"HAWAII AT WASHINGTON."

Rev. O. P. Emerson Speaks on That Subject Last Evening.

OPEN MEETING OF AMERICAN LEAGUE

An Interesting Account of the Struggles the Government Had to Get Its Case Before the President and the People of the United States.

The rooms of the American League were fairly well filled last evening at the open meeting held by that organization.

A short secret session was held, and then the doors were thrown open to the public.

It was expected that there would be three addresses made, but the Rev. O. P. Emerson was the only speaker who made an appearance.

He spoke on "Hawaii at Washington," and his address was listened to with a great deal of attention, and was frequently interrupted by applause.

Mr. Emerson spoke as follows:

I was much impressed the other evening by the words of a friend. We were talking over the experiences of the Hawaiians who were recently at Washington, during the days of the discussion of the late Hawaiian revolution. I spoke of the eagerness of the public to hear what we had to say; how papers and platforms were open to us; how Senators and Congressmen were willing to hear what we had to say; how everybody who knew anything about Hawaii and who was interested in her welfare began to be importuned to talk and write and even lecture. I was a little curious to know what my friend would say. I was interested to find out the color of his thought, for he had been a prominent figure in the events that had transpired. It was no less a personage than the President of the Provisional Government, and he made this strikingly characteristic remark: "It was an opportunity."

That is my text this evening: our opportunity; an opportunity of doing one's country a service; an opportunity of making coming generations our debtors; an opportunity it is for the putting away of grievous ills; of healing sore rents and bad bruises; of cheering up the hearts of a distressed people, and of making a fair State out of here in which it shall be a pleasure to live and a credit to hail from; a State, it may be, that shall some day shine as a bright star in the American constellation.

We have all had latterly an opportunity to do brave deeds. We have hewn out a State in the rough; now there is a call for some fine chiseling. I wish we might come to the full consciousness of the fact. We have opened an interesting episode in Hawaiian history. We have now to round it out and complete it. The hardest work is yet before us.

Perhaps I cannot better make my point and bring out what I have it in my heart to say than by putting the situation as we saw it who had been studying it with such intensity of interest in the United States and from an American standpoint.

We came to realize that those anxious, perplexing and even painful days which we were spending over there, while you were here face to face with the enemy, were an opportunity. We did not at first know what to do. We feared that we could do nothing; but our anxiety was so deep that we could not remain passive. We felt compelled to attempt something.

The case seemed almost hopeless. The tide was against us. What could we do to affect public sentiment? The great American people who, when they get waked up, always insist on fair play, did not know the facts. Most of the people did not, at first, care for them. They were willing, then, to leave the matter in Cleveland's hands, and, for a time, he had it all his own way. Even Congress was slow in taking in the issue. The press was non-committal or basely subservient to the Administration.

An exception must be made in the case of two great newspaper men. I refer to Whitelaw Reid, of the New York Tribune, and to Mr. Dana, of the New York Sun. They were creators of public opinion, and were, from the first, alive to the situation. The religious press mostly stood off; and let us be called a pack of buccaners. Clergymen and editors whom I knew to have been heartily in sympathy with the work of the missionary fathers of these Islands began to look askance, as if the sons of these missionary fathers had proved themselves an unworthy lot.

The heroism of the situation did not at first dawn upon the minds of the American people, although it did later. They did not know the facts. Most compromising questions were put to us by our friends. We finally had to speak out, for, as the wife of a Washington clergyman put it, our professional reputation was at stake.

The general intimation was that we had been doing some bad work out here of which we ought to be ashamed.

From his exalted position at the head of the nation, Cleveland thought he saw an opportunity, and he posed as a preacher of righteousness. He would make us out to be culprits. He stood up in his congressional pulpit on message day and told the representatives of the nation, as they gathered about him, that the missionary party in Hawaii had sold themselves to the evil one. He solemnly declared that a great wrong had been done which required righting. He took his texts from Blount's report. That report was as Scripture in his eyes, for Blount had done what he told him to do.

Blount had given us a black eye. The blow dazed us at first; but when we came really to feel it, and to perceive what had happened, we naturally wanted to hit back—and we did finally. We had to. It was our opportunity; but it took us some little time to get our courage up to the right pitch. Indeed our friends had at first to do a little urging. They judged that our manhood required that we try and hit back.

I remember well the retort which was turned on me when Blount's testimony began to come out. I would declare to my friends that I knew certain representations of his to be false.

"If you know them to be such," they would say, "then why do you not tell the public the facts of the case?" To make ourselves right with our friends, if for nothing more, we had to speak. And yet that was the least of it. It was not a personal matter. There was a greater compulsion upon us than that of self-vindication. We felt the peril Hawaii was in. The danger of the situation made its strong appeal. We felt that something must be done. We had come to the pass where every able-bodied person should be drafted.

We saw the enemy making a stealthy advance upon you, and we feared lest you should be caught off guard; and so we began to talk openly and to write. There were many who were deeply stirred to do this. What one said gave another courage to state what he knew, and before long there were scores of people who were at work for the cause in one way or another.

word with him. A family of good old-fashioned Democrats who had a profound respect for Cleveland and who were influential at court put us up to this. They armed us with letters of introduction to numerous Congressmen mostly democratic. They also included letters of introduction to members of the Cabinet. We had one letter to the Secretary of State and from no less a personage than the Governor of the State of Massachusetts. By their advice we had determined to work on administration lines. But we had undertaken a larger contract than we could carry through, and we had to throw it up.

I remember the mild scorn there was on the professor's face when I showed him my letters. He knew that the thing had already been tried and that it could not be done. Nobody at the White House cared for any more testimony. Blount's report was scripture enough for them.

