A NEW ATLANTIC CABLE.

The Submarine Line Between Africa and South America.

A cable that is to be laid between Senegal and Pernambuco has been shipped from England, and is now on its way to the African coast in the British steamship Silvertown. It was constructed by the Telegraph Works Company of London, and a number of recent inventions have been used in its construction. There have been many improvements in cable-making since the first Atlantic line was laid, thirty-four years ago, by Cyrus W. Field and his associates. The cable to run between Senegal and Africa and Pernambuco in Brazil was taken aboard coiled up in three tanks and ready for paying out at the bow end of the vessel, not at the stern, as was formerly the custom. The cable is of varying thickness, ranging from two and a quarter tons per knot to four and a half tons, according to the depth of the water in which it is to be laid, while the shore ends weigh about fifteen tons per knot. At Senegal the shore end is to be covered by a hut, and there left in charge of an electrical engineer, who will be in communication day and night with the cable-bearing ship. Signals will be exchanged every five minutes during the whole operation of laying the cable to Brazil. In the deep sea the cable will be paid out at the rapid rate of ten knots an hour, though large allowance must be made for stoppages through impediments a thousand fathoms deep. According to the engineer in charge, the line will be laid and the Silvertown back in England before the end of the month of July. Aboard the steamer there is a large staff of engineers and assistants, who work in four-hour shifts and then have eight hours off. The strain upon them while on duty is very severe.

The cable itself, which was made on the Thames, is an interesting piece of work. The communicating part is in the center, and consists of a number of copper wires firmly embedded in gutta-percha, which is a non-conductor. Round the gutta-percha, as a protection from rocks and sea-monsters, is a band of steel wires, covered with a resinous coating to prevent corrosion. The utmost care is taken to preserve the complete continuity of the electrical circuit through the whole of the 2165 miles of the cable.—[New York Sun.

The Triumph of Lick Observatory.

Barnard, of the Lick Observatory, has startled the world with the announcement of the discovery of a fifth satellite to Jupiter, very small and very close to the planet. The distance is given as about 112,000 miles from the planet's center, or 69,000 from its surface, and the period as very nearly 12 hours. It is reported as of the thirteenth magnitude; that is, it appears as bright as a thirteenth magnitude star would appear at the same distance from the disk of the planet. There are very few existing telescopes which can reach it, as the planet is so bright that the surrounding glare renders such an object vastly more difficult to see, even when the planet's disk is hidden, than if it were by itself in the sky. As yet the observations published are hardly sufficient to remove all uncertainty; but there is every probability that the discovery is genuine, and if so, it is one of which American astronomy may well be proud. It could hardly have been made anywhere else than at our mountain observatory, and with a telescope less powerful than the great instrument which is the chef d'œuvre of our own greatest optician, or by an observer less keen-eyed and persistent than Barnard himself. It is possible that when the orbit of the satellite is well determined, so that we know just when and where to look, we may be able to see it with all telescopes that exceed two feet in diameter, but it is likely that the only confirmation of the Lick observations will come from the great thirty-inch telescopes at Nice and Pulkowa.—[Ex.

WEDNESDAY, : NOVEMBER 9, 1892.

THOUGH the Legislature was not in session much more than half an hour yesterday, a good deal of business was transacted. The Sanitary Committee has evidently not been idle during the interregnum, and it nearly swamped the House with reports yesterday. The adoption of its reports passed one or two bills to engrossment, and gave the death-blow to several others

A LONG report of the Sanitary Committee on the vaccination question is reproduced in full in our legislative report this morning. The compulsory vaccination law is odious to many, chiefly among the Hawaiians, and a strong effort had been made for its repeal. The Sanitary Committee has consulted with the Board of Health, which again has sought the opinion of the medical fraternity throughout the islands. These opinions are unanimously in favor of the maintenance of the present system, which the committee ... One of these permits individuals to select the physician who shall perform the vaccination, and this will be an improvement upon the present law.

THE PRINCIPLE UPHELD.

The Cabinet crisis is ended, and a strong Ministry, selected in accord with strictly constitutional methods, has taken its seat in the Legislative Assembly. The message from Her Majesty announcing that she had commissioned the Hon. G. N. Wilcox, Messrs. M. P. Robinson, P. C. Jones and Cecil Brown, as her Ministers, was received with applause, and the gentlemen were again applauded when they took their seats a few minutes later. Few realized how great the tension of the past two months had been until the feeling of relief was experienced with which it ended yesterday.

The majority of the Legislature are to be congratulated upon the firmness with which they have carried a long and apparently losing contest to a successful issue. After the Hon. G. N. Wilcox had been named to Her Majesty as a leader possessing the confidence of the majority, and before his departure for Kauai, he submitted to her the names of the members of the present Cabinet as those of gentlemen whom he would select if called upon. Upon his return, the Queen called him, and Mr. Wilcox submitted these names to the caucus, from a majority of whose members they received an endorsement. The following day they were commissioned.

Queen Liliuokalani deserves commendation for having recognized the force of the precedents which govern the conduct of all constitutional monarchies, and the country is to be congratulated on having the conduct of affairs placed in the hands of a capable and responsible Ministry. All moderate men will unite in the support of the Ministry, in the firm confidence that they will do their duty, satisfy the expectations of the Legislature and country in regard to the purification of the public service, and develop a financial policy radical enough to meet the needs of the times.

THE CABINET.

Of the new Ministers three are children of the soil while the other has been identified with the country for the last thirty years. Geo. N. Wilcox, the Premier, is a native of Kauai, a successful sugar planter, a man of moderate views, and one who possesses the confidence of all parties. Mark P. Robinson is a leading native Hawaiian, a member of the firm of Allen & Robinson, a man of important business interests, and enjoys an honorable reputation surpassed by none of his race. Mr. P. C. Jones has been identified with the firm of Brewer & Co. for many years and takes a foremost place among the strong business men of Honolulu, while Mr. Cecil Brown is a lawyer of standing, the manager of the extensive Campbell estate. He was identified with the Reform party prior to 1888, but since that time has been an Independent in politics.

The Cabinet is certainly a strong one. We had occasion to criticise Mr. Brown severely a few weeks ago, but have also had frequent occasion to make acknowledgment of his public services in the past. His reputation for straight and honest dealing has never been questioned, though his electric light bill did not err on the side of modesty. In the nature of the case no Cabinet can be framed which can please all parties, and "live and let live" is a maxim of politics, as of all departments of life.

