HONOLULU WATER WORKS.

The Minister's report gives 56 pages to a full and complete statement of the condition and affairs of this Bureau.

The appropriations for the last period amounted to $308,800, but owing to dull times, no doubt, the amount available for permanent improvements was limited and $97,424.18 was expended. Of this, about $14,300 was for running expenses, $8,000 was paid for a site in Nuuanu valley for the proposed Hyatt Filter Plant, additions to the Water Works cost $65,282.30, repairs $9,808.01. The total receipts were $84,580.55, of which $72,624.55 were for water rates, the balance being from shipping, etc. $6,142 is still due and owing, but it is always likely that a portion of such debts will be lost. There are now 2109 paying privileges, an increase of 182 over the 1888-90 period. These are distributed among 58 streets or localities. The table showing the names of such streets, with the number and size of taps and revenue from each is interesting. Some Honolulu people would find names hitherto unknown, like "Shanty Bay." King street pays the largest amount, $4,415, Kaa-huanu street the smallest, $50. Waikiki with 65 taps pays $1480.

The total cost of the Water Works ed carriage... $629,788.96, save over the wires. They have suffered from thirst, but otherwise were not much the worse for wear; and if there were any doubts on that point they were dispelled when it was known that Miss Dale was anxious to conclude arrangements for a concert, for she was one of the donors for the two (knights), strong enough to say of them, well, they got back all right of course.

NOTES AND INCIDENTS. Miss Dale will give the Kohala people an opportunity to see the importance and probable future use is well illustrated by the record of rainfall which is presented in the report. The record covers 1890, 1891 and the first three months of 1892. The records are taken at Luakaha, Half Way House and Electric Light Station in Nuuanu, at the Makiki reservoir, and in 1892 in Manoa, at the head of the valley. Observers will be surprised at the comparative smallness of the rainfall, which has been by years as follows:

Table showing rainfall in inches for various stations from 1890 to 1892.

It is true the amount of rainfall at Luakaha if spread over a square mile and retained would hold over two years' supply for Honolulu with a consumption of 3,000,000 gallons daily, but such figures amount to very little, for the water cannot be retained, the most of it would go off in evaporation and seepage, and if it could it would stagnate as to develop universal typhoid and kill off most of the population. All who have to drink and use the water to-day will appreciate this. We shall have to come to pumping from artesian wells finally for a sure and certain supply of pure water, better than we have had. The rainfall system will have to be relegated to irrigation purposes. Fifteen thousand dollars a year will pump 4,000,000 gallons a day to an altitude sufficient for all purposes below Judd street, at an expense a good deal over Ewa plantation's experience. The very time when irrigation is needed is when there is least water with our rainfall system. Experiments are sometimes very costly. Where there is no experience and a pressing need, they are justifiable at public expense. If this principle had been applied in the case of the artesian well recently sunk at Waikiki, that useless expense would not have been incurred. Had it been sunk an eighth of a mile back of its present position the large suburb of Waikiki would have been supplied with plenty of good water, and that heavy drain removed from the rainfall system of Honolulu. The observation in the report that the water is hard on account of its flow over the limestone formation at the foot of Manoa Valley is possibly intended as an innocent joke, as the considerable number of wells between it and Manoa flow fine streams of the sweetest water. It may also be asked, why is no use made of the Government well at Pawaa? It flows a powerful stream of pure water, said to be over 1,000,000 gallons daily. It does not appear as a source of income in the statement of receipts, yet a Chinese tenant of Mrs. C. A. Brown is obtaining fine crops of rice from it. Considerable space is devoted to the water famine of 1891, and the various and expensive devices for its relief. The artesian well alone saved Honolulu from great distress and possibly from very serious disaster. The large amount of new pipe, of a larger size, which has been laid, has done much to relieve poor supply by reducing friction. This work appears to have been done with wisdom and reasonable economy. In all over 30,000 feet of pipe of various measures have been laid.