It is probable that there was not in Cleveland's mind from the first a purpose to make a dispassionate inquiry into the facts of the case. Doubtless he had been prejudiced by certain literary men, and they in turn had been unduly influenced against us. There was also the political capital which Cleveland hoped to make. I sat in the gallery of the Senate and heard Senator Hoar bring his searching charge of bad faith and of usurpation of power against the President. The inference was that Mr. Blount was sent to make out a case. There was indecent haste in the whole performance. Cleveland must have acted without consulting any state papers. Coming into the White House on Monday, his commissioner was started off on Tuesday, the next day, and evidently with a partisan political purpose. The Secretary of State was favorable to this, for he too had a grudge to pay off to the administration which had just passed out. An intimate friend of Fresham's told me that this was understood to be the case. That the action of the President was not approved by many of his own party was a well-known fact. I was told so by more than one influential Democrat. Political enmity and partisan jealousy were at the root of the ills which Hawaii has suffered at the hands of the Cleveland administration.

This subservience of statesmanship to political scheming which was so noticeable at Washington was one of the hopeless features of the case, and both Republicans as well as Democrats were guilty of it.

The fight which was carried on in Congress was one in which the Hawaiian question came in too much as an incident. The actual Hawaiian question was very soon dropped, as Senator Morgan himself told me not later than December. Said he to me, just after I had appeared before the Commission: "The question is now an American one. As to the queen's restoration, it is a dead issue." The fight was really between the two administrations. Stephens was the scapegoat of one side and Blount of the other. Though the attempt to get the car of the Administration proved a failure, other powers were approached, other ways of influence were tried. Senators and Congressmen were approached, with just what result no one can tell. I noticed that most of my friends of the Democratic party with whom I had labored voted generally the wrong way.

Nevertheless we did get a certain satisfaction from the public, and the voice of the people will doubtless in the end control Congress and end the career of a submissive, cuckoo House. Hawaii has noble friends at Washington. The Maine Senators rallied to the defense of Stephens, and those of the Pacific slope took up the fight in their own interest and ours.

It would be invidious to single out names friendly to Hawaii, but that of Senator Morgan easily heads the list. It may not be inappropriate for me to say that we felt Hawaii had honored itself in its legation at Washington. Minister Thurston had a walking dictionary, an encyclopaedia, at his right and a nimble diplomat at his left, and so equipped he was more than a match for those who had to meet. I cannot refrain from saying that we felt that the presence of such a character as Professor Alexander at Washington was an argument in its favor.

But it was not our activity, but yours, which turned the tide. The coolness and bravery you showed under fire saved the day.

We had no opportunity over there to say a word. But we had a good text, and you were our text. We had but to point to you and say, gentlemen, you see what they are doing, to carry the day. You had your opportunity and you met it well. The fearlessness with which you met Cleveland's demand, and the faith you showed in making your appeal to Congress and the American people, put you at once in the advantage. The boldness of your statesmanship, your patience in adverse circumstances, above all your sublime confidence in the righteousness of your cause was most winsome. It so came about that the President of the Provisional Government was more often coupled with honor on the lips of the American people than that of their own chief executive.

That prayer which was offered on that trying day at the opening of the session of your Council did much to make men feel that God was on our side.

There was the pathos of the situation which when they knew it touched the hearts of the American people profoundly when the news came of how you had refused to surrender to an iniquitous demand, even when apparently menaced by force. When the people read the story of those sand bags, then you gave us the clinching argument of our speech; and then it was easy to persuade men and move their hearts. It was the opportunity of a lifetime to have a word then.

When we could tell them that the women were ready, if need be, to take up arms and fight, when I heard that old men, with dim sight and unsteady aim, were ready to step into the breach if need be, then American gets to draw the fire, then American were willing to own that it meant something.

Those days of intense feeling, of anxious watching and patient standing on your guard; those days when you held on through your powers were danger—days when you proved to be taxed to their utmost, for by days of their moment abroad, for by what you did in them you carried the hearts of the American people with you. They were rebuked in their selfishness. They felt that it was a revival of the spirit of 1688 and of 1775. The change in public sentiment was most marked. Hawaii was transfigured before the eyes of all. She had been presented to the public by the picture which the tourist had drawn of the charm of her skies and the grandeur and beauty of her scenery, but in the representation which had been made of her people hardly had there been entered any lines that denoted superior character. Suddenly a new light was thrown upon that sensuous face which had been drawn to represent Hawaiian manhood, and by that new light the face was seen to be transfigured and all aglow with the flush of a strongly developed character.

It was seen that there was a people living on these shores whose blood had iron in it—a people who could respond, when challenged, to the call of the spirits of the bravest, who in the world's great days have rallied at the call of liberty.

And now opportunity is still before us. It is that of making a State. Another, it may be, of the great States of the great Union of which we would be a part.

This has been historic ground—here has been won one of the greatest fights the Christian Church has waged against heathenism. It may be that we are now on the eve of making history for the annals of civil government.

These are formative days. Under our hands a State will grow up. Let us but do well our part and our names shall be placed on the roll of honor. Few men have given them the opportunity which is given us—that of laying the foundations of a State.

Now, if we are to achieve this rare distinction and build strongly and well for the future, then we will have to follow the policy of the past. Not long ago your hearts were welded together by one common feeling of sympathy in the presence of danger. You must still keep in sympathy with each other. All petty differences must be sunk out of sight. We are called on to be patient and forbearing, and kind and generous in our treatment of each other. We shall have to do this now at this time of peace, for the dangers of peace are sometimes greater than the dangers of war. The eyes of the world are upon us to see what we will do with our opportunity—to see if we hold together or fall apart. It is worth our while, gentlemen, to meet the event with much forbearance, and to compel it at the cost of great personal sacrifice.

J. O. Emerson also made a few remarks about the influence of the old Hawaiian chiefs on their people.

Next Friday evening Professor Alexander will address the League on his own experiences in Washington.

Quaint old customs still survive in many parts of London. In Ely Place, Holborn, a watchman cries the hours nightly with the same formula in use for centuries past: "Past 1 o'clock and a cold, wet morning."

The two highest inhabited spots on earth are Arevichary and Muscapata, mining camps in the Andes. The former has an elevation of 17,950 feet.

HAWAII.

Mr. Wellesley A. Parker, whose success throughout the world in art matters, is well known has been specially employed to superintend the pictorial department of this work. Of the Crisp process, which is to be used, the following extract from a well known paper speaks well for it.

