Russian General Staff Sends Vast Force Through Northern Poland to Operate in Conjunction With Army Invading East Prussia

MOVEMENT THREATENS TO ENVELOP GERMANS

Slashing Teuton Attack on the French Line at Soissons Has Spent Fury, Says London Today—French Admit Germans Have Reoccupied Several Trenches Previously Lost But Say Allies Have Won Artillery Advantages

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

PETROGRAD, Russia, Jan. 16.—A new Russian army of a million men, hurled by the Russian general staff into the field to drive a new offensive at the Germans, is advancing through northern Poland along the right bank of the lower Vistula.

It is operating in conjunction with the army invading East Prussia. The movement threatens to envelope the Germans at Mlawa and before Warsaw.

FRENCH AND GERMAN BULLETINS TELL LITTLE

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 16.—The German bulletin in Berlin today reports only minor successes.

Near Lys, according to the admission made by the French official bulletin, the Germans have reoccupied several trenches previously lost and made some small gains in the Argonne region.

The French assert that their artillery has won some definite advantages near Carency, compelling the Germans to evacuate their trenches.

BELGIANS GIVE GERMANS THE "SILENT TREATMENT"

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Jan. 16. All of the Belgians are giving the German soldiery the "silent treatment." Even the children avert their faces from the Germans and they cross the street when they see the Teutons approaching.

FURY OF GERMAN DRIVE IN AISNE SEEMS SPENT

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

LONDON, England, Jan. 16.—The fury of the second battle of Aisne is spent. The Germans, after engaging in a violent offensive movement in the vicinity of Soissons, are now making no efforts to press the advantages won.

"CITS" FOR SOLDIERS NOT FAVORED BY WAR CHIEFS IN WASHINGTON

A private letter from a public official in Washington to a resident of Honolulu brings the information that the plan of allowing soldiers of good conduct to wear citizens clothes when on leave is definitely not favored by the war department. No further details are learned except that it seems very unlikely that the "cits" plan will be carried out under the present regime in Washington.

DARING THEFT OF AUTO; TAKEN ON BUSY STREET

John Guild's Big Buick Stolen Last Evening Near Theater

Operating daringly in the heart of the city during the early hours of last evening thieves, of whose identity the police yet have no definite clue, stole the big seven-passenger Buick auto belonging to John Guild of Alexander & Baldwin. Miss Dorothy Guild had driven the car downtown with a party of friends to attend a performance at the Bijou theater, and while they were in the theater the car was taken from the row of autos standing on Pauahi street.

Mr. Guild immediately reported the robbery to the police, but a vigorous search has been as yet unrewarded by discovery of either the car or the culprits. The police were notified that a car was at the bottom of Kipapa gulch, but when the car was towed to the city it was found to be an Overland.

Mr. Guild's car is Number 1487. He himself has absolutely no clue as to the thieves. The police today got in touch with every part of the island, but at an early hour this afternoon no report had been received from persons who had seen the car driven today. Last night the officers were on the alert, but did not see the car.

NEW ARTILLERYMEN QUARANTINED; CAUSE IS PESKY MEASLES

The 91st Company, Coast Artillery Corps, which arrived here on the transport Sherman last Wednesday, is getting a very restricted idea of Hawaii just at present, owing to the fact that the entire company was quarantined the moment it reached Fort Kamehameha, on account of several cases of measles which broke out on the transport. The coast artillery recruits that arrived by the same troopship are in quarantine at Fort De Russy.

No new cases have developed, and it is hoped by the army doctors that the quarantine will be lifted at the expiration of the prescribed time.

Deaths Placed at 20,000

U. S. Attache Tells of Big Disaster

(Associated Press service by Federal Wireless.)

ROME, Italy, Jan. 16.—The best estimates now available of the earthquake disaster give the number of dead as 20,000 and the injured as 40,000.

Where the shocks were the most severe, the percentage of mortality has been even greater than resulted from the Messina catastrophe.

Col. George Dana, the American military attache, who has made a special trip to the Avezzano district, says:

"Every house in Avezzano is down. Only three stables remain intact. Churches, palaces, dwellings are crumbled to dust. The streets are filled with debris seven feet deep.

"Floods, famine and intense cold add to the suffering."

Relief measures are being taken with all possible speed but communications were so shattered by the shock that it is difficult to handle the problem of food and hospital arrangements.

FIRST EXHIBITS FOR EXPOSITION SENT ON SIERRA

Large Hawaiian Flag and Native Primers Make Up Initial Shipment From Honolulu

The first shipment of Hawaiian exhibits to be installed at the Panama-Pacific exposition was today forwarded to the mainland in the Oceanic liner Sierra. It included a huge Hawaiian flag 40 feet long, literature descriptive of the islands and several thousand copies of the "Hawaii" primer.

Later steamers will carry shipments of plants, palms and other decorative material to be used in the Hawaiian building.

While the Sierra did not carry a large list of passengers, the hold was well-filled with a miscellaneous cargo. Through the agency of C. Brewer & Company, the vessel was supplied with 1400 tons of island products including 14,211 sacks of sugar, 3251 bunches of bananas, 1672 sacks of coffee, 123 cases of fresh pines, 1097 cases of preserved pines, 50 bales of sisal, 27 sacks of taro, 540 bales of hides and skins and a quantity of sundries.

The Royal Hawaiian band gave a concert before the ship's departure.

Less than a score of cabin passengers departed in the vessel. A number of Portuguese and Spanish plantation laborers were in the steerage.

PROMOTION DAY MEETING SET BY COMMERCE BODY

Matters pertaining to the work of the Promotion Committee will be the order of business at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The occasion will be known as "Promotion Day." The meeting will be public and residents of the city are invited to be present, join in the discussion and make suggestions as to furthering the work of the committee.

While the meeting is scheduled for 3 o'clock the hour may be changed to 2 o'clock in order that more time may be given to the business on the calendar.

A budget calling for $31,000, the estimated amount needed to carry on the work of the committee during the coming fiscal year, will be presented for consideration and action. Chairman Emil A. Berndt said today that if the income of the committee during 1915 is on the same basis as in 1914, it will be $30,000. There probably will be but one address during the meeting, that of A. P. Taylor, assistant secretary of the committee. He has been invited to talk on promotion work on the mainland and to express his views on the work which the Honolulu organization has accomplished.

"The general public feels that the time has come when it wants to know more about the work of the Promotion Committee," Mr. Berndt says. "It is our idea to have everyone in touch with the work, and therefore the public meeting. At the same time we want to get in touch with the men who have valuable ideas which cannot be obtained in any other way."

ARMY TO BUILD NEW QUARTERS AT KAMEHAMEHA?

Col. Cheatham Recommends It, After Getting Bids From Contractors

A belief that the army can do some construction work on Oahu for considerably less money than local contractors ask for the same job, is indicated by action taken in connection with bids on the officers' quarters at Fort Kamehameha, which were opened last week. After re-figuring the job very carefully, Lieut.-col. B. Frank Cheatham, department quartermaster, has decided to recommend to the war er liberal additions were made to the cers' quarters at the Pearl Harbor artillery post be undertaken by the quartermaster corps.

The low bid on the Kamehameha work was put in by the Honolulu Planing Mill, and while the figure for the barracks was within the estimates, that for the quarters ran far above the sum set by the army men. There is a difference of over $2,000 for each set of company officers' quarters even aft- Honolulu Planing Mill, and the quar- original estimates. The contract for the barracks will be awarded to the Honolulu Planing Mill, an dthe quarters will be built by the quartermaster corps.

This morning Col. Cheatham awarded the contract for the Fort Shafter-Fort Kamehameha pipe line, and the reservoir and pump house that will complete the water system of the latter post. Bids were opened a few days ago, the Lord-Young Engineering Co. being low on the pipe line, while John F. Bowler had low bid for the reservoir and pump house.

Because he refused to pay him a debt of $1, John Pecora of Chicopee, Mass., is alleged to have kicked Larcheo Swea in the head several times and killed him.

"AMERICANIZE THE ISLANDS"

Commissioner-General of Immigration Says Americanization of Islands Demands Prompt Action

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—That the "thorough Americanization of Hawaii demands prompt action" is the declaration in a report of the commissioner-general of immigration, Anthony Caminetti, which has just been made public.

Caminetti says that the "Americanization of Hawaii will never be accomplished under the present incomplete and haphazard methods. Conditions should be made such as to invite the proper kind of laborers from the American mainland, and laws should be enacted to enable them to remain. Anything less would be unfair to Hawaii."

CHARITY TO GET IRWIN BEQUEST THROUGH WIDOW

That the executors of the estate of the late William G. Irwin will make every effort to carry out the wishes of the multimillionaire sugar king so that the Associated Charities of Honolulu, erroneously mentioned in his will as the United Charities of Honolulu, may yet receive the bequest of $25,000, is the information which has reached Honolulu from San Francisco.

Mr. Irwin in his will bequeathed $50,000 to charitable institutions, $25,000 being designated for the United Charities of San Francisco and the remainder to the "United Charities of Honolulu." According to the executors, this amount may go into the residuum of the estate and revert to Mrs. Irwin. In this case, it is stated, Mrs. Irwin will distribute it to the charities where her husband intended it should go.

In a recent interview Attorney W. L. Brobeck of San Francisco had the following to say regarding the disposition of the money:

"The executors will at once file a petition asking for a ruling as to what shall be done with the legacies. They will either be given to organizations that can qualify as coming within the intentions of the testator, or they will lapse and pass into the residuum and thus go to Mrs. Irwin.

"We anticipate that the Associated Charities or similar organizations will ask the court to recognize their claims for the bequest.

"Mrs. Irwin has declared her intention of making distribution of the money to charitable organizations in case the court rules that the money must revert to her. She believes in this way she can carry out her late husband's wishes."

SUPERVISORS INSPECT NUUANU VALLEY ROADS

The city supervisors and Mayor Lane visited the Laimi road, Nuuanu valley, and two short lanes opening into it this afternoon for the purpose of investigating the need for improvement. The officials were invited by James T. Taylor, who has been trying for several months to get the roads in that section improved under the frontage tax statute.

TREATY MENACE IN IMMIGRATION BILL AS PASSED

President Has This as Well as "Literacy Test" as Reasons for Veto

By C. S. ALBERT.

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 3.—President Wilson must decide the fate of the immigration bill. He preferred that this cup should be spared him, but the Senate leaders determined otherwise. They found it impossible to stem the tide in favor of enacting a new law governing the admission of aliens, with the literacy test as a cornerstone.

The final vote in the senate on a motion to eliminate the objectionable literacy test received but 12 votes. This indicated with considerable force that the senate will be in a mood to pass the immigration bill over the presidential veto, when it is returned without Mr. Wilson's approval. More than 30 senators might be opposed to the obnoxious provision without wiping out the necessary two-thirds for enacting the legislation despite the president's veto.

It is regarded as certain that the president will return the immigration bill to the house with his disapproval. He has made it known repeatedly that he will not endorse the literacy test and it is now incorporated in the measure as passed by the senate. In addition, the president will have another potent reason for refusing approval. The Lodge amendment, made a feature of the bill in the senate, permitting an exception to be made in the case of aliens coming here from Belgium, is pronounced by all leading authorities to be a direct and flat violation of the "favored nation clause" in all existing treaties. This discovery will cause Senator Stone and many other friends of the president to urge a veto. It will enable him to shift the burden and make it rest more on treaty violations than on the literacy test.

What action the house will take on a message vetoing the immigration bill is problematical. There is a chance that sufficient strength can be developed to prevent passage over the veto.

If the house should refuse to enact the legislation in opposition to the president's wishes it will reverse the situation that prevailed when Mr. Taft vetoed the same bill. The house then passed it over his veto, while the senate refused to follow that course.

FIGHT FOR LIGHTHOUSE TENDER MAY YET HAVE AFFIRMATIVE RESULTS

That the withdrawal of the lighthouse tender Kukui may bring another and quite adequate vessel to the islands is the latest news from Washington. Secretary Redfield of the department of commerce is having a vessel outfitted in San Francisco, the Columbine, but this is a small craft. Later it is planned to construct a powerful tender, after which the Kukui may return to local waters.

McCLELLAN DEMANDS IMMEDIATE ANSWER

A second cablegram was received today by Secretary Brown of the Chamber of Commerce from George McClellan, whom the chamber proposes to engage to assist Delegate Kuhio at Washington in aid of the Honolulu harbor appropriation. McClellan's message stated that it was imperative that he know immediately whether he is to be engaged or not. His message will not be answered until Delegate Kuhio has replied to a cablegram sent yesterday in which McClellan's services were offered.

FLEET TO COME IN APRIL

Uncle Sam's Big Fighters Will Be Sent on Notable Practice Cruise, Accompanying Secretary of Navy on His Inspection Trip to Hawaii

MAY STAY BUT FOUR OR FIVE DAYS HERE

Time of Cabinet Officer and of Members of House and Senate Naval Affairs Committee is Limited—Drydock to Be Gone Over Carefully—More Development Planned

By C. S. ALBERT.

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 4.—One division of the Atlantic fleet will be detailed to accompany Secretary of the Navy Daniels when he makes his visit to Honolulu early in April, according to present plans. Mr. Daniels feels certain this arrangement will be carried into execution. This means that five of the best and most modern battleships of the service will make the trip from San Francisco.

The opinion of Secretary Daniels is that this journey midway across the Pacific will be good practice sailing for the big ships and will go far to determine their value in time of actual necessity. He thinks the voyage will be of great benefit to officers and men. The designation of the vessels has not yet been made.

Chairman Padgett of the house naval affairs committee virtually has promised to make the tour of inspection with Secretary Daniels and accompany him to Honolulu. The impression prevails that several members of the senate and house naval affairs committees will make the trip when the time comes. A number have the matter under advisement. It is expected quite a goodly company will determine to investigate the naval needs of Hawaii at first hand and be in a better position to legislate wisely hereafter.

ARRIVE ABOUT APRIL 9.

The approximate date of Secretary Daniels' departure from San Francisco for Honolulu has been erroneously stated. He will leave here on March 5, the day after Congress adjourns, making the voyage by water through the Panama canal, reaching San Francisco on March 25. He figures on devoting a week to seeing the sights of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. This would make his departure from San Francisco about April 1 or 2.

It is the purpose of Secretary Daniels to limit his stay in Hawaii. He puts the maximum at "a few days," which he explains should mean four or five. He does not think it will be possible to expand this brief period and give a full week to the Territory.

TO SEE PEARL HARBOR.

Secretary Daniels is greatly interested in the matter of naval betterments at Pearl Harbor. He desires to inspect the big drydock, the navy yard and the marine quarters. He desires to obtain

CARNIVAL TICKETS WILL BE ON SALE AT EARLY DATE THIS YEAR

Script System Adopted and is Placed in Charge of Raymond C. Brown

Raymond C. Brown, in charge of accommodations at the various Carnival events.

Raymond C. Brown, chairman of the committee in charge of the handling of accommodations at the various Carnival events last year, scored such a signal success that he has been requested to once more take charge of this task. Mr. Brown is now planning his script tickets which will be on a similar order to those used last year, and is awaiting the completion of the program before making his final arrangements.

In addition to the customary season ticket, as sold last year, it is probable that with the special arrangement made by the board of directors at a recent meeting whereby the soldiers are to be admitted to pay events at half-price, there will be similar tickets issued, possibly different in color, to be sold to the soldiers in order to expedite the handling of the crowds at the various features of what is expected to be the biggest Carnival ever held in Honolulu.

Just as soon as the tickets are printed Mr. Brown will place them on sale and, as there have already been a number of inquiries for these script tickets, it is believed that the advance sale will greatly exceed that of last year. There is every indication that the other islands will pour large crowds into Honolulu for Carnival week and that seats will shortly be at a premium, therefore it is the advice of those in charge that everyone who proposes to follow the 1915 Carnival in the proper Honolulu spirit take advantage of the script issue and secure reservations well in advance.

Each ticket will be for the same reservation for every event throughout the Carnival, so that those who take advantage of these tickets will be secured against the crowd and bustle of securing individual event tickets at the time the event is about to take place.

The purchase of these tickets will prove of inestimable benefit to the Carnival management in a number of different ways. The financial, of course, counts largely, but another and a very important question that arises at each feature of such an elaborate show is the handling of the crowds. With a knowledge of the number of script tickets sold the management will know that just that number of persons are cared for and will know just where that number is going to be located and will then bend its efforts to caring for the single-ticket purchaser. Another point will be the saving in time in the sale of admission tickets to the individual events.

Last year's sale of advance tickets was most satisfactory, but it is the desire of Director-General Dougherty and his associates that the number be doubled this year.

Commenting on the question of tickets today, Mr. Dougherty said:

"It is up to the public to get in and help the Carnival directorate in every manner possible. The members of the board of directors, the committees in charge of the different events and myself work day and night for the success of the Carnival. Our labors will be greatly lightened if the public will only see the thing in the proper light and lend its cooperation.

"Buy season tickets as soon as they are placed on sale, is my advice to everyone who intends to take in the Carnival and take it in properly. We are endeavoring to put on the best possible show for the least possible cost and at the least possible expense to the public. Therefore, in order to make it the success that it deserves to be it will be necessary that each and every event is given strong support. Be on the lookout for the ticket men and get a season ticket early."

Importance of Brocades

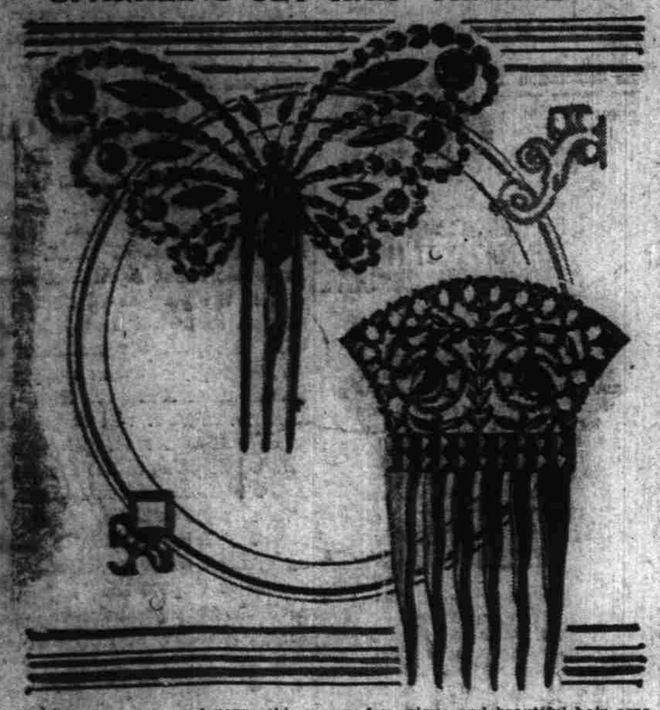
BROCADES are playing an important part in the affairs of Dame Fashion, as they are being used very extensively for the making of evening gowns, in particular, and for other costumes as well—not the stiff, unyielding brocade, too cumbersome for draping and therefore unfit for dressmaking purposes for this era, but soft, beautifully woven and pliable fabrics of damask, satin, taffetas, faille chiffon and velvet that are Byzantine-like in point of gorgeousness and softened to fine tonal harmonies by the artistry of modern designers, who, in addition to the lore of the ages, possess the cultivated opinion of the modern about such things and are able, therefore, to produce unusual and most attractive materials.

Brocades today are produced in wide variety. A black taffeta laine with silver made bouquets of flowers or decorated with a conventional motif in metal or color is a brocade as far as its classification among modern fabrics is concerned.

For theater and restaurant wear brocades provide wonderfully successful gowns. Slippers of the same fabric are now being made to be worn with these gowns. Hosiery, however, should be in neutral shades of solid color and not be decorated in any way, either with embroidery or with lace insertions or fancy woven stitches.

These are left for wear with the short skirted dance frock, designed with extra short skirts for this season's wear.

SPARKLING JET HAIR ORNAMENTS



THERE is an unusual vogue this season for unique and beautiful hair ornaments. But the ones made of sparkling jet are by far the most popular. The ones illustrated here are very cleverly fashioned. The butterfly especially is novel.

Why Not Give Her a Tip?

WHEN a man runs a business he figures his expenses. He knows he must pay higher salaries and commissions for better service if he is to make more money.

But when he goes into the business of matrimony he is either recklessly extravagant and fails to apply any business principles at all or he figures all expenses down to the minimum without reckoning on any sort of recompense for the individual who is general manager, chief clerk, buyer, auditor, office boy and sometimes janitor, besides her ordinary duties as wife, mother and housekeeper.

Many a married man who pays his employees well because he believes it good policy and who tips the elevator boy and the porter because he wants better service doesn't stop to reason that it might be good policy to be as square with his wife and that even a wife will smile more brightly and be more willing to perform little extra services for a man who hands out a "tip" to her once in awhile.

There are men who make it a point to study magazine and newspaper articles on "how to cut the cost of living." It is a fact that as many men as women read these theoretical schemes for saving. These same men, without knowledge or experience in household management or buying home supplies, proceed to lecture their wives on wastefulness and demand a substantial cut in expenses.

Now, the average housewife is pretty well acquainted with the peculiar conditions of her own family. She knows what she can and cannot do in her own home and neighborhood. She is usually an extremely keen and careful buyer and can extract a great deal more out of $5 than the average man can out of $10. As a savings institution she can't be beaten. She's on the job night and day.

But being a good buyer doesn't bring her any commissions. Working overtime doesn't give her any time and a half pay. Her salary isn't raised because her services are indispensable. Does the "boss" reward her with a bonus at the end of the year? Not so's you could notice it.

What right has a man to figure his household expenses down to the minimum and leave out a commission for the one person upon whom depends the success of the whole thing and who usually performs all the labor connected with it? Some husbands are so watchful that their wives cannot even squeeze out "perquisites," such as small change to be found in trousers pockets when m'lord sleeps.

There's too much talk about the wastefulness and extravagance of women, too much advice aimed at them. It's all utilized by selfish and stingy husbands to their own advantage.

How many wives, do you suppose, would spend half the contents of the weekly pay envelope playing pool every Saturday night? Many a man spends a dollar a day for cigars and would think it sufficient ground for divorce if his wife paid out 10 cents a day for ice cream sodas.

BLACK VELVET HAT

SOME of the models this year have feather fantasies which can hardly be realized, so aspiring are they. The chapeau illustrated here carries one of these. Built of black velvet and becomingly tilted, it is very chic, though somewhat extreme.

OYSTERS ROASTED IN SHELL.

WASH and wipe the shells of large oysters and place directly over the blaze, with the deep half shell underneath to catch the juice after the oyster opens up with the heat. Serve hot after carefully removing the top shell, leaving the oyster in its juice in the deeper shell. At each place have a tiny cupful of sauce made of melted butter, lemon juice and a dash of Worcestershire sauce, in which the oysters are dipped before eating.

BECOMING FEATHER BOA

NOTHING is more becoming to the face of milady, whether she be twenty or fifty, than the feather boa. The one illustrated here is in pearly gray curled ostrich feathers. The ends are finished with rosettes and long ends of broad gray satin ribbon.

BEST SORT OF ROUGE.

FOR giving the face a good color get one pot of rouge and one rabbit's foot. Bury them two miles from home and walk out and back once a day to see if they are still there.

Many women allow their faces to become tense and set and then wonder why lines develop. Relax the muscles, cultivate a pleasant expression and remember that lips which curve upward and smile are much more attractive than the drooping sort.

A delightful way of imparting a delicate scent to the hair is to let it filter through in the form of steam. It sounds difficult, but it is not at all. Simply fill a small bowl with boiling water and pour some of your particular perfume upon it. The two liquids will not mingle, but if you hold your head over the bowl the steam of the water will carry the scent with it and through the hair in a most satisfactory fashion.

a fair idea as to what is required to carry out the plan of making Pearl Harbor one of the most formidable naval bases in the world.

"My deep interest in the Pearl Harbor drydock is demonstrated by the careful investigation made of plans for its completion," said Secretary Daniels to the Star-Bulletin correspondent. "Nearly a year was devoted to inquiries and the examination of plans submitted for completing this great undertaking. There was never any intention of abandoning the work. The substitution of a mammoth floating drydock was suggested at various times, and might have been made effective if no way had been devised for continuing the original plans.

"I believe the problem of construction has been solved and the drydock will be completed without further unexpected delay."

CUT POSTAGE ON STAR-BULLETIN SUPPLEMENT

Another tribute has been paid the Star-Bulletin's special Hawaii-Panama edition. This time the praise comes from Alexander M. Dockery, third assistant postmaster-general, who, in a letter to Postmaster William F. Young, says in effect that from now on it will cost residents of the territory 8 instead of 16 cents postage a copy to mail the special edition to friends on the mainland.

Mr. Dockery's letter reads as follows:

"Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of the 19th ultimo., transmitting a copy of the December 18, 1914, issue of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, containing a supplement thereto, described as 'Panama Canal Number, Industrial Section,' and asking to be advised whether copies of the issue are mailable at the second-class rates of postage.

"You are informed that the inclosure appears to be a legal supplement under section 437, P. L. and R., to the issue in question and to be properly identified as such, as prescribed in paragraph 2, section 439, P. L. and R. The inclosure, therefore, does not affect the right of copies of the publication to transmission in the mails at the second-class rate of postage.

"Please, therefore, refund to the publisher from the deposits required on this issue the excess over the pound rate of postage chargeable thereon. . . ."

The Pacific Mail steamer Siberia, scheduled to depart for the coast next Tuesday morning, will carry the next outgoing mail.

Although the lake of fire is about 400 feet below, still it is very large and spectacular. There are also many cones erupting continuously. Hawaii is enjoying perfect weather at present and sojourning visitors and residents of Honolulu who have not visited the volcano should not miss this opportunity. —Adv.

The Royal Hawaiian band served to enliven the departure of the Oceanic steamer Sierra for the coast at noon today. A small crowd gathered at the pier. The Sierra was well-filled with island products, the larger part of which consisted of sugar. The band also played at the departure of the Mongolia.

With shipments of sugar, rice, bran, paddy and sundries the steamer Likelike from windward Kauai ports is an arrival at the port. The vessel has been placed on the berth to steam to the Garden Island at 5 o'clock Monday evening.

Fort Shafter Notes

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

FORT SHAFTER, Jan. 16.—Col. B. W. Atkinson has received an invitation from a number of gentlemen in Honolulu to meet with them and give them an opportunity to his views on the subject of entertainment and diversion for the enlisted men of the army while they are sojourning in Oahu. Col. Atkinson's long experience and service in the army as well as his boyhood days as the son of an officer in the service make him especially well qualified to discuss the subject. One pause that may probably arise is the question of securing an allotment from the war department for the construction of an amusement or assembly hall for the Fort Shafter garrison. The dance given by the non-commissioned officers of the post last Wednesday night emphasized the fact that there is not a room on the post half large enough to accommodate the throng of men that will congregate when an amusement feature worthy of their attendance is produced or presented for their patronage. If an appropriation or allotment of some 8 or 10 thousand dollars could be secured for the purpose the labor could be supplied by the skilled men in the garrison and a hall or assembly room with dancing floor, skating rink together with a stage where theatrical performances, either of home talent or by professionals, could be produced would go a long ways towards keeping the men in garrison for legitimate amusement and would certainly lighten the burden of monotony that all agree assails the enlisted soldier of our army while serving in Hawaii.

Recent appointments and promotions in the grade of noncommissioned officers in the 2d Infantry as announced in orders from regimental headquarters, are as follows:

Headquarters company, Pvt. John T. Mallory, to be corporal, vice Lamontho discharged. Company A, Pvt. Samuel E. Lyeth and Pvt. Thomas F. Sefrit to be corporals, vice Williams and Thers, respectively, discharged. Company C, Cpl. Robert C. Stevens, to be sergeant, vice Van Eman, discharged, and Cpl. Alex. Ball to be sergeant, vice Brown, discharged, and Pvt. Stevedore B. Boykin to be corporal, vice Ball, promoted. Company D, Cpl. John Larkin, to be sergeant, vice Dann, discharged, and Pvts. Benjamin E. Duncan, Christian Oesterbo and James Bittick, to be corporals, vice Larkin, promoted, and Poe and Morgan, discharged. Machine Gun Company, Pvt. Philip J. McCaffery to be corporal, vice Harris, discharged. Company H, Cpl. Richard M. Jarvis, to be sergeant, vice Drewry, discharged, and Pvts. William Hayes and Matthew D. Bethune, to be corporals, vice Jarvis, promoted, and Brown, discharged. In Company K, Cpl. Russell C. Aldridge has been returned to the grade of private at his own request.