The Legislature can now devote itself without interference to the serious business of the session, and if due diligence is observed a few weeks will bring this to a close.

STOCKWELL'S THEATER.

The Handsomest Playhouse in America.

The latest temple devoted to amusements has been recently opened in San Francisco, and is called Stockwell's Theater.

It is without doubt the handsomest playhouse in America, and is situated on Powell street, immediately opposite the Baldwin Hotel.

The San Francisco Examiner in a late issue furnished photo-types of the theatre, which included pictures of Stockwell's company of players, besides an interior view of the gorgeous structure.

The house presents strictly first-class attractions and people from Honolulu should take it in while "doing" San Francisco.

Another Story.

Mr. White, one of the men referred to in the account of the late stabbing affray at Ewa, says the statements made by the papers are absolutely false. He says Ward was a much aggrieved individual, being stamped on and beaten, and as for the knife he claims that the men were merely wounded by falling upon it or running up against it in some way, in the style of King Saul, Nero and other ancient worthies who hurt themselves by falling upon something sharp. Mr. Wilkinson, who was wounded in the back, must have backed up against the knife, like a balky mule.

This is evidently another story and it is commended to the tender mercies of the Police Justice of Ewa.

Old Rags Wanted.

Clean White Rags suitable for bandages are wanted for use at the Bishop Home and the Boys' Home, Leper Settlement, Molokai. Ring up 281 Mutual telephone and they will be sent for, or leave the same at the office of the Board of Health or at J. T. Waterhouse's, Queen Street.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the statements made, or opinions expressed by our correspondents.

Letter from Dr. Geo. Harrison.

MR. EDITOR: In the Bulletin of yesterday, S. E. Bishop, in referring to Mrs. Longshore-Potts, M.D., and my brother and myself, says: "They may be all that they profess to be, or they may be such as The Liberal has proclaimed them—manifestly the medical corps of Honolulu are the only competent judges of this. Do they bring full certificates of their reliability from the leading lights in medicine in the States, and especially in California?"

With reference to the first possibility, so far as it relates to Mrs. Potts and my brother, I am prepared to prove that nearly ALL the leading papers of the world published in the English language have endorsed their work. As to my part of the possibility that will be determined in the libel suit now pending in the Court. As to the question asked I will say Mrs. Longshore Potts' diploma and certificates of registration from the medical boards of California and Illinois, and my diploma accompanied by certificates from the medical boards of Minnesota and Missouri were submitted by the Board of Health to prominent physicians and found genuine, and on their recommendation the Board of Health requested the license from the Minister of the Interior which was granted. Equally good credentials were presented by my brother and approved and license issued to-day.

If H. E. Bishop will call at the Hotel I will show him not only the above-named credentials, but also certificates of registration in upwards of twenty States in America where the practice of medicine is governed by law. It is the desire of all members of my party to avoid notoriety, and I trust no further public allusion to a matter very painful to me, will be made until the Court has rendered its verdict. GEO. E. HARRISON.

Honolulu, Nov. 8, 1892.

Canada and Hawaii.

A number of merchants from British Columbia have recently been taking a deep interest in the country. They have been making liberal promises to erect sugar refineries and run distilleries; in return they solicit the trade of the islands for Victoria, and further... of steamers between Honolulu and Victoria. Corruption runs riot on the islands, and the opium gang, headed by the notorious Tom Whaley, have the officials under their thumbs. But with all this gloomy outlook the natives still entertain the hope that under a change of Government they may yet attain the realization of their dreams of power. They are envious of their position in the Pacific ocean, and believe that their ultimate destiny is to rule over all the islands in Oceanica.—[Grocer's Criterion.

November, 1892.

Come in, out of the rain! or, if it has quit raining when you see this, just come in out of the sun, and we will show you a fine lot of new goods just at hand ex "J. C. Glade," "Aloha," "Discovery" and S. S. "Australia". You may want one of those new Patent Plyers, very handy about the house to use either on wire or as a pipe wrench, in fact your tool chest is not complete without it. It will turn anything it takes hold of, from a piece of pipe to "an honest penny."

Is that your pup? You don't say so, part "Sooner" is he; well, the sooner you cut off that old dirty collar, and pick out a nice one from our new stock, the better your dog will look. That leather one you are looking at, is very strong and with its nickle trimmings looks very neat, but if you prefer an all-metal one, the one in the next box is what you want. You will notice that they differ from the ordinary link collar in that all the links are solid and no soft solder is used. If you want to see a sad dog, just look at one just after he has tried to break one of these collars, the way he used to break the old soldered link kind by walking to the end of his chain and then finding that he had an engagement to keep in the next yard.

Those waterproof linen Lariats, one of which you see in our front window, have been tried by a number of ranchmen and they all report them a good article, "better than rawhide," and they do not cost as much. We have them 50ft. long, in two sizes of rope and for anyone wanting a longer or shorter "lass" we have the article in 300ft. coils and will cut you off any number of feet you want, and we will have the "hondas" and metal grips that are used with the rope. Like the metal dog collars, the same animal never tries to break them more than one.

Those new style Pruning Shears and those steel edge Dust Pans, are goods that will please the ladies. With this kind of a shear, you don't have to screw your mouth up, and say "Oh!" before you get that tough piece of vine or rose bush cut through, and the dust pans, well, you know how you felt the other day when you had a little dirt to brush up and 67-100 of it slipped under the pan, because the edge was so bent. The steel edge Pan "keeps straight," and don't let dirt get by. Are any of your fine old shade trees troubled with the blight? If so, the only way to save them is to spray them. We have the Spraying Pumps complete with Nozzles and Hose, and if you get an outfit in time, it may save many a valuable tree. We have a new lot of hair clippers, and can sell you one that will clip your wife's, your boys', or your hair, so that it will be any where from 5-16 to 1-16 inches in length.

We have just added to our large stock of Buckles which fills up on many sizes we were short of.

Among articles received by the "Glade" are Pig Lead, Steel and Iron Wire Rope, Fence Staples, Colza Oil, English Horse Shoes, Coal and Stockholm Tar, Sheep Shears, Shot, assorted numbers 2 to 10; Paris White Galvanized Fence Wire, Galvanized and Black Chain, Sal Soda, Lamp Black, White Castile Soap, Galvanized Plain Iron, Anvils, Bar Iron, Yellow Metal, 14 to 28 ounces; Red and White Lead, Boiled and Castor Oil in drums.

