THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser... Around East Maui... EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE...

East Maui, as most of our readers are aware, is a vast mountain cone, about thirty miles in diameter at the base...

This mountain, which has a circumference at the shore of about 90 miles, is divided into eight districts, commencing with that of Kula, which lies opposite the sandy isthmus connecting East and West Maui...

The lava stream as it rushed through this opening can be traced, by the frequent ridges, spreading out below and beyond it in the form of a delta. The general course of the lava stream, although it is now covered with grass and shrubbery, is as distinct as though the eruption took place recently...

From Kaupo the scenery becomes more varied and interesting, the ravines deeper, and the valleys precipitous more formidable. There are four deep valleys between the villages of Kaupo and Kipahulu...

The Bridges have just been completed over the worst of the mountain streams in this district, one on each side of the village of Kipahulu. They are plain and serviceable, but show the same lack of good judgment in their erection...