The board for the examination of officers of infantry for promotion and of which Col. French, 2nd Infantry, is the president, held its first session for the examination of this year's class yesterday. Capt. G. H. Jamerson and Lieut. A. J. Booth of the 2nd Infantry and Lieut. E. K. Massee, acting judge advocate, appeared before the board and, upon the completion of its organization, were examined by the medical members of the board, Capts. Culler and Schlanser, as to their physical fitness and were pronounced qualified to proceed with further inquiry. In the afternoon the officers concerned were taken for their test in horsemanship under the observation of Maj. Williams. The class finished the required 15 miles in excellent time and in good condition. On Monday the professional examination will be taken up beginning with the subject of field service regulation, oral. Majors Smith and Williams, 2nd Infantry, constitute the remaining members of the board.

Lieut. E. L. Hoffman, secretary of the 2d Infantry mess, has purchased for the mess a new billiard table of excellent quality, with new equipment throughout. As a consequence of the new acquirement of the mess it is proposed to organize a handicap tournament and engage in a series of billiard games for the ensuing weeks. The tournament to be concluded before the arrival of the field training period for the troops, when duty in the post is an uncertain quantity as to duration.

Sergt. Lucius P. Kyle has succeeded 1st Sergt. Ragan in that duty in Company C, 2nd Infantry. The new 1st sergeant is a man of much force and extended service and should do well in the important position to which he has been assigned by his company commander, Capt. Walter H. Johnson.

WANTS WIFE FROM HONOLULU; WHO IN HONOLULU WANTS HIM?

"Our Fame Goeth Before Us."

So spake the ladies of Honolulu when Mayor Lane attempted to induce them to accept an offer of matrimony from Boston. The following letter was received in this morning's mail to the Mayor:

"Boston, Mass., U. S. A., Jan. 5, 1915.

"To His Honor, the Mayor of Honolulu, Hawaii.

"Dear Sir: Can you find a wife for me? I read so much about Hawaii that I imagine I could locate my ideal there. I will be glad if you can help me in some way. I would like a beau.

"I am, a friend,

"WILLIAM F. OSGOOD,

"Boston, Mass., Gen. Del."

The Mayor proceeded to attempt to carry out the request of the Boston man. As he sat contemplating the letter in his newly furnished office, where the curtains have just been cleaned and rugs installed, as City Poet Laureate Botts expresses it, the Mayor suddenly remembered a Hawaiian lady friend, single and of somewhat advanced age. He decided to visit her on the matter.

"Boston is too cold," she said.

The Mayor tried again.

"I don't like beans—me for pol," said a second.

"Too far away," said a third.

And so it went. The chief executive had to give it up. Nevertheless, he was forced to admit that the beauty of Honolulu's fair ladies has been well advertised.

"Now, if any lady wants to go to Boston and get married, let her write to Mr. Osgood or come to me—rather, I mean let her inquire of me. I'm married once already," he said.

The Norwegian freighter Henrik Ibsen, with 6000 tons of Australian coal, was brought to berth at the Inter-Island coal bunker wharf this morning. The Ibsen remained at anchorage pending the departure of the British freighter Strathgarry for the Columbia river.

A delegation of mainland tourists who arrived in the city in the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia will visit the island of Hawaii and the volcano, leaving the city today in the Inter-Island steamer Mauna Kea.

AT THIS ANGLE

By DR. E. S. GOODHUE

So far as Austria and Servia are concerned, it seems to me any fair-minded person must grant that Servia yielded readily to all the essential demands forced upon her.

A careful perusal of the official correspondence will convince a neutral, at least, that Austria was prepared not to accept any reasonable apology or reparation from Servia; that she meant to have absolute surrender or war.

"It might have seemed at the time as if some of Austria's demands were exaggerated, and that no nation could have submitted to them without resigning her national sovereignty," says a German partizan. And as to most of us it still appears.

When upon a breaking off of diplomatic relations, war was declared between Austria-Hungary and Servia, Germany felt bound to stand by her natural ally.

Morality and Ethics.

Regarding the moral and ethical justice of this attitude we are not at this moment concerned.

Undoubtedly, Germany was as much justified in backing Austria as England has been in going to war in order to punish Germany for her violation of a treaty.

One thing has hinged on another—the succession has been like that which follows the first blow at a row of wooden soldiers: a mere political concussion due to propinquity.

I see no more justice in the mobilization of Russian troops before Servia's answer to Austria's ultimatum than in the nature of the ultimatum itself.

Both actions incline the impartial onlooker to believe that Russia and Austria alike were ready to fight for an ulterior purpose. But with war declared between Austria and Servia, Russia and Austria, Servia, Russia and Germany, there was still a way out of further involvement, and that would have been for England to agree to remain neutral provided Germany respected her neutrality treaty with Belgium, and did not invade France.

Following out our present policy, the United States would have remained neutral under similar circumstances, and let Germany, Russia, Austria and Servia "fight it out."

Basic Cause.

The basic cause of the upheaval was a pan-Slavic tendency towards expansion, whatever may have been the exciting causes; an underground rumbling which disturbed Germany more than it could possibly any other considerable territory.

A Russo-German war while terrible enough, would not have resulted in such world-wide consequences as this present conflict must, and might have led the way, Germany being victorious, to a satisfactory adjustment of disputed questions which have troubled Europe for many years.

A more conservative British policy—favored by men like Bryce and Morley and others—would have saved Belgium, obviated a conflict which France did not seek, eliminated the struggle that is costing England so many of her best sons, and have given Germany a free hand to deal with Russia.

For, as Prof. Jastrow says in a recent paper in the Philadelphia Ledger:

"Germany was also ready to promise the integrity of France, and even of the French colonies, if England would remain neutral, and she was ready as late as August 1 to accede to the suggestion of Sir Edward Grey not to attack France at all if England would secure the neutrality of France."

America's Choice.

Between Germany and Russian supremacy Americans at least will not hesitate to choose.

And, possibly, without help Russia would not have pushed the war.

It is true, Servia might have suffered injustice and been forced to submit to exacting conditions, but that would have been a small matter to what is now in hand.

The sad part of the whole disastrous contest is that none of the belligerents are really hostile to each other. While their blood is now heated by actual fighting and a studied patriotic appeal, the quarrel is governmental; based on a theoretical delusion that each national entity owes its very existence to its ability to cope with the "enemy."

This might be true after the fight began, but not so long as the struggle could have been avoided by arbitration. And in each case, for each nation now engaged in this death-fight, THE MATTER MIGHT HAVE BEEN BETTER SETTLED WITHOUT FIGHTING.

Not one item of difference to satisfy which England, France, Germany, Russia, Austria-Hungary, Servia and Turkey are now murdering each other's best citizens but which could have been settled by arbitration, and would have been probably had every nation concerned been unready to fight.

Why They Fight.

Just think of it! They are all fighting because they could fight with some chance of success, either alone or as allies; and not because they ought or had to.

The fact that only governments are "mad" at each other, makes it always possible, if there be peaceable intent, for those governments to avoid a war.

Had Austria been unprepared to force Servia she would not have submitted an unreasonable ultimatum. Had Germany been poorly equipped she would not have backed Austria against a superior power. Had Russia not recovered yet from her Japanese defeat she would never have mobilized her forces "five days ago" (czar's telegram).

Undoubtedly the safety of Switzerland, Holland and other comparatively defenseless countries is due to their very weakness. The day when nations may be apportioned out like Poland was has gone by never to return.

Belgium.

Wicked wars between strong nations may occur, but the world will not allow a premeditated devastation of a helpless territory. It was not Germany's intention to take advantage of Belgium's weakness; she has ruined her, however, inexcusably, because Belgium had England, France and Russia behind her. Had England been inadequate in a military or naval sense, she would not have felt it her duty to defend a principle at the cost of the country involved.

Had there been no dominant power each would have been satisfied to independent existence and internal growth. And, all being practically defenseless against attack, the gradual or suspicious tendency of any one to dominance, would be checked by a concert of powers.

Let us hope that peace will come speedily; that no one power will be in a position to "crow" over the defeat of the other; that none can annihilate or punish its neighbor, but that each will fully realize when the war is over that it was begun only because Europe did not have statesmen wise and good enough to settle the matter in a more satisfactory way.

HIGHER TRIBUNAL TO REVIEW CASES INVOLVING $5000

Senate Passes an Amendment Giving Circuit Court of Appeals Jurisdiction

Attorney W. O. Smith received the following cable from Judge S. M. Ballou, at Washington, D. C., this morning:

"Senate adopts amendment allowing $5000 appeals to circuit court of appeals."

This means that an amendment has passed the senate which slightly modifies the measure removing Hawaii's right to carry appeals to the United States supreme court. Now such appeals are to be permitted to the ninth circuit court of appeals, in San Francisco. Thus the supreme court of the territory would not be the jurisdiction of last resort in suits involving more than $5000.

This morning's message from Judge Ballou is not entirely definite, however, and President Charles R. Hemenway of the Bar Association has cabled him for further and more exact information. The original bill, taking away Hawaii's right to appeal to the United States supreme court, has passed both the house and senate, according to an Associated Press despatch received here Thursday. Senator Culberson cabled yesterday asking whether the bench and bar of the territory desired the local supreme court made the court of final resort or to have their authority vested in the ninth circuit court of appeals at San Francisco. A meeting of the Bar Association has been called for next Monday afternoon to discuss this question.

This morning's message from Judge Ballou does not state whether the new amendment is in the form of an amendatory measure or is an amendment tacked on the original bill. Since it was stated yesterday that the original one had been adopted by the senate it is thought the amendment mentioned by Judge Ballou must be an independent bill. But the local barristers are not certain as to this and President Hemenway's query is expected to bring an answer which will clear up the doubt.

If the amendment is an independent measure some time will pass before it can reach the president for his signature, as it will have to go to the house of representatives and receive action similar to that upon any other independent bill. If, however, it is an amendment to the original bill it means that the original with the amendment must go to the conference committee of both houses and receive the recommendation of that body. The conference committee's recommendation must then be approved by both houses before the measure finally goes up to the president.

If the latter situation is the true one there is a possibility that speedy action may be obtained on the original with the amendment. In that event early advice from the Bar Association of Hawaii will be necessary if local opinion is to have effect at Washington. If, however, the amendment is in the form of a separate bill, then the Bar Association will have ample time to consider the whole proposition and submit its recommendation to Congress.

"It is impossible to say what position the Bar Association will take,' said President Hemenway this morning. "There are some who oppose the idea of having a court of final jurisdiction on the mainland, but a large number of attorneys have been heard to express the opinion that if we must lose the right of appeal to the United States supreme court, they would favor the circuit court of appeals as court of final resort.

"It is quite possible the association's majority membership will favor the amendment mentioned by Judge Ballou as having been adopted by the senate but that is not certain."

PORTLAND STILL TALKS STEAMSHIP LINE.

A good deal has been said now and again about Hawaii's opportunity to build up more extensive trade relations with Portland. Last year a steamship service from the Columbia river port was talked of but it did not materialize.

The opportunity still exists. W. G. McPherson, a Portland businessman who visits Hawaii almost every year, is urging the Oregonians to seize it. In the Oregonian of recent date he writes emphatically:

West in the Pacific Ocean about 2000 miles from Portland lie the Hawaiian Islands, with which we have done little or no business for the past 25 years, though previously we had a considerable trade there, I am told. The islands are large consumers of merchandise of all kinds, as is evidenced by the statistics showing that in 1913 their purchases in the United States amounted to $31,000,000, while they exported $42,475,000 worth of sugar, pineapples, rice hides, bananas, coffee and other commodities. The volume of business amounted to about 850,000 tons, of which 550,000 were exports and 300,000 imports—enough tonnage to load a steamer like the Bear or the Beaver with 3000 tons of cargo nearly every day in the year to and from Honolulu.

There is no doubt that a very considerable amount of business should have been added to our port's record and to the balances of our business houses and banks had we secured our share of it. We are as near to the Hawaiian Islands, with as large stocks and as good banking facilities as obtain in any city in the world, but we have failed to cultivate the Hawaiian businessmen. In 1913 San Francisco sold them $20,000,000 and Puget Sound $4,000,000 worth of merchandise, while Portland's total business amounted only to $16,000. The only reason that we have not secured our share of that large business has been because of the apathy of our merchants, their failure to encourage shipping men by the offering of business.

Last spring while A. H. Devers and myself were in Honolulu we were assured by merchants, brokers and the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce that they would be glad to trade with us if we should show a like disposition to deal with them and provide transportation facilities. As yet we have not taken advantage of the opportunity to secure any part of that trade, but we must arouse ourselves, for trade amounting to millions of dollars annually is awaiting us if we elect to go after it.

If it is to Portland's advantage to trade in Honolulu, the vice versa of the proposition is true. Because it never has been done is the worst possible reason to advance why it should not be done.

President Wilson says that private capital will not develop non-profitable South American steamship business and that the government must step to the front. Will it be necessary for the government to pioneer the way from Honolulu to Portland?

WORKING TOWARD THE SOLUTION.

One of the really significant things about the mission of Dr. Shailer Mathews and Dr. Sidney L. Gulick to Japan is the fact that they are the accredited spokesmen of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

This tremendous problem of American-Japanese relations—economic in fundamentals but involving also international politics, religion, education, social contact—this problem is being tackled not by an industrial commission, not by educators primarily, not by sociologists, but by Christian progressives. As Dr. Mathews said last evening, their mission is an evidence of the newly-realized breadth of Christian opportunity.

Already in the United States a changing tone is evident. In the year and a half that Dr. Gulick has been at work on the mainland results are apparent. More apparent is it that sound foundations have been laid among the American people on which may be erected a structure of understanding and sympathetic goodwill toward Japan.

Dr. Gulick's solution of the problem, including the five per cent annual immigration scheme, may or may not prove feasible. It may or may not meet the favor of the American people. It is only within the last year that any real attention has been paid on the mainland to the necessity of a "new deal" in handling Oriental immigration—and, indeed, all immigration. The study of the question is just beginning. Yet one cannot doubt that the missions of such men as Dr. Mathews and Dr. Gulick will go very far toward solving the problem that for Hawaii is one of the overwhelming problems to be faced.

Secretary Bryan says "serious consequences" will be visited on Carranza if he confiscates the Tampico oil wells. We presume Senor Venustiano will get himself talked about all round the Chatauqua circuit.

ENLIGHTENMENT NEEDED.

Evidently the Independent, published in New York, thinks that Hawaii's schools are under federal supervision. Commenting on Secretary Lane's report, which includes references to the schools of this territory, the Independent sapiently remarks:

"One would hardly think that Hawaii needed much federal care, as the people are well able to care for themselves. Hawaii has been generous in support of education, but is criticised in this report because the education has been too much given to 'advanced theories of a pedagogical or ethical type,' and it is advised that there be a return to 'a sound, not theoretical education,' by which appears to be meant an industrial education, which is the fad of the day, gardening, dairying, storing and cooking—what is called practical."

KIDNAPING GERMAN KULTUR.

Russia may not make cannon-food out of historic cathedrals, but the soldiers of the Little Father are not slow in removing bodily the priceless contents of German art galleries and institutions. An Associated Press despatch says that the Ossolinski Library Museum at Lemberg from which the Russians recently carried off a large number of art objects and manuscripts is considered the most important Polish national art and bibliographical institution in existence. According to authentic reports the Russians transferred to Petrograd 1034 paintings, 24,000 etchings, 5000 autographs, and a quantity of manuscripts of which as yet it has been impossible to even make an estimate. Austrian Poles bitterly resent this raiding of their art and literary holy-of-holies, since among the obpects carried off there are many priceless specimens of an original literary and art-historical character which it would be impossible to replace.

The institution was founded about 1819 by Count Joseph Maxmilian Ossolinski von Tenczyn. The collection grew rapidly and in 1837 it included one of the largest and best collections of plaster-of-paris casts in Europe, in addition to coins and medals, paintings, copper plates, and a comprehensive collection of objects related to natural history.

A few years later a large printing plant was added. Books printed there were largely of a literary and historical character, designed to foster the Polish spirit not only in that part of Austria-Hungary but also in Russian Poland. A few years ago the library-museum contained 128,000 separate works.

The most valuable painting of the Ossolinski museum is a portrait by Titian. It had been taken to Vienna to undergo renovation when the war broke out.

From the Corvallis, Oregon, Republican: "Hawaiian Volcanoes Nearly 30,000 Feet High."

Distance has evidently lent more than enchantment to this view.

Dr. Sidney L. Gulick told a University club audience last night that he has found the newspapers of the mainland trying to be interesting rather than truthful. His statement is certainly true of that section of the American press which recklessly endeavors to aggravate friction between the United States and Japan. On the other hand, there are very many papers, as readers who take the trouble can readily find out, which are of quite another type. In both Japan and America the so-called "yellow press" is harmful, but the "yellow press" is in the minority.

Day after day they appear in the news until they give us a pain—Soissons and Arras and Albert and Meuse, Nieuport and Argonne and Aisne.

A bill is up in California to bar business from politics. Why not a bill barring the legislators from trying to do politics for business purposes?

That "opium ring" is about to be exposed again. For the last five years somebody has been going to expose the "higher-ups." The highest-up yet exposed was a horse-jockey.

Old Doc's Talk

FATHER

The old man isn't as spry as he used to be, my son; we can't deny that. He thinks he's as young as ever yet, and can do the "triple jump" to show his agility. But you notice he comes down a little heavier on his feet, has quit running, prefers a walk. His waist-band is just a bit tighter than it used to be, too.

He sets more store by his "glasses" which, indeed, my boy, he cannot see very well without, though he tells how well he can see at long range. And, my son, you wonder at him misplacing his spectacle case so many times a day.

And you've noticed that dad is considerable of a sissy when it comes to hurting things, my son; won't kill a chicken or a bird even for Thanksgiving. Says it takes the hanks out of his'n.

Yes, my son, tears come easily into his eyes over matters that wouldn't faze you. You're too much grown to show the white-feather or turn ninny about a starving child in a New York ghetto.

You will shoot birds if you get the chance, cut a turkey's head off like the brave guillotiner that you are, and even kill the neighbor's cats and dogs when they come snoopin' round nights.

Why dad is so queer about such things, you can't understand. It's old age, you guess

You've seen him get out of the way of a lizard; he's certainly a little off on some things. He's given up hell. Doesn't want anyone lost even his enemies, and pities the jail-bird.

Thinks punishments are too severe, and, my boy, is actually in danger of turning Socialist. You saw him boo-hooing (though he went into the stoop where he thought he wouldn't be seen) because a little Japanese died whom he had tried hard to save—didn't you my lad?

Yes, dad's getting queer, sure enough!

Yet, my boy, be charitable. If he doen't know much about baseball and the latest fad; if he isn't a mite interested in the last boxing match, and will not learn up-to-date slang, he loves you, and what you do is pretty near right in his eyes—the eyes down deep in his heart. He's done a good bit for you, too, when you couldn't handle him as you do now.

And he stood pretty well among his fellows fifty years or so ago. Was a good runner, they say, and made a record in the milder athletics of his day. He was handy with his hands, too, and could whittle to beat the band. Made his old mother a cupboard which was the pride of her eyes!

And, as a student at college, he never ranked second, you bet! He got only twelve dollars a month for board and schooling, and had to make the rest, my son; sold rubber stamps to make up the difference.

After all he's done fairly well, my boy, if he doesn't understand running autos and sending wireless messages. And if he's rather old-fashioned, superannuated and ready to take a seat on the tramway of life, he was up to the scratch in his own day.

Some way or other, all his chums who are in Who's Who now, think heaps of him. He was some in those days. A 1 was his brand, my son. You yourself will be a back-number in time. It's coming, my son. You can't raise boys and keep up with their new-fangled education. So do as you would like to be done by, laddie.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

—ALBERT P. TAYLOR: The tourists are coming, all right. One has only to take a look at the passenger list of the Mongolia to find this out.

—AUGUSTUS E. MURPHY: The federal clerk's office is a busy place these days especially regarding citizenship matters. Applications for citizenship and declarations of intention have been coming in thick and fast since the first of the year.

—JAMES STEINER: I would suggest to the mayor and supervisors when they change the garbage inspector that they insist that the collection of garbage in the business district, from Beretania to Queen street, be effected during the night or early morning hours. It's anything but sightly to have the huge garbage carts and the exhibition of the numerous garbage cans and boxes exposed to the busy traffic in the shopping district. Now is a good time to start efficiency and progress in "Honolulu Beautiful."

DR. WEIR, VISITOR HERE LAST YEAR, DIES IN PORTLAND

Dr. Hamilton Weir, one of the best-known eye specialists of America, who twice resided for short periods in Honolulu and had many friends here, died on January 2 in Portland, Oregon. Dr. Weir previous to 1903 was considered one of the premier eye specialists of New York City.

During that year organic illness became acute and it became necessary for him to seek a climate beneficial to his health. Up to the time of his death he resided alternately at Honolulu and Portland. His last visit to this city continued for nearly a year. He returned to Portland a few months ago.

In addition to being an eye specialist he was an authority on diseases of the throat and ear.

Dr. Weir was a man of remarkable all-around attainments. His versatility was illustrated while he was in Hawaii for even in the midst of his ill-health here he kept up an active interest in many things. He composed a stirring march for the Royal Hawaiian band which is often on Captain Berger's programs. Noting the difficulty and expense of cutting cane by hand, he set to work to invent a mechanical cane-cutter and when failing health forced him to go to the coast, he was far advanced toward a practical solution of a mechanical problem that has baffled experts for many years. He had in earlier life taken engineering degrees and was the holder of several honorary titles. He was a Michigan graduate and took a keen interest in college affairs.

He was a man of vivid and kindly personality and in his comparatively short residence in Hawaii had endeared himself to a very large circle of friends. He is survived by Mrs. Weir, who was Miss Maud Marston of Laporte, Indiana.

FORMER POLICEMAN IS CALLED BY DEATH

John Marques Ferreira, a resident of this city for thirty-two years, died yesterday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. C. Fras, Maunaloa and Ninth avenue. He was 61 years old and formerly was a member of the National Guard of Hawaii and the Honolulu police department.

Funeral services were held at three o'clock this afternoon from Silva's undertaking parlors, Nuuanu and Kukui streets, and at the Catholic cathedral, Fort and Beretania streets. Burial was in Makiki cemetery.

GOVERNMENT AID, BUT NOT CONTROL, IS URGED FOR FREE KINDERGARTENS; CHILD WELFARE SOUGHT

Annual Meeting of Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Association Held

RETIRING PRESIDENT URGES MORE PUBLICITY

New Officers Named and Year of Busy Usefulness is Outlined

Mrs. F. M. Swanzy was elected president of the Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Association at the annual meeting of the organization yesterday. Other officers chosen were Mrs. Gerrit P. Wilder, first vice-president; Mrs. M. Phillips, second vice-president; Mrs. S. B. Dole, third vice-president; Mrs. A. F. Jackson, recording secretary; Mrs. I. M. Cox, financial secretary; Miss Wilhelmina Tenney, treasurer kindergarten department; Mrs. E. A. Ross, treasurer children's aid department; James Cockburn, auditor.

Committee chairmen were named as follows for the kindergarten department:

Miss Helen Alexander, ways and means; Miss J. Parke, Fort street kindergarten; Miss Eleanor Sturgeon, Miller street kindergarten; Miss E. B. Waterhouse, Kauluwela kindergarten; Miss Margaret A. Hopper, Palama kindergarten; Mrs. J. W. Caldwell, Muriel kindergarten; Mrs. George Curry, Kalihi kindergarten; Miss Beatrice Castle, Beretania kindergarten; Mrs. E. W. Peterson, buildings and grounds, and Miss Frances Lawrence, training school.

The committees of the children's aid department will be headed during the coming year by Mrs. W. R. Farrington, Castle Home, ways and means; Mrs. A. W. T. Bottomley, rules and regulations; Mrs. L. A. Thurston, playgrounds; Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham, home placing of dependent children.

Mrs. U. Thompson was elected chairman of the committee on hygiene and Miss Erminie Cross of the publication committee. Reports were read by Miss Frances Lawrence, superintendent, and Miss Oleson, manager of the Beretania playground. Miss Lawrence, in speaking of the training school work, mentioned that it was just 10 years ago that the first class was graduated. Miss Oleson said that 10,000 children each month are using the apparatus at the Beretania playground.

Report Tells of Work.

The report of Mrs. W. R. Farrington upon the work of the year just closed is as follows:

To the Directors and Members of the Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Association:

With the closing of the school year in June, 1915, Miss Lawrence, the superintendent of our kindergartens, will have finished 19 years of service with us. We all know how valuable these years have been and that to her untiring energy and splendid judgment have been due in large measure the success of the kindergartens. We should like to see Miss Lawrence's twentieth year one of recreation and pleasure, without any worries to mar it.

We wish to thank all of our friends for their generous support and encouragement. It is hoped that the time is near when the kindergartens will receive substantial financial help from either the city or territorial government. We are caring for the "little citizens" of the state, preparing them for the public schools and teaching them order and cleanliness. The teachers of the public schools are always glad to receive the children from the kindergartens and are loud in their praises of the value of the training. In view of all this it is only just that we should receive government aid. However, it would hardly be wise to attempt to make the kindergartens part of the public school system. Under these conditions they go entirely from under the management of the association and would lose much of their individuality, and the teachers much of their enthusiasm. But a kindergarten in connection with the Normal School is worth considering for several reasons, not the least important of which is that it would care for some of the children whom our schools cannot accommodate and who are now running the streets. One reason for the crowded condition of the kindergartens is that the public schools have no room for all the first year pupils and they are either given half sessions or kept out altogether. Those who have been in the kindergartens naturally return to them and it is very hard to send them away.

A year ago the offices of financial secretary of the free kindergarten and playground department and that of the financial secretary of the Castle Home were combined, in order to save confusion and misunderstanding. The experiment has proved a success and the same plan will be followed this year. To Mrs. Swanzy, who has done this double work for us during the past year, we are very grateful. Under the most favorable conditions it is often trying and owing to the general financial depression the year has been an unusually hard one.

I also wish to thank all the officers and chairmen and members of the committees for their untiring interest and support.

It was found necessary to break the usual custom of having an entertainment every two years and crowd one into this past year. There were many silent workers at that time who did their full share toward making the entertainment a financial and artistic success, and I wish to thank them, as well as all of the others who took up the work so cheerfully. A spirit of good fellowship does much toward making the work of any association a success.

The one great change we have made this year has been in the management of Castle Home. After many years of faithful service in the home Miss Belle and Miss Jane Johnson retired last June, owing to the ill health of the latter. For the three months following Miss Lawrence was persuaded to act as superintendent of the home, and, as usual, was untiring in her efforts to make the children happy. They had a most delightful and healthful summer, tramping, picnicking and swimming whenever it was possible. On September 15, Miss Frances Goold, formerly of Kawaiahao, returned from a refreshing and profitable trip in the East and was duly installed as superintendent of Castle Home, with Mrs. F. H. Lockwood as her assistant. Miss Goold is especially fitted to work among children, being both a graduate nurse and a graduate in domestic science, as well as having a knowledge of medicine, and best of all, a tender heart and intense interest in her work. During her vacation in the states Miss Goold visited various homes and is armed with the most up-to-date and scientific methods of running such establishments. I should like to urge all the members of the association to visit the home and see for themselves what scientific management can accomplish. We wish to especially thank our good friends who have refurnished the home for us. I do not believe that there is a home in any part of the country where the surroundings are more ideal and the interior more charming.

