THEIR RICH OWNERS NOT FITTED TO BE COUNTRY GENTLEMEN.
It is One Thing to Have a Country "Seat," and Quite Another Thing to be at Home and Happy in It—A Remarkable Exhibit.

There is a tendency among men of large wealth," said a real estate dealer down town, "to establish big country houses near New York and live after the English fashion. They seek to make their country place the home of the family, give it a high sounding title, dream of establishing a family which shall stand high in the county and make a name for itself in a dozen honorable ways. They take a furnished house in town for the season, just as the Englishman does for eight weeks in London. This is growing more practicable here than formerly, as the season grows shorter every year. We can all of us remember when society came back to New York on Sept. 1 and stayed till June. Now November is considered early, December acceptable, but Jan. 1 the really proper time. This gives an opportunity for spending Christmas at the country house in the old-fashioned way. By May 10 half of society is on the move again to Europe or elsewhere. So you see a great city establishment is supported all the year round by the old plan, though occupied less than five months out of the twelve. It is very expensive running a town house all the year round this way, but when a furnished dwelling is taken and only a few months are spent here the expenditure is greatly reduced. The other eight months are spent at the country house.

THE TROUBLE WITH AMERICANS.
"On the other side of the water this is easily accomplished, because the real home of an Englishman is in the country, and he looks upon city life as an excursion. The trouble here is that Americans look upon their out-of-town life as a vacation in the country, and hence they grow dissatisfied if it is too much prolonged. They feel themselves above their neighbors and do not make acquaintances, so that there is no visiting and calling among them. Thus the family gradually loses itself to despondency. Friends are invited out from town only at rare intervals, and there is a general stagnation. The women do not interest themselves in the churches and schools of the villages nor do the men take a hand in politics or local improvements. The head of the family is usually a business man who has been accustomed to the drive and rush of the city, and who is quite at sea in the country. He is not interested in farming, and thinks only about his interests in the city. If it takes three generations to produce a country gentleman or a gentleman farmer, it takes five at least to produce a country gentleman or a gentleman farmer in New York who is anxious to become a country gentleman."

"I have a word of advice for all would-be country gentlemen. They should renounce New York forever except as a place for a yearly visit and get far from it. They should take up farming, cheese making or some other pursuit, and they should not compare themselves above their country neighbors."—New York Post.

THE FUTURE OUTLOOK.

The erection of new buildings in the burned district found profitable employment for skilled labor for nearly a year past, and put a great deal of money into circulation in the city.

And we think that this confidence is not misplaced. The geographical position of Honolulu and the certain development of ocean travel must tell in its favor.

There is nothing new in this, and we claim no originality for the thought; nevertheless it loses nothing by repetition. Unfortunately, matters pertaining to the Harbor are not receiving much attention just now.

We trust the Government may see its way, in the multiplicity of the demands upon it, to attend to the wants of the Harbor. It is one of the paramount interests of the country.

STREETS AND ROADS.

The weather is now favorable to the repair of streets and roads, and it is gratifying to see that a beginning has been made in a small way on Beretania street.

This, however, may have been too practical a suggestion, or it may have involved more work than is contemplated by the Minister under whose direction the repairs are being done.

Supreme Court. AT CHAMBERS—BEFORE JUDGE, C. J. TUESDAY, March 1st. Kwong Fat vs. Papaikou Sugar Company. Jury waived.

Kauka vs. Akana, assumpsit for $200. Jury waived. Continued from January term. The Court ordered that the defendant pay plaintiff $200 for one year's rent from January 1, 1886, to January 1, 1887, and costs and commissions.

D. W. Pratt vs. E. S. Spalding, assumpsit. Continued from Monday. The case was further heard and continued till called up. Charles Creighton for plaintiff, S. B. Dole for defendant.

THE JAPANESE ACROBATS.

Daring Feats—The Audience in Ecstasies.

The Oura Company of Japanese acrobats made their debut in this city at the Opera House last evening, and all that had been promised was amply fulfilled.

