Commercial Advertiser.

The Late Richard Armstrong, D. D. Mr. Editor—The following notice of Rev. Dr. Armstrong has been furnished, at my suggestion, by one who knew him well in his early years, and who speaks from a most intimate personal acquaintance.

I am most happy to add my assent to the many commendations of our departed brother, which have already been made by so many of our countrymen and loved him from his first landing on these shores, twenty-eight years ago, but for the last twelve years, it has been my privilege to be most intimately associated with the deceased, in counsels, in labors, in prayers for the good of this people.

A few days before he was laid aside, he stood with me in the pulpit before a crowded house, and in eloquent tones exhorted the people to open their hearts to the influences of the spirit of God, which seemed to be working with us in an unexampled degree.

He was born at Turbittville, Penn., April 13, 1805, the youngest of eight children. He was brought up on a farm, early learned to endure hardship, and as his parents were poor, he was obliged to seek for means to procure his education.
