Same Id. Maria and He Had Sot and Sot. [Detroit Free Press.] "You see," she was explaining to a lawyer, after besting his counsel fee down to $3, "I have a daughter Maria." "Yes'm." "Maria has a beau."

"Exactly." "Has been waitin' on her for six years."

"I see." "And I've been waitin' on him for the same length of time-waitin' for him to marry her." "Just so, ma'am.

"How long should a couple spark?"
"Well, that depends. It takes some folks a long time to make up their mind .." "Isn't three years long enough?"

"I should think so." "And I gave him six. I've been getting madder and madder for the last three months, and finally last night I couldn't hold in any longer. I went into the parlor and there he same as five years ago. There was Maria, simpering and cackling and acting like the same fool she allus was. Don't talk to me! A gal can bring a beau to time inside of two years if she's got any marry in her. You didn't fool away six years?"

"No'm." "Nor I, either. Well, I stood it as long as I could, and when I went into the room says I to William, says I: 'William, you've sot and sot, and it's my duty as a mother to know if you intend to marry Maria.' Maria she give a screech, and William he turned flery red. But says I: 'If you love, why don't you marry! The Leading Fashionable Tailors If you are hanging around here to pass away time you'd better skip!'

"Well, William coughed and gasped and stuttered around, and said he wanted to write to his ma in Iowa 'Your ma in Iowa! says I, feeling my dander climbing 'Mebbe you ain't weaned yet!' "Then he says he couldn't be bulldozed, and that one objection to marrying Maria

Then the cyclone broke loose. Also two or three earthquakes. Inside of four minutes Maria had fainted, William was a wreck and we had upset the stove and broke three chairs. He came to and slipped out while I was holding camphor to Maria's nose, and I've heard to-day that he is after a warrant for me for assault with intent to kill. Can he get one?

"Can be do anything?" "Well, you want a jury?"
"Sartin—sartin. I'll go before a jury and tell 'em how he and Maria have sot and sot for 1,700 nights-how I've had to be soft on him-how I've poked up Maria to bring him to time-how I stood it and stood it until sunthin' had to break-how it has cost me $200 for fuel and oil-how-but that's all. If they are men they can't find no verdict ag'in me.' "No'm."

"Well, I'll go home and wait. Maria lies there sighing and weeping, and there's the stove to put up and the chairs to mend, and if William gets the warrant I'll let you know. His ma in Iowa! I'll let him know that somebouy's ma in Detroit is alive and kicking and lus on deck!"

Human Nature the Same in Russia. [Pittsburg Chronicle.] Akonlina was stirring the satshi as Sasha Petrovitch entered and tapped her gently under the chin. "Oh, 'tis you, Sasha Petrovitch!"

"Yes, Akonlina. I come to bid you adieu." "Adieu, Sasha? To the war? My heart "No, my spring bird; no, no, my cherry redberry You will be true to me?"

A month has elapsed, during which Sasha is stopping bullets at Herat. Akonlina is baking kalatchi, when Filka Orloff enters and tickles her gently right where Sasha Petrovitch left off. "Akonlina, I have no one to bake me kalatchi."

"I leve Sasha." "I have no one to light my samovar." "I love Sasha." "You shall be a lady."

"I love Sasha." "Your hands shall not touch water." "I love Sasha." "I'll buy you a pair of roller skates!"

"Swear it?" "Akonlina, I swear!" "Then I'll write and tell Sasha Petrovitch that it is Orloff." A Mean Landlord.

[San Francisco Post.] There is a landlord out at the Mission so mean that he raised a poor woman's rent the other day because he found she could borrow corn-meal from the woman across the way. He says it isn't the house so much as the location that comes high

ELEMENTARY PHYSIOLOGY AND HY GIENE IN SCHOOLS.

