Without the Children.

O the weary, solemn silence
Of a house without the children;
O the strange, oppressive stillness
Where the children come no more!
Ah! the longing of the sleepless
For the soft arms of the children,
Ah! the longing for the faces
Peeping through the opening door—
Faces gone for evermore!

Strange it is to wake at midnight
And not hear the children breathing,
Nothing but the old clock ticking,
Ticking, ticking by the door.
Strange to see the little dresses
Hanging up there all the morning,
And the gaiters—ah! their pattern,
We will hear it nevermore
On our mirth-forsaken floor!

What is home without the children?
'Tis the earth without its verdure,
And the sky without its sunshine;
Life is withdrawn to the core!
So we'll leave this dreary desert,
And we'll follow the Good Shepherd
To the greener pastures vernal,
Where the lambs have "gone before"
With the Shepherd evermore!

O the weary, solemn silence
Of a house without the children;
O the strange, oppressive stillness
Where the children come no more!
Ah! the longing of the sleepless
For the soft arms of the children;
Ah! the longing for the faces
Peeping through the opening door—
Faces gone for evermore!
"Babbalanza Song," by J. H. McNaughton.

VARIETY.

It is no uncommon thing that hot words produce a coolness.
A policy of insurance is often rendered void by impolicy.
A stitch in the side, taken in time, may save nine spasms.
Chess play often ends as sword play always begins with a draw.
What is the first thing a young lady looks for in a suitor?
As a general rule, a fashionable beau, like a bow in the sky, can't make both ends meet.
The man who was "behind the times," proposes to get round in front.
At a young ladies' seminary in our city, a few days since, during an examination in history, not one of the most promising pupils was thus interrogated:—"Mary, did Martin Luther die a natural death?" "No," was the prompt reply, "he was excommunicated by a bull!"
At a debating society the subject was—"Which is the sweetest production, a girl or a strawberry?" After continuing the argument for two nights, the meeting finally adjourned without coming to a conclusion—the older ones going for the strawberries, and the young ones for the girls.
"I say, landlord, that a dirty towel for a man to wipe on!" Landlord with a look of amazement, replied:—"Well, you're mighty particular. Sixty or seventy of my boarders have wiped on that towel this morning, and you are the first one to find fault!"
Good taste—Good taste is the "luminous shadow" of all the virtues. It is social discretion—it is intellectual kindness—it is external modesty and propriety—it is apparent unselfishness. It respects no feelings—it infringes on no decorums—it respects all scruples. A man thus gifted even though he be not a wit, spreads a general influence about him, from the trust he inspires. The stiff man can wheedle, the cold man thaw, the fastidious can repose on him. No one is committed to more than he chooses—no ungenerous use is made of an unusual or transient impulse. Good taste is practical though not deep knowledge of character—it is perception of the distinctive points of every occasion; and thus it reconciles differences and necessitates separations. And yet by no means fails to make good taste a synonym either for virtue or intellect; it is rather that quality which sets off both at their best. It is an affair, in some degree, of social training—it is one aspect of knowledge of the world. Those who are little in general society—who confine themselves to family intercourse, or to that of a set or clique, whatever the position, whatever the intellectual or moral pretensions of that clique—are almost sure to fail in it in new scenes.
All persons of a single idea, engrossed by one object, are perpetually infringing on the rights of good taste. If they are religious, they are pragmatical and intolerant, regardless of sensibilities. If they are useful, they do their work with unnecessary fuss. If they are learned, or deep, or clever, they make these things unpopular. If they are grave, they are a check and restraint. They fail in every social crisis—in every difficulty they take the wrong way. They are forward when they ought to be retiring. There is no knowing where such people are—to what length an emergency or excited spirits will drive them. It is the cause of half the seeming injustice of society.

The man of bad taste cannot comprehend why things are not tolerated in him which are allowed in others. He is the last to see that the presence or absence of a correct taste makes the same practice or amusement agreeable without taking the manner of doing it into consideration. He is, therefore, forever grumbling at the inconsistencies and partialities of mankind. The fact is, every being with some people grates and creaks, at each turn jarring on sensitive nerves; while good taste is the oil which keeps the machinery of society, with the least wear and tear, noiselessly and profitably at work.—London Saturday Review.

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser. Foreign Miscellany.

Charles Lyell, the eminent English geologist, has been made a baronet.

The official lists in the office of the Commissary-General of Prisons, indicate that the North holds an excess of rebel prisoners rising to 50,000 men.

The rebel prints are amusing themselves over Butler's canal. Let them beware; it may yet prove to them that "last ditch" in which will perish the hopes of the Confederacy.

Women are said to be stronger attachments than men. It is not so. A man is often attached to an old hat: "But did you ever know of a woman having an attachment for an old bonnet?" Echo answers "Never."