But after all, the great question is that of supply, and it is so recognized in the report. The storage capacity of the present reservoirs is given as 40,367,939 gallons. This gives about 13 days' supply, making no allowance for evaporation and seepage. The larger reservoirs are not tight, and will require a heavy expenditure to put them in good condition with no certainty of their holding water. It is pretty generally recognized now that with our open volcanic substratum, it is very doubtful if any large reservoir will hold water. Even large cisterns, built wholly of cement, have, when filled, cracked and become useless, on account of some unknown unequal resistance in the earth or rock where built. About the only lakes, or rather, small ponds, the country has are in the beds of an- dered pools, where presumably that there were times when they were filled except the general rules of the water law, and the member young and foolish (Kamaoaha) was the member.

They wanted to know how the pleasures of life are discounted in after years, the most conspicuous of large capacity, who are smooth of face, the recom- McKinley, Secy. Judge Nathan... to expend several thousand dollars for the damming up of streams to make reservoirs of from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 or more gallons capacity. The Superintendent of Public Works makes an expansive report on the proposed large reservoir above Luakaha, with a proposed capacity of 341,000,000 gallons, at an estimated cost of $75,000. This would be well spent if it were reasonably certain of holding that amount of water, and of keeping it pure and sweet enough for general use, several very important uncertainties. It is stated that 10,000,000 gallons a day are now available from existing artesian wells, only needing a new system of mains with perhaps a pumping plant. The report contains an excellent table of water systems of a number of cities in the United States.

HOUSE NOTES.

Noble Neumann said yesterday he wished he could understand something. Well, we wish he could, too.

The inflationists with their panacea of cheap money and more cheap money, are like Dr. San- grado in Gil Blas, who dosed his patients with nothing but warm water. The patients died to a man, but the doctor always said it was because they did not take warm water enough.

The member from Lahaina says the Horner Bill reminds him of Aladdin and his lamp. Oily Bill builded better than he knew, when he made that remark.

It looks as though the Waste Paper Bill would pour oil as well as paper on the troubled waters. Rep. Bush was seen peacefully fraternizing with Ministers, the hatchet buried, looking as smiling as though he was just sitting down to a dish of succulent dog. The long and youthful scion of the Horner stock was also an ambassador to the ministerial camp.

It is freely rumored that the Ministers will vote for the Inflation Bill, but the terms of the vote swapping are not quite settled yet.

Col. Carter respectfully suggests that Noble Neumann's recent study of the almanack humorists it now being seen to fine advantage. Paul has a "noble" memory—something indispensable to a wit, like Paul.

Rep. Nawahi says the crowd behind the railing would be at work if this bill were law. And whom would you have to talk to then, Mr. Nawahi?

Col. Carter says the crowd behind the rail would not go to work under any circumstances. Like a number of members of the House, they are "not that kind."

Quite a crowd gathered to hear the debates in the House yesterday. Among them some of the gold bugs.

The lie-on-the-lounge Ministry have not been heard from yet on the Banking Act.

Rep. Nawahi made a speech of an hour and twenty minutes on Friday.

The movement to encourage tourist travel to this Kingdom is one of vital importance to every business man in the community and should receive their earnest support. Other sources of income having been legislated beyond our control by the United States we must throw open our gates to the tourist and induce him with clever pictures by pen and camera to visit us, and show him the greatest wonders of the world.

Properly managed the Bureau of Information would be of untold benefit to the Islands. But in addition to the establishment of a bureau in San Francisco arrangements could be advantageously made with Thomas Cook & Son for placing Hawaii on their list of tours. We speak from experience when we state that this firm has made more tourists comfortable in every nook and corner of the world than has been done by any other agency in the universe.

So much for the business man to attend to and they will probably do it all, but is it not possible for the Government to take a hand and help the merchant out of the difficulty. Switzerland, we are told, derives most of its support from tourist travel. The support must be weak when the president of the republic has only a $3,000 job. A country needs more than tourists to make it thrive. Twenty years ago the people of Jacksonville, Palatka, Green Cave and St. Augustine in Florida, lived during the winter months on Northern Consumptives and alligators, and in the summer they did nothing but "jist sot around and take quinine." Florida was a good place for invalids and occasionally one of them would take on a new lease of life. The success of the sanitariums along the St. John's river tempted the people of certain localities in Georgia and South Carolina to start opposition health resorts with the result that a large portion of that class of travel has drifted toward Thomasville, Georgia and Aiken, South Carolina.

