ATKINSON AN ADVOCATE OF LOCAL OPTION

Straight Declaration of War Made by Temperance Speakers Against the Liquor Traffic in Hawaii.

"I believe a majority of the citizens should have the right by casting their ballot to decide whether saloons be allowed in the precinct in which they live."

"I therefore favor a liberal Local Option law, and let me tell you when I say I believe a thing I mean to let you know I believe in working for it by all legal means."—Hon. A. L. C. Atkinson.

"It is the purpose of the liquor interests of this Territory to have the present good liquor law repealed or emasculated in the next Legislature. They can not do it. This community will never go back and that law will only be amended to strengthen and improve it on the temperance side so that the wholesale liquor dealers will not have the right to solicit for trade in temperance precincts. The Local Option bill will also become law at the next session and then the people in their own precincts will express their views and put a twist in the neck of the liquor traffic. We will fight on until the prohibition question is solved and solved correctly."—Hon. John G. Woolley.

Straightforward and emphatic were Mr. Wadman, spoke briefly but to the point, stating clearly the position upon which he has taken his stand. He said:

"The rising tide of temperance has already commenced to beat on the shores of Hawaii."

"We have all read that the liquor traffic is prohibited by law in half of the area of the great United States containing more than a third of the population. Another interesting development is the fact that the governors of no fewer than thirty-seven states within recent months have attacked the saloon or endorsed prohibition, and do not be surprised if our worthy and able governor does the same thing at no distant date."

"While there are numberless things to be done for the public good—every citizen has his limitations—the man picks upon what he considers the best effort to be made."

"I am not a temperance howler nor a preacher, yet there is a good deal of truth in the saying that 'he can preach the better who hasn't practised.'

"The most moving of all temperance sermons, though, do not come through the mails or the schoolrooms, nor yet from the pulpit nor from the lecture platform. They are driven in, in brutally blunt terms, by the conditions which confront every man who has a living to earn. It is becoming increasingly difficult for a drinking man to find employment. In many ways prohibition is brought home to the 'pocket nerve.'

"Industry no longer tolerates intemperance. The man who drinks habitually and excessively can nowhere find employment. No railroad company, no manufacturing establishment, no mercantile house, careful in its relations with the public, will give a place to

AIM OF THE LEAGUE.
Mr. Wadman, in introducing Mr. Atkinson, the first speaker, said:

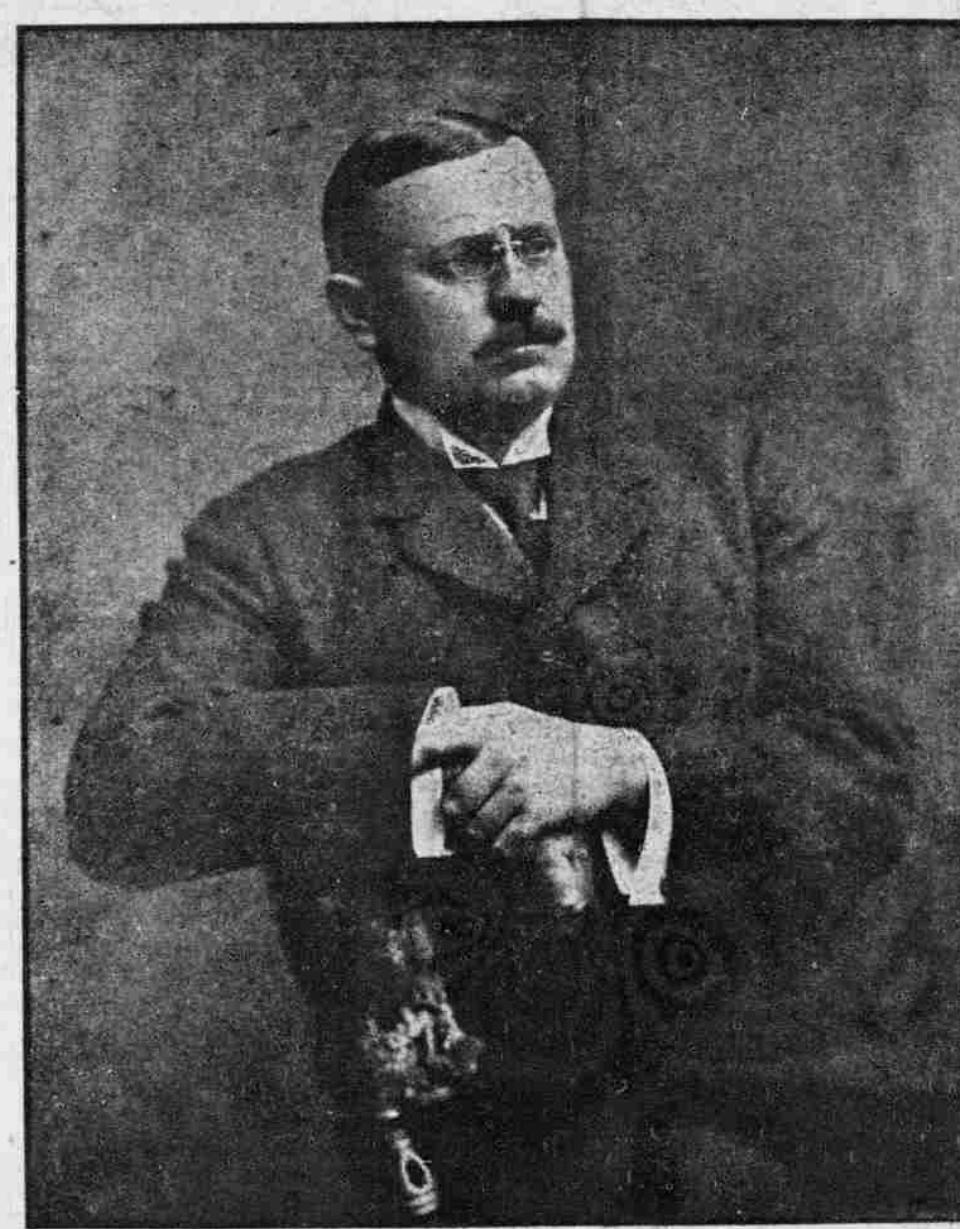

The Anti-Saloon League, under whose auspices we are convened in this church tonight, through the kindness of its pastor and officially for which we feel deeply grateful, is not a religious body, nor a political party, nor a social club, nor a secret society. Its membership includes persons of all kinds of religious beliefs, political principles and social positions. We are a league in league for a definite object—namely, the overthrow of the saloon as a licensed institution by the government of our country, and that, too, for conscience sake as well as other considerations.

"Towards the accomplishment of this object we differ as members among ourselves, as intelligent men are bound to do, as to the best methods to be pursued, whether by moral suasion, legal enactment or intellectual training. Some advocate local option, others high license, others are not satisfied unless it is prohibition, with a "As leaguers, we think and let think among ourselves, and yet all the while quietly, unobtrusively, energetically, we seek to awaken and educate public opinion, believing that just as soon as public opinion is intelligently awakened and properly organized, the saloon is doomed and its long train of evils banished from the face of the earth. As a practical demonstration of this truth, please witness the wave of public opinion now sweeping over the United States, as well as England and her colonies."

"We are not fanatics, though greater men and women than we have been so called because of their enthusiasm in a good and righteous cause. We are not cranks, though cranks are necessary for leverage in the creation of mechanical results. We are not false prophets, and yet we dare prophesy that our children will surely live to see national prohibition obtaining in the United States as a Federal enactment, upheld by an overwhelming public conscience and enforced by an overpowering public sentiment."

TWO LOCAL MEN FIND GOOD THING RAINY SEASON HERE AT LAST

They Discover and Perfect a Process for Beeswax Extraction.

A new process of extracting the wax of the honey bee from the "slumgum" has recently been discovered by two Hawaiian honey men and an application for a patent on the process is now on its way to Washington. The new process in its tests has worked so very well that the few who have been taken into the secret are astonished that something so simple and apparently so obvious has not been in use heretofore. Folks have been wondering what has become of the wet season which Honolulu regards as an institution, and a good many have been heard to speak of the lack of the dampness which always accompanies the early months of the year, regretfully and with a spirit of aggrievement, as if the weather man had gone back on them.

The process has been worked out by E. C. Smith and Albert Waterhouse and the final and finished process is the result of a great many experiments carried on by them for the past few months.

A MANILA CLOTHES-LINE NEARLY ABDUCTS A HOUSE

A green, untamed manila clothes-line nearly pulled a house over yesterday.

Yes, that's exactly what is meant. It happened at Kaimuki, where a citizen has recently erected a 14x14 house, constructed of second-hand tongue and groove lumber by Japanese labor.