The Albany, N. Y. Evening Journal says:

New Printing Process.—People unacquainted with the wonderful strides that have been made in Australia in printing, and the general depicting of nature in its most beautiful moods, have little idea of the complimentary and deserving success that Messrs. F. W. Niven and Co. of Ballarat, Australia have attained in their new "Crisp Photo" Process. We have been shown by Mr. Wellesley Parker, who is visiting us, samples of this new firm's beautiful process. The book that has lately run into three editions, of 5000 each, of "Syracuse Illustrated" is beyond compare the most exquisite series of views ever appearing in the direction of printing. Episodes of the old days, and scenes of the beauties of the gardens of the city, are scattered throughout, interested with pictures of well-known citizens, that for fidelity rival any photograph that is at present produced. Every credit is due to Australia, who has taken the lead in this innovation.

Interspersed through the book will be pages devoted to the establishments of leading wholesale and retail merchants. Not only will the exteriors of the buildings be shown, but the interiors, will come out with great fidelity, showing every branch of the business in actual working order, thus giving to many a glimpse behind the scenes of the various details involved in producing the articles that they purchase in the showroom or at the counter. The first issue of "The Hawaiian Revolution" is to be 5000.

The principal industries and business establishments will be visited by Mr. Parker, who is now in this city, on behalf of the Publishers, and arrangements made by which the actual details of the various branches of the businesses will be represented pictorially. In addition, it is the desire of the Publishers to add to the completeness of the work by prevailing upon the citizens who have handsome residences or grounds, to arrange with Mr. Parker for their appearance in its pages.

MAP OF THE ELECTION DISTRICTS AND PRECINCTS OF HONOLULU.

(Drawn from the official map by an ADVERTISER artist.)

The above map of the election districts of the city, taken from the official Government map, will be found a great convenience to any one wishing to ascertain the district and precinct in which he lives. The large figures represent districts and the small figures precincts. The heavy lines are district boundaries and the light lines precinct boundaries.

WANT A HOLIDAY PROCLAIMED.

The June Races Depend on the Action of the Government.

The Jockey Club held a meeting last evening at the Pacific Club. All the old officers were elected with the exception of the Secretary. W. M. Gifford was chosen for the office in place of C. O. Berger, who resigned. The question of whether or not a meeting would be held on the 11th of June was brought up, and it was decided to hold one, provided the Government would make a holiday of the day mentioned. In speaking of the matter last night a member of the club said: "A majority of the club is in favor of having races in June, and for the present the matter will rest until we learn if the Government will make the 11th a holiday. We have appointed a committee to fix up a programme, and we are certain that a number of good races can be arranged for."

"I see no reason why the Government cannot see its way clear to make the day a holiday, as it has no connection with the house of Kalakaua. If they do so I am sure a majority of the people will appreciate it, and then we will have some races; otherwise no meeting will be held."

THE JUDGE AT WAIANAË.

He Will Have to Take the Oath or He Cannot be Inspector.

Kupau, the native District Judge of Waianae, has been appointed one of the inspectors of election of that district. There has been some question of the loyalty of Kupau, and Attorney-General Smith was asked last evening what would be the action in case he refused to take the oath.

"Kupau took the oath of loyalty to the Provisional Government some time ago," said he, "and to the best of my knowledge he is a supporter of the Government. In the event, however, of his refusing to take the oath necessary for all inspectors, of course he would not be allowed to serve in that capacity. I explained this fully to the gentlemen who called on me yesterday in relation to this very matter."

A CURIOUS DOCUMENT.

A Crank Sends a Letter to King Kalakaua.

The Government is constantly receiving curious letters from all parts of the world. One of these lately came from an Austrian who has invented a safe deposit for keys to trunks, safes, etc. The letter is magnificently spread out on paper of the foolscap size, and is directed to Kalakaua, King of Oahu, Australia. It sets forth at great length the devotion which the writer in common with all Austrians, felt for the king, on account of his graciousness to them.

The author of this curious document is evidently insane.

Union Party of the Hawaiian Islands

For the promotion of the best interests of the people of all the Hawaiian Islands and for the organization of a party having only this object in view, the following is adopted as a declaration of the principles upon which the organization to be known as the "American Union Party" is to be established, and upon this platform we invite the co-operation of every friend of good government.

1st. REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT—The American Union Party is unalterably opposed to any form of monarchical government in the Hawaiian Islands, and declares its full allegiance to the Provisional Government, endorsing the proposal for a constitutional convention looking to the extension of popular representation in the Government.

2d. POLITICAL UNION—We declare our leading principles to be the accomplishment of a political Union with the United States of America and the maintenance of a stable and honest Government.

3d. PUBLIC LANDS—We favor such legislation as will promote the occupancy of all public lands, including those heretofore known as "crown lands," by small holders, and foster the development of varied industries, believing it to be of vital importance that "many acres" should be for "many men."

4th. CITIZENS' RIGHTS—We declare that all citizens are equal before the law, and we are opposed to monopolies or privileged classes, favoring participation in the Government by every loyal citizen and declare for a liberal suffrage law that will, first of all, guarantee a vote to every man who rendered satisfactory service in the military or police departments of the Provisional Government.

5th. IMMIGRATION—The evils of Asiatic immigration are so apparent that we declare in favor of its prohibition by positive and prudent methods, declaring in favor of such American, Portuguese or other European immigration as shall supply the necessary labor and furnish the country with permanent settlers.

6th. PUBLIC WORKS—We favor the immediate establishment of a comprehensive system of public improvements that shall be of permanent value to the country and afford needed employment to the laboring classes, but we declare against importation of labor and material of any kind whatsoever for use on public works which can be obtained in the home market, and materials which must be obtained from abroad should be obtained through local dealers in open competition.

7th. PUBLIC OFFICES—We hold that no person should occupy any position of trust or profit under the Government who is not loyal to the same.

8th. PRISON LABOR—We oppose the employment of prison labor in any mechanical pursuits.

