PRINCE DAVID TAKES THE THIRD DEGREE

Interesting Ceremonial and Banquet of Lodge Le Progres of Hawaii Masons.

SPEECH AND SONG AT THE TEMPLE

Craftsmen Thronged the Rooms and Made Merry Last Night.

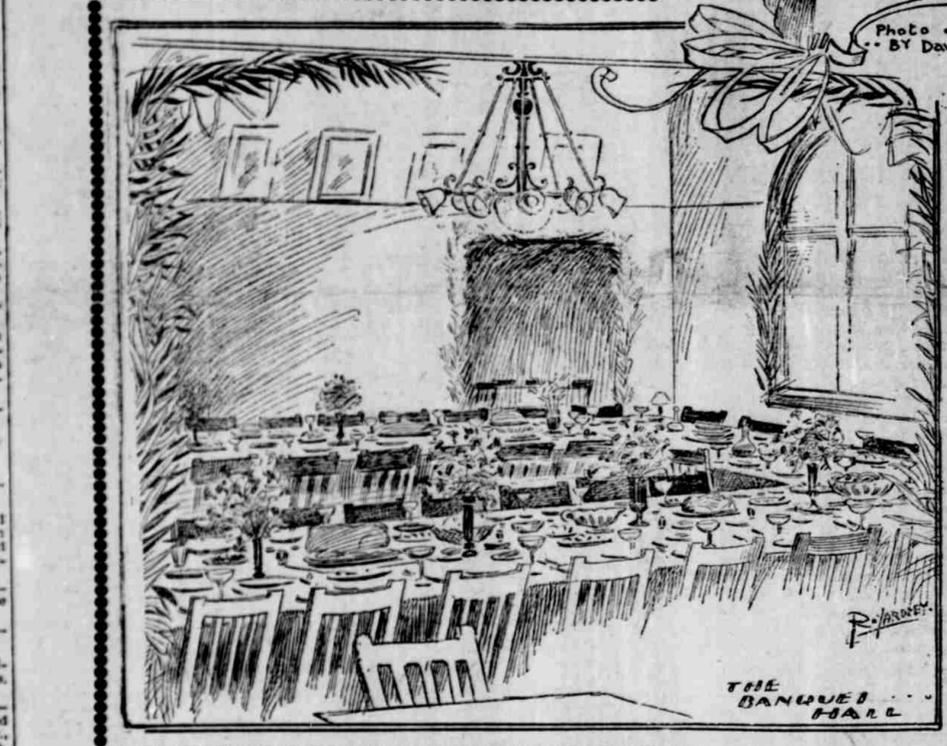

In the halls of Lodge Le Progres of the Masonic order last night the members of the lodge and over a hundred visitors celebrated the raising of Prince David to the third degree of Masonry. The conferring of the degree occupied over two hours and was witnessed by many distinguished guests besides the members. After the secret ceremonial

Mr. Neumann responded in kind and Mr. White at his command responded to the toast to the lodge. In well-chosen words he characterized the members of the Lodge Le Progres as genial fellows who loved their brothers. He expressed the hope that in time they would have a Grand Lodge in Hawaii and under their own vine and fig tree manage their own affairs. "The Sister Grand Lodge" was responded to by Judge M. M. Estee. He said that all knew Brother Neumann and few knew him. He came among them a Masonic brotherhood. He had been taken by the hand and made to know that he was at home. He toasted the Worshipful Master, Clarence M. White, who, he said, had been to him more than a brother. Prince David was toasted with a hearty cheer. His health was drunk as "The Youngest Free Mason of the Evening."

the banquet tables were spread in the outer chambers. A corps of servitors superintended by Chef Jaeger of Lycurgus' establishment looked after the diners and Chef Lambert of the Hawaiian hotel lent his aid also. Eight tables gleamed with silver and crystal and the art of the cuisine was shown to rare perfection. A pair of kids, symbolic of the rites, graced the main table while a mammoth salmon trout brought specially from the Columbia river adorned a center piece. A sucking pig in the center was flanked by two great lobsters all served au naturel. Seldom has such an epicurean feast been seen in Honolulu. The Masons in their lambkins and gay regalia added to the color of the scene. These were the guests of Lodge Le Progres at the initiation and the banquet: George W. Burgess, J. C. Paterson, J. A. stranger until he got into the lodge room. He was from California, a country that he visited Hawaii largely with her luxuries and some of her nuisances. He thought Hawaii should have her own Grand Lodge. Twice he had been Grand Master in California and knew the ground. A local Grand Lodge would strengthen their authority and give them growth. There were just as good Masons here as in California. Here there was no fault but lack of confidence in self and unity of action. He had seen on landing that there were factions. There should be no missionary party or anti-missionary party. We should be American and by and by we should be a State in the Union and then could run ourselves. He said that he wanted no trouble and would borrow anything but that. He was glad the law against leaving in debt had been stricken out, so that he might leave. Though, in all seriousness, Judge Estee said he never wanted to leave Hawaii. We made more money than any other like number of people in the world. We should be proud of our lot. Masonry typified the Republic. It was a teacher among men. It did away with class distinctions and taught respect for country and for God. No man could be a good Mason who did not believe and live up to his belief. "We have made a distinguished citizen of the United States a master Mason tonight," he concluded. "He will be a better citizen for being elevated as he has been." Speaking to the toast, "Masters and the Past Masters," Judge Silliman said he was reminded of a saying of Chaucer's M. Depew, who had once remarked that it took six weeks to prepare an extempore speech properly. A Southern Judge once was trying his brother who was charged with stealing butter, proposed the following syllogism: Butter is Greece. Greece is a foreign territory and foreign territory is without my jurisdiction. "In the same vein," said Judge Silliman, "speech-making is beyond my jurisdiction. When I think of Judge Estee's speech I am glad to resign it to the Federal Bench." Toastmaster Neumann called for a toast to "Our Visiting Brethren." He said it was one that brought forward friends from abroad. All drank the toast standing. Brother Flower responded. He, too, pleaded that he had had no preparation. He had been a Mason a decade and appreciated well the honor conferred on him. Away from his home many miles he felt the brotherly love that was extended to him. Only six months in the Islands, he had been more than ever convinced of the world-wide breadth of the

and the Prince thanked them in a few eloquent words. He said he was not an orator. He was limited as a speaker, but his heart was with them. Words could not express his feelings. A Mason now, he could but say that he would always endeavor to uphold the principles of the great order. It was not denied that Prince David was a jolly good fellow, and in song the Masons made known his excellent qualities. A toast to "The Press" was drunk by all and W. R. Farrington said the Press was in the hands of its friends, Masonry and the Press should go hand in hand. Where was there less apparent unity and brotherly love than in the Press. The story was old in the sanctum sanctorum of the editor who swore he would throw dirt on the grave of his opponent. But the editor, old in the harness, gave orders that his remains be cremated. The Press greeted them kindly at birth; at marriage the Press spoke well of the esteemed couple; it followed all to the grave and there it treated all according to the available space. "Our Sister Lodges" was done full justice to by Judge Stanley, who said he felt in Judge Silliman's predicament when he rose to speak. He had had short notice but still the occasion impelled him to say that the scene was inspiring enough to make any one eloquent. It was a pleasure to speak to such a toast. It filled members of other lodges not so much with envy as with emulation. He was reminded of the eulogistic words of a Maryland Mason who said mystery surrounded them from the start but it was a pity they could not go out and proselytize. The noblest cornerstone of Masonry was the word "God" and the noblest duty inculcated, "love of brother." Attorney General Dole replied to the toast, "Our Country." He said: "We are all Hawaiian born and all American born. It is our country. Hawaii came into the Union as a part of our country. Over 100 years ago there was a dark-skinned man, a great man, in these Islands, who, measured by the European or American standpoint, was a great man in men of any nation. He was the man who consolidated the great Hawaiian nation. He was the great Kamehameha, the founder of the Hawaiian Islands as a whole. And since his rule began, for 100 years there has been less bloodshed in Hawaii than in any other part of the world. For 100 years life and property have been safe in these Islands. For fifty-eight years there has been constitutional government here. For fifty-seven years there have been constitutional guarantees of liberty to American lives. For the last 100 years there have been great jurists, great lawyers, great doctors, numbers of great men in this fair land of ours. ("What about Judges?" queried some one, laughingly.) Hawaii in coming into the Union has come in prepared for the benefits of the Union. More than forty years ago, in the early times of California the people of California looked to the Hawaiian Islands for many of the benefits they had. They sent their boys and girls down here for civilization. People in the United States don't generally know about the civilization in these Islands. The American civilization in these Islands is older than anywhere in the United States. West of the Rocky Mountains. (Applause.) A CRIMINAL LIBEL SUIT

Attorney Kinney Sues E. S. Gill.

EDITOR OF REPUBLICAN

Lawyer Alleges Injury on Account of a Publication in That Journal.

The climax of the controversy amongst the lawyers growing out of the Bar Association dinner of last Friday evening, came yesterday in a criminal libel suit begun against Edwin S. Gill, Editor of the "Honolulu Republican," W. A. Kinney is the complainant. The penal summons was served on Mr. Gill yesterday afternoon at his office by Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth. The complaint alleges that Mr. Gill is guilty of libel in the first degree in that the newspaper in question made a publication which tends to injure the complainant's reputation and good name and to bring him into contempt, disgrace, odium and ridicule, by circulating the alleged libel by making it known to others. The complaint in full reads as follows:

William A. Kinney, being duly sworn says, that Edwin S. Gill, residing in Honolulu, Island of Oahu, Territory of Hawaii, within the jurisdiction of this court, on to wit: Sunday, August 12, 1900, at Honolulu and within the jurisdiction of this court, was and is guilty of the offense of publishing a libel in the first degree, of and concerning said W. A. Kinney, in that said "Honolulu Republican," a newspaper of general circulation in said Honolulu, a writing or print, which directly tended to injure the fame, reputation or good name of said W. A. Kinney and to bring him into disgrace, odium, contempt and ridicule, and maliciously put said libel into circulation, and promulgated, exhibited and distributed it for the purpose of making it known to others and thereby in fact did make it known to others and aided and assisted in promulgating, exhibiting and distributing it. Said libel being in the words following, to wit:

Then is appended the front page article which appeared in the Republican of Sunday, August 12, the headlines reading, "Insult to Judges Had Been Pre-Arranged."