The man of the house, wishing to economize and at the same time to furnish his wife with some healthful exercise, told his better half that he would allow her to do the washing for a spell, and in furtherance of his program purchased a couple of stout Manila clothes-lines, which he fastened at one end to his house and at the other to the fence of a neighbor's yard.

On Saturday night his wife woke him up and called his attention to the fact that there was a hole in the side of the house through which the rain was beating in. He said that he'd attend to it in the morning, and went to sleep again.

At daybreak he was awakened by rain in his face, and was startled to notice that the former tiny crack in the boards had increased to a couple of inches in width and seemed to be getting wider all the time.

Fearing a subsidence of the foundation of the house, he jumped out of bed and went out into the rain with a lantern to investigate.

For some time he was at a loss to understand what had happened. There before his very eyes the side of the house was bulging out and describing a parabola.

Then the sad truth of the matter dawned on him. The clothes-line, drenched by the rain, had shrunk, and something had to give, and it had not been the staunch Manila ropes which had remained true to the trust reposed in them.

With consummate presence of mind the man seized a k'ife and with one slash severed the faithful ropes. The side of the house resuming its normal position with a sigh as soon as the cruel steel had parted the strands.

A few well-directed blows with a sledge-hammer made everything tight and the man returned to bed to resume his disturbed repose.

In future the owner of the house will use wire clothes-lines and will see to it that they are thoroughly shrunk before they are made fast.

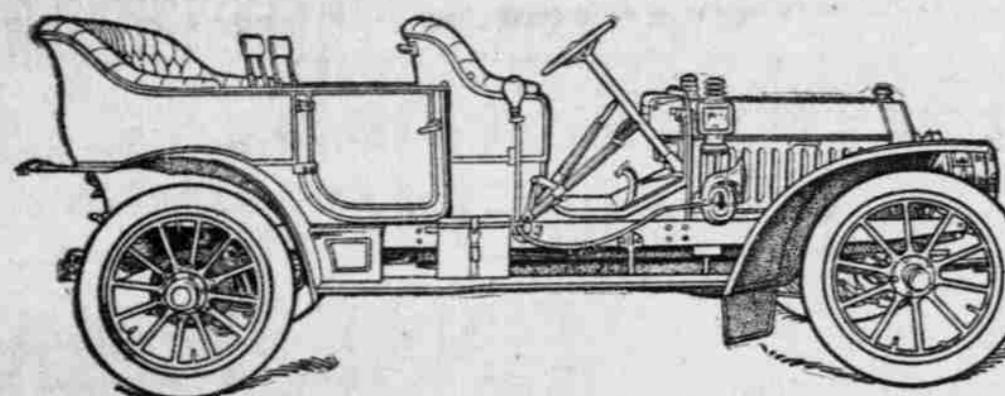

FROG MAGNATES MAY BRAND THEIR STOCK

The rain is working havoc in the with it. Such a mixup was surely never seen in the history of the local frog industry. Everybody's frogs were in somebody else's preserves and the placid creatures bellowed in sorrow and perplexity and refused to be comforted.

Every taro-patch out Kalihi way is a froggery and the greenbacks with wonderful instinct seem to know the confines of their own particular domain and respect them accordingly.

Came the big rain and an attendant overflowing of the taro-patches. When the water overflowed the frogs went

IN THE NAHKU RUBBER GROVES

Through Maui's Grand Scenery on Horseback—The Ditch Trail.

(Staff Correspondence.)

KEANAE, March 9.—How vital the matter of shipping facilities is to the cause of small farming was shown forcibly to me by Deputy Sheriff Wittrock in a conversation at Hana. He stated that sometimes the sea is too rough at Keanae for the steamer to make the landing there, and in consequence quantities of taro and other produce are left behind to rot if there are not pigs enough to feed the stuff to. In any case the articles lose their intended market. If there was a good road into Hana, where the landing is generally certain, this loss and discouragement worse than loss could be avoided. Just now there is no road at all, for the bridges are down—hence the arduous ride over the palis which the Governor and party took today.

Today was anticipated with great interest, for it was to take us through the rubber country. And it did so gloriously. For that part of the day's journey it was a juketing trip in jolly good earnest.

Before setting out a coconut planting ceremony was held upon the sand back of Hana beach, beneath a cliff at the base of Kaiwai mountain. Everything had been prepared and, at a given signal, Governor Frear and all the rest of the expeditionists each deposited a sprouted coconut in a hole and kicked some sand around it, leaving the tamping process in the hands of Japanese laborers. On leaving the beach a peep was taken into a shed to see the boat in which the shipwrecked sailors of the Eclipse had come over the ocean 900 miles.