Not the least important of the activities of the association is the Beretania playground. Statistics tell their own story, and after listening to the reports of the director of the playground there can be no doubt, not only as to its need, but for the need of more playgrounds. Here again, however, we run against the financial snag, and it is hoped that no effort will be spared to secure help from the city government. In almost all cities the government gives aid to the playgrounds, in many being entirely responsible for their establishment and maintenance.

The need of child legislation has long been felt in Honolulu and two years ago the first active steps were taken in that line. The results were not very satisfactory, owing to the fact that the campaign was started too late. This year, however, the various organizations of the city have banded together to work out the best possible plan for the care of our dependents and defectives. Our association has been ably represented at all of these meetings and it is sincerely believed that this year will see a permanent foundation for the work. The Kindergarten Association will continue its active interest and cooperation, as it bears so directly on what we are trying to do—to give every child every opportunity to make a fair start in life. It is fully recognized now that only by standing together can any permanent good be accomplished, and we are all heart and soul in the work.

Another matter of importance to the association is the need of more publicity. Our friends are many and generous, but the need is great and growing greater. Our kindergartens, like the public schools, are crowded to overflowing. It is hard to turn the children away, but in the more congested districts it is impossible to accept them all. Our teachers are wonderfully patient and do the best that can be done under the circumstances, but it is only too evident that more kindergartens are needed. Honolulu is a growing city and with the need for more kindergartens must come the necessary financial aid, and it is only through an active publicity campaign that this can be accomplished. There are many here who would be glad to add their mite if they knew and understood the conditions, and it is only by keeping the matter constantly before the public that they can know. This is, of course, a matter to be handled very tactfully, but it is the usual method of forwarding all philanthropical movements and is recognized as the best.

Most of the new officers elected for the following year are not new to the work and some of them have served many years. Work among these little children takes a grip on one's sympathies and once in it it is hard to give it up.

The interests of the association are in competent hands, and we are confident of the success of the coming year.

Respectfully submitted,
CATHARINE M'ALPINE FARRINGTON, President.

FT. SHAFTER SOCIETY

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

FORT SHAFTER, Jan. 16.—The all-important event at the post during the past week was the masquerade ball on Tuesday evening for the benefit of the funds of the Army Relief Society. Over 400 guests were present and the subscribers numbered most of the service people about the city and many in society in the town. Over $500 was realized, as the expenses of the affair were kept at a minimum and the supper was provided by donations from the officers and families of the garrison.

On Monday night the regular meeting of the garrison at the 2d Infantry mess rooms known as "ladies' night" took place and though not as large as usual in numbers was most enjoyable. After some especially well-fought rubbers at auction, Mrs. B. W. Atkinson was returned the winner of an attractive tea set on a pretty tray of Japanese stencil. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Chas. S. Lincoln and Mrs. Geo. S. Gibbs. Among those playing were Mrs. Atkinson, Capt. and Mrs. Knowles, Capt. and Mrs. Gibbs, Capt. and Mrs. Lincoln, Maj. and Mrs. Smith, Mrs. J. B. de Ford, Mrs. Robt. McCleave, Mrs. Randolph, Mrs. W. H. Johnson, Capt. and Mrs. Bell, Lieut. and Mrs. Richardson, Lieut. and Mrs. Black and Mr. Bayard Randolph.

Capt. Chas. S. Lincoln is receiving the congratulations of his many friends in the regiment on his appointment as adjutant of the 2d infantry which was announced by Col. French on the 14th in regimental orders of that date. Capt. Lincoln succeeds Capt. Gibson in that important duty and the regiment felicitates itself in the thought that Capt. Gibson is to be followed in the office by one so capable and altogether agreeable as Capt. Lincoln. Capt. Gibson's tour as regimental adjutant was one marked by great ability and eminent success, and the regiment knows that Col. French's choice as to the present appointee will be likewise all for efficiency and the promotion of harmony.

The dancing class under Mrs. Gunn and Mr. Couvain as instructors has received additional members in Mr. and Mrs. J. Morton Riggs and Col. and Mrs. Atkinson of the post. After the conclusion of the regular session on Thursday evening the "class" adjourned to the quarters of Capt. and Mrs. Geo. S. Gibbs for additional practise and added variety of steps such as the "twinkle," introduced with much grace and great success by Lieut. and Mrs. Lloyd Fredendall. The members of the class have under consideration the formation of a dancing club to meet on a night of the week alternating with the regular fortnightly hops of the post.

Capt. William R. Gibson of the 2d Infantry and Capt. and Mrs. W. T. Hannum of the Engineers were returning travellers to the garrison by the transport that arrived on Wednesday afternoon. Capt. Gibson has been absent on leave for two months and spent his respite from duty in San Francisco with Mrs. Gibson. The latter has not been in good health but is now improving and has gone on to New York for an extended visit and will probably not again return to Fort Shafter as Capt. Gibson will shortly be relieved from duty in Hawaii after a tour of duty that has continued for four years.

Miss Gray of the navy yard was a house-guest of Mrs. Erneste V. Smith for the night of the ball and returned to her home at Pearl Harbor the following day. Miss Gray wore a most attractive "schoolgirl" costume at the ball. It was with keen regret that her friends learned that Miss Gray was so unfortunate on Friday to have been nipped in the ankle by a pet dog at the yard. From the incident no bad results are feared since Mrs. Cutts promptly brought Miss Gray to the department hospital where the surgeons administered all needed precautions.

Friday afternoons at Shafter are becoming popular with visitors and yesterday afternoon the road in front of the officers' quarters was well lined with motor parties watching the regimental parade as a finale to a round of visits in the garrison. The lengthening of the days makes it possible for visitors to witness parade and make a few additional visits and enjoy tea after the ceremony and before darkness falls. Among those witnessing the parade were Col. and Mrs. Kendall, Col. Ebert, and Miss Alexander and party, numbering Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. High and Miss Waterhouse.

Capt. Clyde B. Parker, 2d Infantry was slightly injured by a fall from his horse when returning from a tactical ride yesterday afternoon. Though not reported as seriously injured by the surgeons, the captain upon their advice thought it better to go into the hospital for observation and quiet for a period of a few days.

Col. and Mrs. L. W. V. Kennon of Schofield Barracks were guests of Col. and Mrs. B. Walker Atkinson for over the masquerade ball on Tuesday night and on Wednesday they went down to Honolulu to greet Gen. and Mrs. John P. Wisser. Gen. Wisser will succeed Col. Kennon in command at the big Leilehua post.

Master Kerwin Malone, who has been under the surgeon's care for the past two weeks, is now happily convalescent and has been able to be out for short carriage rides during the past three days. He had, it is believed, an attack of typhoid fever of mild degree.

Lieut. and Mrs. L. O. Mathews and Lieut. W. C. Rose were visitors from Fort Shafter at the dancing reception tendered Gen. and Mrs. J. P. Wisser at the infantry amusement hall on Friday night at Schofield Barracks by the garrison of that place.

On account of the noncommissioned officers' dance on Wednesday evening, to which all officers and ladies of the garrison had been invited as special guests, no meeting of the garrison auction club was held.

Col. and Mrs. B. W. Atkinson motored out to Leilehua on Friday afternoon where they were entertained as dinner guests of Col. and Mrs. Kennon and afterwards attended the Wisser reception.

Miss Hall of Schofield Barracks was a house-guest of the Misses Lenihan on Tuesday and went with her hostesses to the masquerade ball in costume and as their guest.

Frank A. Tierney, secretary to Governor Glynn, has been appointed a deputy commissioner under the workmen's compensation act, and will be in charge of the Albany office of the commissioner.

SHIPPING AND WATERFRONT NEWS

MONGOLIA TAKES WAR SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIA

When the Mongolia steamed from port today for the Orient it carried a vast amount of supplies destined, it is reported, for the Russian army and navy. Russian agents have for some weeks past been buying supplies on the coast and it is said a large quantity of them was in the Mongolia.

The report goes that Russia will from now get much of its war material by way of the Pacific, liners dropping them in Japan for shipment across Siberia.

More than 12,000 tons of freight was placed into the hold before the Mongolia steamed from San Francisco for Honolulu and the coast of Asia. The vessel was discharged of about 100 tons of cargo while here. Resuming the voyage to the Far East this morning the Mongolia carried 127 cabin, 40 second class and 522 Asiatic steerage passengers. The vessel left 103 cabin and eight second class passengers in Honolulu. The Mongolia was coaled during its stay at the port.

HARBOR BOARD GOING TO KAUAI FOR PIER SITES

The harbor commission is planning to visit Kauai within the next 10 days or two weeks, probably the latter part of the coming week, to work on the proposed acquisition of sites for the new wharves at Koloa and Waimea. At neither port does the territory at present hold waterfront property available for the piers.

In the case of the Koloa pier the legislative act which set aside an appropriation of $7500 for its construction stipulates that the site must be government land, while the harbor board has decided that at Waimea it would be inadvisable to erect a territorial wharf on privately-owned property. The funds for both projects are available.

The board's request that Mrs. V. Knudsen transfer title to 1.7 acres of her land at Waimea as the site for the new wharf has not been submitted to her agents yet. A map of the wharf site and the tract desired must accompany the letter, and Chairman Forbes expects to obtain the data for this on the board's approaching visit to the Garden Island.

HARBOR NOTES

Taking a part cargo of sugar to serve as ballast the schooner Annie Johnson is reported to have sailed from Mahukona for San Francisco on last Sunday.

The Inter-Island steamer Kaiulani returned to Honolulu from Kipahulu this morning bringing 4070 sacks of sugar. The vessel met with north winds and smooth seas.

Camano Arrived at Hilo.

With more than 600,000 feet of lumber supplied at the north Pacific coast, the schooner Camano was an arrival at Hilo last Thursday afternoon, according to a report brought to Honolulu this morning in the steamer Mauna Kea. The vessel left Port Ludlow 28 days ago, the long passage being due to contrary winds and rough weather experienced after leaving the Sound. The Camano is expected to remain at the Crescent city for about a fortnight.

Purser Phillips of the Mauna Kea reports the departure of the schooner Prosper from Hilo for Port Townsend in ballast last Wednesday. This vessel had been discharged of a shipment of lumber.

Coasters Busy on Hawaii.

Coasters are busy along Hawaii removing a quantity of sugar to Hilo for transhipment, according to a report brought to this city by Purser Phillips of the steamer Mauna Kea. The flagship returned with a general cargo and about 50 passengers. The steamer Nihau was passed at Papaaloa. This vessel will proceed to Kawaihae for cattle. The Helene was discharging firewood at Punaluu. The Mauna Kea met with rough weather in the channels. The vessel will steam for Hilo and way ports at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Hawaii Sugar Report.

Sugar reported awaiting shipment on the island of Hawaii includes the following lots, according to a list brought to this city with the return of Purser Phillips in the steamer Mauna Kea: Olaa, 26,500 sacks; Waiakea, 5500; Papaaloa, 4630; Kaiwiki, 2352; Kukalau, 3850; Hamakua, 4750; Paauhau, 3000; Honokaa, 4000.

HALE CREMATED AND ASHES TAKEN BACK BY WIDOW

The remains of W. D. Hale, a prominent business man and public official from Minneapolis, who died suddenly on board the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia at noon yesterday, was cremated and the ashes were taken back to San Francisco today by the widow and W. H. Hale, a son, in the Oceanic liner Sierra.

Mr. Hale and his family had planned to spend a few weeks in the islands. He had not complained of ill health until Thursday evening, when he was stricken at the dinner table and obliged to take to his bed.

As the Mongolia passed Koko Head, Dr Leach, ship surgeon, was called to attend Mr. Hale and found him dying.

By wireless arrangements were made for the disposition of the body. H. H. Williams being called to take charge of the remains. At the request of surviving members of the family cremation took place last night.

The deceased was in his 78th year. Death was caused by heart trouble. For years Mr. Hale was postmaster at Minneapolis. He also served as a major in the civil war.

EDISON BEGINS RECONSTRUCTION OF HIS PLANT

Every New Building Will Be as Near Fire-Proof as Possible

NEW YORK.—Although the ruins of the big Edison plant at West Orange, N. J., are hardly cold, thousands of the great inventor's employes with their ordinary occupation gone, are engaged in removing the debris while Mr. Edison and his staff are making arrangements for new buildings and placing some of the employes at work in other Edison plants.

The plans for the new buildings to replace the burned structures have not been drawn, but there is one thing that Mr. Edison has determined upon, and that is that they will be as near fireproof as anything can be, and that they will have steel sashes and wire window glass. That much is certain.

While Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, was calling upon Mr. Edison at Mr. Edison's home, he told the inventor of the construction of his automobile factory.

"Henry says that every building of his all over the country has steel sashes and wired window glass, and that's what makes them absolutely fireproof," said Mr. Edison. "There was where our mistake lay." He shoved his hands back into his pockets and rocked on his toes and heels.

"We had wooden sashes and plate glass windows, and the flame just swooped its way about. You can bet that we will now have steel sashes."

It was suggested to Mr. Edison that his chief engineer, Miller Reeves Hutchinson, had been quoted as saying that Mr. Edison regarded the fire as the greatest and most valuable experiment in the fireproof qualities of concrete building.

"Ha!"—Mr. Edison's exclamation was plainly a derisive sniff. "I'm in the habit of making some costly experiments, but I'm not in the habit of trying any that cost $2,000,000. This is the second 'experiment' of that sort I've had. I lost $2,100,000 in Edison, N. J."

"The boys"—referring to his dignified staff of executive officers — "insured some of these wooden buildings that burned. I don't know how much the insurance is, because they never let me know anything about it. I wouldn't insure anything."

Then for the first time Mr. Edison explained his aversion to insurance in general.

Nitrate of soda is being used by onion growers with as successful results as on the sugar plantations. The tonic prevents stunted bulbs caused by poor seeds.

A shipment of 350 brood sows and young pigs, which will be brought in on the Columbian tomorrow, will be installed on the new piggery started by Percy M. Pond at Wahiawa. The new ranch has a capacity of 2,000 head and Mr. Pond expects to supply the local market with the highest grade of pork.

Hawaii is neglecting one of its best local products, according to one of the large beekeepers, who points out that although Hawaiian honey commands fancy prices in Germany there is very little market for it here. Now that the war is curtailing exports to Germany, much honey is spoiling for lack of a local market.

'THE BANKER'S DAUGHTER' TO BE PRESENTED AT POPULAR THEATER

Classic From Pen of Bronson Howard to Be Shown With Pathe Weekly Letter

"The Banker's Daughter," a classic that has weathered a couple of decades, during which time it has been one of the most popular dramas on the stage in both America and England, has been enacted before the photo-play camera by the Famous Players and will be presented at the Popular theater for a three days' engagement, commencing today.

In the cast for "The Banker's Daughter," the Famous Players have shown the greatest discrimination in choosing actors and actresses well fitted to portray the parts at which the mothers and fathers of the present generation laughed and cried in days of yore. A pathetic human interest story, carrying a lot well above the average, is told in "The Banker's Daughter," and told in that old-fashioned style so popular with the grandparents of today. The costuming is true to the days around which the story is told and this alone should awaken memories long dormant in the breasts of many residents of Honolulu. Undoubtedly a goodly number of the theater lovers of today have seen "The Banker's Daughter," in animated form. Those who have will find that the offering has lost none of its pathetic appeal in its conversion to silent drama.

Written by Bronson Howard, whose death a few years ago carried away the dean of American playwrights and left a gap in their ranks that still is vacant, this charming classic still stands a monument to his memory; being declared by the critics of his youthful days as the masterpiece from his pen.

"The Banker's Daughter" will be shown next Monday and Tuesday, matinee and evening, besides the production this afternoon and tonight.

In addition to "The Banker's Daughter," the Popular theater is showing a later Pathe Weekly, filled with the latest news from the seat of war and with matters of current interest in our own land.

CLEVER STARS PROMINENT ON EMPIRE BILL

Filled with action, giving opportunity for a display of ability in horsemanship, the two-part Indian drama, "Grey Eagle's Last Stand," will be shown at the Empire Theater today. The picture abounds in scenes taken from California and the western states. Much care has been taken with the settings and the selection of the cast. The defense offered by travelers in the protection of women and children in wagon train affords a bit of intense realism.

G. M. Anderson has again hidden behind a character he has made world-known and plays the usual part of a hero in "Broncho Billy's Close Call." He helps a little girl out of trouble and occupies the front and center of the spotlight during the greater part of a splendid comedy-drama.

One of the cleverly written and staged Keystone comedies, "He Would a Hunting Go," is listed with the top-liners on the Empire program today.

Ever popular as a fun maker, John Bunny, assisted by Flora Finch, will be seen in "Bunco Bill's Visit," a vehicle well adapted to feature the peculiar talents of the funny fat man of the movies.

BAND PROGRAM

The Hawaiian band will give a public concert in Kapiolani park, Waikiki, tomorrow afternoon commencing at 3 o'clock. Kapellmeister Henry Berger has prepared an attractive program for the occasion. The band played at Pier 7 at 9 o'clock this morning during the departure of the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia and at Pier 10 at noon during the departure of the steamer Sierra for San Francisco.

'EAST LYNNE' IS BIG ATTRACTION FOR THE BIJOU

"East Lynne," famed for its longevity of life and which is being played this week at the Bijou theater by the Players All-Star Company, bids likely to smash attendance records for the present engagement of the Webb organization. Last night a great crowd attended to see this old but intensely human play, while the advance sale for tonight indicates an even larger house. The little faults which creep into a new production on the opening night were all remedied last night and the play was smooth and well enacted throughout. Miss Oakley again scored heavily as Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, while the other members of the company frequently came in for their share of the applause. "East Lynne" will be given for the last time tonight.

Beginning with Monday and continuing through the first half of next week the All-Star Players will present "Texas," a wonderfully strong story of the Texas plains.

NIGHT SCHOOL STARTED FOR 'OUTDOOR' MEN

Promotion Committee Men to Learn Trail Mapping and Proper Tourist Guiding

The outdoor workers of the Promotion Committee have begun their evening class work in the Promotion Committee rooms. Last night Prof. Donagho of the College of Hawaii gave a talk on trail map making. He exhibited the contour map of the Trail and Mountain club, on which he has been at work for several years.

One of the outdoor committee who remained in Java for some time to study the system of trail marking on that island explained the workings of the Javan system and this is being adopted by Prof. Donagho in the plans of his Trail and Mountain map.

Samples of the signs to be placed everywhere on trails were on exhibition and hundreds of these will soon be placed in position, so that no one will find any excuse for losing his way in the mountains about Honolulu. Each sign will indicate what particular walk the tramper is taking, will give the elevation in feet and the distance from the nearest car line and the highest mountain peak.

One of the employes of the outdoor committee has ust returned from a trip over the Olympus trail with a force of Japanese workmen, so that the trails to Olympus and Konahuanui are now in excellent shape. Today he leaves for the Haiula district to put the James Castle trail and the Punaluu trail in shape.

Tomorrow another of the outdoor employes will conduct the two or three motor busses with the excursionists who are to spend the day in the vicinity of Koko Head.

CATHOLIC LADIES' AID RE-ELECTS OFFICERS AT ANNUAL MEETING

The officers, with their assistants, are: Mrs. J. F. Bowler, president; Miss Louise MacCaulay, assistant; Mrs. J. W. Podmore, vice president; Miss Ruth McChesney, assistant: Mrs. Emma McKeague, with Miss Thelma Murphy as assistant, and Mrs. C. J. Campbell, with Miss Sara Lucas as assistant, concluded the board of directors.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the society will be celebrated February 6 with a large entertainment.

PRINCE OF SIAM ENJOYS VISIT IN HONOLULU

Wants to Come Here Again, He Tells Hosts Before Sailing on Mongolia

One of the most democratic royal personages in the world is Prince Kampengpetch of Siam, who paid Honolulu a brief visit yesterday afternoon and evening, sailing on the Mongolia this morning with his party for Bangkok, the capital of his realm. Though royalty itself and with a modern education acquired among his kingly and princely peers in Europe, the Siamese potentate's brother proved a genial and easily-accessible visitor, enthusiastic and eager to chat with his newly-made acquaintances and hosts here.

His entertainment by Governor Pinkham was strictly according to program. There was a touch of formality in the reception and greeting extended by the latter on behalf of Hawaii and the United States government in the suite at the Moana hotel shortly after the arrival of the prince and his party, but all the incidents before and after that event were informal, the local people doing all in their power to make the visit a pleasurable one.

The prince expressed delight at the local climate and scenery and voiced a desire to devote more time to his visit among the people of the islands. He said he hoped to return this way some day, when he could remain in Honolulu several days.

Following the reception he was escorted about the city in an automobile on a sightseeing tour, and in the evening, with the Princess Kampengpetch and Capt. S. Yoo of the royal Siamese army, was guest of honor at a dinner given by the governor. Those who joined the governor in entertaining the visitors at the dinner were Gen. and Mrs. William H. Carter, Admiral and Mrs. C. B. T. Moore, Col. and Mrs. C. B. Cooper, Col. and Mrs. C. S. Bromwell, Capt. and Mrs. James D. Dougherty, Mayor and Mrs. John C. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Tenney and Mr. and Mrs. George Sherman.

LET'S ALL BOOST FOR HONOLULU

Ad Club Members and Others Who Are Interested in Welfare of This City

EVERY RESIDENT OF HONOLULU

should appear in the photo-play that will advertise and promote this city around the world. To be in the scene is a duty that everyone owes himself and owes his city.

From a promotion standpoint there is nothing that can excel this kind of publicity. It pays and pays big. Be there next Monday from 12 to 1, on foot and in automobiles—tops down on these—and keep moving. A bigger and more prosperous city will be the result.

ALBERT P. TAYLOR,
Acting Secretary, Hawaii Promotion Committee.

NEXT MONDAY, between the hours of NOON and ONE O'CLOCK, a big promotion work will be consummated.

ROUTE

Commencing at Alakea and Hotel streets, the motion picture operator will travel along Hotel street to Fort street. The crowd should bank on the makai side of Hotel street, facing Waikiki.

From Fort and Hotel streets the camera man will travel down Fort to King street, the crowd being on th Ewa side of Fort street, facing mauka.

From the intersection of Fort and King streets he will travel over King to Bishop street, with the crowd on the makai side of King street, facing Ewa.

From King and Bishop streets the course will be along Bishop to Hotel street, the crowd along the Young Hotel building facing makai.

From Hotel and Bishop streets the route will lead back to the corner of Hotel and Alakea, along Hotel street, with the crowd this time facing Ewa on the makai side of Hotel street.

A Motion Picture of Honolulu

will be made for exhibition in San Francisco during the Exposition and everybody should get in the picture. The picture will also be shown around the world in Pathe Weekly letters and the benefit will be hard to estimate.

As members of the Ad Club and as citizens of Hawaii let's be out in full force.

W. R. FARRINGTON,
President Honolulu Ad Club.

QUEEN INVITED TO BE 'TAKEN' BY MOVIE MACHINE

People of City Sent Special Notices to Come Out Monday Noon for Picture

CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTSON—I suggest that every man on the street next Monday between the hours of 12 and 1 wear a flower in the lapel of his coat. A hibiscus would not be out of the way and would show in the picture.

J. D. LEVENSON—I suggest the title of the Monday street film should be "Honolulu in January." We want the people away from here to see that we have summer weather in January. It's the climate as well as the people we are advertising. Let the people dress in white and some of the men might take off their coats. It would be a good scheme to have the flower girls on Fort street.

THEO. HOFFMAN—I suggest that the people who own automobiles get in the line of the movie on Monday. This is a great automobile town, a wonder for its size, and we ought to show this in the film.

Queen Liliuokalani and Governor L. E. Pinkham have been extended special invitations to be present when the motion-picture that will tell of Honolulu's business activity to the entire world is taken next Monday between noon and one o'clock. Whether the queen will be able to be out at that time has not yet been decided but it is the desire of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, under whose auspices the photo-play will be shown at the San Francisco Exposition and across the United States, that she can so arrange her affairs as to become a part of the picture.

Personal invitations have been forwarded to a great number of residents of Honolulu, including the members of the army and navy, and it is anticipated that the streets through which the motion picture man will work will be well filled. To be out at this time will be a boost for Honolulu.

As has been pointed out by President W. R. Farrington of the Honolulu Ad Club and by Albert P. Taylor, acting secretary of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, this is the finest kind of advertising that it is possible for any city to command. Hundreds of thousands of people will witness these pictures during the San Francisco fair and each one will form an opinion of this city according to the showing made by its residents.

To bring tourists and to draw visitors it is essential that prosperity be shown on every possible occasion, Farrington and Taylor declare. An excellent way to show this prosperity is to have the streets well filled for the taking of a picture that is to be given such world-wide publicity, for not only will this be shown in San Francisco but also in the Pathe Weekly news letters.

The time, Monday, January 18th, between the hour of noon and one o'clock.

Following is the route that will be followed by the picture man:

Commencing at Alakea and Hotel streets the motion picture operator will travel along Hotel street to Fort street. The crowd should bank on the makai saide of Hotel street, facing Waikiki.

From Fort and Hotel streets the camera man will travel down Fort to King street, the crowd being on the Ewa side of Fort street, facing mauka.

From the intersection of Fort and King streets he will travel over King to Bishop street, with the crowd on the makai side of King street, facing Ewa.

From King and Bishop streets the course will be along Bishop to Hotel street, the crowd along the Young hotel building facing makai.

From Hotel and Bishop streets the route will lead back to the corner of Hotel and Alakea, along Hotel street, with the crowd this time facing Ewa on the makai side of Hotel street.

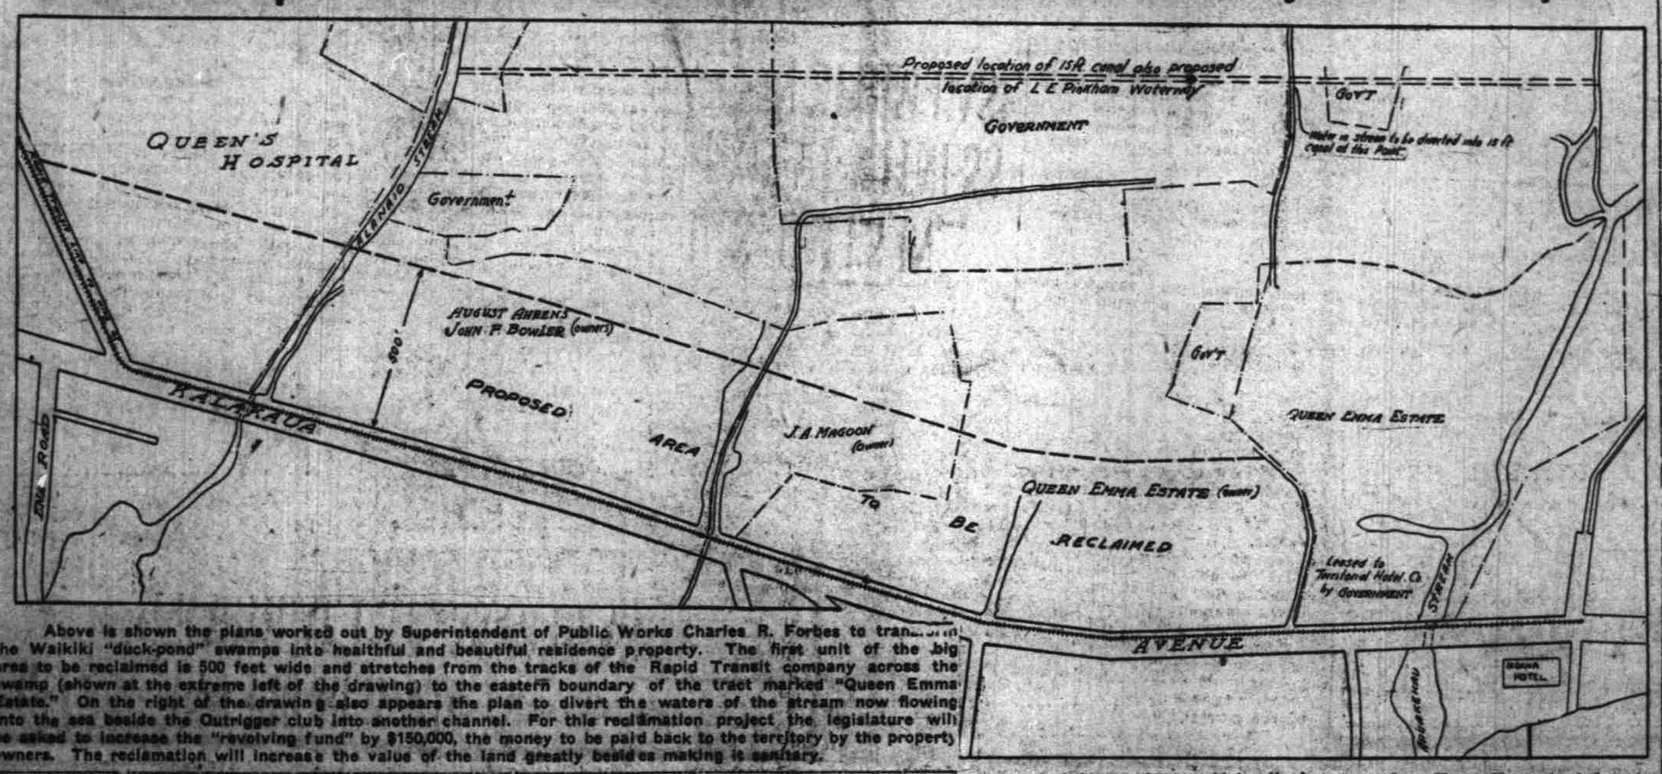
Waikiki Swamps to be Transformed into Beautiful Residence District by Public Enterprise



Above is shown the plans worked out by Superintendent of Public Works Charles R. Forbes to transform the Waikiki "duck-pond" swamps into healthful and beautiful residence property. The first unit of the big area to be reclaimed is 500 feet wide and stretches from the tracks of the Rapid Transit company across the swamp (shown at the extreme left of the drawing) to the eastern boundary of the tract marked "Queen Emma Estate." On the right of the drawing also appears the plan to divert the waters of the stream now flowing into the sea beside the Outrigger club into another channel. For this reclamation project the legislature will be asked to increase the "revolving fund" by $150,000, the money to be paid back to the territory by the property owners. The reclamation will increase the value of the land greatly besides making it sanitary.