(Signed) W. A. KINNEY. Subscribed and sworn to before me this 14th day of August, 1900. W. L. WILCOX, District Magistrate of Honolulu.

Edwin S. Gill is commanded to appear before Judge Wilcox on Thursday, August 16th, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., then and there to answer the charge of libel in the first degree made against him. The day after the article appeared Mr. Kinney sent a letter to the Republican in which he demanded a retraction of the statement that a number of his cases had been stricken from the court calendar. In Tuesday's Republican there was an editorial apologizing for the statement. In Tuesday's Advertiser Mr. Kinney had a signed letter in which he asked an investigation of the charges in the Republican that there was in Honolulu a "ring of lawyers who dictated to the courts here in the past." Judge Humphreys requested the Grand Jury to pay no attention to signed statements in the newspapers, and less than six hours thereafter the criminal libel suit was filed.

Following is the letter from Mr. Kinney to the Republican demanding a retraction:

Honolulu, August 13, 1900. E. S. Gill, Esq., Editor Honolulu Republican. Dear Sir—In the issue of the Republican of Sunday, August 12, there appears the statement:

"Some of the old cases that Mr. Kinney was interested in, and which had been stricken off the calendar for years, were carried off. No valid reason was presented to the Court why the attorney should not be ready for trial, and there was no reason for the cases not being stricken off the calendar."

The statement is false. Please retract it at once, and with the same publicity with which it was made.

W. A. KINNEY.

DIPLOMAT WU

Chinese Minister Wary Interviewer.

The Washington Representative Talks of the Cuisine of His Country.

If ever Minister Wu, who is one of the ablest diplomats China has sent to the United States, should wish to leave the field of diplomacy there would be many lines of effort open to such a versatile man, but if he could be induced to enter the world of journalism he could justly be rated as the most adept interviewer of the century. He invariably turns the tables on the enterprising young men and women who are fortunate in obtaining an audience with him for the purpose of getting his views on some specific subject. With Oriental wariness he is chary about granting such interviews, but, once obtained, and the conversation started, he can ask more questions, pertinent, and sometimes to the American female mind impertinent, than any man of any nationality who has ever held so important a post in this country.

To say that Minister Wu has an inquiring mind is to express feebly the range of subjects upon which he will request and obtain information from those with whom he comes in contact. His questions are subtle, keen, often astounding and frequently humorous, for the Chinese Minister possesses in a marked degree that heaven-given gift, a sense of humor. Then, too, they are asked in perfect English, with scarcely a trace of accent, and with a somewhat peculiar selection of words to fit the thought and an unconscious interlarding of American slang, which is highly diverting.

Minister Wu has been greatly in demand of late as a public speaker, and has made the address at the graduating exercises of several institutions in various parts of the country this season. Where the graduates are young women, he is always especially interested to find out what disposition they are going to make of the knowledge they have acquired, and never rests until he has minutely interrogated each one as to her plans, personal and public. So engaging is his way of doing this that many a sweet girl graduate has confided to this wily diplomat the youthful hopes and aspirations that are fermenting beneath the dainty lace and ribbons of her graduation gown.

It is difficult for the Minister to pin himself down to one subject, so quickly does his intelligence travel from one thing to another. Therefore, when a reporter went to see him yesterday to obtain some information on the subject of foods and cookery, she came away with the knowledge that she had told the great Wu everything that she had ever known, and much that she had never thought of before, just to keep up the American woman's reputation for always being able to answer a question. In exchange she was filled with the Minister's views on a variety of subjects, all the way from the shocking custom of wearing long gowns on the street to the possibility of a woman ever occupying the Presidential chair. The Chinese legation is a house located in the most beautiful part of Washington, the interior of which would delight the soul of every woman who loves artistic effects. The rooms are dressed for summer now, and, no matter what the outside temperature might be, just to enter the great rooms, with their inlaid wood floors, refreshing green tints of paper and hangings, curious screens and heavy draperies, would make one's own temperature fall several degrees. In no other house in this country are seen such specimens of the cunning handwork of the Orientals. The contents of each room represent centuries of skilled labor and indefatigable purpose. The embroideries on pillows and divan covers are magnificent in their art. Into the great drawing room comes Minister Wu, whose personal appearance is very striking. He is a tall man, broad in proportion, with a most intelligent face and magnificent teeth, which are frequently seen to advantage in an attractive smile. His eye lights up instantly at any little joke on the part either of his visitor or of himself. His manners are cordial, and he shakes hands with an earnestness that savors more of the English custom than the more flippant American style. When questioned as to how Chinese cookery compared with American cookery in healthfulness and taste, the Minister said: "I think the manner in which Americans have their food prepared, and especially the way in which they eat their meats, is perhaps more unhealthful than in China, but when it comes to a question of which tastes best, there we have you. We would not be content to eat, for instance, a leg of mutton simply boiled. With it we would have cooked some vegetable which would impart its flavor to the meat, and have the whole dish highly seasoned and garnished with cucumbers or something of that sort. So with all of our meats. We would not care for them cooked alone, as you enjoy them. That is, we would not like such a preparation as a constant thing. We want variety. We like plenty of oil and good things mixed with our heavy dishes. "Personally, I enjoy American cookery very well, and an especially fond of certain of your dishes, but if I had to make a choice of one or the other method and forever after abide by it, I should select the Chinese mode, just because of that very variety of condiments which to me is a lack in your cooking. The French method of cookery is more like the Chinese than any other, and our cooks have learned many cunning recipes from French chefs employed in great houses in China.

"I remember years ago, when a French chef was a novelty in China, a very celebrated one was imported by one of our great men. One of his kitchen help was who quickly caught on to the Frenchman's tricks. In a short time he was exceedingly proficient and knew as much of French cooking as did the Frenchman, and could combine with it his knowledge of how best it could be applied to meet the highest Chinese taste. Now that Chinese boy is a much looked up to man in his line. He employs many assistants whom he has taught, and who find employment as cooks in large establishments. He personally goes about from one house to another, giving the final touch to special dishes which are to be served.

"The diet differs in different parts of China, naturally. More oil, for instance, will be used in preparing food in one part than in another. Certain dishes great favorites with the people of one locality will be unknown in another, but wherever one goes in China there is much variety in the preparation of whatever products of meat, vegetables or fruit are obtainable. Of course, the poorest people use rice a great deal, it taking the place of bread in this country, but with it they have quantities of fish, both salt and river fish, of which my countrymen are exceedingly fond. Then they have pork, and twice a month always special feasts, at which chicken and other things not so regularly eaten are served. These feasts occur even with the very poorest classes, and at such times special drinks are prepared. The poor drink an excellent white wine made from rice, which is considered most healthful. The standard Chinese dish for the poor is therefore rice, and the standard drink for the poor is made from rice, but the standard is subject to many variations.

"In the matter of fruit, for instance, we are away ahead of your country. We have all of your fruits, and many additional kinds. There was a time when strawberries were not common, but now they grow very well, and in quantities. "We have fruit in its perfection, and a variety known as Lai Chee, which is more delicious than any other that I ever tasted, and of which you know nothing unless you've traveled in China. You can get with good food by his master, and does not have to provide in that way for himself out of his own earnings. He eats in his master's house, and of his master's food, which is served to him in great abundance. If he has a family he looks after them out of his earnings. "The Chinese are not a nation given to drinking especially, but a little rice or other wine is served every evening, it being considered a proper and needed stimulant and a means of bettering the condition of the laborer, so that he gives increased service. "When asked if there were any dietary laws connected with the Confucian religion, particularly in relation to meats and their manner of cooking, Minister Wu replied: "Yes, Confucius did make such laws, but, like certain laws along the same line in all countries and all religions, they have become obsolete, and except in rare instances are not thought of or observed. "The Minister pooch-pooched the idea that tiny young mice dipped in honey were considered delicacies, and laughed away the suggestion that rodents were used as articles of food, saying that he never heard of such a thing. Replying to an inquiry as to the choicest and daintiest dishes that can be served at a rich man's table in China, he at once replied: "Bird's nest soup and shark fins. You cannot imagine anything more delicious than shark's fins. They are cooked in a certain manner with oil, and so prepared as to make a most palatable dish, and are always included in the menu of a specially fashionable dinner.

"You ask if Chinese women are fond sweets? Certainly, and so are Chinese men. We are a sweets-loving nation and no meal seems complete without some sweetmeat. The women have the candy habit, just as the women of this country, and, while they are not personal customers of candy shops, as are American women, they are probably as profitable patrons, for they are constantly sending their servants to buy whatever may be their favorite sweetmeat. Our women are not the purveyors for the homes, as in this country—they do not go to market or make out the list of what is to be used. The servants do that, but if there is some particular dish either master or mistress fancies having at a certain time, the order is given and the dish appears without fail. In short, it seems to me that, summed up, while your mode of cooking may be more conducive to good digestion according to the rules of health, ours is the more palatable, and the fact remains that we are an exceedingly healthy and long-lived race, and as yet have not suffered from the variety of food and its preparation which is to be met with throughout our kingdom. "As Minister Wu is a cosmopolitan of the widest experience, and has eaten all kinds of food in all kinds of countries, his tribute to the methods of his own country in this regard may be taken as a just and merited one.

CHANCE MEETINGS WITH BEARS.

Stories From the Country Where Grizzlies and Silver-Tips Grow.