Then all took saddle and cantered gaily out the main road through the canefields for Nahiku. Manager Chalmers accompanied the party for several miles and on taking his leave received the individual thanks of all for his princely hospitality.

The prettiest cane I ever saw was passed. Its stalks ten to thirteen feet long sprang up straight and separate like bamboo. Out of the fields the roadside reminded one strongly of the Volcano road forest. Almost every variety of Hawaiian flora seemed to luxuriate there. A marked feature, but not singular to this region of Maui, was the splendid profusion of healthy mango trees. Safe to say there are thousands of tons of this luscious fruit rotting on the island which with manufacturing enterprise and transportation facilities might be turned into profitable articles of export. The same might be said of guavas with which practically all the wild country teams.

Deputy Sheriff Wittrock's little rubber plantation of 4000 trees has been noticed in a previous letter. Other groves of rubber are also passed here and there on the road. Most of the homes seen along the way, however, are the shacks of Japanese and Korean plantation laborers. It seemed to be a sort of holiday with them, for the shacks were almost covered with Japanese or Korean flags.

About six miles out we came upon the homelike cottage of W. A. Anderson, manager of Nahiku Rubber Co., Ltd., picturesquely set upon a hillside amidst the rubber groves. The writer was proudly surprised, at the presentation of the members of the party to Mr. Anderson upon the lawn, to have himself announced as the one who was "responsible for the existence of the Nahiku Rubber Co." Mr. Anderson explained that it was through an interview the writer had with his brother—the founder and first manager of the company—and which was published in the Advertiser that the former owner of the land was led to call his brother's attention to this place as a suitable location for his projected rubber plantation.

At the house Mrs. Anderson joined her husband in welcoming the party, who were also presented to her mother, Mrs. Pollister, and sister, Miss Pollister, not forgetting either a charming little girl baby in grandma's arms, who seemed as glad to see the folks as anybody.

It was almost with dismay that preparations for breakfast were seen adorning upon the lani, for it was scarce two hours before that the pressmen had fortified with a strong Chinese, restaurant breakfast. But the wise ones of the party said it was not known when another bite would be within reach and, besides, there was the powerful lure of a heaping plate of luscious thimble berries at every place and a heaping emprise of more of the fruit in the middle of the table. Then one delicious morsel after another, the cream and eggs and nearly everything in fact being home-produced, came on and everything prepared with most delicate art, and everybody being in fine spirits, with no end of jollilying each other, before knowing it one was on the outside of a breakfast fit for a king.

Now all this should not be taken as mere prattling over side details of the gubernatorial tour. That meals can be put upon private boards in rural homes on these islands which cannot be surpassed in delectacy and nourishing quality by the cuise of any city hotel, and that nearly every viand of such meal come direct from the land and have never been inside of a store, are facts which should have the strongest promotion value. They show how people who know how can live in the country on the fruits of their own industry or enterprise.

In the few American rural homes of Hawaii there are books and music, the best current periodicals and newspapers. It is so at the home of the Andersons and Secretary Mott-Smith and Private Secretary McBride joined with Mrs. Anderson and Miss Pollister to enliven the stay there with some fine singing to piano accompaniment.

A most interesting event happened during the visit, which had an equally interesting sequel. The ladies have been experimenting in the poultry line with an incubator. Just before the party sat down to breakfast a chicken emerged from a turkey egg and announced its arrival with shrill cheeping. Mrs. Anderson at once asked Governor Frear's consent to name the baby gobbler after him, which being cordially granted the chick from that moment became known as "The Governor."

At the table there was talk of another probable arrival in the incubator and it was unanimously voted that it should be named "The Secretary," and then odds were freely offered to Mr. Mott-Smith that his namesake would turn out a duck. In consequence he wore an air of depression all day until, down at Nahiku Landing, he was called from the luncheon table at Mr. Austin's to the telephone. He returned to announce in joyous tones that another chicken had arrived at Anderson's and it was a gobbler.

After breakfast Governor Frear and others took a stroll through the nearby groves to where some trees are soon to be tapped, directly after the return of Fred. Waterhouse from Ceylon. In general the trees are looking well. The company has 160,000 trees from two to three years old. They are doing better than last year, when a kona storm did some damage. There are 70,000 more trees in the nursery stage or just planted out, 50,000 of the Ceas and 20,000 of the Hevea variety. The Ceas is the quicker growing, but the Hevea the longer lasting for profitable tapping.