Next steamer we will have another big lot of those fine Westenholm Pocket Knives, and by the "Martha Davis" now due from Boston, we will have a store full of new goods, but these you will hear about later. If you want anything in our line, come and see us, we will be pretty sure to suit you, both in quality of goods and in price.

Yours truly,

E. O. HALL & SON, L'D.,

THE LEGISLATURE.

One Hundred and Eighteenth Day.

TUESDAY, Nov. 8.

The House was called to order at 10:03 A. M. Minutes of 117th day read and approved.

The President stated that he had no communication to present to the House.

Rep. Bush moved the House adjourn.

Rep. Smith moved it adjourn until 1:30 simply.

Rep. Bush favored adjourning until the usual hour.

The President stated that the mail left to-morrow, and it was important that proper information should go forward.

The House adjourned until 1:30.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

At 1:35 P. M. the House was called to order and the President stated that he had every reason to believe that there would be a Cabinet in a few minutes.

At 1:38 the secretary read a communication from Her Majesty stating that it had pleased her to appoint the following Cabinet:

G. N. Wilcox, Minister of Interior.
Mark P. Robinson, Minister of Foreign Affairs.
P. C. Jones, Minister of Finance.
Cecil Brown, Attorney-General.

STANDING COMMITTEES.

Rep. Smith reported for the Sanitary Committee on a number of petitions, etc., relating to the laws concerning vaccination.

At 1.40 the new Cabinet entered, and Minister Wilcox stated that it had pleased the Queen to appoint the present Ministry.

Rep. Bush asked which gentleman was the head of the Cabinet?

The President stated that it was G. N. Wilcox.

Rep. Bush said it was usual to give the Cabinet a little time, which was natural and proper, and he moved the House adjourn.

Rep. Smith said, in the interest of facilitating the work, he would favor proceeding. The motion to adjourn was lost.

The report of the Sanitary Committee was as follows:

Hon. J. S. WALKER, President of the Legislature.

SIR: The Sanitary Committee report consideration of Bills Nos. 9, 13 and 25, and Petitions Nos. 33, 152 and 206, relative to vaccination.

The object of all these bills and petitions is to repeal the law compelling parents and guardians to cause the children in their charge to be vaccinated.

The complaints against the present system were very pronounced, and the repeal of the law making vaccination compulsory was strongly urged.

The committee met the Board of Health and conferred with them upon the subject, and finally, under date of June 25th, addressed a communication to the Board, of which the following is a copy:

HAWAIIAN LEGISLATURE, June 25, 1892.

DAVID DAYTON, Esq., President Board of Health.

SIR: An effort is being made in the Legislature to repeal, or amend the law relating to vaccination; the object being to leave vaccination optional with parents and individuals.

The chief objection raised against the present compulsory system appears to be the belief of some that leprosy, and other diseases, have been propagated by means of vaccination.

It is said that some of the vaccinating officers are careless in the use of vaccinating instruments, operating first upon one person and then another without cleansing the instrument; and that there is distrust of the quality of virus used. In some cases serious inflammation and illness following the inoculation.

The petitions and proposed measures relating to the subject have been referred to the Sanitary Committee, and the committee desire the views of the Board upon the subject.

Should the Board deem it desirable, it might be well to lay the matter before the Government physicians for an expression of opinion from them upon the subject.

The committee wish to have all the information they can obtain before reporting or making recommendations; and in addition to the sentiments of the Board and opinions of the physicians, we desire to be informed as to the regulations of the Board, or instructions to vaccinating officers, governing the enforcement of the law; and the kind or kinds of virus used and the method of procuring it.

Any suggestions the Board may be pleased to make will be appreciated.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM O. SMITH,
Chairman Sanitary Committee.

And received reply under date of August 13th, which is hereto attached.

The letters from the Government physicians are very interesting and instructive. We believe that the publication of certain of the letters is desirable.

In view of the opinions of the physicians, and under the circumstances, we do not recommend that the law be repealed. But we believe that every parent and guardian should have the right to select the person who should perform the vaccination, provided such person is a duly qualified physician.

As the present law requires that the vaccination be performed by the Government vaccinating officer, we have prepared a bill, which we present herewith, providing that it may be performed by any licensed physician at the option of the parent or guardian.

The committee desire to express their opinion as to the importance of care being exercised by those who perform vaccination. And we would recommend to the consideration of the Board the suggestion of establishing a vaccine farm.

We have also embodied in the bill, presented herewith, the recommendation that children be required to present a certificate of vaccination, or show marks of successful vaccination, before being admitted at any public or private school.

Respectfully submitted,
W. O. SMITH, Chairman,
ROBERT R. HIND,
ALEX. YOUNG.

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH, HONOLULU, August 13, 1892.

HON. W. O. SMITH, Chairman Sanitary Committee.

SIR: In reply to your favor of June 25th, for information on the subject of vaccination, I have the honor of handing to you herewith some twenty interesting communications from Government physicians on the subject, and I have also noted the strongest points in each, which are as follows:

Dr. G. Trousseau of Honolulu is against making vaccination a merely optional matter: would prefer to make compulsory vaccination more stringent than at present. He admits the possibility of disease being conveyed from one to another by arm to arm vaccination, but believes that the benefits arising from vaccination are not to be dispensed with.

Dr. R. McKibbin of Honolulu believes in making vaccination compulsory instead of optional.

Dr. H. G. McGrew of Honolulu believes in compulsory vaccination, and as Honolulu is a seaport, compulsory vaccination should be the rule. Does not think the transmission of leprosy possible as long as pure bovine virus is used, and recommends that ivory points be used instead of the lancet in sacrifying while vaccinating.

Dr. N. B. Emerson of Honolulu admits the possibility of leprosy being transmitted by careless arm to arm vaccination. He had investigated many cases of leprosy reported as due to vaccination but could find no facts to warrant the assertion. (His letter on the subject is full of valuable information and should be read by the committee.)

From Waianae Dr. N. Russell writes a long letter on the subject, which should also be read by the committee, as many of his views and arguments are both unique and original. He recommends the establishment of a Hawaiian vaccine farm under control of the Board of Health, and that none but healthy people should be vaccinated.