The population of Nashville by the census of 1860 was 16,888; at the beginning of the rebellion it was 25,000; it is now more than 75,000.

At Harvard they are beginning again to ill-treat the Freshmen to such an extent that many persons refuse to send their boys to that institution.

"I wonder where those clouds are going?" sighed Flora, pensively, she pointed with her finger to the pale fingers to the heavy funeral masses that floated lazily in the sky. "I think they are going to thunder," said her little brother.

The Crown Princess of Prussia, the Princess Royal of England, has painted four pictures of the taking of "Duppel," which are to be hung in Berlin. All the English Royal family paint at Berlin. Among them the Princess Royal is said to be the most proficient; the Princess Alice of Hesse, the most confident.

Professor Johnson says that a pound of cheese is equal in nutritive value to two pounds of flesh. The Europeans seem to be better acquainted with this fact than our own people. With us cheese is regarded rather as a luxury, while in England it is considered one of the substantial articles of food, and it is not uncommon for the workmen to make a full meal on bread and cheese alone.

The people of St. Louis, it is said, are having a lively time of terror just now. Seven assassins, lately imported from the East, escaped from the tank in which they had been kept, and after a three days' search, at last, according to the reports, had been recaptured.

The Italian Government has just published the results of the first census taken in different provinces. The population of the entire kingdom is now 21,777,284 souls; so that Italy is the fifth power in Europe by the number of its inhabitants, being superior to Spain and Prussia, the territory of which countries is considerably larger.

LARGE INCOMES.—In an official document, the following sums are given as the income of the Collector of the port of New York:

Salary for the year 1863..... $ 2,340 00
Interest from bonds purchased..... 25,944 00
Commissions from State officers..... 3,529 25

Total pay for one year..... $31,813 25
In addition to this, the Collector receives one sixth of the suits for forfeiture commenced during the year. In the event that they are decided in favor of the Government, the additional amount from this source will probably reach $20,000—making a total for the year's services of $50,000.—Sun.

VIGOR OF THE BLOCKADE FLEETS.—Blockade running may be an unprofitable business, judging from the large number of vessels captured and destroyed. An English correspondent says that the number which has left the Clyde during the war is a little upward of sixty. In 1861-2, thirty blockade running steamers left. In 1864, twenty-eight left. These had a registered tonnage of 65,000 tons, and were manned by 300 hands. Of the thirty which left previously to 1863 only four escaped being captured or burnt, and there is not a day passes now but what we hear of two or three vessels captured, large and small, by the Union fleets. It is rather a risky business now to attempt to run the blockade.

SWITZERLAND.—Geneva has been the scene of fighting and riot. An election for a member of the Council had been held on Sunday, Aug. 20th, and the defeated candidate, a former leader of the French revolution of 1830, attacked the successful party. Four persons were killed and six wounded, but finally the riot was quelled. It is said that this outbreak is part of a plan to give a pretext for the annexation of Geneva to France. Within the last few days numerous arrests and domiciliary visits have been made in the Venetian provinces and at Trient in the Tyrol. The police authorities are very active. Great alarm exists among the population.

THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN STATES.—The further discoveries of continued and increasing richness in our new territories pale all former estimates, and pleasantly disappoint early expectations. Every day develops some new value to them, while augmenting the old. These lands are measured and mapped, and millions of acres are already being sold. The following statement, compiled from official sources, is an index to their present condition in some respects:

Table with 4 columns: State or Territory, No. of acres, Total No. of acres, and Acres of improved land. Rows include California, Nevada, Dakota, Nebraska, New Mexico, Utah, Arizona, Oregon, Idaho, Washington, Kansas, Texas, and Missouri.

Missouri alone will make five States as large as Pennsylvania or New York.

THE QUEEN PRESIDENT.—Her Majesty the Queen of England is President of the Female Bible Society of Berkshire county, in which Windsor Castle is situated. In that giving her name and encouragement to a local Society, for so good an object as the spread of God's Word, the Queen sets an excellent example, worthy of being imitated. There are hundreds and thousands of women in our several countries who ought to embark with zeal in such a work as this, and they would advance their own usefulness and happiness by so doing.

The Queen of England is a model woman. So far as we know her life and works, she adorns every office, domestic, public, and social, with grace, and every wife, mother and woman may take lessons in active virtues from the example of this distinguished sovereign.