With a cordial leavetaking of the hospitable Andersons the cavalcade moved on for an inspection by Superintendent Marston Campbell of the landing. At least that was the word, but there was a whole lot of enjoyable experience between places. A halt was called a little way out while Governor Frear inspected the Ulaino school, where Samuel Hawaia carries on three grades in a single room. Farther along the party were met by C. J. Austin, formerly Mr. Caw's chief assistant in plant inspection at Honolulu, who is now manager of the Hawaiian American Rubber Co. Mr. Austin has 80,000 of the Ceas trees well advanced and 50,000 of the Hevea coming along. He tells me that the Heveas are growing beautifully, in fact vying with the Ceas in rapidity of development.

We passed in sight of a rubber plantation started by Hon. H. P. Baldwin. It is in charge of Mr. Sylvester, whose wife and two little sons joined him from Portland, Maine, only last week, he having been in the islands over a year. Mr. Sylvester has planted 100 acres, or about 40,000 trees, but says he will not plant so close as 400 trees to the acre this year. He is also changing from Ceas to Hevea.

"You ought to impress on people," Mr. Austin said to me, "that rubber requires as much cultivation as any plant in the world, because there is a wrong impression that rubber will take care of itself."

In a beautiful tropic home near the landing we met Mrs. Austin, mother of the manager, together with the Sylvesters. Here a sumptuous luncheon, presided over by Mrs. Austin, was enjoyed by the party. Again were delicacies of home cookery in evidence. Immediately on arrival all were refreshed with glasses of grape juice. Joyfully abounded at the table, the good-natured badinage ending in limericks. McBride was merciless and perpetrated a personal limerick on the round robin souvenir autograph sheet passed around. His victim, gave him this one in return:

"There was a young man called McBride
Who as a poet was snide;
And when he went riding,
A gray mule bitstriding,
He lost a good pair of his hide."

Opposite the Austin place, in an old home grounds, the party inspected the original rubber tree of Nahiku. It is now a forest giant, and, to everybody's surprise, when lightly scored by Mr. Austin with his knife, freely exuded the white sap. Mr. Howell, the civil engineer, planted this tree eleven or twelve years ago, having obtained the seed from Joseph Marsden, then Commissioner of Agriculture. Its chief value has been in its living proof that Nahiku is good rubber country.

Mr. Campbell found the landing in fair condition. The engine he lately had installed to work the derrick needed some attention.

Mr. Austin discussed the road question with me in riding along. The road to the landing is not the best that could have been devised for present conditions, as it was built to suit the ill-fated Nahiku sugar plantation. It gave an uphill pull of 750 feet in two miles when an easier grade and a shorter way to Hana was available in the old route.

Returning from the landing a short pause was taken to take leave of the Austins and Sylvesters, and, a short distance beyond, the main road was left and the expedition make a break for the Koolau ditch trail. A diversion of a few rods was taken to see the head of the famous engineering work that carries water from the Hana mountains across vast gulches into Makawao district to irrigate the great plantations. With its feed ditches and tunnels it is said to be seventy miles long.

The trail follows the ditch clear through, but the ditch is not always in sight. Often it dodges under mountain spur or a mere knoll, now disappearing for a mile or miles and again in tunnels so short that daylight can be seen through them.

To one riding this trail for the first time some of its aspects are truly appalling. In fact the tenderfoot had better leave his imagination behind if it is at all controlling of his nerves, for the dangers are so obvious, so constant and so dreadful that they must be looked calmly in the face. A mitigation of the terror, in coming from the Nahiku side, is that the worst places are gradually developed until the rider becomes steeled by the familiarity that breeds contempt. Before the wagon road ends some of the features to be encountered later in the narrow trail are passed. W. F. Pogue, the ditch superintendent, who met the party above the landing, showed me where he had once lost a team. This beauty as well as giving a sense of the elevation.

It would be vain for me to attempt any adequate description of the region traversed this afternoon. Mr. Campbell remarked to me, in the midst of it, that, if tourists could only be brought along there, nothing in the Hawaiian Islands would be a greater attraction.

Mr. Aiken later told me he was working on that very proposition and hoped to have a tourist route established over the trail before long.