"Speaking of bear," said the mining expert, as he lit a cigar and leaned back comfortably in the corner of the smoker, "there's nothing nastlier to meet out than an old, dirty-faced silver-tip. He's a cross between a grizzly and a brown, and, like crosses generally, he inherits all the meanness of both sides of the family. Old Dirty Face is always ugly about something, and he goes around fairly spoiling for a fight. "Any one ever meet him? Well, I had a scrap with one out in the Buffalo Horn country last year, and I shan't forget it to a hurry. I was out there looking for some mines, and one day I took a little stroll all alone to see what I could find. We were right in the midst of the big mountains, a hundred miles from anywhere, and the finest game country on the continent. Bear and deer and goat—you took your choice without any trouble at all. I had my Springfield with me, although I wasn't caring for game just then. But sometimes game hunts you, and then you've got to fight, climb or run. "Along toward evening, as I was starting back for camp, I heard something following on my trail, and, looking back, I saw Mr. Dirty Face ambling along a couple of hundred yards behind me and taking more interest in me than I liked. I didn't need any bear particularly, as there were no good trees handy, only a few little dead ones that didn't count. "In the canon below me was a good-sized stream, and I made for that, thinking I could throw the bear off, down by the water. When I came to the bank I found a mountain torrent thirty or forty yards wide and deep and ugly looking. I skirted up the bank pretty fast for some time, and then I saw a rock well out from shore that I thought I could reach. I rounded a big boulder, struck it above, and, by hard work, reached the rock all right. I didn't believe Mr. Bear would tackle me there, but there was where I didn't know him. Right up my trail he went, rounded the boulder, sniffed once or twice, sighted me on the rock and promptly struck in. "He had to swim and the current was so swift that he missed the rock a few yards and so gave me a good shot. I hit him in the best I had, and I made him kick, but he reached the shore all right, and now his hinder was up in earnest. I pounced at him again, but it didn't seem to count. On he came, higher up the time and sighted better for the rock. I waited for him, and when he heaved his big, ugly paws on my rock, I let him have it in the throat, and that fixed him. He swept by, fairly making the water foam. It's the last time, gentlemen, that I want to be treed on a rock by a bald-faced bear.

"It's funny," said the doctor, a clean-cut, well-knit specimen of fine physical manhood, whose clear gray eyes and square jaw betokened plenty of grit; "it's funny how your first grizzly takes the nerve out of you. Two or three years ago I went hunting with a friend in Colorado. I had killed some big game myself and I knew that he had killed plenty of it. He and I had killed a grizzly and we were each eager for the first chance. "One day, when I happened to be out alone, as I came through a clump of quaking-asp what should I run plump against but a big grizzly busily employed in rotting around in the dirt after fog. "He hadn't winded me, and there I stood, just screened by the quaking-asp, almost near enough to touch him with my gun, while he went on rothing, utterly unconscious of my presence. "Now or never," I thought, as I brought my gun to my shoulder and started off at a good gait away from me. "Well, old boy," I thought, "if I can't hit you standing I can't run, so I let him go. "I felt pretty gum when I came into camp that night, but I didn't say anything. My friend was cooking supper and he seemed pretty quiet, too. After supper we fought our pipes and sat by the fire thinking. "What's the matter, old man? What are you so still about? finally he asked. "Oh, nothing," I said, trying to seem cheerful. "Yes, hang it, I did," I answered doggedly. "Well, so did I," he said, and the incident was closed. "We each got our bear afterward, however, so the disease didn't prove fatal. "Well, gentlemen," said the commercial traveller, "I never hunted bear myself, but I heard a story the other day of some fellows who found one in Montana. It's a chestnut, call me down. "They were prospecting right up in the big bear country, but they let the bear alone, and the bear let them alone. One night they camped in a deep canon, and while one was cooking supper the other started out with his shotgun to get some birds. Lots of birds up there with a stick. "You can almost kill them with a stick. "They were prospecting right up in the big bear country, but they let the bear alone, and the bear let them alone. One night they camped in a deep canon, and while one was cooking supper the other started out with his shotgun to get some birds. Lots of birds up there with a stick. "You can almost kill them with a stick. "Run, r-u-u-n!" he yelled, and the man and the bear both let out a couple of links, and the gravel flew faster than ever. "Run, r-u-u-n!" he howled, "I'm around to try to get a shot. "Run!" panted the other fellow, "run!" "do you think I'm throwing this race?" Oregonian.

Not so sudden, Harry—"When I asked her if she would be mine, she fell on my breast and sobbed like a child, but finally she put her arms around my neck and whispered that she was so happy. Harriet—"Yes, that is what she told me she was going to do; she has been practicing it with Cousin Tom for ever and ever so long." Boston Evening Transcript. A Thrilling Story of Shipwreck.
MIDWAY ISLAND ROMANCE
 Iroquois' Finding of the Wandering Minstrel's Anchor Recalls The Tragedy.

The United States steam tug Iroquois, which recently returned to Honolulu from Midway Island, brought with her the anchor of the bark Wandering Minstrel of Hongkong, which vessel was wrecked off Midway Island on February 3, 1888, over twelve years previously. Connected with the loss of the Wandering Minstrel is a story of the sea which if told in all its details would furnish material for a novel that would be worthy of the efforts of a Stevenson or a Defoe. Additional local interest would be added to the narrative by the fact that five of the principal characters in the story are residing today in Honolulu. They are Captain and Mrs. F. D. Walker and their three sons, Frederick, Harry and Charles. The Wandering Minstrel, a 500-ton bark, left Hongkong on September 3, 1887, on a shark-fishing expedition. It was Captain Walker's intention to be gone for a year and a half. The first port touched at was Honolulu, where the captain put in with a mutinous crew. The crew, which was composed mainly of Malays, deserted right and left and when the bark again headed seawards many of the crew were in irons and Charles Walker steered the vessel out of the harbor. French Frigate Shoals was the next stopping place, and here the business of the party, shark fishing, was pursued for a while with remunerative results. Midway Island was the next land sighted, and when in Wells Harbor a terrible gale came on which drove the Wandering Minstrel from her anchorage and onto a reef. The crew and all on board took to the boats and pulled to the nearest land, which turned out to be Sand Island, and which was reached in safety by the entire party. The island on which the castaways found themselves was approximately one and a half miles long and one and a quarter miles wide. It was singularly barren and covered with coral dust. There were no trees on it; nothing but a kind of scrub which grew in bushes rarely exceeding a foot in height. It was on this desolate spot that the Walker party existed for fourteen months. The wrecked vessel speedily went to pieces on the reef and there were left twenty-nine souls to subsist as best they could on the island until rescue in some form or other should come. Nothing was saved from the wreck but a few articles which were from time to time washed ashore, and the boats of the party reached land in. Among the most valuable of the articles thus saved were a hatchet, a saw and a portion of the cabin piano. On the island was found a wooden shack built by some former unfortunate, which was speedily fixed up for the accommodation of the party. The cracks in the house had to be caulked to prevent the entrance of the coral dust, which penetrated and spoiled everything. During their enforced sojourn on this forsaken place the Walkers existed entirely on birds' eggs, fish and a shark and a turtle which they were fortunate enough to capture. For months at a time their bill of fare consisted solely of sea birds' eggs which were, to say the least, unpalatable. Sometimes the party were a week without food save of the scantiest description. The birds found on the island were principally the gannet or sooty albatross, the flesh of which resembles nothing so much as shoe leather boiled in oil. Fish hooks were constructed from the wires in the piano which came ashore and nets were made from cotton threads packed from the sail canvas which was saved. The solitary shark killed was preserved quickly, an abundant supply of fresh, sweet water was discovered after much digging. On the island was found a man named Jorgensen, a Dane, who was one of the crew of a ship named the General Seagel, which had been wrecked on the island some time before. Jorgensen had murdered the captain and a man of the General Seagel, and after the killing the crew had deserted him, having previously destroyed another boat and gone in the remaining boat to the Marshall Islands six months before the Wandering Minstrel went to pieces on the reef. The Morning Star eventually picked up the crew of the General Seagel and brought them to Honolulu, where, however, no report of Jorgensen's solitary existence was made. The Walkers say that the man showed every indication of being crazy, more especially at the full of the moon, at which season he would walk incessantly up and down the beach, raving wildly. Jorgensen is now supposed to be living in Guatemala. One day Jorgensen, the mate and a Chinese boy stole the best boat and a silver compass which Captain Walker had given them permission to use for exploring purposes, and made for the Marshall Islands, which they eventually reached safely. Arrived there they did not report the little band on Midway Island, but said that they were the sole survivors of the Wandering Minstrel's crew. After ten months had been passed on the island, one night a steamer's light was sighted. At first it appeared to be red and then it changed to green. The hopes of the party ran high at the prospect of rescue, but the light steadily grew dimmer and finally disappeared. It is thought that the light belonged to the steamship China, as Captain Seabury has since told Fred. Walker that on one occasion he came close to the island, but was afraid of the results if he came nearer. The castaways were at last rescued by the schooner Norma, from Yokohama, engaged in shark fishing. The captain of the Norma had been told by friends of the Walkers in Yokohama to keep a sharp lookout for them, and he called at Midway Island in pursuance of what he admitted to be a forlorn hope. Of the twenty-nine souls wrecked, six were drowned by the upsetting of a boat, one was murdered, three succumbed to the ravages of beri-beri, two died of starvation, one died on the way home and was buried at sea, and only sixteen of the original complement came back alive to Honolulu. Of that number only nine or ten are living today, and among that number are the five members of the Walker family, whose survival is all the more wonderful on account of their being the least fitted to stand the hardships endured. Such, briefly, is the story of a shipwreck and its aftermath on a lonely island as thrilling as is to be found in the annals of the sea. Captain Walker once related the story to Mr. Strong, a son-in-law of Robert Louis Stevenson, and it is shrewdly suspected in certain quarters that the diverting tale of "The Wreckers" is based on none other than the experiences of the survivors of the Wandering Minstrel. At the Walker homestead in Honolulu are innumerable relics of the adventures on Midway Island. One of them is a cannon which was on board and which went to the bottom with the ill-fated vessel. This cannon has a remarkable history. It was originally captured by a British man-of-war from a Danish vessel. Then it was transferred to an English merchantman bound for China, and in turn fell into the hands of Chinese pirates. Later on it was recaptured by an English gunboat, and left with a dock company in Hongkong. It was next brought into commission on board the Wandering Minstrel and shared the melancholy fate of that ill-starred ship. Five years ago one of the Walker family happened again to be at the scene of the wreck, with a surveying expedition and brought up the old cannon and took it back to his home. The number of the anchor picked up by the Iroquois is 2099 and it was cast overboard at 10 a. m. on February 3, 1888.

