americans of 1000 marines killed and seven wounded. Admiral Southerland is now storming the second position. General Zeladon, the rebel commander, was wounded and captured, afterwards dying of his injuries. Despite the loss of their leader the rebels continue to make a desperate resistance.

SOUTHERLAND REPORTS INSURGENT LOSS HEAVY WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—Shortly after the battle at Masaya, Rear-Admiral Southerland sent an official report to Washington. He reports that the insurgents suffered a heavy loss in the engagement.

AMBASSADOR BRYCE GOES UP IN AEROPLANE MANCHESTER, Mass., Oct. 5.—Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain today made an aeroplane flight, going up in the flyer with Aviator Burgess.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON TO CHALLENGE U. S. ONCE MORE LIVERPOOL, Eng., Oct. 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton today called for New York for the purpose of issuing another challenge for a series of yacht races for possession of the America cup, now held by the United States.

DARING AUTOIST BADLY HURT IN MILWAUKEE CUP RACE MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 5.—Caleb Bragg, driving a Fiat car, today won the Grand Prix race of 469 miles, averaging 68 1/2 miles an hour. Ralph DePalma, winner of the Elgin race and one of the greatest drivers living, was seriously injured when his car was ditched. Both of his legs were broken.

REIGN OF TERROR AT TAMPA; 6 WOMEN ASSASSINATED TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 5.—Eight assassinations, six of which were of women, and twenty-one fires within a period of fourteen days has caused a reign of terror here. The criminal is still uncaught and unidentified.

AMBASSADOR REID ANNOUNCES WILL RETIRE SOON NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Whitelaw Reid, American ambassador to Great Britain, announced today that he will probably retire at an early date.

Waiahole Water Rights Decision Soon, Says Frear

The Boring of a Great Tunnel Through Koolau Range Hinges on Verdict

Definite decision with regard to the license on the Waiahole water rights, which the Oahu Sugar Plantation desires and which, if purchased by that company will result in the boring of the great tunnel through the Koolau mountain range to carry the stream from the windward to the leeward side of this island for irrigating purposes, will be reached by the administration within the next few days. This is the announcement made today by Governor Frear. The complicated questions of ownership of these rights, the manner of their control and charges to be assessed have held the enormous irrigation project in check for many months. The final solution of these perplexing problems will hasten the agricultural development of the thousands of acres of arid lands on this side of Oahu and mean no small addition to the prosperity of the country.

Sugar Company by the Territory has been delayed by the technical legal questions involved. The Oahu plantation, which owns practically all the available land within reach of the projected tunnel ditch from the windward side, is the only concern that can use the water. When negotiations were first opened for its acquisition L. L. McCandless appeared as claimant of part of the water right, through title to some lands held by him on the windward side in the region of the water source. It now appears that this has been disposed of. Another question that arose was the matter of placing a charge on the use of the water. The Governor finally recommended that a flat rate per annum or month be assessed instead of a charge per million cubic feet. It is now understood that the board of land commissioners has adopted this suggestion.

ONE BARREL TO THE LOAF. When A. B. Seelig, of Winsted, Conn., requested a barrel of flour as a wedding present, his friends brought it to him in the shape of a rye loaf eight feet long and weighing 100 pounds.

DEMOCRATS GETTING CORNER ON AUTOS FOR ELECTION DAY

Sad Experience of Two Years Ago Will Not Be Repeated, Say Bourbons

Mindful of the proverb concerning the early bird getting the worm, Democratic campaign leaders have quietly started in to grab all the available automobiles for election day, and unless the Republicans get busy, there will be a "corner" in transportation on November 5.

Two years ago the Republicans aired all the autos and most of the hacks and when the Democratic runners rose bright and early on election morn and prepared to give their stanch supporters a free ride to the voting booth, there was nothing to give them a ride in except a wheelbarrow or an express wagon. The Democrats always claimed that this lack of transportation cost them the election of at least one man, Lester Petrie, to the Board of Supervisors.

Woman Teacher Thrown From Carriage, May Die

Miss Louise Pratt of Maui Seriously Injured While Driving to School

WAILUKU, Oct. 4.—Maui seems to be riddled in the sad accidents that occur within a few months. Miss Louise Pratt of Paia, was thrown from her brake while driving to Keahua School yesterday morning. The accident must have happened some where about half past eight. Miss Pratt left her home in Paia about the usual time to drive to her school situated in the Keahua Camp about six miles from her home. C. E. Copeland, the supervising principal of the district was visiting the school during the morning. Mrs. L. Stimpson, the principal, said that Miss Pratt had not arrived, and that she was anxious about her. Mr. Copeland then started out with his machine, thinking that some accident might have happened on the road. He met one of the lunas of the plantation, and upon inquiry found that Miss Pratt had been picked up unconscious on the roadside some little time before. Dr. McCoukey, the attending physician said after examination that the young lady must have lain unconscious by the roadside for at least an hour. Her back and head were injured also. She was taken to her home by the plantation luna and laborers then available. She is being carefully attended, and no one is allowed to see her. Up until late Friday she has remained in the same condition and it is feared the injuries may prove fatal. Miss Pratt is well known on Maui. She has always been most popular in Paia, where she lived as a girl. Two years ago she came back from a course of kindergarten study in the States and last year was a very successful kindergarten at the Alexander House Kindergarten in Wailuku, where she was very much liked by all the people whose children came to her. She was also most popular with the townspeople.

PUBLIC WON'T USE PENNIES AND HAPAI HAS TO MAKE GOOD

Bank Cashiers Also Suffer Financially and Bookkeepers Are Annoyed

That public policy which is opposed to the use of pennies as a medium of exchange in Hawaii and which is adhered to rigidly by the banks and by the Territorial government, costs Henry Hapai, registrar of public accounts, from $75 to $100 a year. It makes a discrepancy in his books which he must dig down in his own pockets to correct. In this far-western outpost of America the relic of that old prejudice against the little copper coin still remains, though it was only a few years ago that throughout the length of the Pacific Coast the nickel was the coin of smallest denomination acceptable, and it is true today that in several Coast cities the penny newspaper is unknown.

It is quite impossible to strike a denitely accurate balance at the close of every day's business. For instance at the Territorial treasury about $200,000 is paid out monthly. About $50,000 to $40,000 of this is paid in salaries and goes out in round figures. But the remainder goes to pay bills of innumerable varieties which the government incurs, and these invariably are figured out to the cent, usually having some such figure as 62 or 63 cents included. If the final figure is three cents or more the registrar must pay the full five cents. If it is only one or two cents the cashier keeps the one or two but it is found that in a day's business the extra amount paid out is more than the extra amount kept back, with the result that Hapai's daily report to Treasurer Conkling shows an average discrepancy of about 30 cents. The same system hold true in the banks of the Territory. In some instances the cashier or tellers may be relieved of the burden of making up the discrepancy from their own pockets, in which case the banks themselves assume the loss, preferring to spend that amount to maintain the public policy and avoid handling the copper change.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR SILK MILL IN HONOLULU

That negotiations may shortly be begun toward the establishment of a big silk mill in Honolulu is the information that Secretary H. P. Wood of the Chamber of Commerce has received from a letter sent to him by the Lehigh Valley Silk Mills, of South Bethlehem, Pa.

Making inquiries for exhaustive information on labor conditions here, particularly with regard to the available supply of Oriental labor, E. J. Lippy of the Lehigh Mills has asked Mr. Wood to send him all the data possible on wages for indigenous, Japanese and Chinese help. "We can use employes from fourteen years up," he says in his letter. "The labor in our line of business is light and by no means arduous and readily performed. It also admits of the very best of sanitary conditions. We understand that Oriental help is particularly efficient in that class of work and very readily taught."

"We are taking this matter up in connection with some people from Seattle, Wash., and accurate information on the labor question would be of great aid to us in formulating our plans. We would regard it as a great favor and would be very glad to reciprocate in any way possible if after developments will give us the opportunity."

While the letter does not say anything as to the detailed plans of the mill, the references to Oriental labor make it plain that the mills are thinking of establishing a branch here, as it would be impossible to take the labor to the mainland.

At the present time a great deal of raw silk is taken through Honolulu to the mills of the mainland and even to Europe. Many vessels from the Orient bring silk cargoes through here valued at upwards of a million dollars, and silk trains are rushed from California to the Eastern mills with a right of way over any other kind of freight traffic.

POTENHAUER OUT OF DANGER. "Pottenhauer out of danger, gradually improving," is the reassuring cablegram received this morning by H. Hackfeld & Co., Ltd., regarding the vice president of the corporation, who sustained a severe operation in Dresden ten days ago.

TWO FREIGHTERS DUE TO STEAM FOR THE PACIFIC COAST TODAY

Two large freighters are to depart for the West coast of the United States today, provided all goes well with the discharge of cargoes.

The Japanese freighter Koku Maru, an arrival at Honolulu on September 20th with Australian coal to local importers, has been made ready for sea, and should sail for Columbia River and Puget Sound points this afternoon. The Koku Maru has been fixed to load lumber on the West coast for Australia. Captain Cowin, stated today that in returning to the Antipodes he intended to pass within range of the Diamond Head signal station with a view of being reported from this port.

The Harrison Direct Line freighter Workman, has been discharged of three thousand tons European cargo including cement, fertilizer material and sundries. This vessel is to be dispatched today for San Pedro, San Francisco, Portland, Vancouver and Seattle. The Workman will be supplied cargo on the coast which is destined for London. About fifteen thousand cases of preserved pineapples were loaded aboard the freighter during the stay at Honolulu.

Distressed Windjammer Awaits Repara.

The American schooner Sophie Christensen, has been thoroughly fumigated at the instance of the United States Public Health Service, and the vessel shifted from quarantine to Channel wharf. The Sophie Christensen will await a turn on its local marine railway. Following the removal of one inter-island steamer on the ways, the schooner Mary E. Foster is next booked for repairs and cleaning.

The Sophie Christensen is to be recaulked, cleaned and repainted. The vessel is in leaking condition, though not much water is finding its way into the hold, according to statements made by her master.

Where is the Sherman?

The United States Army transport Sherman is believed near the islands from Manila by the way of Nagasaki, Japan, but her position is what is bothering local shipping and army men. The troopship should have arrived at the port late yesterday afternoon according to regular schedule. A wireless message was sent through the Sherman last night, but the local operators were unable to pick up a responsive message from this vessel.

The Sherman is believed will show up off the port late this afternoon or early tomorrow morning. The vessel is to berth at the Ewa side of Alaska wharf.

Siberia Due Monday Afternoon.

With Oriental freight amounting to nearly a thousand tons, and a large number of Asiatic steerage passengers, the Pacific Mail liner Siberia, from Hongkong via Japan ports, is expected to arrive at this port about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The vessel is expected to depart for San Francisco at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, according to the present calculations of her agents, H. Hackfeld & Co. The Siberia has room for all applicants for transportation to the Coast thus far booked at the local agency. There is room for 125 cabin passengers.

Keahou Plays Return Engagement.

Back in service after lying up at the port of Honolulu since the last of January, 1911, the inter-island steamer Keahou is to sail for Kona and Kau ports this afternoon. The Keahou was a more or less regular visitor to Kona ports before the long retirement from the inter-island schedule. The vessel is being loaded with general cargo and explosives for windward Hawaii ports.

Likilike Brought Last of Kilauca Sugar.

The last of the 1912 crop of Kilauca sugar has arrived at Honolulu in the inter-island steamer Likilike. This vessel was an arrival at the port this morning with 7740 sacks sugar, 260 sacks rice, 18 gasoline drums and 21 packages sundries. The officers report fair weather in the Kaula channel.

Hawaii Sugar Report.

Sugar accumulating at Hawaii ports is being gradually reduced by inroads from inter-island and trans-Pacific steamers. Purser Phillips brought the following statement with the arrival of the steamer Mauna Kea this morning: Olan 5000, Onomea 8354, Hakalan 9574, Paauhau 7000, Punaluu 8550, Honoupa 3046, Laupahoehoe 200.

Windjammers Hover Off Hawaii.

Two windjammers were sighted off the island of Hawaii, by officers in the inter-island steamer Mauna Kea. The vessels reported as standing off the island were each four masted schooners. Purser Phillips of the inter-island steamer states that it was impossible to make out the name of the sailing vessels. It is believed that one may be the schooner Spokane, twenty seven days from Port Ludlow. The schooner Taurus twenty-six days from Mukilteo is also due at the Hawaii port.

The Mauna Kea met with fine weather with light trades and smooth seas in crossing the channel. The vessel brought a small offering of freight including the usual quantity of empty containers, 24 sacks corn, 18 sacks taro, 18 crates cabbage, crates of chickens and 6322 feet of hard wood lumber. The steamers Kaula and Kalulani were reported at Hilo. The Matson Navigation steamer Wilhelmina was discharging general cargo there at the time of departure of the Mauna Kea for Honolulu.

Schooners Prepare to Sail Away.

Several schooners now at the port are being rapidly discharged or loaded preparatory to leaving for the Coast within a few days. Eight hundred tons of fertilizer from the Pacific Guano and Fertilizer Company, are going into the schooner Annie M. Campbell, and this vessel will probably get away for San Pedro on Tuesday or Wednesday morning. The Campbell arrived here on September 18 with lumber consigned to Lewers & Cooke.

The bark Eudora, an arrival here during the middle of September, is about discharged of nitrates from South America, and this vessel is now taking on ballast preparatory to departure for the Sound. The Eudora has been fixed to load grain for foreign ports.

The schooner Alice Cooke is discharging a large amount of lumber intended to be used in the construction of the new Queen street wharf. The vessel will soon be shifted to the Bishop wharf to complete the discharge of cargo.

Pacific Mail Reduces Rates To The Coast.

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company has reduced cabin passenger rates to the coast.

According to announcement from the agency of H. Hackfeld & Company, to local representatives for the trans-Pacific line the passenger fares in inside cabins on the main deck will be cut to $65 with a round trip rate of $110 between Honolulu and San Francisco.

These rates will now conform to those made by the Oceanic Steamship Company and also those in vogue in the Matson Navigation line for some time past.

The festive rodent will be put to rout before the Norwegian freighter Hornelen is permitted to come along side one of the local wharves. The steamer has coal consigned to the Interisland Steam Navigation Company. The vessel is now at Quarantine wharf, to remain for a short period while fumigating is in progress.

The Hornelen, steamed from Newcastle to Honolulu in twenty days. Captain S. Nilsen reports a fair passage. The vessel is 3904 tons Australian coal. One sack of Australian mail arrived in the freighter.

Cattle from the ranges on Hawaii to the number of 27 head reached this port in the steamer Iwaleia this morning. The vessel also brought 2375 sacks sugar and a quantity of sundries. The officers report light winds and smooth seas after leaving Kawahae and Mahukona.

KAHUKU RANCH

volcano mountain, in the district of Kau. Tens of thousand of acres of the estate are waste lands, lava flows having at various times shown an affinity for the locality. One notable instance was in 1887, when a special steamer excursion took a large party from Honolulu to see the fiery river. It passed quite near the ranch house, and one of the best accounts of the event was written to a local paper by the late G. W. C. Jones, then proprietor of the ranch.

The original suit of Madame d'Herblay, whom Norris maintained was an impostor using the name of his old-time "flame," was brought against the colonel twenty years ago. It was fought fiercely by the defendant in the courts of Hawaii, only to be finally adjudged in the madame's favor. Then Col. Norris gave his notes for the satisfaction of judgment, and it was on default of payment of these when due that Madame d'Herblay brought the suit just now compromised.

Cooper Sells Option.
Clearing the way for the sale, Judge Cooper had transferred to Mr. Carter the option which, as reported in this paper a month ago, he had obtained on the property. It is understood Judge Cooper cleared several thousand dollars in the transaction.

A book might be written on the vagaries of Col. Norris while in possession of Kahuku ranch. For one thing, there might be a chapter on the happy-go-lucky nature of his management. It was said that he never had any definite idea of the numbers of cattle on the place, and his marketing operations were as capricious as could be imagined. It was reputedly unsafe for anybody wearing long black clothes to come in sight of the ranch house.

HARBOR NOTES

A shipment of sugar has reached San Francisco in the American schooner Annie Johnson which sailed from Mahukona on Sept. 8th.

The American schooner Robert Lewers is reported to have made a fair passage from Honolulu to Port Townsend, arriving at the Sound on last Thursday.

The little schooner Defender made a short call at Honolulu, the windjammer sailing for San Francisco yesterday after having discharged her shipment of lumber at the windward Hawaii port.

The Major, and Henri, the Colonel against the slight to "The Jolene" with hot indignation of "Civilization."

Cry: "This thing's simply infolone!"

ASSAILANTS HELD BY CHIEF

Four alleged assailants of an old Hawaiian, janitor at the Pauoa valley school, are held to answer to the charge of assault and battery at the instance of Chief of Detectives Arthur McDuffie.

The officer visited the scene of the disturbance yesterday and placed (Gomes, Kukahani, Fragas and Kana in custody. The young men are said to be members of a gang of roughs who have for many months provoked a terror to the neighborhood.

They are declared as ringleaders in a bunch who have committed a number of minor depredations and the present difficulty is believed will bring them face to face with punishment fitting an aggravated case.

FELL FROM CAR; SCALP WOUND

Falling from the foot board of a Waikiki-bound King street rapid transit car this morning, Yari, a Japanese, received injuries to his head and body that sent him to the hospital for treatment.

Despite the warning given the Japanese by Conductor Fern, the Nipponese was standing on the running board of the car. In leaping out he was struck by a telephone post and knocked from the fast-moving coach to the ground. Luckily the Japanese rolled to one side and did not come in contact with the wheels.

The accident occurred on King street, near Keaumoku.

INSECT PESTS RULE AND FEDERAL QUARANTINE

Official publication is made in this paper today of a rule and regulation of the Board of Agriculture and Forestry concerning the control of insect and other vegetable pests. This measure takes the place of three rules hitherto in force, being a combination of all their provisions that suit new circumstances.

There is also published in this issue the proclamation of the Federal plant quarantine lately enacted in Washington for this Territory. Its list of fruits and vegetables forbidden to be exported hence names thirty products, none of which are very extensively shipped to the mainland. It will be noticed with general gratification that neither bananas nor pineapples are on the list.

HAWAIIAN COMMERCIAL DROPS; EWA RECOVERS

Hawaiian Commercial is the only sugar stock showing a sale decline today, a drop of one and a quarter points being indicated in a sale of 10 shares reported at 41.50. Ewa has recovered an eighth, 50 shares having sold at 23. Kekaha holds at $15 for five shares. Oahu is showing renewed strength in quotations, bids for it having advanced three-eighths above last sale to 25 7/8, and a quarter more is asked.

Oahu Railway & Land Co. has advanced five points to 150 for 70 shares in three unequal lots, one of five being the only transaction on the board this morning. Brewery has advanced a quarter to 22 for 60 shares in three unequal parcels.

Dividends announced today are by H. C. & S. Co., 25c, or $100,000; Onomea, 60c, or $30,000; Honoumu, $1.50, or $11,250.

Application for articles of incorporation was filed with the register of public accounts today by the Crescent City Cracker Company, Ltd., of Hilo, which desires to engage in the cracker manufacturing industry. The capitalization is set at $10,000 with a maximum limit of $50,000. Yen Wing Ken is president; H. W. Ludloff, secretary; Richard F. Laidloff, treasurer; C. Ah Pook, assistant secretary, and G. AN UMBRELLA LENDING BUREAU

One of the handiest things in the world must be the umbrella-lending system in operation in Belgium. It costs $1 a year to be a member of the organization, each member receiving a check. When it rains he heads in his check at the nearest cigar store and gets an umbrella. When he returns the umbrella he gets another check, good for another umbrella when he needs it. One of the great advantages of the system is that it avoids the necessity of carrying an umbrella around to fool the weather with, the chance being about nine times to one that the weather will fool you, and that by the time you get home you left the umbrella. Anything that will keep the umbrella, question straight will be welcomed by the average man, and it looks as if the Belgian scheme would be helpful in that respect.—Philadelphia Press.

Application for articles of incorporation was filed with the register of public accounts today by the Crescent City Cracker Company, Ltd., of Hilo, which desires to engage in the cracker manufacturing industry. The capitalization is set at $10,000 with a maximum limit of $50,000. Yen Wing Ken is president; H. W. Ludloff, secretary; Richard F. Laidloff, treasurer; C. Ah Pook, assistant secretary, and G. Lin Pook, auditor.

POLITICAL NEWS AND NOTES

Vice President Chillingworth of the Republican precinct club of the fourth precinct of the Fourth District has called a meeting of the precinct club officers and the delegates to the Republican Territorial and county conventions to be held in Republican headquarters at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

The Fourth of the Fourth is regarded with considerable suspicion by the workers of the Kakaako precincts. The latter have heard reports that the hopes of that section intend to scratch Bartlett, and Bartlett is the Kakaako favorite. It is claimed if Bartlett is scratched the friends of Bartlett will retaliate on Dowsett and Renton or Paris or some candidate who is believed to be especially wanted by the naioes.

This is one of the regulation difficulties of the campaign preliminaries, and as usual, the general situation is to be thoroughly discussed before it is generally understood.

The fighting ninth of the fifth district held an interesting meeting in the Kalia pumping station last night. There were present about 15 people, and Solomon Mahelona acted as presiding officer.

The meeting, according to one of those who were present, was to organize systematically preparatory to going out campaigning.

As the names of each candidate on the Republican ticket was mentioned the audience cheered and applauded. The name of J. M. Dowsett was applauded just as enthusiastically as his running mates. The morning organ had it that Dowsett's name was not applauded by the audience; but, the truth of the matter, said one of the hearers this morning, was that it was received with enthusiasm. It is reported that Mahelona asked those present to work in harmony so that the Republican ticket can be elected in November.

Advising their fellowmen to register, and register immediately, the leaders of the Portuguese community, last night held a meeting on the Gulick avenue and decided to spread the "gospel of truth" among the Portuguese voters. Mr. Rocha, one of the hardest workers of the Republican party, presided.

According to reports, there are about forty Portuguese in Kalia valley, who have not registered their names in the Great Register. And on this account, a committee was appointed last night to call on these Portuguese and advise them to call in Clerk Kalauokalani's office and register immediately.

There were about twenty-five Portuguese present, and after the leaders had explained their position clearly to the electorate the meeting adjourned.

Next Monday evening another meeting of the same character will be held all along the Punchbowl community.

In its issue this morning, the Ke Aloha Aina, a Democratic organ, owned by Link McCandless, and edited by J. M. Poepe, attacks the Republican platform, as was adopted by the county convention, held in the Opera House.

The editorial declares among other things that the clause regarding the treatment of the prisoners is a "man killer." It adds that particular clause is a source of encouragement to those who are unemployed, to do things which will eventually put them in jail. It further says that it is not right for the county, as mentioned in the Republican county platform to provide means and make appropriations for the maintenance of the families of prisoners.

Y. M. C. A. TO TRAIN MEN IN HONOLULU FOR ITS WORK

It Is Hard to Get Experienced Workers for Positions Carrying Good Salaries

"The great growth of the Young Men's Christian Association throughout North America within the last ten years has brought to the front the training of a large number of competent secretaries to manage the increasing number of new buildings which are being erected throughout the country," said General Secretary Super this morning. "At the present time there are 3632 employed officers of the association in North America, and many good positions, not a few of them paying from $2000 to $3000 per year, are standing vacant waiting for the right man to come along and fill them.

"Years of experience have demonstrated that a man cannot merely be taken from the ministry or business and placed in charge of a Y. M. C. A. building with any prospects of success. The association work requires special training extending over a period of years, the same as the law, ministry or any other business requires special training. The two training schools of the Y. M. C. A. at Springfield, Massachusetts, and Chicago, Illinois, do not turn out a nearly large enough number of men annually. The earlier methods of providing men for a secretaryship was to place the man in the association as an assistant with the hope that he would develop into a secretary. It too often developed that the man spent a great deal of his time addressing envelopes and licking stamps and got little real association experience.

2ND SYMPHONY CONCERT IS SET FOR NOVEMBER

Preparations are going ahead for the opening of the winter season for the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra, and announcement was made yesterday that the first concert will be held about the middle of November.

The reorganized symphony gave one concert last season that was highly successful and the plans for next winter and spring contemplate several more. The program has not yet been completed nor the exact date set.

BY AUTHORITY

RULE XII.

RULE AND REGULATION OF THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY CONCERNING THE CONTROL OF INSECT AND OTHER VEGETABLE PESTS IN THE TERRITORY OF HAWAII.

The Board of Commissioners of Agriculture and Forestry of the Territory of Hawaii hereby make the following rules and regulations for the purpose of controlling and diminishing or eradicating injurious insects, blights, scales and pests, injurious or liable to become injurious, to trees, plants, or other vegetation of value and the fruit thereof.

Section 1. In view of the presence of injurious insects, blights, scales and pests which are a detriment or which may become a detriment to the agricultural industries of the Territory and for the purpose of preventing or diminishing the damage and loss caused by them, all inspectors and other duly appointed agents of the Board of Agriculture and Forestry are hereby empowered to enter at all reasonable times any and all farms, orchards and premises in said Territory, where there are agricultural growths and products, for the purpose of inspecting trees, plants, cuttings, vines, fruits, vegetables, tubers, roots, seeds and other agricultural growths and products thereon.

Section 2. Whenever such injurious insects, blights, scales, or pests are discovered on any premises, inspectors and other duly appointed agents of the Board of Agriculture and Forestry shall advise the growers of the crops on such premises as to the best method of reducing the damage that may be caused thereby, and all fruits, plants, cuttings, vines, vegetables, tubers, roots, seeds or leaves infected with any such insect, blight, scale or pest, shall be destroyed at once by the grower thereof by methods prescribed by the Superintendent of Entomology upon the request of any such inspector or agent.

Section 3. All inspectors and other duly appointed agents of the Board of Agriculture and Forestry are hereby empowered to seize and destroy any fruit, plant, cutting, vines, vegetables, tubers, roots, seeds, or leaves infected with any such insects, blights, scales or pests found in any shipment in any part of the Territory.

Section 4. Any person, firm or corporation violating the above rule shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not to exceed Five Hundred Dollars, as provided by section 390 of the Revised Laws, as amended by Act 82 of the Session Laws of 1905, and Act 112 of the Session Laws of 1907.