THE CARE OF THE EYES.—Never use a desk or table with your face to a window. Let the rays of light coming directly upon the pupil of the eyes, and causing an unnatural and forced contraction thereof, soon permanently injures the sight. When your table or desk is near a window, sit so that your face turns from the window, and you are writing. If your face is towards the window, the oblique rays strike the eye and injure it nearly as much as the direct rays when you sit in front of the window. It is always best to sit at a stand, without reading or writing, with the window behind you, and next to that, with the light coming over the left side—then the light illumines the paper or book, and does not shine abruptly upon the eye-ball. The same remarks are applicable to artificial light. We are often asked which is the best light—gas, candles, oil, or camphine. Our answer is, it is immaterial which, provided the light of either be strong enough and does not flicker.—Scientific American.

DEEPER COAL MINE IN THE WORLD.—The coal mine of Montserrat was visited by a party of members of the British Association, among whom were four ladies. The depth of this mine from the surface is 1,900 feet, and the workings of coal underneath extend to a distance of two miles from the shaft. About 200 persons are employed in it, and 600 tons are mined daily. The heat at the bottom varies from 84 deg. to 90 deg. Fah., and the miners work in an almost nude state. Of all the pursuits by which men gain a living, there is none more in some, more dangerous or more dreadful, than all its circumstances and surroundings, than the life of him who wins coal from the mines.

ADMIRAL LISSEFSKY AT HOME.—Information has been received at Washington that towards the close of last month Comdr. Admiral Lissefsky, accompanied by the officers of the Russian squadron lately in America, by command of the "Czar," made a visit to the United States Legation, at St. Petersburg, for the purpose of expressing to the Minister of the United States their cordial thanks for the unprecedented hospitalities shown them during their sojourn in this country. The American Minister replied in terms of the warmest admiration of his Imperial Majesty, and of consideration for the brave and gentlemanly officers present; and furthermore, gave utterance to his desire and conviction that no other rivalries could be possible between the two countries than such as were based upon the wish to surpass each other in the performance of reciprocal benefits.

THE LARGEST FEE.—Several papers copy the statement that a lawyer in Cincinnati has received a fee of $45,000 in a railroad case recently gained by him, and it is added that this is "probably the largest fee received by any lawyer in this country from a single case." But we understand that one of the lawyers in the case will case, received a fee of $50,000 for his services. And in the J. C. Fremont Mariposa claim it is said that one of the lawyers was paid a fee of $149,000.

AN ANECDOTE OF FARRAGUT.—In his speech at Auburn, Mr. Seward related the following anecdote of Admiral Farragut:—"Everybody admired Farragut's heroism in climbing the topmast to direct the battle; there was another 'particular' of that contest that no less forcibly illustrates his heroic character. 'Admiral,' said one of his officers, the night before the battle, 'won't you consent to give Jack a glass of grog in the morning—not enough to make him drunk, but just enough to make him fight cheerfully?' 'Well,' replied the Admiral, 'I have been to sea considerable, and have seen a battle or two, but I have never found that I wanted rum to enable me to do my duty. I will order two cups of good coffee to each man at two o'clock, and at eight o'clock I will pipe all hands to breakfast in Mobile Bay.' And he did it."

The British Army and Navy Gazette thinks the recent campaign in Schleswig a great superiority in its vigor and efficiency, over what it calls the "slow and fruitless campaigns in the American civil war." The New York Times in commenting on this, remarks that the scene of war in Europe is one of the flattest countries on the continent, the roads are a thousand years old and built in the best manner, every path and highway is cut through the whole country, and the territory very limited in extent, hardly larger than some counties in Virginia, while in America military operations extend over regions hundreds of miles in extent, rough and inaccessible, covered with forests and cut up with rapid streams having steep banks, and of the topography of which very little is known. If half of Europe were engaged in war or the conquest of a country like Russia undertaken by the Western nations of the continent, it thinks they could better understand our military difficulties and the reality of our successes. A single instance forms a very poor criterion by which to decide a question like this. Sufficient instances could be adduced in the military history of Europe to show that there have been slow and fruitless campaigns there as well as here.

MONEY.—Money is a queer institution. It buys provender, sustains justice, and heals wounded honor. Everything resolves itself into cash, from stock-jobbing to building churches. Childhood craves pennies, youth aspires to dollars, manhood is swayed by the mighty dollar. The blacksmith swings the sledge, the lawyer pleads for his clients, the judge decides the case of life and death for a salary. Money makes the man—therefore man must make money, if he would be respected by fools—for the eye of the world looks through golden spectacles. It buys Brussels carpets, lace curtains, gilded cornices, rich furniture, and builds marble mansions. It drives us to church in splendid equipages, and pays the rent of the parer. It buys silks and jewelry for my lady—it commands obsequious attention. It enables us to be charitable, to send Bibles to the heathen. It glids the ragged corners of life, and repairs the holes of our existence as velvet carpet, soft to our tread; the rude turmoils and scenes are encased in a gilt frame. It bids care vanish, soothes the anguish of the bed of sickness—steps short of nothing save the grim destroyer, who robbes the hand of its riches, but leaves all mortal distinction, and teaches poor humanity that it is dust. This wealth pauses on the brink of eternity—the beggar and the millionaire rest side by side beneath the soil, and rise in equality to answer the final summons.