REASONS FOR CANNIBALISM.
 Set Forth by Prof. Starr of the University of Chicago.
 "Cannibalism Explained and Defended by an Expert," was the theme of Prof. Frederick E. Starr's discourse to the anthropology class at the University of Chicago. The professor came to the big institution of learning on the Midway with a toothpick in his teeth and a napkin in his pocket. At the breakfast table he had read of the fate of German traders in New Britain. Though he did not say that he preferred any particular kind of fish of his own table, he confessed he could not blame the natives for eating a white trader whenever opportunity offered, and said in this case the Germans got just what they deserved. When the professor had concluded the students discovered that it was time for luncheon, but none admitted he was hungry. In part this is what Prof. Starr said: "There are some things I do not pretend to know about cannibalism, but I do know why the natives prefer human flesh, and I know the characteristics of the various brands of cannibals. "First—Their religion demands that they kill, cook and eat human beings. "Second—They eat human flesh for the same reason we eat a porterhouse steak—because they like it and because they can get it. "Third—Their traditions command them to devour the hearts and livers of the first foes slain in battle. They believe in this because they think they can assimilate all the courage of the late lamented enemy. "Fourth—They kill and eat out of revenge. "There, now you have it in a nutshell. These German traders were slain and broiled, I doubt not, because they came under the fourth class. They had been cruel to the natives, perhaps, because they could not make as much money as they wanted. It was another case of 'out of the frying pan into the fire,' with realistic embellishments. "It is notorious that men belonging to the most enlightened white races are often more savage, cruel and beastly when they are far from home among native savages than the savages themselves. I have visited tribes where the women and girls are terrorized when they hear of the arrival of foreign traders and soldiers. They actually flee to the mountains and remain until the visitors have departed. There is no doubt in my own mind that the traders provoked the attack of the cannibals and that they deserved to be killed. "I do not believe that the spread of Christianity and civilization has been the chief cause of the decrease of cannibalism. Undoubtedly Christianity and religion have had some effect on the cannibals, but there were a great many tribes which practised cannibalism and abolished it before civilized men reached them. "Dr. Starr said that some races practice cannibalism for a time and then leave off for years only to take it up again when provoked to take vengeance in war. He feels that the New Britain cannibals looked upon the traders as being at war with them and that it was right for them to eat them. According to the professor the New Britain cannibals are not known, until this time, to have eaten foreigners for a number of years.—Chicago Record.

THE KNIGHTS ARE HUSTLERS

J. B. Brown has come to town. Brown is not a man, she's a ship and as fine a ship as ever knew her own way across the island-studded Pacific. She arrived yesterday, fifty-five days from Newcastle where the coal grows and she has her capacious inside just full of the black diamonds. But it's not the ship that's most interesting although she's a big'n and a beauty and a speedy craft too withal and can carry 2,150 tons of coal, the amount of mineral fuel she now has aboard. It's the captain that counts in this story and this particular captain is very, very interesting. "He's only a blooming kid," said an old waterfrowner yesterday who knows the "kid's" father as well as his own brother. "He's only a blooming kid as I said once before, but 's'help gracious if he ain't about the quickest young one as ever gave Sunday school lessons to his hands before the mast twice a week. He's only twenty-four and has been master of a great big wind-jammer for two years. Rocked in the cradle of the deep? Well I guess yes—Says! that fellow can get more speed out of a coal barge than most fellows could get out of one of these here gasoline launches; he's a sailor that's what, a downright, upright, allright, salt sea sailor, and he's a gentleman too, sir, just as polite as a young miss at her first Church social."

Molliswood last night. There was a very happy family reunion as may well be imagined. Young Captain Knight and his wife went aboard and the good things were spread out upon the cabin table and feasting and merry-making lasted until a late hour. The Holliswood is famous for her pies and of course pie figured largely in the bill of fare. Captain Sanders will never forget the Holliswood on that account. He piloted her in on the 4th instant when she arrived and stayed to lunch and was treated to some of the finest pie he ever tasted in his life. Mrs. Knight is said to have made it, but the cook of the Holliswood is very, very mad indeed that he should not have been given the credit. He claims to have made it himself. Captain Macaulay, on the same day, piloted in a big coal-laden "lime-juicer" and also stayed to lunch. He got "salt-horse" and lime-juice and Captain Sanders has been crowing to him about the Holliswood pies ever since. The Knights are Yankees to the backbone, witness the go-aheadiveness of young Knight of the J. B. Brown, a captain and a married man at twenty-four. Their home is on Long Island. Hollis is the name of the home of the Knights, hence the name of the bark Holliswood. When the soldiers were going to Cuba during the Spanish war, many of them passed by Hollis and were called in and feasted on plenty of pie. The Knights are all delightful people; those of them who have come to Honolulu at different times have a multitude of friends in this city. The Holliswood expects to get away for San Francisco in a couple of weeks in ballast and as she has most excellent and commodious passenger accommodations she will naturally leave here with all berths taken. Captain Knight of the Holliswood was master of a vessel at nineteen years of age. Many's the yarn he can spin of the sea, absorbingly interesting, and all true.

THE JAPANESE RULER'S HUMBLE FRIEND.
 TOKIO, June 26.—Ten years ago, when the Crown Prince was in his thirteenth year, his Highness spent a summer at Futamigaura, Ise. While out gambling in the water one day the Prince noticed a fisherman's boy of about the same age as himself, whose consummate skill in swimming drew forth his admiration. The lovely youth, whose name was Yei, had the honor of being presented to the Prince, and there sprang up a boyish friendship between the two. A decade had elapsed since then, and his Highness was once more back at Ise, the other day, on his wedding tour. The memories of the past came back and the Prince thought of Yei. He wanted to see his old friend, and after a good deal of trouble, the order was conveyed to Yei, now grown a sturdy young man, but still poor and lowly. Yei approached the imperial presence. In high delight the Prince talked freely of the past and then allowed Yei to take leave of him loaded with various presents—Chicago Record.

THE PACIFIC Commercial Advertiser

WALTER G. SMITH - EDITOR WEDNESDAY AUGUST 15

A careful estimate of the Arizona type of "live, hustling journalism" shows that what is new in it is not true and what is true in it is not new.

Judge Estee gave a high judicial example by settling his difference of opinion with Supt. McCandless in a quiet and equitable way. There were no hysterics, no eagle-screaming and no red fire. The Judge met the Superintendent half way in the matter of court-room expenses and other mooted points were referred to Washington, Estee perpetua!

Who owns the Grand Jury, the courts or the people? Who takes the initiative in Grand Jury investigations, the Jury itself or a court? Is a Grand Jury to be blind to offences against the common welfare because they occur on the blind side of a magistrate or affect some magistrate's friends? Or is a Grand Jury constituted for the purpose, as Judge Humphreys said in his first charge, of investigating "any condition prevailing or alleged to prevail in this community of which it may have individual knowledge or which may be brought to its attention?" These are questions that are pressing hard for an answer.

GRASPING THE AIR.

The efforts of the new paper to divert attention from the fact that it was caught and exposed by one of its own friends in faking an interview are strenuous but futile. In yesterday's issue the Republican makes a hysterical effort to convict the Advertiser of misstatement and offers the following alleged proofs. We cherish the hope, in the interests of justice that such "evidence" is not accounted of much value in the Circuit Court however it may impress a very parochial newspaper.

Here is the terrible indictment as it stands, the paragraphs quoted coming from these columns:

"The Advertiser had the only report of Mr. McClanahan's speech and it came without alteration from his manuscript." "As is our usual custom the Advertiser took all the speeches in shorthand that it did not get in manuscript, the whole making an accurate and thorough account of the banquet proceedings."

Take your choice. In which paragraph does the Advertiser lie?

If the lay eye can detect any contradiction in these paragraphs it must have extra microscopic power. The first one says that Mr. McClanahan's speech was taken without alteration from his manuscript, which is true. The second one states that this paper took all the speeches in shorthand that it did not get in manuscript, which is also true. No one but a pettifogger, legal or journalistic, could affect to see any contradictions here. A sane or sincere person would not have to read the paragraphs twice to see that the Advertiser used shorthand where the speeches could not be got in manuscript and took manuscript whenever it was procurable as assuring a more certain accuracy than stenographic notes can always afford. Mr. McClanahan's speech went to our printers in his own handwriting. That it represents his precise words is a proposition in which too many of its auditors concur to warrant a paper which had no reporter at the Bar Association's banquet and got all the information it did not invent at second hand—including the whispered conversation of the three judges who left the banquet,—in saying otherwise.

Meanwhile the new daily remains in the pillory where George D. Gear left

PLOTTERS THREE.

First Witch—Sh!

Second Witch—Sh!

First Witch—By the pricking of my thumbs something wicked this way comes.

Enter a National Committeeman, a Judge and an Editor.

National Committeemen—When shall we three meet again? In thunder, lightning or in rain? Unless my tears more groundless be, I rather guess 'twill be all three.

Witches—Hully Gee!

Judge—Fear naught fair friend, for lest my mentor lies, I've fixed a project that means sunny skies. A boss you want to be but in the way are divers citizens whom we must slay.

National Committeeman—Slay? Editor—Hay?

Judge—I speak of course in a political way. First we will use the editorial quill to rouse the public against whom we will. We want Brown's scalp because he's in the way of getting the police to do our say. With the police to work among the push we'll carry every precinct with a rush; and missionaries when they come to vote will be run in or made to ride the goat.

Committeeman and Editor—Observe that head!

Judge—Aye, gaze well at it till your eyes are fed; and then, mayhap when they are comforted, I'll let you put your hands upon its bumps which swell in places like a bunch of mumps.

Committeeman and Editor—Until we do it, count us in the dumps.