Section 5. This rule shall take effect upon its approval by the Governor.

Approved: W. F. FREAR, Governor of Hawaii. December 30, 1911. 5359-3t

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the Secretary, Washington, D. C. Federal Horticultural Board. Notice of Quarantine No. 2 (Domestic), September 18, 1912. Mediterranean Fruit Fly. The fact has been determined by the Acting Secretary of Agriculture that an injurious insect known as the Mediterranean Fruit Fly (Ceratitis capitata), new to and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in the Territory of Hawaii. Now, therefore, I, Willet M. Hays, Acting Secretary of Agriculture, under the authority conferred by Section 8-of the Act approved August 20, 1912, known as "The Plant Quarantine Act," do hereby quarantine said Territory of Hawaii and do prohibit, by this notice of quarantine No. 2, under the authority and discretion conferred on the Secretary of Agriculture by said Section 8 of the Act of Congress approved August 20, 1912, the movement from the Territory of Hawaii into or through any other State, Territory, or District of the United States, of the following fruits, seeds, vegetables, and other plant products: Alligator Pears, Carambolas, Chinese Ink Berry, Chinese Orange, Chinese Plums, Coffee Berries, Damson Plum, Eugenia, Figs, Grapes, Grape Fruit, Green Peppers, Guavas, Kamani Seeds, Kumquats, Limes, Loquats, Mangoes, Mock Orange, Mountain Apple, Natal or Kafir Plum, Oranges, Papaya, Peaches, Persimmons, Prickly Pears, Rose Apple, Star Apple, String Beans, Tomatoes. Hereafter, and until further notice, by virtue of said Section 8 of the Act of Congress approved August 20, 1912, it shall be unlawful to move any of the fruits, seeds, vegetables, or other plant products herein named from the Territory of Hawaii into or through any other State, Territory, or District of the United States, regardless of the use for which the same is intended. WILLET M. HAYS, Acting Secretary of Agriculture. 5359-1t

REPUBLICAN WINNERS

That a record of efficiency in public office is the best assurance of retention by the people is illustrated notably in the political prospects of three Republican nominees on the county ticket.—Auditor Bicknell, Clerk Kalaauokalani, and County Attorney Cathcart.

When the Republicans were hunting suitable timber for the fall campaign, they didn't have to worry about these three offices. The men in them have done their duty and more. They have the confidence of the public. In the past their election has been by large majorities and such will again be the case. The STAR-BULLETIN has no hesitation in agreeing with the Republican convention that the official record of these three men entitles them to re-election. They are men for whom votes will come from the people regardless of party lines.

CHOOSING SUPERVISORS

If ever the affairs of this city and county clamored for an administration by men who are used to handling financial matters, they do now. The next board of supervisors will face an enormous problem in bringing the city's finances to a basis where improvements can go ahead. There is not room on that board for a blockhead or a dullard. In men like E. H. Paris, the voters may find the qualities of business judgment so sorely needed. Above all things, Honolulu must have men on the board who can initiate and carry out some progressive financial policy. Mr. Paris was born in the islands and has given twenty-two successive years to one big firm here in an efficient manner that speaks for itself. A board of supervisors made up of Paris, Carlos Long, J. B. Enos, Lester Petrie, John Markham, Andrew Cox and Charles Arnold would combine experience, capability, initiative and voting ability.

Honolulu cannot afford to carry dead weight on its board of supervisors during the next two years. Every man must count for progress.

PORTUGAL'S ACHIEVEMENT

Portuguese of Hawaii who are today celebrating the second anniversary of the founding of their republic may well be congratulated upon the brilliant success that has attended popular government in the European country.

Under the republic, Portugal has made more internal progress than in many decades before, and has progressed also in the esteem of the world-powers. The republic is securing prestige at home and abroad that the Braganza dynasty could never attain. Sweeping away the artificial barriers set up by an outgrown and weakly monarchical form of government, Portugal's leaders have begun the building of a great and democratic rule by the people.

Manuel and the royalists have thrice failed in plots to overthrow the republic, and this danger is no longer to be feared if the wise administration of d'Arriaga and his associates be continued. The republican government is securing the confidence of a people somewhat distrustful from unhappy experience with an autocratic rule, and one by one the chaotic, the unfortunate conditions of the past are giving way to better things. Portugal's arts and sciences are flourishing in a new and fertile soil; education is advancing rapidly; the people are not taxed to furnish funds for royal excesses. Her attainment of substantial footing in so short a time is remarkable, and the world joins with this republic in belief that the brighter day has come to remain.

UNCLE SAM AND THE CHINESE LOAN

Uncle Sam is likely to come out of the Chinese loan complication with international advantage, if the cards are played right. Just now it looks as if the United States will be friend China in its hour of financial need and secure a powerful commercial ally.

Explanations of the failure of the six have been attempted, but the true so far is only hinted at. It appears now that Russia and Japan demanded exorbitant privileges in Mongolia and Manchuria in return for their financial help, and the powers as a whole declined to recognize the Chinese republic until the government would submit to the terms of the loan.

Kwangtung province has firmly declined to enter into any such arrangement, believing that as a province it can borrow wheresoever it sees fit, and its government is now beginning negotiations with America. The Chinese in the south believe that Uncle Sam will not demand political and industrial privileges such as Russia and Japan have demanded, and already there is a feeling growing up that all of China should turn to Uncle Sam for advice and assistance.

Chinese throughout the south are opposed to the regulations for the supervision of expenditures of the advances made by the bankers to China. According to the regulations, the ministry of finance will organize an auditing department. There will be one auditor employed and paid by the Chinese government. This department will be separate from the ministry of finance. Chinese in the south declare this first provision would give the foreign auditor equal power with the Chinese. According to the estimated income and expenditures for 1912, issued by the minister of finance, China will have an income of 297,000,000 taels and an expenditure of 576,000,000 taels, giving a deficit of 279,000,000 taels. This shows that China will have to borrow several hundred millions for ordinary expenses alone.

It also is provided that all orders on the banks for funds from the advances placed at the government's disposal must be signed by the auditors. From the reading of this the Chinese believe that the auditors have the right to refuse to sign any order they do not approve. It will then be the auditors and not the national council and the president who have the final right over an appropriation. Not one auditor, but the two auditors must sign an order, and the final authority will be in the hands of the representative of the bankers, as the Chinese auditor is supposed to look after the interests of the Chinese government more or less. If this is not an attempt of the foreign governments to regulate the affairs of China to their own interests through the supervision of its finances, the Chinese would like to know what it is.

The ministry of finance engages to furnish the bankers, from time to time, for their approval, specific statements of the objects for which funds obtained from the advances will be expended. The statements must first have the approval of the national council and must be published in the Official Gazette. The ministry of finance also will furnish the auditors with detailed paysheets and statements to support the government's requisitions for funds. The auditors will examine these, and if satisfied that all is in good order, will sign the requisitions.

To make China ever dependent on foreign loans, necessary to purchase only from countries interested in the loan, unable to make war on the powers represented in the syndicate now composed of six nations by adding Russia and Japan to the United States, Germany, England and France, are all what the Chinese in general suspect the foreign governments would attempt.

Now that the Floral Parade plans are under way, let's hear from the public as to the hour for the parade itself. Last year, after the hour was announced for the afternoon, there were several roars. The Star-Bulletin will be glad to receive and to publish suggestions from people as to the best hour for the parade on February 22.

The Promotion Committee needs more coin—and should get it. The volume of tourist traffic that has poured into this port for two years past is sufficient evidence that the committee is doing its work well.

Hawaii is not so very different from some states of the Union in having no man of prominence for governor who is not allied with sugar and other trust interests.—New York World.

One of the worst things about this new European war is the certainty that all the punsters will now get busy with Hungary, Turkey and Greece.

"Off with the old war and on with the new" is Turkey's plan of action.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

H. M. AYRES—I have launched my little sheet and if it floats it ought to make good. It's something on the style of a London journal, y'know.

JAMES A. RATH—I have tried my best to get the streets of the Palama district offed, but the work is never done. I guess I will have to leave it to the Palama Improvement Club.

JUDGE W. L. WHITNEY—The Big Brother movement, which was started in Honolulu some time ago, promises to meet with success in every way. Sixteen men have already taken up the duties of a Big Brother.

DUKE KAHANAMOKU—I am going to try and get up a big water carnival for Floral Parade Day. This ought to attract the attention of a few of the amateur swimmers of the city who are anxious to show their talent.

WILLIS T. POPE—By using the double session each day, the arrangement to relieve the crowded condition of the public schools is proving successful. There have been no complaints made directly to me on this subject.

O. B. LIGHTFOOT—There will be a series of races next season between the Healanis and the Myrtles to decide which club shall send a team to the coast in an endeavor to win back the championship.

A. T. WISDOM—Hereafter the Y. M. C. A. Lyric Club will have to practice in some other place besides the balcony of the building. I was almost tempted to go out and dance the other night myself.

Story of the Fire. Following is the letter to the agents giving an account of the fire: "Kaliua, Hawaii, Oct. 4, 1912. Messrs. H. Hackfeld & Co., Ltd., Honolulu.

"Gentlemen: We beg to confirm wireless message of the 3rd inst., as follows: Fermenting house and ten contents totally destroyed, fire 5:30 p. m., Oct. 2d.; cigar factory also; cause unknown; the only salvage about 6000 cigars; particulars Mauna Kea."

Building Was Deserted. The fire broke out about 5:20 o'clock p. m., or one hour after all hands had quit work. There is no way of ascertaining the origin.

Mr. Daniels was at Napoopoo looking after the incoming freight, and Messrs. Schrader and Bottleson were at the residence, where they were notified of the fire by the Chinese children of the storekeeper who live some distance below the residence and could see fire, as it was on the northwest side that same was first seen.

Messrs. Schrader and Bottleson rushed down, but it was of no use, as the whole thing burst into a flame and there was so much smoke that they did not dare go inside.

Fire Made Quick Work. They ran around the building to the cigar factory and pulled out a case of cigars and then could do nothing more owing to the heat. The whole thing was level with the ground in 55 minutes.

It is the custom there to sprinkle the floor and sweep out the aisles and place all the chairs and stools on the work benches every night after the help have quit. This was done as usual and the place closed. The night watchman goes on duty at 6 o'clock, but the fire occurred half an hour previous to his going on duty.

Loss of Tobacco. The entire 1911 crop was consumed, as well as all the stock of the cigar company, which, as you know, was stored in the fermenting house, also 7,885 lbs. of the 1912 crop. There were also 10,155 lbs. of the Hawaiian Tobacco Co. tobacco in the fermenting house, which is covered by insurance in the name of the Hawaiian Tobacco Co.

Makeshift Quarters Proposed. As a makeshift the boarding house will have to be altered and same used to do the fermenting of the crop now being harvested; there are a number of rooms upstairs which can be used and the downstairs can be used as a sorting room temporarily, as we presume that under the existing circumstances the directors will not want to erect a new fermenting house at present. Of course, the boarding house is not properly equipped for this work, but it will have to do under the circumstances, as the cured tobacco has to have attention to save it, and there would be no time to build, as the cured tobacco is being taken down from the curing barns almost weekly.

Other Buildings Imperilled. They had a hard time to save the residence, as the wind was blowing from makai so that the heat was intense. All the books, etc., were removed from the office and the household goods of the occupants of the residence as well. Fortunately the wind shifted; otherwise, if the residence had caught fire, it is possible that the mill and store would have also been consumed.

U. S. MARINE IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Wounded While Practicing Rifle-Firing by Comrade. Not Serious

The first shooting accident to marines or bluejackets at Pearl Harbor, occurred yesterday morning, when Private Charles Francis McCourt, U. S. M. C., was accidentally shot by a companion, Private Buckley. Fortunately, the accident, though extremely painful, is not as serious as at first supposed, the patient being reported as doing well this morning.

McCourt and Buckley were practicing with one of the .22-caliber rifles used for subcaliber practise, which shoots small ammunition about the size of BB caps. In some way, which neither of the men can explain, the rifle in Buckley's hands was discharged, the bullet entering McCourt's knee and ranging downward.

The accident was at once reported by telephone to the naval station, and medical attendance was sent down at once in the steam launch. McCourt's injury was dressed and he was brought in the launch to Honolulu. At the naval surgery it was stated this morning that he was doing as well as could be expected, and that there was small danger of permanent injury, the bullet, on account of its small size, having done little damage in the way of shattered bones.

BAKER WRITES OF QUEEN IN AM. MAGAZINE

A full-page portrait of Queen Liliuokalani and a sympathetic sketch, with the initials "R. S. E." make the "Interesting People" department of the October American Magazine particularly interesting to Hawaii.

The initials are easily recognizable as those of Ray Stannard Baker, the magazine writer, who was here some months ago. In his little sketch Baker says:

"At one time some twenty years ago there was no more unique and interesting figure before the American public than Liliuokalani, queen of the Sandwich Islands. For weeks during the administration of President Cleveland, while she was struggling to retain the royal crown of Hawaii, her doings filled the American press and she was a favorite subject for the jibes of cartoonists and paragraphers.

"I saw her recently in Honolulu. She was driving out, according to her custom, in an open carriage—a really impressive figure, large, dark and with an air of distinction not unqueenly. In earlier years a woman of force and pride, she has now retired and at the age of seventy lives serenely in a beautiful old home shaded with tropical foliage only a stone's throw from the palace where she once reigned—the palace where now sits the American governor. She shuns publicity, but she loves to gather groups of her old friends about her, and to listen to the singing of the sweet Hawaiian songs. Though having no longer any power, she is yet looked up to by an venerated by all her people—all the pathetic remnant of a once numerous race of islanders. While she was bitterly attacked in her day by the Americans who wished to rule the islands, and while she caused the revolution which cost her a crown, there are many today who will tell you that, after all, she was only making a last forlorn stand for people and for her throne against the encroachments of the eager, busy, destructive, irresistible, orderly white man. After it was all over and she came back to Honolulu, the new American government voted her a generous pension, and she has been living quietly upon it ever since. Those who know her intimately say she is a woman of fine intelligence and possessed of many truly queenly qualities. With her will die the last crowned head of the Sandwich Islands."

THE PRESS and the PEOPLE

AFTERMATH.

The people of Waiholu say that they are satisfied with the Secretary Fisher investigation. It is too bad that Mr. Fisher cannot possibly realize the full extent of that complaint.

And on top of that we hear that Mr. Fisher stopped Abe Louissou when he was talking coffee tariff. This is nothing short of miraculous.—Hilo Tribune.

will increase through holding the meetings on the outside islands where the incoming of from fifty to one hundred visitors is noticed and more cordially received than in a larger place like Honolulu. To be sure Honolulu has hotel accommodations which are not available here or on Maui, but the fact that a number of delegates did not stay in the local hotel but visited with friends in this city, gave the meeting a much more cordial feeling and in general made the occasion one of less ceremony and of easier and better understanding than would have been the case under other circumstances.—Hawaii Herald.

THE INVESTIGATION.

The probing of the charges against Mr. Frear as chief executive of Hawaii is completed, and the investigating Secretary together with Secretary of State Knox, depart in the Maryland this afternoon. Whatever the outcome of the investigation may be as regards the Governor, of the beneficial effect upon the Territory at large there can be no doubt. Hawaiian affairs in general have been stirred up and aired as never before. The broad daylight has been let in on matters that vitally concern the welfare of the Hawaiian people.

In the main it would seem that the Secretary approved of the Governor's policy. Mr. Frear has met all charges with calm dignity and given good and sound reason for all of his actions. The greater part of the accusations brought against him have fallen flat. Most of those who aired their home-stead grievances before Mr. Fisher appeared not to have studied the question thoroughly, some even displaying an astonishing ignorance about the homestead law. They came before the Secretary entirely unprepared and failed to give adequate replies to his keen questions on the subject. The only really severe censure of criticism Mr. Fisher passed upon the Governor was that he did not take the public into his confidence. Thus he commented upon the lack of publicity given to the administration's intentions in regard to homesteading. Full information on the subject of public lands, the Secretary claimed, had not been furnished the people and as a result there was a feeling that they had not been fairly treated.

Mr. Fisher's report to the President will of necessity be a lengthy document and take some time to prepare. It is not likely that any action will be taken in the matter for some time to come. Election is drawing near, and the administration at Washington has weightier matters to think of.—Maui Weekly Times.

North America more than 8,000 miles nearer to each other by sea is, of course, one obvious gain of great importance. But there are others. Whereas Japan, Australia and New Zealand, to mention no other remote regions, are now nearer to Liverpool than to New York by more than 1,000 miles, the Panama canal will give New York an advantage over Liverpool of from 1,800 miles in the case of Japan to 2,700 miles in the case of New Zealand.—Chicago Daily News.

THE PORTUGUESE.

As a result of the vigorous protest by A Setta against the cataloguing of the Portuguese outside of the white race, the Hawaii Herald last week through its editorial column tendered an apology to the Portuguese, which is hereby duly accepted. It then endeavors to put up a lame defense by purposely evading the real issue presented by A Setta, and devotes some space towards making an imaginary diagnosis of the political characteristics of the Portuguese. We will repeat for the benefit of all what we have said before. We are proud of being American citizens, but prouder still of having Portuguese blood flowing through our veins. We are not ashamed of our nationality, but we will not tolerate any insults from any prejudiced persons regarding our color or race. To utilize phraseology such as "Whites and Portuguese" is just as ridiculous and absurd as for instance "British and Scotchmen" or "Mongolians and Japanese." It is fortunate for us that we only had our "hide punctured and our brow fevered," as such exterior maladies soon depart, but we pity those critics who seem afflicted with a mild headache which is causing the enlargement of that part of his anatomy. The statement that the Portuguese are going to vote for "Pacheco and Silva and for no one else" is just as true as the Anglo-Saxons limiting their vote to Metzger, Irwin and Ross, and we also predict that many such ballots will be counted in November. The Herald wants to infer that many Portuguese will be tempted to vote only for Portuguese candidates. That would not be a "race ticket," but race suicide, for Metzger, Irwin and Ross belong to the same race that the Portuguese do. We do not advocate a race ticket, but we do hope and expect to see about three-fourths of the Republican ticket elected in November.—A Setta, Hilo, New York World.

WITHOUT HOPE.

Mr. Taft's extreme candor is emphasized by an interview which he has accorded a representative of our neighbor, the Herald. He says plainly that as to the result of the November election he is not optimistic, but that he looks for a quiet vote of small and conservative business interests and thinking laboring men favorable to himself that will be surprising. He refers briefly to existing prosperity and intimates that he paved the way for it by vetoing the tariff bills. This is a prophecy of defeat which the accompanying modest avowal of merit will not make any more palatable to his supporters. For reasons which are obvious the noisy vote is not going to Mr. Taft this year. A large section of the quiet vote is ticked elsewhere also. If he can count only upon the favor of those who believe that his vetoes are responsible for prosperity, it must be that he expects to run third, or maybe fourth, which would be a surprise indeed.—New York World.

HEARST'S "SUPPORT" OF GOV. WILSON.

One of the comedies of current national politics is Hearst's "support" of Governor Wilson for the presidency. That "support" was scarcely announced in the largest type of the Hearst composing rooms when the able editor himself wrote—or, at least signed his name to—an editorial as long as a Roosevelt executive message ripping the New Jerseyan's candidacy up the back. It was mildly and meagerly praiseful of Wilson himself, but it damned about everything there is in his platform. The same old Hearst game!—the gods help whom he "supports." Play all ends of the game for the profit and glory of William R. Hearst.—San Francisco News-Letter.

SHIFTING OF TRADE ROUTES.

In two parts of the world, and perhaps in only two, is due consideration being given to the results to come from the opening of the Panama canal. Great Britain and the Pacific coast of North America realize that great changes in trade routes profoundly affecting them will follow the linking of the oceans at Panama. The apprehension felt in London, Liverpool, Manchester and other shipping points in Great Britain is in marked contrast to the buoyant hopefulness of the Pacific coast, which expects soon to be the scene of vastly increased activities in all lines of industry because of sea traffic through the canal.

In a recent issue of the London Times a writer who has made a study of the canal's possibilities declares that its opening for traffic "will result in a shifting of trade routes comparable only with the effect produced by the closing of eastern channels of trade by the capture of Constantinople by the Turks in 1453. That event," he points out, "was the impelling cause of the discovery of America. It led swiftly to the decline of the Mediterranean states and to the beginnings of the rivalry for world dominion among the Atlantic powers." The bringing of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of

RECREATIONS

SINGERS LAUDED IN AUSTRALIA

With three notable passengers aboard whose names are sure to linger long after they have departed for the mainland, the S. S. Marama is four days from Honolulu, which means that it will be only seven days until the renowned Eleonora de Cisneros appears for the first time in the Hawaiian Opera House.

Friday, October 11 has been set for the first concert and the second will be given Tuesday, October 15. Assisting the great contralto singer are M. Dufault, tenor, and James Liebling, cellist, which makes the attraction three fold stronger. The Sydney Morning Herald has devoted columns of space to the achievements of the trio, and the remarkable impression they have made in Australia will be easily duplicated here. "An Artistic Success" are the headlines over the following story. "The dazzling smile and the dark-eyes lighting up the intensely emotional face, the graceful swaying of the body—they were all familiarly there as she came up the incline from under the organ on to the platform, and Eleonora de Cisneros on Saturday night once more stood before a Sydney audience. The statuesque figure robed in a rich pink costume, with some black touches framing the poise of the head on the shoulders, and the hair pressed close to the temples by a golden band, gave a theatrical effect, as though the singer were surrounded by the pomp and circumstance of grand opera, yet there was no departure from the strict conventions of the concert hall. The two artists who are with her for the present tour are of the highest attainments. The tenor, M. Paul Dufault, has a voice strong, pure and true. His production is easy and natural, with tone, and the vibrant notes of the upper register ring through the hall as clearly as the call of a silvery trumpet. The cellist, Mr. James Liebling, is a player whose mastery was apparent with the first stroke of his bow. He has cultivated the cantabile—the bel canto playing one might term it—of the stringed instrument above the bravura inclination that too often obsesses cellists and violinists alike, and his renditions of a number of pieces free from florid excesses were a genuine treat.

EMPIRE TO LURE VAUDEVILLE LOVERS

For the first time in many months, the Empire theatre will make a bid for business of the patrons of vaudeville tonight, when a new act which arrived yesterday will make its first appearance here. The act was originally booked for appearance at the Liberty, but as several new acts are due for this theatre early next week that it would be impracticable to "play" in the smaller Empire. Manager McGreer has decided to divide the talent between the Empire and Liberty theatres until completion of the alterations in the Bijou. Tonight's new offering at the Empire, named Martyn and Florence, are billed as a "comedy novelty act and singing soubrette." The comedian bringing excellent press clippings proclaiming him as good, while his partner, Miss Florence, is said to be the best soubrette seen here since Winnie Baldwin cavorted the local boards. In addition to the new act, Doyle and White will present new songs, while a specially selected programme of pictures will be shown. The usual prices of ten and fifteen cents for admission will prevail, and the show gives promise of being well worth while.

At the office of Police Clerk Asch, 1028 applicants for automobile licenses have been received up to the close of business yesterday. One hundred and sixty motorcycles are now enrolled at the police station.

MAUI NOTES

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

WAILUKU, Oct. 4.—Dr. S. P. Russel with his wife arrived on Saturday, and are making their home at the Maui Hotel. Dr. Russel has practiced dentistry for some years in New York City. For health reasons he and Mrs. Russel had to seek a warmer climate. Arriving in Honolulu on simply a vacation trip they become so fond of the islands that they decided to remain here and make Hawaii their permanent home. Dr. Russel intends to travel about Maui on professional work.

A big luau is to be given on Saturday at one o'clock to members of the victorious baseball team, and the regatta crew. A large sum has been subscribed by local people as an appreciation of what the boys did for Maui. The luau will be given on the spacious grounds of Judge John W. Kauai. Mrs. Kauai has charge of the whole affair. A large number of invitations have been issued to the subscribers to the fund.

Miss Melissa Rickard has been in the Malulu Hospital for a few days. She has successfully undergone a slight operation. In a week more she will be able to return to her own home.

H. Gooding Field is visiting Maui for a few days. He is the guest of his brother at the Maui Hotel.

Miss Mary Mitchell, the new teacher at the Wailuku public school is rooming at the William and Mary Alexander Parsonage.

Heavy showers have been falling at Haiku and Pauwela the first part of the week, and at the Honokohau side of Maui. During the last few days it has been raining in Iao Valley, so that the Wailuku Sugar company's ditches are running full.

A coast artilleryman was picked up by the police last night in front of the Mutu saloon. He was very much under the influence of liquor, and also showed evidence of having received a vicious beating by someone. He was taken to the Queen's Hospital for repairs.

There will be a meeting of the College Club at the Colonial on next Tuesday. Monday's paper will give the hour. Mrs. Frear and Miss Oleson will be speakers at the meeting. A good attendance is requested.

The marked increase in cholera at Japanese ports has led local quarantine officials to exercise greater precaution in the reception of vessels from the Orient, and the handling of second class and Asiatic steerage passengers.

As a result of a new ruling by Territorial Treasurer D. L. Conkling, corporations heretofore filing amended articles of association who failed in the original articles to express a desire to form co-partnerships, will not be permitted to insert such a clause in the amended articles.

New of the departure for Germany of J. F. Hackfeld, acting imperial consul of that country and acting consul for Norway, was received this morning when Mr. Hackfeld called at the Government building this morning to pay his farewell respects to Governor Frear. He expects to leave Honolulu next Tuesday. No work as to his successor has been received here.

After completing a jury to try the case against James Fisher, accused of smuggling opium into the Territory, the federal district court was adjourned yesterday afternoon to Monday, when the taking of evidence will begin. The jury finally obtained consists of James G. Spencer, A. Hocking, J. P. Kakaiala, H. D. Bowen, William Raposa, J. W. Doyle, Ranney Scott, W. P. Naquin, John O. Evans, Joseph Fernandez, C. T. Littlejohn and D. F. Thrum.

DR. BLUS HAS TROUBLE WITH RAT-CATCHERS

The Honolulu friends of Dr. Rupert Blue, surgeon general of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, are having a good laugh over a story that comes from Washington concerning Dr. Blue's troubles with inventive geniuses.

Some time ago Dr. Blue casually told a newspaper man he was looking for a guaranteed rat trap, which would catch plague-suspected rodents, and intimated that the manufacturer of such a device would get a fat contract.