The rise of the curtain was the signal for the appearance of the three adult and three juvenile members who took part in the performance, and who were immediately greeted with a loud burst of applause in anticipation of what was to come.

The movements which the remarkable elasticity of every portion of their bodies enabled them to perform can scarcely be likened to anything more apt than those of a serpent. They bent themselves double backwards, clasped their feet under their chins, in which attitude they ran about at a smart trot upon their hands, spun around like tops, rolled about like balls and went through every conceivable evolution.

When the runs on one side of the ladder had suddenly fallen away and he was left hanging in a horizontal position on a level with the top of the drop scene, every eye was irresistibly strained aloft, and when, added to this, the single pole, balanced on a man's shoulder, was tossed and swayed about, the sensation knew no bounds.

HAWAII NOTES.

The steamer James Makee, which arrived yesterday, reports fine weather on Kauai. An accident happened to the boiler of the Kealia Sugar Mill, and it took three days to repair the damage.

French and German Music.

Snatching up his Guarnerius viola Mr. Walter E. Colton, the violin maker, illustrated to me the difference between the German and French schools. While one was solid, Teutonic as it were, the other was light, airy and even sensuous.

The French within its limits, because it wears better than the German. One can't hear classical music forever. Beethoven and Mendelssohn are good in their way, but a surfeit of their compositions is tiresome.

Characteristics of the Long Island Farmer.

All things else may wax and wane, but the Long Island farmer, as lived by his forefathers, so lives he. He is unchangeable and unchangeable.

A Popular Novelist's Beginning. E. P. Roe's impulsion to novel writing came from without. His novels are conventional—not of the kind thought to be artistic or to indicate genius or some such thing.

Pronunciation of Foreign Names. A writer in The Century gives a sensible answer to the often perplexing questions of the pronunciation of foreign names; whether "Siam" or "Siamon," or according to the spelling in English.

Ashtamed of His Country. Young Bartlett, the American boy whom the venerable Baroness Burdett-Coutts took to raise in an extreme wing of the East India Company, consisting of ten leaseholds more or less, and having 35 acres of rice land more or less, and being described in schedule C, in said mortgage; also, two houses, one rice floor, seven horses, eight working oxen, three plows and utensils requisite for plantation.

First Plumber Joke of the Season. "Thirteen thousand dollars for the plumbing and gasfitting in my house!" he exclaimed as he looked at the bill.

The French cabinet ministers are provided with handsomely furnished houses, and paid $20,000 a year.

Pet turtles are becoming the fashion in New York city.

Mortgagee's Notice of Sale

WHEREAS, default has been made in the condition of that certain mortgage made by Corchee & Ahung to Hyman Brothers, dated December 15, 1885, and recorded in book 96, pages 441 to 445, and notice of intention to foreclose the same has been duly given;

Now, THEREFORE, in accordance with the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and by order of said mortgagee, I will sell at public auction at my salesrooms in Honolulu, on

Saturday, March 5, 1887,

At 12 o'clock noon, the property covered by said mortgage, viz:

1. The lease of that certain piece of and situated at Kahului, Koolau, Oahu, whereon is situated the rice mill belonging to mortgagors, and described in a lease from Ah Yan & Co. to Conchee & Ahung, dated September 9, 1880, for fifteen years, and recorded in Reg. of Deeds in book 65, on pages 356-377, and also all buildings, machinery and appurtenances hereon situate; and also 24 head of working oxen, 2 ox carts, and one PADDY WAREHOUSE, storing capacity 400 tons.

One DWELLING HOUSE. One SMALL WAREHOUSE at Kahului beach, and THREE HORSES.

The mill is one of the very best on the Islands, and cleans 50 bags a No. 1 rice in twelve hours, and is run by water power, is in first-class order. It was erected about six years ago at a cost of $12,000. The ground rent for the mill site and water power is $200 per annum.