Judge—Then to resume. When we have roused the town to Brown's iniquities we'll call him down to where the Jury, now surnamed the Grand, in search of culprits takes its bidden stand. The Jury will indict and Brown once out will leave a vacancy which we no doubt, can get the Governor to fill as we, the Party Leaders, may make nomine. Then the new Sheriff, fixing Jury lists, will draw the names to which we've put our fists; and with a Jury which, I surely ween, would take its orders from our own machine, we'll raise such scandal and in tones so loud that not a member of the old Dole crowd will want to keep his job a little bit for fear of being bothered with a writ. Then in a little while we'll have the jobs and you, as boss, will surely be His Nobs. Run editor and give to Brown a jolt; the Jury I'll instruct to take a "holt," and you the boss that will be by and bye, just sit and watch ME with admiring eye—and now I ask you, how is that for high?

Committeeman and Editor—Great,

BLOWING HOT AND COLD.

Like Orator Puff, who had two tones in his voice, Judge Humphreys has two voices in his charge to the Grand Jury. The following parallel revelations will show how discordant they are. One is in the form of an extract from a supplemental charge made by Judge Humphreys when the Grand Jury was invited to look at the Daily Republican; the other is an extract from the original charge made by the Judge when he wanted it to gaze on some of Governor Dole's appointees:

(From Supplemental Charge.)

Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:—I desire to direct your attention to a matter which I feel it proper to advert to at this time. Since the beginning of this term, and since the organization of this jury certain statements have been made in the public press. I desire to say to you, gentlemen of the Grand Jury, that you are not to concern yourself with any matter or thing, by whomsoever it may purport to have been written or signed, which appears in the public press of this city or in any public press.

(From Original Charge.)

The matters in regard to which it will be your duty to make inquiry are such as may be within the knowledge of any one of you; such as may be given to you in charge by this Court, such as may be submitted to you by the Attorney General, and finally such as may be brought to your attention by private parties. But you are not limited in your inquiries to crimes which are alleged to have been actually committed. You may comment, in your final report to this Court—and indeed, it is your duty if necessary therefor extends—to comment upon the management of public institutions, and any condition which you may deem detrimental to the public good.

You will investigate any other condition prevailing, or alleged to prevail, in this community of which you may have individual knowledge or which may be brought to your attention. If in connection with these conditions crimes have been committed, you will return indictments against the persons committing such crimes, and if no crimes have been committed in connection therewith, and you yet believe that such conditions are a menace to the public peace, to public safety, and to the good order of the community, or unlawfully hamper the liberties of the citizen, you may comment thereon in your final report to this Court, and thus direct public attention thereto.

At the conclusion of your labors you should render a final report to the Court, in which you may state the number of cases examined by you and for what, the number of indictments found by you and for what; and as I have before stated you may also in your final report comment upon and direct public attention to any evils existing or threatened which you deem worthy of public consideration.

That is to say the Grand Jury could consider what might be brought to its attention by private parties so long as the private parties got after Arthur Brown and other officials whom the "machine" wants to remove; but it must frown upon all private parties, including the gentlemen who publish signed demands for protection from libel, when the libel lodges against one's friends.

You must "direct public attention to any evils existing or threatened which you deem worthy of public attention"—except libels committed by the Honolulu Republican.

"A Daniel come to judgment, yea a Daniel. Oh wise young Judge how do I honor thee."

greater, greatest and that's not a lie. First Witch—When shall these three meet again?

Second Witch—In thunder, lightning and in rain.

First Witch—When the hurly-burly's done and the battle isn't won; go weird sister, for the three, soon must vanish up a tree.

INSECT-EATING PLANTS.

Some years ago the Advertiser called attention to the value, in a country so mosquito-ridden as this one, of insect-eating plants such as grow, in their wild state, in Carolina and southern Florida and amidst the swamps of Central and South America, Europe and Africa. An account we published of the so-called "bar-room plant" of Florida caused considerable interest but nothing was done, so far as we are aware, for its importation. The bar-room plant grows where mosquitoes are most plentiful and it contains, deep in the throat of an orchid-like flower which, under the light of the moon, reflects a faint red glow, a sweet liquid which insects fly into, never to emerge. All night long the "bar room" is open for business; it has a steady custom and in the morning the drinking population of the insect world is measurably less.

A recent issue of that valuable periodical, the Literary Digest, has an illustrated account of carnivorous plants which shows that there are seven varieties to select from. These are known, scientifically, as the Utricularia vulgaris; Pinguicula vulgaris; Drosera rotundifolia; Cephalotus follicularis; Sarracenia purpurea; Pitcher of Nepenthes; Dionaea muscipula. Some of them are very ornamental though all grow in damp and shady places. The classic type of these vegetables carnivora is the Dionaea muscipula, a plant provided with tentacles "for which," says the Literary Digest, "it would be impossible to find any more rational aim (than the capture of insects) and which are operated by a tactile sensibility clearly directed to it." In France "the family is represented by the Drosera which secretes a viscid liquid that attracts and entraps insects."

Doubtless nature, following out its automatic law of checks and balances would have provided Hawaii with insect-eating plants if mosquitoes and the like had been a part of our original furnishings. But mosquitoes and most other insects were unknown here until the white man brought them; and as he did not bring their natural enemies as well the Islands have a vast overplus of winged pests. In Florida the "bar-room plants" and their kind keep down the mosquito population and in the Northern States the work is partly done by the swallows and night-hawks that chase about at dusk and pick their living food from the air. Here the measures are all defensive of the individual and nothing is done to mitigate the nuisance which the mosquito, in his millions, so painfully embodies.

We think it would be well worth while to enlist the aid of the United States botanical bureau in getting carnivorous plants and insect-eating birds for Hawaii. The mosquito is the one affliction that tourists complain of in the Paradise of the Pacific and anything we can do to make it less severe would mean dollars in our pockets.

We are reminded by an organ of Mr. Sewall that our non-resident Committeeman has really had the experience of being voted for. The Maine Republicans took him up so as to "rub it in" to his father, the eminent Democrat who ran for Vice-President on the Bryan ticket in 1896. It was with such partricial joy that H. M. Sewall permitted himself to be used for the purpose that self-respecting Republican journals, all over the country, expressed a spirited disgust. It was largely due to the feeling thus aroused that H. M. Sewall got so little support in his candidacy for Governor of Hawaii. To have been footed out of a Democratic consulate, to have then joined the Republican party for revenge, to have ostentatiously bolted his own father by way of currying favor with his father's political enemies,—these are the capital points in the political career of a man who now demands that the Republicans of Hawaii shall accept him as their "boss." They will no more take him in that capacity than they would in that of Governor. He may "boss" a corporal's guard from Tooley street but the Republican party of Hawaii will continue to laugh at his pretensions.

The best friends of the Republican party are those who try to keep it clean. No bossism, no machine, no political courts, no proscription! Those who seek to burden the party with such mill-stones would do less harm if they were Democrats.

A silver egg steamer, which can be operated on the breakfast table, is exhibited in a New York window. It has a double boiler and an alcohol lamp, and is a handsome article of table garniture. There are so many different opinions as to how long an egg should be cooked that this invention has been made to enable each member of a family to cook his eggs himself, and for just as long or short a time as he pleases.

Hopeful as to Results.

Witham, the Georgia banker, and his party of cashiers and pretty girls, left New York for the South the last of the week. There have been no marriages as a result of the trip, although it is understood that matrimony was one of the objects of the junket. There is the satisfaction of knowing that seven engagements have been made, however, and doubtless the weddings will take place in Georgia in due time.

"Want of Watchfulness Makes the Thief."

Many cases of poor health come from want of watchfulness. But if you keep your blood pure no thief can steal your health. The one effective, natural blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Disordered Blood—"My father has long been troubled with disordered blood and weak back. Hood's Sarsaparilla made him strong and healthy; he works every day." A. S. Wykes, S. Easton, Pa.

Humor—"When I need a blood purifier I take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cured my humor and is excellent as a nerve tonic." Josie Eaton, Stafford Springs, Ct.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A COUGH CURED

If this could be said of all cough medicines there would be no need to study out a new formula.

Many however bring about a certain amount of relief and many more claim to cure, but effect none.

Cummins' Cough Cure

has never failed to cure. In its manufacture no attempt has been made to cheapen its cost by the use of inferior qualities of medicine.

We believe this is the reason for its success.

THESE MEN SELL LIQUOR

A List of the Federal Licenses.

MANY BREAK THE LAW

A Hundred and Forty United States Permits to Sell at Retail.

The Collector of Internal Revenue of the United States, William F. Haywood, has lost no time in filling the coffers of the United States Government. Over 140 persons in Hawaii have taken out licenses to sell liquor at retail. These licenses are in conformity with the United States law, and cost but $25 each. For many years Uncle Sam has established a reputation for so fierce a pursuit of those offending against the revenue laws that comparatively few dare to risk detection.

In Hawaii every seller of liquor at retail must take out a special Hawaiian license, the number of which is limited. In Honolulu but eighteen saloons are permitted. Besides the drug stores and some wholesalers have retail liquor licenses. The names and addresses of persons obtaining United States Government licenses are set down in a book kept by Collector Haywood. Brokers and other business men also pay licenses to the United States, and after the name of each licensee is marked the kind of license he has received. The following have paid licenses as retail liquor dealers, whose place of trade is in Honolulu:

Of course many of these retailers have licenses from the Hawaiian Government to carry on that business. But a great many are selling illegally. The police department of Hawaii might look into this matter; this list aiding the ferreting out of offenders against the local laws.

SALVATION ARMY.

Major Wood, Back From Island Tour, Speaks at Meeting. Major Wood, who has just returned from a trip to Maui and Hawaii, led the meeting in the Salvation Army last evening. He was absent from the city nearly a month on Maui. Army meetings have been commenced in Kihel, Kahului and Lahaina. In the first two places they are the only Christian workers at present holding services. The Major found that Kihel's reputation as one of the dustiest places in the world, was well founded. Army affairs are progressing very well. Next week he leaves by the W. G. Hall for a two weeks' tour of Kauai.

KEPT RUNNING

Sheriffs Busy Serving Summonses.

All Complaints To Be Written in Full--Albert McGurn A Deputy.

Judge Humphreys' order issued from the Circuit Court recently that High Sheriff Brown or Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth should personally serve all penal and civil summons issued from the upper courts, has been further augmented by an order from the same source, that sworn complaints will be necessary in every case which appears on the police court calendar.