The next day General Blue's office resembled a hardware store. From all over the country geniuses have deluged him with sample traps, blue-prints, drawings and models of rodent catchers and suggestions.

One inventor submitted plans for a trap which would first imprison the rat, and then dash him against a wall, with fatal results. Drowning, poisoning and electrocution were included in the thousands of suggestions received.

GOVERNOR AND MRS. FREAR TO RECEIVE NEXT MONDAY

BROTHER BERTRAM LONGS FOR HAWAII

"It is already seven years that I left the 'Paradise,' but I have never lost interest in the finest spot of God's earth," so writes Brother G. Bertram, now of St. Louis College, San Antonio, Tex., to Secretary H. P. Wood of the promotion committee.

Brother Bertram was stationed here for twenty-two years and is very well known. He says:

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 20, 1912.
Mr. H. P. Wood, Honolulu, T. H.
My Dear Sir:—I gratefully acknowledge the receipt of the as-sorted folders you mailed me lately. Those publications are neat, interesting, attractive and instructive. I thank you also for your kind note; it proves that you still remember me—by name at least.

It is already seven years that I left the "Paradise" but I have never lost interest in that finest spot of God's earth. By your energetic and intelligent promotion work you have done much to make it known to others. It has been my "home" for 22 consecutive years and I can truly endorse every word you say in its favor.

The folders you sent me answer my purpose at present. Should I ever want more I will remember your kind offer.

With best wishes for your continued success and welfare and with aloha to your chairman, who I know quite well, I remain, my dear sir,
Resp. and gratefully yours,
BRO. G. BERTRAM.

KUHIO WINS VOTES FOR PARTY IN GREAT SPEECH

"If you have confidence in me, then vote for a straight Republican ticket. These men," pointing at Colonel Sam Parker, George F. Renton, J. M. Dowsett, Robert P. Waipa, Andrew Cox, A. L. Castle and George E. Smithies, "are men whom you can trust. The other Republican nominees, who, on account of their business engagements, could not come here today, are equally as good men as those who are soliciting your votes today."

Opening with the above words, Prince Kuhio, Delegate to Congress, made one of the best and most convincing speeches of his life in Kaneohe yesterday afternoon. He, in company with others, and headed by Robert W. Shingle, county treasurer, who went down to Kaneohe to pay off the roadmen, took the trip yesterday afternoon and talked to the men there as they received their wages from the county treasurer. "Bob" Shingle, acting as paymaster of the county and chairman of the open-air political meeting, introduced Prince Kuhio and the other candidates to the electorate of Kaneohe.

Kuhio, according to those who went along in the party, delivered a strong and most convincing speech to the voters there, and at the conclusion of his talk was given rousing and enthusiastic cheers.

One of Kuhio's most telling remarks as far as the Hawaiians were concerned was as follows: "The Republicans planted the tree, nourished it, until it bore fruit, and now the fruit is ripe and you are eating it. Why should you now wish to cut down the tree? This brought a storm of kokuas, and the tree in question will probably bear a number of Republican votes as a consequence. - Hawaiians For Him."

After his speech, the Hawaiians present promised to urge others to vote a straight Republican ticket. They said after the meeting that the Prince has done well while a Delegate in Congress. They also declared they would listen to the advice of their ally and vote for a straight Republican ticket in November.

When the people in Waialeale, Link McCandless' stronghold, heard that Kuhio and the other candidates of the Republican party had arrived in Kaneohe, they immediately mounted their horses and came to the meeting place.

Col. Parker, candidate for mayor, was next introduced by Shingle. Standing before the electorate majestically, and extending his right arm like that of the statue of Kamehameha the Great which stands in front of the Judiciary Building, he spoke out loud and clear. He said that he was ready to administer the duties of the office of mayor, and that if elected he would welcome them in his office. The Hawaiians, cheered and applauded, as they heard old "Kamuela Parker." Some of the old natives, who have worked for the Colonel in Waialeale, declared that he was most hospitable and kind to his workmen on the ranch.

Not "hookano" He Said. "Those who call me 'hookano'—proud,—can not substantiate that statement," said Parker. "Over in Waimea, I have fed hundreds and hundreds of the Hawaiians who worked on the ranch. I have eaten together with them," he concluded.

George E. Smithies, candidate for treasurer, made his maiden speech in Hawaii.

George F. Renton, aspirant for senator, and known by the Hawaiians as "Pueokahi" also made his salutation to the electorate. He said that if elected, he will do what is right, and just.

J. M. Dowsett, also running for senator, was next introduced to the audience. Dowsett, well known to the Hawaiians as the "kiki hana o ka aina,"—son of the soil—referred to his record while a senator in the past. He assured his hearers to do what is right. He, too, was given prolonged applause.

Wm. H. Crawford, who went along with the party, ably acted as Hawaiian interpreter. Today he went along with the Republican party to Hauula, where a large and interesting congregation of the Mormons is being held. The party will return this evening.

Those who went down to Kaneohe yesterday afternoon beside the candidates were R. W. Shingle, Wm. H. Crawford and John H. Wise. They returned in the evening.

PORTUGUESE WILL CELEBRATE FALL OF KINGDOM

The celebration of the second anniversary of the overthrow of the Braganza dynasty, the fall of the Portuguese monarchy, and the establishment of the Republic of Portugal, is being observed today by the Portuguese of Honolulu.

In response to the invitation of A. d. Canavarro, consul general of the Portuguese republic, several hundred Portuguese will attend a dance to-night at Lusitana hall, Alapai and Lunalilo, and several hundred other people, who do not dance, and as many children, will be entertained with motion pictures and short talks on the spacious grounds of the popular society. Major Camara and G. F. Affonso will lend to the dance program, and refreshments will be served during the evening.

Two years ago today Manuel, now ex-King, was driven from Portugal, and, under the leadership of Theophilo Braga, a provincial republican government was set up. Some months later a constitutional convention met and decreed the establishment of the Republic of Portugal, which is today recognized by all world powers. One of the oldest republicans in the country, Manuel d'Arriga, was elected president.

PROF. JAGGAR WANTS LARGER PARK SCHEME

The following synopsis of a speech by Prof. Jaggar on the Kilauea national park scheme, delivered at the Hilo commercial convention, is from the Hawaii Herald:

J. A. Balch delivered an address on the subject of wireless telegraphy, which was very interesting and which was followed by the talk of the evening, by Professor Jaggar, from the Kilauea observatory. The main subject which he took up was the proposed Hawaii National Park. He spoke very strongly against the present plan which was too small to be of any use, according to his view. He stated that there appeared to be a general misapprehension of the effect of a national park upon those owning or holding property within its bounds. Such property, Prof. Jaggar stated, would not be affected in any way but would continue in its present status, save for certain lines drawn on the map. He gave as an instance of this the fact there were ranches within the limits of Yosemite which were conducted without any interference by the Federal authorities and that the great Sequoia Grove was owned by a private individual who might if he saw fit, cut down all the "wonderful trees."

Professor Jaggar wished to see the entire section of Kilauea, Mauna Loa and Hualalai, included in the boundaries, and was especially strong for the taking of the last named mountain, which he stated was one of the most interesting in the world. He also wished to see a national park at Haleakala. When the canal is finished, he stated that under the plan that he had laid out, the Hawaii National

MOVING PICTURES AT PALAMA TONIGHT

At Palama Settlement this evening another entertainment in the way of a moving picture show will be held in the gymnasium at seven-thirty. Several interesting films of travel and industry will be shown, and a general invitation has been issued to all the people of the district to attend.

The past week has been a busy one for the settlement. On last Monday the boys and girls were given instructions in first aid to the injured. On Tuesday a class in clay modeling was held, and on Wednesday all the boys went on a scout game up in the hills. Thursday lessons in dancing were given and on Friday a sketching class was held. Great interest is being taken in these classes by both the boys and the girls. The swimming tank continues to be a great favorite, and the classes in the well equipped gymnasium are in full swing.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO CAPT. PARKER SHOULD BE SHERIFF, SAYS RAWLINS

Attorney of His Personal Knowledge Tells of Bravery and Efficiency of Former Captain of Police During Strikes

"I am mighty glad to see that Robert W. Parker is getting good support for the office of county sheriff. He ought to get enthusiastic support from the Fourth district," commented Attorney W. T. Rawlins this morning in speaking of the political situation.

"Capt. Robert Parker is the best man the people could possibly put in charge of the police department. I have served with him, and I believe I am in a position to know.

"Talk about strikes. Robert Parker has had more serious strike situations to deal with than any other police officer of the territory and he has done the work quietly and with such perfect efficiency that few know of his exceptional ability as a commanding police officer.

"I well recall the time when I was deputy high sheriff and the strike at Lahaina was on. Word came that we should send men to Lahaina. I called up Robert Parker, told him the work in hand, and without a word of comment he proceeded to the duty in hand, got his men together and went to Lahaina, where he met the situation and handled it right. But that is not the whole story. A day or two after Parker left, his wife called me on the phone and asked me to come to the house. I went. Mrs. Parker then asked me if Robert could not come home as their boy was dying. I found that although Capt. Parker knew that his son was very low he had not uttered a word when he believed that his duty as an officer demanded his presence in Lahaina.

That's the true spirit of a patriotic man who understands his duty. As the situation at Lahaina had quieted immediately on the arrival of the police, I sent a wireless and Capt. Parker was ordered to return.

"I believe the people ought to know these things.

"That is not the only instance where Parker has done the efficient, the right and the noble thing. I recall one night when Mr. E. D. Tenney called me up and notified me of a strike at Waialua plantation. I called on Parker as the Captain of Police and in a very short time he had his men assembled and on the way to Waialua. On arrival there the situation looked serious but Parker distributed his men to the best advantage, shut off the Japanese who were coming in from Kahuku way, and in no time at all had conditions in such shape that he had only to leave a comparatively few men on guard.

"There are other and many occasions during the official life of Robert Parker where he has shown courage and marked ability. He has faced bullets and been in tight places that test the nerve of the best of men, and he has never been found wanting.

"Parker has the right make up for proper discipline. He has made good at every point. He is a hard working, right living man. He ought to have enthusiastic support all along the line in the Fourth District, and I have not the slightest doubt that he will get solid support of the Republicans of the Fifth District as well as the votes of many Democrats in that district."

HONOLULU REAL ESTATE OFFERS BARGAINS FOR BUYERS, HE SAYS

F. E. Steere, Back from Tour of Mainland, Is Enthusiastic Over Prospects Here After Comparisons

In the estimation of F. E. Steere of the real estate department of the Henry Waterhouse Trust Co., Ltd., real estate in Honolulu is selling at figures more promising to the buyer than in any other city of the country, or at least that portion of the country which he touched in a very general and pleasant tour.

"Relatively, our prices are lower all along the line, and we compare them with cities where the areas for expansion are unlimited. Here our lands are limited in area and the prospects for the future are without limit," said Mr. Steere in commenting on his observations.

"Take for instance the city of Portland, Oregon, where the growth is steady and more rapidly permanent than many other cities of the Coast, their suburban property is selling at a much higher figure than here in Honolulu. Lots there of smaller size and twenty minutes walk from the street car lines are held and sold at a much higher figure than here in Honolulu, where the lots for home builders are practically on the car line and twenty minutes from the center of town.

"I stopped in many cities along the way from Honolulu to New Bedford and return. Naturally I had an eye on real estate values.

"Next to real estate I was struck with the apparent indifference of most everyone to the result of the national political campaign. Usually at this period of a national campaign you here a calamity howl from one end of the country to the other. I heard nothing of that. The people are all busy, business is good everywhere I went. Even in New Bedford, where the people interested in the great textile mills seem to be confident of the future. The free traders are always pointing to the immense profits of the textile industry. But with the present protection the mills in New Bedford are running on half time. If this is the situation under protection it would naturally be expected that something would happen under a general reduction of the tariff. But all these people are going ahead as if nothing would happen.

"Generally speaking that is the way I found it all over the country. No one seems to be frightened over the prospect of tariff reduction and ruin of the industry.

"Seattle appears to have gone ahead too rapidly or spent too much on municipal improvements. San Francisco is forging ahead. I was especially interested in the development of the business section along and in the general direction of Van Ness Avenue. That is to be a business street. I met Charlie Stanton in San Francisco. He has made good in real estate and bids fair to do better.

"Yes, I feel certain that an increasing number of people are coming to Hawaii. They know where it is and people you meet all along the line remark that a trip to Hawaii is now figured in their definite plans for the future. I noticed the large number of strangers here even after having been away a few months. The record of the renting department shows that people are continually coming in here. I'm blessed if I know where they are coming from or what they are doing, but they are here, they are making a living, some paying rent and some buying homes. It all speaks for the growth of Honolulu and Hawaii in general, and according to all the signs of the times we are merely on the edge of the beginning of our development."

WILL PAY $40,000 FOR PALOLO WATER

The Territory on next Monday will take the final steps in acquiring the Palolo water rights, paying over to the Palolo Land Improvement Company the sum of $40,000 agreed upon a short time ago and receiving the fee simple to about 387 acres of land and title to the water sources.

Assistant Attorney General A. G. Smith today is engaged in drawing the final order of condemnation and making such preparations as are necessary to formally pass out that $40,000 check and receive the deed. There are four or five smaller owners who are thought to have some interest in the water sources, and settlements probably will be made with them next week.

On Palolo Hill a big reservoir, probably the highest in the region, will be built shortly, and the work of connecting the new supply with the city mains is to be rushed to an early completion. Superintendent Marston Campbell, of the board of public works, this morning ordered the advertisement of calls for bids for 14,000 feet of six-inch piping, which he to carry the water to the city mains and to supply the region in the immediate vicinity of Palolo Hill. The addition of the new source will materially relieve the water supply situation in Honolulu, which has threatened to become critical several times during the summer.

Governor Frear received formal notification today from Y. Mori, acting consul for Japan at Honolulu, that he has transferred the office of consulate-general to Saburo Kurusu, eleven days ago.

FORTY FAMILIES WANT TO ADOPT CHILDREN

There are forty more families in Honolulu each willing to adopt some homeless child than there are children in sight for adoption according to a report made by Judge Whitney, of the Juvenile court. This, however, is not taken by the ladies in charge of the Castle Free Kindergarten Association to mean that there are not many children in this city in need of a good home.

At a meeting of the association yesterday morning, the advisability of amending the by-laws was discussed in order to provide for a new committee whose business it will be to look out for such dependent children and the placing of them, through the proper legal channels, in suitable homes.

Articles of incorporation were filed today by the Consolidated Amusement Company, Ltd., which sets its capital stock at $3,000, with a maximum limit of $100,000. The incorporators are G. T. Chong, president, who holds 1498 shares of the stock; J. Alfred Magoon, vice president, holding 1498 shares of stock; Robert McGreer, treasurer, holding one share; John Henry Magoon, secretary, holding one share, and William H. Campbell, holding one share. A TIMELY SUBSCRIPTION.

Waipahu, Oahu, Oct. 4, 1912.
To the Treasurer of the Star-Bulletin Duke Kahanamoku Fund.

Dear Sir:—Please find enclosed P. O. order for five dollars ($5), which you will kindly place to the account of the Duke Kahanamoku fund.

I send this not only as an appreciation of the splendid work he has done in his swimming contests, but also as an appreciation of his gentlemanly and modest demeanor.

Should he be able to take a band of our young Hawaiian swimmers to San Francisco in 1915, to compete in the aquatic contests, I shall feel a pleasure in assisting him.

Though not an admirer of royalty, I certainly must take off my hat to our "Grand Duke," the king of swimmers. Yours very truly,

DR. ELIOT WRITES IMPRESSIONS OF HAWAII

In the following letter to H. P. Wood, secretary of the promotion committee, Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, gives his impressions of Hawaii:

Asticou, Maine, September 12, 1912.

Dear Sir: In reply to your note of August eighth, I am glad to say a few words about the impression Hawaii made on me.

I was there only seven days, but should have been glad to stay a month, so delightful was the climate, so interesting the industries and the extraordinary medley of races. Two days and a half of my seven were spent in visiting the volcano Kilian, with its surging, splashing pit of molten lava. That pit is the most impressive sight I have ever seen; and I suppose it to be unique on the earth of today.

I had time to visit only two of the islands, Oahu and Hawaii, but I should have been glad to visit the other six.

All American tourists who travel to the Pacific coast ought to extend their journey to the Hawaiian islands, unless they have an insuperable objection to ocean travel.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES W. ELIOT.

THE TRUTH ABOUT SPORT
IS NEVER A KNOCK

BOAT CLUBS TO MEET IN MANY CONTESTS

Healan's Challenge Myrtles to Baseball, Tennis, Soccer, Bowling and Handball—May Spin Tops, Too

Those old rivals the Healanis and Myrtles may have forgotten how to sit in a boat by next season. Or, at least, they may have lost interest in rowing as a sport, being weaned away from slide and oar by the delights of dry land pastimes.

It all started with the baseball game in which the Healanis beat the Alameda crew a few days ago. This gave the Blue and White the idea that they could do other things besides row, so they came out with a challenge to the haughty Myrtles for a ball game. The ink on the challenge was hardly dry before Captain Frank Bechert of the Myrtles was "knocking at the door" offering to play for chalk, money or marbles.

Marbles suggested still other possibilities in the line of unexplored sport fields, so the Healanis immediately sat down with Spalding's Athletic Library and Hoyle, and went over the pages to find out what other games existed besides rowing, baseball and marbles. This morning A. T. Longley, the Healanis' official challenger, rang up the sporting editor.

"Hello," said Jack. "Now, about these games that the Myrtle fellows think they can play. Just say that we are ready to give 'em a ball game next Saturday, the 12th; a soccer game on Saturday, the 19th; a bowling match whenever they feel like it, and some tennis whenever they can get a team together; and we'd like to take them on at handball."

"Is that all you can do? Don't you want to try something else while you are about it?" Longley was asked.

"Well," came the answer, "we've got some pretty classy top spinners, and our marble shooters are hard as nails and ready to go the full distance any time. Let the Myrtles go over the list and think something up. We'll meet them more than half way."

One stipulation is made by the Healanis, and that is that only members of both clubs in good standing at this time be allowed to play in any of the contests.

MANOA CUP PLAY FOR TOMORROW

Play for the Manoa cup, the scratch golf trophy of the Oahu Country Club, will open tomorrow with a qualifying round of 36 holes over the Nuuanu course. If there are enough entries, the sixteen best scores will qualify for another 36 holes of medal play the following Sunday.

In addition to the scratch event, a handicap medal competition will be played tomorrow. There is a prize for the best net and the best gross medal for the day. The drawings will be made at 10 a. m.

The match yesterday, in which Secretary Fisher and Delegate Kuhio played against Secretary Knox and Governor Frear, resulted in a win for the former pair by 3 up.

LOCAL MARINES SECOND IN SHOOT

The marine rifle team from Camp Very that went to the Coast a month ago to take part in the division shoot at Bremerton, secured second place, according to advices received here. The men made a splendid showing, no less than four members of the team being medal winners in the individual shoot.

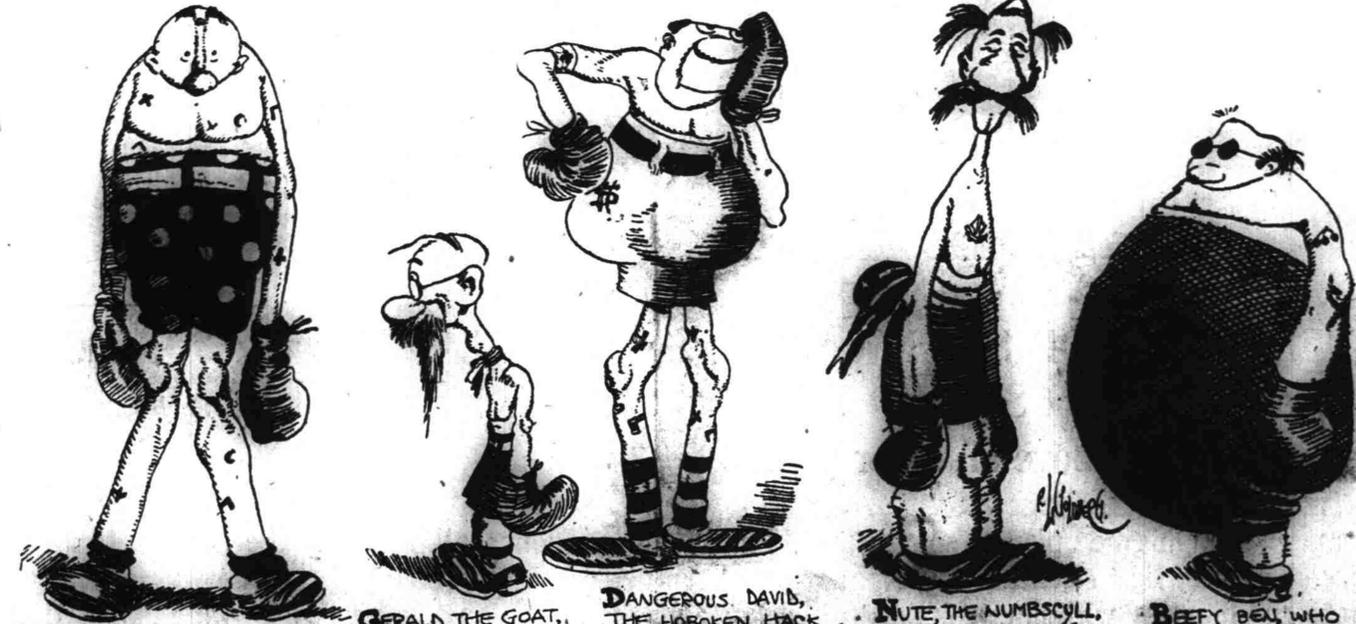

The three teams entered in the team competition represented the Fremont, Mare Island and Honolulu marine barracks. Mare Island won, the Bremerton contingent having to be content with last place on their home range.

The good showing made by the locals was especially creditable, owing to the fact that most of the members of the team were "rookies," while the other teams were made up of experienced marksmen. The Honolulu marines are expected home on the next transport from the Coast.

San Francisco Sportsmen Treat Duke Right Royally

Local Swimmer Made Friends Everywhere, but San Franciscans Outdid Themselves at the Time of His Last Visit There—Was Fortunate in Living With Lew Henderson's People During Stay in Philadelphia

Duke Kahanamoku made a host of friends everywhere he went during his mainland wanderings, but San Francisco seems to have given him an especially warm welcome, and he left there with the understanding that he could cross the Pacific and hang his hat on the Bay City any old time he felt like it.

Most of the time that Duke spent in America was put in at Philadelphia, where he had the good luck to live with Lew G. Henderson's family, and a great deal of his early success is undoubtedly due to the pleasant home surroundings, which enabled him to forget his homesickness, and throw himself heart and soul into the task of perfecting his swimming style.

But it was on the Coast, just before his return, that things were cut loose for Duke's benefit. The papers all gave him plenty of space, and some of the sport writers spread themselves on his past history and future prospects.

The following story about Duke, written by F. J. Mannix, of the San Francisco Bulletin, is of considerable local interest:

This is one instance where a duke comes dangerously near being a fish. It is another instance where a duke isn't a duke, and at the same time is a duke, the difference being merely a matter of upper case and lower case letters. This duke has the distinction of being one of the fewer real dukes not possessed by ducal proprietaries, and yet he is and is not as much a duke as ever was a duke. It is a perplexing sort of a quandary, but the solution of the whole problem in this case lies in the fact that "Duke is a handle—just like Mary or Imogene—for the very distinctive name that follows—here it is—Kahanamoku. Brought together the two form the distinctly euphonious appellation of Duke Kahanamoku, which title is very much respected in swimming circles all over the world, and incidentally serves as the distinguishing moniker for one of the greatest swimmers in this little planet has ever known.

All of which, however, goes by way of prefacing the announcement of a certain set of muscles and the complimentary weakness of another set, but an all round harmonical upbuilding, that renders his weight, according to all appearances, in perfect proportion to his height.

Speaking of the desired game with a league team, Lieutenant Rose said to the sporting editor: "The regiment is now on a hike, and as we will be camped in the vicinity of Shafter Saturday night, it will be an easy matter to get the ball team into Honolulu for a Sunday game. While the Second isn't leading the Schofield Barracks League, it can put up a pretty fair brand of ball, and everyone connected with army baseball is anxious to get a line on the comparative strength of the soldier and civilian teams. We are hoping that after the Oahu League season closes a special series can be arranged between the winners and the winners in the post series. A game now would be in the nature of a try-out, and should provide first-class sport."

He has not much regard for any other method when there is any real work to be done, although at times he uses the "trudgeon" and a number of other systems of similar ilk. The Duke has a way of using his feet altogether new to this part of the globe. Instead of kicking them like most swimmers in an effort to see how much water they can disturb, the Hawaiian Adonis moves them in a sort of propeller fashion, which, as he demonstrated last night, is sufficient to give him more headway without the aid of his arms.

Although the schedule for the Oahu League calls for the above arrangement of games, there's a chance that at the last moment there will be a substitution. This is owing to the fact that the Second Infantry is to be within striking distance of Honolulu tomorrow, and that the baseball team of the regiment is more than anxious to get a crack at one of the league teams. It's a chance that doesn't come around very often, and a strong effort is being made to card the game as a special feature.

Sometimes this afternoon Manager Marcellino of the Oahu League will have a final phone conference with Lieutenant Rose, baseball officer of the Second, and if it is any way possible the Portuguese will be pressed into service to play the soldiers. This will mean the postponement of the Star-Asahi game, which will suit the former team right down to the ground.

Speaking of the desired game with a league team, Lieutenant Rose said to the sporting editor:

Suicide Of Wife Forecasts The End Of Champion Jack Johnson

When Mrs. Etta Johnson, the white wife of Champion Jack Johnson, fired a bullet into her brain in Chicago, she not only ended her own life, but also wrecked that of her negro husband. No matter what others may say, Johnson was truly in love with the unfortunate creature who forsook white society to marry him, only to be shunned by both her own race and negro men and women as well. Johnson will never recover from the shock, so he might as well stick to his original intention and quit the ring for good and let the others fight it out for the title.

At the inquest Johnson declared that his wife was temporarily insane when she shot herself, and that he himself had suffered from anervous breakdown after the Jeffries fight from the heat and worry. In fact, the strain was so great that, according to Johnson's own words, he lost his noodle and attempted to kill himself, as his wife had done on several occasions before she succeeded in Chicago.