2. One undivided one-fourth interest in the Waikoloa Rice Plantation, known as Wing Chung Fat Company, consisting of ten leaseholds more or less, and having 35 acres of rice land more or less, and being described in schedule C, in said mortgage; also, two houses, one rice floor, seven horses, eight working oxen, three plows and utensils requisite for plantation. Rental, $1,026 per annum, and recorded in said Registry in book 56, page 32. This property is rented on at $45 per month.

L. AHOLO, Minister of Interior.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, February 4, 1887.

(General Order No. 3.)

On the present melancholy occasion of the death of Her late Royal Highness the Princess Likieke, the Officers of the Forces will wear, when in uniform, black crape over the ornamental part of the hat or cap, over the sword knot and on the left arm, with black gloves, and a black crape scarf over the sash.

The drums are to be covered with black, and black crape is to be hung from the staff of the Infantry and from the standard of the Cavalry.

When officers appear at Court in their uniforms, they will wear black crape over the ornamental part of the hat or cap, over the sword knot, and on the left arm, with white gloves and a black crape scarf over the sash.

The period of mourning specified by this Court will be observed by the Forces.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief, CURTIS P. LAUKEA, Adjutant General.

The Court will go into full mourning for Her late Royal Highness the Princess Likieke from this date until the day after the funeral, and will wear half mourning from that time until the expiration of two weeks from the day of the funeral.

CURTIS P. LAUKEA, H. M.'s Chamberlain, Iolani Palace, February 3, 1887.

WALL STREET'S "PUTS," "CALLS," "SPREADS" AND "STRADDLES."

Mr. Russell Sage the Inventor of These Ingenious Speculative Devices—A Confidential Clerk Explains Them to an Inquiring Visitor.

Mr. Russell Sage was the pioneer who invented "puts," "calls," "spreads" and "straddles." He began dealing in them when he first came to Wall street in 1861, after his withdrawal from congress, and he has been dealing in them ever since; and the stock markets of the world have taken up this ingenious speculative device of Mr. Sage's, and stock privileges are just as well known on the continental bourses to-day and in the London market as they are here, and they are largely dealt in. Perhaps not so largely as here, because the device is American and American speculators could not fail to see the advantages they offered and have performed adopted them. London declares that the nomenclature, so far as "spreads" and "straddles" are concerned, is not refined and call them differently, but what they deal in are American stock privileges just the same.

MADE AS CLEAR AS DAY. "And what are 'puts,' 'calls,' 'spreads' and 'straddles'?" asked the writer when he first went down on Wall street. "Well," said John E. McCann, the confidential clerk of Russell Sage, of whom the question was asked, "I'll tell you if you if you promise never to mention the postical subject again. It requires pretty deft wording to make the thing clear, so it is not an exhilarating subject to talk on. You hear a good deal about 'puts' and 'calls,' but I venture to say there are 50,000,000 persons in the United States who do not know what they are, nor what the meaning is of the word 'privileges.' Now a privilege is a contract by which the maker of it, Russell Sage, S. V. Waite, Jay Gould or Harvey Kennedy, engages to purchase from the holder in the one case, or to sell to the holder in the other case, a number of shares of some specified stock, at a certain price at any time within a certain period at the option of the holder. Got that?"

A "CALL" EXPLAINED. A "call" is a privilege bought of the maker at a certain price, and the owner of it is privileged to call for a certain amount of stock at a given price, within thirty, sixty or ninety days, four or six months. If a man holds a "put" he has the right to deliver to the maker of the privilege a stock at a certain agreed on price within a certain number of days. Clear? No. Well, let's try once more. "Suppose Western Union is selling at 70. A man wants a sixty day 'put' on it at 65, because he believes the stock is going down. He gives Mr. Sage, Mr. White, Mr. Kennedy or Mr. Gould 1 per cent. on the amount of stock he wants to deal in. A hundred shares is usual, and 1 per cent. is $100. He receives in return a slip of paper signed by either one or the other of these gentlemen. Then if Western Union goes below 65 within sixty days, he may buy it for whatever it is selling for below that price and 'put' it to the maker of the privilege at the price agreed on, 65, and receive a check for $5.00. The holder makes the difference. Ah, you understand. If telegraph does not go below 65 the holder is out his $100. The 'call' business operates exactly in the opposite way. A man buys the privilege of calling Western Union at 70 when it is selling at 70. If it sells above 70, you can call on the maker of the privilege for 100 shares at 75, and the 100 shares are thus bought by the holder for $7,500, and he turns around and sells it at 80, if the stock is selling there, and pockets the difference."