F. L. Alvarez, M. D., Government physician for Waialua, suggests that none but properly qualified physicians should practice vaccination. For the protection of the natives, and owing to our connection with Asiatic ports, he favors compulsory vaccination. (His letter is also full of valuable information which the committee should read.)

The Government physician for the Kona side of Molokai, Dr. A. Mouritz, writes a short but very able letter, which you should also peruse, in which he states that in England a physician has to obtain a special certificate before he is allowed to practice vaccination. This regulation, he writes, was due to careless vaccination practiced in previous times. He favors "compulsory" against "optional" vaccination.

Dr. Chas. Davidson of Lahaina, Maui, also favors compulsory vaccination and the use of pure bovine virus only.

Dr. Geo. Herbert of Wailuku says that vaccination should be compulsory. Pure, fresh bovine virus should be used and that a fresh ivory point be used at each operation. No arm to arm or vaccination with humanized virus should be allowed. Recommends the appointment of one public vaccinator for each island. (Evidently he does not care to be charged with inoculating leprosy, even if such charges are groundless.)

Diseases are liable to be transmitted by arm to arm vaccination, writes Dr. Chas. Stow of Makawao, Maui, and, as a preventative for such a possibility, recommends that one separate point be used on each person vaccinated.

Dr. T. Allen of Hana, Maui, puts himself on record as against making vaccination optional with parents and individuals.

B. D. Bond, M. D., of Kohala, Hawaii, thinks that optional vaccination means no vaccination at all. If pure bovine virus procured from a foreign country be used there can be no exposure, through vaccination, to leprosy.

Dr. L. S. Thompson of North Hilo, Hawaii, has had a great deal of experience with smallpox at an outbreak in Los Angeles, California. If crusts and cones of vaccine matter are used it becomes necessary to use the same knife on different patients. He vaccinated over 5000 persons in California and never heard of any harm resulting therefrom. As vaccination is the only safeguard against smallpox, he believes it ought to be compulsory.

Dr. R. B. Williams of Hilo believes some physicians in former times have been careless in vaccinating, hence the prejudice and opposition to vaccination. By using pure bovine vaccine virus only and one ivory point for each person vaccinated, possibilities of any bad results would be reduced to a minimum.

Chas. B Cooper, M. D., of Kau, Hawaii, had heard that formerly vaccination was performed with human virus, and regards such course, in view of the prevalence of leprosy and syphilis in this country, not only dangerous, but criminal.

From Kona, Hawaii, Dr. H. A. Lindley writes that the instrument used for sacrifying should be disinfected before going from one person to another.

Dr. Jared K. Smith of Koloa, Kauai, suggests that the Board of Health furnish ivory points for the purposes of vaccination, one point to be used on each individual. With our past experience with smallpox he considers it unwise to repeal the law on vaccination.

Dr. D. Campbell of Waimea, Kauai, writes an interesting letter which should be read by the committee. He does not think that leprosy or any other contagious malady is communicated by vaccination and recommends compulsory vaccination.

That vaccination should be enforced is the belief of Dr. St. D. G. Walters, the Government physician to Lihue, Kauai.

Owing to our situation, writes Dr. H. P. Hugus of Hanalei, Kauai, it is necessary that vaccination should be rigidly enjoined.

You will find that all the physicians are unanimously of the opinion that vaccination should be compulsory.

For that reason the Board is also of the opinion that vaccination should not be optional, and respectfully recommend that parents and guardians should see that their children are properly vaccinated.

Parents or guardians should be allowed to have their children vaccinated, 1. By the Government physicians. 2. By their family physician, or 3, By such parents and guardians themselves.

In view of the presence of leprosy and other diseases of a like nature pure bovine virus only should be used.

For your consideration the Board would suggest the adoption of such measures as would make it imperative that before admission into any public or private school, children seeking such admission should present a certificate or the marks of vaccination.

I would also call your attention to the fact that the laws on vaccination, as it now stands in the Civil Code (Sections 309 to 317) gives the Board no authority to cause or enforce vaccination; limits the Board's authority to simply recommending the appointment of a vaccinating officer (Section 309) and leaves the enforcement, etc., entirely to the Minister of the Interior.

The only instruction or regulation issued by the Board on vaccination is found in its instructions to Government physicians, and runs as follows:

"3. Periodical vaccination, as occasion may require."

I have the honor to be
Your obedient servant,
DAVID DAYTON,
President of the Board of Health.

The report was adopted.

The same committee reported on Bill 49, to repeal the Act to mitigate. The committee have given the most careful consideration to the matter, finding that there is a considerable difference of opinion on the subject. The committee presented a substitute bill.

The report was adopted.

The same committee presented a report on the bill to regulate the practice of dentistry. The committee recommend the passage of the bill, with a single amendment.

The report was adopted.

The same committee reported on the bill to allow lepers to remain at Kalalao, Kauai. The committee recommend the bill be tabled for consideration with other bills and petitions on the same subject. Adopted.

The same committee reported on Bill 104, to regulate the slaughtering and sale of meat. The object is to permit the sale of salt meat without a license. One object of the license system is to prevent cattle stealing. The committee recommend the bill be tabled. Adopted.

The same committee reported on Resolution 161, requesting Sanitary Committee to request the Board of Health to retain lepers at the Receiving Station until the arrival of Dr. Hansen from Sweden. The Doctor has not been sent for yet and when he comes he will doubtless go to Molokai. The committee recommend that the resolution be tabled.

Tabled to await report from Noble Pua, who did not sign.

The same committee recommended that Bill 180, making the Board of Health elective, etc., be tabled.

Tabled to await minority report.

The same committee recommended that the bill to allow lepers to vote be tabled. Adopted.

Rep. Bush moved the House adjourn. Carried, at 2:10 P.M.

in designing the Mimeograph took as his principle, the stylus, the writing implement of man since the art was first invented. It is the natural instrument by which the hand can trace characters. This is one of the reasons why this machine has achieved such popularity.

The pen or stylus glides easily over the prepared stencil paper with just enough friction to make writing identical to that done with a hard lead pencil.