"I've lost a good pal, and she is the only one that I love," Johnson cried as he grasped the hand of his wife in the Chicago hospital, with the doctors working over her, trying to strengthen the last thread of life. To many these words do not mean anything, but if Johnson really loved the poor soul who sacrificed her life for him then it is going to be an awful job for Jack to get over the tragedy. Losing your pal is a blow that no one can forget. Some may say that it is a good thing for the strange combination to be broken up. Perhaps this may be true. But that does not alter the fact that a human being has been separated from his pal, and when you stop to consider what this means even among poor dumb animals it looks as if Jack Johnson's days are over as a fighter.

While the majority of persons who read of the suicide of Mrs. Johnson look upon it as a good thing for the community, there are others who take a charitable view of it and agree with the mother of the dead woman that Mrs. Johnson was insane. How anyone in her right mind could willfully make such a sacrifice as this woman is beyond reason. It is regarded by many as a black mark against a woman, no matter how good or bad she may be, to marry a prizefighter, but for a white woman to tie herself up for life with one of the opposite race is something that can not be explained by even those who have made a deep study of such subjects. Johnson was undoubtedly good to the woman and spent a fortune on her to bring about happiness for her, but she died the last thread of life. To many these words do not mean anything, but if Johnson really loved the poor soul who sacrificed her life for him then it is going to be an awful job for Jack

Germany expects to outdo the world in the Olympic games in 1916. It will have a stadium almost as big as that of Athens, where the first revival was held in 1896, and the field proper is held to be twice the size of that at Stockholm.

The place has been picked and the next Olympic games will be held at Grestenwald, a suburb of Berlin, about ten kilometers from the center of the city. The place is, perhaps, not the most accessible in the world, but the beauty of the location will make up for many other shortcomings.

The most noticeable feature in which it will differ from the stadium at Shepherd's Bush, London, is that the swimming tank will not be inside the enclosing building. This is intended to give the stadium a more unbroken appearance. The inside track of the two that encircle the German Stadium is for running and will be 400 meters (437 yards) long, the outer one is for cycle races and will be 666 2/3 meters (729 yards) in length.

About twenty small bedrooms will be provided for the use of those who do their training either so early in the morning or so late at night that they do not wish to have to make the journey from or to the city. The stadium will seat about 18,000 and there will also be standing room for 12,000. The seats will be open to the sky.—St. Louis Republic.

LOCAL PIGSKIN CHASERS ON THE JOB

Football Season Will Be in Full Swing Before Long — Kam Will Not Play American Game This Year—Rule Revision

By GUARD CENTER.
The football bee is buzzing loudly on all the local campuses just now, and before the next week rolls by Punahou, High and College of Hawaii will be in the game in earnest. There will be no football at Kamehameha this year, all the attention of the students being given to soccer. Last season the Kamsters didn't go in very hard for the American game, a few games being played between the seniors and a picked team from the other classes, but the school did not take part against the other three local institutions.

At the beginning of every football season large numbers of what are termed "green candidates" report to the coaches or captains. These players hardly know the difference between a center and a back, while they are entirely ignorant of the rules. Even experienced players sometimes are not versed in the code thoroughly and when delicate points come up in actual play are unable to interpret the rule which governs the play. There are many cases on record where games have been lost through ignorance of the rules. So one of the first things which a candidate should do is to learn the code thoroughly.

Captains and coaches of preparatory school teams should devote fifteen or thirty minutes to a quiz of the rules each day. This is essential at the start of the season. As the rules have been changed so much in the last six years, too much stress can not be laid upon this point.

Changes in Brief.
In this connection it is important to state the changes which were made in the code by the rules committee at its annual meeting last winter. The alterations should improve the game. They are: (1) to make it easier for the offensive teams to gain ground and they will go a long way toward equalizing the offense and defense.

Two years ago the committee passed a clause forbidding the men with the ball to be pushed or pulled. This was done to discourage the mass play and its consequent piling up. With only three attempts to make the required distance, ten yards, it did not seem fair for one man to try to make ground through an opposing line, when the entire defensive eleven players could either stop or rush him back. Even in the old game it was a frequent sight to see two evenly matched teams meet in a mass play with neither side having an advantage, whereas a few pounds of weight on either side would have resulted in a loss or gain for the offensive eleven.

What healthy Nerves Mean to You.

A strong vigorous nervous system means health, strength and ability to endure hardship and also to enjoy the full pleasures of life.

The man with healthy nerves accomplishes greater tasks with less fatigue. He has a clear eye, an active brain and a sound body. He is enabled to think, to make his best, to resist the temptations of nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, nervous debility, either mental or physical, whose condition is one of irritable weakness, will find ready relief and cure in the peculiar oriental properties of

The woman with healthy nerves is never listless, weak or hopeless, she is not irritable, she never suffers from hysteria, she has a reserved surplus of endurance. Healthy nerves will prevent the sleepless mother, although worn with care and nursing, from a "break down" caused by her double or treble duty.

All men and women who suffer from those forms of nervousness—known as Neurasthenia—who have "gone to pieces," who lack energy, who have insomnia, who have succumbed to nervous prostration, or nervous exhaustion, either mental or physical, whose condition is one of irritable weakness, will find ready relief and cure in the peculiar oriental properties of

WORLD IS STIRRED BY KOREAN "CONSPIRACY CASE"

Vigorous Charges Made That American And Christian Converts Have Been Grossly Mal-treated By Japanese

As week after week in the trial of the alleged Korean conspirators goes by, international interest becomes deeper. From Seoul, where the trial is in progress, come the most sensational reports, widely differing as to the facts they present. The New York Herald, which has been for many years an authority on Korean affairs, is declaring to the world that Japan is wrong in her claims of a conspiracy, and the Herald's reports have stirred statesmen all over the world.

A good statement of the whole affair is given by the Herald's correspondent, who writes from Seoul as follows: Of such world-wide importance are the issues created by the remarkable treatment of American citizens and the wholesale charges of torture in the course of the trial in Seoul that the legal issues presented by this conspiracy case become of secondary interest. And yet for an understanding of the relevancy of these several issues, if for nothing else, a succinct review of the case as made out by the police and the public prosecutor and presented in court is necessary.

Governor General Terauchi took two trips to the north—one in December, 1910, the other early in November, 1911. In the official summary of the case given out for publication a few days before the trial there occurred an inextricable mixing of occurrences bearing upon these two visits, but at the hearing before the court it was developed that the allegations against the prisoners, with one exception, had to do with the Governor General's 1910 trip.

On his way to inspect a newly opened section of railway General Terauchi stopped at Ping Yang, Syon Chun and other stations, and, as is the practice in Japan, the students of various schools, along with local officials and celebrities, were lined up along the station platform to greet the distinguished visitor. In Korea, as in Japan, all railway stations, even the smallest, are enclosed and closely guarded by the police. Nobody can obtain admission unless he has a railway ticket or a "platform" ticket, the sale of these to persons going to welcome or to speed the departures of friends adding materially to the railway revenues.

Nothing of a sensational character, no untoward happening of any kind, nothing in the shape even of unfriendliness, occurred at any of the stations at which the Governor General stopped, or anywhere else.

At the stations he returned the greetings of officials, walked the length of the platform, returning the bows of the greeters, shook hands with foreigners when any were present, and usually addressed a few remarks to the students.

In October of the next year, ten months later, about forty of the teachers and students of Hugh O'Neill Jr. Academy, at Syon Chun, were arrested and taken to Seoul. It was stated by the authorities that these men and boys were being detained merely as witnesses. A few weeks later the Governor General visited Syon Chun on his second trip north. This time, as before, he greeted the students and took occasion to compliment the principal of the academy, the Rev. G. S. McCune, upon the fine showing made by the students and the excellent work of the institution.

Basis of the Case. Those first arrests, it soon developed, were the precursors of a large number of others. Just how many men have been in toils is not clear. A few were released after being examined by the police; nine against whom there was apparently no testimony were banished under a year's sentence; 123 were finally placed on trial.

The charge against these men is that they were involved in a conspiracy to assassinate the Governor General. The case is based upon their supposed membership in or connection with a society known as the Sin Min Hoi, or New People's Society.

Before annexation, at a time when Japan was giving Koreans assurance that their country was independent and that there was no possible intention to incorporate it in the Empire of Japan, there existed here an organization known as the Young Men's Friendship Society. Later, also before annexation, the name was changed to the New People's Society.

The object of the society, as explained by the promoters and as testified in open court, was mutual help. The idea back of its organization seems to have been to create an association along the lines of the Y. M. C. A., which does such excellent work in Korea, but whose membership is confined to Christians. The promoters of the New People's Society contemplated an association of somewhat the same general character in which any young Korean, Christian or non-Christian, might be a member.

They also admit that one of the aims of the society was to instill patriotism in the hearts of the Korean youth.

At the time of its organization Prince Ito was Resident General. It was part of his policy to hold out to Koreans the prospect of real independence as soon as their country's government had been properly reshaped under the beneficent direction of their "best friend," Japan. The suggestion that Japan had any intention of annexing their country was declared to be merely the invention of the wicked New York Herald.

With these assurances, the promoters of the New People's Society felt it certainly no crime to incorporate love of country among the cardinal purposes of the society.

So far as known, the society never amounted to much. Its membership was never large, nor is there any proof of its existence after annexation. If it had amounted to anything the fact would have been of common knowledge; these things are never kept secret for long in Oriental countries.

The theory of the prosecution, as disclosed in the trial, is that this New People's Society did continue to exist and that it was in reality an Assassination League. As Presiding Judge Tsukuhara put it to a witness, Pyen In-Syo, who had denied membership in the society and who said he knew nothing about its objects:

"Yes you do. You know its object very well. It is to assassinate high officials. The headquarters of the society are at San Francisco, where it publishes two newspapers. There is another organ of the party published in Hawaii, while the society has a branch at Vladivostok. In Korea the affairs of the society have been managed by Baron Yun, Yang Ki-Tak, An Ta-Kuk and Kil Chin-Hyong. You were the man in charge of the branch at Ping Yang. You know all this."

Deny Membership. This witness and many others said they had never been members of any such society and knew nothing about it. Baron Yun testified that he was the founder of the Young Men's Friendship Society, whose purpose was to arouse Korean youths to love their country, "and with this purpose we published a magazine in which we put the pictures of famous people and wrote articles upon education." The name of the society had subsequently been changed, but not the purpose.

"Was there not the purpose of restoring your country?" the Judge asked.

"At that time the Kingdom of Korea existed," was the reply, "and it was my duty to inspire the minds of Korean youth with the idea of loving their country. In carrying out the purposes of the society I did only this."

Baron Yun denied that the society had any such purpose of assassination or that he had ever heard of assassination discussed. His testimony shows that with the annexation he accepted the inevitable and used his influence to induce all others with whom he came in contact to do the same.

"You must have been indignant at the annexation being carried out," interjected the court. "Did you not form a plan to restore Korean national rights?"

"I should never have found myself in this court had I had power at that time to formulate a plan to successfully resist the authority assumed by Japan over my native country," was Baron Yun's prompt reply. "But, he added, 'I know it was useless.'"

The establishment of a military school in what Koreans call West Dan Do, which is across the border in China, forms the other court in the indictment against the New People's Society.

Such a plan did exist. The man who originated it is now wearing the garb of a convict for the crime of having thought of the idea. He is Yang Ki-Tak, once editor of the Korean edition of the Daily News, which, during the period of the "protectorate," was more than once a thorn in the flesh to Japanese officials.

When questioned by the Court about this project, Mr. Yang said:

"Why, yes. The establishing of a military school was a new plan which I conceived on the next day after annexation. The convict garb which I now wear is in answer to this."

The case of the prosecution as this is made out in the questions to which the prisoners gave assent—they declare under torture—in the police examination assumes the leaders of the "conspiracy" to be Baron Yun, Yang Ki-Tak and four others—Im, An, Ok and Yi. These men are charged with having held frequent meetings at Im's house in Seoul at which plans for assassination were made. All the men concerned deny that there ever were such meetings.

Baron Yun, Mr. Yang and several others were trustees of a patriotic fund raised, before annexation, by popular subscription. They held several meetings, always at the Y. M. C. A., to determine upon the final disposition of this fund whose raison d'être ceased to exist with annexation. It was one of those funds raised by small contributions. Some had been returned to the subscribers, but as there was no way of reaching the others, the trustees proposed to devote it to some charitable work. At one time it was decided to give a portion to the Y. M. C. A. as a permanent fund, the interest on which could be used, but with provision for return of such portions of the principal as might be called for by subscribers. Subsequently the Japanese took the fund for an orphanage—a good work. The points at issue.

It is said that these alleged secret meetings were held at Im's house in Seoul, three dates being given. The record of the police examination shows that a servant of Im's testified that such meetings had been held and gave as the dates September 10, November 16 and December 3, 1910.

This witness was not brought into the court, though Im requested that he be brought. Im said that this servant was an ignorant man, sixty years old, who could remember nothing so far as two years back, and that if he was brought into court he would not be able to identify one of the men other than himself.

The only other "witness" on this point before the police was Kang, a man who was in Baron Yun's employ after the latter's arrest. Kang has not been produced in court. All efforts to ascertain his whereabouts have proved futile. All that is known about Kang is that he went to the prison frequently in connection with having Baron Yun's meals sent to him. One day the prison doors opened for Kang and then closed on him, and he has not been seen or heard from since. There are rumors that from man's hip was twisted out of joint by the gentle questioning of the police examiners, but in his absence there is no possibility of establishing the truth or the falsity of this rumor.

The police examiner reports to the court that Kang confirmed the evidence of Im's ignorant old servant. He is not produced in the court by the prosecution, and the defense could not, of course, produce him. Baron Yun has fully established by documentary proof that he was in his home city, Songdo, on each of the three dates named.

Yang Ki-Tak was asked about one of these presumed meetings, the month but not the day being given. He asked what day it was supposed to have been.

"In September," responded the

"But was there no day?" asked Yang.

"No date," was the Court's reply. "Since there was no such meeting there, probably was no date!" replied Mr. Yang with a laugh.

Most of the men arrested belong to the north, at Ping Yang, Syon Chun and near these two places.

The theory of the prosecution makes the six men named the leaders of the plot. It is necessary to find some connecting link between these men at Seoul and the preachers, teachers, students and others up north. The prosecution seeks to show that An and Yi served in this capacity. Not only is this denied by all the defendants, but both of these men furnish testimony that seems to prove alibis.

As evidence that there was a plot against General Terauchi's life the prosecution said these conspirators, numbering in all, including those on trial and those released and banished, about one hundred and fifty, were gathered at the Syon Chun, Ping Yang, Shung Tu, Kwak San and New Wiliu railway stations, armed with pistols and knives.

Kim, The Insane. One witness, named Kim, who has generally been regarded as insane, testified that he had bought twenty-five pistols at Mukden and had subsequently sold them at Antung. In all the so-called testimony this is the only tangible reference to pistols in any quantity.

This Kim deserves a letter to himself. It is sufficient here to state that his testimony reads like that of a man suffering from paranoia, who, after the assassination of Prince Ito, felt it was up to him to do something big. He talked about going to Europe to kill the "president of the Hague tribunal," but being without money and not relishing a tramp through Siberia and across Europe, he did nothing.

Kim's story was so rambling and as conflicting that even the Judge upbraided him for his manifest inconsistencies. As it stands, it is difficult to see how any court could accept this man's testimony as of any value whatever.

There is no testimony to corroborate his statement that he bought twenty-five pistols at Mukden or that he ever had twenty-five pistols. The other Koreans, despite the grave character of the charges against them, treated Kim as a joke. His testimony, in so far as it involved anybody but himself, was pronounced a lie. Although his role was that of star performer in the prosecution, he repudiated in court most of the statements he had made in the police examination and before the Procurator.

Twenty-five pistols for one hundred and fifty men spells pretty long division. There is much talk in the police statement of many revolvers being handed over to missionaries to be hidden, but no attempt to show how other Koreans had secured pistols or where. Under the law no Korean is permitted to have a gun or a pistol. Of such flimsy stuff is this case, as presented to the Court, made. "Confessions," openly repudiated in court, with charges of birth under torture furnish the only plausible explanation for their existence. On no essential point is there any effort to present corroborative evidence.

There is no pretense that there was any attempt upon the life of the Governor General. There is no claim that there was untoward happening of any kind upon his visits at any of these places.

A thinner fabric than that presented by the prosecution could hardly be imagined. There is Crazy Kim, who repudiates himself at every turn, save in so far as his testimony involves himself, in insane desire to do something "big" and get his name before the world as an, the assassin of Prince Ito, did. His dream of going to Europe to kill the president of the Hague tribunal reveals the character and trend of his mind. Out of such a brain anything might come.

Then there are the "confessions." I imagine before the last is heard of this case the Japanese authorities concerned will be as ready to repudiate these "confessions" as the men who made them.

BIG BILL HELPS LITTLE BILL IN BIG BROTHER MOVEMENT

Work Which Judge Whitney Originated in Honolulu Is Having Great Results for Boys Who Are Aided

Little Bill's father was drunk. He had been out of a job for several days and now he stood in the doorway and profanely swore to kill the boy if he ever entered the place again.

Little Bill stumbled down the three flights of stairs and out into the night. It was 11 o'clock, and raining hard. He wandered along a couple of blocks toward the waterfront and drifted into a cellar where a gang of young toughs were grouped around a dim light. He had never slept in a room with a window in it, so it didn't seem so bad.

The next morning he went down to a wharf where some boys were swimming and stole a coat and a pair of shoes that one of the swimmers had stowed away in a convenient box. He already had trousers and a shirt. The gang in the cellar had shared their breakfast with him—some pastry from a Japanese bakery. Before noon Bill had "swiped" a chicken from a pake butcher shop and had sold it. With the 40 cents that proceeded he took the gang to the movies.

Bill couldn't picture anything in the future worse than the past, so he was the acknowledged leader of one of the toughest gangs in Honolulu.

One day Bill made a gambling device out of a soy tub head. The surface was divided into a dozen compartments each containing a prize such as a piece of gum, chocolate or candy. In the center was an indicator that was spun for a nickel. With this country cousin to a roulette wheel Bill was making money, when dat fatigot cop pinched him," he explained, when he landed in the Juvenile Court.

Bill is Paroled.

"Good morning William" said the Judge, kindly, as he reached out and shook hands. That settled Bill. His blue eyes twinkled and he smiled a broad and infectious smile and told the truth. Then it was that Bill was paroled in care of the court investigator for the Big Brother Movement.

The following Sunday a business man—a banker—left the University Club where he had dined and went to find little Bill. He had been appalled by his Big Brother, and it was going to be his duty to make his acquaintance and see what he could do for him.

Having reached the neighborhood, he entered the back door of a pool shop, and the sight of the carefully groomed man caused momentary panic among a dozen loafers within. They were relieved when they found that all he wanted was little Bill, who was next door.

Bill was expecting a big brother, but he didn't know he was going to be "one o' dem swell guys." However, he rose to the emergency, invited him to sit down on the only chair, and, perching on a soap box, told his story.

The business man decided that a visit to the father would be advisable. Bill agreed to go, and together they climbed the stairs of the tenement through stifling air heavy with gas and other deadly odors. At the door they were met by a half-clad brute who informed them that Bill's mother had died three weeks before of tuberculosis.

Rejected By Father.

"He can't come back here to live!" growled the brute, pointing to Bill. "I ain't got nothin' to do with him!"

"You're his father, aren't you?" ventured the businessman.

"Naw! I ain't his father."

Little Bill gasped. "Then, who is?"

"You ain't got no father! You never had none!"

The business man reached for the grimy little hand of Bill and through that lightened grip sympathy flowed straight to his little heart, and the Big Brother's friendship was sealed.

"Come on, Bill," he said, "let's go."

The next afternoon Bill went to the office of his new-found friend to start things off. Things went along well and he went out of the office invited to dine at a palatial Waikiki residence the following Thursday.

Little Bill did his best for the occasion. His hair was plastered down, he had greased his shoes with a pork rind and had washed out a handkerchief which was spread over his torn and soiled little shirt front. There was a strong odor of perfume, which the banker remarked on much to Bill's delight.

"Gee, ain't it great!" said he. "I got it at a pake store for five cents."

A few days later Big Brother fitted Bill out with a new suit of clothes, got him a job where he earned $3.50 a week, and helped him to a better boarding place.

There was trouble. "De kids" didn't like Bills new togs, and called him a sissy, whereupon he called out the gang and cleaned up the maligners. So Bill landed in the Juvenile Court again, but Big Brother understood and straightened things out. Then he took Bill for a ride in his automobile, whereupon Bill solemnly promised to never again shy a tin can or a rock at a private conveyance.

Church and Play.

Bill always spent Sundays with his big brother. They went to church in the morning, where the red carpet in the aisles made a big hit. In the afternoon they played baseball. Bill was given a membership ticket to the Y. M. C. A., which entitled him to the use of the gymnasium. All this time Bill was not forgetting "de gang."

They were still loyal, and in some mysterious way each was given a big brother. Bill has always remained their leader, only instead of being in the street and the terror of the police, they are orderly, well-behaved boys, all on the road to prosperity and useful lives.

During the vacation months Bill and his followers were taken to a summer camp on one of the other islands.

All this was some time ago. Bill went to night school and learned to speak correct English. He read nearly all the books in Big Brother's library—history, fiction and philosophy. The business man got him a new job with a real estate firm, where they gave him bigger wages. They liked him and raised his salary. Then raised it again. Bill took pride in his clothes—he wanted to look like Big Brother. Now there is no better dressed young business man in town.

Paid Big Brother.

Of course, Big Brother had given him a little money when he was first starting, so piece out his wages, but Bill kept track of every cent and paid it all back. Bill lives at a good address, where he has a clean room of his own, and the use of a shower bath. He is ambitious and works hard. His Big Brother predicts that some day he will be one of the big business men of Honolulu. Bill was saved with just a little effort at the right time.

This is only one of the hundreds of instances in which unfortunate boys have been made law-abiding and happy by means of the Big Brother Movement. The idea originated with Ernest K. Coulter, of New York City, who, from its beginning in 1902 until January of this year was clerk of the Children's Court in that city. During that time 100,000 children came under his observation.

The movement was introduced into Honolulu a year and a half ago by Judge Whitney of the Juvenile court. The Elks, St. Andrew's Brotherhood and Men's league at once became interested in it. Each of these organizations had committees of men who had expressed a desire to act as Big Brothers; John Hughes being chairman of the Elks' committee, George Davies of the St. Andrew's committee, and Spencer Bowen of the Men's League. The plan was to have the Judge appoint Big Brothers for any boys who came before his court whom he deemed worthy of the help.

Eighteen Big Brothers.

The movement started with a big rush in this city as today there are about eighteen men acting as Big Brothers. Nevertheless, even if the movement has not got out somewhat, there were at least eighteen boys looked out for and put on the right track.

Take the case of a young fellow here not long ago who had a good position. He was under the watchful eye of a Big Brother, but one day he had some trouble with his boss, and his boss kicked him out of the position. The Big Brother went at once and had a long talk with the boy and also with his boss, and in the end the boy got his job back and is in the same place today making good.

Made Him Work.

Then there was a boy who was not yet fourteen years old. He was the leader of a gang of toughs at Kalia. His family was in a poor financial condition and needed the boy's earnings to go toward the support of the family. But he would not go to work. This boy also had a Big Brother, and as soon as he heard of this he went out, looked the boy up, got him a job and literally forced him to go to work.

A young Portuguese boy, apparently good for nothing, was up before the Juvenile Court one day for some minor offense. The Judge, thinking that there was some good in the lad, had a big brother appointed for him. The big brother secured a position for the boy, and today he is employed by one of the larger island firms and is making good in every way.

All of these instances go to show the purpose of the movement and the real good it does. If a man believes that a boy in the open is better than a boy in jail, he is in sympathy with the Big Brothers. If he believes that a boy unaided cannot overcome the tendency of unfortunate environment, or be happy and good without any of the things that make happiness and goodness, he concurs in the Big Brother Platform.

700 in New York.

Today there are over 700 Big Brothers in the city of New York. Mr. Coulter once said:

"I have seen twenty Big Brothers, busy New York merchants, in a gymnasium at one time, boxing with their little brothers, so busy dodging upper-cuts and solar plexus blows that they didn't have time to think of their business."

"Little money is required to be the Big Brother of some little chap who seemingly has no show in life, but no philanthropy in the world results in so much good with so small an expenditure of money."

"The Big Brother Movement has become so popular that 106 cities have corresponded with headquarters concerning it, and it is in working order in thirty of them, including Honolulu. The Elks, too, have taken it up, and that means that it will spread rapidly."

CADILLAC LEADS IN MAGAZINE ANALYSIS

How many of your neighbors own automobiles, and how much did they pay for them? What kind of cars are they?

Such questions are not always prompted by idle curiosity. They can be asked for the purpose of discovering commercial facts that have a broad and illuminating significance. In addition to proving the extraordinary growth of the industry the results generally contain several other real surprises.

The Literary Digest has been asking questions along this line recently and the answers are highly interesting. It has been discovered, for example, that out of its 265,000 subscribers 102,695 own motor cars, or about 38 per cent, and the investment in these cars, at an average price of $2291, amounts to $249,000,000.

The data upon which these figures were based was secured in the following manner: Letters asking if the recipient owned a car and, if so, what make, were mailed to 11,438 people in thirteen typical cities and two suburban and country districts. Such cities as Cleveland, Atlanta, Springfield, O.; Kingston, N. Y.; Kansas City, Mo., and Dallas, Tex., were included. It was found from these answers that 3085 owned cars at an average price of $2391. These cars included 181 makes and each brand was represented by from one to 198 cars, the latter figure, the highest, belonging to the Cadillac, while one other Detroit make, a low-priced car, passed the 150 mark, and five Michigan cars passed the 100 mark. Only one car made outside of Michigan had more than 100 answers in the tabulation and it was below 150.

If answers received from the 70 per cent of 11,438 letters show 3085 cars, answers from 265,000, the total circulation, it was estimated would show 102,695 cars owned, and the grand total of dollars is also easily ascertained. Likewise, according to this percentage table, if the Cadillac gets 198, the highest number out of 11,438, it would get 4554 out of the 265,000, while its nearest competitor would get 4002.