9th. TAX SYSTEM—We favor a revision of the tax system whereby all property, improved and unimproved, shall be taxed on an equitable basis.

10th. LABOR—We declare that in the Constitution and in legislation thereafter the rights of the wage earner should be fully considered.

11th. EDUCATION—We favor the enlargement of the scope of the free-school system to the end that a university course may be available to the youth of this country.

12th. TELEGRAPHIC LINES—We favor the establishment of an inter-island as well as a foreign cable system.

H. N. CASTLE, : : : EDITOR.
TUESDAY, : : : APRIL 3, 1894.

The man who thinks that Japanese laborers will not displace whites and natives on the wharves is not an "entertaining theorist," or a theorist at all, but a leading employer of dock labor.

There is no doubt that a systematic effort is being made in various quarters to prevent not only the natives but Portuguese and others from registering, as they are naturally disposed to do. The probability that there will be nothing exciting in the coming contest will also tend to make the vote a light one.

THUS FAR AND NO FARTHER.

The attitude of the whites in these islands toward the natives should be that of the good farmer toward his little boy on the Fourth of July. "My son," he said, "you may singe your hair with powder, tear off your toes climbing trees, fill your stomach with green apples, play with the heels of the mule; you can have plenty of liberty. But I draw the line at matches, and lighting them in the barn. Liberty stops just there, even if it is Fourth of July."

The whites will give the natives power to do everything but burn down the barn. The deposed Queen struck matches and set fire to it. The pumps were quickly worked, and she and the fire were put out. Perhaps the Star proposes to furnish matches and tell the natives how to fire up the barn. Perhaps it intends to stop their liberty altogether. Is it about to keep step to the music furnished by the Bulletin, or will it prefer to identify "the people" with the American League?

STILL DECEIVED.

Evidence accumulates that the natives continue to be grossly misinformed regarding the relations of the United States to the deposed Queen. No sensible white person in the States believes in restoration, and Congress will take no action for that purpose. But positive statements to the effect that Mr. Cleveland will make the restoration continue to be sent directly from Washington to people here. These statements are deliberately false. Those who believe in them fail to give any authority for them. We believe that Moreno is the mischief-maker. He is probably under the pay of the royalists, and will receive pay as long as he keeps up their courage by leading them astray. From what we know of his character, he would, without hesitation, report that he was in daily private interviews with Mr. Cleveland, and that his information was based on these interviews. Nothing but the affirmative act of Congress will assure the natives of the correct situation. Mr. Willis, kindly disposed as he may be towards us, cannot do it. Mr. Cleveland cannot do it. Congress alone can, because the matter is in its hands. There is no better illustration of the power of an insignificant mischief-maker than the case of Moreno persistently lying to the natives, and preventing them from acknowledging allegiance to the new Government.

NOT CONTRADICTIONARY.

The Star is still indisposed to admit the folly of its attempts to drag the ADVERTISER into the net in which its own feet are entangled, and it wants to be asked something harder. It will be time enough to ask our contemporary something hard when it has learned to answer something hard. The attempt to make it appear that the expressed views of this journal are self-contradictory is utterly futile, and we do not propose to impose upon the public any further discussion of the subject. The ADVERTISER has declared for a full and fair representation of the natives, but it holds that such a representation does not entitle them to political control. These views may or may not be correct, but to pretend that they are self-contradictory is absurd. As for the pretended quotation, "the ballot will be thrown open to the natives without even the restriction of a property or income qualification," we are not aware that it is to be found in our editorial columns. Instead of charging the Star with an impudent misquotation, we simply desire to be informed when the words in question appeared.

The question, however, whether a newspaper has contradicted itself is of minor importance. Consistency is said to be the virtue of little minds. This remark is not intended as a reflection on the Star, whose extraordinary revolutions of opinion upon this very subject of the franchise acquit it of all suspicion of the petty virtue. What we are more interested in learning is the attitude of those, who, like the Star, seem to regard fair and just representation as equivalent to universal suffrage without property or educational qualification. Does the Star favor giving this "just" representation to the Hawaiians, or does it advocate that limitation of the vote which from its point of view is injustice?

As to the position of the ADVERTISER on this head, there need be no secret. We hold that loyal natives should have the suffrage upon the same terms as whites. We believe that for an upper house or for a part of a single house elected upon a differential franchise, an educational or property qualification or both, should be adopted which will exclude the ignorant, the irresponsible and the unfree, from political control.

Edison's Kinetoscope.

Sandow, the strong man, and Edison, the inventor, had an interesting meeting in Menlo Park, N. J., recently. The latter has practically completed his new invention, the kinetoscope, and wished to test the instrument with Sandow as a subject. The main principle of the kinetoscope consists in the taking of a great number of impressions by a camera in a limited space of time, thus obtaining a continuous photograph of the entire motion of the object or person. Forty-six pictures are taken in one second. Sandow showed his eight movements for the distention of the muscles and Edison worked the kinetoscope. The result was a complete series of plates showing every movement of the giant during the twenty seconds of operating. The pictures are but an inch square, although the inventor says he shall be able to take pictures of a larger size soon. After the experiments Edison and Sandow were photographed together.—Exchange.

Imitating Stamps.

Uncle Sam's postage stamps are not counterfeited. The business would not pay. A few years ago there was a big dealer in New York who manufactured imitations of foreign stamps on a large scale. He sold millions of them, advertising enormously, and even going so far as to invent a certain foreign stamp, in order that it might be sold as a great rarity. But the law against obtaining money on false pretenses has been applied to the suppression of that sort of swindle.—Ex.

Farmers along the Cornish coast are using sea sand as bedding for cattle in place of straw, which the late drought has rendered so expensive.

Printers may lament the loss of a historical relic of their craft. Gutenberg's house, at Mayence, has just been burnt down.

The unemployed in New South Wales are being sent to the out-of-the-way districts of the colony to "fossick" for gold.

HAMAKUA NOTES.

HONOKAA, March 28.—The Hamakua port blockade is not raised but continues. The sea has been so very rough that no steamer is able to land or take on anything except during an hour or two at times when the storm abates.