THE BLOCKADE OF WILMINGTON.—Now that the forts which command the entrance to Mobile Bay are in our possession, ten or twelve sail of steamers, which have been employed in the blockade of Mobile, will probably be sent to aid in shutting up Wilmington, N. C. It is a shame that a nation so eminent for nautical enterprise as we are, should be short of ships after three years of war, yet this is the fact. Not only are we lacking in ships, but most of those which we have are almost worn out with incessant service, and we have but few left to take their places. Some of our enterprising merchants, foreseeing this want, built vessels of the requisite speed, and stability to carry armaments, and offered them to the Navy Department. But the men who have charge of this important branch of the public service, seem determined to set their faces against all who have the patriotism to show them their duty, therefore they refuse vessels of the very class now required to perfect the blockade. We have more than one called their attention to several merchant steamers, which could be easily armed, and have urged them either to seize or buy them for the public service, but without effect. We regret to say, that the only one that obtain the steamers "Norman," "Saxon," "Franconia," all swift propellers with compact machinery which can be easily repelied shot-proof at a trifling cost, and which might be of great value in hunting pirates, or in perfecting the blockade.

In this connection we would also suggest, that when any of our vessels come within range of blockade breakers to open fire upon them and keep blazing away until they are captured. These vessels are up to all manner of tricks. If a vessel comes within range and heave to for the purpose of taking possession of a blockade runner, the chances are that he will make an effort to escape.

This was the case with the U. S. Ship "Dacotah." She brought a blockade breaker to the captain of which sung out—"For God's sake knock off firing; I have surrendered," and while the "Dacotah" was preparing to take possession of her, she darted off under a full head of steam and escaped. Now if an innocent fire of grape had been kept up on her until her man had been driven off her deck, she would have been captured.

This was the invariable practice in the British Navy during her last great war, whenever a privateer was brought to, and we believe it ought to be universally adopted by our own. England is sending vessels of extraordinary speed to break our blockade, and we ought to use every means at our command to destroy or capture them.—Boston Courier.

SCIENTIFIC GOSPEL.—In this day of mechanical contrivance there are many terms in use which are not understood except among well-informed mechanics and engineers. Thus the strains which produce pressure are five: tensile, compressive, transverse, shearing, and torsional. The tensile strain is that produced by a force tending to pull the particles of a body from each other; the compressive brings them together; a transverse strain acts at right angles to the body, such as occurs in bridging the joints of a shearing strain is that occasioned by cutting across; and torsion, when there is a twisting in shafts, such as railroad axles are liable to.

Electro-magnetic engines have not yet succeeded in performing work economically. The consumption of a grain of zinc is more costly than a grain of coal, but only produces about one-eighth of the same mechanical effect.

The consumption of fuel in the best steam engines has been reduced to two pounds per horse power per hour, and greater economy is expected to be yet obtained.

The term "fishing," applied to railway construction, is derived from the French word "fisher," and from the similarity of the operation to that of fishing a mast or spar.

A monument of granite is to be erected to the memory of Sir Humphrey Davy at Penzance, a well-deserved tribute to a great chemist and practical astronomer.

It is computed that the nicotine produced by one year's growth of tobacco of the whole world would destroy every living creature on the face of the globe if its properties were administered in a single dose.

The wheel base of a locomotive engine, as now generally adopted in England on the new engines, is 15 feet. Some express engines have 18 feet.

Lightning illumination produced by a magnetic electric apparatus has been in successful operation at the South Foreland and Dungeness beacon for two years. Currents of air produced by the rotation of masses of iron in the neighborhood of powerful permanent magnets generates the current of electricity, which ignites pieces of carbon intensely, thus producing the light.

It is a curious and unsuspected fact that solar light is defective as to the showing of colors. Those shown by a spectrum in the spectrum are in reality, but in daylight. This is a providential defect, for otherwise we should be confounded by a perpetual display of colors in the air.

What is fog? Professor Tyndall says it is a cloud resting upon the earth; as the definition, also, a condensation "as the visible capital of an invisible column."

"A Slight Cold," Coughs. Few are aware of the importance of checking a Cough or "cold" soon in its first stages; that which the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected soon attacks the lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Trochiscs" give relief and almost inmediate relief. Military Officers and Soldiers should have them, as they can be carried in the pocket and taken as occasion requires.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN, A Lady of World-Wide Reputation, Mrs. S. A.