COLLEGE AND CHURCH NOW IN PRACTICAL LIFE, SAYS DEAN

Dr. Mathews and Dr. Gulick Speak at University Club and at Central Union Church

The broadening of the field of religion and education was pointed out as one of the significant social changes of the last few years by Prof. Shailer Mathews, dean of the divinity school of the University of Chicago and president of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America, at a dinner in the University club last night. Dr. Mathews, with Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, was here on his way to Japan to carry a message of friendship from the churches of America.

The dinner in honor of Dr. Mathews and Dr Gulick was given by the University of Chicago alumni and the heads of the American and Japanese churches in Honolulu. Although the speakers were to make addresses at the Central Union church later in the evening they spoke briefly a few remarks after the dinner.

Dr. Mathews, who was introduced by the Rev. A. A. Ebersole, a University of Chicago man, spoke of the changing attitude of the American colleges and American churchmen.

"The college professor is still widely regarded as a being with a bulging brow and no other portion of anatomy," he said, "but we know that is no longer true. The old dividing lines between the academic life and life in general no longer exist. Our ideal now is a more inclusive ideal. It is the ideal of social service rather than fidelity to old theological concepts.

"So in my own university there are a number of professors in political life, a number on public committees and a number in other forms of public life. Our students, too, are being impregnated with the ideal of social service, to the actual profession of which many are turning. The great passion with which many of our graduates are leaving college is the passion to make tomorrow better than today, and if our colleges go on being the nuturing ground for this social idealism they will be fulfilling a noble aim."

Dr. Gulick, who was introduced by J. P. Cooke, spoke on the injury done to American-Japanese relations by the spreading of false rumors and reports. He blamed the yellow and jingo press for this.

"The aim of a majority of the editors, news writers and especially headline writers is not to disseminate information but to be interesting," he said. "This is responsible for the inflammatory headlines and not any malicious desire to provoke trouble. Therefore I warn you not to take too seriously what you see in the American papers or the Japanese papers."

Among those who attended the dinner were Dr. Doremus Scudder, J. P. Cooke, the Rev. A. A. Ebersole, John Waterhouse, the Rev. Frank Scudder, the Rev. U. H. Gulick, Prof. A. L. Dean, Prof. Edgar Wood, Prof. Vaughan MacCaughey, Paul Super, Dr. N. B. Emerson, Dr. S. D. Barnes, Riley H. Allen, Nathaniel Pfeffer, George P. Castle, F. Schnack, W. R. Castle, H. B. Campbell, H. E Hendrick, W. A. Bowen, Mr. Kennedy, L. R. Killam, W. O. Smith and a score of prominent Japanese citizens, including Consul Arita, Rev. Okumura and Rev. Motokawa.

At the public meeting in Central Union church Dr. Gulick appealed for a better handling of the immigrant problem. He urged the registration of every alien coming to America and the maintenance of a federal bureau to look after the needs of the immigrants, the expense of this bureau to be met by a tax on immigrants themselves. He also declared that the exploitation of all immigrant labor must cease.

Dr. Mathews spoke of the necessity of applying Christian ideals of justice not only in every-day individual life but in dealing between nations. If this could be assured there never would be a war, he said.

BELGIAN ENVOY IN CITY; THANKS HAWAII FOR AID

Predicting that Belgium will suffer as much during 1915 as during 1914 was made by Count G. Delia Faille, Belgian minister to Japan, just before the departure of the steamship Mongolia for the Orient this morning.

While here the count asked that his sincere gratitude and thanks on behalf of the Belgian people be extended to everyone in Honolulu who had contributed either money or sympathy to the Belgian relief. He declared that the aid of the American people after the devastation of Belgium was the means of saving the lives of many hundred thousand citizens of the small European nation.

The count was in Liege in August when the war broke out. He removed to Brussels when the attacks grew in volume and later to Antwerp when the Belgian capital was moved. He remained in Antwerp until that city was captured by the Germans. Then he made his way to New York City where he contracted typhoid fever and was delayed for nearly two months. He is now convalescing and continuing his journey to his post at Tokio.

"For Belgium it is a struggle for existence," the visitor declared, "the stories of widespread destruction and devastation are not exaggerated. All our great industries, engineering works and factories, all our art and other treasures have been destroyed. If the war was to end today, it would take Belgium 50 years to regain what she has lost because of it."

Count Faille dwelt on the outlook for 1915.

"The worst is due. The third English army is being drilled and when this arrives on Belgium soil there will be harder fighting than ever, with a worse result for Belgium," he said. "Neither side will give up until the last dollar is gone and the last man falls."

U. S. CALLS IN EXPERT WITNESS IN OPIUM CASE

Assistant United States District Attorney J. Wesley Thompson got down to cases at a hearing before the federal commissioner today when he called in A. B. Ingalls, expert chemist, to testify whether a certain dark brown, sticky substance was opium. And he leaned back in his chair and smiled when the chemist, passing a bit of smoking ash under his nose, declared "I'd bet a hundred to one shot that it is opium prepared for smoking."

Mr. Thompson believes that he now has found a way to avoid, in the frequent "poppy drug" cases which he handles, the merciless line of questioning on the point "How do you know it's opium?" He believes that this only prolongs the hearings and, besides, it annoys the marshal, who usually makes the arrests.

When Lee Koon was arrested in Hotel street Thursday night the marshal came away with considerable evidence in the form of opium pipes, lamps, cleaning tools, etc. Included in the evidence were three horns which contained a substance which "looked like opium." It was this substance that A. B. Ingalls, chemist and examiner at the custom house, declared to be opium.

Mr. Ingalls took a "pill" of the substance and, after tasting it, heated it over an alcohol lamp. Then he smelled the fumes.

"I can satisfy myself that this is opium," he said. Then he offered to make the hundred to one shot bet that it was the "poppy drug." He stated that yen shee could hardly be called opium. He referred to it as opium ash.

The hearing brought out a unique method of concealing opium which is comparatively new to the federal authorities. This consisted of a small horn of the "opium" which was found wrapped with paper and stuffed up into the cone-shaped bottom of a quart bottle. The package cannot be seen when the bottle is upright.

Mr. Ingalls explained something of the chemical analysis of opium, saying that meconic acid is peculiar to the "poppy drug" and that it is the finding of this acid in a substance that convinces the chemist it is opium. His declaration that the substance in evidence was opium was not questioned by the defense.

FEDERAL COURT NOTES

The members of the trial jury have been excused until Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

The case of Denjiro Yokoda, petitioner for a writ of habeas corpus, has been continued until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Clerk Augustus E. Murphy today received Volume 234, United States reports, which contains the latest decisions and reports of the United States supreme court.

The case of Ki Kong, charged with the illicit manufacture of liquor at Hamakua, will go to trial Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock. A. S. Humphreys is attorney for the defendant.

United States District Attorney Jeff McCarn is busy preparing a number of cases for investigation by the grand jury. It is possible that this body may be called into session during the coming week.

A motion and order to file judgment in the case of Young Chow Yee, petitioner for a writ of habeas corpus, was allowed today by Judge Sanford B. Dole. The defendant recently was released and the government intends to appeal the case.

A hearing on exceptions to a return and a motion to discharge in the case of Lee Leong, petitioner for a writ of habeas corpus, has been continued until January 19 at 2 o'clock. This is the third petition to be filed by Lee Leong within the past year and a half.

Judge Sanford B. Dole has granted the petition for adjudication in bankruptcy recently filed by Albert B. Lambert, local salesman and former commission merchant. The case has been referred to Referee Alexander Lindsay, Jr. A meeting of creditors will be held in Mr. Lindsay's office January 30 at 9 o'clock.

Charged with having possession of and othewise dealing with smoking opium, Lee Koon Yan pleaded not guilty before United States Commissioner George S. Curry today and was committed to the April term of the federal court for trial. He was released on bond to the amount of $500. The defendant was arrested Thursday night in a room in Hotel street.

SUPREME COURT FINDS AGAINST HONS IN SUIT OVER DAVIS ESTATE

The supreme court in an opinion handed down today affirms the order made by Circuit Judge W. L. Whitney on September 8, 1914, surcharging Ferdinand Hons in the sum of $1000 for the benefit of Alma Eleanor Davis, an heir of the late David Henry Davis, from whom Hons as administrator of the estate was found to have withheld her rightful share, or $2000.

Alma Eleanor Davis was awarded $2000 and Hons, the administrator, is surcharged half that amount, which he must pay from his own pocket. The trouble arose when, after the administrator had made a distribution of the estate, it was learned David Henry Davis had another child by a former marriage living on the coast.

Cowpeas and sweet potatoes make a good combination feed for hogs, according to William Henry, who has been experimenting on his hog ranch at Kaneohe. The best of the sweet potatoes are sent to market and the small potatoes and culls are fed to the pigs.

Efforts made to promote education in the southern states are summarized in the sixth installment of the report of the general education board, founded by John D. Rockefeller.

ANOTHER LEGAL OPINION SOUGHT ON PLEASANTON

Petitioner Wants to Withdraw License Application Because It is Defective

The Pleasanton hotel's present application for a liquor license is slightly defective. This much was admitted by Attorneys R. W. Breckons and C. H. Olson, who appeared before the liquor license commission yesterday afternoon and asked permission to withdraw it.

Whether the commission can grant this withdrawal, thus permitting the petitioner to file a new one in the immediate future, as a legal question over which the board members expressed doubt, and they finally decided to submit it to Attorney-General I. M. Stainback for his opinion.

Pending his ruling the board will take no action on the matter. The point is that if the commission cannot grant the withdrawal the application must be denied, which would deprive the petitioner of the privilege of another application for two years.

Judge Antonio Perry, appearing for those opposed to the license, urged the commission to deny it, definitely disposing of the troublesome question for at least two years. Otherwise, he declared, the affair promises to drag for a long period. He argued the petitioners have had their opportunity and have failed to take advantage of it.

A large number of persons representing the Anti-Saloon League, Punahou college, the pupils of that institution and their parents, all opposed to the license, attended the session.

In the executive session the commission granted Walter F. Drake permission to sell a half-interest in the Encore saloon to E. L. Smith, with the privilege of changing the name to show the partnership.

License Inspector Fennell submitted the following report on the Pleasanton hotel petition, showing it defective because lacking the number of approving signatures by property-holders which the rules of the commission require.

"I wish to call the attention of the board to the fact that the signatures of the consent of property holders were secured and acknowledged March 9 and 12, 1914, and I believe there has been an unnecessary delay of filing.

"And I also find in checking the consent of the property holders that there are 169 persons eligible to sign the consent. The consent filed bears 83 names, of these 29 upon September 24, 1914, the date of filing the application, have lost their rights to consent by reason of death or otherwise ceasing to be property holders.

"This leaves 59 valid signatures, as against 85 required to make the majority called for by the statute. I therefore report that the application has not fulfilled the requirements of section 12, Act 119, S. L. 1907, and that no further action be taken in the matter."

LANG AKANA IS TO PLAY WITH SPOKANE TEAM

Northwestern League Team Grabs Local Outfielder When Portland Lets Him Go

Lang Akana will get his baseball chance on the coast after all, and although he will not wear the uniform of the Portland Coast League team next season, he will sport that of the Spokane Club, of the Northwestern League. On account of the publicity which he has been given in the coast papers, his work will be closely watched, and he is sure of getting a square deal once he catches on.

A letter to Eddie Nell, from Billy Orr, who was here with the Venice players, gives some interesting gossip of the Akana case, and of the Tigers. Orr says in part:

"I see that McCreddie has let Lang Akana go, but Spokane immediately grabbed him. We gave Lang a boost when we arrived, and Jack McCarthy did likewise.

"I start coaching at Stanford right away, and will remain there until about the 7th of March.

"Cliff Blankenship has been appointed manager of the Salt Lake team, as he is very popular there. No definite arrangements have been made as to training quarters for that team, although San Jose has been mentioned.

"We had a great trip coming home on the Sonoma. A bunch of English chappies were aboard, and some of our gang persisted in giving three cheers for the Kaiser, and a riot could have easily been started."

The Spokane Chronicle carries a slightly different account of the signing of Akana, and although the writer's geography is somewhat mixed, he is evidently a booster at heart, and the story is calculated to give Akana a good standing in Spokane.

The Chronicle says:

Lang Akana, a Hawaiian of half Chinese blood, whose home is in the Philippine islands, has been signed up by President Farr of the Spokane team to report here in the spring as a candidate for the Spokane baseball club.

Akana is an outfielder and according to Jack McCarthy, the coast league umpire who recommended the player to Mr. Farr, he is one of the most wonderful natural ball players the veteran umpire has ever seen in action. Akana is a fast man covering ground, hits well and is ready for a chance in fast company after he has had some experience in the minors.

The Hawaiian player will be brought from the islands by the local club and will probably make the longest trip of any recruit in the country to join a baseball club in the spring. Akana has been a star in the American game on the islands for three years and has been touted for a place in the Pacific Coast League, but President Farr stepped in when McCarthy handed out the strongest kind of a recommendation and signed up the player for Spokane.

"There is no doubt about Akana's ability to make good," writes McCarthy. "He is a wonder in all branches of the game. He hits well, fields like a demon and can run bases like a flash. I am certain he will make a valuable man for your clubs and that he will go into faster company after he has picked up some experience in the minor leagues."

"I have heard of Akana several times," said President Farr, "and have considered going after him, but when McCarthy wrote me in regard to Akana I decided not to wait any longer and signed him up. He will be the first player of Chinese blood to play in the Northwestern League."

PLANS COMPLETE FOR THE JOHNSON-WILLARD BATTLE

Further details of the coming fight for the heavyweight championship of the world, between Jack Johnson and Jess Willard, arrived by yesterday's mail. A New York despatch under date line of January 8, says:

Jack Johnson and Jess Willard will meet in a forty-five-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world at Juarez, Mexico, on Saturday, March 6 next. Final arrangements to this effect were made here today after other bids were received from Havana, Cuba and Tia Juana, Mexico.

Johnson has been guaranteed $30,000, win, lose or draw, while Willard has been assured a minimum of $15,000, and may receive a much larger sum by sharing in the affair with the chief promoter.

The bout will take place in the Juarez race track, and the management of the track promises suspension of racing for a few days if necessary to facilitate the erection of stands there for the accommodation of spectators.

When Johnson signed the articles a few weeks ago in Europe he was handed $1000 for expenses, and today $1000 more was cabled to him at Buenos Ayres, from which port he will sail tomorrow morning on his way to Juarez.

Jess Willard, who has been in this city for a few days, will leave tomorrow for a brief stay at Excelsior Springs, Mo., and then will proceed to El Paso about January 25, in all probability, and expects to weigh about 250 pounds when he enters the ring.

Johnson and his handlers will establish training quarters at Juarez as soon as he arrives there.

More than 16,000,000 animals for human consumption were sold for $409,134,000 cash in Chicago during this year.

American copper exports to Europe reached a total of 30,724,367 pounds, valued at $3,825,474 in the first three weeks of December.

SAWED OFF SHORT

The 2d Infantry will be represented in the swimming meet scheduled for the Carnival next month. Company commanders have been requested to select and enter such men of their companies as may possess ability as speedy watermen and who desire to enter the races, and these men will have the necessary tryouts to determine the team to represent the regiment. Fort Shafter, as is well known, has no salt water swimming facilities, but the team will be given an opportunity for that class of swimming at De Russy or other point. A list of over 20 men has been designated for the tryout for the team, with two or three companies yet to be heard from as to selections.

There will be 46 players a side in the Service-Country Club golf match at the local course tomorrow. This is the largest golfing turnout in the history of the game here, and there is considerable speculation as to the outcome of the match, although it is generally conceded that the club players have the edge on their home course. A few of the matches will be played this afternoon, but the majority will be run off tomorrow morning.

There is lots of baseball on tap for the fans tomorrow, games being scheduled at Moiliili field and also at Athletic park. On the latter grounds the reorganized Chinese will play against the Asahis. This should draw a good crowd, as a number of Japanese fans have been clamoring to see their team in action again. Apau will pitch for the Chinese, with Markham at the receiving end. T. Moriyama and Nishi will form the Asahi battery. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

The Mikiki League will stage another double-header at Moiliili field tomorrow afternoon, the opener between the Kaimukis and Theatricals being scheduled for 1:30. The second game will start about 3 o'clock, the Donnas meeting the Makiki Stars. Henry Chillingworth will umpire. The admission to this game is only 10 and 15 cents, just enough to cover running expenses, and this should stimulate attendance.

Carry-the-News and Helen C., the two crack Hawaiian polo ponies that were loaned to the American team for the international matches last year, arrived here safe and sound a few days ago. Both ponies are in excellent condition and show no bad effects from their hard campaign on eastern fields.

GOLF SPOTLIGHT ON OUIMET AND WALTER HAGEN

Francis Ouimet attained the premier rank among American amateur golfers during 1914. The youthful Boston links prodigy also gained international fame by his triumph in the French open championship tournament.

The achievement of Ouimet during the 1914 season stands out unique in the annals of golf. Although he lost the national open title to Walter C. Hagen, the American-bred professional of Rochester, N. Y., in the remarkable tournament staged at the Midlothian Country club, the Boston star a few weeks later wrested the amateur crown from Jerry Travers with a sparkling exhibition of unbeatable golf at Ekwanok.

Ouimet battled his way into the finals of the amateur tourney by overcoming two former national champions, W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont and Robert Gardner of Hinsdale, in the preliminary match play. He was forced to extend himself to defeat Max R. Marston of Baltusrol in the first round by the narrow margin of 1 up. Fownes, who tied R. R. Gorton of Braeburn for the qualifying medal at 144, and later won the play-off, succumbed only after just as desperate a fight in the semi-finals.

Setting a new competitive course record of 142 for Midlothian on the opening day, Walter Hagen annexed the national open laurels with the grand total of 290. Hagen fought a spectacular battle with Charles Evans Jr., the brilliant Edgewater amateur, throughout the second day, the enormous gallery flowing from one contender to the other to keep constant track of the trend of victory.

DE RUSSY BASKETBALLERS ARE WORKING HARD

The basketball squad of Fort De Russy has gone into the sport with the determination to wind up the season with a first division team. From left to right, those in the above picture are: Standing—Nielsen, Hoober, Capt. C. W. Waller (mgr), Davison, Goetz. Seated—Johnson, Nielson, Goebig, Cosgrove.—Kodagraph Print.

NO UPSETS IN BILLIARD LINE DURING YEAR

A notable feature of the year 1914 in billiards was that not a single title changed hands. William F. Hoppe of New York retained possession of the 18.2 and 18.1 championships and in addition gained first hold on the new 14.1 Brunswick trophy, emblematic of the world's championship at that style of balkline. Alfredo de Oro gained permanent possession of the Jordan Lambert three-cushion emblem, while Bennie Allen of Kansas City won the pocket billiard emblem outright.

With the exception of Allen in one match, none of the champions was seriously threatened. His narrow escape came early in the year, when James Maturo of the Denver Athletic Club slipped up at a crucial moment and the Kansas City player won by the small margin of thirteen balls. After that he won easily—from Edward Ralph of Highstown, N. Y., Ray Pratt of San Francisco and again from Maturo.

De Oro defended his title three times, defeating in turn Charles Morin of Chicago, Fred Eames of Denver and George Moore of New York, his smallest margin of victory being thirty-seven points against the first named. At the present time it looks as if the veteran Cuban is unbeatable, and the same can be said about Bennie Allen, unless De Oro should again try for the pocket billiard title.

This applies even more strongly to Willie Hoppe and his trinity of titles. Hoppe defended his 18.2 and 18.1 titles once each, George Sutton, the challenger, being easily defeated both times.

When the new 14.1 championship was staged at New York, Hoppe again demonstrated his superiority by winning seven straight games from a classy field. He had a grand average of 25 65-100, his next highest competitors, Demarest and Morningstar, doing a little over 14.

Another notable event of the year was the international match between Hoppe and Melbourne Inman, the British champion. This was at mixed styles, balkline and English billiards, and while each player proved supreme at his own style, Hoppe was better at the English game than Inman was at balkline. The match was the best three out of a series of five, and Hoppe won the first three, played respectively at New York, Chicago and Montreal.

NO GRATITUDE IN BASEBALL VERDICT OF CHIEF BENDER

[By Latest Mail]

PHILADELPHIA.—Chief Bender is irate because of the story alleged to come from Shawkey, in which the latter stated that Plank and Bender were done and never would pitch winning ball again in the American League, and both were used only against teams they could beat. To this Bender said:

"If Shawkey really said that, then I stand convinced there is no gratitude in baseball among players. I taught Shawkey all I knew about pitching and then for him to come out with the statement credited to him is showing a spirit which actually startles me. I hardly believe it is true, and will not believe it until I see Shawkey and learn the truth of the matter."

The chief is spending the winter here at his Tioga home, devoting his time to his sporting goods business and trap shooting at which he is one of the best in the business.

MAJOR LEAGALITIES

The American league is going to try a new umpire named Dominick Mullaney next summer.

It is stated that Charles Somers, owner of the Cleveland Americans, is willing to sell his New Orleans franchise.

Herman Schaefer, formerly with the Washington Americans, is wanted as manager of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league.

The individual members of the all-American all-National league teams which went to Hawaii this winter are said to have made $1500 each.

Pearson and Thompson of Lawrence were tied for first place in the pitchers' record of the New England league last summer with averages of .818.

The addition of Sherwood Magee to the Boston National outfield should greatly strengthen that team and give them a good man to put fourth in the lineup.

The Boston Americans have had eight managers since 1901, the year they started. James Collins held it longer than any other man to date, having it five years.

Ten of the Athletics who won the world's championship in 1913 have left that team. They are Collins, Bender, Coombs, Plank, Daley, D. F. Murphy, Lavan, Orr, Brown and Houck.

Ray Miller, first baseman of the Columbus team, says that Pittsburg has secured a splendid shortstop in Walter Gerber. This means that Wagner will play first base next summer.

$84,576 PAID TO SEE DAVIS CUP MATCHES

[By Latest Mail]

NEW YORK—The report of the financial side of the international Davis cup tennis matches shows that the public paid $84,576 as admission fees and for programs in Chicago, Boston and New York. Gross receipts at Chicago, where the Australians met the Canadians, were $7913. At the matches between the Australians and Germans at Pittsburg, the amount paid was $5906. At Boston the receipts were $13,390 for the finals between the Australians and British. The greater part of the receipts—$57,367—was taken in at Forest Hills, Long Island, for the challenge matches, in which Norman E. Brookes and Anthony F. Wilding, the Australians, captured the cup from the American defenders.

Expense of staging the matches was about $30,000. Of the gate receipts the Australians received $23,748. The American Association's share was $17,811.

There was no waste, as even the lumber in the stands was sold and the old tennis balls disposed of as souvenirs.

The American Surety Company distributed gold coins to each of its 500 employes. The denominations ranged

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS ON THE 'Y' SCHEDULE

The Y. M. C. A. indoor baseball season begins tonight when the intermediate clubs stage a doubleheader. The XX Club and Olympics play one game and the Hawaiis and P. B. C. I. the other. Each game will be seven innings and the first will be called at 8 o'clock.

On Tuesday, January 26, the senior indoor baseball league begins. The P. B. C., Tigers, Athletics and a combined dormitory team are the probable entries. There is room for new players on all the teams and those interested should notify the association office.

The bowling season will be on in full swing next week. On Monday evening the Honolulus play the Coast Defense in the opening match of the senior league. The Signal Corps will meet Chamberlain's Colts on Wednesday and the P. B. C. and Cosmos roll their first match on Thursday.

The Club Bowling League composed of four teams of the less experienced bowlers begins operations on Tuesday evening with a match between the East and West End clubs. Matches will be rolled every Tuesday evening, the P. B. C. and L. P. C. being the remaining teams. The P. B. C. will enter a new team in this league, the first team of that club having entered the senior league. New bowlers or those who wish to learn the game are invited to leave word at the Y. M. C. A. if they want to try out for the club league. There is room for new members on two of the teams.

Seventy new members have joined the Y. M. C. A. this month and it is hoped that the above attractive athletic program will help bring in the remaining 30 to complete the campaign for 100 new members in January. Join now and get in all the best of the 1915 stunts at the "Y."

MANY NEW SWIMMING MARKS WERE HUNG UP DURING YEAR JUST ENDED

[By Latest Mail]

NEW YORK—Despite the fact that many national and world's swimming records were broken by Americans in 1914, the year's most important feature was probably the amazing progress witnessed in long distance events; progress which will go unchronicled because times made in running water are not ranked as standards. It is significant of the rapid strides made that the difficult 22-mile course from the Battery to Sandy Hook, only twice covered before last summer, was officially negotiated in July by four swimmers under A. A. U. supervision.

The test was competitive, and three Boston representatives finished one, two, three, proving their unquestionable national supremacy in aquatic endurance.

George Meehan of the Brookline S. C. not only won the race by a margin of one hour, but smashed to pieces the record of 8 hours 12 minues held by S. L. Richards of the L Street club, when he landed in 7 hours 18 minues. The latter took second place, proving how unwarranted were the doubts expressed regarding his performance of the year before; his teammate, Walter Dunn, was third, a few feet back, and C. B. Durborow of Philadelphia placed fourth, the last of the quartet to reach the goal.

Another record for a regulation course which went by the board was that of 10 miles, in the Mississippi river. Herman Laubis of St. Louis lowered it to 1 hour 48 minutes 25 seconds in winning the national A. A. U. championship.