The Waialeale left Hilo Monday morning and was here by 10 a. m., but only succeeded in landing the mail—even that with great risk of having the boat smashed. Tuesday she succeeded in landing part of her freight and the remaining freight was landed on Wednesday and some sugar taken in.

The Honokaa plantation has obtained about ten Portuguese laborers, picked from homestead families.

While our neighboring districts are stirred up with local politics, Hamakua is remaining quiet. The next term of the Circuit Court will be held here in July.

A successful winter Alpine ascent has been made by a young Englishman. Accompanied by two guides, Mr. S. Spencer scaled the Dom, near Zermatt, for the first time in mid-winter. The peak is 14,940 feet in height, and commands one of the grandest views in the Alps.

REGISTRATION NOTICE.

The Board of Registration sits every day from 10 to 2, and Tuesday and Saturday evenings from 6 to 8.

All desiring to vote for Delegates to the Constitutional Convention must register. Do not fail to do so, and make it your personal business to see that your neighbor is also registered.

The Jones Locked Fence is the cheapest and strongest fence ever constructed. We make this assertion because the letters we have received from parties using it on these Islands endorse everything we have ever said about it. We believe that in another year every plantation and ranch on the Islands will be enclosed by the Jones Locked Fence. You will understand that we do not sell the fence made up, only the material; wire, stays and washers for making it. This means that if you have a poorly built fence of the old style you can make it as strong as you please by bracing it with stays fastened to the wires by washers. For a five wire fence each stay with five washers will cost you eight cents. You can tell from this just what it will cost you to strengthen your fence and keep it from sagging. Send us an order for a hundred stays and five hundred washers and surprise yourself.

A plantation manager on Hawaii sends us a bullock cart comparatively new which he asks us to dispose of for him as he has no further use for it. The bed is three feet high five feet six and one half inches wide and eleven feet long. The cart cost $150 and is as good for service as a new one. It may be seen in our warehouse or we will describe it more in detail to any one writing for particulars.

Mr. Conant of Waimea, Kauai says our Hendry Breaker is the best plow that ever turned the sod. What Mr. Conant says is repeated by every one who ever used a Breaker from our stock. As this is the plowing season now is the time to subscribe—no increase in rates.

REPORT OF THE EXAMINING COMMITTEE.

OFFICE OF THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, February 2, 1894. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of this Company, held on the 27th of December last, the undersigned were appointed a Committee to examine the annual statement for the year ending December 31, 1893, and to verify the same by comparison with the assets of the Company.

The Committee have carefully performed the duty assigned to them, and hereby certify that the statement is in all particulars correct, and that the assets specified therein are in possession of the Company.

In making this certificate the Committee bear testimony to the high character of the investments of the Company and express their approval of the system, order, and accuracy with which the accounts and vouchers have been kept, and the business in general transacted.

AS TO THE SUNDAY CONCERTS.

One Correspondent for and One Against Them.

Dr. C. M. Hyde Discusses the Subject of Sabbath Concerts—He Thinks They Would be a Desecration of the Day and Incongruous With Its Design.

MR. EDITOR:—I think that the playing of the band on Sunday is a measure towards reform in the condition and welfare of many people of Honolulu. On this day there are hundreds of people around town doing nothing, and trying to get recreation as well as rest.

All people do not desire to attend church, nor do they care for reading. Walking on the hills is burdensome, and riding in carriages a luxury to be afforded by few. There remains, then, but little to interest men and families in moderate circumstances, and to take them out of the never-ending routine of life, the monotony of which is what wears people out—physically and mentally.

I believe that it would be a boon to the laboring classes of Honolulu to be able to sit down and listen to good music on Sunday afternoon.

CITIZEN.

MR. EDITOR: The proposition to devote Sunday afternoon to open-air musical performances by our brass band is a measure that ought to be discussed on its merits. It is of very little significance in the right decision of the question that those who take outside are stigmatized as bigots and narrow-minded, and those on the other side as lax and irreligious. Right and reason should determine the stand we take, not personal prejudices or preferences.

Our view of the Sabbath as being essentially a religious institution, or as merely a legal holiday, will influence largely the view we take of what is desirable or allowable in the observance of the Sabbath. If the day is of divine appointment for a specific purpose, dependent upon divine authority for its sanction, then the aim and object of the designation of our weekly Sabbath will indicate and control the spirit and method of its observance. If our weekly Sabbath be of merely human origin, one of the many inventions of superstition or of state-craft, then popular sentiment or desire may be expected to give tone and style to Sunday amusements and Sunday revelry.

But the fact is that no other satisfactory and sufficient account for the observance of our weekly Sabbath can be found than that which is given in our Sacred Scriptures. The week is not connected with any natural phenomena. It has no foundation in the phases of the moon, the circuit of the sun, or the movements of a star. It is a period of time, not fixed by any astronomical laws, but by some authoritative appointment above and beyond nature. It is a witness to no physical phenomenal regularity of succession. It is a sign and seal of a supreme spiritual authority, and a demand for our loyal allegiance in hearty obedience, trust and reverence.

That all men do not acknowledge such demand, and yield such obedience is no proof that such authority does not exist, any more than the long lists of delinquent tax payers prove that the Provisional Government does not exercise paramount authority in this community. Our week is a combination of days, entirely distinct from all other periods that mark duration of time. Months and years will go on independent of human action. But if any community does not observe the week, it ceases to exist, so far as that community is concerned, as one of its established institutions. If all communities should observe it, some supreme authority must be recognized in its establishment and maintenance.

Only one such Supreme Authority is recognized—in the observance of the Christian Sabbath. It stands at the boundary of our week of seven days, marking off the first day of the week, to be kept as a religious observance, a pledge and memorial of loyalty to the Creator of the world, the divine Redeemer of mankind. It is a sign and seal of God's prerogative in the disposition of our time, independent of nature, independent of science. This peculiar septenary division of our time is traceable solely to the divine institution of a day of sacred rest, appointed also as a memorial day by the divine Founder of Christianity, who redeemed us from sin and Satan by his triumph over death and the grave. Whoever recognizes the Christian Sabbath thereby virtually recognizes the divinity of its Author, and the duty of loyalty to His commands.