It is used by jobbers sending out price lists; retail stores use it sending circulars direct to their customers; secretaries, in printing notices of meeting, programmes, etc.; hotels, printing bills of fare and printing bill and letter heads; musics, sketching, maps in colors, and in fact anything that a lead pencil can do, this machine does. It is simple, cleanly and strong. Prints on any kind of paper. Reproduces copies of type-writer work that are exact fac similes.

The head was sent to this city, to J. D. McVeigh, who had it placed in alcohol. Yesterday Dr. W. T. Monsarrat, the veterinary surgeon, had the head photographed and will send copies of it to the leading veterinary journals.

MARRIED.

Mr. Henry H. Wilcox and Miss May Green Are Made One.

A quiet but noteworthy wedding took place at the Parker parsonage on Judd street at half-past three o'clock yesterday afternoon, on which occasion Mr. Henry Wilcox, of Hanamaulu, Kauai, was united in marriage to Miss May Green, of this city. Rev. H. H. Parker was the officiating clergyman, the American Episcopal service being adopted. The Parker homestead was finely decorated for the occasion, with palms, ferns, maile and beautiful flowers. The bride was dressed in plain white, but never looked more charming than on this occasion. The wedding was strictly private, and besides a large circle of relatives of the groom and bride, very few were present. At 4:45 the newly married couple stepped into a carriage and were driven to the steamer Iwalani, which left for Kauai, where they will arrive home early this morning.

Mr. Wilcox is the youngest of the five well-known Wilcox brothers, of Kauai, the eldest of whom, Hon. G. N. Wilcox, was yesterday commissioned as one of Her Majesty's Crown Ministers. Another brother is Interpreter to the Legislature; a third is representative from Kauai, and a fourth is Sheriff of the same island. Thus they all appear as prominent, and certainly as reliable, citizens. The newly-married couple will carry with them the congratulations of their many friends, and among them those of the ADVERTISER and GAZETTE.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

Lecture on "Love, Courtship and Marriage."

Mrs. Longshore-Potts, M. D., delivered her lecture on "Love, Courtship and Marriage" at the Opera House last night to a small but cultured audience. The stage was set as a parlor scene—a pleasing contrast to the anatomical views presented at the other lectures. Her remarks were those of a sensible motherly woman—chaste in all things. She drew from a large fund of knowledge, gained by long experience as a physician, and gave much valuable advice, which was interspersed with many quaint witticisms and humorous anecdotes of the vicissitudes of courtship and marriage.

Yesterday afternoon she delivered her last lecture to women only. Her subject was maternity. The audience was large and there was much enthusiasm at the close. The ladies propose making a decided demonstration as to the value of these lectures.

A SMALL INVOICE.

A Resident Receives a Box of Opium Instead of Fruit.

A queer transaction has just come to light, and shows one method of smuggling opium into this country. When the Australia arrived last Wednesday, a box of fruit which was packed in the ice-house along with many other boxes, was taken out and sent to the house of a man well known in the community.

The box had been sent down by some friend in California. It has leaked out since that by a mistake, instead of sending the fruit, a box containing forty tins of opium was substituted. The "well known man," it seems, had no scruples about keeping the drug, and when the owner of the opium called at his house he denied ever having received it.

No names were mentioned regarding this queer transaction.

Booked to Leave.

The following persons are booked at the office of Wm. G. Irwin & Co., to leave on the Australia to-day:

S. B. Rose, J. A. Hopper and wife, Mrs. Sam'l Alexander, William Turner and family, Larry Dee and wife, A. R. Fredericks, Miss McAuliffe, Mrs. L. Swan, A. G. Wise, Dr. Rowat, wife and child, T. F. Agnew, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Schwabach, H. A. Widemann, Mrs. Widemann, Miss Widemann, Mr. Vivier, Mrs. C. Kingsley, Miss Kingsley, Gen. H. J. Willey, Capt. Ritch, E. D. Tenney, C. Brunning, T. T. Williams and wife.

A Challenge Accepted.

The young men who frequent the Armory are not satisfied with an ordinary gait on roller skates and have commenced to challenge one another to race. The latest offer is from J. W. Alapai to Charles Lambert to roll a distance of one mile for a purse of $20. Lambert notified the ADVERTISER that he will accept the challenge and will generously allow Alapai a start of one-half a lap. The race will take place on Saturday evening.

Daily Advertiser, 50c. a month delivered free.

WHARF AND WAVE.

DIAMOND HEAD, Nov. 8.—9 P. M.: Weather, hazy; wind, fresh N. E.

The schooner Liholiho brought on her last trip from Laysan Island a steam launch, which has been employed at the island in loading and unloading vessels. A new boiler for the launch has been built by the Pacific Ironworks Company, and yesterday Mr. Boyd put it in position on the little steamer. To-day a trial trip will be made around the bay. The Liholiho will take back the launch to Laysan Island on her next trip to that place. With this powerful boiler the little craft will make herself very useful in many ways at Laysan Island. She has power enough to tow an ordinary schooner.

Mr. John Dyer brought the dredger into the harbor yesterday afternoon, the work of dredging the channel to a uniform depth of thirty feet having been successfully accomplished at last.

The barkentine Skagit will finish unloading her cargo of lumber next Thursday. She will leave shortly after in ballast for Puget Sound.

The bark J. C. Glade will finish unloading her general cargo in about two weeks. She will then be placed on the berth for San Francisco.

The five-masted schooner Governor Ames will finish discharging 1500 tons of her coal at the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's wharf to-morrow, and she will be moved during the afternoon to the Oahu Railway and Land Company's wharf to discharge the balance of her cargo—1000 tons of coal. The new coal hoisting machine at the Railway wharf will be used for the first time to unload the Ames' coal. Its daily capacity is claimed to be about 500 tons, but as the cars are not yet ready for carting the coal away, it is expected the Ames will land only about 250 tons a day.

The steamer Kinau is due early this morning.

The bark S. C. Allen took to San Francisco yesterday, 10,947 bags of sugar, weighing 1,339,596 lbs., and valued at $35,597.88.

The schooner Aloha has been moved out into the stream.

The first trial of a steamboat with a screw propeller, the invention of John Fitch, occurred in New York in 1796, on Collect pond, situated where the Tombs Prison now stands.

The bark Mauna Ala was docked at the Fort street wharf yesterday to discharge coal.

"German Syrup"

The majority of well-read physicians now believe that Consumption is a germ disease. In other words, instead of being in the constitution itself it is caused by innumerable small creatures living in the lungs having no business there and eating them away as caterpillars do the leaves of trees.