But Florida had something beside its advantages as a resort for people with dislocated pulmonary organs. The ingenius Yankee saw something more than Alligators in the Everglades and to see was to act. Nearly all the swamp land in the State has been reclaimed and sold to farmers who now have thriving orange groves where miasma had been the product. Through LIFT AND ravel Florida has its land valuations in tens of dollars in the trade and placed the state on a financial basis. The reclaiming the swamp lands was the direct result of the tourist business, and had it not been for this the state Government would have sat down by its fireside and seen its obligations spring up, blossom and grow to a ripe old age and eventually become outlawed.

As a health resort the Hawaiian Islands are superior to Florida. Every-other-day ague and quinine which go hand-in-hand in Florida are comparatively unknown to us. As a wonder land we're recognized 365 days in the year as the "greatest show on earth." Here are two features which should tempt both health seekers and Kodak fiends. But in encouraging only these two classes what is the result? The invalids are made strong and then go home to spend their coin; the tourist lands and inquires for cheap rates and in a fortnight fades from view. True enough they spend money—and during the next year a great many of them will visit the islands going to, or coming from Chicago but it must be borne in mind that the World's Fair is not a permanent show. After that is over there will be a greater drop in tourist travel to Honolulu than there was in the sugar business, (and consequently every other business here) after the McKinley bill was put into operation. We must find relief through some more permanent channel and it is within the power of the wise men at the "big house" to help the country, the working man, the merchant and themselves. Here is the way:

There are thousands of acres of land in the Kingdom lying idle and the laws are such that they will continue so unless a certain resolution is passed. During the present week a bill will be introduced authorizing the disposal of certain of the crown lands in tracts suitable for the farmer. This done and the fact made known to the tourist we will in a few years, see the islands dotted with the houses of the small farmers—the back bone of any country. The product of these farms will add to our exports and make living cheaper for the working man. It will add to the revenue of the country through taxation and give us a class of citizens of whom the country may be proud. We may not see the direct benefit; it would be selfish if the legislation was simply for the present generation. Small farms have been a boon to the United States—they have done every thing for France. And we sell farming implements.

Referred to select committee.

Consideration of Bill 78, the Hawaiian Banking Act, in Committee of the Whole, Rep. E. W. Wilcox in the chair.

Noble Macfarlane was opposed to the bill from first to last, because it was wrong in principle and fraught with danger to the commercial interests and independence of Hawaii. It was wrong because the country was burdened with a debt of nearly four millions of dollars, and the bill provided for the payment of this debt in paper. The member from the West District had referred to capitalists, sweating the country, and the bill would give that class more power than ever.