Under a strict interpretation of the two orders the High Sheriff or his deputy must wear out shoe leather running between the police station and the residences and places of business of those who are named in summonses issued from the Circuit Court. The policemen on duty at the station will, under the new order of things, have an ideal existence in attending only to patrol wagon calls and carrying messages from one portion of the police building to the other. The High Sheriff, however, has taken the bull by the horns and appointed a second deputy sheriff in the person of Albert McGurn whose commission is expected to issue upon the return of Governor Dole. It will be McGurn's main duty to serve summonses. The Judge's ruling in this particular has had the effect of adding another officer to the payroll, and an increase in the salary list, and a further burden upon the taxpayers.

As to the issuing of sworn complaints in every little police court case, this has been brought about by the Circuit Court Judge's decision in the Ottman liquor case. The defendant was discharged. Although freed by the Circuit Court Ottman is not yet out of the woods, for he will be looked after by the police, and a sworn complaint will be ready should he again be arrested for the same cause as before. The High Sheriff states that a sworn complaint will be made out for every "plain drunk" that comes into the police station. He further stated yesterday that here were a large number of prisoners confined in the Oahu prison who were sent there by Judge Wilcox in the regular manner heretofore in vogue in Judge Wilcox's court, and their cases were considerably on the same order as that of Ottman. They will be detained in prison until writs of habeas corpus issue for their liberty.

HE SAID HE WAS SOBER.

Burns Denied That He Could Get Drunk on Fifty Cents.

Can a man get drunk on fifty cents? That was the gist of a question propounded by a seedy individual who occupied the police dock yesterday morning to Judge Wilcox. Johnson Burns who directed the query maintained an injured attitude until the Judge's gentle tones found Burns' ear telling him that it was possible for a man to get weak in the knees and be considered intoxicated--at least by a police officer. The Judge charged $2 for answering Burns' question.

The latter stated that he was in a saloon and had only fifty cents all told. While asking for beer some one objected to his presence and he was thrown out of the saloon into the street where a kind-hearted "cop" found him and escorted him to the station. Burns swore positively that fifty cents could not buy liquor enough to get him drunk.

JUDGE WILCOX'S HUMOR.

Allowed Attorney Kaulukou A Continuance Yesterday.

Judge Wilcox's unctious humor was to the fore yesterday morning when Judge Kaulukou asked for a continuance until Thursday in the large case of Bonito. The extenuating circumstances under which Mr. Kaulukou made the request, were that he had some cases which would come up before Judge Humphreys tomorrow morning. The seriousness of the request was at once observed by his honor and he replied jocosely, "I don't want to expose any of the attorneys to risks by keeping them away from the Circuit Court. It would be a sad thing to see Kaulukou in the dock with his client." The point was seen by the spectators, and a general laugh followed as the attorney bowed his thanks for the granting of his request.

The Maile Hima Athletic Club will hold a training run this evening, starting from their headquarters at the corner of Vineyard and Emma streets at 7:30 p. m. A good crowd is expected to turn out and all interested are invited to participate in the run.

There will be an athletic feature at the races in Kapiolani Park next Saturday afternoon in the shape of a half mile foot race between Will Wright, Fred Wright, Jockey Seth Nichols, H. M. Ayres and two or three others. It is considered extremely probable that better time than four minutes will be accomplished by participants in the spiked-shoe free-for-all.

The winners will probably challenge the St. Louis College team. Both teams engaged in Saturday's game are in good form and a first-class game is anticipated.

The base ball team of E. O. Hall & Son, has challenged the Punahou College team to a game to take place soon. A meeting of the board of directors of the Healan Boat Club will be held on Thursday evening at the club house. It is understood that there are thirty applications for membership to be passed upon.

WANTS A DIVORCE FROM HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Carrie Kaai Says That the Musician Doesn't Support Her.

A divorce suit was filed in the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Carrie Kaai against her husband, Ernest Kaai, the well-known young Hawaiian musician of this city. The papers were drawn by Attorney Lorrin Andrews, and service was made on the defendant last evening. Mrs. Kaai's maiden name was Carrie Maiopili, and, as she alleges in her petition to the Judge of the First Circuit Court, they were married on February 25, 1899. She prays for maintenance for her child and herself.

She says that immediately after the marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. S. Timoteo, the groom forsook his bride at the altar steps, and has since neglected to act the part of a husband. When the marriage was performed young Kaai declared he was forced into marriage and that if he and Carrie Maiopili were joined in wedlock he would not live with her. The scene was a dramatic one, but despite his assertions that he would leave his bride the instant the last words of the ceremony were pronounced, the two were made one by the minister. According to his wife's allegations, the husband's threat was carried into execution and he has since failed to provide for his wife and the child that was born to her.

The petition for divorce states the following:

1. That on the 26th day of February, 1899, the said libellant, Carrie Kaai, was legally married to the said libellee, Ernest Kaai, in said Honolulu by the Rev. E. S. Timoteo, a person duly authorized to solemnize marriages according to the laws of the Territory of Hawaii; and that ever since said marriage both parties have resided, and still reside, in Honolulu aforesaid.
2. That there was born subsequent to said marriage, one child, now of the age of three months, issue of said libellee and said libellant.
3. That immediately after said marriage the libellee deserted said libellant, and since that time has neglected, and still neglects, to provide for and suitably maintain said libellant, although of sufficient ability so to do, and said libellant is in want and dependant for support upon the charity of others.
4. That libellee is a musician, and, as libellant is informed and believes, and on said information and belief alleges, has an income of at least $100 a month from his profession and from other sources.

Wherefore libellant prays:
1. That the libellee be summoned to appear and answer this libel and that a decree of separation from bed and board therefor be granted to your libellant.
2. That the libellee be ordered to pay to the libellant the sum of $50 per month, for the support of herself and said child, and that he be further ordered to pay a reasonable attorney's fee for the libellant and the costs of this proceeding.

The prompt use of the famous old Jesse Moore "AA" Whiskey with quinine at bed-time will almost invariably break up the severest cold. Lovejoy & Co., Honolulu, sell it.

The tugboat Fearless has the law on her side, according to the authorities on the subject, in the somewhat lively competition for the towing business between that boat and the Eleu. Although the Legislature established the tugboat system of Honolulu, and at its last session appropriated money for the running of the Eleu and has made all the rules in regard to running the boat, an entirely different state of affairs now exists. States and Territories do not engage in the towing business and it is contrary to the navigation laws of the United States for a State or Territory to compete with private citizens in such a business. Furthermore no local legislature can legislate contrary to the navigation laws of the United States, and nothing remains for the Eleu but to cease her activity as a tug, so say those who know.

The towing business in this harbor was taken over by the Government several years ago when there was very little money in it, and private concerns would not undertake it. The Eleu has been getting some business away from the Fearless lately. She towed the ship Ivy to sea on Monday. Yesterday, however, the Fearless "got back" at the Eleu; she towed the American ship J. B. Brown from Newcastle, into the harbor. The Eleu went out to sea shortly after the Fearless, expecting to get her line on the Brown, but the Fearless got there first and hove her heaving line aboard, got her hawser on the Brown, and yanked her in with neatness and dispatch. The captain of the Brown gave the towing to the first tug on hand. According to the United States navigation laws the Eleu has no right to receive any remuneration for the part she took in getting the Dunreggan off the Diamond Head reef, nor has she a right to engage in the towing business in competition with the Fearless, the property of citizens. The Eleu is on the same footing as the Iroquois; she is a United States tugboat.

SHORT ON GIN. The German ship Philadelphia, Captain Wachter, has several hundred cases of gin on board for this port. She has not yet commenced discharging and has not yet paid duty on her cargo. There is some breakage among the gin cases, and some of the cases are missing, while bottles are also absent from many of the cases. The ship's manifest declares a certain amount of gin aboard, but as a matter of fact, there is not the quantity aboard declared in the manifest. Now the agents want only to pay duty on the actual amount of gin on the Philadelphia, instead of paying duty on the amount noted in the manifest. The agents have stated to the Collector Stackable, and are anxious that a discount be allowed for the missing gin. This, however, cannot be allowed. The law requires that cargoes pay duty according to the vessel's manifest, except, of course, in cases where the cargo might exceed what is recorded in the manifest. The Philadelphia's agents will have to pay duty on the amount of gin vouched for in the ship's papers, notwithstanding any shortage, breakage or loss of gin. The case of the Dunreggan, which jettisoned a small portion of her cargo while on the reef off Diamond Head is quite a different matter and will depend on various facts not yet determined.

THE ANDREW WELCH. The American bark Andrew Welch, Captain Drew, from San Francisco, with a cargo of general merchandise, consigned to C. Brewer & Co., is at present lying at the Pacific Mail dock. Yesterday she unloaded two cars for the Pacific Heights Railway. They are trailers and well built, good looking, substantial open affairs. They were brought down on the Welch's main hatch. An odorless excavator is also aboard. Waterfronters are wondering if, when in operation, it will give an odor any less fearful than do the present "odorless" machines. On the deck of the vessel are also four big boats for the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, of the same pattern as those common to all the Island steamers.

ALONG SHORE. Mariposa for the Coast on Friday. Good weather and no rain reported at Hawaii. Alameda, from San Francisco, this morning. Steamer Noeau after loading sugar at Kukuhaele, left there yesterday afternoon for Honolulu. American ship J. B. Brown, Captain Knight, fifty-five days from Newcastle, with coal, arrived in port yesterday. Sugar on Hawaii on the 13th instant, was as follows: Pahaea, 3,500 bags; Honolulu, 1,311; Honokaa, 5,500; Kukuihaele, 1,500; Kailua, cleaned out. Gasoline schooner Surprise, which arrived from Hawaii yesterday, brought the following freight: 329 bags of sugar for M. A. McChesney & Son, 27 cords of wood, 43 bundles of hides, 30 bags of potatoes, 18 bags of coffee, 19 packages of sundries, 1 donkey, 21 pigs and 7 deck passengers. Yesterday morning the Dunreggan commenced discharging at the old fish-market wharf. She will be repaired when empty. She is too large for the marine railway, but can be raised out of the water one end at a time and so repaired. Herbert Young was still examining her bottom yesterday, going down in his diving suit. The bark leaks about the same as before, and the gasoline engine in charge of William Young is kept pumping at regular intervals.