Times for the regulation shorter courses were given much attention. At 50 yards Barrett Small of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, did 25 2-5 seconds straightaway; Duke Kahanamoku of Honolulu did the 100, also straightaway, in 54 3-5 seconds; Perry McGillivray of the Illinois A. C. covered 120 yards in 1 minute 8 2-5 seconds, with 5 turns; his teammate, Harry Hebner, traveled 150 yards in 1 minute 31 1-5 seconds, with 7 turns. Then Hebner, Kahanamoku and McGillivray all three scored at 220 yards, doing respectively: Hebner, 2 minutes, 21 seconds, with 11 turns; Kahanamoku, 2 minutes 26 4-5 seconds, with two turns, and McGillivray, 2 minutes 32 2-5 seconds, with 1 turn. Hebner and Ludy Langer of the Los Angeles A. C. accounted for the 440-yard figures, the former returning 5 minutes 22 2-5 seconds, with 21 turns, the latter 5 minutes 22 1-5 seconds, with 5 turns; Joseph Wheatley of the New York A. C. contributed a 500-yard mark of 7 minutes 4-5 second, with 21 turns; Langer added an 880-yard one of 11 minutes 46 2-5 seconds, with 12 turns, and Herbert Vollmer of the same club completed the list with a 1000-yard performance, 12 turns, in 14 minutes 19 2-5 seconds.

With the exception of the three marks last mentioned, all the above figures represent world's records for the conditions named. In relay racing the Illinois A. C. team twice created international standards at 400 yards, 100-yard relays, doing 3 minutes 52 2-5 seconds in a 75-foot pool and 3 minutes 57 1-5 seconds in open water.

At back stroke swimming Hebner furnished two world's standards at 150 yards, viz.: 1 minute 49 3-5 seconds for the distance in 20-yard bath, and 1 minute 55 4-5 seconds over a 75-yard course.

All records were also shattered in scholastic and collegiate competition. The boys of the Brookline high school accounted for the former and captured the individual and team championships, chiefly through the efforts of Leo Handy, the all-around swimmer, A. Wales, the national plunger, and F. Jouannett, the leading diver. Among the collegiates leading were the sprinters Hoadley and Roberts of Yale and Smith of California University; and the middle distancers, Cross of Princeton and Langer of California.

SUNDAY'S GAMES.

2d Infantry vs. Engineers; Fort De Russy vs. Alert. Armory, 2:30 p. m.

Four more games are on tap for this evening and tomorrow afternoon in the Service Basketball League and, judging by the attendance at former games, a big crowd will be on hand to see the soldier and sailor teams in action. The league has made a big hit with the sport-loving public, and basketball generally has come in for a boost. Tonight the first game of the double-header will start at 8 o'clock, two 20-minute halves being played. Sunday, the opener is at 2:30 o'clock.

FAST COMPANY E TEAM TAKES GAME FROM COMPANY G

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Jan. 16.—Dennis won the second game for Company E yesterday when he defeated the G Company boys by a score of 8 to 0 in the 1st Infantry series.

Dennis is showing fine form, even better than was expected. He struck out 13 men and allowed four hits. La June, for G Company, struck out but five men and allowed five hits.

The E Company boys played a fast game from start to finish, while G Company was up in the air most of the time.

Company E now heads the list with a percentage of 1000. The next game is with B Company on Saturday. Dennis will also pitch Saturday's game.

BIG MAJORITY FOR IMMIGRATION BILL IN HOUSE

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—The report of the conference committee on the immigration bill, which leaves the measure practically as it passed originally in the house, was yesterday adopted by the representatives.

The report has already been adopted by the senate, leaving the bill now ready for presentation to the president for his approval.

The vote in the house stood at 227 for the report, which includes the literacy test clause, to 96 opposed.

The votes taken during the final divisions on the bill indicate that it can be passed over the expected veto of the president.

Before taking definite action on the bill, the president will hold a number of public hearings.

BROKERS REGAIN CONFIDENCE AND STOCKS BEGIN TO RISE

Sugar Securities and Bonds Go Up On Buying Orders for Investment

If the business life of Honolulu is to take its color in the next few months from the stock market, the city is in for a year of good times, tariff or no tariff, war or no war. After a first week of sparring, the second week of the year was characterized by a marked feeling of confidence.

Not only have a large number of the listed stocks and bonds made good advances, but there has been a brisk demand. Sales have been fairly numerous and offers of buyers more plentiful. This has been true both of sugar and other industrials and bonds.

Notwithstanding the little change in sugar price during the week the stable sugar stocks have been in demand and have been bidded up from ¼ to 1 point. The general bullish sentiment and the expectation of a good advance in price have been responsible. Hawaiian Sugar, Hawaiian Commercial & Sugar, and Olaa are among those that have advanced.

Significant has been the sudden demand for bonds. Beginning early in the week brokers began to receive buying orders for bonds. Evidently this is investment money coming out. As a matter of fact a huge sum of money has been paid out in Honolulu in the last few months in the form of dividends that has been held back because of the general uncertainty in financial conditions, due largely to the war. Now this money is beginning to come out. It is a sure sign of the direction the wind is taking and a positive token that the country is beginning to realize that the bottom has not dropped out of things and that money invested now not only will not be lost, but probably will bring returns.

Dividends also have been fairly numerous and the rumors of others to be declared provided another bullish element. Last week's prediction that there would be a strong week has been borne out and there is every reason to renew it for next week.

COMMERCIAL NOTES

Rainfall in North Kona in December measured 9.53 inches, according to J. K. Clark of Hind, Rolph & Co.

Dr. Dai Yen Chang, dentist, has purchased the Lum Lau Shee block at the corner of King and Aala streets through Farm Comm, a Chinese real estate agent. The consideration was $12,000, subject to a mortgage.

The Insurance Club of Hawaii is holding weekly meetings, usually at luncheon times. The governing committee is composed of Edwin Renner, Leno K. Meyers, A. H. Jones, William F. Traynor, A. W. Brown, P. S. W. Ramsden and R. E. Clark.

Heavy rains in the last month have bettered prospects for the 1916 and 1917 crops of the Waianae plantation, although the 1915 crop will suffer from last year's drought. The 1914 crop was 4512 tons, according to figures compiled by J. M. Dowsett.

The annual meeting of the Hawaiian Fisheries Company this week showed profits for the year of about $5000. Since Attorney A. L. C. Atkinson has become connected with the company it has almost wiped out its indebtedness, according to the Japanese officials.

Acting through the Trent Trust company, R. H. Bemrose bought a lot 90 by 150 feet at Hackfeld and Green streets from E. M. Walsh for $6,400. The Trent Trust company also has sold seven small houses and lots on Morris lane, Palama, for $4,850, and three Makiki lots.

Twenty-three lots in the new Liliha tract were being sold at auction by O. A. Steven this afternoon, the sale having begun at 3 o'clock. The tract was purchased by Mr. Steven from the Bishop estate two weeks ago and cut up into lots, each with a frontage of from 30 to 50 feet.

Official reports that Germany will cut down its production of beet sugar for the purpose of increasing other products are a source of encouragement to sugar factors here. As Germany has been a heavy exporter of sugar, its curtailment of the product will open new markets for Hawaiian and other growers.

A new implement patented by a New England man for removing the eyes of pineapples is described by Modern Mechanics. The device is like an ordinary pair of pliers, except that the "awlike portion is sharpened so that the two members can be pushed into the fruit and brought together in order to remove the eye.

Alexander & Baldwin plantations up to January 2, 1915, had milled 20,272 tons and shipped 19,906 tons of 1915 crop, while on January 3, 1914, the amount milled was 25,186 tons and the amount shipped 19,409 tons.

Germany's Sugar Not for Export.

J. F. Hackfeld of Honolulu sends from Bremen the following information on the sugar situation: A very large part of the German and Austrian beet crops has been harvested and all the factories are now at work. There has been very little difficulty in getting sufficient labor, but the factories will probably be kept going for a somewhat longer time than in former years, as they are not able to get sufficient means of transportation for the amount of beets acquired for the regular and usual work of the factories. The total output will be somewhat less than last year, and the question of providing sufficient storage for the sugar will probably cause considerable difficulty, as it is expectd that under the regulations of the government only a limited part of the crop can be exported.—San Francisco Commercial News.

More Orders from Hawaii.

City Clerk A. E. Sutton has received a number of orders for Turlock products from Hilo, in the Hawaiian Islands, the greater number being from the Chinese firm of Kwong See Wo, and the popularity of the products shipped is apparently increasing steadily. The latest order, which was received last Wednesday, is for 50 boxes of green apples, 30 boxes best oranges, 20 boxes tangerines, 10 boxes pomegranates, 25 boxes grapes (if it be had) 15 boxes persimmons and 5 boxes dried apples in 50-pound boxes.

The products named were secured by Mr. Sutton and shipped to Kwong See Wo as per instructions, and will leave San Francisco by steamer December 30.

Mr. Sutton is thoroughly acquainted with the Hawaiian Islands, having been commercially engaged there a number of years, and believes that if the proper steps are taken a large and lucrative trade can be built up between them and the Turlock district. Some of Mr. Sutton's friends who are interested in the matter believe that if he were sent to the islands at the proper time he could do much to bring about this desirable result.—Turlock (Cal.) Journal.

Fight Honolulu Fruit Pest Here.

Efforts by the government to prevent Honolulu fruit pests from finding entrance into California have been doubled within the last few weeks. The government horticultural inspectors have the cooperation of the postal authorities and the express companies and all packages which might contain fruits or grains harboring the "bugs" are carefully examined.

The baggage of all passengers arriving from the islands is carefully inspected and even mail packages are opened when there is any suspicion that they might contain the contraband.

A certain class of Honolulu bean, often infected with a boll weevil of destructive powers, has been placed under the ban. Visitors to the islands, struck with the beauty and color and size of the bean, endeavor in many cases to send samples to friends in the United States. The inspectors find it hard work in corralling these packages, but to date several hundred one, two and three-ounce packages have been found in the mails and confiscated.

UNIQUE DEVICE ON CARBURETORS OF CADILLACS IS A GREAT HELP

One of the interesting features in connection with the development of the eight-cylinder motor by the Cadillac Motor Car Company has been the correction of a fault common to practically all, if not all carburetors.

Ofttimes there is the lack of ability on the part of the carburetor to respond freely and fully to a sudden and complete opening of the throttle. When the throttle is quickly opened, the gasoline, flowing through the spray nozzle, does not at once pass in sufficient quantity to form, with the inrushing air, a gas of the required explosive quality. This disproportion of gasoline and air is of hardly more than momentary duration, but while it exists the motor frequently misfires and cannot develop the power necessary to rapid acceleration of the speed of the car.

The device which the Cadillac engineers have evolved to obviate the condition just described is an ingenious application of the plunger pump principle, though its action is confined to a single stroke of the plunger. When the driver suddenly opens his throttle, the plunger automatically forces an extra supply of gasoline through the spray nozzle, thereby providing a correct explosive mixture for quick acceleration.

JUBILANT 'DRYS' PROPHESY GREAT VICTORY FOR PROHIBITION IN 1917

[By Latest Mail]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The "drys" claim a moral victory over the "weis" in the contest in the house on the Hobson resolution to submit to the States a constitutional amendment for nation-wide prohibition. At a conference among the leaders of the National Anti-Saloon League and the Women's Christian Temperance Union there was great rejoicing.

"The power of the temperance movement never was so great as it is today," said Miss Ann Gordon, leader of the W. C. T. U. forces here. "To think that with almost unprecedented odds against us we secured a majority in the house gives us great encouragement."

The fight for the constitutional amendment will be kept up. The Anti-Saloon League and the W. C. T. U. will try to put the senate on record on the Sheppard resolution. Representative Hobson says he will make prohibition an issue in the 1916 campaign unless the Sixty-fourth Congress votes to submit his amendment.

Finds Vote Gratifying.

"The vote in the house was very gratifying to friends of prohibition," said Senator Sheppard. "When you consider that a majority voted for prohibition the first time the constitutional amendment resolution was submitted to a vote you can understand why we should be pleased."

Senator Sheppard said he thinks the resolution has a good chance of being passed by a two-thirds vote in the next Congress. He pointed out that many members who voted against prohibition would not be in the next Congress.

"It has not been decided yet," he continued, "whether the resolution will be pressed to a vote in the senate at this season. It would only serve to place senators on record since the house has rejected the resolution."

Representative Hobson is not disheartened. The publicity given him over the contest in the house will help him on the Chautauqua circuit. He will be the leading prohibition advocate, regardless of the enthusiasm shown on the temperance question by Secretary Bryan.

Expects "Command From People."

"We shall carry the campaign to the voters of the country and will win," said Mr. Hobson. "The great moral, spiritual, temperance and prohibition forces of this nation will make this question the paramount issue in 1916, not only to gain a two-thirds majority in the houses of Congress, but to have an administration that will not fight this reform, either in the open or under cover, so that in the spring of 1917, with an extraordinary session of the Sixty-fifth Congress, we will have a command from the people to grant this reform."

The Rev. Sam Small was delighted with the show in the house. He wanted to take a hand, but was barred from doing so by the rules.

When the debate was hottest Speaker Clark dropped back into the members' lobby for a rest.

"Great spectacle," said he. "I see Sam Small in the galleries, and would like to hear him speak to this crowd. He would whoop it up."

"Like Paul Jones, we have not yet begun to fight," said Mr. Small. "We know whom to lick and whom to boost now, and we are going to fight for our friends and against our enemies."

A.-H. OREGONIAN WILL GO ON DRYDOCK

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 16.—The American-Hawaiian steamer Oregonian, which has been in port en route from San Francisco to New York, will have to return to San Francisco to go into drydock, the result of damages sustained on Wednesday. The Oregonian was backing to leave the harbor when her stern grounded on Mormon island, damaging her rudder. She was docked for an examination by divers and, on their report, the underwriters said that it would be unwise for the steamer to attempt to complete her trip to New York before undergoing repairs.

A PRAYER FOR PEACE

By George Willard Bonte

God of our fathers, intervene;
Stretch forth Thy staying hands;
Blood of our brothers flows between
The bounds of kindred lands,
And tears, oh the tears of mothers and wives,
Are rusting the blades of our harvest knives;
God of our fathers, grant us peace—
Smother the fiery brands.

Christ, Lord and Master, Prince of Peace,
Vanquish the god of war.
Bid the red clouds of rage surcease
Where mad iron eagles soar.
Silence the blasts of the hellish siege guns—
Boasting the slaying of thousands of sons;
Christ, Lord and Master, heal our wounds—
Silence the battle's roar.

Lord of the Nations, bring us years
Of peace, good-will and toil;
Lead us from out this vale of tears—
Bless Thou the corpse-strewn soil.
End the wild orgy of carnage and hate;
Steer to safe harbors the wrecked ships of state.
Lord of the Nations, hear our prayer—
Quiet the World's turmoil.

ACTIVE WORK IN BIBLE STUDY AT CENTRAL UNION

Rev. A. A. Ebersole Resumes Classes to Which All Young People Are Invited

Now that Dr. Doremus Scudder has returned and taken over the pulpit work at Central Union church, the associate minister, Rev. A. A. Ebersole will give his first attention for the rest of the church year to his Bible classes.

Last Sunday morning the class for young men and young women was reorganized in the lecture room of The Kilohana building. In spite of the rainy morning 37 were present at this first session of the class. This number will probably be doubled tomorrow when the first lesson for the course, which Mr. Ebersole has outlined for this term's work, will be taken up. This class is not intended merely for the young men and young women who attend Central Union church. All young people of whatever church, or of no church, are invited. The portion of the "Life of Jesus" which the class is taking up at this time—"His Long Eventful Journey to Jerusalem"—is one of the most interesting portions of his entire public ministry.

The Thursday morning class, carried on under the auspices of the Women's Society, will hold its first session for this year Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock, when Mr. Ebersole will present the first of a series of 10 lessons on "His Last Week in Jerusalem." This will constitute a most appropriate Lenten series as it will be concluded Thursday of Holy Week. This series completes too the course on the "Life and Teachings of Jesus" which the class has been pursuing for the past three years. Last year 86 women enrolled during the season.

The third class added this year is that for business men which meets in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. at the supper hour Tuesday evenings. This is not in any sense a Central Union church class as quite as many men from other churches and of no church affiliation are attending. The class is studying some of the "Outstanding Events in the Life of Jesus" and the course will conclude with a series of lessons on the "Sermon on the Mount." By meeting at the supper hour and holding the class immediately afterward it is possible for the men to get away in time for other evening engagements.

REV. A. AKANA WILL ADDRESS YOUNG PEOPLE

Rev. Akaiko Akana, general superintendent of the Young People's League, will explain the problems of the young people of Honolulu as he has found them during his three years' service in this city at a meeting of the league in the Kaumakapili church at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Suggestions for the solutions of these problems will be made with an appeal for assistance, financial and otherwise. It is the idea of the league to arouse further interest in the spiritual, moral, social, educational and physical welfare of the young people of Honolulu, and all who are interested in this work are invited to attend the meeting.

Brevities From The Anti-Saloon League

Dr. P. A. Baker, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, arrives on the steamer Scnoma February 22, and will remain in Hawaii three weeks. As national superintendent, a man of long experience, wide travels, a good speaker and wise counsellor, his visit will be profitable to the cause of temperance in Hawaii. Mrs. Baker will accompany her husband. J. A. Metcalf, a prominent businessman of Columbus, Ohio, a lifelong friend and an enthusiastic worker for prohibition, will be a member of the party. Mr. Metcalf may remain permanently in Honolulu.

The first annual convention of the League under the new auspices will be held February 25 to 26. Plans for a big and successful meeting are being made.

The latest message to the league from Washington, D. C., regarding the vote on the question of national prohibition, is as follows:

"Before receiving this you will have heard, of course, of our great battle at Washington last Tuesday when we received eight majority the first time the subject of national prohibition was ever brought before an American Congress. We received this majority exclusive of pairs, and on a two-thirds proposition such as this, one wet was paired against two drys. With the floor leaders of both parties and the chairman of the committee on rules making speeches against us and filibustering to the limit, together with the fact that the prestige of the President and secretary of state was invoked against us again and again on the floor, we regard it as a tremendous victory. Not a single member of the present Congress was elected on that issue nor did the issue enter into his election. We all feel that it means national prohibition even sooner than we had expected."

HAWAIIAN BOARD PAYS TRIBUTE TO DR. FERGUSON

The following resolution was adopted at a meeting of the Hawaiian Board, January 8, 1915:

"In the recent sudden death of the Rev. Wilbert Perry Ferguson, D. D., principal of Mills School, the members of the Board of the Hawaiian Evangelical Association recognize a well-nigh irreparable loss to the interests of Christian education in Hawaii. He was a trained educator, wise and resourceful in administration, staunch and outspoken in his religious convictions, affable and winsome in his social relations, and devoted to the best interests of this community. As a member of this board, as chairman of its educational committee, and a member of its Chinese committee, he manifested the deepest interest in all plans and efforts for the betterment of our missionary agencies. We would especially record our grateful recognition of his personal services in the activities of our local Chinese church; and of his stimulating leadership among the young men of Mills school."

WHAT THIN FOLKS SHOULD DO TO GAIN WEIGHT.

Physician's Advice for Thin, Undeveloped Men and Women.

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fats, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians, and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten, and the additional fats that thin people need are provided.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh.

ATHLETICS PLAY PROMINENT PART IN Y. W. C. A. WORK

Swimming, Tennis and Gymnasium Classes Attracting Many New Members

"That is the most fun I have had for a long time" is what one of the Y. W. C. A. girls said when she left the Castle tank after a swimming lesson recently. The members of the class had been working on advanced work for the American Red Cross life-saving contests and all of them report an interesting time.

Gymnasium work, including tennis and swimming, are becoming popular recreations with the Y. W. C. A. members. The association has issued the following schedule of regulations covering three important lines of wrrk:

Gymnasium.

The regular suit is a black waist and full bloomers of some cool material such as rajah silk, black hosiery and black shoes without heels.

The regular office hours of the physical director are Tuesday and Saturday, 11:30 to 1. Conferences may be arranged at other hours.

Tennis.

Rackets and balls are not supplied by the association.

The arc lights cost 10 cents an hour for each person playing and five cents a half-hour.

As a rule the courts have to be engaged in advance.

The courts can only be engaged one day in advance.

Substitution should be supplied when a player is obliged to be absent.

Each member is supplied with a substitute list.

It is the etiquette of the tennis court that when others are waiting to play the players on the court shall not play more than one set unless the newcomers can be persuaded to join in a game of doubles. If many are waiting to play the court should be vacated before the set is finished.

Players must not go on the court wearing shoes that have heels.

Swimming.

Members are requested to take their suits home, as wet suits make wet floors, which are not comfortable for the later classes.

Mothers may bring the children to enjoy the children's pool.

Place all valuable articles in the lock box. The physical director has the key.

Do not expectorate in the tank or throw hairpins into either of the two tanks. Let us endeavor to keep the tanks outside and inside as clean as possible.

A number of local teachers are enjoying a folk-dancing class which meets Tuesday afternoons in the Castle kindergarten. In addition there are classes in aesthetic and folk-dancing for children and older girls.

CENTRAL UNION CHURCH PREPARES FOR ELECTION OF OFFICIALS FOR 1915

Central Union church is taking a preliminary ballot for officers for 1915. Blank forms have been sent out to all voting members of the church so that every member may indicate his preferences. The last day for the return of these ballots is Sunday, January 17. If members have not mailed their ballots they may bring them to the church and leave them with the ministers or in the collection boxes. It is desirable that this preliminary expression of opinion be representative of the wishes of the entire membership, and everyone is urged to fill out his ballot.

"GOOD WILL" MISSION DELEGATES STOP OFF ON WAY TO ORIENT

Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, prominent church and mission worker, and Dr. Shailer Mathews, dean of the divinity school of the University of Chicago, arrived in Honolulu in the steamer Mongolia yesterday on their way to Japan. Drs. Gulick and Mathews are going to the Orient as the representatives of the American Christians and will carry to the empire the good will of the churches of the United States. They will also report the progress of the campaign of "good-will" recently held on the mainland.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY TO ADDRESS CENTRAL UNION CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS

The Christian Endeavor Society of Central Union church, which had such a rousing meeting last week with special music, a music leader, and an interesting address by R. E. Lambert, promises as good an evening tomorrow. The speaker will be Jay A. Urice, educational secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who's subject will be "Power." A cordial invitation is extended to all young people to attend the meeting.

The Swedish steamer Orien has arrived at Newport News with her cargo of cotton burning.

"What Does a Boy Cost?"

A TEMPERANCE SERMON

By Dr. John W. Wadman

If it were possible to reckon in dollars and cents what a boy costs his mother from the time he is born until he is 21 years of age, it would not be overstating the amount if we put it down, say, at $2 a week. In other words, the work required to care for the child would cost that much at any rate, and in this way then the mother has invested $2100 from the time the little fellow was born until he is 21 years old.

But how about the father? What has he done? He has, of course, provided the home, the food and lodging, paid the doctor's bills, bought his school books and clothes, sent him, say, to college, etc., so that it would not be an overstatement to say that the average amount spent on the boy by the father has been at least $100 per year. This means that when the boy has reached his twenty-first birthday the father and mother have spent not less than $4000 in cash on their son, plus a great deal of hard labor.

Protect the Boy.

If then, you had a house valued at $4000 and some one were to destroy it by fire, would you not have the man arrested and sent to the penitentiary? No doubt you would. But if you had a boy and a house, would you not a thousand times rather have some one set fire to your house and burn it to the ground than have the saloon get its grip on your son and ruin him in body and soul forever?

Are we then giving our boys the square deal we should give them in the way of protecting them from that which is worse than death? We take every precaution against fire. But are our houses and shops worth more to us than our sons and daughters?

What becomes of the drunkards? They die. One hundred and ten thousand men drop into drunkards' graves per annum in the United States alone. This means 300 a day, or eight every minute. A funeral procession of American drunkards would be 3000 miles long. But this is not all. All drinkers are not drunkards. The number of American drinking men and women is computed at 5,000,000 by reason of which 250,000 saloons do a flourishing business.

But how is the number of drunkards recruited since 110,000 die annually? How? By the boys. Listen. These 250,000 saloons must, by hook or crook, get one boy in every five, or 2,000,000 of them annually, in order to maintain their trade and make their big profits. One boy in every five; five in every 25; 20 in every 100. Will your boy be the one? Will it be mine? This is a serious question.

The story is told of an old fellow in Tennessee who made his living by catching rattlesnakes. It is stated that one day he caught one with 14 rattles and put it in a box with a glass top. The next morning while he was sawing wood his little five-year-old boy took the lid off the box and the rattler wriggled out and struck the child a deadly blow in the cheek. He ran to his father crying loudly, "The snake has bitten me." Picking up an ax quickly the father ran, chopped the rattler into several pieces and then with his jack-knife cut a chunk from the boy's cheek and sucked at the wound to draw out the poison. He looked at little Jim, saw the pupils of his eyes dilate while his little body swelled to three times its normal size, his lips became parched and cracked, the color of his face grew purple, his limbs stiffened and the little fellow gasped and died.

The father took the lad in his arms, carried him over to the side of the dismembered rattler, got down on his knees and prayed: "Oh, God, I would not give little Jim for all the rattlers that ever crawled over the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia."

"The Boy or the Saloon?"

Supposing the liquor trade does help the revenue of the territory a little, and supposing the saloons do increase the business of the city a little, are not your boys and mine worth a great deal more, ten thousand times more?

We have saw mills in Honolulu. I call on the proprietor of one and inquire: "What kind of a mill is this?"

"A saw mill."

"What do you make?"

"All sorts of building material."

"What is your raw material?"

"Lumber."

"Is the finished product worth more than the raw material?"

"Yes."

"Very well. Since we must have lumber for houses, we will make laws to protect your mill and your business."

I then call on the proprietor of a rice mill and ask:

"What kind of a mill is this?"

"A grist mill."

"What is your raw material?"

"Rice."

"What do you make?"

"Food."

"Is the finished product worth more than the raw material?"

"Certainly."

"Very well. Then we will enact laws for your protection since we must have food to eat."

Later on I call on the manager of the brewery. "What is this, sir?" I ask.

"A brewery and distillery."

"What is your raw material?"

"The boys of America."

"What is your finished product?"

"One hundred and ten thousand good-as-dead drunkards in one year."

Very well. Shall we make laws to protect an industry of that kind? Listen! Here is an extract from the Saturday Evening Post dated Sept. 8, 1913, taken from a paper read by a Chicago brewer at a convention of liquor men in Indianapolis a year ago last August.

"It appears from these facts," so read the brewer, "that the success of our business lies in the creation of appetite among the boys. Men who have once formed the drink habit scarcely ever reform, but, they like others, will die, and unless there are recruits made to take their places, our coffers will be empty. I therefore recommend to you that money be spent in the creation of an appetite for liquor among the boys, the younger the better, so that returns may come back to us in dollars and cents after the habit is formed. Let us go for the boys."

TABLET ELECTED IN MEMORY OF REV. B. W. PARKER

In memory of the work done by the Rev. and Mrs. B. W. Parker among the earliest of the mission workers in the islands, a tablet was erected in the Kawaiahao church on Monday. The Rev. and Mrs. B. W. Parker were the parents of Rev. H. H. Parker, the present pastor of the church.

Rev. Parker and his wife, Mary Elizabeth Parker, missionaries of the A. B. C. F. M., embarked at New London, Conn., November 21, 1832, for the Hawaiian Islands on board the ship Mentor. Fellow passengers with the Parkers were the Rev. Lowell S. Smith and Mrs. Smith, the Rev. John Diell, the first Seaman's chaplain for the port of Honolulu, and Mrs. Diell and a Mr. Burnham, a builder, who came to the islands to erect the Bethel church, which stood at the corner of King and Bethel streets many years until destroyed by fire.

The voyagers arrived at Honolulu May 1, 1833. Here Mr. Parker was detached temporarily from the Hawaiian mission to accompany Messrs. Alexander and Armstrong on a mission to the Marquesas islands. Returning to Hawaii in 1834, Mr. Parker was assigned his field of work in Koolaupoko on this island. The mission station was at Kaneohe, about the center of the parish, on a spot called Aipaakai, overlooking the beautiful Kaneohe bay. The house in which Mr. and Mrs. Parker lived then was a small structure about 25 feet by 25, thatched with grass. It had one door and the interior was partitioned by a curtain which separated the living room from the sleeping apartment. They baked their bread in a Dutch oven outdoors.