"SPREADS" AND "STRADDLES." "What about 'spreads' and 'straddles'?" "A 'straddle' is a 'put' and 'call' combined. The holder of one may 'put' stock to the maker of the privilege or 'call' for it. 'Straddles' come high, because there is money in them whichever way the market may go. If the market does not go all, but stands still, why, the maker is in the money he has been paid for the privilege, usually about 3 per cent., or $300. A 'spread' is also a 'put' and a 'call' combined, but there is this difference, a 'straddle' is made at the market. That is to say, the maker of the privilege takes the risk that the stock in question does not move to any extent from the price at which it is selling when the privilege is sold. In a 'spread' the maker has more leeway. If Western Union is selling at 70, to go back to the old illustration, the maker of the privilege sells a 'spread,' say at 67 and 80. If it goes below 67, the holder can 'put' the stock and make the difference, and if it goes above 80, the holder can 'call' it at that price and reap the profits. So long as the price of the stock keeps within those points the maker of the privilege is safe. To put it in another way, the holder of a 'straddle' will make if the market for the stock he is dealing in moves at all. The holder of a 'spread' doesn't make anything until the market moves past certain limits. There is one thing more, the maker of a privilege only receives the money for which he sells the privilege, or nothing—the holder may make thousands—or nothing.—New York Mail and Express.

Streets of the French Capital. The streets of Paris are the best in the world, and its boulevards lined with trees and having sidewalks 20 feet wide run for miles in different directions through the various parts of the city. The pavements of the sidewalks are generally smooth flagstones, and that of the roadway asphalt, wood or stone blocks evenly laid and free from holes. The streets are kept scrupulously clean. They are washed every morning with a hose, and swept so well that one might drop a handkerchief and pick it up without soiling it. The smoothness of the streets takes away the noise found in the thoroughfares of New York or London. The 15,000 cabs and numberless other vehicles glide silently over the smooth roads, and an ordinary conversational tone can be pleasantly used upon the promenade.—Frank J. Carpenter in Cleveland Leader.

The Sale of Lincoln's Photographs. The sale of President Lincoln's picture remains steady, and dealers are never without it. It is not a generally known fact that there is but one negative of President Lincoln in existence. This negative, which was taken by Brady, of Washington, is broken into two parts, the break having occurred just above his shoulder and extending almost perpendicular to the right, the longer of the plate. Unless the picture is exposed very closely, however, it would not be found that it was printed from a broken negative.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

STAGE IMMORALITY.

EXTRACTS FROM A MAGAZINE ARTICLE BY FANNY DAVENPORT.

The Conscientious Actress Has No Time, She Says, for Silly Nothings, Dissipation or Nonsense—Advice to the Public—Rachel's Letter.

All arts, all professions are more generously treated (perhaps I should say have been) than the stage. Its detractors are legion. Few seem to have thought for themselves upon the subject; all appear cramped and enveloped in the opinions of others. Daily we hear the question, "Is the stage immoral?" and upon this subject have I been tempted to fly to the ink bottle and put upon paper my humble opinions. Is the stage immoral? No! Are those upon the stage immoral? Some are, perhaps, as in every other calling or art under the sun, but are all to be condemned for the sins of the few? That the stage breeds immorality I most emphatically deny. That a vicious person will develop vice as quickly in other professions I am not prepared to say, but that there is less immorality upon the stage than in many other callings I have no hesitation in saying.