RENO ROOSTERS MUST KEEP QUIET IN THE EARLY MORNING HOURS

RENO, Nev., Sept. 36.—The death knell of the Reno rooster will be sounded if the city ordinance which the opponents of chancier have drawn up and will present to the city council at its next meeting is passed. The citizens of Reno who are opposed to barking dogs and crowing cocks have refused to give up their fight against these alleged nuisances, and this is the ordinance they will present for the consideration of the council:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, as owner or keeper to harbor, maintain or keep, any dog, chicken, game cock, rooster, or any other animal or fowl, within the corporate limits of the city of Reno which shall, by barking, crowing or otherwise, disturb the peace or quiet of any person, family or neighborhood, within the corporate limits of the city of Reno, and any person in charge or control of any such animal or fowl which shall disturb the peace and quiet of any person, family or neighborhood, as in this ordinance contained, shall be deemed guilty of a violation thereof.

Section 2. Any person found guilty of the violation of this ordinance shall be punished by fine of not more than $100 and in default of the payment of said fine may be incarcerated in the city jail of the city of Reno, one day for every two dollars of said fine remaining unpaid.

PROFESSIONAL WJNE-TASTERS

Of the list of strange callings followed by women that of wine tasting is one of the most curious and lucrative. As a matter of fact, Mlle. Collinere, whose services are in great demand in France, Germany and Italy as a wine taster, is said to make an income of about £5000 a year, many firms employing her for regular work and frequently for special duty.

Only half a dozen women wine tasters have been known to history, the most renowned of these being the wife of a famous wine merchant, Mme. Pommery, who died in Paris twelve years ago, and Signora Sousa, who has a great reputation in Spain on account of her judgment and knowledge of wine.

Wine tasters, it appears, are born, not made, and must possess the gift of a rare and delicate palate. To this, of course, must be added a knowledge of fine wine. Mlle. Collinere's taste is so fine and her knowledge of wine such that she can discern from the first taste of a wine just where the grapes grew from which it was made, whether they were raised in California or in the vineyards of France, Germany or elsewhere. She can easily detect adulteration of any sort, or if there is a blend, and of which wines, and can tell the age of a wine almost to a day. As a matter of fact, there are no secrets that a bottle of wine can withhold from this remarkable French woman once she has had a spoonful of it in her mouth.

She does not swallow the wine. In fact, says Temperance, she is a teetotaler, and if she were to drink wine would lose her subtle magic of taste. Furthermore, she is obliged to take the greatest care of her health. She must be well in order to do her work, for her sense loses its cunning when she gets out of health.

AUTO IDEAS HAVE CHANGED, SAYS VON HAMM

"When you look back a few years, it's wonderful what changes of construction have been made in automobiles—and likewise what remarkable changes of opinion there have been in that time regarding the merits of some of them," said Mr. C. C. von Hamm in discussing the new season's models the other day.

"Take the question of rear axle design. The Stevens-Duryea Company put out the first powerful six-cylinder car built in this country in 1904—in fact, it was the first to actually market a six-cylinder car here. When they saw that it was built with a shaft drive and a full floating rear axle, a lot of the wise ones held up their hands. There was a pretty lively discussion regarding the merits of 'chain vs. shaft drive,' and most of the sages were sure that the chain drive was the only thing for a large car."

"But as with every other feature that J. Frank Duryea has originated on the Stevens-Duryea cars, he knew he was right about the full floating axle before it was adopted, and, in keeping with other refinements, its construction has been improved from year to year," Mr. von Hamm continued.

"All connections right from the crankshaft to the differential are either square, or square and tapered joints. The unit housing is designed to carry the entire load, so that in the Stevens-Duryea full floating axle, no strain other than that of transmitting the power is imposed on the shafts of the axle.

"Exclusive features of construction that distinguished the Stevens-Duryea design from the conventional type of axle are the forging of the pinion gear integral with the driving shaft and the forging of the driving flanges of the floating axle integral with the axles—of which there is one

BUSINESS BRISK IN THE AUTO TRADE DURING THE LAST WEEK

The von Hamm-Young Co. this week reports the sale of seven automobiles, amongst which are included Packards, Cadillacs, Overlands and Buicks.

George F. Renton, manager of Ewa plantation, took delivery of a fine new 6-cylinder, 7-passenger 1913 model touring car.

James Baker of the Young Hotel automobile stand took delivery of a 7-passenger, 4-cylinder Packard touring car, which he is to operate in the rent service on the Young Hotel automobile stand.

James Sakai of Kohala, Hawaii, took delivery of an Overland light delivery truck.

The Nawiliwili Garage of Nawiliwili, Kauai, took delivery of a fine Buick combination wagonette and express truck, which is designed to haul either a ton of freight or twelve passengers.

This type of truck is becoming exceedingly popular, as two more of these were delivered this week for passenger service on this island, being purchased by S. D. Kiyohara and U. Kawahara. One of these trucks is to be operated between Honolulu and Heela and the other between Honolulu and Moanalua.

The von Hamm-Young Co. this week received another shipment of the popular Cadillac touring cars, which were immediately delivered to prominent Honolulu people who were among the first in line to give their orders for these new and popular cars.

Great interest is being manifested in the new Cadillacs, and bookings are being made every day for immediate delivery. The new cars are more than was expected of them in every way, shape and fashion, and cutting rings around many other makes of cars in the same class. Many stunts are being performed with the great hill-climbing qualities of the new Cadillac, and the von Hamm-Young Company, through its demonstrations, has made several such Cadillacs to be delivered on the island.

The von Hamm-Young Company expects a shipment of two of the new 1913 model Oakland touring cars to arrive first of the week. The Oakland cars are fast becoming very popular over the Territory, and wonderful reports of these cars are being brought from the mainland by every steamer.

MISS EMMALINE MAGOON

AND MRS. George Cooke of Honolulu and Miss Alice Cooke were the guests of honor at a dance at the Country Club last evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooke. Never has the clubhouse been more beautifully decorated than on this occasion. The color scheme was pink and blue and was developed with pink and blue draperies and table of the same shades. The flowers were artistically arranged throughout the hall, where dancing ensued. Tulle was deftly draped in the corners and around the pillars, and, with the flowers, above the heads of the dancers. The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. George Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. George Cooke and Miss Alice Cooke. The guests were:

Mrs. Frank Dillingham's Sewing Tea.
Mrs. Frank Dillingham entertained at an informal sewing tea on Tuesday afternoon at her home in Manoa valley. After devoting the afternoon to sewing, delightful refreshments were served. The guests were: Mrs. Alexander Lindsay, Mrs. Spencer Bowen, Mrs. Malcolm McIntyre, Mrs. C. L. Hemeway, Miss Lyon, Mrs. Arthur Berg, Mrs. Kenneth Brown, Mrs. Louis Warren, Mrs. Loomis, Mrs. Andrade and Mrs. Robert S. Norris.

Miss Mary von Holt's Luncheon.
Miss Mary von Holt was hostess at a luncheon on Thursday for Miss Beatrice Holsworth. The table centerpiece was an attractive arrangement of dainty pink roses. Covers were laid for eighteen.

Miss Geraldine Neumann Entertained.
On Tuesday evening Miss Violet Stover gave a dinner in compliment to Miss Geraldine Neumann, who left for the coast in the Sonoma yesterday. The color scheme for the decoration was red and was developed with red poinciana regia. Covers were laid for Miss Geraldine Neumann, Miss Jessie Kennedy, Miss Muriel Howatt, Miss Lady Macfarlane, Miss Wilhelmina Tenney, Miss Eloise Wichman, Mrs. W. F. Wichman and Miss Violet Stover.

Mrs. A. G. M. Robertson's Pol Supper.
Mr. and Mrs. Knowles were the complimented guests at an elaborate pol supper on Wednesday evening given by Judge and Mrs. A. G. M. Robertson. The long table was covered with greens interspersed with yellow coveopsis. The centerpiece was a large calabash filled with Hawaiian fruit. The hand-painted place cards were ornamented with miniature ilima leis. Single ilima and male leis were given to the gentlemen and double ones to the ladies. The after-dinner hour was devoted to music and cards. Mrs. Robertson, who is a talented musician, sang and played a number of Hawaiian songs.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. Gusay Senafer, Mr. and Mrs. Jaeger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chillingworth, Judge and Mrs. Mousarar, Mr. and Mrs. F. Murray, Dr. and Mrs. Maxwell, Miss Ethel Whiting and Mr. Robert Hare.

The Kaimuki Card Club.
The Kaimuki Card club was entertained on Thursday by Mrs. James Guild at her home on 14th avenue. The first prize was taken by the hostess, the second by Mrs. M. A. Webb, and the consolation by Mrs. L. E. Thayer. Among those present were: Mrs. M. A. Webb, Mrs. L. E. Thayer, Mrs. Arthur Thayer, Mrs. Hare, Miss Mabel Hare, Mrs. Warr, Mrs. Ray B. Hietow, Mrs. Louis Underwood, Mrs. Gann, Mrs. Emil Bernat, Mrs. Sam Cook and Mrs. James Guild.

Merry Widow Dinner.
Mr. and Mrs. John Tremblay were entertained informally Tuesday evening with a Merry Widow dinner in honor of three friends whose husbands are away enjoying hunting trips, and very appropriately the piece de resistance of the dinner was venison, the spoils of a recent hunting trip. The guests of compliment were Mrs. J. J. Belsor and Mrs. Louis J. Warren, whose husbands are camping and hunting in the mountains of Northern California and Oregon; and Mrs. Ernest Clark, whose husband is visiting the George Cookes on Molokai for two weeks. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazier, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Thrum and Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Heiser, Jr.

The chairs of the three "merry widows" were marked by big bows of lavender tulle as half mourning, while yellow chrysanthemums and golden rods were used on the table. The place cards bore silhouette sketches of mountain deer. Selections from "The Merry Widow" and other music entertained the guests after dinner.

Pretty Wedding at St. Andrews.
St. Andrews Cathedral was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening when Miss Caroline Crews became the bride of Mr. John Clark of this city. The cathedral was prettily decorated with ferns for the occasion. The bride, who was attended by Miss Daisy Smith entered the church wearing a handsome gown of white crepe charmeuse ornamented with shadow lace. The skirt was draped and fashioned with a long pointed train. Her veil was fastened with bridal roses and she carried an ivory prayer book.

The brides maid wore a net tulle over old gold crepe charmeuse, the skirt of which was draped in gracefully clinging lines. She wore a large portrait hat of old gold lace. Both Mr. and Mrs. Clark are well known in Honolulu and have a host of friends. They will be at home to their friends in the latter part of October.

Miss Nora Sturgeon's Luncheon.
Miss Alice Cooke was the complimented guest at a delightfully informal luncheon on Monday given by Miss Nora Sturgeon in Nuuanu. The affair was a farewell to Miss Cooke who leave for a visit to the mainland next Tuesday. The table centerpiece was a pretty arrangement of pink carnations. Covers were laid for nine including, Miss Alice Cooke, Miss Emily Farley, Mrs. Herbert Dowsett (Miss Laura Nott), Miss Beatrice Holsworth, Miss Margaret Waterhouse, Miss Wilhelmina Henney, Miss Muriel Howatt, Miss Jessie Kennedy and Miss Nora Sturgeon.

Miss Coulter a Visitor.
Miss Helen Coulter, whose picture appears in this issue, arrived in Honolulu in the early part of the week and will visit Mrs. John Guild until March. Miss Coulter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Coulter of Sausalito and San Francisco. Mr. Coulter is an artist who visited Honolulu about two years ago and made some sketches of the island. Mr. Coulter has his studio in San Francisco and is well known there. Miss Coulter is an accomplished pianist, having studied at St. Bridget's Academy in San Francisco and is well known in the musical circles there. Though she does not intend to give a concert while here, the young lady will no doubt be heard at private recitals.

Mrs. Robert McElDowney, nee Miss Grace Robertson, returned to Honolulu in the early part of the week with her husband, Mr. Robert McElDowney. Mr. and Mrs. McElDowney have been in California on their wedding tour since the early part of June. Though she has been a home a few days, her friends have already made a great many social demands on Miss McElDowney, and the homecoming welcome extended to the young couple is a warm one.

Miss Lydia McStocker Entertained.
On Monday afternoon Miss Edith Cowles was hostess at an informal sewing tea for Miss Lydia McStocker. The guests were Miss Lydia McStocker, Miss Julia McStocker, Mrs. Humboldt, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Wilder, Miss Helen Brown, Miss Ethel Spalding, and Mrs. Douglas McDonald.

Mrs. Barker's Sewing Tea.
Mrs. H. A. Barker, wife of Lieut. Barker of Fort Shafter, entertained at an informal sewing tea yesterday afternoon for her mother, Mrs. Honeyman of Portland, who is visiting here. Mrs. Barker's guests were Mrs. Honeyman, Mrs. Case, Miss Betty Case, Mrs. Jameson, Mrs. Wholly, Mrs. Kenney, Miss Ethel Spalding and Mrs. Freeman.

Mrs. Bush's Thimble Bee.
Mrs. G. Fred Bush was hostess at an informal thimble bee yesterday afternoon for three of the teachers who have come here this year—Miss Maxwell, Miss Bama and Miss Braxton. The guests included Miss Maxwell, Miss Burton, Miss Braxton, Miss Clark, Mrs. Lyver, Mrs. Lewis Edger, Mrs. Davis, Miss Toy, Miss McKenney, Mrs. Marie Johnson, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Jack Johnson, Mrs. Lindsay, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Charles Frazier, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. Leah Warren, Mrs. John T. Warren, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Larkaday.

Chicagoans Entertained Here.
A party of visitors from the University of Chicago were entertained on Thursday of this week by local alumni and former students of the Middle West Institution. The party arrived on the Tropic Star and was met by Chicagoans resident here. An auto trip to the Park and other points of interest was the program in the morning, with luncheon at the University club, a visit to Waikiki beach and the amusement in the afternoon, the steamship leaving at five o'clock.

Deaths Return Home.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Willis Booth and their little son, Ferris, are at home, too, having returned from the Hawaiian Islands, after an ideal trip.

They have many friends in Honolulu, and were extensively entertained. Miss Viola Hamilton, daughter of Harry Hamilton, who is a niece of Mrs. Booth, was with them, and the party visited the famous volcano, Kilanea, and other points of interest. They passed much time at Waikiki Beach, and learned to enjoy the surfboat riding, which provides a spice of excitement in the peaceful days over at the tropical islands.

Mrs. Chillingworth's Dinner.

Mrs. Charles F. Chillingworth was hostess recently at an elaborate farewell dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Purdy of Hanalei sheep station. The affair was given at her pretty bungalow home.

The dining room and the table were beautifully decorated, and the feast, which was distinctly Hawaiian in character, presented many varieties of its delicacies.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Purdy, Mr. Kaiiko Malinaupo, Phumua Chesebro of Waimea, Hawaii; Mrs. John H. Wise, Mrs. Thomas Anusky Sr. of Waimea and Miss Mary K. Lindsey.

Miss Ethel Spalding Entertains at Cards.

Miss Ethel Spalding was hostess at an informal bridge party on Wednesday afternoon the guests of honor being Miss McAfee and Miss Gemma Adaman. The prizes were silk hose and were given to Mrs. George Turner, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Barre and Miss Juliet Atherton. Among those present were, Miss McAfee, Miss Gemma Wadman, Mrs. McAfee, Mrs. Turner, Mrs. Williams, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Barker, Mrs. Frank Thompson, Miss Hetty Case, Miss Helen Brown, Mrs. Gerald Johnson, Miss Harriett Young, Miss Violet Atherton, Miss Juliet Atherton, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Ethel Spalding.

Miss Magoon's Dance.

The young folks of Honolulu have been for the past week making enthusiastic preparations for the masquerade that Miss Emmaline Magoon is giving this evening. The affair was planned originally for Mrs. Anderson sister of the young hostess, but unfortunately Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left for San Francisco yesterday afternoon. The large lanai in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Magoon erected a few years ago especially for the convenience and pleasure of the young people is admirably suited for dancing and this evening it will be a scene of such laughter and enjoyment. About hundred and fifty young people will rip the light fantastic this evening.

Party for Miss Vera Downey.

Mrs. Mary Downey gave a party last Saturday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Vera, who will marry Mr. Willmes this month. The guests were Miss Dow, Miss Woodford, Miss Featherstone, Mrs. Marvin, Miss Hazel Austin, Miss Hazel Ridley, Miss Kathleen Walker, Miss Sophie Walker, Miss Collins, Miss Parker, Miss Fynja Miles, the Misses Reece, Mrs. Joeres, Miss Ethel James, Miss Carrie James, Miss Ludwig, Miss Abbie Bronley, Miss Ethlyn Harris, Miss Hilda Wikander, Miss Sigua Wikander, Miss Kempster.

Miss Carmen Ghirardelli will be hostess Saturday night at an informal dance at the home of her mother, Mrs. Thomas Watson Cushing. Mr. and Mrs. Cushing, Miss Ghirardelli and Clarence Reece, are planning to leave for a trip to Honolulu October 12, and Saturday's gathering will be one of several affairs that will bring friends of Miss Ghirardelli together prior to her departure.—San Francisco Call.

SOCIETY

THE reception to Mr. Duncan Smith at the Kilauea Art League on Wednesday evening was one of the most pleasant social affairs of the week. Mr. Smith with Mrs. Kent, his sister, Mrs. James Wilder, and Mrs. Richard Ivers received the guests from eight until ten o'clock. The rooms of the Art League were prettily decorated with palms and flowers while the stairway was a bower of great feathery branches of pepper. During the evening delicious punch was served with dainty cakes. The thirty-eight paintings that were on exhibition afforded much interest to all who were present; to the island people because the scenes depicted were so familiar and so true to the real; to the new comers because they were many of them unaware of the scenes shown. Of so much interest were they that many who visited the Art League that night have returned since, sometimes bringing and sometimes bringing friends. Already a number of the pictures have been sold and there is no doubt whatever that during this week of exhibition still more of them will be purchased by the island people. Some among those present Wednesday evening were Mrs. Kent, Mrs. James Wilder, Mrs. Richard Ivers, Miss Frances Lawrence, Mr. Frank Halstead, Miss Bernice Halstead, Miss Gladys Halstead, Miss Mary von Holt, Mrs. Ellis, Miss Angus, Mrs. Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Monsarrat, Mrs. Fredrick Davis, Miss Folsom, Mrs. Marston Campbell, Miss Cwendolyn Blair, Miss Louise Lucas, Miss Hunter, Mrs. John T. Warren, Miss Bogue, Mrs. George Hull, Miss Marion Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Ranny Scott, Mr. Richard Wright, Mr. Edmund Hedemann, Dr. Ferdinand Hedemann, Mr. Law, Dr. George Tucker Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Gulick, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Cooke and many others.

MRS. HARMON ANDERSON

Princess Kawananakoa's Luau.
The Princess Kawananakoa who has not entertained to any extent since her return from abroad was hosted at an old Hawaiian luau on Wednesday evening at her home on Pensacola street. It has been some time since her home has been the scene of such gaiety and no doubt Secretary and Mrs. Knox will long remember the affair as one of the most delightful of the many social entertainments given for them while on this trip. During the whole evening Kaul's Gleec Club played and sang quaint old Hawaiian melodies that delighted the many guests.
The affair was Hawaiian in every respect and one of the old customs seldom witnessed now, the waving of white kahili by young girls was in evidence. Each of the guests was presented with a beautiful ulima and malle lei for a luau is not a luau without the ulima lei. The tables were in the shape of a U and were decorated with red exorials and Hawaiian fruits flanked by ferns and ti-leaves tufted with green tulle. The lanai of the Princess' home was draped with American and Hawaiian flags.
Her Majesty Queen Liliuokalani who graced the gathering wore a magnificent robe of pale lavender satin embellished with handsome lace. Princess Kawananakoa wore an exquisite gown of silver over heavy cream satin. Mrs. Philander Knox wore a delicate gown of lavender satin with an embroidered tulle overdress. Mrs. Walter Fisher was gowned in black satin ornamented with silver. Covers were laid at the tables for Her Majesty Queen Liliuokalani, Secretary of State and Mrs. P. C. Knox, Her Majesty Queen Liliuokalani, the Prince and Princess Kaulananoa, the Governor and Mrs. Frear, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Walter Fisher, Hon. R. S. Miller, Rear-Admiral Reynolds, U. S. N.; Captain Elliot, U. S. S. Maryland; Mr. and Mrs. Shingle, Mrs. Melvia Shingle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Beckley, Col. Samuel Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Widemann, Mrs. Erminia Dargie, Mrs. Maria King, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Biggs, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Afong, Mrs. Francis Gay, Geo. Torrey, Mrs. E. S. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Chillingworth, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Waterhouse, Col. Wilbur E. Wilder, U. S. A.; Captain Haight, U. S. A.; Judge A. A. Wilder, Ernest Parker, Leslie Scott, Hon. Cecil Brown, Dr. H. V. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Balch, J. T. McCrosson, Miss Mary Low, Miss Irene Dickson, Miss Agnes Armour, Miss Margaret McFintyre, Miss Alice Macfarlane, Miss Grace Buckley, Dr. A. G. Hodgins, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Falk, Herbert A. Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Dominis, Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, Mrs. Sandown, Clarence Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Jeffs, Captain Johnson, Mark Robinson, Jr., Miss Mackie.
Mrs. Harmon Anderson leaves Honolulu.
Mrs. Harmon Anderson, formerly Miss Kamakia Magoon, of Honolulu, left with her husband yesterday afternoon for San Francisco, where they will reside for a year or more. Mr. Anderson is better known in the business world as Mr. Richard Kipling. Mrs. Anderson has been one of the popular Honolulu girls since her graduation from Punahou about three years ago and has many friends here, regret that she is not to make her permanent home in this city. They hope, however, that she will return to the islands in a short time to make them a visit at least. Mrs. Anderson is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Magoon of Honolulu.

Social Notes

The luau tendered Duke Kahanamoku Tuesday night by the Hul Nahu was a big success. There were a large number of the club members present as well as many invited guests. This is the first of a number of social affairs that have been planned for the returned champion of whom Honolulu is so proud, and it is likely that his next few weeks at home will be busy ones. The Kahanamoku home was again a thing of beauty as the lawn that was erected on the lawn for the celusion was beautifully decorated with red and white bunting and tropical palms. Some among those present were the guest of honor, Duke Kahanamoku Jr., Captain Duke Kahanamoku, Sr., Prince Kuhio, Judge Sanford Dole, Colonel Sam Parker, Mr. Geo. Leckley, Mr. William T. Rawlins, Mr. James Jaeger, Mr. Duds Miller, Commodore Warren Wood, Mr. Dan Kaweamahi, Mr. Harold Lishman, Mr. Ernest Lishman, Mr. E. T. Stacker, Mr. Curtis Hustace, Mr. Harold Haste, Mr. William A. M. Campbell, Mr. David Kahanamoku, Mr. George Kaweamahi, Mr. Fred Lucas, Mr. Walter Evans, Mr. Francis Evans, Mr. Kaula Evans, Mrs. Edward Boyd, Mr. Hilo Boyd, Mr. A. Boyd, Mr. E. K. Boyd, Mr. Will Young, Mr. Oswald Stevens, Mr. Arthur Gilman, Mr. Vincent Goveas, Mr. Charles Chillingworth, Mr. Buck Kehele, Mr. Bob Kaawa, Mr. Carl Dodson, Mr. J. T. McCrosson, Judge A. A. Wilder, Mr. Lew G. Henderson, Mr. R. H. Allen, Mr. S. S. Taber, Mayor Fern, Mr. A. L. Castle, Mr. G. C. Hull, Mr. A. R. Gurrey, Jr., Mr. John Soper, Mr. John Anderson, Mr. Archie Robertson, and many others.

To Tour Hawaiian Islands.
Mr. and Mrs. John Vogel and daughter, and Fred Salter, will leave today on an extended tour to Honolulu and other points in the Hawaiian Islands. —Los Angeles Times.
SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 23.—Friends in this city today received word of the marriage in Los Angeles yesterday of Miss Hazel B. Bailey, daughter of Captain and Mrs. E. R. Bailey of this city, to David A. Dowsett, a wealthy young broker of Honolulu, where the couple will make their future home.
DUNCAN, Colo., Sept. 16.—Mrs. C. B. Morse has written friends here to the effect that she reached Honolulu on Monday, September 2. The letter was written on September 1, and the ship was due in Honolulu next morning. The trip was a delightful one and the party was not scasiek at all.
Miss Emmaline Magoon, whose picture appears in today's paper, is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Magoon and is one of the popular little belles of Honolulu. Like so many of the young island misses, Miss Magoon seemed to "grow up" all of a sudden and upon her return from the mainland a few months ago she immediately became one of the social debutantes.

Mrs. Emma J. Shover left yesterday for San Diego, from which place she will go to San Francisco, where she will visit with relatives for several weeks. With friends she will sail from San Francisco on October 8 for an extended visit to Honolulu and the Hawaiian Islands. Los Angeles Times.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. McEldowney were returning passengers in the Wilhelmina Tuesday morning. Mrs. McEldowney was one of the most attractive of the June brides, and she and her husband have just returned from their wedding trip. They have been visiting Mr. McEldowney's relatives in southern California.

Mrs. W. L. Emory returned to Honolulu last week with her son, Clouston, who has been in school in the east. Mrs. Emory will receive her friends on the first and third Wednesdays.

Mrs. J. L. Howard of San Francisco and Mrs. T. E. McNab of Los Angeles are visiting in Honolulu with their mother, Mrs. Alexander Young. Dr. McNab will arrive here within the next fortnight and will remain until November.

Miss Anna Klumpke left for San Francisco Tuesday evening in the Lurline. Miss Klumpke will spend some time in San Francisco visiting her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Steere and family returned to Honolulu Tuesday. They have been spending the summer in the east.

Miss May Kluegel arrived in the Mauna Kea last Tuesday. Miss Kluegel has been with her mother in Hilo and will now spend some time in Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Scott of Hilo, who have been visiting on the main land for some time, returned in the Wilhelmina and are stopping at the Young Hotel for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Baldwin of Kaula returned from the coast Tuesday and are stopping at the Young.

Mrs. C. B. Cooper and her children returned to Honolulu in the Wilhelmina.