The planters who control the products of the country will have ten times greater control if this bill passes. They will control the situation. As soon as the money is issued, the price of commodities would advance, the price of living go up, without, as the price of a corresponding rise in the price of the laborers would be in labor, gold, or an equivalent would have to be given in exchange. The money would make facious, whimsy, deceitful and false in the pamphlet published by the author says the bill will benefit the debtor class. The difficulty is the poor are too poor to contract debts. The debtor class will not be benefited. The bill proposed to flood the country with an unlimited quantity of irredeemable currency. There was no element of soundness in it from beginning to end. [Noble Horner: There is a limit.] What is it? [Noble Horner: The demand for use.] That makes it practically unlimited. As stated by Noble Baldwin, the taxable property is valued at $18,000,000, which would give an issue of $9,000,000. But it would not stop there. How are the poor going to benefit? How many Hawaiians are the owners of taxable bonds? Noble Baldwin yesterday showed that there was no lack of currency for the needs of our business here, especially as the volume of business has shrunk heavily. If there was currency enough in '90, there certainly is enough now. We are suffering not from the want of currency, but of credit and confidence. Statistics will show how little currency and how much credit is required for business, and how mischievous the lack of credit is. Should not the experience of the Argentine Republic which is so fresh in our minds be a warning to us, and the troubles of Brazil to-day? Both these countries resorted to paper money, and though the Argentine Republic was supported by the most powerful private banking house of England—the Baring Bros.—their efforts were in vain; they could not get gold, and in the collapse that great house went down. It was paper money which brought that country to grief. The issue increased month by month, gold was drawn from the country, the paper was enormously depreciated, and collapse was the final result. Unless all science failed, Brazil would share the fate of the Argentine Republic. Recent advices are that the Rothschilds have refused to act any longer for Brazil in Europe. Would Hawaii ignore the fate of these countries? Such issues of paper money had never failed to depreciate, even the United States greenbacks, and they were only redeemed by the wonderful resources of the country. If we were unwilling to profit by the experience of these countries, it would not be long before this country would be in the same condition as they were. He did not doubt the sincerity of the introducer, but if a scheme were on foot to steal the independence of the country it could not be more cunningly devised than by such a bill as this. If this country would be safe, it must steer clear of such complications. In two years it would be bankrupt, and we would witness the humiliating spectacle of the agents of foreign countries sitting in our Custom House collecting the duties. The native members might not be aware that the duties of the Argentine Republic were collected in London. That was precisely how we would come to if we cannot meet our obligations in gold. The speaker, proceeding, said the debate yesterday had showed conclusively that this bill was not adapted to the needs of the situation. There was not one element of soundness in it. It was so full of absurdities and inconsistencies that he considered it a criminal waste of time to discuss it. The member from the Third District had admitted that the Postmaster-General was not the one to stand at the head of this great bank. He was surprised that the introducer had not added to his duties the work of the Superintendent of Public Works and the Water Works. The Noble from Maui had showed how easy it would be to pay high taxes for the first year on a rotten piece of property and then float it on the Government. The introducer had told us that the security for the paper would be real estate. How would that help us to meet our foreign obligations in gold? Could the real estate be shipped abroad? Did not the introducer know that if the Government had no gold if must be purchased? He would have to go to those planters and buy it. Did he not know that real estate would depreciate, and everything else in the shape of a commodity? He would call attention to Section 5, which provided that certificates of deposit should have the word "redeemed" written across them and cancelled, the Minister of Finance keeping a record of them. That was a very loose provision. Section 6 provided that the rate of interest should be fixed after the first census had been taken. Was the Government rate of interest to be fixed only every ten years? [Noble Horner: Yes.] Without reference to the rate of interest here or elsewhere? [Noble Horner: Yes.] Well, that is what I expected, and about on a par with the rest of the bill. Section 7 provided that United States gold and Hawaiian silver should also be received the same as the paper. Now there was no consideration for you. The bank would kindly take United States gold, if necessary. The provisions against counterfeiting showed the introducer to be a humorist. It was not likely that anybody would take the trouble to counterfeit that trash. In Section 13 was the first intimation that anybody was to have anything to do with the bank except the Postmaster. Perhaps the scheme was so nicely adjusted that it would run itself. There were unconstitutional provisions in the bill, but doubtless it was intended to repeal the laws, the Constitution and everything else. The member referred to another passage. [Noble Horner: That is a typographical error.] The whole bill must be a typographical error. The bill was a mass of inconsistencies from beginning to end. There was enough intelligence in the House to indefinitely postpone the bill.

Rep. Smith doubted whether any fuller discussion would change anyone's opinion, and he would now renew his motion that the committee rise and recommend the indefinite postponement of the bill. The printed bill and pamphlet had been before the House for weeks, and it was in the interest of the House to come to a vote.

Noble Horner said he would occupy but a few moments in replying to the objections made. It was quite surprising to what flights of fancy men's imagination would carry them. [Laughter, and calls of kokua.] The member compared the last speaker to the old maid who would not marry because she imagined accidents which might happen to her children. Noble Thurston had imagined yesterday that if the bill had been in operation years ago, when the Leupahoeoe Government would have lent $250,000 on it. As a matter of fact, the Government would only have lent on the real estate.