In that day the population of the district numbered probably not less than 10,000. Every morning shortly after sunrise the sound of the "Holo Kapa" might be heard all around the village. The hills from the foot of the Pali half way down to the village of Kaneohe were covered with a dense growth of lauhala trees. The valleys were filled with cultivated crops; the taro, banana, sugar cane and ti leaf mingled in luxurious growth.

Mr. Parker visited the Marquesas islands twice as a delegate of the Hawaiian board, once to locate a mission of Hawaiians on these islands and later as a representative of the board. In his later years he was associated with the Rev. Dr. Baldwin and the Rev. John D. Paris in a training school for native ministers.

Brown's Bronchial Troches, an immediate relief for coughs, hoarseness, throat troubles. Affording great relief in bronchitis and asthma. John I. Brown & Son, Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

SOCIETY

SIXTEEN years ago, or to be exact, during the Spanish-American war in 1898, General William H. Carter conceived the idea of gathering together a fund for the widows and orphans of the men who went to Manila as members of Uncle Sam's great army. After supplying the needs of those who were bereaved at that time there was a surplus of funds and General Carter suggested that a relief fund be a permanent institution in the United States army. The suggestion met with hearty approval by all army folk and since that time there have been annual entertainments for the Army Relief fund wherever there is a detachment of United States soldiers.

There have been two relief affairs in Honolulu within a few days—the one at the Bijou theater where the ladies of the Coast Artillery preside, and the other at Fort Shafter on Tuesday evening when the ladies and officers at the post together with other army folk and society from the town set danced en masque.

A myriad of colored electric lights greeted the guests as they gathered at the post, and the interior of the clubhouse, where the guests were greeted by Colonel Francis H. French and Major E. V. Smith was a bower of vines. Fragrant green vines gave a pleasing effect to the lower hall and were twined along the stairway. The ball room, too, was a festive spectacle with its bright lights and green ferns presenting a pretty scene. Here be-painted and be-powdered ladies, harlequins and puritan maids, ghosts, Yama-Yamas in brightly colored costumes danced until the early morning hours to the music furnished by two bands.

At 11 o'clock the guests visited the refreshment tents where half a hundred tables ornamented with vases of flowers were laden with delicious refreshments. The long tents over the little tables were prettily decorated with vines and flowers and colored lights.

When the call was given for the unmasking several of the guests slipped off and discarded their fancy costumes for evening clothes, though in most instances the identity of the dancers was revealed. But who was the mysterious ghost? And who was "How?"

There were many stunning costumes noticed at the function and most of them were representative of a great deal of time and thought as well as beauty.

Among the specially elaborate ones were those of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham. They brought with them the breath of the exotic Orient with their East Indian costumes. The garments were of shimmery cloth of gold, richly studded with jewels and other garnishings. Soft Oriental coloring was blended prettily with the handsome material of which the costumes were fashioned.

Mrs. Francis H. French, wife of Colonel French, was particularly charming in a costume of '76. White satin and mauve were combined with an attractive effect, the gown being fashioned of the white with draperies of mauve. A little Colonial cap of the same shade covered Mrs. French's powdered hair.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Castle attracted much attention in Chinese attire. The costumes were of heavy blue Chinese silk embroidered in gold and colors. Mrs. Castle was exceptionally pretty in the suit. Her dark hair was drawn severely back from her face, and Chinese ornaments of pearl beads were arranged in the coiffure.

Mrs. C. S. Lincoln, wife of Capt. Lincoln, was a charming Pierette in costume of white satin.

Lieut. and Mrs. L. O. Mathews came from the nursery as a little boy and girl and sustained their parts throughout the evening.

Much interest was shown in the costumes worn by Mrs. Cook and her sister, Miss Gamble. Mrs. Cook was a charming little lady in hoop skirts and Miss Gamble in a weird suit representing the "speck-tater."

Mrs. Gibbs, wife of Capt. Gibbs, was a charming little French maid.

Mrs. Ernest V. Smith, wife of Maj. Smith, wore a handsome Chinese costume of blue satin heavily brocaded in lavender.

Miss Agnes Gray and Miss Catherine Lenihan, two of the younger residents of the post, were pretty little school girls.

Miss Butler was very attractive in a handsome Turkish costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Shingle and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Beckley were in pale blue Yama-Yama suits with ruffs of black tilla.

Mrs. Charles S. Bromwell wore an attractive harem costume of purple silk and white chiffon.

Mrs. Mary Gunn, in black cap and gown, gave the appearance of a scholarly college girl.

One of the very pretty Turkish costumes was that worn by Mrs. Richard Cutts, wife of Capt. Cutts. The suit was of green and white silk and chiffon and was ornamented with quantities of pearl beads.

Mrs. C. B. High made a dainty picture as "Sweet Peas" in a fluffy frock of white organdie.

Mrs. Edwin J. O'Hara wore an attractive Colonial gown of pink and white satin with touches of black velvet.

In pink and white tarletan hat and gown Miss Betty Case looked as though she had stepped from one of the pages of a fashion book.

Miss Catherine Landon and Miss Nora Sturgeon were in the costumes of Folly and their gowns tinkled merrily with their hundreds of tiny bells. Miss Landon wore a white suit and Miss Sturgeon was in blue.

Mrs. Edward D. Tenney, Mrs. Arthur Wilder, Mrs. Mannie Phillips and Miss Delia Holmes were all in handsome Turkish costumes of satin and chiffon embroidered in brilliants.

Miss Elizabeth Campbell, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Archibald Campbell, was a charming picture dressed as Little Bo Peep.

Mrs. S. D. Barnes was attractive in a gown of pink satin fashioned after those of the old Colonial days.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Chillingworth wore Yama-Yama suits of black relieved by huge ruffs of yellow tarletan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. C. Haynes also wore the black Yama-Yama with yellow ruffs.

Mrs. Benjamin Atkinson in a costume representing a sunflower was very attractive. A combination of yellow and green crepe paper deftly arranged was used in making the gown effective.

Mrs. Gregg McKerror presented a beautiful picture of Queen Guinevere. Her gown was of white satin with draperies in long line of white chiffon. A veil of the chiffon was her only mask.

Miss Ruth Soper, Miss Ruth McChesney and Miss Peggy Center, three of the members of the younger set, wore Yama-Yama suits with jaunty little caps. Miss McChesney and Miss Soper were in pink and white, a color scheme becoming to their fair types of beauty, and Miss Center's costume was of red and black, which was very attractive with her dark hair and eyes.

Much interest was shown in the costume of Charles Herbert. In a fluffy short frock and large picture hat he was a representative of a fair chorus girl.

Mrs. Orville N. Tyler was dressed as a gypsy. Her short red costume draped with bright colors and a red bandana draped over her dark curls was a captivating combination.

Mrs. M. J. Lenihan, wife of Maj. Lenihan, and her daughter, Miss Leonora Lenihan, wore bright red and yellow costumes of Italian peasant women.

Mrs. F. H. Foucar, wife of Capt. Foucar, was a charming figure in a white satin Pierette suit and a large white satin hat ornamented with ostrich feathers.

Mrs. F. P. Reynolds was decidedly attractive as a Hawaiian hula maid, her costume being fashioned of several shades of chiffon. Her heavy brown hair and a wreath of maile made a pretty frame for her face, which had been colored the shade of a Hawaiian maid.

Mrs. Thomas Spencer, wife of Lieut. Spencer, with Mrs. Kay and Mrs. Wright, wore severe nurses' costumes of black with white cuffs and collars and fetching caps of white muslin and lace.

Mrs. R. O. Matheson was attractively disguised as a Chinese lady in a blue satin costume richly brocaded in red dragons, and Mr. Matheson wore a black Yama-Yama set off by a yellow ruff.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Frazier were striking respectively as an admiral of the Swiss navy and as a pierrette.

Stepping out of fairyland came Mrs. Edward McCleave in the red hood and cloak of Little Red Riding Hood.

There was much interest shown in the costume worn by Capt. Gibbs, for there was a bit of interesting history connected with it. Capt. Gibbs wore the uniform of an officer in the Chinese army which was secured during the Boxer war.

Mrs. Charles R. Forbes wore a quaint gown of the Pilgrim days. As Priscilla Alden she was in a dainty gray frock and bonnet of that period.

Mrs. Harmon David Spielman of Chicago, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles R. Forbes, was charming in the brightest costume of a Spanish belle, which was very pleasing, with her vivacious personality.

Mrs. C. B. Cooper, hostess at Hawaii's official functions in the administration of Governor Pinkham. Mrs. Cooper was one of those entertaining the Prince and Princess Kampengpetch of Siam.

Many of the society matrons attended the affair in evening gown rather than en masque. Among these were Mrs. William H. Carter, Mrs. J. E. Bell, Mrs. Francis M. Swanzy, Mrs. C. B. T. Moore, Mrs. Sarah Newcomb, Mrs. Walter Macfarlane and Mrs. Arthur Wall.

Some among those present at the function were Gen. and Mrs. William H. Carter, Admiral and Mrs. C. B. T. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wall, Mrs. Francis M. Swanzy, Mrs. Sarah Newcomb, Miss Ruth McChesney, Miss Peggy Center, Miss Ruth Soper, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shingle, Mr. and Mrs. George Beckley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Chillingworth, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Matheson, Miss Barrie Gamble, Lieut. and Mrs. Kimmel, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Dinner at the Pleasanton.

Col. Rudolph I. Ebert was host at an informal dinner at the Pleasanton hotel on Thursday night. Col. Ebert has recently been stationed in Honolulu and has made a host of friends. The table centerpiece was of pink roses and maidenhair ferns. Covers were laid for Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Matson of Portland, Oregon; Col. and Mrs. F. P. Reynolds, Maj. and Mrs. Gideon McD. van Poole, Capt. and Mrs. L. Owen, Mme. A. Bougardier and the host.

At the Skating Rink on Friday.

A number of the Academy students made their way to the skating rink yesterday afternoon for a frolic on the rollers. This has become an almost regular thing and every Friday afternoon text books are laid aside and the students gather at the skating rink for merrymaking.

In Honor of Prince and Princess Kampengpetch.

Prince and Princess Kampengpetch, who visited in Honolulu during the stay of the Mongolia in this port, were entertained at an elaborate dinner party last evening by Governor Lucius Pinkham. The affair was given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Cooper on Lunalilo street, and Mrs. Cooper presided at the affair as hostess. The large lanai at the Cooper home was draped with flags of the United States and Hawaii. The drawing room was in chrysanthemums, quantities of the yellow blossoms being arranged in silver vases. In this room, too, there were handsome baskets filled with lacy maiden hair ferns. Red was the predominating color in the dining room, and African daisies were used in the decorations. Silver vases filled with the blossoms and red shaded candelabras adorned the long table at which the guests were seated. Dainty cards embellished with the Hawaiian coat-of-arms marked the covers. During the evening Captain Berger led the Hawaiian band, playing the sweet melodies of the islands. Places were laid at the table for Prince and Princess Kampengpetch, Admiral and Mrs. C. B. T. Moore, General and Mrs. William H. Carter, Colonel and Mrs. Charles Bromwell, Mayor and Mrs. John C. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. George Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Captain and Mrs. James D. Dougherty, Capt. M. Yoo, Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Cooper and Governor Pinkham.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Chillingworth's Dinner.

One of the very pleasant dinner parties which preceded the masked ball at Fort Shafter on Tuesday evening was that at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Chillingworth entertained at their home on King street. The centerpiece for the table was an attractive arrangement of chrysanthemums in a dainty basket. From the chandeliers to the basket were draped ropes of American beauty and green tulle. The affair was very jolly, for the guests were attired in costumes for the ball. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shingle, Mr. and Mrs. George Beckley, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. C. Haynes and the host and hostess.

Dinner at the Country Club.

One of the largest affairs of the season was the subscription dinner given at the Country club last Tuesday night before the bal masque at Fort Shafter. The guests were all in fancy costume and reveled in a lively hour before they departed in machines for the hop hall at Fort Shafter. The table was artistically decorated with quantities of begonias and maidenhair fern. Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Mrs. Helen Noonan, Miss Wilhelmina Tenney, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Dr. and Mrs. Clifford B. High, Mr. and Mrs. George Collins, Miss Violet Makee, Capt. and Mrs. Richard Cutts, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dillingham, Mr. and Mrs. M. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Castle, Mrs. John S. Walker, Mrs. George Herbert, Capt. and Mrs. Bell, Judge and Mrs. A. A. Wilder, Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Col. and Mrs. F. P. Reynolds, Mrs. Charles S. Bromwell, Capt. and Mrs. F. Foucar, Mrs. Harrison Hall, Miss Thelma Murphy, Miss Lila McDonald, Miss Ruth Harrison, Miss Mary Gunn, Maj. and Mrs. D. B. Case, Miss Helen Alexander, Miss Margaret Waterhouse, Miss Nora Sturgeon, Alan Lowrey, Fred Wichman, James McInerny, Lieut. Campanole, Maj. Delaney, George Fuller, Lieut. Yates, Lieut. Welch, Maj. Blakely, Fred Ohrt, Maj. A. S. Conklin, Walter Roycroft, Mr. Martin, Bert Clark, Philip Spalding and Lieut. William Rose were those present.

Concert to Be Given for Belgian Relief.

Along with the many charitable entertainments comes a concert for the Belgians, which will be well worth while. Mrs. A. B. Ingalls, who has won note as a violinist and who returned two years ago from a year of study in Paris, will be assisted by Miss Alice Hopper, Mrs. E. A. R. Ross and others. The concert will be held on Tuesday, the 26th, at the Hawaiian opera house. A number of the society women have consented to act as patronesses and some of the attractive misses of the younger set will act as ushers.

The patronesses are: Mrs. E. Faxon Bishop, Mrs. W. R. Castle, Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Mrs. C. Montague Cooke, Jr., Mrs. C. B. Cooper, Mrs. W. F. Dillingham, Mrs. Walter F. Frear, Mrs. C. Hedemann, Mrs. D. Howard Hitchcock, Mrs. C. S. Holloway, Miss M. Hopper, Mrs. B. L. Marx, Mrs. L. Tenney Peck, Mrs. F. P. Reynolds, Mrs. Francis M. Swanzy, Mrs. E. D. Tenney, Mrs. U. Thompson, Mrs. Bernice Walbridge, Mrs. W. D. Westervelt, Mrs. Gerrit P. Wilder, Mrs. M. F. Prosser.

In honor of Miss Ethel Lewin, who is visiting in Honolulu, Miss Rosie Herbert entertained at an attractive tea on Tuesday afternoon. The affair was also in the nature of a farewell, for on Wednesday the charming hostess left for the mainland.

Attractive palms and flowers were arranged throughout the house and the guests spent the afternoon at cards. The guests included Miss Lewin, Miss Peggy Center, Miss Ruth Soper, Miss Ruth Anderson, Miss Ruth McChesney, Miss Blanche Soper, Miss Marion Chapin, Miss Dorothy Guild, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. George Collins, Miss Thelma Murphy, Miss Pauline Schaefer, Mrs. Norma Adams and Miss Sylvan Purvis,

The All-States Dinner.

"English, Irish, Scotch and Spanish, Turkish, Swedish, Dutch and Danish."

These and almost every other country were represented at the All-States dinner and annual meeting of the Y. W. C. A. at the parish house of Central Union church on Thursday evening. Some of Honolulu's most prominent men and women were present and helped to make the evening a success. Each table was decorated symbolic of the states its diners represented. Hawaii-nei's table, at which Mrs. D. Howard Hitchcock presided, was decorated in vari-colored hibiscus and the Hawaiians each wore the emblem of the hibiscus city. Buckeye and apples were in favor at the Ohio table at which Mrs. Gould was hostess, and maple sugar and granite were in evidence at the New England states table under the supervision of Mrs. A. F. Jackson. From this section toy balloons were sent up to the ceiling and the New Englanders shouted their cry "New England on Top." One of the prettiest of the tables was that at which the Britons were seated. A profusion of American beauty roses and flags of the British isles were arranged as centerpieces at this table by its hostess, Mrs. W. W. Taylor. The singing of "Tipperary" by the guests at Britain's table was a delight to the whole assembly. With rich and wonderful voices the representatives of the sunny South proclaimed their presence. At this table Mrs. W. C. Hobdy was hostess and cotton balls and smiling darkies formed the table decorations. All through the evening the southerners, led by Mrs. Hobdy, Mrs. Shepherd and Mrs. Halsey sang the sweet plantation melodies together, and "Dixie" thrilled the dinner guests.

There was a joyous gathering at the California table where residents of the "Bear state" were seated. Topping the decorations were flags of all nations and a pennant bearing "1915" and all through the evening the Californians reminded the guests that the great exposition is in San Francisco this year. At each place a grape leaf and bunch of luscious grapes were used as place cards, while Teddy bears and oranges played an important part in the ornaments of the table.

Corn kernels figured in the decorations for the table at which Kansasites and Missourians were seated, and the names of the guests of the latter state were marked with cards ornamented with the Missouri mule.

Wheat and other grain ornamented the table at which the South Dakotans gathered and sang for their state.

Dainty flowers were arranged on the tables for Minnesota and Michigan, where residents of those states were seated. Mrs. Doris E. Paris was hostess for Michigan and Mrs. Arthur E. Arledge greeted the ladies from Minnesota.

Last but not least were the New Yorkers. The guests at this table were perhaps the most enthusiastic of the gathering. Led by Mrs. H. Tenney Peck, Dr. Scudder and Mrs. Agnes B. Judd the New Yorkers sang and yelled for their state. A surprise to the guests was made known when Mrs. Judd placed before her a birthday cake covered with candles. Cheer after cheer rang out for this charming lady. At the close of the dinner Miss McDougal gave an original reading composed for the occasion.

The evening's entertainment closed with the regular annual meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and interesting reports were read and addresses made to the assembly. A musical interpolation was the duet by Mrs. E. A. Mott-Smith and Mrs. Charles Weight.

Some of the guests who were present at the entertainment were:

Mrs. W. C. Hobdy, Dr. and Mrs. Huntington, Miss E. L. Edwards, Mrs. Palmerson White, Miss Edna Barlow, Miss Dora Ambrose, Mrs. Florence Pease, Mrs. Ernest Webster, Mrs. L. C. Howland, Miss E. E. Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Gulick Entertained.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John T. Gulick of Honolulu were Christmas guests at "Oakcrest," the home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Mannix, former friends of the Gulicks in the Paradise of the Pacific. Doctor and Mrs. Gulick will remain in Los Gatos during the winter and will attend the exposition at San Francisco before returning to Hawaii. Doctor Gulick, who belongs to a family of famous missionaries, enjoys the distinction of having been the first evangelical clergyman to establish a mission in China outside of treaty ports, and for many years his labors were in that country and Japan. He is a scientist of world-wide reputation, and as long ago as 1872 was called in conference with Darwin, Wallace, Romanies and other scientists of England.—Los Gatos, Cal., Mail.

Luncheon for Miss Irma Ballentyne.

Mrs. E. M. Watson was hostess at a luncheon for Miss Irma Ballentyne on Thursday at their home on Green street. In the center of the table was a make-believe wedding cake garnished with sweet peas holding a kewpie bride and groom. From the chandeliers soft folds of pink tulle fell gracefully to corners of the table, caught here and there with a tiny pink rosebud. Pink and white was carried out to the remotest detail, when in the last course a tray of pink sachets were served to the guest of honor. Covers were laid for Miss Irma Ballentyne, Miss Marie Ballentyne, Miss Thelma Murphy, Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Helen Spalding, Miss Hazel Burr, Mrs. A. L. Castle, Mrs. Gustave Schaefer, Mrs. Harold Castle, Mrs. Edward Dekum and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sherman Entertain Informally.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sherman entertained informally yesterday afternoon for Prince and Princess Kampengpetch. Shortly after they arrived in Honolulu, the royal couple from the Far East called at Mrs. Sherman's beautiful home in Nuuanu valley. Mrs. Sherman has known Prince and Princess Kampengpetch for some years having been entertained by them when she was touring some years ago.

Eastern Star Installs.

A public installation was held on Saturday evening, January 9, in the Masonic temple by Lei Aloha Chapter No. 3, O. E. S., Mrs. Clara Petrie, Worthy Matron, acting as installing officer. The installation ceremony was recited almost perfectly by her, which did much towards making the ceremony an impressive one. Mrs. Henry Williams, past matron of Leahi Chapter No. 2, acted as marshal and did the work in a very creditable manner. Mrs. Petrie was presented with a beautiful jewel. Dr. H. T. Hollman, past patron, was also presented with a jewel. Quantities of beautiful flowers were presented to the incoming and outgoing officers. After the installation of officers a short musical program was rendered, then all members and their friends repaired to the banquet hall, where delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Will Wayne Entertains.

A pretty affair of this week was the luncheon at which Mrs. Will Wayne entertained at Ainahau on Tuesday afternoon. A basket of maiden hair ferns with its handle of woven ferns filled the center of the table while red hibiscus and fronds were arranged attractively around the basket. Covers were laid for Mrs. Ralph Cuthbertson, Mrs. Herring, Mrs. C. F. Merrill, Mrs. Samuel Blair, Mrs. Clarence Whitener, Mrs. McIlrey, Miss Pauline Merrill, Miss Helenita Kennealy and Mrs. Will Wayne.

Miss Ethel James' Dance.

Miss Ethel James was hostess for about 30 of her friends at a dance on Saturday night at her home on Quarantine island. Miss James used red the green for her color scheme and the idea was carried out in brilliant red flowers and maidenhair fern. The red flowers and maidenhair ferns. The and at 10:30 o'clock delicious refreshments were served on the cool lanai. At midnight the guests motored to the city after a very delightful evening. Some noticeable gowns were those of Miss Ethel James, the hostess, who wore a gown of red satin trimmed with shadow lace, which was very becoming to her dark type; Miss Margaret Collins looked very pretty in blue charameuse with French silk and a shoulder bouquet of Frenchy-colored rosebuds. Miss Mabel Carter was very dainty in a gown of soft, white shadow lace over yellow sateen.

The Henshaws to Remain on Coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Henshaw and small son have given up their home in Honolulu, where they have been living since their marriage, and are planning to reside permanently in Oakland. At present they are guests of Mr. Henshaw's mother, Mrs. Grace Tubbs Henshaw, at her home in East Oakland.—San Francisco Examiner.

Series of Studio Teas.

Mr. Seldon Roorbach, whose watercolors have won great favor in Honolulu and on the other islands, is issuing invitations to a series of informal studio teas, the first to take place on January 26, in his studio at the Hawaiian. Seldon Roorbach's later work is very good. Having become more familiar with his subjects he has portrayed more of the poetry of the beautiful scenes he has painted.

Outdoor Circle Forms Hibiscus Class

Another little cog has been formed in the great wheel of the Outdoor Circle in the form of a hibiscus class. These society women who have worked so hard to enhance the natural beauties of Honolulu are trying to instil the knowledge of the wonders of plant life and the love of growing things into the minds of the younger generation. Hence the City Beautiful. A committee on education has been formed under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Ashford, Mrs. Arthur G. Smith and Mrs. Isaac M. Cox. These ladies will go into the schools and teach the children to grow plants and care for them and to care for the lawns. They will also be taught to keep the school house in good order. The ladies who are studying hibiscus culture under the supervision of Valentine Holt at the experiment station met last Friday afternoon. Among them are Mrs. Frederick J. Lowrey, Mrs. A. J. Gignoux, Mrs. J. J. Carden, Mrs. L. C. Lucas, Mrs. T. J. King, Mrs. W. F. Dillingham, Mrs. W. L. Whitney, Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Mrs. F. E. Blake, Mrs. A. E. Murphy and Mrs. W. L. Moore.

Meeting of the Buckeyes.

The enthusiastic Buckeyes met last Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bowen. Ohioans, when they meet in a body, are decidedly patriotic. The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kennedy. Mr. Kennedy gave an interesting address, followed by a word from Mrs. Margaret Evans Huntington, vice-president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs of America. There were several other talks and a musical program. About 100 guests were present.

Skating Clubs.

A number of the society women who have been interested in roller skating have formed a club to meet every Tuesday night at the skating rink. Invitations will be sent out to society people every week, and it is expected that this will be one of the largest interests this winter. Some of the ladies who will act as patronesses are Mrs. C. B. T. Moore, Mrs. William H. Carter, Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham, Mrs. A. A. Wilder, Mrs. Wilmot E. Ellis, Mrs. C. L. Bodrero, Mrs. Charles Bromwell, Miss Betty Case, Miss Lila McDonald, Mrs. Harrison Hall, Mrs. Gerrit Wilder and Mrs. Frank W. Coe.

American Wedding in London.

LONDON, Eng. — American weddings in London are now very rare and the usual number of weddings among Americans traveling in England will be lacking. There are few Americans in England now outside of the regular colony and furthermore the Church of England has shown a disposition to discourage the issuance of licenses to non-residents who desire to waive the formality of church regulations and have a license granted without the reading of bans and other preliminaries which consume at least two weeks.

At one time Americans were much given to seeking these special licenses and arranging weddings in great haste. The Bishop of Canterbury grants such licenses to Englishmen only when there are urgent reasons, such as illness or unexpected military or naval orders which would make it impossible to comply with the church's regular requirements.

In the case of Americans or other foreigners desiring to marry in England the same consideration will be shown in an extreme emergency that is shown to Englishmen, but the church has made very clear its unwillingness to issue special licenses simply because the parties to the marriages do not want to comply with the regular requirements.

Within the last 12 months only one special license has been granted to Americans.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Taylor Bade Goodbye at San Francisco.

A large contingent of society folk were at the dock yesterday with the sailing of the Sierra to bid bon voyage to Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Taylor. They have returned to their home in Honolulu after having resided in San Francisco for the past eight months. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were both decorated with leis, Mrs. Taylor's of roses and violets, Mr. Taylor's an ilima lei, and their stateroom was literally filled with flowers, fruit and candy.

It is a matter of great regret that this popular couple are leaving San Francisco to make their permanent home in the islands. They are planning to return for a brief visit, probably later in this year.

Among those who saw them off yesterday morning were: Capt. and Mrs. Victor Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Sebastian, Mrs. William Clift, Mrs. Ralph Lyons, Miss Jean Clift and Frederick Knight.

Mrs. Taylor was the honored guest at a tea given Monday at the Palace hotel, the hostesses on this occasion having been Mrs. William Clift, Mrs. Lee Cole Burnham and Miss Jean Clift. Pink roses and maidenhair ferns adorned the tea table.—San Francisco Chronicle.

TALES OUT OF SCHOOL

Honolulu, January 14, 1915.

Dearest Polly:

I have gradually come to the realization that Honolulu is a wonderfully well-balanced place, or perhaps it would be better to say that its people are very moderate in things they do. There seems to be no season here when every thought is turned to something frivolous or when serious things occupy the time and attention of the whole town. But there is ample time for both philanthropic and social affairs.

Of course you have become accustomed to seeing the ladies knit and crochet between dances in San Francisco and in the eastern cities, but it is something quite new here. In fact, the fad was started by Mrs. Walter Dillingham a few days ago. There is hardly a moment when her car is waiting on the curb that Mrs. Dillingham is not seen with knitting. And the other day at the meeting of the outdoor circle many of the ladies brought knitting-needles and wool from their dainty bags. Now just what all these things are being made for I do not know, but I rather fancy that they are to be sent to the little Belgian children who are suffering from the cold. Or perhaps to the soldiers at the front who are exposed to the biting cold of the wind and snow. I was talking to one of the younger girls the other day and she says that she and a number of her friends are learning to knit so that they can keep their fingers busy between dances both in the evening and at the dansants.

Oh, Polly, the wee bit of information I gave you in my last letter about the engagement of the young man who has been playing baseball and the pretty Honolulu girl has created quite a stir. The society folk have surmised all sorts of things and are expecting to hear of announcements from half a dozen girls almost any minute. Just the day before Rosie Herbert went away she gave a tea for some of the girls and the guests were all tingling with excitement for Rosie was wearing a diamond and they all expected that a secret would be told. They carefully searched the shells of the peanuts, the sweets and even went so far as to look under the doilies, but found nary a word. One of Rosie's best friends even confronted her with the question and the pretty hostess was very much amused. She said that if there was an engagement in her house she would just love to tell about it.