Mrs. William Montrose Graham, who has been in California for the past three months, returned to Honolulu Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald T. Guard, Jr., arrived in the Wilhelmina en route to Hilo. Mr. and Mrs. Guard have been touring Europe for the past six months and are now returning to their home in the Crescent City.

Miss Dorothy Guild, who spent the summer in California, returned to Honolulu last Tuesday. Miss Guild brought with her a guest, Miss Coulter of Sausalito. Miss Coulter is a brilliant musician and it is hoped that the music lovers of Honolulu will have an opportunity of hearing her.

Dr. Herbert, Mr. Charles Herbert and Mr. Blakely McStocker returned to Honolulu Tuesday in the Wilhelmina after having motored from Victoria to San Francisco.

The hats that Miss Power selected on her recent trip and which she is displaying at her Millinery Parlors in the Boston Block, are unusually beautiful.

MEMORIAL FOR GEN. BOOTH AT BIJOU

Although the Bijou Theater is temporarily closed for the making of certain alterations, the management has consented to open it for the Union Memorial Service which the Union Church Federation is holding the Sunday Evening in honor of the late General Booth of the Salvation Army. The service as planned will open with a short musical program, beginning not later than 7:30. The Central Union Choir, which has just been reorganized for the year, will render several selections. The choir consists of a double quartet made up of the following well known singers: Sopranos—Miss Edith Rosslyn Collins, Miss Ethel M. Damon. Tenors—Mr. Arthur Wall, Mr. J. A. Hill. Alto—Mrs. Charles S. Weight, Mrs. Chester J. Hunn. Basses—Mr. George Brown, Mr. C. J. Tracy.

The principal address of the evening will be given by Colonel Blanche B. Cox, the commander of the Salvation Army in Hawaii. Because of her intimate acquaintance with General Booth, through a long personal association with him in his great work, Colonel Cox is peculiarly qualified to deliver such an address. The meeting will be presided over by Mr. W. A. Bowen and other parts in the program will be taken by the different clergymen of the city.
The general public is invited to join with the churches of the city in doing honor to one of earth's greatest Christian Heroes.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE HATS

Now Being Turned Out From Our Workroom?

"YOUR STYLES are certainly designed to please the most fastidious. And I can truly say they are by far the best looking hats I have yet seen in Honolulu. The artistic trimming and the finish and work is certainly a credit to any Millinery Department."

So said one of our Leading Ladies who called at our show-room a few days ago in response to our invitation. And we could quote similar expressions from many other ladies to whom we have had the pleasure of showing the New Fall Hats.
Could we ask less than the mere opportunity of showing you these beautiful creations of the milliner's art? If we don't get your order now we feel sure that we will get it when you are ready for the new hat.

Kindly allow us to show you our elegant styles in millinery.

The Onlooker

"Twa Cronies Sleepin' Thegither"

John Walker, lately back frae Aberdeen w' his insides gey mendit, by Braw Scottish surgeons and his pouch filled w' heather for his fellow exiles, brought the matter up at the Scottish Thistle Club, and Master Higgins, a mon o' unco' skill and leetery research, volunteered to be the "Old Mortality" to investigate the report. It was about the neglected graves of two Scottish worthies in Nuuanua cemetery, the long silent occupants having a tombstone in common. Intercepted by "The Onlooker" before he had time to prepare his report, Mr. Higgins related the following interesting facts:

"The tombstone is considerably shifted out of its original position and needs attention. It shows that Alexander Adams was born in Arbroath in 1789, and Andrew Auld in Linlithgow in 1799. Upon the stone is graved this legend:

"Twa cronies frae the land o' heather
Sleepin' here in death thegither."
A young woman came along watering graves, who, in answer to questions, said she did not know very much about the history of Adams and Auld. Still she told me something. The late William Auld, once superintendent of the Insane Asylum and a high Mason, as well as prominent in King Kalakaua's palace mystics, was a son of this Auld. His wife was a daughter of Adams. Another son was James A. Auld, one of the best printers of his time here. Mrs. Charles Lucas is a granddaughter of Adams. "Adams was not his real name. It was Fife. He belonged to the British navy and fought in some of Nelson's battles, but he deserted and took his mother's name. He owned a small trading schooner, in which he engaged in the sandalwood trade to China. The King was very good to him and gave him the greater part of Kalih'i Valley, also the land of Niu. Auld was a ship carpenter. He did the finishing work on the mausoleum. Also he made the coffins for the royal dead. Auld was offered land by the King, which he would not accept. All he wanted, as he said, was money wherewith to take him home to his mother, but Connie Scotland or mother was never to see him again. He might have had all kinds of land here, yet everything ended in the wee bit of ground where he sleeps with his crony—as Stevenson said in premonition of his own sepulture in the beautiful islands of the Pacific—far from his forgotten grave among honest Scots sods, where about the tombs of the martyrs the whaups are crying, this heart remembers how."

Concrete Vs. Wood

A friend of mine, now in a white-handed profession, but who was once and again a horny-handed son of toil in skilled lines, has been giving me his views on the subject of bridges. Everybody who knows anything about it will agree with his opinion that the building of wooden bridges on highways at this date is folly. This is an age of steel and concrete, and it is a waste of money to put perishable wood into bridges and culverts.

"There should have been some way to prevent the superstitious," said my friend, "from making that bridge over Nupuanu stream, at the junction of Queen and King streets, of wooden planks and upon wooden piles. It is ridiculous to lay bitulthic pavement on top of such a temporary structure. Unless the lumber is especially well seasoned, the life of the substructure of the bridge will be not more than four or five years. By-and-by the wood will rot and break down. Then how is the paving-in of the pavement to be repaired? Bitulthic cannot be laid over a hole.

"It is a great mistake to make bridges of anything but concrete where the spans are not too long for that material, and, even in the case of wide spans to be crossed it would pay in the long run to build bridges of a series of concrete arches, with piers between them of the same material if stone blocks are not convenient, instead of iron or steel bridges, in the destructive sea-coast air of these parts.

"This brings up the matter of the care of our iron bridges. Lately I had occasion to cross the Beretania street bridge, when I noticed that it had become badly corroded. Some of the bars are eaten away to mere threads. What a criminal waste of property is this, all for lack of the preventive application of a few pounds of paint. There are other bridges in the same case no doubt, as well as other structures owned by the public—for instance, the capitol grounds fence, where the climate has been permitted to work irreparable loss.

"In this connection, the harbor commission has shown lack of forethought in laying its oil-pipe line without a protective covering. One would have thought the commissioners, if they had observing eyes, should have noticed what the gas company was doing with its pipes, or the rapid transit company with its rails. In all probability that expensive pipe line will, inside of four years, be as full of leaks as the country treasury."

Unlawful Taxing of School Children

Action has been taken by the San Francisco board of education to end an abuse in that city which was formerly rife in the schools of Honolulu. That is, the exaction of contributions of money from the pupils for pads and folders which might take the fancy of the teachers. In some cases the object for which the dime or nickel was levied never materialized, but there was no refunding of the money, wherever it went. Perhaps the practice is still in vogue to some extent here, and if so the educational department should squelch it. It is not only annoying but illegal. If it still exists anywhere in our schools, it would be well to put in force a regulation like that which has been adopted by the San Francisco board, which reads as follows:

Teachers are prohibited from collecting or soliciting any contributions of any sort from pupils for any purpose whatever, and it shall be the duty of the board persistently to deny any and all requests which directly or indirectly have for their object the collection of funds or the advertising of anything whatsoever of this nature.

75,000 OREGON CHILDREN TILLING STATE'S SOIL

Prizes to the Value of $20,000 Stir Youngsters of State to Take Greater Interest in Advancing Agriculture

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 20.—Darely six months ago a committee of members of the Oregon State Bankers Association met in Portland to discuss plans for creating greater interest in agricultural and industrial work in the public schools, says the Oregonian. Today, prizes to the value of $20,000 have been promised, already there are approximately 75,000 school children who will have exhibits, or three-fifths of all the children in Oregon, and 88 children's fairs have been reported.

In addition, Prof. C. H. Lane, assistant in agricultural education at Washington, D. C., whose visit to Oregon last May was a mark of recognition of the movement by the national government, awarded this State a medal of praise beyond all others.

"Oregon," he said, "has started this work on a broader scale than any other State. I have never found a State in which bankers, breeders and business men have given industrial education such liberal support at the outset. The next step should be to make this work an integral part of the public school system."

The committee at the outset adopted what has come to be known as the Yamhill county plan. This met with approval all through the State, and has encouraged children to grow gardens and to make useful articles, by offering prizes and awards at local, county and State competitions for boys and girls.

As a start, the Bankers Association placed at the disposal of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction Alderman $800, for the salary and expenses of a field manager and for the salary of a stenographer until the close of the State fair, which is to be held in Salem.

Mr. Alderman appointed C. C. Thomason field manager. Mr. Thomason visited all the countries in order to enlist local aid, and cooperation, to direct the organization of contests and to assist in arranging local prize lists. N. C. Maris was appointed by the Union stock yards to work in connection with Superintendent Alderman. These two men already have visited 30 countries since field work started, February 1.

Every assistance was given by the Oregon Agricultural College, which placed the field organizers on its extension staff. With the first of the year a start was made of compiling the premium list for the state fair. The response by farmers and men interested in the produce of the soil especially, but also by business men in general, was generous. Animals and commodities for children's prizes already have been donated to the value of $2500, while the State Fair board supplemented this amount by a donation of $1000 cash.

All the first prizes and some of the second prizes have been specially donated, among them being prize Shetland ponies, dogs, calves, sheep, pigs and chickens. Furniture and silverware are among the other special prizes donated. The second, third, fourth and fifth prizes, except where otherwise specified, are of the value of $5, $5, $4 and $3 respectively.

In the agricultural section prizes are given for chickens, ducks, pigs, corn, melons, pumpkins, potatoes, cabbages, onions, celery, grain, bread, canned fruit and vegetables, jelly, sweet peas and asters. In the industrial division awards are given for a bird house, a piece of furniture, a labor-saving device, hand and machine-made aprons, and darning.

JAPANESE LINES VIA PANAMA

Concerning the inauguration or otherwise of an Atlantic service from Japan after the completion of the Panama Canal, nothing has yet been decided by the Government. Leading members of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha desire the inauguration of such a service, and advocate the carrying out of the necessary investigations, while those of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha conjecture such a service to be unnecessary, and are of the opinion that if cargo is transhipped at San Francisco to American coasting vessels shippers using their vessels will be exempted from the burden of paying Canal dues.

WOMEN OUTLIVE MEN

The greater longevity of women than of men is shown by recent French insurance statistics, the advantage on the feminine side being almost one third.

Thus the average age at death of feminine annuitants, on one company's books is 70, while for men it is barely 50. Another company has several centenarians, all women, on its books. These annuitants have already received their money back five or six times over. The company is thinking of revising its tariff, making the scale for women much higher.

A distinguished doctor, when asked to account for women's longer lives, said:

"Men live much harder and smoke and drink too much, even though they rarely work too much. Women are wiser and think of the future, rarely smoke and drink one-tenth as much, while their preoccupations and moral sufferings are much less intense."

"At 40 a woman is in the plenitude of her physical powers, while a man at the same age has probably contracted organic weaknesses which will shorten life."—New York Times.

MIDDLE STATES ONCE UNDER SEA

It has been shown by geologists that at various times during the more ancient eras of the earth's history great seas, diverse in size and form, existed in regions now lying in the interior of the continent of North America. These great seas, some of which had outlets to the ocean or the Arctic and others were connected by straits with the Atlantic, or possibly opened out into a great gulf to the south, were constantly changing, in accordance with the deep-seated earth movements of the continent. Complicated, and always varied warping of the earth's crust, combined with downward or upward thrusts of the land masses, accomplished sweeping changes in the geography, sometimes burying large regions below sea level and leaving only remnants—skeletons, of the land, as it were—of large portions of the old continent surrounding interior seas. At other times the land rose, more warping took place, the seas were banished from the interior regions, and the continent stood larger, and higher even, than it does now. Even at the present moment large stretches of our coasts are subsiding below sea level.

The history of this earth movement and the conditions surrounding the different invasions of the sea into the continent are revealed by the study of the rock strata and their fossils. As the animal and plant life has changed from period to period, differing in each of the inland seas, it is particularly to the study of these fossils that geologists owe their knowledge of the time relations of each period in geologic chronology. The fossils show the climatic conditions, the nature of the shores, and the depth to the oceanic connections.

An important addition to our knowledge of one of the very ancient seas—the Onondaga—has been made by E. M. Kindle, in a paper just published by the United States Geological Survey as Bulletin 508. This sea, which is very far from being one of the most ancient of the Paleozoic, though it dates back probably more than a hundred times as far as the great Ice Age, is known as the Onondaga, because the criteria revealing and characterizing it were first brought to light in Onondaga County, in northern New York. Mr. Kindle shows that the peculiar forms inhabiting the Onondaga sea extended through Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia for hundreds of miles in the waters of a sea whose eastern shore line was not far west of the site where the Blue Ridge now stands. From southwestern Virginia this shore line appears to have trended westward not far from the Kentucky-Tennessee line as far as the present valley of the Tennessee River and at some point was connected with the great inland sea covering the present Mississippi Valley. The Onondaga waters were warm, as is shown by the presence of corals and other tropical or subtropical types of sea life. The technical descriptions of these fossils compose the main part of the bulletin, which is of interest especially to those concerned with the study of the extinct molluscan faunas.

The great basin occupied by the Onondaga sea was later warped and greatly changed and its eastern portions were filled to a thickness of 5000 to 10,000 feet by sediment, mostly derived from the elevated but comparatively narrow remnants of the continent lying east of the present Blue Ridge. If these sediments were piled upon a level plain they would form a mountain range equaling in height and extent the Sierra Nevada of California.

Bulletin 508, which is technical in nature, may be had free on application to the Director of the U. S. Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

STOCK SALES INCREASED ON DECLINING MARKET

If it were not for a decline in prices, this week would have shown up well on the stock exchange record. For the six days ended at noon yesterday the sales of stocks were 3411 shares with proceeds of $131,773.50, and of bonds a total par value of $84,000, making an aggregate of $215,773.50 for that period. Taking the five days of this week up to yesterday noon, the sales of stock realized $106,187.25 and the par value of bonds sold was $37,500, an aggregate of $143,687.25, as compared with $91,442.12 for stocks and $178,000 for bonds in the corresponding period of last week, or an increase of $14,745.12 in stocks and a decrease of $140,500 in bonds.

RYAN GRANTED PERMISSION TO MOVE SALOON

Fennell Reports Favorably and Anti-Saloon Opposition Fails

Acting principally on the recommendation of Liquor License Inspector Fennell, the liquor license commission yesterday afternoon granted Paddy Ryan permission to move his saloon from its present location on Alakea street to a site across that thoroughfare. The action was taken in spite of the continued protest of the representatives of the Anti-Saloon League, who, argued that in general principles the transfer should be denied and that saloons should be driven out of that district eventually, principally because of its proximity to the waterfront.

It was found that the interpretation of the term "property-holders" by the attorney general, to mean lessees holding business or home sites for a period of a year or more, had little effect on the list of signatures endorsing Ryan's petition for the transfer. Since the former meeting the inspector had checked up all the names on the lists of those favoring and those opposing the transfer, and had found that a total of about forty persons qualified to give their approval or disapproval had attached their names. Of this number only about fourteen had opposed Ryan's request.

George W. Paty explained to the board that of the entire number only three were actual owners of property within the neighborhood of 250 feet of the proposed saloon site, and that all three were opposed to the transfer. He then told why the Anti-Saloon League, which he represented, opposed the change. He said the saloon was too near the waterfront, flaunting its sign in the face of the sailors who arrive in Honolulu, one of the first signs to greet them on their arrival and one of the last they see on their return to the ships. It offers more temptation than should be placed in the sailors' way, he declared.

Attorney E. C. Peters, speaking for Paddy Ryan, disapproved of the attorney general's interpretation of the law and asserted the Anti-Saloon League was inclined to influence the commission unduly. Inspector Fennell brought in a request that the liquor license of Yoshi-mori Yamasaki, at Wai'anae, be revoked and cancelled, and beginning with a narration of the events leading up to Yamasaki's arrest on August 25 for selling liquor on Sunday, declared that the proprietor has persisted in this fracture of the closing law ever since. The hearing was continued to next Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Y. M. C. A. PLANS FOR BIBLE STUDY

The religious work committee of the Y. M. C. A. will conduct its Bible study classes on a much larger scale this year, and many new schemes and features will be introduced. There will be a separate course for the men and special classes for those attending the night school.

Each member of the boys' division will be invited to join a club or a group of boys, and this club will be under the direction of an adult leader. The club activities will be varied, but will be centered about Bible study. The employed boys will have forty-five minutes of Bible study on Monday evenings before their gymnasium class, and the juniors after their Saturday morning class. Students will meet at hours which they find convenient.

An assembly will be held for each section of the night school, and religious and educational talks will be alternated. A strong list of speakers will have charge of the series.

As early in the year as possible, the association will renew the noonday meetings in the shops of the city. The music, short talks and occasional concerts will provide a welcome break in the week's work in the two largest shops. Such work has become an established feature in hundreds of industrial plants on the mainland.

The meetings at Oahu prison every Sunday have been a definite help to a number of men, and this work will continue to receive some of the best attention of the committee. Men and Religion Campaign. The greatest event in Honolulu's religious program for the year will be the coming of the Men and Religion team. The two most conspicuous leaders in the American campaigns of last winter were Fred B. Smith of New York city and Raymond Robbins of Chicago. These men and the famous International Quartet will be in Honolulu January 17 to 23. While the campaign will be in charge of the Inter-Church Federation, the association will lend its chief energies to the movement during the above dates.

Evangelistic Teams. The association is occasionally called upon to supply the pulpits for the local churches and missions. The religious work committee has decided to follow the scheme so successfully used by the Western colleges and organize evangelistic teams. The teams will be composed of a presiding officer, two or three speakers, and a man to lead the singing. Such a team would be available whenever any of the local pastors wish to call upon it. Enough men are already interested to form two teams.

ENGLAND'S SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY NEEDS HELP

LONDON, Sept. 15.—The recent withdrawal of the British government from the Brussels convention has once more brought to the front the question of the growing in England of sugar beets, and with a view of learning what effect the action of the government is likely to have on this nascent English industry, and what the prospects of the industry itself are considered to be a representative of The Christian Science Monitor called on Mr. Alexander, the manager of the National Sugar Beet Association Ltd.

Mr. Alexander said he had no reason to believe that the withdrawal of the government would have any present effect on the English sugar industry. It was thought, however, by some people that it might cause the governments of the continental countries concerned, to take advantage of the arrangement which made it possible for the convention to be abrogated with the consent of all the contracting parties. In such circumstances it was difficult to know what would happen.

On the other hand, there was the possibility that in the immediate future the convention might be annulled in five years' time. In these circumstances the question of the growing of sugar beet in England was a most uncertain one, and it was unlikely that people would be willing to embark their capital on an industry whose prospects were so extremely doubtful. Government May Aid.

Mr. Alexander went on to draw attention to a statement made in the House of Commons on Aug. 7 last by the prime minister, in which he had hinted at the possibility of government assistance to the sugar beet industry in England. This statement, Mr. Alexander remarked, seemed to have passed practically unnoticed in the press, and yet it was a statement of considerable importance, both for the hope it actually held out and for the policy it advocated. Mr. Asquith's statement was as follows:

"As regards the cultivation of beet in this country the withdrawal from the convention leaves our hands—and that is an important matter from my point of view—perfectly free. It will enable the British government, if so minded, to give a preference to the products of our own colonies. That is one of the results, but everybody must agree that that would be a result in the direction of which I need not say his majesty's present advisers do not intend to advance.

"In regard to the cultivation of beet sugar in this country, I agree that giving bounties is not the form in which it should be encouraged, but I see no reason why this nascent industry—I am expressing no opinion of my own—should not receive assistance from our development fund in its early stages. Whether that would be described as a bounty or not by foreign countries I do not know.

"Of course it may be, and without expressing any opinion of my own, and still less, without giving any pledge, I should think that it would be a monstrous thing that the government of this country should have its hands tied with regard to the development of a domestic and local industry by an arrangement with foreign countries. What we want and what we have got by the withdrawal from the convention is complete economic freedom."

Plan Called Protection. Mr. Alexander remarked that if this was not protection it was something uncommonly like it, and the enunciation of such a policy by the head of a free trade government was a matter of no little interest. Mr. Alexander also pointed out that without protection in some form or other it would be practically impossible for the sugar beet industry in England to make any real progress, and the policy outlined by the premier seemed to indicate that this was recognized by the government of the day.

There was no objection, he explained, so far as the convention was concerned, to the institution of bounties in any country, provided that the sugar produced was not exported to other countries. After all the great aim of growing sugar in England would be to supply ourselves with our own sugar instead of being dependent, as heretofore, on that of other countries. Asked as to how beet sugar compared with cane, Mr. Alexander replied that it was every whit as good, and in fact it was practically impossible to tell one from the other. It might be said that there was no difference whatever between sugar produced from beet and that produced from cane, each could be, and was molded into the same shapes and given the same appearance; beet sugar was as sweet as that produced from cane; in fact, one was to all intents and purpose exactly similar to the other.

Factory Being Erected. Lately, Mr. Alexander continued, much had been done to cultivate the sugar beet in England, but it might be said that all previous experiments in growing it had been more or less in the nature of garden operations. At the present moment a factory was in the course of construction at Cantley, in Norfolk, and already some 4000 acres in its neighborhood were under beet.

Asked whether England as a whole was suitable for the growing of sugar beet, Mr. Alexander said that certain soils alone lent themselves to its cultivation, and these, of course, would be found in certain parts of the country where it was grown, while other parts would be quite unsuitable. Light friable soils, with a depth of at any rate 12 inches, were best suited to the growing of sugar beet.

It was only possible to grow a crop every three or four years, and thus a farmer who was growing beet for sale to a factory would arrange to lay down beet on one part of his property one year, on another part the next, and so on, filling in the intervening years with crops of cereals. He would thus be enabled to produce a crop of beet every year a most important consideration, especially in view of the fact that he would have a market for his beet as soon as it was ready and would get his money down, instead of having to wait for his market as he would have to do in the case, for instance, of wheat.

This matter of prompt returns was a most important one, for the money thus obtained supplied him with funds for the development of his property and for other necessary purposes just at a time when such funds were most needed. Of course there was no inducement to grow sugar beet except for the definite purpose of supplying a factory, and again, it would be useless to grow it in a place where the cost of carriage would be great. Sugar beet is a very perishable article, and has to be handled at once, and thus the crop is transferred as quickly as possible to the nearest factory.

Return is Certain. Asked what inducement there was for a farmer to grow beet as opposed to other crops, Mr. Alexander replied that beet offered a certain return, as its price remained practically constant, and it would not be grown except for the purposes of supplying a factory in the neighborhood, thus insuring a certain market. In addition to this was the fact that the growing of sugar beet tended to improve the soil, not by reason of any virtue in the beet itself, but because of the work which had to be put into the soil to enable it to be grown at all.

The growing of beet was far more dependable than the growing of any other crop, and any farmer who attempted it on scientific lines should succeed in obtaining a profit. It would only be attempted, however, in connection with a factory, and the cultivation of sugar beet in England would only increase in direct proportion to the increase in the number and the size of factories.

At present there seemed little prospect of any factory being started beyond the one in Norfolk as the outlook with regard to sugar in England was at the present moment of far too uncertain a nature to make it worth the while of capital to embark on so hazardous an undertaking. Any development, therefore, which might look with regard to sugar in England could only come as the result of definite assistance on the part of government; otherwise operations are likely to be confined to the factory in Norfolk.

for infants and children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Dr. J. C. Ayer guarantees genuine Castoria.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market." J. E. STANSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I use it in every where." J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood." CHAS. EDWARD GARDNER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result." F. GRADY BARTON, M. D., Dublin, N. Y.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble." C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children." J. A. BOHRMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

KRYPTOK LENSES

Why Look Older Than You Are?

The gentleman to the right of the reader (sketched from life) is wearing old style or pasted double-vision lenses. The lines of the reading wafers are noticeably prominent and he has difficulty in adjusting his eyes to the lenses. The cement used to join the two lenses has become clouded and has made his glasses misty.

The two figures to the left (sketched from life) are wearing Kryptok double-vision lenses. There are no seams on these glasses, because the reading lenses are fused invisibly within the distance lenses. These latter two persons are at ease, look dignified and comfortable.

HE HAS CONQUERED THE HILLS; MADE FERTILE THE WASTE PLACES

John T. McCrosson, the Irrigation King of Hawaii, Who Deserves the Title

John T. McCrosson came to the Hawaiian Islands from Delaware in March, 1880, and has lived here for a great portion of the time since, being identified with the sugar industry in his profession of engineering. His longest absence from the islands was a period of over twelve years, when he was engaged in the iron business in San Francisco. He was the promoter of the two Hamakua ditches.

JOHN T. MCCROSSON
Irrigation king of Hawaii.

The Kohala and Kehana ditches, and the Kau ditch now in process of incorporation under a franchise granted at the present session of Congress. The upper and lower Hamakua ditches operated by the Hawaiian Irrigation Co., Ltd., have a total length of fifty-two miles. They supply four plantations with water, besides 500,000 gallons a day to the Parker Ranch. A number of homesteaders also receive water from the upper ditch. During the present drought the village of Honokaa has been getting its entire supply from the lower ditch.

Kohala Ditch Company.
The Kohala Ditch Company has twenty-two miles of main ditch, with an auxiliary one of eleven miles called the Kehana ditch, both together supplying five plantations. The capacity of the two Hamakua ditches is 125,000,000 gallons daily, and that of the two Kohala ditches 100,000,000 gallons. The projected Kau ditch will be 100 miles long, thirty miles of which will consist of tunnels. It will draw water from all of the streams between Hakakua and Waikua river on the windward side of Hawaii, and convey it 100 miles through Puna and Kau to South Point in the district of Kau. This great aqueduct will open up at least 20,000 acres of land that are today worthless, making them productive of untold new wealth.