A Germ Disease.

The phlegm that is coughed up is those parts of the lungs which have been gnawed off and destroyed. These little bacilli, as the germs are called, are too small to be seen with the naked eye, but they are very much alive just the same, and enter the body in our food, in the air we breathe, and through the pores of the skin. Thence they get into the blood and finally arrive at the lungs where they fasten and increase with frightful rapidity. Then German Syrup comes in, loosens them, kills them, expells them, heals the places they leave, and so nourish and soothe that, in a short time consumptives become germ-proof and well. ☞

THE ELECTION.

Cleveland Carries the City by a Small Majority.

The election to determine the most popular presidential candidate—Harrison or Cleveland—took place simultaneously with the election in the United States, only that the contest was of the counterfeit variety. From a Democratic standpoint, it was a howling success, but from a Republican point of view it was different.

The polls were opened in the morning at the Golden Rule Bazaar, but for some reason the voters did not come in squads with the result that the total vote was not up to expectation.

Everything was quiet around the ballot box during the day and not until the arrival of your friend William Eassie of Kauai did things liven up.

It is a noteworthy fact that whenever William strikes the town some event of a public nature happens and his present visit proves the rule.

Shortly after 5 o'clock, when the ballot box was opened and everything was in readiness for the count, Mr. Eassie was selected as teller. Every time the name of Harrison was called off he looked pleased, and vice versa when Cleveland's name was mentioned.

Finally the count was finished, when it was discovered that Cleveland had received 74 votes against Harrison's 66, so the champion of free trade was declared elected.

Weaver, the People's party candidate, received two votes, and with four rejected ballots the total vote proved to be 146.

When the result was known Mr. Eassie was the most disgusted person imaginable, and, as a reason for having that unpleasant feeling, informed a friend that in the morning he had made a ten dollar bet with himself on Harrison, but now he was like the man who swallowed a bank bill—he did not know whether he was ten dollars in or ten dollars out.

POLICE COURT.

A Number of Cases Disposed of Yesterday.

The examination of Daniel Logan, charged with criminal libel, was to take place yesterday morning in the Police Court, and when the case was called Mr. W. F. Frear appeared for the American Minister, and informed Judge Foster that the Minister did not authorize the prosecution and did not desire it to go on.

On motion of Deputy Attorney-General Wilder, the charge was dismissed.

Ah Un, a Chinaman, was fined $200 for having che fa tickets in possession.

The charge of affray against A. W. Howe and "Bert" Peterson was dismissed.

A native named Kana was fined $50 for assaulting a woman.

The examination of the Drs. Harrison went over until this morning.

The examination of E. Ellsworth Carey, charged with criminal libel, also went over until this morning.

THE NEW SIAMESE TWINS.

A Description of the Freak of Nature that Comes from India.

The new Siamese twins do not come from Siam. They are natives of Orissa, in India, and the following description was sent to the Pall Mall Budget by a correspondent who saw them in Poona. They are to appear at the Aquarium previous to filling their engagement at the World's Fair, Chicago. The names of the children are Radica and Doddica. The two girls are three and a half years old, and are really pretty children. The peculiarity of their connection is that there is a flexible bony attachment from breast to breast, and below this there is a visceral connection. There is only one navel. The children were born with a caul. If food is given to one the other is satisfied, and if medicine is given to one the other is affected, but not to the same extent as the one to which it was given. The most curious circumstance is that when a sentence is begun by one child the other frequently finishes it. When sleeping, one child lies on her back and the other on her side, which gives an idea of the great flexibilty of the connection. The children are very good friends, and seldom quarrel, but when younger their proceedings were not marked by that unanimity which they have since discovered to be essential to their circumstances. As might be expected, when their relations became strained there was considerable tension between them, but when it gradually dawned upon their infantile intelligences that when one was hurt the other had to cry out of pure sympathy, a mutual understanding was arrived at that "rows" should be discontinued, and now balmy peace reigns supreme. For their age, the twins are particularly intelligent. They have been taught English for the last three months, and although they do not speak more than a few simple words they seem to understand it fairly well already.—[Am. Ex.

SURRENDERED HIMSELF.

Mike O'Donnell Admits That He Stabbed the Native.

It will be remembered by readers of the ADVERTISER that two men named Walker and Corrie respectively were arrested one night last week for making an assault on a native in an alley in the rear of China Engine House.

The man's arm was badly cut in several places as a result of the affray.

At the time Walker was arrested and charged with an assault with a deadly weapon and Corrie was locked up for being an accessory.

The case against the two men has been postponed several times and finally came up yesterday morning in the Police Court, when it was discovered that the two men under arrest were innocent of any crime.

Mike O'Donnell, the third party who was present at the time of the cutting surrendered himself to Judge Foster, and admitted he was the guilty man.

The charges against Corrie and Walker were immediately dismissed, and as a request was made by the prosecution to inflict only a fine on O'Donnell, that individual was fined $100 and Court costs.

All three men are employed on the Australia.

THE PNEUMATIC TIRE.

Its Possibilities Are Only Beginning to be Appreciated.

The advantage of ball bearings and pneumatic tires have been recognized by manufacturers and riders of bicycles so long that the wonder is not that these friction-saving devices have been applied to track sulkies, but that they were not utilized on all varieties of light vehicles long ago. Wheels of the bicycle pattern can be made as strong as necessary. The pneumatic tire passes easily over the uneven surface of a roadway, helping itself over obstructions by its elasticity. It is better than springs for making a vehicle "ride easy."

It is estimated that the combination of ball-bearing and pneumatic tires added from two to three seconds in Nancy Hanks' speed by lessening the draft of her sulky. A gain of such a large per centage in lightness of draft will be appreciated by owners of good roadsters, and now that their attention has been called to it, the time cannot be far distant when they will want pneumatic tires and ball bearings on their buggies.

The pneumatic tire will not reach the farm wagon, for it cannot stand rough usage, but there would seem to be no reason why the ball bearing should not be applied to vehicles of that class. The change would work a great saving in horseflesh and in time, for it would make possible the hauling of heavier loads. With the march of these improvements will come better roads. This is the age of wheels, and the gentleman driver, the farmer and the bicyclist will soon be in league for improved highways in city and country alike.—[Minneapolis Tribune.