Our attention has been drawn to this subject by the perusal of a manual on "The Human Body and Its Health," published by Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., of New York and Chicago. It is intended as tion of the country, but simply use it a text book in public schools, having special reference to the effects of stimulants and narcotics on the human system. The author, Wm. Thayer Smith, M. D., associate professor of anatomy and physiology in Dartmouth Medical College, is a well known authority on the subject of which he has treated. The book is tersely and simply written, and covers the entire ground set forth in its title. It is copiously illustrated. The sections and paragraphs are numbered, and a series of questions are arranged, at the close of each chapter, to test the pupil's knowledge of the subject. Suggestions to teachers likewise accompany each chapter, which will greatly help them in Kawaikao Girls' School.

The annual examination of the pupils at the Kawaihao Girls' School in this city passed off very pleasantly yesterday. The school is deservedly popular among the Hawaiians, as affording not only a place of learning for girls from three years old upward, but also as a home in the best sense of the word. The pupils, one and all, look healthy and happy. They are bright and playful, and show a fair degree of proficiency in their studies. What they have learned they have learned well, and their training in habits of industry and in a knowledge of things tions from useful to them as future wives and housekeepers, shows that a great deal of faithful work has been done by their teachers. The calisthenic exercises were very neatly done, and in the school room good order and method prevailed. The exercises were attended by a large number of the parents and friends of the pupils, and all seemed to be pleased with the proficiency exhibited by the children.

THE QUEEN'S HOSPITAL.

Report of the Resident Physician-The Late Queen Emma.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Trustees of the Queen's Hospital was held yesterday, the Vice-President, Hon. C. R. Bishop, in the chair.

The Treasurer made his semi-annual report, by which it appeared that there was a balance of $250 on hand. The report of the Resident Physician was then read as follows:

Honolulu, May 31, 1885. To the Trustees of the Queen's Hospital: Gentlemen-I have the honor to submit the following report for the quarter ending May 31st. The total number of patients at present in the hospital is 55; viz: 31 Hawaiians (17 males and 14 females), 3 Chinese and 21 of other nationalities-22 paying.

Number of admissions during the quarter 101; viz: 32 Hawaiians (17 males and 15 females), 9 Chinese and 60 of other natioualities.

Discharged, 94; viz: 29 Hawaiians (17 males and 12 females), 5 Chinese and 60 of other nationalities. Deaths, 14; viz: 4 Hawaiians (1 male and females), 5 Chinese and 5 of other nation-

The causes of death were as follows : Accident 1, aneurism 1, beriberi 5, congestion of lungs I, consumption 2, disease of brain 1, Am bark Amy Turner, Newell, from Boston, dropsy 1, gangrene 1, marasmus 1.

> The highest number of indoor patients was 69, lowest 53, daily average 58. Number of prescriptions 2,725; calls at the dispensary 548. The number of patients treated at the hospital was as follows: March, 107; April, 91; May, 90.

Respectfully submitted,

ROBERT MCKIBBEN. The Visiting Committee made a favorable report, and the following gentlemen were appointed on that committee for the next three months: Messrs. W. C. Parke, M. P. | depth, and that his father went to his assist-Robinson and J. T. Waterhouse, Jr.

After some appropriate remarks by the Vice-President, the Secretary read the following preamble and resolutions:

THE LATE QUEEN EMMA.

"WHEREAS, It has pleased God to take from us by death the Queen Dowager Emma, one of the founders, and the principal patron of the Queen's Hospital, an institution which has been of great value to this community, and which will be a lasting blessing to the natives and foreigners in this country in time to come, and in which the beloved Queen took the deepest interest from its inception to the end of her life, and for the support of which she gave a large part of her estate; therefore, be it "Resolved, That in the death of the Queen Dowager Emma the nation has lost a great and good friend, distinguished for her many virtues, and especially for kindness to the poor and the sick, and whose memory should be honored and cherished by all who value nobility and purity of character and of life, as a rich legacy to her countrymen

"That all who may hereafter avail themselves of the advantages of the hospital will, like those who have received them; in the past, have reason to remember with

"That the foregoing preamble and resolutions be placed on record; that a copy of the same be handed to the nearest relative of the deceased; and that they be published in the newspapers of Honolulu."