The social affair of this week which delighted everyone was the bal masque at Fort Shafter. It was such a success that folks are beginning to ask already if someone won't please give another Army Relief dance. George Ahlborn was there representing Pierrot and I heard several of the girls say he looked sweet enough to kiss—and he really did. If George had only known! There were lots of Yama suits there. The girls like them because they are so attractive and the boys say they are more comfortable than any of the other costumes.

I have quite a heart-ache, Polly dear, because of a new custom that is being introduced by some of the society folk. They are trying to do away with the sweet Hawaiian music for the dances and instead engaging Filipino orchestras and at some of the dances, just the drum, piano and one other instrument. It seems a shame when the music furnished by the native Hawaiians is so much prettier and better for dancing. So often I have heard visitors from other parts of the world say that our music in Hawaii is far more beautiful than that of any other country.

A pretty fad is being started by some of the Honolulu society women and it is one that will soon bring to Honolulu the title of the "Hibiscus City." Some years ago Mr. Gerrit Wilder, who is sometimes known as the "Hibiscus King," started a special garden at his beautiful home, Unlakaa, and he called the little plot his friends' garden. Here he planted new varieties of the hibiscus and named them after some of Honolulu's society folk. During the past few days some of these ladies have had their particular flower copied in satin by Miss Ella Winterstein and now at the dansants the little shoulder flowers are of hibiscus rather than the group of flowers and each lady who has been fortunate enough to have a blossom named for her is wearing that particular flower. Some of the flowers that have been seen at recent functions are the Lillian Wilder, a pale pink blossom which Mr. Wilder named for his wife; the Mazie Brown, a coral pink named for Mrs. A. M. Brown, and the Louise Dillingham, a cerise bloom called after Mrs. Walter Dillingham.

Lately I have heard quite a bit about the "borrowing" at the Outrigger club and several of the members of the club are up in arms about it. You can imagine how aggravating it is to go down for a swim and find that a part of your suit has been borrowed without your permission. There seems no way of putting an end to the removing of articles from different places there—that is, no way has been found.

You remember that a number of times I have spoken of the lack of interest some of the Honolulu boys show in the girls who entertain them when it comes to taking these same girls to an entertainment. At one of the recent functions three of the fair members of the younger set attended a dance unescorted, but when they arrived at the place were chaperoned by one of the young society matrons. Sometime during the evening one of the boys asked them how they had come and when they replied that they had ventured to step out without escorts the young man was horrified. He started a curtain lecture but the girls said they had no intention of staying at home just because the boys were too slow to take them out. They said a few more rather sarcastic things, too, and the young man fled in terror. From the way he spoke of the episode afterwards I fancy he will never question a girl again simply because she has attended a dance without a man.

From now on I don't suppose anyone will think of much but the Mid-Pacific Carnival. The Carnival is going to be quite wonderful this year, for the director-general and his committeemen have planned a week of unique entertainments. The announcement that Will Lewers is to assist in directing "The Sho-Gun" has interested Honolulu society folk to quite an extent, for Mr. Lewers is "a Honolulu boy" and his advancement on the stage has interested and gratified his many friends. Now they are looking forward to an entertainment the staging of which he will have in charge.

It is so late, Polly dear, that I just can't write another line.

Best love, PEGGY.

Entertainment for Prince and Princess Kampengpetch.

Prince and Princess Kampengpetch, who passed through Honolulu this week, were extensively entertained during their visit in San Francisco recently. During their sojourn in California Prince Kampengpetch acted as resident fair commissioner for Siam and entertained and was entertained officially in that capacity.

One of the recent and most elaborate affairs given in honor of the royal couple from Siam was the dance given in San Francisco by Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Spreckles on New Year's eve. The masterpiece of the evening was the presentation of a pantomime illustrating several of the verses from the Rubaiyat, enacted by Madame Margaret Barry, Mrs. Jack Spreckles, Harry Howell and Allan St. John. Charles Bulotti sang several of the quatrains which Liza Lehman did to music under the title "In a Persian Garden."

By way of imparting a colorful effect to the playlet it was done in the Spreckles' Pompeiian room, which was beautifully adorned for the evening, giving a superb dramatic effect to the entertainment. The aspect was as though a picturesque bit of romantic Persia had been transplanted to San Francisco. Peacocks adorned the room and tiger skins were scattered about the couches. At the marble entrances were vases of bright colored fruits, a fountain surrounded with flowers and plants occupying the center. The elusive spirit of the quatrains was subtly conveyed in a series of charming tableaux.

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

WAILUKU, Jan. 12.—at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Willard of Hilo, on Sunday January 3, occurred a very pretty wedding, when William H. Engle and Miss Pearl Spicer were united in marriage by the Rev. Jay O. Warner of the staff of teachers of the Hilo Boys' Boarding school.

The wedding was a very simple one, only a few of the friends of the bride and groom being present. Mrs. Willard is an intimate friend of the bride, who had been on an extended visit for some weeks at the Willard home. The house was beautifully decorated with palms, bamboo and cut flowers. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, and then Mr. and Mrs. Engle departed for the Volcano House, where they spent a brief honeymoon.

The guests present at the wedding were Ralph F. Engle, father of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Willard, Rev. and Mrs. Jay O. Warner, Shirley Foster, Francis Foster, William Rapson.

The young couple returned to Maui on last Monday's Mauna Kea and are at present paying a brief visit at the home of Mrs. Fannie M. Simpson, an aunt of Mr. Engle's at Paia. Mr. and Mrs. Engle will shortly begin housekeeping.

Mr. Engle spent his boyhood on Maui, his father for many years being sugar boiler on the Paia plantation. Some six years ago he completed his studies at the coast, where for a short time he was in business. Returning to the islands, he became a director of the Alexander House gymnasium in Wailuku and stenographer and bookkeeper in the office of the Maui Aid Association. About a year and a half ago he was taken upon the staff of the Baldwin National Bank in Kahului, which position he still holds.

Mrs. Engle is also well known on Maui, having taught school very successfully at Puunene. This she had to give up because of sickness which prevented her teaching. Heartiest congratulations attend the young people, who are very well known on Maui, where they have a host of friends.

Mrs. Alexander Garceau has issued invitations for next Tuesday for a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Harold Dillingham of Honolulu, who is leaving the following day for the islands.—San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 7.

MRS. ALBERT P. TAYLOR SUGGESTS MANY PATHS TO CITY BEAUTIFYING

Returning to Honolulu From San Francisco, She Sees Needed Changes

"Utilize Honolulu's 'local color' that it may become an item of commercial value.

"Brighten up the Palace grounds by the improvement of the avenue of palms; this is the first place the tourist will turn to upon arriving in the city.

"Make Kapiolani park more attractive. An expert landscape gardener could transform it into a second Golden Gate park. The toll from a few Japanese tea houses would assist in its upkeep.

"Open up Makee island; plant flowers and shrubs and build a rest house. Clean out the lagoons, turn water into them and hire boats to tourists and local residents."

Returning to Honoluiu after an absence of 14 months, Mrs. Albert P. Taylor, wife of the assistant secretary of the Promotion Committee, sees many changes in the city and brings back many new ideas for a greater "City Beautiful." The foregoing is a summary of these ideas. This is the "greater Hawaii" and the "greater Honolulu," she declares; and, while things historic must be preserved and made attractive, the up-to-date assets which Honolulu has to offer the tourist must be utilized not only for the benefit of visitors but to maintain the pride of Honolulu and the pride which the residents of Honolulu take in their city.

Mrs. Taylor is an enthusiastic member of the Outdoor Circle. Prior to leaving for the mainland she was head of the Manoa section. Since returning to Hawaii she has visited the important points of interest about the city and says she notes many improvements which add to the general attractiveness of the city as a whole.

"Beautify Palace Grounds."

Many of her ideas for further beautifying Honolulu have been drawn from the work which Donald McLaren, the landscape gardener, has done on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Mrs. Taylor draws particular attention to the avenue of palms which forms the Fillmore street entrance. The majority of these palms which, she says, are similar to the ones in the local Palace grounds, were brought from Oakland and transplanted in the fair grounds.

"I notice that there are many date palms alternated with the royal palms in the palace grounds," she said. Their rough trunks hardly are in keeping with the smoothness of the others. At the exposition Mr. McLaren has used many date palms, and has hidden the rough trunks with the light vines of the nasturtium and Wandering Jew. The flowers of these form a riot of color which blends attractively with the green leaves of the palm. Here is a scheme by which I believe the date palms in the palace grounds may be 'dressed up' and made more in keeping with the surrounding foliage."

From the standpoint of a member of the Outdoor Circle, Mrs. Taylor says she believes the Palace grounds are looking better than ever before. She urges that the best care be taken of the grounds and the trees, as the palace is sure to be a mecca for those tourists who, as Mrs. Taylor puts it, desire to visit the historic part of the city first.

Value of Historic Features.

"Hawaii is a part of the United States where, in the past, kings and queens have come and gone," she says. "Honolulu abounds with a historic atmosphere—places which the people on the mainland have read of and talked about. These are the places which naturally they will want to see first. Therefore, let us make these places attractive and keep them so."

Mrs. Taylor's broadest ideas for a greater "City Beautiful" have to do with Kapiolani park which, as she puts it, could and should be made into a second Golden Gate park or, perhaps, in this instance, a Diamond Head park.

While making no criticism as to the present condition of the park, Mrs. Taylor believes there are great possibilities from a tourist-entertaining standpoint in clearing Makee island, planting it with flowers and shrubbery and building a rest house and also a Japanese tea house. She advocates the cleaning and opening of the lagoons about the island, filling them with water and putting boats and canoes in them to be rented to the public for a nominal sum.

"Improve Kapiolani Park."

"I have read much about the plan to do away with the stream which empties into the waters at Waikiki between the Moana hotel and the Outrigger Club," she said. "I believe that the course of the stream could be diverted so that the water would fill the lagoons about Makee island. The water is fresh and salt water would not be adaptable."

Mrs. Taylor believes that many of the sections of Kapiolani park could be improved along the line carried out by Mr. Damon at Moanalua. The establishment of Japanese tea houses, she says, would bring a toll which would assist in paying for their construction.

With all this work done, taking into consideration its present good condition and the recent establishment of tennis courts and other mediums of recreation, Kapiolani park could be made into a place where both tourists and townsfolk would spend a large part of their time.

"Honolulu abounds in 'local color,' both modern and historic. It should be made an item of commercial value. We have flowers and plants and palm trees. Let us use them to a greater advantage in beautifying the city and surrounding places of interest."

LUCKY BALDWIN'S DAUGHTER WILL DO BUSINESS UNDER MAIDEN NAME

Wealthy Heiress Is Possessed of Strong Talents for the World of Industry

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—New Year's day marked a distinctively new era in the life of Mrs. Anita Baldwin McClaughry. It was the beginning of a business career of her own under her maiden name, and absolutely on her own resources.

No longer will it be proper to apply the prefix "Mrs." to her, the daughter of the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin. She is to be known in the business world as Anita M. Baldwin.

Mails Cards to Friends.

To make sure that she has eliminated once and for all time the name of her former husband from her life, and to put her business associates in a position where they can not possibly make a mistake in addressing her in the future, Anita M. Baldwin mailed to her host of acquaintances handsomely engraved cards bearing the following announcement:

"Mrs. Anita Baldwin McClaughry announces that after January 1, 1915, she will do business under the name of Anita M. Baldwin."

Anita M. Baldwin, upon the death of her father, who was one of the wealthiest and most widely known westerners of his day, received an inheritance estimated at $10,000,000, that being her share of the $25,000,000 estate.

Able Business Woman.

With so great a fortune she at once became a prominent figure in the business and financial life of the southland, and it is often said of her that she possesses most remarkable business acumen; that she is a "chip of the old block" when it comes to matters of money and business.

Anita M. Baldwin is the mother of two handsome children, but, of course, their names did not automatically change with hers. They will continue to be known as Dextra McClaughry and Baldwin McClaughry.

If You Want True Comfort
Get a Hup

—we are sincere, perfectly sincere, in that statement.

—for we firmly believe that few other motor cars on the market can offer you more real, true solid comfort than the Hupmobile.

—greater luxury, of course, you may be able to find—but you will have to pay inordinately for it—and you will get with it no greater degree of comfort.

—the new Hupmobile with its ideal wheelbase of 119 inches is so refined and perfected that five passengers can find no greater enjoyment in any other car.

—the big tires—the long springs—the deep, soft upholstery—these make for comfort; the roominess in front and rear—the wide tilted seats—the high protecting sides—these make for comfort—and so it is with each and every feature of the new Hupmobile.

—that is why we say if you want true comfort get a Hup, for Hup engineers have been as successful in incorporating true comfort in this car as they have been successful in the past in building quality an dependability and economy and power and long life into the very marrow of the Hup.

—the new Hup consequently gives you all the old Hup virtues—plus comfort in a hitherto unknown degree.

INFANTRY TRAINING AND THE ARMIES OF EUROPE

(The article below is by a former Austrian army officer now residing in Honolulu who is following the development of the American army, as well as the swaying tide of battle abroad, with close attention and has had unusual opportunities to compare the military systems of various nations.)

"THE TRAINING OF AN INFANTRY SOLDIER IN ONE YEAR."

Under this headnote the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, Saturday, Jan. 9, 1915, published the result of an investigation made by a board of officers of the U. S. army, expressing the opinion that "under the present conditions one year will not be a sufficient time to teach an infantryman enough of the essentials to make him an efficient soldier."

The infantryman in this case of course is the average American citizen, the same citizen that in case of war is expected to voluntarily join the ranks of the defending force of his country at the very time war is declared. And that without any previous military training. Of course there might be enough time left to give him a few weeks or even months of training before sending him to the front, but will there be enough of a standing army to act as a nucleus for, say, a million of volunteers; is there a sufficient number of instructors in the army to make this training possible at all, even should there be enough time for it? But let us suppose all this might work as it is expected to do, the material turned out after a few weeks' training will be raw, very raw. At this point the regular army and the reserves with thorough military experience will count most. They will be the steel structure that holds the building. Taken for itself it will easily support itself, but add the walls and the dead weight of concrete floors and it will crumble if not especially made for such weight. And so will our army under the dead weight of raw levies unless sufficiently strong for such an emergency. On the other hand it will form a solid and probably highly efficient body of defense for the country in spite of the large percentage of men with very little military training it would then contain.

The German System.

Germany with her splendid army keeps her men two years under the colors and within this time transforms them into regular machines. It is a matter of fact, though, that the German infantryman is taught things that will never be of any practical use for him in the field, and so much of it, that the time of his actual training for combat hardly amounts to more than one year. Parade drill, especially for troops garrisoned in the big cities, occupies sometimes half the time a man serves in the army. It would be interesting to know just exactly how much time is wasted to teach the soldiers the "correct" goose-step or to march past an inspecting general or member of a ruling house in an almost mathematically correct straight formation, items that would never come into consideration for an American soldier. Besides there are the vast numbers of reservists who only see an active service of eight to 12 weeks with the colors and later are called on for three so-called military exercises of four to eight weeks' duration each. And yet these reserves form the bulk of the German army now operating so successfully in Poland against the Russians, with only a surprisingly small number of active army corp as a backbone.

The One-Year Volunteer System.

Another institution that proved a complete success with the German and Austrian armies is that of the one-year volunteers. Young men, graduates of colleges or certain technical schools, have only to serve one year in the army and receive during this time a thorough theoretical and practical military training, and it is from this source only that the German and Austrian armies draw their reserve officers. Probably 75 per cent of the officers of the German-Austrian forces now engaged in war are reserve officers who served as one year's volunteers.

If it is possible, therefore, to give a man sufficient military training inside of a year to entrust him with the command of a platoon or even a company in time of war, is it not sufficient proof that an American citizen of average intelligence might be turned into a dependable infantryman within a year's time? Under the presumption, of course, that this is a year of at least 300 days of hard work and conscientious training. But here is supposedly where the "present conditions" come in. It is hard to get men for the army and consequently life has to be made easy for them, not to scare these away that might eventually be willing to enlist. Another obstacle is the long term of enlistment. Nobody wants his hands tied for a number of years. America is the country of opportunities and even the down and out of today may have a fair or even splendid chance in civil life tomorrow or next year. So the enlistment is often a last desperate step taken as it means the abandonment of hopes for a couple of years.

The above-mentioned report of the board of officers also states that Germany and France keep their men with the colors for two and three years respectively, England even 12 and 21 years and that this indicates the time necessary for a thorough military training.

For the Standing Armies.

True, Germany keeps them two years and France has only lately increased the term of service from two to three years. But not because two years were considered too short a time to make of a man an efficient and dependable soldier, but because France wants to keep up a standing army as big as Germany's and having only about two-thirds the population Germany has, the only way to do that was to keep the men under the colors for a longer term. As for England it is very improbable that Lord Kitchener will give his new recruits a 12 or 21 years training before despatching them to the front in France; the number of British troops engaged there at present rather indicates that there are many now with only a few weeks or months of training.

If it is therefore possible to make a soldier fit for campaign duty within three or four months in case of emergency, it must also be possible to make a useful soldier out of an average American citizen within a year's time, if he will be taught as conscientiously as in times of need. A short term enlistment, say one year, with the only clause that a man would have to join the colors in case of war after he has gone back to civil life as reserve soldier—the very thing that every patriotic citizen is expected to do in war time—and very likely there would have to be no more fretting about recruiting problems. And within a few years there would also be a sufficient number of well trained reserves, responding to the call in time of need.

NATIONAL GUARD NEWS

There will be no drill for Company H next Tuesday night, that being one of the evening dates on the Service basketball schedule. Games are played every Saturday night and Sunday afternoon and on revolving dates during the week. That is to say, Monday of this week, Tuesday of next week, Wednesday of the week following, and so on, are set aside for league games. In this way companies are only interfered with in their military work once in six weeks.

Sergt. Maddux, 5th Infantry, recently assigned to the 1st Infantry, N. G. H., as sergeant-instructor, reported for duty last Tuesday, being an arrival on the transport Sherman. There has been no sergeant-instructor with the National Guard of Hawaii for several months, and Sgt. Maddux will conduct a school for non-commissioned officers of the regiment, among his other duties.

Comprehensive instruction orders have been issued from the adjutant general's office and also from headquarters of the 1st Infantry. The latter order requires company commanders to prepare schedules of instruction for the period of armory training, so that the work for the whole regiment will be progressive.

Three new officers have been appointed to the guard during the week. They are 1st Sgt. Frank Stevenson, B Company; 1st Sgt. C. K. Amona, H Company, and Sgt. Manuel V. Sousa, C Company, all promoted to be second lieutenants. Second Lieut. Alan J. Lowrey is promoted to be 1st lieutenant.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF ARMY LIFE

In the early days of the Philippine insurrection, when the troops were scattered from Aparri on the north coast of Luzon to the little island of Siassi in the southern part of the Sulu group, with a detachment of troops in every dent in the coast where trouble might be found, the troops not occupying the verandas of the Army and Navy Club in Manila were supplied with commissaries, clothing, ammunition, etc., by small coastwise packets from the size of a tub to ships of large dimensions. Manila was the base and the military authorities had commandeered everything that would answer for water transportation, and a steady stream of povisions was kept going out of the bay to those fighting in the field. Among the small vessels chartered was a tub named by the Q. M. D. the "Helvetii," and used between Manila and our little one-company station at San Juan, on the island of Samar.

Down on Samar the troops were sleeping with their rifles loaded, cocked and aimed. The awful massacre of Balangiga was still fresh in the mind of every man. On the seacoast, about a mile from camp, a landing place was held for the little supply boats from Manila that came at very irregular intervals of generally weeks apart. A small guard was maintained at this point, usually consisting of a sergeant and a corporal's squad, and their duties called for extreme caution in not only looking out for our supply boats, but there was considerable danger of hordes of savages coming down the coast in bancos, and by making a night landing on that flank of the camp could annihilate the entire outfit before dawn. Anyway, on the particular night in question Sergt. Hans Mittenderfer, an excitable old German non-com., had been detailed in charge of this little outpost and was specially warned to watch closely for an enemy attempting to make a landing in small boats and that he had better stay awake. These instructions were superfluous as Sergt. M. was not only wide awake at the time, but was perspiring profusely, though the night was chilly and the rain coming down in torrents. Shortly after dark Sergt. M. posted two sentries near the landing, not far apart, and wrapped in a poncho took his seat in between, a little to the rear. Not a crab walked the beach nor an oyster murmured that evening that was not listened to intently by Sergt. M.

The wind had come up rather strong from the sea, the rain ceased, but the night was as dark as a night could be when, about 2 a. m., the sentry on the port side of Sergt. M. gave a yell that brought the said sergeant from under his poncho with bayonet fixed, rifle loaded and cocked. The alarm was not false, for there in the inky blackness of a tropical night sounds could be heard like someone talking in low whispered tones, the splash of oars, and barely visible on the bosom of the still inkier waters of Sergt. M.'s sector was an object that caused little wriggling chills to tango up and down the spine of Sergt. M. and not only he, but his outpost, who were now lined up on the beach, all trying to fasten the dangling ends of their nerves to the vertebrae.

The yell of the sentry was simply "Halt!"—very significant when you expect a hundred savages armed with spears and long, double-edged knives, to land on you at any minute. Before the echo had died away Sergt. M. had found his nautical voice and underpinning, but had forgotten a military phrase and called, "Who iss dot!" No answer. Again, louder, "Who iss dot!" No answer. Again, "Who iss dot, dammit!" Back came the answer, "Helve-til!" This impertinent reply changed Sergt. M.'s fear to anger and he yelled again, "Who iss dot!" Back came the answer, "Hel-ve-til."

Sergt. M. knew he was being joked with and by a lot of black savages. He yelled back, "To —— viss you; if you don't tell who you are I vill shoot!" By this time the Helvetii had drifted near enough to shore for the mate to explain his mission, thereby avoiding what might have been another serious episode in our Philippine campaign.

HONOLULU RIFLE CLUB PLANS FOR BUSY YEAR 1915

The first outdoor shoot of the Honolulu Rifle Club was held last Sunday morning at the National Guard range at Kakaako and some very promising rifle shots were discovered among the amateur members. The indoor shoots have been held at the Armory during the past two weeks, and, while no perfect scores were made, the enthusiasm shown promises a good future for the club.

The officers elected at the last meeting of the club for the year 1915, are: Frank A. Goble, president; J. C. Ramey, vice-president; W. L. Harvey, secretary; Charles Franz, treasurer; A. R. G. McCormick, executive officer.

Several applications for membership are now on file and the club has received its allowance of rifles and ammunition. Practise shoots will be held at least twice each month for the balance of this year. The next outdoor shoot will take place at the Fort Shafter range on Sunday morning, January 17, commencing at 8 o'clock, weather permitting. Two prizes are given by the club for the best scores this month, and all members are requested to be present next Sunday morning.

RETIREMENT OF MAJ. HARDEMAN OF THE CAVALRY

Word was received here yesterday of the retirement at his own request of Maj. Letcher Hardeman, 4th Cavalry, under the provisions of the 30-year service law.

Maj. Hardeman entered West Point in 1882 and has been in the military service continuously ever since. He served in the 11th, 10th and 4th regiments of cavalry and a tour in the quartermaster corps.

It is probable that the vacancy in the 4th Cavalry created by the retirement of Maj. Hardeman will be filled by Maj. John O'Shea of the same regiment, whose nomination was confirmed by the senate December 19 last.

Maj. O'Shea has been regimental adjutant for two years past.

Have you cut out beer?
Lo, your millions of sons are starving
(They don't now lustily cheer)
For that awful scourge is at your portal
And famine threatens to hurt all.

II.

Belgium, have you like France and Russia,
Joined the "Good Templars" band?
Sworn to never again accept revenue
From barley, malt or vinous land;
Never to tipple or sig again,
Never the intoxicating cup to drain?

Belgium, I hear your S. O. S. call
For "foodstuffs" for your starving;
Have thee the heavenly S. O. S. call answered
And forbid the sale of beer and free lunch carving?
If not, may the dear Lord forgive thee
As we to aid thy privations flee.

MAKING REPAIRS BEFORE A BREAK

The time to repair a garment is before there is any actual break in texture. The housewife should look for evidence of strain or wear, and reinforce thin places and renew worn edges before they become torn or frayed. Not only will one early stitch take the place of nine later stitches but the garment will keep in a uniform state of preservation, and will last far longer, according to a writer for the Youth's Companion.

The time to take the first stitches in ready-made clothing is when you first buy it; buttons should be sewed on firmly; tapes, ribbons or ornaments restitched and buttonholes and seams examined for unfinished edges. Use strong thread and plenty of it for sewing on buttons; wind it round under the button several times after sewing, and fasten it firmly before cutting it off.

Parts of garments subject to the greatest amount of wear, like the underside of sleeves, the seat and knees of trousers and the knees of stockings, should be strengthened by basting a piece of cloth, preferably of the same material, under the thin place before it actually wears throug... If the same material cannot be secured use cloth of the same shade and weight. Make your "patch" of generous size and sew it by running stiches, or rather cat stitching, rather than by hemming, which would show on the right side of the goods.

Watch the sleeve linings and the pockets for rips. When a pocket becomes torn cut it off below the sound top, cut a new one by it, allowing extra length for the lapping, and stitch the new part into place.

Darn stockings, mittens or other knitted goods on the wrong side, if possible before a break occurs. By running long, parallel threads under thin places, such articles can be kept in good condition long past the time when otherwise they would have been disfigured by unsightly darns. The two great secrets of neat darning are matching colors and covering well over on the firm part of the garment.

If a hole appears in any kind of woven goods, a piece of the same cloth must be used to fill it, if possible. Often a bit from a wide seam, or even from a deep hem, may be removed; or in the case of a shirtwaist, a piece from below the belt can be taken out and replaced by plain cloth. In making garments at home, particularly those of colored wash goods, stitch in an extra piece of the goods at the belt or yoke, on the underside of the garment, so that it may fade like the rest of the cloth in washing, and be ready for needful repairs.

HOW TO ADD TO CHILD'S COMFORT

One has only to read the advertising sent out by business houses nowadays to perceive the attention given to children to draw trade. It is nothing new to find departments in large stores given over entirely to the little folks or possibly whole floors used for providing for their needs, but to see circulars sent out from the large hotel urging people to bring their children and pointing out the numerous advantages offered for their comfort is a feature in catering which is something of a novelty. Play rooms, kindergartens, special menus and all such methods of entertainment were once unheard of. With the advance of the times, advertisers see the opportunity in the prominent place which children have come to hold in the home.

Yet, far from its appearing strange that this should be so, what should be brought forward for the happiness of the children when the business world is working overtime to produce unique and up-to-date methods for the comfort of the fathers and mothers. One can see how strong an influence the welfare of the children would have in deciding where the family should stay when they go to the city, for the parents would want them to be where they would be properly cared for and where they would be the happiest.

FASHIONS DESIGNED IN AMERICA

Paris may be "hemmed" by the Germans, but America is being "frilled" by Americans. The fashion show at the Ritz-Carlton, New York, showed that.

It showed other things also—that still we are dominated by Paris. What will we do in the spring, I wonder? Paris has other matters to think of, and we will have no fashion basis from there upon which to build our frills.

Many of the frocks exhibited at the show were very successful, many unsuccessful. Practically all were only clever adaptations of the ideas which Paris, even in the grip of war, found time to evolve and send out as the basis for this winter's modes.

And there you have it. We have, beyond doubt, plenty of dressmakers able to adapt French ideas to American taste, able even in some cases to improve upon the original French expression of those ideas, but by force of tradition, experience, atmosphere, if not of inherent taste, Paris dressmakers still speak the decisive words on the fashionable silhouette, colors and materials.

Illustrated here are four models which show how clever the Americans are in adaptation. The gown on the left is the long blouse effect, which, curiously enough, is extremely becoming to figures afflicted with embonpoint. The gown is built of navy blue serge, with a trimming of black satin, a combination of materials which is exceedingly popular.