THE WHISTLER.

I know a lad of blithesome mood,
His age is three times three;
I cannot say he's always good,
Or yet from mischief free;
But let the day be cold or hot,
The sky be blue or gray;
If foul or fair it matters not,
He whistles at his play.

His darts the wily tempter flies
In daylight and in dark;
But when he e'er the whistler tries,
He's sure to miss his mark.
Of all the lads beneath the sun
I do believe today,
He hates the worst that jolly one
Who whistles at his play.

Then whistle on, my cheery chap,
In artless, honest pride,
For who can tell what dread mishap
Your tune may turn aside?
Each sturdy youth, I wish you joy,
The grave as well as gay;
But for my own give me the boy
Who whistles at his play.

Some say the world is growing cold,
No doubt because they're blue;
Some think because they're growing old,
The world is aging too.
But sure am I 'twill hold its own,
And warm and young 'twill stay
As long as cheery boys are grown
To whistle at their play.
—M. A. Maitland in Golden Days.

LITTLE JIM.

"I must take the child in, Sally," said Miss Bell, looking down upon a small creature that crouched upon the rug before the blazing fire of her little parlor grate—a boy nine years old, half naked, hatless, barefoot and wet to the skin, for the rain was pouring piteously without and the suburban cottage seemed about to float away upon a sea of mud and water. "I think I must let the child stay, and see what I can do for him."

"You're your own mistress, Miss Bell," said Sally, "but it's my bounden duty to demonstrate agin it. You're a single lady, Miss Bell, and I'm a widder. We aint no men folkses about and we ain't jest the kind to take in strangers of that class, seems to me."

"Such a baby, Sally!" said Miss Bell.

"It was one jest as small as he is, and a gal to boot, that took my black silk dress—one Mis' Widder Croker gimme when she went and married a second time," said Sally. "It was as good as new and I ripped the crape off it and trimmed it with red velvet, and I can say fur it, it was scrumptious! And a little gal came beggin, and I up and asked Mis' Croker fur to hire her, and she did, and fust we sent her for a narrand she off with the dress and my backcomb and two han'kerch'efs, and I dunno what all. I ain't never been charytable sense, nor I ain't never had a black silk gownd sense nuther, nor I don't expect to. If I let that boy stay till he was dried and give him a dinner, it's all I'd do, miss."

"I know," said Miss Bell, "it's what any one would say, Sally; but I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you a new black silk dress—pattern and lining and buttons and any trimming you like, and you can choose it for yourself at Mr. Potter's store—if you'll just take that child and bathe him and fix him up in some of the boys' clothes sister Martha sent me for the church poor. Yes, and Miss Muntle shall make it for you, Sally, and I'll pay her, if you'll only—well, not—not"——

"Not interfere, Miss Bell?" said Sally. "Well, I won't. I always have said that Miss Bell was the liberelest lady ever I lived with—and ever so much obleeged, mum." With that Sally seized upon the urchin, who had been found lying before the door face downward in the mud, and bore him to the bathroom, while Miss Bell sat before her fire and thought over a plan that had formed itself in her brain some time before.

She was sixty, she was a spinster, she had a nice little fortune of her own, and her married brothers and sisters had chosen to scatter themselves over the world, leaving her to herself for the most part of the time. They could provide for their children. Why should not she, standing on the threshold of old age, take to herself an adopted son? The big black eyes that had looked up at her had touched her heart. Once, long before, such eyes in a far older head had done that, for she had a love story, this elderly woman who had once been a pretty girl; and the tale the child had told had touched it also.

"Father lost at sea—mammy dead. No home—nothing to eat."

Very evidently nothing to wear, from another point of view than Flora McFlimsey's.

"It seems as if Providence had sent him to me," said Miss Bell, "and I think I shall adopt him."

When the boy came down, clean and bright in the well patched gray suit in which Sally had arrayed him, Miss Bell thought him very pretty. It did not occur to her, as it did to Sally, that he was rather rosy for a child that had been starving for three days, and that his appetite was no more ravenous than that of any healthy boy of his age. In fact, Miss Bell was delighted, and after dinner, when she had had a talk with him and sat watching him as he pored over a great picture book—no one had taught him to read yet—felt, as she expressed it to herself, "quite like a mother." Yes, after she had had the child about her for a week or so, and made sure that she was not mistaken, Miss Bell resolved that she would legally adopt him and make her will in his favor. He should go to school. She would see that he was properly brought up, and her friends might say what they pleased. She should have a son in her old age, and would have accomplished a good deal besides.

Even Sally began to look upon little Jim with less disfavor before three days were past, and when she had really bought her black silk with all that was needful, and had it fitted by Miss Bell's own dressmaker, she softened to the unconscious cause of this favor, and made him special turnovers, and even allowed him to pop corn on her kitchen range on Saturday evening after teaching him how to do it.

"A child does liven up a house, miss," she said on Sunday evening; "and we seemed quite a family in the church pew, somehow another."

On Monday Jim was to go to school in the brand new clothes which had come home Saturday night. There was quite a flutter in the small household. A tiny blue necktie graced Miss Bell's work basket. Sally "did up" several small collars with great care, and it was a proof that she had changed her mind in regard to the boy, that when Miss Bell said meditatively:

"Sally, I mean to give James the small silver watch I had at school myself. But perhaps I'd better keep it until he has made some improvement and call it a reward of merit."

The handmaiden replied, "Well, just as you think best, of course, miss; but if he wears a watch first off it will show he is somebody, and he'll be tret better."

So Jim wore the watch in the pocket of his new suit, and before he went upon his way was kissed and counseled as tenderly as though he really had a mother.

"It made him cry, miss," said Sally. "I saw the tears in his eyes, and I'll own up that I was mistook in him."

The two women watched him out of sight as he went down the street, but when school hours were past they waited in vain for his return. Night fell, and he was still among the missing.

The school to which he had been sent was kept by an old friend of Miss Bell. To her house, when 8 o'clock struck without bringing the truant home, Miss Bell, full of anxiety, made her way, and to her inquiry received a most unpleasant answer.

"He never came, my dear. The watch and the new clothes have been too great a temptation. It never does to take children like that to your bosom, Evelina. I wanted to tell you that. But when you wish to do a thing, you will; I know you of old."