Edward Hanlan, ex-champion oarsman of the world, relates a good story of how he delivered a speech after winning his second race in England. His first victory had found him unprepared. He was ready for his second with a speech, composed for him by a newspaper friend, neatly copied out on paper and stored away for use in his coat pocket. When the crowd outside the club-house insisted upon seeing and hearing the winner, he was helped out upon a window ledge by his friends, and held there by the coat-tails and the legs. The crowd cheered him wildly. He was too confused to speak. They cheered him again. He threw out his hand in a gesture of helplessness, and moved his lips in some inaudible mumble of apology for his inability to deliver a speech. They could not hear, on account of the noise that they were themselves making, but they encouraged him with a generous applause. He saw his escape, and proceeded to shake his head and work his lips in a fine frenzy of oratory, gesticulating eloquently and smiling his thanks. The noisy and good-natured crowd cheered him to the echo, and his friends drew him in from his precarious position on the window ledge. "You carried that crowd along in style," they congratulated him; "what did you say? We couldn't hear you." "Yes, give us an idea of your speech," the reporters put in, drawing out their note-books. Hanlan took the manuscript from his pocket. "Here's the whole thing," he said; "do you want it all?" "Well, rather," they answered; "that speech made a hit."

With the Change in Tariff

Comes a sweeping reduction in the price of all goods of American manufacture.

We have cut on every piece of jewelry and silverware in the house, and you will be surprised at the great difference from former prices. No fear of comparisons here, where quality and pattern are considerations.

What do you think of full-sized solid silver teaspoons being reduced to $3.00 a dozen, with engraving thrown in, and all articles of silverware reduced in like proportion.

These are by no means catch prices, but regular prices which will prevail here from now on, on all the different lines of goods from the States.

While reducing all our American goods we have not changed the prices on any of our European potteries, glass and chinaware, and although the present cost is forty per cent more than formerly, while out present very large stock lasts we will sell at the old rates. This is a very large saving to you, and we recommend that you make your purchases from these lines now, before an advance becomes necessary.

PRINCE DAVID'S NEW YACHT, THE VI-KE

THE above illustration shows Prince David's new racing yacht, the Vi-Ke, which is now nearing completion in C. D. Walker's boat-building works. The construction of the Vi-Ke is creating much interest in yachting circles and the new yacht is being very generally discussed. The Vi-Ke is a new type of boat of original design and will combine cruising qualities with the ability to go fast. In her, her owner thinks, he has solved the problem of an ideal boat for Hawaiian waters. According to the present system of rating, she will be classed as a third-class craft. The following are the dimensions of the Vi-Ke: Length over all, 23 feet 3 inches; beam, 9 feet; draught, 4 feet 8 inches with fin. 1. 1, water-line, 13 feet 9 inches. She will carry in mainmast and jib 475 square feet of canvas. Her ballast will be partly live. A fin keel is attached with a bulb of lead at the bottom weighing 30 pounds. The boat is so constructed that a center-board can be fitted to her if desired. The keel, stem, stern posts and frame are of American white oak; the planking of spruce, decks of white pine, combings of ash and trimmings of Spanish cedar, and teak. She is copper fastened throughout. Her cockpit is seated for nine persons and is fitted with concave seats such as are used in railroad carriages. There is sleeping accommodation in the cabin for two persons, the bunks being 6 feet 6 inches long by 22 inches wide. Among other modern conveniences which go so far towards making an ocean cruise the ocean of pleasure is included a refrigerator and water tank. There is also ample locker room for stowing away the hundred and one articles incidental to an enjoyable sea trip.

TO AID THE SICK POOR

Hospital Association Project.

DR. GALBRAITH AT HEAD

Plan to Have Members Pay One Dollar a Month and Be Treated Free.

There is a scheme on foot in Honolulu to establish a Hospital Association. The project came about on account of the need recently made evident in the local press for another hospital in town.

The principal promoters of the enterprise are Messrs. Edward H. May, J. D. Debolt and Dr. W. J. Galbraith. Mr. E. May, who is the prime mover in the proposed association, has had considerable experience in institutions similar to the one he proposes to start here. He is especially susceptible to the need that exists for the establishment of a hospital run on lines which shall bring it within the reach of the wage-earner, when circumstances render its patronage necessary.

The present hospital rates are entirely beyond the reach of the average working man," said Mr. May to a reporter yesterday, "and we propose to remedy the situation. The new Hospital Association will be modeled on the same lines as the Hospital Associations connected with all the great railroad lines in the States. The services of Dr. W. J. Galbraith as physician and surgeon have been secured. Dr. Galbraith will take charge of and arrange the details of the establishment. He is eminently adapted for this position, having superintended the arranging of seven hospitals on the Union Pacific system.

"Mr. De Bolt will be the institution's attorney. We have assurance of liberal support and will establish a hospital modern in every respect and fitted with the latest appliances of all kinds. "The hospital will be run on both a business and a philanthropic basis. Doctors in town are complaining that they are compelled by the present state of affairs to use parts of their private residences for hospital purposes. "The Hospital Association which will be semi-public in nature will probably be incorporated as a stock company with a capital of $25,000 which amount will be required to put it on its feet. The support and patronage of the various great local institutions that employ labor has been practically guaranteed."

The following is the outline of the proposed rules and regulations which will govern the new institution: The aims and objects of this association are to build and maintain a hospital for the benefit of its members. Any person in good health applying for membership and passing a satisfactory medical examination by the association surgeon, and by the payment of a monthly fee of $1 per month or $10 per year. The money thus received constitutes a general fund, and provides hospital treatment for sick and injured members of this association. Members of this association may obtain free of charge, medical or surgical treatment at his home or at the office of the surgeon, but the board of the members will be paid only when he goes to the association's hospital. All medicines prescribed for members by association's surgeon will be furnished free of charge by the surgeon or association's druggist, except patent or proprietary remedies, and such medical and surgical appliances, such as eyeglasses, spectacles, syringes, atomizers, crutches, etc., but crutches are kept at hospital, and will be loaned to injured members.

Members who have chronic diseases, the treatment of which would render them a burden to the fund, cannot receive treatment free for their chronic troubles, but will be entitled to other benefits provided by the fund.

Members injured by accident, when not in the line of their duties are also entitled to the benefits of the fund, providing such accidents are not the result of drunkenness or unlawful conduct, but employes sick from diseases, the result of intemperance or other vicious habits or injured in a fight or brawl, will not be entitled to aid from the hospital fund.

In case of death of a member in the association's hospital, a moderate amount may be allowed from the hospital fund for funeral expenses.

Patients will not be permitted to remain in the hospital, at the expense of the fund, longer than necessary for a complete recovery, and not for a period exceeding ninety days, without special permission from the chief surgeon.

EVANGELIST ON CRIMPS

Joyful News Is Not For Shipping Masters.

J. L. McComb Still Fighting Lewis and Turk—Grand Affair On Saturday Evening.

"Our beloved friends are at it again," said Evangelist McComb at the Joyful News Mission last evening. "I don't need to tell you that I am referring to those innocent babes, those smooth and unsophisticated heavenly twins, Lewis and Turk." J. McCarthy, who had a little misunderstanding with Messrs. Turk and Lewis the other day, was sitting in the front row with a hymn-book in his hand and an obsequious look upon his countenance. While McComb used up all the adjectives in the dictionary exhorting McCarthy's fellow shipping masters, that worthy sat unmoved in all his six feet three inches of innocence and purity. Upon his face he bears the touching marks of Lewis' sympathy and Turk's fellow-feeling; in his heart he carries the hope that this time the heavenly twins will be "cinched." If Turk and Lewis could have heard all the pretty, complimentary things McComb said about them they would be surprised at their own wickedness as word-painted by the evangelist.

"They must get out of town or go on the reef," cried the preacher, stamping both feet and smiting his left hand on his right. "The reef it is!" shouted a sailor who only arrived in town yesterday, and doesn't know the "reef" from Kakaako. "You ought to have seen Lewis run when the big Irishman got after him," went on McComb. "Lewis hasn't any sand. Turk has grit. I admire Turk's grit. Hear what the prophet Micah had to say about bad men—Micah was on to his job. What is this beautiful city coming to? We can't pick up the paper any morning without reading of bloody murders, fights, rows, affrays, and all manner of crime. Is Honolulu going to the eternal bow-wows?" Here McCarthy's mascot pug dog started to chase the Joyful News cat around the hall. The evangelist, ignoring the interruption, resumed—"The scraphic Turk and honey-tongued Lewis must soon be compelled to sing, 'I'll Leave My Happy Home for You.' They must go. We will make them go. And when finally we succeed in ridding the town of them we will get the band to play them off, and there'll be a hot time in the old town, and we'll all sing 'God be With Us Till We Meet Again,' only we hope never to meet Lewis and Turk again."

McCarthy, nursing his face in the front pew, smiled deep satisfaction at hearing his enemies "roasted" from the pulpit. The many strong remarks passed on Lewis and Turk by McComb, fell upon his ears as welcome as cool water to the parched tongue. He drank in McCarthy's eloquence even as the hull of the Dunreggan takes in the salt water of the sea. McComb wanted to know where Lewis and Turk got their "pull" and why it was that the authorities didn't "get after them." He went through a dumb exhibition with his hands and then explained the meaning of the term "accepting hand," intimating that a "pull" was sometimes based on the quieting influence of cold cash. "I'm not saying a word against the courts, or anybody in Honolulu in authority," he explained, "I'm just illustrating what is sometimes done."

Were McComb's words reported at a distance just outside the reach of an ordinary tone of voice, so that only the words shouted could be heard, the report would read somewhat, in brief, as follows: "Infamous scoundrels—a pull—mysterious—pull—echo answers—where. Trading in the blood of their fellow men—can't bully me—on the reef—desperate cutthroats. Outraged public sentiment—unsophisticated sailor—down with the crimps. I'm not afraid—depend upon me. Keep clear of the gang shops—be better men—help me in this righteous cause—read your Bible—blood-money—believe and be saved from your sins—down with the crimps—let us pray!"