The bill does not take any security any railroads, any canals, any mills—nothing but real estate. The plantation had, perhaps, 3000 acres of land and was taxed at $20 an acre. The loan on that would have been $30,000. The McKinley bill had fallen once, and it would not fall again. By the time this bill was introduced, and property would be down to bed-rock, and property would be low. When he had introduced this bill he had wanted it to be referred to a committee of lawyers. When the bill came up for consideration section by section, he would answer some of the objections to details. The variation in the rates of interest was just what destroyed business. This bill would avoid that. The ordinary variety was like a rubber yard-stick. The business of the world was measured by a rubber yard-stick.

Rep. Nawahi said there were members here who knew more of finance than the native members did. What these latter wanted to get was the true facts. He moved the committee take a recess till 1:30. Carried at 1:58 A. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The House re-assembled at 1:55.

Rep. Nawahi complained that members who opposed the bill were absent when the native members wanted to ask questions. He wished to ask questions of Nobles Macfarlane and Baldwin, but they were absent. They did not want to answer questions. Noble Macfarlane had said that all countries which had paper currency had come to grief; yet America, Russia and Italy all had paper money with nothing behind it—unlike this paper, which would have real estate behind it. The same Noble had said that the independence of the Argentine Republic was gone. [Noble Macfarlane denied having said anything of the kind.] He had said the duties were collected in London. [Noble Macfarlane said that this money.] These people were opposed to everything new. They could see nothing but ruin in everything that was started. The only way to find out whether this was a good bill or not, was to try it. These same predictions of ruin were made about the Government running a steamer against the Water Works and against the Kalakaua dollars. Nobody said anything against these dollars now. The great hurry that some people were in to vote on the bill without a full and free discussion of it made him think there was something in the bill. The speaker went on to compare Noble Horner with the bill. The opposition to the bill came from money lenders, or people connected with them, whose business would be interfered with. They said the bill was bad because it gave money at a low rate. It would be a good bill if the money would be worth nothing. But a man could borrow it on his land, and employ Chinamen and pay them in this money, and send the produce to San Francisco and gold would come back. This would then produce gold, and with this gold the national debt could be paid. The speaker in conclusion observed that he was not ready to vote for or against the bill, but wished to hear it fully discussed on both sides.

Rep. Ashford thought in the interest of economy of time, the House should vote on the general question of entertaining the bill any further or not. He wished to withdraw his resolution of yesterday and substitute a resolution calling for the re-reference of the bill to the same committee to make amendments, one of which should be the entire divorce of the bank from the Post Office.

Noble Neumann saw no reason why the bill should be referred to the re-reference. He confessed he thought it a bill which should not be passed. He saw nothing to be gained in discussing the bill section by section. That would only be proper if the House approved the principle of the bill. Such a course reminded him of the kind hearted old German who wanted to dock his dog's tail, but in order not to hurt him too much he only cut off half an inch a day. He could not agree that the bill was a good thing. He thought for the Government to lend its paper to people on proper security at a low rate was a good thing. But what about the poor people who had no bonds; should they be issued the bonds in order to enable them to borrow? It should be remarked that real estate was nothing behind an irredeemable paper currency. [Noble Marsden asked if it would be a good thing for the Government to sell a man a thousand dollar bond at 6 per cent., and then lend him $900 on it at 4 per cent?]

Yes, an excellent thing for the Government and the man. If money was issued on bonds the bonds would be security for the note. For this purpose a bank was needed. If this Government ever made a mistake it was in establishing a Postal Savings bank with heavy depositors. This bill would simply make the mistake greater. Every attempt to issue irredeemable currency had ended in disaster. The speaker referred to the great French bubble of the eighteenth century. The course of that government after the revolution was also a case in point. The government had confiscated the church property wanted to use it. It issued paper on it, just as is proposed here. It resulted in enormous depreciation. Leaving aside the Argentine Republic, Japan, and Brazil, there were still instances enough to show that there was nothing but ruin in irredeemable paper currency. The Legislature could authorize the Minister of Finance to issue notes to order. The paper proposed by this bill would be of no use because it would not be taken. This was not the time of Louis XV., when a man could be beheaded for not taking it. The trader would bring it to Bishop and Co., and Bishop and Co. would say, "cally, well, this is good for certain purposes, but not to buy, exchange with. The trader would say, well, what will you take it for and Bishop would say, "I will take it for a cart and see how long it will draw. [The speaker told a funny story about the inhabitants of Ahabera.] It was no waste of time to discuss the bill. He did not pretend to know all about this, and was ready to be convinced. The proposition to issue paper money upon bonds was a good one but could be carried out without the rest of the bill.