In this nineteenth century of Christian life and progress, one may as well deny that the sun is the source of the light of day as deny the paramount influence of the gospel of Christ in establishing and moulding the institutions of civilized society as it exists today. The community in which we live is distinctively Christian in its institutions. The facts and principles given us in the gospel, guide, if they do not control, the customs and laws of the community. No anti-Christian sentiments would be tolerated for one moment, as the acknowledged fundamental principles of our social intercourse and relations.

If these premises are undeniably true, and correctly stated, then the logical and practical influence is that legislation and usage must be concordant with the aim and object of the institutions established by the divine founder of Christianity. The divine Sabbath, the first day of the week, is one of these institutions of which we are so proud. Will the aim and object of its divine founder be best served by secularizing the Sabbath, by sacredly religious worship, as a public religious community? Will it be best served by a brass band and other authority of the institution of the Sabbath, or are we to come for the design and matter with the HYDE.

THE BALLOON IN BATTLE.

How It Is Managed and Information Transmitted and Received.

Balloon and wagon have formed a junction and are ready to start with the troops. Away goes the wagon, with the attendant sappers on each side keep it steady. The train moves along at a good round pace, easily keeping up with or even passing the infantry, and makes for the particular spot at which it has been determined to commence balloon operations, which is usually on the top of a good high hill.

An ascent is an easy enough matter and is soon accomplished. The balloon is securely fixed to the end of the wire rope, and the two men who are to ascend take their places. At the word of command the men who have been holding down the car let go, and up shoots the balloon, unwinding the rope as it rises and allowed sometimes to ascend to a height of 1,000 feet. And suppose the officer receives instructions to move the position of the balloon, is it necessary to haul it down? Not a bit of it. A man is placed at the end of the wagon who carefully guides the connecting rope so that it cannot get entangled or run risk of being cut, and away goes the wagon, sometimes at a trot across fields and up and down hill, until the balloon itself is a long distance away from its original station. Next, suppose that it is necessary to lower the balloon. Is it needful to wind in all the wire rope that has been paid out from the reels? No such thing. The balloon is brought to earth in a much more expeditious manner.

A long, stout pole, in the middle of which is a pulley wheel, is laid across the rope. Half a dozen men seize the pole and run it along the rope, and their weight soon brings the balloon down to the ground. Passengers can then be exchanged, or any other operation can be carried on, and then the men run the pole back, and up shoots the balloon again many hundreds of feet into the air, without having been away from its exalted position more than a few minutes.

But it is not necessary to lower the balloon in this or any other way whenever it is required that messages should be exchanged between those below and those above. There are various contrivances for doing this. Sometimes, for instance, a wire is attached, through which messages can be sent to a telephone. Another plan is to send messages down the wire cable. A little wire hook is fastened around the cable, and the letter or paper, weighted with a small sandbag, is sent fluttering down. The human voice, it may also be added, can be heard both from a considerable height and depth, so that verbal communication is not difficult if there is no wind.—Good Words.

Sensitive Horses.

Harsh treatment, though it stop short of inflicting physical pain, keeps a nervous horse in a state of misery. On the other hand, it is perfectly true, as a besotted but intelligent stable keeper once observed to me, "A kind word for a horse is as good sometimes as a feed of oats."

A single blow may be enough to spoil a racer. Daniel Lambert, founder of the Lambert branch of the Morgan family, was thought as a 3-year-old to be the fastest trotting stallion of his day. He was a very handsome, stylish, intelligent horse, and also extremely sensitive.

His driver, Dan Mace, though one of the best reinsmen in America, once made the mistake, through ill temper or bad judgment, of giving Daniel Lambert a severe cut with the whip, and that single blow put an end to his usefulness as a trotter. He became wild and ungovernable in harness and remained so for the rest of his life.

In dealing with a horse more than with most animals one ought to exercise patience, care and above all the power of sympathy, so as to know if possible the real motive of his doing or refusing to do this or that. To acquire such knowledge and to act upon it when required is a large part of the ethics of horse-keeping.—Youth's Companion.

Abrogating the Fees.

Mrs. Pigg, a very charming and vivacious widow, called recently on a legal friend of hers to consult him on a matter of interest to her.

"You know, sir," she said to him, "that when the late Mr. Pigg died he left me all his fortune, much to my satisfaction, of course, but he handicapped me with the name of Pigg, which I must say I don't like."

"Well," ventured the attorney, "I presume a handsome woman isn't especially complimented by being left a Pigg."

"I should say not," she laughed. "Now, what I came to see you about was whether or not I must apply to the legislature to get it changed."

"Um—er," he hesitated as if wrestling with a great legal problem, "um—er—yes, but an easier way is to apply to a parson, and I'll pay all the expenses myself."

It was sudden, but a widow is never caught napping, and she appointed that evening for another consultation.—Detroit Free Press.

Royal German Dinners.

A characteristic of all dinners given to the court and military officials by the emperor and empress of Germany is that there is always provided a dish of sweetmeats, which holds as well pictures of the royal pair and their children, each bonbon having a likeness painted upon it. And when the hosts retire there is something approaching a scramble among the dignified officers and functionaries for one of these much valued souvenirs to take home to equally eager wives and daughters.—New York Times.

Mrs. Jackson Parke—What in the world is keeping you up so late?

Mr. Jackson Parke—I am writing an article for the papers on "How I Killed My First Hog." These literary chaps, with their stories of how they wrote their first books, are not going to have the field all to themselves, not by a jugful.—Indianapolis Journal.

A NEW MOTIVE POWER.

Dr. Williams Thinks Compressed Air Will Supersede Steam.