Upon motion of His Excellency J. M. Kapena, seconded by the Hon. A. S. Cleghorn, the preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted. The meeting then adjourned.

"The Friend." This monthly publication is not up to its regulation standard. "Ad Clerum" might have been written by Bob Ingersoll. It reflects the backward march of the pulpit. There is something out of joint in the modern evangelical church when the phrase, "washed in the blood of the Lamb," conveys no meaning to a professedly Christian congregation, and when the words "election," "justification" and "eternal" are confessedly the "Abacadabra" of pulpit jugglery. This is the simple meaning of the quotation from "that best of family newspapers, the 'Christian Union,' " which s printed with unqualified approbation by "The Friend." The following indorsement of it by "The Friend" needs no explanation to commend it to the full approval of free-thinkers: There is quite a list of phrases heard very fre, quently from the pulpit, such as Come to Jesus; We are saved by the Blood of Jesus; You must believe in Jesus; Have Faith; Repent of your Sins. etc. They are all bibleal and pregnant with meaning. But before using them, brethren would not these two questions act as a wonderful clarifler: Just what did I mean by this phrase? Just what will the average hearer before me understand it to mean? If this slashing criticism of the shibboleths of the Christian faith had appeared in the wicked ADVERTISER what an outcry would have been raised; but when "The Friend" switches off the Scriptural track, and suggests doubts regarding the meaning of phrases which have been the consolation and hope of millions in the past, and which are the hope and consolation of millions in the present, it is all serene, we suppose. Anyhow, it appears to be in the line of religious Race Programme.

The arrangements made this year by those having in charge the programme of the races to take place at Kapiolani Park on the coming 11th of June, are complete and satisfactory. The Hawaiian Jockey Club, which takes entire charge of the event, as far as the races are concerned, publish a carefully prepared programme, and their announcement that a uniform charge for admission to every part of the race ground set apart for the use of the public, should give satisfaction.

The entries for the races close at 2 o'clock p. m. next Monday at the office of Mr. Berger, on Merchant street, and it is a foregone conclusion that the list of horses that will appear on the following Thursday at the the Recorder of Liverpool on the same race track will include most of our very best racing stock.

Dead Bodies Found. From Waimanalo, on this island, the report reaches us that about 5 o'clock last Friday afternoon the bodies of a Chinaman and boy were found in the stream. The bodies were taken to a house near at hand, and were identified as those of a man named Ah Hin and his son, a boy about 12 years of age. They had evidently met their death by drowning, but nothing is known as to how it came about. The supposition is that the boy went into the water to bathe and was seized with cramps, or got beyond his ance and both were drowned. The father was a duck raiser, and had been living near where his body was found.

Frank de Vaud was climbing up a particularly stiff part of a particularly stiff hill. Sometimes he called in the assistance of the Alpine stock he held in one hand, bills in a mountainous land? Up and up but just as often he clambered on and up and up into the blue sky, getting bigger without it. The muscles of his brawny and wider and darker every minute, till calves started into view at every step; the leathern half-gaiters he wore could not thunder roars, and all is chaos and dehide them. He was a handsome and well-made man; any one could see that at a to rise between Frank de Vaud and single glance, though he was but a Johanna on the very day that Poddlesby chamois hunter. His face and hands were bronzed with the sun and exposure to the weather, but in his cheeks the red blood of rare fruit, more lucious than of health mantled, and his dark eyes any which Johanna or her parents had looked ever so soft and good-natured, and ever eaten before. but he had-I am bound to say-one other reason for smiling, for Frank de Vaud was going to see pretty little bright-eyed Johanna, the goat-herd's daughter, and Johanna loved honest Frank, and he knew it quite well. They were going to be married before a great many months were over, and his chief reason for visiting her cottage to-nightshe dwelt a long, long way up the hilt— was to press her to Name the day, the happy day," as the song says. He stood at length on the lower edge of a kind of broad table land. A ravine ran right down through the very center of it, a gorge, a canon, call it what you like, only so deep was it that you could barely see the tips of the giant spruces and larches that grew in it. Other trees grew sparsely here and there all over the tableland. High up on the far-off horizon rose the snow-clad jagged peaks of the Alps, tinged with the carmine of the setting sun, and the clouds and mists that enveloped them beneath were also tipped with red, shading off lower down into purple, then into gray. But it wasn't on the mountains, nor on the clouds either, that smoke curling up from it.