Rep. White said the remarks of the members against the bill were like sounding brass and tinkling cymbals. The only thing to the point in the rest of the last speaker was the story about the old German and the dog. That German must have been a grandfather of the hon. Noble. This bill reminded him of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp. Noble Horner was Aladdin and the bill was the lamp, and all he had to do was to rub it, and he would have lots of money here. The people who opposed the bill were like those who used to claim that the earth was flat. He saw here yesterday people who never were here before. The House was as attractive to money lenders as a plate of molasses to flies. He was reminded of Richard III., who was visited by the spirits of the people whom he had oppressed and warned that his hour was approaching. So the spirits of the oppressed and down-trodden poor rose last night and warned the capitalists that their hour had come. This bill was going to pass. He had often wondered what God these people worshipped, and had concluded that it was the Almighty Dollar. The people here always rushed over to California to invest their money, but as they were greatly outnumbered in brains by the people over there, they soon lost all their money and came back dead broke. The speaker did not like the tactics of the opponents of this bill. They were the "snide" politicians. There were two grey-headed old men in the House for whom he had the highest respect—Noble Neumann and Noble Horner. They had discussed with courtesy, etc. The former reminded him of an old oak tree, which resisted all the winds; while the latter was like a big Newfoundland dog, calmly unmindful of the snapping curs around him.

At 4 P. M., the committee rose and reported progress, and asked leave to sit again the following day.

Noble Neumann moved it be postponed until Monday. He was going to the ball to-night, and would be unfit for work to-morrow.

The report as amended was adopted, and the House adjourned at 4:05 P. M. The President appointed as a committee on Bill 174: Nobles Peterson, G. N. Wilcox and Hoapili and Reps. S. K. Pua and Nahimu.

OYSTERS AND SEEDS

Are valuable for what's in 'em. Good and bad oysters look alike in the shell. Good and bad seeds often have the same appearance. Any one can tell a worthless oyster on opening it. The value of a seed must be determined by its growth. This makes its quality worth considering. You want seeds that will grow, and you want the product to be of value. There is but one guarantee; the reliability of the firm from which you buy.

HUMOR

Bishop Cox's Little Story. Bishop Cox, in his lecture at the Young Men's Christian association yesterday, told this story: "When I was rector of a church in Baltimore I used to see a dear old lady in the garb of a Quaker very often in the congregation of the church. One of the wardens said to me, 'Mrs. — is a great friend of yours.'"

A Too Easy Chair. It is a well established theory that one caught in a thunderstorm should not take shelter under a tall tree, especially if it stands in a clearing. Why lightning should strike an isolated piece of timber on shore and spare it after it has been converted into a vessel's mast is yet to be satisfactorily explained.—New York Times.

Admiration Among Indians. "Man lives by admiration," and the Indian can admire. His favorite tale, listened to with ever fresh interest, is of a hero who would not enter heaven if his dog were excluded. He has placed among his gods an English general who was both true and brave, and I heard from East Indians of differing views how, comparing European races, they placed the British highest. They admired their devotion to principle. "The British are the only foreigners who die for what is right." But the same men, criticizing what they admired for its want of tenderness and sympathy, often added, "The British, and especially the women, keep themselves aloof and alienate the admiration they might hold."—Nineteenth Century.

A Smart Little Woman. Jinks—Minks' wife is a mighty clever little woman. If there were more women like her there would be fewer divorces. She knows how to keep the domestic machinery running smoothly. Did you hear what she gave her husband for a birthday present? Binks—No; what was it? Jinks—A big leather covered box containing 150,000 collar buttons.—New York Weekly.