Milwaukee is the home of the latest discoverer of a new motive power, and his name is T. W. Williams. He is a practicing physician of 25 years' standing in the community and is said to be a man of wealth who makes a pastime of experiments in the field of mechanical discovery. His fortune is the result of shrewd real-estate investments, and his friends consider him a level-headed business man. He is something of a literary man as well, having written a novel that was measurably successful and owning to the authorship of "poetry that would give him high rank among western singers if he would permit its publication."

Unlike Keely, Dr. Williams does not claim to have discovered a new force, but simply to have devised a new method of construction whereby the ordinary waste of potential energy is avoided. His invention is a new application of pneumatics. He discards the old form of engine, with its cumbersome boiler, furnace and water tank. In their place he has "a small steel cylinder about 6 inches in diameter and 6 feet long, charged with compressed air." Steam could be used, but as compressed air never loses its elasticity and is independent of heat and cold it is preferable, the small quantity required rendering its use practical and economical.

In the new motor a radical departure has been made from the old principle of construction. The cylinder, piston and crank of the old engine are done away with, and the power is applied directly to the shaft in a manner that secures ten times the power from a given unit of energy utilized. The engine is described as a mechanical paradox. There are a number of wheels revolving in different directions, wheels within wheels, and wheels revolving round other wheels, and changing the position of their axles every instant, yet all producing motion in one direction.

The seeming paradox is said to be accomplished by a peculiar co-ordinate movement discovered and patented by the inventor. It is from the study of this heretofore unconsidered movement that the invention has been developed. Dr. Williams is so certain that he has solved the problem of a better kind of energy that he says, "The days of steam as a motive power are numbered."

A COLOSSAL FAILURE.

Steele Mackaye's Spectatorium and Its Unfortunate Fate.

Thousands of visitors to the Columbian exposition had their attention attracted by a huge unfinished structure at the north end of the grounds which made an unsightly background for the beautiful state and foreign buildings clustered there together. It was of such a gigantic size that hardly any one dreamed it could MACKAYE'S UNFINISHED SPECTATORIUM. have been planned by private enterprise, and many people supposed it to be one of the exposition buildings that, for some occult reason, had been left unfinished. In reality it was a monument to one of the most colossal failures in the world's history.

It was the late Steele Mackaye's Spectatorium, projected as the largest and grandest auditorium the western world had ever seen, second in size only to the old Roman Coliseum. In this vast structure Mackaye proposed to present an allegory of the discovery of America by Columbus on a scale of magnificence never before attempted. More actors and a greater chorus than had ever before participated in any stage performance were to be employed. The modern stage was to be revolutionized and the glories of old Greek and Roman histrionism surpassed.

Mackaye was enthusiastic. He believed in his scheme and made others believe in it also, among them some of Chicago's most conservative capitalists. The project was capitalized at $2,000,000, and first mortgage bonds to the extent of $800,000 were issued. Work was begun under the most favorable auspices, and plenty of money seemed to be assured. Up to the day when work upon the building was abandoned $850,000 had been sunk in the enterprise. The structure was sold for old junk for the miserable sum of $2,250.

The work of removing the great skeleton will take many months, for it requires as much skill to take the heavy steel beams apart as it did to put them together. When it finally disappears, its memory will loom up in the minds of thousands like a spectral monument to one of the most hopeful and erratic geniuses that ever struggled against the limitations of the actual in the heroic endeavor to materialize rose hued visions.

Another of the G. O. M.'s Accomplishments. Mr. Gladstone claims to be able to pack more books in a given space than any man he knows. He had 20,000 books in his library three years ago. He has given most of them away, chiefly to the general library at Hawarden church.

Spain's One Woman Lawyer. Manuela y Palido of Madrid is the only woman lawyer in Spain. She is a remarkably handsome young woman and probably does not lack for clients.

BY AUTHORITY

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL, HONOLULU, April 2, 1894.

There appearing to be some misunderstanding as to the effect of the oath required of voters for delegates to the Constitutional Convention, it has been deemed advisable that an authoritative statement on the subject be made.

The following is a correct statement of the intention of the law:

The word "oppose" in the form of the oath relates to the duties of those taking it, as voters and as delegates; the former binding themselves in voting for delegates to vote only for such persons as are opposed to a re-establishment of the monarchy; and the latter as members of the Convention binding themselves to work in the Convention against the introduction of any provision in the new constitution tending to a re-establishment of the Monarchy.

The word "resist" was in the first draft of the oath and was stricken out as possibly misleading.

National Cane Shredder

PATENTED UNDER THE LAWS OF THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

The attention of Planters and Agents is called to the following letter from Mr. JOHN A. SCOTT, Manager of the Hilo Sugar Co., regarding the working of the National Cane Shredder, which he has just introduced into the Mill of that Company:

WAINAKU, HILO, HAWAII, January 22d, 1894. HON. WM. G. IRWIN, HONOLULU, H. I.

DEAR SIR:—In reply to yours of the 16th inst. regarding the National Cane Shredder furnished by the Universal Mill Co. of New York, and erected by the Hilo Sugar Co. this past season, I would beg to say, that it has now been in operation day and night during the past three weeks working on plant cane, and also hard ratoons, and it is giving me the greatest satisfaction. The more I see of its capabilities, the better pleased I am that I put it in, as I am satisfied that it will repay the original outlay in a short time, in saving of labor, higher extraction, etc.

It is shredding from 350 to 400 tons of cane every 22 hours with the greatest ease, and it could shred a much larger quantity if necessary. It delivers the shredded cane in an even uniform feed to the three roller mill, which receives it without the intervention of any labor, and as the cane is thoroughly shredded or disintegrated it relieves the mill of a great deal of strain, thus reducing the liability of broken shafts, gearing, etc.

There is a saving of four (4) men daily on the mill, as only one man is required to regulate the amount of cane delivered by the carrier to the shredder. It has increased the extraction from 4 to 5 per cent.

The economical use of steam is generally a serious consideration in adding new machinery, as in most mills the boiler power is taxed to its highest limit, as it was in this mill, and any increased demand necessitated an additional boiler. But I find that the shredder and the three roller mill engines combined use no more steam than the three roller mill engine did when working on whole cane, while doing better work and more of it, and owing to the uniform feed on the mill, the engine demands very little attention.