Certain it is that if an actress works conscientiously during the time she is in the theatre she has no time either for silly nothings, dissipation or nonsense. No one who has won name and fame honestly and possesses talent could retreat either if her nights were passed in dissipation and her days in bed. We have seen instances of the youth and enduring talent in good, pure lives before us to-day. People say: "How wonderfully young she looks for her years!" "Isn't she a marvel?" "Why, she is not a day over 30!" When you hear these remarks, believe me, they imply true praise, and bespeak a pure, good life.

I believe that why the stage is called immoral is because those that call it so are ignorant of it. If the foundation, progression and gradual development of the stage and drama were taught in our schools, as other branches of history are taught—teaching all the good that has been in it—to the pupils, and showing how its light has been a steady one, shining forth through all these years, enlightening, amusing and cultivating—if this were done time would soon efface bigotry, and the habit of condemnation would grow less and less, and the stage would be judged as other arts and callings are judged.

Let the drama second the efforts of the pulpit, and it will be found an active and powerful ally in the cause of virtue. It is the public who can do this. Let those who are all-powerful resent vice and drive it from the stage. As in your churches you would not entertain guilt, so in the theatre condemn it, not by slander and talk, but by acts, which ever speak the loudest. That the stage has defects, crying ones, I frankly admit; but they are not irreparable; they disgrace, but cannot destroy the trunk. How few to-day know of Rachel save as the great actress! All think her to have been selfish, miserly, and immoral! Selfish! Listen to the last few lines of a letter written by her, now before me. "Unfortunate man! He leaves four children, and had the courage or the cowardice to die. Find out where the children are. I wish to send them 500 francs, the products of last night's performance. I feel sad and depressed over it all." Again when she felt that all hope was over, she says at the end of almost her last letter: "But no, I will find my two guardian angels, my blessed sons. I hear their dear voices calling me. I have been too long away from their carresses, their kisses, their love. I do not regret the money lost, the fatigue I have undergone; I have carried my name as far as I could, and I bring my heart to those I love dearly." She said of the stage: "My calamities did not succeed in making me immoral. God loved me, since He gave me children. The justice of God is greater toward mere mortals than the justice of men. I do not fear Him." Again: "God protects the brave, and He seems to have created for me expressly a little corner unnamable on any map, where I can forget troubles and fatigues—my home in my children's hearts." These letters show us the woman, wing and true.

There is as much, if not more, real honor, purity, domestic happiness, and charity in the dramatic profession than even its best friends in their most generous moments give it credit for. Were the good in it cited oftener, the little bad would soon sink into oblivion. Believe me, no living soul is as bad as it is reported, and when an unjust, cruel thing is said of an artist, let us not repeat it, but remember that the penalty of a public life is to be traduced. Let us seek for some good thing the person has done or said, not by ventilating that, the memory of the low will be forgotten, leaving not the faintest bruise behind it.—Fanny Davenport, in Brooklyn Magazine.

Civil Service Examinations Made Easy. "Civil service examinations, ten cents, book cases," were the words in flaming letters printed on white oil cloth and swung over an unquipped colored man's back who paraded the sidewalks throughout the city. The reappearance of the civil service examination sign somewhat of a surprise, however, as it was supposed that that scheme had failed. "You must not think for a moment that our signers to applicants under the civil service commission are a failure," said the professor, when questioned on the subject. The book will sell more of my books than ever before, and I give many men and women instructions. I have twenty persons in the course of teaching now. A great many men are appointed to the higher positions nowadays after special examinations by the commissioners. They are generally not well educated, and could not get through without such assistance as I give them. I know the general style and content of the questions, and do much for them in an afternoon or night.—Baltimore American.

Five Thousand Mistakes in Webster. It is incident may not be generally known to our readers, and we venture to reprint it. When the unabridged edition of Webster's Dictionary first appeared (without a definition of the word "unabridged"), that great scholar, Caleb Cushing, wrote a criticism on the stupendous work, saying that, for its size, it had as few errors as could be expected. This puzzled the editors, who asked an explanation of Mr. Cushing's information on the subject of those errors. In reply Mr. Cushing marked 5,000 mistakes in the volume which had been presented to him and sent it back.—Boston Gazette.