That Accounts for It. Couple of loafers discovered gazing at a placard: "Lost, a black poodle. One hundred francs reward." "Look here," said one, "suppose you take them the dog we stole yesterday, eh?" "But it's a white one," was the reply. "Never mind, you will tell them that excess of grief has— You understand?"—Petit Bordelais.

Friendly Advice. Housekeeper—Bobby! Bobby! Where in the world is that boy? Tramp—Please munn, that big watch dog o' yours just swallowed something wot looked like a boy. Maybe it wasn't, but you'd better get rid o' that dog any-how, munn, an get a nice, quiet cat.—Good News.

One Man. Miss S.—Some one told me the other day that you had received seven proposals this winter. Miss F. (complacently)—Yes, I have. Miss S.—Who is the man?—Life.

The Village Cornet Band. Among the recollections of those life enchanted days when Santa Claus was real to me, and bogie man and fays, the thing I best remember as then seeming super grand was the music and the marching of the village cornet band.

As the first reverberation of the brasses' martial blare, Like an echo faint and fading, floated to us on the air. All the p... or skelter rushed away with h... For that thin... cornet band, was coming down... ret.

The boys forgot their... set, yea, and even hats and bells. And our very little sister her decapitated doll. For what were life's bereavements, or its ordinary joys.

When the celebrated cornet band was making martial noise? The band's perambulation being viewed without expense. The excitement in the village was exceedingly intense.

All business came to sudden stop, for who could coldly trade When our heroic cornet band was out for a parade. The whole village was in tumult—so at least it seemed to me—when the band came sweeping past.

And what looks of admiration were upon the heroes cast! How magnificent their uniforms of yellow, green and red! How very splendidly they played, and what a kindly tread!

And the major! Ah! the major! most majestically bright! And he pranced along, curvetting and what hauteur in his eye! How I envied his pre-eminence, agility and skill. As he boldly tossed his scepter up and spun it around at will.

THREE DOVES. Seaward at morn my doves flew free. At eve they circled back to me. The first was Faith, the second Hope, The third—the whitest—Charity.

Above the plunging surges' play Dreamlike they hovered day by day. At last they turned and bore to me Green signs of peace through nightfall gray.

No shore forlorn, no loveless land Their gentle eyes had left unscanned. 'Mid hues of twilight hidestrops. Or daybreak fires by heaven-breath fanned.

Quick visions of celestial grace Hither they waft from earth's broad space. Kind thoughts of all humanity. They shine with radiance from God's face.

Ah, since my heart they choose for home, Why lose them—forth again to roam? Yet look! they rise! With loftier scope They wheel in flight toward Heaven's pure dome.

Fly, messengers that find no rest Save in such toil as makes man blest! Your home is God's immensity; We hold you but at his behest.

—George Parsons Lathrop in New York Independent. Thunderstorms at Sea. An electric storm at sea is one of the alarming experiences to which a mariner is exposed, but as a matter of record it is one that is least fruitful in disastrous results.

As a rule few precautions are taken to guard against a stroke of lightning, especially in the merchant service. Ships of war are usually fitted with lightning conductors, a precaution made necessary by the explosives stored away in their magazines.

But these safeguards are seldom seen on a merchant vessel, and judging by the extreme rarity of the cases where they have been struck, Jack's claim that he is safer on the ocean than on shore during an electrical disturbance must be admitted.

It is a well established theory that one caught in a thunderstorm should not take shelter under a tall tree, especially if it stands in a clearing. Why lightning should strike an isolated piece of timber on shore and spare it after it has been converted into a vessel's mast is yet to be satisfactorily explained.—New York Times.

Admiration Among Indians. "Man lives by admiration," and the Indian can admire. His favorite tale, listened to with ever fresh interest, is of a hero who would not enter heaven if his dog were excluded.

He has placed among his gods an English general who was both true and brave, and I heard from East Indians of differing views how, comparing European races, they placed the British highest. They admired their devotion to principle.