Then Miss Bell went back to her home, which seemed more lonely than it had ever been before, and said to Sally Simpkins:

"Just please don't talk about it, Sally. All that can be said has been said by Maria Pascall."

Two days passed away. Still there was no news of Jim. Miss Bell expected none. All through her life she had been used by her family as a dreadful example of what came of trusting tales of woe and being benevolent to unworthy objects, and this was her crowning performance.

"No matter," she said to herself. "No matter; it is a lesson that will last my life. I deserved it."

The third day, however, a slow stepping policeman sauntered up the doorsteps and pulled the bell.

"The ash barrel again, I suppose, Sally," Miss Bell said. "No doubt the authorities want it set just inside the parlor door at exactly 5 o'clock in the morning. I don't know what other change they could make. They've done everything else with it."

But it was not the ash barrel that was in question this time.

What the policeman said was this:

"Morning, ma'am. Do you know a little chap named Jim? He says you do. He says you've been good to him—gave him a watch and lots of clothes. He's got rid of them if you have. In fact, he says he lives here. No doubt it's all a lie."

"No, no!" cried Miss Bell. "It is true. I—I took him in. I intended to adopt him. I—oh! perhaps I haven't been deceived in him, after all. Tell me quick."

"If you kindly step over to the station in —— street, you'll hear all about it," said the officer. "At once, please."

It took Miss Bell only a few moments to get ready, and as quickly as the little cab that Sally called could carry her she was at the police station, and in a few moments Jim, looking very small indeed among the large policemen, stood before her—Jim, more ragged than before, and shoeless again, but quite undaunted, his eyes blazing, his fists clinched tight and hard, though his head was bandaged and his face bruised and very pale.

"There she is!" he cried. "There's the lady! She'll tell you how good she was to me. Nobody never was good before. I had clothes, swell clothes; she gave 'em to me; and I had a watch; she gave it to me; and she kissed me, she did; and I love her, I do, like she was my mammy. Don't believe I've gone back on you, miss; don't believe it. I wouldn't."

A change swept over Miss Bell's face as he spoke. It grew soft and warm and kindly again.

"I know you wouldn't, child," said she. "No, indeed you wouldn't! I thought you had, but now I know better." And in her prim poplin and all her tidy, Quakerlike belongings, she stooped and kissed poor ragged Jim very tenderly.

"Madam," said the grave elderly gentleman at the desk, "this boy tells a very curious story. You may tell it again, Jim."

"Yes, sir," said Jim. "When you took me in that day, lady, I was put there by Tom Gillie. I lived along of him. It was true about mammy and daddy, but I lived along of Tom, and he put me there so you would take me in, and I'd open the door and let them get in at night and take your money. They said you kept a great deal in the house."

"Well, I haven't any trust in banks," said Miss Bell apologetically.

"I didn't want to do it," Jim went on, "but I thought I had to if Tom Gillie said to do it. But when you was so good to me, and gave me clothes and a watch and all, and said I was to be your little boy, why, I loved you. I wouldn't have done it for nothin, and I prayed to God, like you told me, and thought I'd be took care of. I never had a good word spoke to me before. Seemed like I'd got to heaven, and I meant to tell you some day, but I didn't want to yet, and I went off to school jest as happy. But before I got there I met Tom Gillie. He was watching the house. 'Oho!' says he, 'quite a swell. All the better. Tonight you must open the kitchen door. They go to bed early, of course, At 1 o'clock—you've got a watch to tell time by now—you let us in.' 'No,' says I, 'not then—not ever. I've been treated good by the lady and I'll not go back on her, nor the other one, the servant; she's good, too. And God won't let you get me back, for the lady said he'd take care of me if I prayed at night.'

"Then Tom grabbed me and pulled me into a dark alley and hit me. When I came to I was in some of my old clothes again. I was on a bed and Tom and Bill was talking about how they'd break into your kitchen. Bill would pretend he was the gasman and so get in and take the cellar door off its hinges jest before dark. So I got up and began to go down stairs jest as easy, and Tom saw me and gave me another clip on the head and pitched me out of the door. I came to in the hospital, and jest as soon as I could think I told the doctor, and he brought me here to swear to it all. Oh, dear, good lady, you will be robbed and maybe murdered if you don't believe me! Tom killed a woman once—I've heard him tell of it."

"Tom will not have a chance this time," said the gentleman at the desk. "I have no doubt that the boy's story is a true one, and if the burglars come to your house, Miss Bell, they will have a warm reception."

"And my little boy? You will give him back to me?" said Miss Bell. "He has been with bad people; but you can see there is good in him, and I shall do just as I intended if I may have him."

"At present we will take him back to the hospital, madam," said a young man who had hitherto remained silent. "He has been very badly hurt indeed, and needs our care. But if—I mean when he recovers, I have no doubt"——

"Miss Bell holds the position of his guardian," said the grave gentleman at the desk.

Miss Bell once more kissed the little fellow, who smiled at her fondly.

"I'm just as glad as can be," he said, "and I'll be good—so good, dear lady, when I'm your little boy again!" And then the surgeon took him by the hand and led him away.

That night the policemen were hidden in the cellar of Miss Bell's pretty house, and when Bill and Tom arrived, instead of sneaking up stairs to rob a little old lady and murder her if she objected to it, they walked into the arms of four of the "finest," and were dragged away to meet their just reward.

But as for Jim. When good Miss Bell trotted up the hospital steps next day, and smilingly asked if she might see "her little boy," they told her tearfully that in the night he had lifted his head from his pillow and said to his nurse:

"Kiss the dear good lady and tell her goodby. The woman in white says I must go where the music is. Hark! It's a hymn"——

There was no woman in white that the nurse could see, nor did she hear any music; but before she could reach the child's side he had dropped back upon the pillow—dead.—Mary Kyle Dallas in Fireside Companion.

Agreed with Her.

Wife—I know I do foolish things sometimes, and you do, too, you'll admit, won't you, dear?

Husband—Yes, I know you do.—Yankee Blade.

OYSTERS AND SEEDS
Are valuable for what's in 'em. Good and bad oysters look alike in the shell. Good and bad seeds often have the same appearance. Any one can tell a worthless oyster on opening it. The value of a seed must be determined by its growth. This makes its quality worth considering. You want seeds that will grow, and you want the product to be of value. There is but one guarantee; the reliability of the firm from which you buy.