Just Like a Romance.
Almost as entrancing as the finest romances born of the imagination of genius is the story of Mr. McCrosson's share in the development of water for irrigation in Hawaii. All the more do the achievements of his forethoughtful enterprise reflect luster upon his name when it is remembered that when he began promoting irrigation works the science was only in its infancy in this western world. Mr. McCrosson conceived the idea of the Hamakua ditch more than twenty years ago when he was employed on a Hawaii island plantation. For a time his arguments of the wealth that lay waiting to be evolved from the water running to waste into the ocean fell upon deaf ears, but eventually Samuel Parker went in with him and provided the necessary capital for the upper ditch. A company was formed which issued bonds for the construction, and the upper ditch was opened with a great celebration several years ago.

Next came the labor of financing the lower ditch. Bonds therefore were sent to London in the hands of Geo. W. Macfarlane, who failed to place them as he had been assured of success, when the issue was returned to Honolulu, where it was floated in thirty days. Of the issue of one million dollars, $800,000 was devoted to construction of the lower ditch and $200,000 held by trustees for retiring outstanding bonds of the upper ditch. Upper and lower ditches were constructed by separate corporations, after which both were amalgamated financially by the organization of the Hawaiian Irrigation Co., a holding concern, the officers being: Fred M. Lewis, president; John T. McCrosson, vice-president; E. I. Spalding, treasurer; C. F. Clemons, secretary; H. E. Lewis, Richard Ivers and F. E. Thompson, directors. Lewis & Co. were the purchasers of the bonds, having courageously staked the capital upon their faith in the enterprise.

The Lower Ditch.
The work of building the lower ditch was completed months ahead of the time calculated. Water was turned on the night of June 30, 1910, and reached the irrigation channels of Kukuaele plantation (Pacific Sugar Mill) next morning. Contracts had been made for a total supply of 46,125,000 gallons a day as follows: Pahuhan Sugar Plantation, 21,500,000; Honokaa Sugar Co., 15,625,000; Pacific Sugar Mill, 9,000,000. Estimated annual profit was $100,000.

Jorgen Jorgensen, C. E., designed the system and superintended its construction. The upper ditch is 22 miles long; the lower ditch 27 miles. The capacity of the upper ditch is 16,500,000 gallons a day, that of the lower 25,000,000 gallons, and the storage reservoirs hold 350,000,000 gallons. A practical monopoly of the waters of the Kohala mountains for forty years is held by the company.

To construct the ditches called for a great amount of herculean labor and the output of the highest degree of engineering skill. Mountains had to be tunneled. Trails needed to be cut along the faces of precipices 2000 or 3000 feet high and in some places 1000 feet from the summit. Heavy machinery required to be packed on muleback for miles into the mountain fastnesses. Hundreds of trained miners and a small army of pick-and-shovel men were engaged in the work, all of whom had to be sheltered and fed remote from the market for supplies.

NOVEL FISH ATTRACTION.

Fishermen of Cezimbo, Portugal, have a novel method of catching fish by the use of a natural phosphorescent substance, declares the Indianapolis News. This is obtained from a fish known as Malacocephalus laevis and is a thick yellowish fluid which possesses a bluish phosphorescence in the dark, believed to be due to the presence of a luminous microbe. The fishermen rub this substance upon a muscular tissue, such as a piece of cuttlefish, and this is used as bait. The light appears to last for a long time, at least for several hours, and has a brighter glow when dipped in the sea. Fish are attracted to the bait by the light and are thus caught.

arms than the average swimmer can secure with the use of all members. Just to show that he has not retrograded since his appearance in Stockholm, last night, at the Olympic Club tank, he chopped a second off the Coast record for the 100 yards held by Scott Leary, making the distance in 59 seconds with the utmost ease and without anyone to press him.

At the conclusion of the Olympiad, Duke, in company with three other members of the American swimming team, made a tour of all the big European cities, and in every place was accorded a magnificent reception. On his arrival in America again he spent three weeks at Atlantic City surf riding, to the edification of some thousands of admiring spectators. Society gave him an open-air reception, and he was every bit as much the idol with the fair four hundred misses as the ragged little urchin that stared open-mouthed in admiration at what he would like to be when he grew up.

Swimmer to Return.
The Duke is in love with America, and particularly with California. Although up until a few months ago he had spent all of his twenty-two years in his island home, his experiences in this country have infused him with a strong desire to make his permanent residence here. He has been away from home for close on to eight months, and outside of his wish to see the "old folks," as he put it last night, he has no wish to return.

On his departure this morning a large delegation of local athletic lights accompanied him down to the pier. He was plainly affected by the hospitality shown him, and expressed his thanks in a quivering voice. As the steamer backed away from the wharf he leaned over the rail and cried out that he would be back at the first opportunity.

"I can't wait until 1915 boys. I'm coming back just as soon as I can, and that is going to be sooner than you think."

As the liner turned up the bay he was still shading his eyes with his hands and gazing on one little group at the wharf.

PIGSKIN CHASERS

In order to even up matters, the committee at last winter's meeting voted to allow the offensive team four downs to make ten yards. This is sure to result in more rushing and there will be more of the spectacular play than there has been since the inauguration of the forward pass and the ten-yard rule. This is one of the most important changes.

The next change of importance is in regard to the forward pass. Under the old ruling, a forward pass could not be completed behind the goal line. This ruling made it almost impossible for the offensive team to gain ground when close to its opponent's goal line, because the secondary defense was pulled up to reinforce the forward line, which virtually meant that an offensive player had to penetrate two lines of defense.

Under the new rule the defensive eleven can not pull its secondary line up too close because some players will have to stay back to intercept forward passes. Consequently the offensive team will have better chances of scoring, which is only just as a reward for its efforts in rushing the ball to within scoring distance. This is an important change and should be remembered, as there are many possibilities of the amendment which will result in plays being evolved which will result in scores if executed properly.

No Field Judge.
The elimination of the field judge is the next change of importance. This official was not a necessity. Several times officials had arguments with the field judge in regard to certain infringements of the rules, which came under the jurisdiction of all four arbiters. Instead of the field judge keeping time, the head linesman now will hold the watch.

The time between the first and second and third and fourth quarters has been reduced from two minutes to one, while the intermission between the second and third periods, which generally is known as the time between halves, will be the same as usual, fifteen minutes. As the rule books already have been published, the first point for football beginners is to get a copy of the code.

It is not necessary to purchase all the armor which so many football players wear. A lot of hard training will put the notices in condition to stand a few hard knocks, besides giving their muscles more freedom of action. A suit padded on the thighs is sufficient. Light headgear should be worn by the linemen, but the backs and ends should not wear helmets, as they interfere with their work, especially in offensive play, when the signals can not be heard distinctly. It is all right for a plunging back or a smashing back to wear them, but they should be of light material. Jerseys padded at the shoulders to protect the collar bones are sufficient. Nose guards never should be worn except in case of a badly bruised nose. Freedom of action is more important to a team's success than anything else.

UNCLE SAM INVOLVED AT SANTO DOMINGO

U. S. Customs Men Help Restore Finances Of Chaotic Republic-- Eye-Witness Of Past Disturbances Tells Story --- Secretary Knox Interested

These are troublous times in the republic of Santo Domingo. Revolution and internal dissent are sweeping through the land, and the United States has been forced to take a hand in the same, and has recently dispatched gunboats and cruisers to protect American interests there. And American interests in Santo Domingo mean far more than the property and personal rights of citizens of the United States, for under treaty Uncle Sam holds the receivership of the Dominican customs, guaranteeing with the revenues the national debt, and thereby protecting the country from foreign powers.

The serious situation now existing in Santo Domingo is the direct result of native resentment against American interference, however well meant, and the writing on the wall has been readable for four years.

Of great interest, then, is a story of the tangled and strained relations between the American customs officers and the native Dominicans, written by Laurence Redington of the Star-Bulletin staff, who spent several months in Santo Domingo studying the conditions that have resulted in embroiling the United States in West Indian politics.

As a special writer for the New York Herald, Mr. Redington went to Hayti in 1908, when that country was in the throes of one of the worst revolutions the West Indies have ever seen, and later he crossed into Santo Domingo, making an unusual trip through the wild mountain country on the border between Santo Domingo and Hayti, where Uncle Sam has the greatest trouble in preventing smuggling.

The story reprinted below was published in the New York Herald May 24, 1908. Many of the incidents descriptive of the thrilling life of the customs guards have been omitted here for lack of space, but the clear statement of conditions then existing, as described by an eyewitness, helps to focus current events.

It is peculiarly interesting that Secretary Knox, on his recent visit to Hawaii, displayed much interest in the Santo Domingan situation, and on learning that a member of the Star-Bulletin staff had a personal knowledge of the circumstances, asked for all the information, written and verbal, that he could give.

Shorn of considerable descriptive writing, and boiled down to facts, Mr. Redington's story of the troubles in Santo Domingo is as follows:

BY LAURENCE REDINGTON.

Down in the heart of the tropics, in them out of the way corner of obscure Santo Domingo, a handful of American patriots are fighting against almost overwhelming odds for one of the fundamental principles of our government. They are patriots, and at the same time ex-patriots. Patriots of the highest and best type because they have turned their backs on civilization and taken up a life of hardship and danger to help their country "make good" the principles of the Monroe Doctrine; ex-patriots because they are fighting for an alien people under a foreign flag.

Appointed for dangerous service on foreign soil, they are yet denied the protection and inspiration of the Stars and Stripes. They are fighting for the prestige of America, and consequently for the home government washes its hands of them once they are on the firing line, and even the pittance that they receive in return for their services comes from a foreign treasury.

These "men without a country" are the American officers of the Customs and Frontier Guard of the Republic of Santo Domingo, appointed under the American receivership of Santo Domingo's finances, which was instituted three years ago when the United States stepped into the breach and guaranteed the payment of the Dominican national debt in order to prevent several European Powers from invading Dominican territory and taking by force what they were unable to get as their just dues from the weak and bankrupt government. The United States instituted the receivership and undertook the collection of the customs revenues, thereby guaranteeing an honest administration of the finances and the ultimate payment of the national debt.

To collect the revenues on the three-seacoast sides of the republic was comparatively easy; but to patrol the wild mountain frontier between Santo Domingo and Hayti and to collect duties from the lawless inhabitants, who exacted allegiance to no government at all and who looked on smuggling as one of their inalienable rights, was quite another matter. It was to deal with this frontier problem that a body of picked men, officered by the most daring and experienced Americans that could be found in the various branches of the United States government service, was organized under the name of the Customs and Frontier Guard. The results accomplished by this guard, undergoing many hardships and dangers, have been far-reaching and have made possible an increase in volume of the lawful business. But at what a cost!

While the American officers have been collecting duties from the people of the frontier the smugglers have taken a toll of blood. Eighteen per cent of the entire number of Americans assigned to the frontier during the twenty-seven months the guard has been in service have been killed or wounded. The Americans on the Dominican frontier are little better than moving targets, and hardly a week passes without a Dominican or a Haytian indulging in a little target practice. Every man's hand is against the "Americano," and there is only one ending under a pile of stones among the palms, with nothing but a rough wooden cross to mark the spot.

I was in Hayti at the time of the recent revolution there, and hearing in Port au Prince stories of the wild and hazardous life that the officers of the frontier guard led I determined to make a trip overland across the mountains of Hayti and Santo Domingo and see frontier conditions as they actually existed. I reached the line and saw for myself the splendid work that the Americans there are doing in the face of privation and danger. I stayed at the frontier forts and lived with the men of the guard, and in this way was able to get at first hand a true picture of the life led by these soldiers of fortune, who are soldiers in fact as well.

During the long days spent in riding the interminable Dominican trails across the mountains and the evenings spent in the forts which have recently been built for the greater safety of the guard, or at the hut of some friendly native if darkness caught us far from one of the custom houses, I managed to draw out, incident by incident, the whole murderous story of the American "occupation" of Santo Domingo.

These frontier Americans are not at all the type of swashbuckling adventurers who strut through the pages of filibustering fiction, accounting single handed for whole regiments of "greasers." On the contrary, they are for the most part the quiet, close lipped type who do things all the time, but say things only occasionally. Constantly subjected to the fire of guerrilla warfare, the officers of the guard go serenely about their duties, riding with a finger literally on the trigger of the Winchester that is always ready for action across their knees, and taking an attempt to assassinate them as a regular part of the day's work. Possibly they may even forget to mention a stray bullet from the bush on their return to the fort.

"These Dominicans are the worst shots in the world, with the possible exception of the Haytians," was the way Inspector McMannus, of the guard explained the secret of the charmed life which some of the officers seem to bear. "If they could shoot even a little bit they would bet us all in a month, and I can tell you there would be some celebrating along the frontier if we Americans were out of the way. Then, again, these fellows who make all our trouble are cowards at heart, and they know that if they step out in the trail for a fair shot at one of us it's better than even money that we'll plug him. We are all dead shots and none of us would think of putting his nose outside the fort without a whole arsenal more or less. We know these trails so well that we have all the likely places for an ambush spotted, and we keep a pretty sharp lookout when we come on these bad places. If we see a shaking bush or anything that looks like foul play we let go at the place with our rifle just on general principles. The people hereabout are all wise to this, and so they don't really give themselves a fair chance to pot us."

"But they managed to pot you; how do you account for that?" I asked, for McMannus was just recovering from a bullet through the shoulder, received last November, when he rode with his life in hand to the rescue of one of his troopers.

"Oh, I guess I was a bit careless," replied McMannus. "I'll tell you about it." And he did, but his description of the incident was as dry as an official report, with all his own doings boiled down to mere facts, and I prefer to tell the story as I heard it from the others—from Inspectors Hollesen and Farbusch and from some of the men of McMannus' own guard, who believe him to be the greatest man in the whole West Indies.

Close to the north shore Etang Samatrate, and just at the base of the rugged mountain ridge that marks the dividing line between the republics of Hayti and Santo Domingo, stands the stone custom house of El Fondo, built last year to afford the frontier guard a place of refuge in case of trouble and strong enough to stand an extended siege. The only passable trail across the mountains for many miles in either direction runs within a stone's throw of the fort, and as it commands the water as well as the land route, El Fondo is one of the most important houses on the frontier and a strong detachment of the guard is usually kept there.

Last November three American officers—Inspector John P. Hollesen, commanding, and Inspectors Edgar Farbusch and Irvine S. McMannus—and about twenty Dominican troopers were stationed there. McMannus, who commanded the district of Barahona on the southeast frontier, had come up from his own district with reinforcements, as there were reports of trouble near El Fondo, and it was thought wise to concentrate a strong garrison at that point.

The next post to El Fondo is in the village of Jimini, four hours' ride to the southward. Jimini is on the isthmus that separates Lake Samatrate from that mysterious inland sea of Santo Domingo, Lake Enriquillo. The village consists of a half dozen palm huts, built in a little clearing in the jungle, and the guard post is situated near the edge of the clearing—badly situated, from a strategic standpoint.

For several weeks there had been murmurs of discontent against the central government, and a little band of chronic trouble makers and malcontents, under the leadership of General Jose Gonzales, had been fanning the flame of revolution by circulating the story that the "Americano" would end by taking the country for themselves, and that no time should be lost in driving the guard from the frontier. To the wild mountaineer of the Dominican and Haytian frontier the word liberty is misconstrued for license, and although he actually has no voice in the government of the country, he is tenacious of his imagined rights, and the thought of annexation by a foreign Power is like the proverbial red rag to a bull. So "Down with the Americanos!" became the catchword of the incipient revolution, and soon the handful of men under the leadership of Gonzales were ripe for any trouble.

To open the ball in proper Dominican style Gonzales fell on a native trooper doing patrol duty between El Fondo and Jimini, and as the man was known to be faithful to the guard it was determined to carry him to Jimini and there torture him as a warning to the others. Gonzales and a few men, with their prisoner, swooped down on the Custom House at Jimini and took the place without the firing of a shot, the guards on duty taking to the trails through the cactus, only too glad to get away from such an unpleasant neighborhood.

Inspector McMannus, with a sergeant and three men, was riding from Arroyo Blanco, on the shores of Lake Enriquillo, to El Fondo, and hearing from one of the fugitives what was happening at Jimini he at once changed his course to go to the rescue of his unfortunate trooper. He sent a messenger to Inspector Hollesen asking for reinforcements.

When McMannus and his forlorn hope reached Jimini about fifty revolutionists had taken up a position in the Custom House. But here is where Gonzales and his men had made a fatal mistake, for the Custom House is a flimsy affair of palms, and when McMannus, quick to see his opportunity, approached through the jungle in the rear of the building and opened fire the revolutionists were caught like rats in a trap, and raked by a hot fire from Winchester and Belgians, they were forced to take to the open. Here they made a stand, and when McMannus and his men made a dash across the open to the hut where the captured trooper was being held Gonzales and his men let go a regular hail of bullets.

But while the revolutionists were shooting in the air or wherever their guns happened to be pointing when they pulled the trigger (which is a trick common to most Dominicans) the troopers were shooting to kill, and after one exchange of volleys the revolutionists broke ranks and took to the bush.

Gonzales, braver or more foolhardy than the rest, and humiliated by defeat at the hand of such a small detachment of the hated frontier guard, stopped long enough for a deliberate shot at McMannus, across the little square. The bullet found its mark, and McMannus pitched over on his face stunned by a ball through the left shoulder.

But McMannus is of the breed that "gets his man" no matter what happens, and before Gonzales could gain the shelter of a house the wounded officer was on his knees, and his Winchester cracked twice in such quick succession that the shots sounded like one report. Both balls went home, and Gonzales was dead before he knew what had struck him. As he fell the captured trooper, whom McMannus had himself liberated, ran across the square and emptied his revolver in the dead man's face, just to make sure of him.

When Hollesen arrived with the few men that he could take from El Fondo McMannus lay unconscious and his sergeant was also wounded. But General Gonzales and four of his followers were stretched out on the grass, while several wounded men had been taken into the jungle by their companions. That was the end of the revolution for the time being.

In addition to the Dominican and Haytian smugglers and the Dominican revolutionists the frontier guard has also to deal at times with the Haytian government troops.

There is a long standing dispute between Santo Domingo and Hayti over the boundary line, and great sections of mountain land lie in this contested territory. The Haytians are much more numerous than the Dominicans, and as a result they are constantly encroaching on Dominican territory, and their military outposts are being pushed further and further east.

It is part of the duty of the frontier guard to patrol the frontier and prevent these depredations, and although the two countries are nominally at peace a brush with the Haytian soldiers is by no means uncommon. Last January Inspectors Hollesen and Farbusch, with a small detachment of the guard, came unexpectedly upon a Haytian outpost and were fired on without even a challenge. The Americans were not very sure of their ground and did not return fire, and no casualties resulted.

This rough sketch of the life of the frontier guard officers would not be complete without a word concerning Walter M. St. Elmo, the brains of the organization, who from frequent tours of inspection along the entire frontier keeps his finger on the pulse of the people and directs the movements of his officers from headquarters in San Juan.

At one time a navy diver, and later a revenue officer in Puerto Rico, St. Elmo has the reputation of being the nerviest man on the frontier, and the General Receiver, Mr. Pulliman, in Santo Domingo City, gives him a free hand in frontier affairs.

St. Elmo's office is on the outskirts of the town of San Juan, but although he frequently mounts his mule for long forced marches to Barahona, El Fondo, Comendador, Dajabon and Monte Cristi, the frontier custom houses, he has only twice during the year and a half he has lived there walked in the streets of San Juan!

"I know how the people here feel," said St. Elmo, with a shrug of the shoulders when I expressed surprise at his statement that he was practically a prisoner in his own office.

"If I had any business with them I'd go quick enough, and, in fact, the two times I refer to were to search houses for contraband goods, but I know that I am cordially hated, and why complicate the situation? They spit at me on the streets, and if they tried to do me up I would have to teach them a lesson, and that might make complications in the capital. So I keep to myself."

In headquarters at San Juan they use Colt automatics instead of paper weights. St. Elmo laughed when he caught my look of surprise at the arsenal spread over the tables in every room.

"Yes," he said, "it's handier to have them round than to be always packing a gun in the house. I don't want to follow poor Thurston and Milbourn and the rest for a while yet, and so I've schooled myself to have a gun always within reach of my hand."

These are but a few of the incidents that have smeared the pages of frontier history with American blood since the receivership was instituted and the little band of patriots was sent out into a wild and inhospitable country with the curt instructions to "collect the customs and police the frontier."

For all I know one or all of the good fellows that I slung my hammock with three months ago may have paid their toll to the frontier as those who came before have done. If every officer in the frontier guard was assassinated we in America might not hear of it for months, if at all, for, while the inspectors must be citizens of the United States of proved integrity and tested courage, they become employees of the Dominican government as soon as they don the frontier uniform and Washington bothers about them no more.

They have no illusions, these Dominican-Americans. They know very well that they count for nothing with the Dominican government, and that the people at home hardly know of their existence; but they count for a good deal on the frontier, and there they are giving their best years, and in some cases their lives, to "make good" the Monroe Doctrine. They are kings in their own little districts, it is true, but no Oriental despot, no hated sovereign of history ever sat on a more unstable throne. They live and breathe an atmosphere of treason and treachery, and their very existence depends on their quickness to punish and their keenness to see danger before it is visible.

I have met a good many so called "soldiers of fortune," men who have led adventures and exciting lives in odd corners of the world, but while for the most part these men were fighting impartially for just or unjust causes under alien flags, the American officers of the customs and frontier guards of Santo Domingo have the added incentive of fighting for American principles and American prestige. Here's to them!

IF CONSTIPATED OR BILIOUS—"CASCARETS"

No Biliousness, Headache, Sick, Sour Stomach, Indigestion, Coated Tongue or Constipation.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will give you constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

WOULD BE MOTHER TO ALL SAN DIEGO

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Rae Copely Raum, candidate for Mayor of San Diego, Cal., told last night how she would treat her people if elected to the office to which she aspires.

"If I am elected I will treat all the people as my children and I will have no favorite child. A city is like a household and should be governed as such. As San Diego is just developing from a border town into a metropolis, and while it is in a period of transition, we thought it best to have a woman mayor, because then all the men will do their level best to help her out."

Mrs. Raum is on a transcontinental automobile tour with her sister and some friends, and reached Chicago last night.

SCIENTIFIC NOTES.

"Argentol" is the name of a new alloy intended to be used as a substitute for silver. It was discovered by W. A. McAdams. It is composed mostly of aluminum, so that while having all the appearance of silver it weighs only one-third as much and will therefore "go that much farther." Ordinarily silver and aluminum have no affinity for each other and will not make a good alloy, but by adding certain chemicals the union of the two is produced. The alloy is stronger than silver and is neither attacked by alkalis as aluminum is, nor by acids as silver is. It can be used for everything that silver is used for and being much cheaper it should furnish a very valuable alloy.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS HAVE VARIOUS TROUBLES

The Philippine Islands are passing through a series of unusual experiences. They have the severest shortage of rice—the staple food of the country—of recent years. The sugar market is unsatisfactory; there has been a severe drought that inflicted material damage, locusts and rinderpest add their part to the complications of the time, and there is a money stringency. The people have been compelled to draw on their money reserves to purchase rice, and this has drained the country of many millions of pesos. On the other hand, tobacco and copra are commanding good prices, and high values are reported for good hemp. The Government is also exerting itself, having freed large sums of money for public works in nearly every Province and lent of its resources to the financial institution that carries the largest share of the sugar loans. The sugar outlook is distinctly more promising, says the Manila Times, and if fair prices are realized the general situation largely will be saved.

Are you happy, dear?

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS RELIEVED.

Rheumatic pains are aggravated by cold, damp weather and many hard-working, middle-aged people are made miserable during much of the winter and spring months by reason of this. Their suffering may be very much relieved, and in many cases permanently, by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm and massaging the parts with the palm of the hand at each application. This relieves the pain and makes sleep and rest possible. For sale by all dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., Ltd., agents for Hawaii.

Sept 13, 1912. GEN. BADEN-POWELL FINDS BOY SCOUTS SPREAD OVER WORLD LONDON, Sept. 20.—A report of the boy scout movement throughout the world has been given by Gen. Sir R. Baden-Powell, who has recently visited the West Indies, Canada, the United States, Japan, China, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania and finally South Africa. He found not only great development in the scout organization but an appreciation of the movement by the governments of the countries. In many parts of the empire the scouts had been awaiting the results of the new cadet system, as it was thought that it might render the scouts unnecessary. General Baden-Powell reports on this point that in all countries the governments have asked his opinion as to whether the same training for cadets cannot be applied to the scouts. At the same time the governments are considering the idea of applying the training to cadets in the overseas dominions. The scouts are all communicating with one another to foster a feeling of unity and common welfare. In South Africa the scout movement is of great benefit in bringing together the boys of the two great white races. Sea scouting in the dominions is also gaining ground. The value of this branch of the movement will be proved in the raising up of men trained for sea service.

CHINESE BULL MOOSE TO HASTEN ELECTION TIENTSIN, China, Sept. 15. — Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the Bull Moose of China, who is organizing a big movement to oust Yuan Shi Kai from the presidency, is winning many followers to his cause, according to today's reports from Peking. Since Sun arrived in the capital he and Yuan have exchanged many courtesies, but is said the doctor has satisfied himself by many talks with the president that the latter is a hopeless reactionary. Sun does not propose another revolution. He intends to defeat Yuan at the polls. Yuan has been promising an election for some time, but with each succeeding promise he moves it another month or two forward. Sun would hasten the election. Yuan is head of the Tung Yi Kung Ho Tang, which is the old-line republican party of China. The insurgents say it is backward. The Tung Yi Kung Ho Tang, which Vice President Li Yuan Hung is leader, is the Chinese old-line democracy. Vice President Li has pointed out many mistakes President Yuan has made, but the insurgent view is that if he were president he would not do much differently. Dr. Sun Yat Sen's party is the Tung Meng Hui, the successor to the secret revolutionary group, which overthrew the Manchus. The Tung Meng Hui is tremendously radical — almost socialist. In America it would be known as the National Progressive party.

HANGS BY HAIR FROM SEVENTH-STORY WINDOW NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Residents of Riverside Drive, in the neighborhood of West Ninety-fifth street, were horrified tonight by shrieks that came from a rear seventh-story window in the West Point Apartments at 230 West Ninety-fifth street, when Mrs. Henry Thompson of that address held Miss Julia Wood, a young woman visitor from Washington, by her hair and tried to pull her swaying body back into the window. For five minutes Miss Wood dangled in the air and struggled frantically to get out of Mrs. Thompson's clutches, both screaming at the top of their voices, and then her long hair gave way at the roots and she dropped straight into the areaway almost at the moment when people rushed in to help the courageous woman who was vainly striving to save her guest. The young woman was so badly hurt by the fall that it is not believed she will live. Miss Wood, who is about 30 years old, came from Washington two weeks ago to visit Mrs. Thompson. She was ill and was in charge of a trained nurse.