Then he must shake bands with the herdsman, and the herdsman laughed and

Frank de Vaud was out almost every day in the mountains. A very daring hunter, he! And a very successful one too. His gun, though, was not much to look at; it had many little eccentricities, but as Frank knew them all, and made allowances for them, he wouldn't have given that old gun for one worth double

One beautiful afternoon, when high up among the mountains, he shot a chamols a long way down beneath him. It was no easy task to reach it, but he succeeded at last. He sat down beside it. He lit his pipe and began to dream and build castles in the air, or, if he did not build castles, he imagined one sweet little chalet, which was at school I learned just what its capawould be all his and— Hallo! was that a bilities were, and I have never tried to exshout from this crevasse far, far below? ceed them. beside the slain deer. "Wait, indeed!" growled little Mr. Pod-dlesby to himself. "I'll have to wait! What a fool I was to come away without a guide? I shall lose a good dinner, too!" Little Mr. Poddlesby hailed from Ealing, where he had a fine house and all kind of fine things, his uncle having died heirless, and left him wealthy. So Poddlesby required to be a clerk no longer in the city. He determined to see the

He joined an Alpine club, and it used to be his boast that he never with assistance, and Poddlesby was safe to brink, more dead than alive. He was then carried to the nearest chalet, the goat herd's, where pretty Johanna lived.

"I'll be as fresh as a daisy to-morrow," said little Poddlesby, as they put him to

But he was not so. He was down with a fever, and for weeks he lay 'twixt death and life. When at last he became convalescent, nothing could exceed the kindness of Johanna's parents to him, nor, indeed, of Johanna herself.

"But of course I shall pay them well for it," said Poddlesby to himself. But was this gratitude, reader? I trow

Poddlesby was somewhat surprised when, on bidding his host and hostess good-bye, the crisp bank note he tried to slip into the hand of the latter was firmly

Meanwhile the cloud grew and grew 'twix Frank de Vaud and his betrothed, for he was jealous of the insinuating Saxon; and at last the storm burst and-the lovers quarrelled and parted.

Frank spent most of his time among the mountains now. He loved that somewhat ancient gun of his more than ever. But Frank seldom sang. The joy and the happiness seemed clean gone away from his big heart forever and a day. He gave a little chalet, at which he had spent so many a pleasans evening, a very wide berth indeed. He could not bear the sight of it. He would not have gone near it for worlds. He dreaded to look upon Johanna, lest the old love should return with such force that he might be constrained to make a fool of himself-that was how he phrased it-make a fool of himself, trample on his pride, and own he had been wrong and unjust in his jeal But was he unjust? He often and often asked himself that question. What right had she to accept the gifts of that hateful Frank was gazing, but on a charming little chalet still lower down. One autumn day Frank India Studies? One autumn day, Frank, lying on his side on a bank of snow, upon which the sun was beating so warmly as almost to soften it, spied something black in a crevasse far down beneath him. Presently

"It is," cried Frank; "no, it can't beone crevasse; now, indeed, you shall become food for the eagles. Revenge is sweet.

Yes, reader, revenge is sweet, but vengeance does not belong to man. Frank lay there for two hours watching Podthen, his better nature prehe went straight away and got assistance, and in a short time the Englishman from Ealing was out of danger. When he saw who had again rescued him, Poddlesby positively burst into tears. "Come with me, come with me," he cried, "I shall die else."

And he led Frank straight to Johanna's cottage and dragged him in, and took his half-unwilling hand and placed it in blushing Johanna's.

"I have done you both an injury," he said, "I have now to crave forgiveness, which I sincerely do."