The Messrs from the shredded cane makes superior fuel, and the firemen have less difficulty in maintaining a uniform pressure of steam than formerly.

I will be pleased to have a call from parties interested, as it is necessary to see the machine at work to fully appreciate its capabilities.

I remain, very truly yours, (Sig.) JOHN A. SCOTT, Manager Hilo Sugar Co.

Plans for erection of these shredders may be seen at the office of the Agents, where prices and other particulars may also be obtained.

WHARF AND WAVE. DIAMOND HEAD, April 2, 10 P. M.—Weather cloudy; wind light, east.

The Victoria Daily Colonist says: "Through the Arawa was chartered for six months only, it is not unlikely that her engagement will be extended, as the Miowera's repairs and alterations cannot possibly be effected in the three months remaining of the charter time, and it is to be expected that the Warri-moo also will be subjected to the same alterations when her sister ship takes up the old service. It is possible, however, that a faster boat than the Arawa may be secured. Mail advices received confirm the report that the Canadian-Australian line have ordered the construction of a third steamer, to run 17 1/2 knots and be specially adapted for the inter-colonial trade.

The Sydney Herald of late date says: The navy estimates have been increased by £3,000,000, as part of a five years' programme for increasing the strength and efficiency of the navy. The estimates make provision for 7000 additional seamen. Seven new warships are to be built on the lines of H. M. S. Majestic, having a speed of eighteen knots. Six new cruisers of the type of H. M. S. Talbot are to be constructed, with a speed of nineteen knots, and there are to be two new sloops-of-war in addition to those already being built.

The Golden Shore and Lyman D. Foster arrived from Newcastle yesterday, coal-laden. The Golden Shore brought 1143 tons and the Foster brought 1243 tons. The voyages of both vessels were uneventful.

F. H. Miller attempted to leave town on the Arawa without a passport. He was brought back in the pilot's boat by Officer Paterson.

Five island steamers will depart during the afternoon. The Mikahala will take passengers for Nawiliwili only.

Samuel Widdifield left on the ship Helen Brewer. When "Sam" returns here he will be a full-fledged sailor.

The Occidental docked at the mail wharf yesterday. She will commence discharging her cargo of coal today.

The Lyman D. Foster brought

160 iron bark piles for the new wharves to be built along the front.

The Allen A was almost loaded last night, and it is very probable that she will leave for the Coast today.

The Aloha took in sugar from the Iwalani. She will depart for San Francisco the latter part of the week.

The Nantippe did not get away on Saturday. She will depart today for British Columbia.

The Geneva took the Pele's sugar yesterday. Her captain expects to get away tomorrow.

The W. H. Dimond is moored at the Oceanic wharf, awaiting her turn to load sugar.

The Robert Lewers will bring fifty large mules for J. N. Wright.

The O. M. Kellogg is at the Kin-nau wharf taking in sugar.

The Alice Cooke is discharging at Brewer's wharf.

The Hawaii is on the marine railway.

HOW TO CATCH WHALES.

Great Danger Is Attached to the Present System.

Regular whale-boats are twenty-eight to twenty-nine feet long, with a cut in the bow through which the line passes, and in the stern a post over which the line may be checked if it is running out too fast. The officer sits in the stern, from where the line, which is coiled in a tub, is managed. The oars are called "leading," "tub," "mid-ships," "bow," and "harpooner."

When the whale is struck the harpooner shifts with the officer. This explains why he is often called the boat-steerer. The critical moment has arrived. The whale once fast, the future is narrowed down to "dead whale or stove boat." Therefore, the killing of the whale is in the hands of the officer. He must judge nicely, though on the spur of the moment, when to lay on or off, and meet all the emergencies caused by the unforeseen actions of the wounded leviathan.

Sometimes the whale will rush through the water, drawing the boat after him at lightning speed, and almost tearing the loggerhead out of the stern, the while the line is taut as a fiddle-string. Or he may "sound," or dive, and fathom after fathom of line be rapidly paid out. Woe to him who gets foul of the smoking line! It often means loss of leg or arm, or even instant death; for the diving weight of tons at the other end tells before the knives can be whipped out and the line cut. And here will the whale come up? Perhaps right under the boat, staving it or raising it up with him and spilling all hands into the sea, where they will sink like so many stones unless they know how to swim or unless another boat is at hand to pick them up. He may appear a little to one side, and in his convulsions shiver the boat with one lash of tail, or splinter it between his jaws.

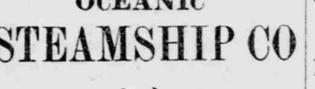

In the old days the whale was killed with a lance in the hands of the officer. It required eye and nerve for the fatal thrust at the rolling, plunging monster. Now, however, they use the bomb-lance, which is shot from a heavy brass gun and explodes within the whale, usually with fatal effect.—Ex.

Organized Labor.

The wandering of the Miowera in quest of repairs affords a brilliant object lesson on the benefits of organization in labor. The vessel was taken to San Francisco to have her plates put right. But the rules of the societies there were hostile to any absurd idea of hurrying up, and the ironworkers had trade objections to working at night—like the fishermen in Bass Straits, who would not humor the whims of the fish that, like any other bloated capitalist, indulged their own selfishness roaming about in the darkness. So the vessel was ordered to be taken away, and the workers were left to their comfortable nap. Sydney was next thought of as a place to have the patches put in; but, on second thoughts it occurred, it seems, that kindred difficulties might arise. So it was resolved to fix up her rudder and send the vessel further afield. But then the mending of the rudder! Difficulties of the same kind confronted even that little enterprise, and the steamer was taken away to British Columbia to have her rudder put right, and now she is on her long and circuitous route of some twenty thousand miles or so around Cape Horn to Newcastle-on-Tyne in England to have repairs made that could easily have been effected in the Pacific. It is a triumph of the power of organization in labor, and one which it is well to be proud of. But, in lucid moments, the query must sometime obtrude itself—can this really be a benefit to the workers?—Sydney Herald.