Next shown is a unique afternoon dress. The bodice, which extends down over the hips, is of black chiffon over white satin and is ornamented with jet bands. The surplice effect is carried out in black satin, which drapes the hips and is tied in a butterfly bow in the back. The long skirt is of satin, as is the tiny underskirt.

Many of the skirts have omitted the underskirts. This style is very good when not exaggerated, as so many of the modes are inclined to be. Pictured next is a natty tailored gown which follows all the new dictates of fashion, but does so in a modified degree. The skirt is wide, but not too wide; the jacket is long waisted, but not too long waisted, and the jaunty hat completes the modish whole. Next is a model in which the fashion points are a little more accentuated. It is built of black broadcloth, with a tight fitting jacket and a wide skirt—quite the last word in modishness. The collar and cuffs are of lynx.

Jet is very fashionable this year and jet watches will be worn, and the old fashioned jet bracelets. Little and long drop earrings are used. Stud earrings are close rivals, especially the new ones rimmed with crystal.

Necklaces of jet will be worn over bare necks, emphasizing the white luster of a beautiful skin. Jet has the quality of rendering the skin the more dazzlingly fair by sharp contrast.

LOVELY EVENING GOWN OF COTTON

A new idea has found expression in the new types of evening gowns. It originated in the bale-of-cotton plea. It has met with success, so far as the appeal to women all over the land is concerned, and just as sure as summer dresses are attractive, so these new midwinter frocks are beautiful. As a change from the silk and velvet gown, the cotton evening dress is eloquent. You will notice an increasing number of them as the weeks roll in and as the white sales are planned.

Of course, the cotton dress need not be as plain as a sheet. It can be of batiste, the revived favorite; organdie or swiss and thin muslin, and can be trimmed with taffeta and satin or lace and net. The cotton fabric is the foundation of the dress, that is all.

The new frilled dresses that resemble the Victorian styles are easily planned from cotton materials. The simple skirts that have deep hems of graduated tucks running parallel with the bottom are effective. The trimming of crisp organdie with black velvet, for example, is an idea that commands applause for the cotton dress. The washability of these evening frocks is commendable, and in the dance days of the young woman the cotton dress cannot have a better opportunity to prove its worth.

In muslins of flowered and plain weaves there is great opportunity to have simple or ornate evening dresses. Little separate jackets of velvet, satin or painted silk can be added to very plain dresses, and a distinctive frock will result.

One dress that received much applause in a showing of cotton evening dresses the other day was of pale pink organdie. It was made with a circular skirt, with tucks around the bottom that were from five to one inch in width, the latter at the top. At the edge of each tuck was added a fine velvet ribbon, black. This could be removed before the washing. The bodice had a quaint dropped shoulder effect made with tucks going around the waist. The ruffled sleeves were short and trimmed with loops of baby ribbon at the top. A short chemisette of pink net filled in the top of this simple dress that any one can copy.

This is just one of the possibilities of cotton fabrics in the realm of evening dress.

WOMEN TO HAVE MANY POCKETS

Pockets, which are to be used extensively next season, are added to the garments in a great variety of ways, and are seen in many shapes. There is the plain patch pocket and the patch pouch pocket, which appears to lie flat but is opened out when one puts it to use. Advance models show these conveniences for women's use to be cleverly arranged on the yoke of the skirts. One particular instance noted is where the yoke has the effect of making a point on either side, this point being formed by a pocket. Some pockets are made to fasten with a button and buttonhole at the top which helps to keep it close to the garment and is a protection in carrying small articles if the pocket is for use instead of trimming only. As skirts may have two pockets, and jackets and coats or basques two or three, it is not unusual to find as many as five pockets in a suit.

FRENCH WOMEN CHANGING WALK

[Associated Press]

LONDON, Eng.—Paris women are changing their gait.

Says a correspondent from the French capital:

"In nothing has the women of Paris, whose silhouette is copied all over the world, changed so much as in her walk. A short time ago she wriggled her way along and her anatomy appeared to be of the strangest. Today she is gradually slipping back into her old habit of tripping, and it suits her much better. Her figure is taking on its old familiar lines, and the flat chest is likely to disappear with the ungraceful wriggle.

"When the old writers spoke of 'a beautiful daughter of France,' the imagination pictured something very different from the quaint little people who have grimaced the boulevards of late years and it is quite possible that with the return of peace we shall see a return of the old-type Frenchwoman in all classes. And the revival will benefit not only France but the whole world in general, for what the Frenchwoman does today the women of all the civilized world do tomorrow."

The velvet dresses for young girls will be stylish for afternoon dresses for winter. They are made with a long waist, with short skirt made of two circular flounces; between these is a satin belt or sash. A collar of pique or lace, cut sailor or rounding, is the usual neck finish. The sleeveless overblouses of velvet that are seen on the grownup dresses are also a feature of those worn by girls of 14. They are rather like a middy blouse in shape, but are not so long, and the armhole is very much enlarged, so that the foundation dress of serge shows.

PEANUT WAFERS.

One-quarter cup of butter, 1 tablespoonful peanut butter, well mixed with the softened butter; ½ cup fine granulated sugar, ¼ cup milk, 1¼ cups of flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Well beaten; all well mixed and spread on flat pans that have been previously buttered. Bake in moderate oven. Have ready cup of chopped and roasted peanuts and quickly scatter them over the wafers and cut into squares or circles; roll up with nut side out.

FRENCH NEW YEAR CAKE.

12 yolks of eggs, 12 tablespoons of sugar, small teaspoon salt. Mix all, beat well, then add 12 tablespoons of soda crackers rolled as fine as flour; must be fresh crackers; ½ cup blanched and finely chopped almonds, 1 tablespoon finely chopped citron, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ wineglass of brandy, 1 lemon and grated rind, 2 sticks of grated chocolate (unsweetened). Beat all well, then add the 12 whites of eggs (stiffly beaten); bake 20 minutes. Must have good oven, but do not let burn. Frost with white icing; decorate with almonds and cherries. A low square or round cake pan necessary. A very lovely cake.

ORIENTAL PUDDING.

Heat 1 large cup of milk, stir in 2 tablespoons of butter. When this reaches the boiling stage stir in 1 cup of flour with 1 teaspoonful of baking powder; ½ teaspoon salt; stir till a smooth thick batter; remove from fire and stir in four well-beaten eggs; ½ cup of preserved ginger minced rather fine, 2 tablespoons of ginger syrup. Put in a buttered mold and steam 1½ hours. Serve hot with a sweet wine sauce in which a little of the sliced ginger may be added.

CRACKER PUFFS.

Split six Boston butter crackers, soak them 25 minutes in cold water; at the end of that time they should be twice their size. Take them out with a skimmer, being careful not to break or crack them. Place each after draining them inner side up. Butter this side with soft butter and place the pan in a very hot oven or crackers will not puff. In ½ hour's time they should be well puffed and resemble puff paste. Serve with any kind of preserve. Quince or raspberries are nice with them.

SCOTCH SNOW CAKE.

Cream half a pound of butter, add gradually ¼ pound of white sugar, fine or powdered; 1 lb. of arrowroot, lemon extract; beat well, then add stiffly beaten whites of 6 eggs. Beat all together and bake in a moderate oven; strew comfits over the top of cake.

MEXICAN TAMALES.

Boil 12 ears sweet corn. When done remove and cut off corn from cob, press through a ricer, add to pulp six chili peppers that have been soaked in salted water beforehand and chopped and fried with 1 onion, slow and brown. Add meat of 1 chicken chopped or cut up fine, a little salt, six medium-sized tomatoes cut in pieces. Spread corn husks with this paste, place pimoles and raisins in center, roll on more husks, tie each end securely, steam 1¼ hours.

SCOTCH HAGGIS, MODERNIZED.

Take a piece of tripe well cleaned; sew it up bag shape, previously cutting the tripe the size you desire. After sewing it up strongly to keep contents inside turn it out so honeycomb side of tripe is outside. Take one prime calve's heart, liver, kidney or tongue, chop or put through chopper, add ½ cup finely chopped bacon, ½ cup tripe (well chopped), 1½ cups bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon flour, salt and pepper to suit the taste. Thoroughly mix all ingredients together. Place inside bag, leaving room for contents to swell, sew up opening in bag, boil 3 hours, serve with mustard or brown sauce mixed with chopped pickles, olives or peppers.

ORANGE ROLEY-POLEY.

Make baking powder dough rather richer than for biscuit, roll in oblong sheet, lay oranges peeled, sliced and seeded, thickly over it; sprinkle with white sugar, scatter over all one teaspoonful grated orange peel, roll edges together, pinch tightly to keep in syrup, steam 1 hour. Eat with lemon sauce, prepared as follows: Two eggs (yolks only), 1 tablespoon of butter, 1 cup sugar, juice of two lemons, grated rind of one. Cook slowly and stir till it thickens like honey. Do not boil.

BAKED PARSNIPS.

Scrape parsnips, cut in slices, boil till tender, turn into a buttered baking dish. There should be about 1 pint of them. Have ready a sauce made of ¼ cup each of butter and flour, 1¾ cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, pour over parsnips, sprinkle thickly with grated cheese, bake to a nice brown. These are nice served with the haggis.

POTATO AND CHEESE CROQUET.

Bake 8 medium-sized potatoes, press through ricer, add ½ cup grated cheese, the same of sifted flour; salt and pepper to taste, add two well-beaten eggs, mix all together, roll in flour, then in melted butter, grated cheese and bread crumbs, brown in oven.

APRICOT PIE.

Drain the juice from a can of apricots, have ready a pie tin lined with pastry, lay the halved apricots thickly over crust in each half of fruit, put one blanched almond, sprinkle with sugar and cover with strips of pastry laid on lattice fashion. Bake, and serve cold with sugar and cream.

COOK THE FOOD IN CLEAN OVEN

One cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of having a clean oven for baking. If a smoky taste is detected in the food that is baked, it is very sure to be due to the oven not being clean. The oven needs to be cleaned frequently, although this is a part of the work that many housekeepers neglect. The food one eats should be cooked in the best and cleanest atmosphere, from the stirring-up process to the baking.

The stove kept well cleaned will wear much longer and give better service. Therefore, from an economical standpoint alone it is better to keep every part of it as clean as possible. The best way to wash a gas stove is to light the burners and heat the top and the oven, then wash thoroughly with warm water with a little washing soda dissolved in it. If one desires, the stove may then be greased with oil or any fat. This is put on with a cloth and only as much is used as will be absorbed and not leave the stove greasy. If this is rubbed on the inside of the oven it will be an aid in preventing rust, but too much grease should not be used or it will smoke.

Protection for You
The need for a powerful antiseptic, to prevent contagion or relieve inflammation, is likely to arise at any time, in any family. FULL TEXT OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S NOTE OF WARNING TO GREAT BRITAIN

Says Friendly Public Sentiment Might Change if Seizures Continue

[By Latest Mail]

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Because of the misunderstanding in the United States and abroad of the position taken in the note on sea seizures sent to Great Britain, President Wilson has revealed its full text. It was also given out in London.

Text of the Note.

The full text of the note, which is dated at the State Department Dec. 26, follows:

"The present condition of American foreign trade resulting from the frequent seizures and detentions of American cargoes destined to neutral European ports has become so serious as to require a candid statement of the views of this Government in order that the British Government may be fully informed as to the attitude of the United States toward the policy which has been pursued by the British authorities during the present war.

"You will, therefore, communicate the following to His Majesty's principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, but in doing so you will assure him that it is done in the most friendly spirit and in the belief that frankness will better serve the continuance of cordial relations between the two countries than silence, which may be misconstrued into acquiescence in a course of conduct which this Government cannot but consider to be an infringement upon the rights of American citizens.

No Harsh Judgment Taken.

"The Government of the United States has viewed with growing concern the large number of vessels laden with American goods destined to neutral ports in Europe which have been seized on the high seas, taken into British ports and detained sometimes for weeks by the British authorities. During the early days of the war this Government assumed that the policy adopted by the British Government was due to the unexpected outbreak of hostilities and the necessity of immediate action to prevent contraband from reaching the enemy. For this reason it was not disposed to judge this policy harshly or protest it vigorously, although it was manifestly very injurious to American trade with the neutral countries of Europe.

"This Government, relying confidently upon the high regard which Great Britain has so often exhibited in the past for the rights of other nations, confidently awaited amendment of a course of action which denied to neutral commerce the freedom to which it was entitled by the law of nations.

"This expectation seemed to be rendered the more assured by the statement of the Foreign Office early in November that the British Government was satisfied with guarantees offered by the Norwegian, Swedish and Danish Governments as to non-exportation of contraband goods when consigned to named persons in the territories of those governments, and that orders had been given to the British fleet and customs authorities to restrict interference with neutral vessels carrying such cargoes so consigned to verification of ships papers and cargoes.

Five Months and No Change.

"It is, therefore, a matter of deep regret that, though nearly five months have passed since the war began, the British Government have not materially changed their policy and do not treat less rigorously ships and cargoes passing between neutral ports in the peaceful pursuit of lawful commerce, which belligerents should protect rather than interrupt. The greater freedom from detention and seizure which was confidently expected to result from consignees rather than 'to order' is still awaited.

"It is needless to point out to His Majesty's Government, usually the champion of the freedom of the seas and the rights of trade, that peace, not war, is the normal relation between nations and that the commerce between countries which are not belligerent should not be interefered with by those at war, unless such interference is manifestly an imperative necessity, and then only to the extent that it is a necessity.

"It is with no lack of appreciation of the momentous nature of the present struggle in which Great Britain is engaged and with no selfish desire to gain undue commercial advantage that this Government is reluctantly forced to the conclusion that the present policy of His Majesty's Government toward neutral ships and cargoes exceeds the manifest necessity of a belligerent, and constitutes restrictions upon the rights of American citizens on the high seas which are not justified by the rules of international law or required under the principle of self-preservation.

Perplexed by British Indecision.

"The Government of the United States does not intend at this time to discuss the propriety of including certain articles in the lists of absolute and conditional contraband which have been proclaimed by His Majesty. Open to objection as some of these seem to this Government, the chief ground of present complaint is the treatment of cargoes of both classes of articles when bound to neutral ports.

"Articles listed as absolute contraband shipped from the United States and consigned to neutral countries have been seized and detained on the ground that the countries to which they were destined have not prohibited the exportation of such articles. Unwarranted as such detentions are in the opinion of this Government, American exporters are further perplexed by the apparent indecision of the British authorities in applying their own rules to neutral cargoes.

"For example, a shipment of copper from the country to a specified consignee in Sweden was detained because, as was stated by Great Britain, Sweden had placed no embargo on copper. On the other hand, Italy not only prohibited the export of copper but, as this Government is informed, put in force a decree that shipments to Italian consignees or "to order" which arrive in ports of Italy cannot be exported or transhipped. The only exception Italy makes is of copper which passes through that country in transit to another country.

Refuse to Let Copper Go.

"In spite of these decrees, however, the British Foreign Office has thus far declined to affirm that copper shipments consigned to Italy will not be molested on the high seas. Seizures are so numerous and delays so prolonged that exporters are afraid to send their copper to Italy, steamship lines decline to accept it and insurers refuse to issue policies upon it. In a word, a legitimate trade is being greatly impaired through uncertainty as to the treatment which it may expect at the hands of the British authorities.

"We feel that we are abundantly justified in asking for information as to the manner in which the British Government proposes to carry out the policy which they have adopted, in order that we may determine the steps necessary to protect our citizens engaged in foreign trade in their rights and from the serious losses to which they are liable through ignorance of the hazards to which their cargoes are exposed.

"In the case of conditional contraband the policy of Great Britain appears to this Government to be equally unjustified by the established rules of international conduct.

"As evidence of this, attention is directed to the fact that a number of the American cargoes which have been seized consist of foodstuffs and other articles of common use in all countries which are admittedly relative contraband. In spite of the presumption of innocent use because destined to neutral territory, the British authorities made these seizures and detentions without, so far as we are informed, being in possession of facts which warranted a reasonable belief that the shipments had in reality a belligerent destination, as that term is used in international law.

Damages Not Enough.

"Mere suspicion is not evidence and doubts should be resolved in favor of neutral commerce, not against it. The effect upon trade in these articles between neutral nations resulting from interrupted voyages and detained cargoes is not entirely cured by reimbursement of the owners for the damages which they have suffered, after investigation has failed to establish an enemy destination. The injury is to American commerce with neutral countries as a whole through the hazard of the enterprise and the repeated diversion of goods from established markets.

"It also appears that cargoes of this character have been seized by the British authorities because of a belief that though not originally so intended by the shippers, they will ultimately reach the territory of the enemies of Great Britain. Yet this belief is frequently reduced to a mere fear in view of the embargoes which have been decreed by the neutral countries to which they are destined on the articles composing the cargoes.

"That a consignment 'To Order' of articles listed as conditional contraband and shipped to a neutral port raises a legal presumption of enemy destination appears to be directly contrary to the doctrines previously held by Great Britain, and thus stated by Lord Salisbury during the South African war:

"Foodstuffs, though having a hostile destination can be considered as contraband of war only if they are for the enemy forces. It is not sufficient that they are capable of being so used, it must be shown that this was in fact their destination at the time of their seizure.

"With this statement as to conditional contraband the views of this Government are in entire accord, and upon this historic doctrine, consistently maintained by Great Britain when a belligerent as well as a neutral, American shippers were entitled to rely.

"The Government of the United States readily admits the full right of a belligerent to visit and search on the high seas the vessels of American citizens or other neutral vessels carrying American goods and to detain them 'when there is sufficient evidence to justify a belief that contraband articles are in their cargoes,' but His Majesty's Government, judging by their own experience in the past, must realize that this Government cannot without protest permit American ships or American cargoes to be taken into British ports and there detained for the purpose of search generally for evidence of contraband, or upon presumptions created by special municipal enactments which are clearly at variance with international law and practise.

Many Industries Suffering.

"This Government believes and earnestly hopes His Majesty's Government will come to the same belief, that a course of conduct more in conformity with the rules of international usage, which Great Britain has strongly sanctioned for many years, will in the end better serve the interests of belligerents as well as those of neutrals.

"Not only is the situation a critical one to the commercial interests of the United States, but many of the great industries of this country are suffering because their products are denied long established markets in European countries which, though neutral, are contiguous to the nations at war. Producers and exporters, steamship and insurance companies are pressing and not without reason, for relief from the menace to transatlantic trade which is gradually but surely destroying their business and threatening them with financial disaster.

"The Government of the United States, still relying upon the deep sense of justice of the British nation, which has been so often manifested in the intercourse between the two countries during so many years of uninterrupted friendship, expresses confidently the hope that His Majesty's Government will realize the obstacles and difficulties which their present policy has placed in the way of commerce between the United States and the neutral countries of Europe and will instruct its officials to refrain from all unnecessary interference with the freedom of trade between nations which are sufferers, though not participants, in the present conflict, and will in their treatment of neutral ships and cargoes conform more closely to those rules governing the maritime relations between belligerents and neutrals which have received the sanction of the civilized world, and which Great Britain has in other wars so strongly and successfully advocated.

Warned of American Opinion.

"In conclusion it should be impressed upon His Majesty's Government that the present condition of American trade with the neutral European countries is such that, if it does not improve, it may arouse a feeling contrary to that which has so long existed between the American and British peoples. Already it is becoming more and more the subpject of public criticism and complaint. There is an increasing belief, doubtless not entirely unjustified, that the present British policy toward American trade is responsible for the depression in certain industries which depend upon European markets.

"The attention of the British Government is called to this possible result of their present policy to show how widespread the effect is upon the industrial life of the United States and to emphasize the importance of removing the cause of complaint."

HE SAYS GERMANS WOULD "GERMANIZE AMERICA"

The following letter appeared in the New York Times:

"GERMAN MISSIONARIES.

"Come to This Country to Make It Civilized."

"To the Editor of the New York Times:

"We Germans did not come to the United States to gain any advantage for ourselves. What advantage can the United States offer to a German? Haven't our professors been telling you of the great things Germans have done for the American people? Is not Germany the fountain head of American culture? Without the influence of German refinement and liberality you would be living the narrow, bigoted lives of your Puritan ancestors.

"Germans come to this country for the same reason that missionaries go to China, to bestow upon you the inestimable blessing of German civilization. We Germans did not come to the United States to be Americanized; for American institutions and ideals we have only profound contempt. We came to Germanize America.

"OTTO GUSTAV VON SCHULTZENHEIMER.

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save your Hair! Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight — now — anytime — will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair — new hair — growing all over the scalp.

DIGNITY AND BEAUTY CHARACTERIZE VAST EXHIBIT PALACES

Mighty Panama-Pacific International Exposition Will Open on Time Completed In Every Detail.

Magnificent Panorama of a Part of the Main Exhibit Section, Taken From Machinery Hall. This Photograph Was Taken Oct. 1, Four and One-half Months Before the Opening of the Exposition.

WHEN the war broke out in Europe millions of people throughout the world wondered what effect it would have upon the great Exposition at San Francisco. Europe itself supplied the answer. None of the forty participating nations withdrew from the Exposition. In the latter part of September and early in October thousands of tons of exhibits had begun to reach San Francisco both by sea and by rail and were rapidly installed in the vast exhibit palaces. A single shipment from Japan consisted of 310 tons of priceless displays, including a superb art collection loaned by the imperial household, most of which could not be duplicated. Five carloads of exhibits reached San Francisco from Rotterdam. A great collection of displays from London was installed in the Palace of Mines. More than 80,000 individual exhibits and groups of exhibits are now being installed in the Exposition. The freight on these to the Exposition grounds amounts to more than $2,000,000.

This photograph, taken from the roof of the giant Palace of Machinery, shows that the vast main exhibit section was finished months before the opening of the Exposition on Feb. 20, 1915. To the left of the center of the picture is the huge Tower of Jewels, 435 feet in height, or as high as the average thirty story city building. On the left is the dome of the Palace of Varied Industries, next comes the dome of the Palace of Manufactures, the Tower of Jewels, next the dome of the Palace of Liberal Arts and next the dome of the Palace of Education. In the center is seen the giant triumphal Arch of the Rising Sun, surmounted by a superb group rich in Oriental feeling, the Nations of the East; next to the right comes the unfinished Tower of Ages, rising 270 feet above the entrance to the Court of Abundance from San Francisco harbor; next comes the dome of the Palace of Transportation, where a remarkable automobile exhibit will be shown, and finally on the right are the huge dome of the Palace of Mines and a portion of the superb Court of Abundance.

NEW CONTRIBUTION ON ORIGIN OF POLYNESIANS FURNISHED LOCALLY

Corresponding Secretary's Report Includes Statement by Hon. S. Percy Smith

A new and important contribution to the discussion regarding the origin of the Polynesians was brought to notice at the meeting of the Historical Society on Tuesday evening, January 13. Rev. W. D. Westervelt, corresponding secretary, brought it out in his annual report. The report is as follows:

Report of the Corresponding Secretary of the Historical Society.

Comparatively close touch has been maintained the past year, as in previous years, with the excellent band of Polynesian scholars in New Zealand. The exchange of publications and ordinary correspondence has been continued.

Hon. S. Percy Smith, the highest living authority on Polynesian history, has stated some of the valuable results of research along the line of the origin of the Polynesians. He says:

"It is certain that many of the Polynesian myths and traditions find their counterpart in those of Scandinavian, Celtic, Indian and other branches of the Aryan race, and it is suggested that in the Polynesian versions we are frequently nearer to the originals as they obtained in primitive times than in any other branch of the Caucasian race, because of the long isolation of the people in their island homes."

If you will pardon a personal reference I will quote along the same line from a preface written by Mr. Smith for the Australian edition of my book, "Legends of Maui—A Demi-God of Polynesia." He says: "When we reflect that traces of the Maui stories are to be discovered in the literature of Egypt, Babylonia, India and also North America we are at once faced with the fact of the immense antiquity of the Maui legends."

Another conclusion stated by Mr. Smith is of so much worth that I will insert it in this report. He says: "It is tolerably clear that on leaving Indonesia a part of the Polynesians reached the Hawaiian islands, then, after some generations, Tahiti, and much later New Zealand about the middle of the fourteenth century."

Thus we have a glimpse of the trend toward fulhl belief in the Aryan origin of the Polynesians.

A letter from Baron Sakatoni, the present Mayor of Tokio, is worth noticing as touching a field of study which needs to be entered. He refers to the meaning of the name Maui, which the Polynesian students think is "life," "beauty," "strength." He says that among the Japanese Maui means "good enough." It is also interesting to note that the Japanese use the word "kai" for "sea," exactly according to the Hawaiian sense of the word.

Letters have been exchanged with and reports received from various mainland organizations. In these there is nothing of especial significance.

Respectfully submitted,

W. D. WESTERVELT.

SEC'Y. DANIELS LENIENT WITH NAVAL OFFICERS

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—According to an announcement from the bureau of navigation, Secretary of the Navy Daniels has modified the sentences imposed by a naval courtmartial upon Capt. Albert P. Niblack and Lieut.-com. Clarence L. Arnold, navigator, of the battleship Michigan.

Capt. Niblack was sentenced to lose 20 numbers in his grade, which was reduced to five.

Com. Arnold was sentenced to lose 40 numbers, which was reduced to 10.

This clemency was exercised because the warship, which had been allowed to ground off the Virginia capes, was refloated undamaged.

The steamship Ryndam arived in New York with 30,000 songbirds from Germany and Switzerland.

WINDJAMMER LURLINE ADRIFT; CREW IS SAFE

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 16.—The brig Lurline, formerly in the Hawaiian sugar trade and recently put on a run from this port to Salina Cruz, is now a derelict, drifting along the Mexican coast, last seen of Hall Sound.

This is the report received here by wireless from the U. S. S. Annapolis, which states that after the Lurline was dismasted and rendered helpless in a recent storm her crew was taken off by the American-Hawaiian steamship Panaman, which is bringing the crew to San Diego.

The Panaman put a line on to the hulk and attempted to tow it into port but had to abandon the task and cut the Lurline adrift.

SNOWSLIDES IN ALPS BLOCKING RAILROADS

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 16.—Railway traffic between Germany and Italy, through Switzerland, has been interrupted by the blocking of the St. Gothard railroad, which is buried under avalanches in some places.

The town of Obergestelen was overwhelmed and buried by a great slide of ice and snow.

The avalanches are attributed to the great earthquake which has just racked taly.

CARRANZA GARRISON ATTEMPTS REVOLT

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—A telegraphic despatch from Eagle Pass, Tex., to the state department, says that a part of the Carranza garrison at Las Vacas yesterday attempted to revolt in favor of Villa. The revolt was put down by the loyal remainder of the garrison and 10 ringleaders among the revolters were immediately executed.

WILSON WANTS ACTION ON SHIP PURCHASE BILL

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—President Wilson yesterday held a long conference with Senators Hoke Smith, Walsh and Bankhead, Democratic administration leaders, regarding the prospects for the passage of the ship purchase bill and other administration measures.

The president was informed that the ship purchase bill could be passed if it could be brought to a vote, but that there is every difficulty in the way of bringing the measure to the final test.

Opposition to the bill is being evidenced by a determined minority, strong enough to talk the bill to death and tacticians enough to take advantage of every degree of senatorial courtesy and other technicality.

The difficulties in the way of a vote on the measure are intensified in regard to the other administration bill for which there is even less hope.

The president said that he would insist upon action upon the ship purchase bill at this session, even if the other administration bills had to be jettisoned.

MEXICAN POLITICIANS FLEE FOR SAFETY; CROSS BORDER AT EL PASO

Declare Their Lives Are In Danger While Warring Factions are Active

[Associated Press by Fed. Wireless.]

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 16.—Fearing for their personal safety, the members of the permanent executive committee of the Mexican national convention came across the border from Mexico to this city yesterday. Upon the arrival of the party here, the president of the committee said the members did not feel that their lives were safe while the numerous contending factions were engaged in active hostilities in the field in all parts of the country.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—Constitutionalist President Gutierrez is quoted in despatches as having publicly expressed his approval of President Wilson's references to Mexico in his recent address at Indianapolis.