"The British are the only foreigners who die for what is right." But the same men, criticizing what they admired for its want of tenderness and sympathy, often added, "The British, and especially the women, keep themselves aloof and alienate the admiration they might hold."—Nineteenth Century.

A Large German Castle. The Castle of Heidelberg is the largest in Germany. It stands 330 feet above the Neckar river, and was occupied as a castle as early as 1294 A. D. In a cellar in one corner of the ruins is the famous "tun" or monster cask capable of holding 49,000 gallons.

This was for the storage of wine used by the nobility who dwelt in this castle. It is believed that the Grand Duke of Baden will abandon the idea which he recently entertained of attempting to "restore" the ruins and convert them into a modern palace.—Philadelphia Ledger.

When ether was first discovered and used in surgery it was said that to abolish pain would be to change the laws of nature herself; that pain is a safeguard; that it indicates, in cases of injury, the seat of injury, and in some instances the cause of injury; that if men learned to minimize or prevent it at pleasure they might annul it altogether and invent a new constitution in which this sentinel of danger would be at all times of duty.—Dr. Richardson in Longman's Magazine.

STAND BY PABST BEER. Workingmen Say it is Purely a Union Product.

No Reason Why it Should be Boy-cotted. The Federated Trades Council Declares that the K. of L. Boycott is the Result of Rivalry Between the Pabst and Anheuser-Busch Co.'s.—The Pabst Company Much More Favorable to Labor than the St. Louis Brewers.

The Federated Trades' council at its meeting last night listened to a report from a delegation from the local Journeymen's Brewers union, and then passed by a unanimous vote the following resolutions:

"Whereas, The Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, in session at Pittsburgh, Pa., May 14, 1892, passed a boycott upon the Pabst beer of Milwaukee in favor of the Anheuser-Busch beer of St. Louis, alleging that the Pabst beer is a non-union made product; and

"Whereas, the situation relative to the employment of labor by the two breweries is as follows: The Pabst Brewing company's beer is an exclusively made union product. All its ingredients are prepared by union labor, while the malt used by the Anheuser-Busch company, as alleged, is bought largely at malt houses located in small towns, where non-union labor is employed at a greatly reduced figure.

Within the year unions in every branch of labor employed by the Pabst Brewing company have been formed, and such labor is now working under a scale perfectly satisfactory to them and which continues in force one year from its adoption. The Anheuser-Busch labor, which is represented both in the union and Knights of Labor, operates under the jurisdiction of the International Brewers' association. The labor employed by the Pabst Brewing company also operates under the jurisdiction of the same association.

The labor employed by the Pabst Brewing company, in settling its scale for the present year, secured all requests sought by it and no dissatisfaction exists relative to it among any of said employees, and

"Whereas, There appearing no reason why organized labor in any form should complain at the Pabst Brewing company's method of dealing with its employees or with the rights of organized labor, the Pabst Brewing company being only one of the brewing concerns of this and other cities in which the same scale is in use, all working under the same jurisdiction of the International Brewers' union; therefore

"Resolved, That by selecting the Pabst Brewing company for a boycott under the above circumstances, the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor has perpetrated not only a manifest injustice on the Pabst Brewing company, which employs only union labor throughout, but upon the cause of organized labor which can offer no valid reason for the placing of said boycott.

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this council, that it is the duty of all organized labor to give the same protection to employers of such labor in the distribution and sale of their product that is demanded by such labor of employers in the recognition and employment of such organized labor.

"Resolved, That inasmuch as we know the charge that Pabst beer is a non-union made product to be utterly false and without foundation, and believe that the boycott placed at Pittsburgh has been incited and instigated by and through the agents of the Anheuser-Busch company because of the rivalry existing between it and the Pabst company, we hereby appeal in the interest of fairness to the Pabst company as well as the interest of organized labor which cannot prosper under the employment of such diverse and unfair methods, to the International Brewers' union to demand that the Executive committee of the Knights of Labor lift immediately said boycott, and Labor lift immediately said boycott, and that widespread public announcement be made of the same when done.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the officers of the American Federation of Labor at once with the request that they adopt the same or other resolutions to the same effect."