ARMY SHOES. As a final solution of the footwear problem in the army, Secretary of War Stimson has approved the recommendation of the Leavenworth Board, and only one shoe made on one last will be issued to the army, says the Army and Navy Journal. It will be the modified tan shoe scientifically constructed recommended by the board, and will take the place of the guard garrison, field and dress shoe. It will be lighter, the leather will not be of the oil-stuffed type, but vegetable tan, and can be polished and will have a neater appearance. As no black shoes will be issued, it will be necessary for officers to purchase their black shoes for a full-dress uniform.

Section 31 of the Revised Laws reads in part as follows: "NO PERSON SHALL BE PERMITTED TO STAND AS A CANDIDATE FOR ELECTION TO THE LEGISLATURE UNLESS HE SHALL BE NOMINATED AND SO REQUESTED IN WRITING, SIGNED BY NOT LESS THAN TWENTY-FIVE DULY QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF THE DISTRICT IN WHICH AN ELECTION IS ORDERED AND IN WHICH HE IS REQUESTED TO BE A CANDIDATE. SUCH NOMINATION SHALL EXCEPT AS HERINAFTER PROVIDED, BE DEPOSITED WITH THE SECRETARY OF THE TERRITORY NOT LESS THAN THIRTY DAYS BEFORE THE DAY OF A GENERAL ELECTION. . . . EXCEPT ON THE ISLAND OF OAHU, WHERE SUCH NOMINATION SHALL BE DEPOSITED NOT LESS THAN TEN DAYS BEFORE THE DAY OF ANY ELECTION." The name or names of the candidate or candidates shall be printed with the Hawaiian or English equivalent, if such there be, if the candidate shall so request, the Secretary of the Territory in writing at the time his nomination is filed with the Secretary of the Territory, and such candidate shall, at the time of filing his nomination papers, state by what political party he is nominated or his non-partisanship, as the case may be, in order that such party affiliation or non-partisanship may be printed on the ballot in front of the name of such candidate. EACH NOMINATION MUST BE ACCOMPANIED BY A DEPOSIT OF TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS. Nominations of Senators and Representatives must be deposited with me before twelve o'clock midnight on October 6, 1912, except on the Island of Oahu, where such nominations must be deposited with me before twelve o'clock midnight on October 26, 1912. Nominations of Delegate for election to the House of Representatives of the United States, 63rd Congress, must conform in all respects with the requirements of nominations of Senators and Representatives and must be deposited with me before twelve o'clock midnight on October 6, 1912. Blank forms of nomination papers may be had on application to the Secretary's office. NOMINATION FEES MUST BE PAID IN CASH OR BY POSTOFFICE MONEY ORDER MADE PAYABLE TO ME. E. A. MOTT-SMITH, Secretary of Hawaii. Honolulu, Hawaii, September 17, 1912. 4ts Sept. 21-28-Oct. 5-12.

NOTICE OF ELECTION OF DELEGATE TO CONGRESS. An election for Delegate to the House of Representatives of the United States to serve during the 63rd Congress being required by law to be held on Tuesday, November 5, 1912, at such places as may be designated by the Secretary of the Territory, I hereby give notice that such election will be held at such places throughout the Territory as have been designated by the Governor for the election on Tuesday, November 5, 1912, of Senators and Representatives to the Legislature of the Territory of Hawaii. E. A. MOTT-SMITH, Secretary of Hawaii. Honolulu, Hawaii, Sept. 17, 1912. 5347—Sept. 21, 28; Oct. 5, 12.

NOTICE TO CANDIDATES. The twenty-five electors who sign nomination papers must be chosen from electors qualified to vote at this, not the last, election. Candidates for Senators or Representatives should therefore verify the names of the electors who sign their nomination papers by ascertaining from the County Clerks of the several counties whether at least twenty-five of such names have been duly registered on the Great Register as electors duly qualified to vote in the candidate's Senatorial or Representative District, as the case may be, at the election to be held on November 5, 1912. The names of duly registered electors signing nomination papers for Delegate may be taken from the Territory at large. E. A. MOTT-SMITH, Secretary of Hawaii. Honolulu, Hawaii, Sept. 17, 1912. 5347—Sept. 21, 28; Oct. 5, 12.

INSPECTORS OF ELECTION. Under the provisions of Section 59, Revised Laws of Hawaii, three election inspectors are appointed for each precinct in the Territory who shall, as far as reasonably practicable, be chosen from the opposing parties. All parties are therefore requested to send, at the earliest opportunity, to the Secretary's Office, the names of such persons, stating three or more for each precinct, as they may desire to propose for appointment as election inspectors for the General Election to be held on November 5, 1912. E. A. MOTT-SMITH, Secretary of Hawaii. Honolulu, Hawaii, Sept. 18, 1912. 5347—Sept. 21, 28; Oct. 5, 12.

CHAPTER X.

A Kiss and the Consequences.

MELISSE saw little of Jan during the day. At noon, Dixon told her that he had made up his mind not to accompany Thoreau on the trip south. The following morning, before she was up, Jan had gone. She was deeply hurt. Never before had he left on one of his long trips without spending his last moments with her. Outside of her thoughts of Jan, the days and evenings that followed were pleasant ones for her. The new agent was as jolly as he was fat, and took an immense liking to Melisse. Young Dixon was good looking and brimming with life, and spent a great deal of his time in her company. For hours at a time she listened to his stories of the wonderful world across the sea.

One day, a week after Jan had gone, he told her about the women in the world which had come to be a fairy land to Melisse.

"They are all beautiful over there?" she asked wonderingly, when he had finished.

"Many of them are beautiful, but none so beautiful as you, Melisse," he replied, leaning near to her, his eyes shining. "Do you know that you are beautiful?"

His words frightened her so much that she bowed her head to hide the signs of it in her face. Jan had often spoken those same words—a thousand times he had told her that she was beautiful—but there had never been this fluttering of her heart before.

There were few things which Iowaka and she did not hold in secret between them, and a day or two later Melisse told her friend what Dixon had said. For the first time Iowaka abused the confidence placed in her and told Jean. "The devil!" grunted Jean, his face blackening.

He said no more until night, when the children were asleep. Then he drew Iowaka close beside him on a bench near the stove and asked carefully:

"My angel, if one makes an oath to the blessed Virgin and breaks it what happens?"

He evaded the startled look in his wife's big black eyes.

"It means that one will be forever damned unless he confesses to a priest soon after, doesn't it? And if there is no priest nearer than 400 miles it is a dangerous thing to do, is it not?"

A fierce snarling and barking of dogs brought Gravois to the door. They could hear Croisset's raucous voice and the loud cracking of his big whip.

"I'll be back soon," said Jean, closing the door after him, but instead of approaching Croisset and the fighting dogs he went in the direction of Cummins' cabin. He grunted his teeth as young Dixon's laugh sounded loudly in the cabin. "Two fools!" he went on commencing with himself. "Cummins—Jan Thoreau—both fools!"

During the week that followed Jean's little black eyes were never far distant from Cummins' cabin. Without being observed he watched Melisse and Dixon, and not even to Iowaka did he give hint of his growing suspicions. Dixon was a man whom most other men liked. There were a fascinating frankness in his voice and manner, strength in his broad shoulders and a general air of comradeship about him which won all but Jean.

The trap line runners began leaving the post at the end of the second week, and after this Melisse and the young Englishman were more together than ever. Dixon showed no inclination to accompany the sledges, and when they were gone he and Melisse began taking walks in the forest when the sun was high and warm.

It was on one of these days that Jean had gone along the edge of the caribou swamp that lay between the Barrens and the higher forest. He heard the sound of voices ahead of him, and a moment later he recognized them as those of Melisse and Dixon. His face clouded, and his eyes snapped fire.

He peered forth from the bushes, his loyal heart beating a wrathful tattoo when he saw that Dixon dared put his hand on Melisse's arm. They were coming very slowly, the Englishman bending low over the girl's bowed head, talking to her with strange earnestness. Suddenly he stopped, and before Jean could comprehend what had happened he had bent down and kissed her.

With a low cry Melisse tore herself free. For an instant she faced Dixon, who stood laughing into her blazing eyes. Then she turned and ran swiftly down the trail.

A second cry fell from her startled lips when she found herself face to face with Jean de Gravois. The little Frenchman was smiling. His eyes glittered like black diamonds.

"Jean, Jean!" she sobbed, running to him.

"He has insulted you," he said softly, smiling into her white face. "Run along to the post, my pretty Melisse." He watched her, half turned from the instant she saw him, and she responded in a burst of the trail a broad of hands away. Then he faced Dixon.

"It is the first time that our Melisse has ever suffered insult," he said, speaking as coolly as if to a child. "If Jan Thoreau were here, he would hit you. He is gone, and I will kill him in his place!"

He advanced, his white teeth still gleaming in a smile, and not until he launched himself like a cat at Dixon's throat was the Englishman convinced that he meant attack. In a flash Dixon stepped a little to one side and sent out a crashing blow that caught Jean on the side of the head and sent him that upon his back in the trail.

Half stunned, Gravois came to his feet. He did not hear the shrill cry of terror from the twist in the trail. He did not look back to see Melisse standing there. But Dixon both saw and heard, and he laughed tauntingly over Jean's head as the little Frenchman came toward him again, more cautiously than before.

It was the first time that Jean had ever come into contact with his enemy. He darted in again in his quick, cat-like way and received a blow that dazed him. This time he held to his feet.

"Bah, this is like striking a baby!" exclaimed Dixon. "What are you fighting about, Gravois? Is it a crime up here to kiss a pretty girl?"

"I am going to kill you!" said Jean, as coolly as before.

There was something terribly calm and decisive in his voice. He was not excited. He was not afraid. His fingers did not go near the long knife in his belt. Slowly the laugh faded from Dixon's face, and terse lines gathered around his mouth as Jean circled about him.

"Come, we don't want trouble like this," he urged. "I'm sorry—if Melisse didn't like it."

"I am going to kill you!" repeated Jean.

It was the science of the forest man pitted against that of another world. For sport Jean had played with wounded lynx. His was the quickness of sight, of instinct—without the other's science—the quickness of the great loon that had often played this same game with his rifle fire, of the sledge dog whose ripping fangs carried death so quickly that eyes could not follow.

A third and a fourth time he came within striking distance and escaped. He half drew his knife, and at the movement Dixon sprang back until his shoulders touched the brush. Smilingly Gravois unsheathed the blade and tossed it behind him in the trail. His eyes were like a serpent's in their steadiness, and the muscles of his body were drawn as tight as steel springs, ready to loose themselves when the chance came.

There were tricks in his fighting as well as in the other's, and a dawning of it began to grow upon Dixon. He dropped his arms to his side, inviting Jean within reach. Suddenly the little Frenchman straightened. His glittering eyes shot from the Englishman's face to the brush behind him, and a piercing yell burst from his lips. Involuntarily Dixon started, half turning his face, and before he had come to his guard Gravois flung himself under his arms, striking with the full force of his body against his antagonist's knees.

Together they went down in the trail. There was only one science now—that of the forest man. The little, brown fingers that could have crushed the life of a lynx, fastened themselves around the Englishman's throat, and there came one gasping, quickly throttled cry as they tightened in their neck-breaking grip.

"I will kill you!" said Jean again. Dixon's arms fell limply to his side. His eyes bulged from their sockets, his mouth was agape, but Jean did not see. His face was buried on the other's shoulder, the whole life of him in the grip. He would not have raised his head for a full minute longer had there not come a sudden interruption—the terrified voice of Melisse, the frantic tearing of her hands at his hands.

"He is dead!" she shrieked. "You have killed him, Jean!"

Jean looked into Dixon's eyes. "He is not dead," he said, rising and going to her side. "Come, my dear, run home to Iowaka. I will not kill him." Her slender form shook with agonized sobs as he led her to the turn in the trail. "Run home to Iowaka," he repeated gently. "I will not kill him, Melisse."

He went back to Dixon and rubbed snow over the man's face.

"My God, but it was near to it!" he exclaimed, as there came a flicker of life into the eyes. "A little more and he would have been with the missioner!"

He dragged the Englishman to the side of the trail and set his back to a tree. When he saw that fallen foe's breath was coming more strongly he followed slowly after Melisse.

Unobserved, he went into the store and washed the blood from his face, chuckling with huge satisfaction when he looked at himself in the little glass which hung over the washbasin.

"Ah, my sweet Iowaka, but would you guess now that Jean de Gravois had received two clouts on the side of the head that almost sent him into the blessed hereafter? I would not have had you see it for all the gold in this world."

A little later he went to the cabin. Iowaka and the children were at Croisset's, and he sat down to smoke a pipe. Scarce had he begun sending up blue clouds of smoke when the door opened and Melisse came in.

"Hello, my dear," he cried gayly, laughing at her with a wave of his pipe.

In an instant she had flung the shawl from her head and was upon her knees at his feet, her white face turned up to him pleadingly, her breath falling upon him in panting, sobbing excitement.

"Jean, Jean!" she whispered, stretching up her hands to his face. "Please tell me that you will never tell Jan—please tell me that you never will, Jean—never, never, never!"

"I will say nothing, Melisse." For a sobbing breath she dropped her head upon his knees. Then suddenly she drew down his face and kissed him.

"Thank you, Jean, for what you have done!"

"Whew!" gasped Jean when she had gone. "What if Iowaka had been here then?"

The day following the fight in the forest Dixon found Jean de Gravois alone and came up to him.

"Gravois, will you shake hands with me?" he said. "I want to thank you for what you did to me yesterday. I deserved it. I have asked Miss Melisse to forgive me—and I want to shake hands with you."

Jean was thunderstruck. He had never met this kind of man.

"What the deuce!" he ejaculated, when he had come to his senses. "Yes, I will shake hands."

For several days after this Jean could see that Melisse made an effort to evade him. She did not visit Iowaka when he was in the cabin. Neither did she and Dixon go again into the forest. The young Englishman spent more of his time at the store, and just before the trappers began coming in he went on a three days' sledge trip with Croisset.

The change delighted Jean. The first time he met Melisse after the fight his eyes flashed pleasure.

"Jan will surely be coming home soon," he greeted her. "What if the birds tell him what happened out there on the trail?"

She flushed scarlet.

"Perhaps the same birds will tell us what has happened down on the Nelson House trail, Jean," she retorted.

"Pouf! Jan Thoreau doesn't give the snap of his small finger for the Mac-Veigh girl!" Jean replied, warm in defense of his friend.

"She is pretty," laughed Melisse, "and I have just learned that is why men like to—like them, I mean."

Jean strutted before her like a peacock.

"Am I pretty, Melisse?"

"No-o-o-o."

"I will not kill him, Melisse."

"Then why?" he shrugged his shoulders suggestively—"in the cabin?"

"Because you were brave, Jean. I love brave men."

"You were glad that I pummeled the stranger, then?"

Melisse did not answer, but he caught a laughing sparkle in the corner of her eye as she left him.

"Come home, Jan Thoreau," he hummed softly as he went to the store. "Come home, come home, come home for the little Melisse has grown into a woman and is learning to use her eyes."

Among the first of the trappers to come in with his furs was Mac-
Veigh. He brought word that Jan had gone south to spend the annual holiday at Nelson House, and Cummins told Melisse whence the message came. He did not observe the slight change that came into her face and went on:

"I don't understand this in Jan. He is needed here for the carnival. Did you know that he was going to Nelson House?"

Melisse shook her head.

"Mac-
Veigh says they have made him an offer to go down there as chief man," continued the factor. "It is strange that he has sent no explanation to me."

It was a week after the big caribou roast before Jan returned to Lac Baia. Melisse saw him drive in from the Churchill trail, but while her heart fluttered excitedly she steered herself to meet him with at least an equal show of the calm indifference with which he had left her six weeks before. The coolness of his leave taking still rankled bitterly in her bosom. His hair and beard had grown, covering the smooth cheeks which he had always kept closely shaved. His eyes glowed with dull pleasure as she stood waiting for him, but there was none of the old flash and fire in them. There was a strangeness in his manner, an uneasiness in the shifting of his eyes.

"Jan," she said. Her voice trembled; her lips quivered. There was the old glorious pleading in her eyes, and before it Jan bowed his unkempt head and crushed her hands tightly in his own. For a half minute there was silence, and in that half minute there came a century between them. At last Jan spoke.

"I'm glad to see you again, Melisse. It has seemed like a very long time!" He lifted his eyes. Before them the girl involuntarily shrank back and Jan freed her hands. In them she saw none of the old love glow, nothing of their old comradeship.

"You will come to supper, Jan?"

"Surely, Melisse, if you are prepared."

CHAPTER XI.

Her Promise Kept.

JAN went from the cabin. Jean de Gravois and Iowaka were watching for him, and Jean hurried across the open to meet him.

"I am coming to offer you the loan of my razor," he cried gaily. "Iowaka says that you will be taken for a bear if the trappers see you."

"A beard is good to keep off the black flies," replied Jan. "It is approaching summer and the black flies love to feast upon me. Let us go down the trail, Jean. I want to speak with you."

Where there had been wood cutting in the deep spruce they sat down, facing each other. Jan spoke in French.

"I have traveled far since leaving Lac Baia," he said. "I went first to Nelson House, and from there to the Wholdala. I found them at Nelson House, but not on the Wholdala."

"What?" asked Jean, though he knew well what the other meant.

"My brothers, Jean de Gravois," answered Jan, drawing his lips until his teeth gleamed in a sneering smile. "My brothers the carrier! I saw the two at Nelson House. One of them is a half wit, and the other—he hunched his shoulders—is worse. Petraud, one of the two who were at Wholdala, was killed by a Cree father last winter for dishonoring his daughter. The other disappeared. So you see, Jean de Gravois, what sort of creature is your friend Jan Thoreau!"

"I see that you are a bigger fool than ever," Jean said quietly. "Jan Thoreau, what if I should break my oath—and tell Melisse?"

Unflinching the man's eyes met. A dull glare came into Jan's. Slowly he unsheathed his long knife and placed it upon the snow between his feet, with the gleaming end of the blade pointing toward Gravois. With a low cry Jean sprang to his feet.

"Do you mean that, Jan Thoreau? Do you mean to give the knife challenge to one who has staked his life for you and who loves you as a brother?"

"Yes," said Jan deliberately. "I love you, Jean, more than any other man in the world. And yet I will kill you if you betray me to Melisse!" He rose to his feet and stretched out his hands to the little Frenchman. "Jean, wouldn't you do as I am doing? Wouldn't you have done as much for Iowaka?"

For a moment Gravois was silent.

"I would not have taken her love without telling her," he said then. "That is not what you and I know as honor, Jan Thoreau. But I would have gone to her, as you should now go to Melisse, and she would have opened her arms to me, as Melisse would open hers to you. That is what I would have done."

"And that is what I shall never do," said Jan decisively, turning toward the post. "I could kill myself more easily. That is what I wanted to tell you, Jean. No one but you and I must ever know!"

"I would like to choke that fool of a Croisset for sending you to hunt up those people at Nelson House and Wholdala!" grumbled Jean.

"It was best for me."

They saw Melisse leaving Iowaka's home when they came from the forest. Both waved their hands to her, and Jan cut across the open to the store.

Jean went to the Cummins cabin as soon as he was sure that he was not observed. There was little of the old vivacity in his manner as he greeted Melisse. He noted, too, that the girl was not her natural self. There was a redness under her eyes which told him that she had been crying.

"Melisse," he said at last, speaking to her with his eyes fixed on the cup he was twisting in his fingers, "there has come a great change over Jan."

"A very great change, Jean. If I were to guess I should say that his heart had been broken down on the Nelson trail."

Gravois caught the sharp meaning in her voice, which trembled a little as she spoke. He was before her in an instant, his cap fallen to the floor, his eyes blazing as he caught her by the arms.

"Yes, the heart of Jan Thoreau is broken!" he cried. "But it has been broken by nothing that lives on the Nelson House trail. It is broken because of—you?"

"I?" Melisse drew back from him with a breathless cry. "I—I have broken!"

"I did not say that," interrupted Jean. "I say that it is broken because of you. If only I might tell you!"

"Do—do, Jean! Please tell me!" She put her hands on his shoulders. Her eyes implored him. "Tell me what I have done—what can I do, Jean?"

"I can say that much to you, and no more," he said quietly. "Only know this, my dear—that there is a great grief eating at the soul of Jan Thoreau, and that because of this grief he is changed. I know what that grief is, but I am pledged never to reveal it. It is for you to find out, and to do this, above all else—let him know that you love him. Not as a sister any longer, Melisse, but as a woman!"

Gravois did not stay to see the effect of his last words. Cummins and Jan came in together at supper time. The factor was in high humor. An Indian from the Porcupine had brought in two silver foxes that morning, and he was immensely pleased at Jan's return, a combination of incidents which put him in the best of moods.

Melisse sat opposite Jan at the table. She had twisted a sprig of red bak-neesh into her glossy braid, and a cluster of it nestled at her throat, but Jan gave no sign that he had noticed this little favor, which was meant entirely for him.

"Has Mac-
Veigh put in his new trap line?" Cummins inquired after asking Jan many questions about his trip.

"I don't know," replied Jan. "I didn't go to Mac-Veigh's."

Purposely he held his eyes from Melisse. She understood his effort, and a quick flush gathered in her cheeks.

"It was Mac-
Veigh who brought in word of you."

"I met him in the Cree lake country, but he said nothing of his trap lines."

He rose from the table with Cummins and started to follow him from the cabin. Melisse came between. For a moment her hand rested upon his arm.

"You are going to stay with me, Jan," she smiled. "I want your help with the dishes, and then we're going to play on the violin."

She pulled him into a chair as Cummins left and tied an apron about his shoulders.

"Close your eyes and don't move," she commanded, laughing into his surprised face as she ran into her room.

A moment later she returned with one hand held behind her back. There came the snap of scissors and a little nervous laugh close to his head.

"It's terribly long, Jan." Her soft hand brushed his bearded cheek.

"Ugh!" she shuddered. "You must take that off your face. If you don't!"

"Why?" he asked through lack of anything else to say.

She lowered her head until her cheek pressed against his own.

"Because it feels like bristles," she whispered.

She reddened fiercely when he remained silent, and the scissors snapped more rapidly between her fingers.

"I'm going to prospect the big swamp along the edge of the Barrens this summer," he explained soon, laughing to relieve the tension. "A beard will protect me from the black flies."

"You can grow another."

She took the apron from about his shoulders and held it so that he could see the result of her work. He looked up, smiling.

"Thank you, Melisse."

She went to the cupboard behind the stove and brought out her father's shaving mug and razor.

"I insist that you shall use them," she said, stirring the soap into a lather and noting the indecision in his face. "I am afraid of you."

"Afraid of me?"

He stood for a moment in front of the little mirror, turning his face from side to side. Melisse handed him the razor and cup.

"You don't seem like the Jan that I used to know once upon a time. There has been a great change in you since—"

She hesitated.

"Since when, Melisse?"

"Since the day we came in from the mountain and I put up my hair," with timid sweetness she added, "I haven't had it up again, Jan."

She caught a glimpse of his lathered face in the glass staring at her with big, seeking eyes. She had washed the dishes before he finished shaving. Then she took down the old violin from the wall and began to play, her low, sweet voice accompanying the instrument in a Cree melody which Iowaka had taught her.

Surprised, he faced her, his eyes glowing as there fell from her lips the gentle love song of a heartbroken Indian maiden, filled with its infinite sadness and despair. He stood silent until she had finished, staring down upon her bowed head. When she lifted her eyes to him, he saw that her long lashes were wet and glistening in the lamp glow.

She played again, her voice humming with exquisite sweetness the wordless music which he had taught her. At last she gave him the violin.

"Now you must play for me."

"I have forgotten a great deal, Melisse."

She was astonished to see how clumsily his brown fingers traveled over the strings. As she watched him her heart thrilled uneasily. It was not the old Jan who was playing for her now, but a new Jan, whose eyes shone dull and passionless, in whom there was no stir of the old spirit of the violin. He wandered listlessly from one thing to another, and after a few minutes gave her the instrument again.

Without speaking, she rose from her chair and hung the violin upon the wall.

"You must practice a great deal," she said quietly.

At her movement, he, too, rose from his seat, and when she turned to him again he had his cap in his hand. A flash of surprise shot into her eyes.

"Are you going so soon, Jan?"

"I am tired," he said in excuse. "It has been two days since I have slept, Melisse. Good night!"

He smiled at her from the door, but the "Good night" which fell from her lips was lifeless and unmeaning. Jan shivered when he went out. Under the cold stars he clinched his hands, knowing that he had come from the cabin none too soon.

It was late when Cummins returned home. Melisse was still up. He looked at her sharply over his shoulder as he hung up his coat and hat.

"Has anything come between you and Jan?" he asked suddenly. "Why have you been crying?"

"Sometimes the tears come when I am playing the violin, father. I know of nothing that has come between Jan and me, only I—I don't understand!"

She stopped, struggling hard to keep back the sobs that were trembling in her throat.

"Neither do I understand," exclaimed the factor, going to the stove to light his pipe. "He gave me his resignation as a paid servant of the company tonight!"

"He is not going—to leave—the post?"

"He is leaving the service," reiterated her father. "That means he can no longer live at Lac Baia. He says he is going into the woods, perhaps into Jean's country of the Athabasca. Has he told you more?"

"Nothing," said Melisse.

The next day it was Croisset who went along the edge of the Barrens for meat. Gravois found Jan filling a new shoulder pack with supplies. It was their first encounter since he had learned that Jan had given up the service.

"I say, M. Jan Thoreau!" he fairly hissed.

Jan looked up, smiling, to see the little Frenchman fairly quivering with rage.

"Good morning, M. Jean de Gravois," he laughed back. "You see I am going out among the foxes. I am tired of the post. I can make better wage for my time in the swamps to be west."

Jean's thin lips were almost smirking.

"Blessed saints, and it was I who!" He spun upon his heels without an other word and went straight to Melisse.

"Jan Thoreau is going to leave the post," he announced fiercely, throwing out his chest and glaring at her as usually.

"So father has told me," said Melisse.

Her cheeks were colorless and there were purple lines under her eyes, but she spoke with exceeding calmness.