On Saturday at 8 o'clock in the evening a grand social and musical entertainment is to be given at the Joyful News Mission. The Hawaiian Quintette Club will be on hand. Vocal and instrumental music will delight all comers; the hall will be jammed; there will be various interesting and enjoyable forms of social entertainment—mysterious music, and a surprise awaits everybody at the end of the program. This surprise is kept a close secret by all concerned, but it is whispered that McComb himself will execute a Scotch sword dance in Highland costume. The next Joyful News meeting takes place tomorrow night.

The Police Objected To Mahaula.

AH CHEE BEFORE WILCOX

Case Transferred From Court of Waialua Jurist and Tried Here.

The liquor case against Ah Chee, the Waialua Chinese who was arrested on the complaints of Policemen Mattland and Kelly, who allege they paid the Chinaman marked silver dollars for which they received bottled liquor in return, was tried before Judge Wilcox yesterday morning and afternoon. Former Judge W. L. Stanley appeared for the defendant, Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth prosecuting. Ah Chee's case was one which Judge Mahaula dismissed at Waialua nearly two weeks ago on the ground that the officers' testimony as to the number of marked dollars paid over to the Chinaman were sufficient to warrant him in dismissing the charge against the alleged offender.

In opening the case High Sheriff Brown took occasion to state publicly his private opinion of Judge Mahaula's action in summarily dismissing the action from his court on the grounds above stated. Judge Stanley objected to the case being transferred from Judge Mahaula's jurisdiction to that of Judge Wilcox. Although a recent appointee to the bench, Judge Stanley stated Judge Mahaula was well known in the community and to the district court of Honolulu.

"It is a breach of decorum on the part of the police department to transfer the case to this court," said Judge Stanley, "because he gave a decision against the Deputy Sheriff." Sheriff Brown stated emphatically in reply that although the transfer might be considered a slur upon Judge Mahaula, yet he felt it was only right, believing that a fair and impartial trial at Waialua was not to be had. He intimated that one experience in court work before Judge Mahaula was enough for him.

Despite the fact that we had plenty of evidence in the last case before him," continued the Sheriff, "we lost it. We do not accuse the Judge of corrupt practices or motives, but the last case was dismissed upon grounds which were frivolous and immaterial to the issue. We had plenty of evidence in this case, but believe the defendant would secure an acquittal if tried before the Waialua Judge."

The High Sheriff gave way to Mr. Stanley, who stated that the former's declarations were equal to an accusation against Judge Mahaula of corrupt motives and said the transfer of the case was due to a disgruntled police department.

His Honor decided that the case was transferred in proper form and he would hear it. He cited a case which was taken out of his own court and transferred to that of Judge Perry. He admitted that he didn't feel sorry or slighted by the action.

The case was finished late in the afternoon and was taken under advisement by Judge Wilcox.

CAMBRIDGE'S WITTY LAWYER.

The Exquisite Gift of Repartee of the Late Henry W. Paine.

Whenever a group of Massachusetts lawyers get to telling yarns it is dollars to doughnuts that one or more will concern the late Henry W. Paine of Cambridge. One of the most brilliant lawyers of his generation, it is probable nevertheless, that he will be chiefly remembered for his exquisite gift of repartee.

It was Paine who, on being interrupted during an argument by a notoriously brusque Supreme Court Justice with the remark, "Mr. Paine, that is not law," replied instantly: "It was law until your Honor spoke."

On one occasion while riding from Cambridge to Boston on the horse cars with a green bag full of sheep-covered volumes in his lap Paine was addressed by a youthful acquaintance, a Harvard student, with the remark: "You have quite a load, Mr. Paine. Law books I suppose."

"Oh, no," said Paine. "Merely Supreme Court reports."

Not long before his death Paine became interested in a case, as a matter of charity, in which a lad of some 15 years was charged with arson. Paine defended the boy and offered conclusive evidence that he was, to all practical purposes, an idiot and totally irresponsible. Nevertheless the jury in the case, after a charge from the Court, which was virtually an order for acquittal, brought in a verdict of guilty. The presiding Judge then addressed Paine: "You will move for a new trial, I presume, Mr. Paine."

Paine rose with a demeanor that was painful in its solemnity.

"I thank your Honor for your suggestion," he said, "but I am oppressed with the gravest doubts whether I have the right to move for a new trial in this case. Your Honor, I have already asked for and have received for my idiot client the most precious heritage of our English and American common law—a trial by a jury of his peers."

The Judge then ordered the verdict set aside.—N. Y. Sun.

Li's little joke: The trembling Boxer knelt before Li Hung Chang and strove to explain matters. "I must have lost my head; I see no other reason why I engaged in the uprising, O Son of the Blue Sky," he wailed. "You are a trifle off in your grammar," interposed Li: "you should say, 'I will have lost my head.'" And the executioner stepped forward at the proper signal.—Baltimore American.

Reasonable: Husband—"I don't see why you have accounts in so many dry-goods stores." Wife—"Because, my dear, it makes the bills so much smaller."—Bazar.

PLUMBERS OBJECT.

They Refuse To Work With Chinese and Drop Tools.

There is trouble between the Plumbers' Union and the Chinese plumbers. Yesterday at a house which is being constructed at the corner of Robella Lane and King street, Palama, it culminated in an entire cessation of work on the plumbing in the house because one lone Chinaman was employed in connecting the plumbing of the house with the water mains in the street. Gehring & Butzke are the plumbers who are fitting out the house, and they employ only white plumbers, members of the Plumbers' Union. But in making the connection with the street system a Chinese was at work, and to this the Plumbers' Union objected, and ordered work to cease on the building until the Chinese was discharged. The Chinese immediately consulted Attorneys Magoon and Long, and it is possible that the matter may be taken into the courts.

DIFFERENCES ADJUSTED.

Judge Estee and Supt. McCandless Reach an Understanding.

The dispute between Judge Estee and J. A. McCandless, Superintendent of Public Works, over the fitting up of the Federal courtroom is at an end and an amicable understanding has been reached whereby the courtroom is to be made ready for the Federal officers as soon as possible and turned over to them for their use. Judge Estee had a long talk with Superintendent McCandless, and the understanding was the result. The department of public works will see to the completion of the courtroom and Judge Estee will have the furnishings put in at the expense of the Government if understood. The temporary or permanent occupancy and of paying rent will in all likelihood be settled by a ruling from Attorney General Griegs at Washington.

High Sheriff Brown is burning mid-night oil in preparing forms for the complaints which have been rendered necessary by Judge Humphrey's recent ruling that every police court case must have a sworn complaint attached when brought to trial.

Household furniture, sewing machines, glassware, etc., will be sold at public auction at Morgan's salerooms on Queen street today.

NO MAN A HERO IN A NIGHTMARE

"Strange that we are always so cowardly in nightmares," remarked a New Orleans lawyer who has a taste for the bizarre. "I don't believe anybody ever lived who stood up and made a square stand against the amorphous horror that invariably pursues us in such visions. When I have a nightmare and the usual monster gets on my trail my blood turns to water and my conduct would disgrace a sheep. I am beside myself with stark, downright fear, and I have no idea left in my head except to run like a rabbit. All pride, self-respect, dread of ridicule and even the instinct of self-defence are scattered to the winds; and I believe, honestly, I would be capable of any infamy in order to escape. I have no hesitation in confessing this, because, as far as I have been able to find out, everybody acts exactly the same way in the throes of nightmare, and I feel certain I would not make such a pitiable spectacle of myself in real life, no matter what might befall.

"I think that the explanation of the nightmare panic is to be found in the fact that the dream is almost invariably accompanied by a sense of suffocation. It is well established that choking—the shutting off of one's wind, to use a homely phrase—has an effect upon the mind which is entirely distinct and different from that produced by any other form of pain or peril. It fills the victim with such horror and distraction that he is for the moment insane. He will do anything to get relief. This has been brought out on more than one occasion in the defence of men who have been choked and killed their assailants, and Judges have held that the circumstances of such an attack should be given special consideration as extenuating the deed. In dreams the entire nervous system is relaxed, and it is natural to suppose that the mental effect of suffocation would be intensified. At least, that is the best apology I have to offer for my sprints through nightmare land."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

ALSEN PORTLAND CEMENT

WE HAVE JUST RECEIVED a large shipment of this celebrated Cement, which is the STURGEST AND MOST SERVICEABLE CEMENT MADE, and will permit the admixture of a larger amount of sand gravel, with less loss of strength, than any other brand; it is therefore the most economical. It weighs less per bushel, measuring about 10 per cent more cement to a barrel than other brands, which very materially reduces its cost as compared with other cements. It is therefore an economical cement to use, and specially adapted for fine concrete work.

The following tests, made in actual work by Col. D. C. Houston, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., at the sea wall arounds; seven days, 600 pounds; thirty days, 815 pounds. One day, 384 pound Governor's Island, New York Harbor.

For sidewalks it gives the best color and the most durable wearing surface.

FORT STREET

To intending purchasers of rugs we would state that just before the change in tariff we received a large and varied assortment of

JAPANESE RUGS

By buying these rugs before the change, a saving of about fifty per cent was effected, which our customers are to profit by, as we do not intend, for the present, to increase the price of these rugs, but to sell them, while they last, at the old prices.

Under these conditions a buyer here, now, can buy these for much less than they are sold for on the Mainland.

We have made a display of these rugs in our large central show window, where their beautiful designs and harmonious colorings are sure to attract attention.

THE ASTOR EPISODE.

William Waldorf Astor's controversy with Sir Archibald Milne in London has furnished material for a good deal of discussion, and while there seems to be a disposition to question his action in making any reference in the Pall Mall Gazette to the matter, it is pointed out that, in requesting an uninvited guest to withdraw from his salons, he has emphasized that cardinal principle of Anglo-Saxon life which insists that every man's house is his castle, and moreover has merely taken precisely the same step as Lord Derby and other equally prominent Englishmen to check an abuse of hospitality that has become absolutely intolerable in Mayfair.