Many beautiful cascades were passed on the way, some of them being quite big cataracts. Some are so close to the trail as to give the traveler a cooling touch of the spray, while others have cut notches deep back into the pali.

Forest jungles are at hand all the way, a rank undergrowth blanketing the trunks of the trees. Even the steep sides of the gulch in places produce forest trees. Here and there you look straight down into the tops of trees that apparently are rooted in air, for the ground where they spring is shut from view by the narrow margin of the trail. The seedlings must have taken a horizontal start from the cliff and as they grew turned their heads upward, for there is not a ledge of earth visible, at an angle of vision of probably ninety-nine per cent, from the perpendicular, until the eye rests on the bottom of the chasm far below.

Wild bananas grow in great profusion every here and there, showing fruit of good development. In one dripping notch the bunches hung out, thirty or forty feet overhead, directly over the inner edge of the trail.

At the summit where the trail drops down to the head of Keanae valley, a rest was taken while Mr. Pogue showed the Governor and the Land Commissioner, on a map taken from a ditch labor shanty there, the location of lands that had been a subject of discussion between Mr. Pratt and him in Honolulu.

A few yards below a fairly good wagon road was taken through the valley, a distance of about three miles, into Keanae village. Plunging down a steep trail of a few rods through a thicket the cavalcade emerged at the house of D. W. Napihaa, which serves as the local hotel. In the gathering dusk, before the halt, the Stars and Stripes and the Hawaiian flag were hoisted on a flagpole in the yard.

Having taken turns at the wash basin and had an hour's rest the party were ushered into the dining room to a substantial dinner of roast pig and a great variety of other comestibles all well cooked.

Although the Governor had made it known that this was not a speechmaking tour, it was found that the people were eager to meet him and he gave way. Word was accordingly sent abroad and soon the natives—men, women and children—came flocking in with lanterns from miles around. The meeting is left for another letter.

GIFFARD WON WHITE ROCK CUP

Enthusiastic Golfers Perform Well in Miserable Weather.

The twenty-sixth tournament for the White Rock golf cup was played at the Country Club yesterday, in about as miserable weather as could have happened.

The rain, however, did not deter twenty-one of the entrants from having a crack at the mug, of whom twelve turned in their cards.

The backmarkers had all the best of the play, several of the limit men managing to get entirely lost.

Harold B. Giffard won from scratch with a net score of 85. T. Gill was next best, a couple of points to the bad and playing from the 5 mark.

Although Giffard has come near winning the cup on several occasions yesterday was the first time he has actually done the trick. The only other players who have won more than one tournament are Austin White and W. Simpson, both of whom participated in yesterday's play.

CHAMPION WHO PASSED THROUGH

B. R. Day, champion middle-distance runner of the world, who passed through here recently on his way to Australia, has sent word of three day's sport to be held in Newcastle during Easter week and in which he will take part.

The greatest galaxy of athletic talent ever gathered in England will compete. Among the famous runners are E. Eastman, champion sprinter of the United States and Canada; Arthur B. Postle, world's champion sprinter and W. Growcott, champion sprinter of Great Britain.

The events are to be under the auspices of the Newcastle Athletic Club. Prizes aggregating $1000 are offered. The meet will be in charge of Rufe Naylor.

Day while here tried to arrange an exhibition but no promoter could be found willing to handle the affair.

THE SAME OLD PUGILISTIC STORY

LOS ANGELES, March 4.—Jimmy Britt and Battling Nelson went ten rounds to a draw last night at the local fight house. It was the old story of the Battler going on all the time and James Edward going away from him and jabbing with his left to the jaw and head and occasionally shooting his right over, but not with enough stuff behind them to bother the Dane. There is no doubt but that Britt landed the majority of the punches, but Nelson did not stop for an instant and has to be given credit of having the best of the two hardest rounds, the sixth and seventh. In both of these innings the "Mayor of Copenhagen" got to the Britt boy with a lot of rough stuff that started the crowd yelling "Nelson." At that Jimmy was not badly hurt and had he held the Battler down to anything like an even break in these two rounds could have been given the decision. This was Britt's first appearance before a local audience, who did not understand his peculiar method of defense, and were more or less carried away with the rough manner with which the Nelson lad tried to fight at close quarters. But Britt covered and ducked during the spells of fighting and made Nelson miss in a manner that prevented his rugged opponent from doing any damage. Jimmy fought his own fight in his cool way and paid no attention to the yells of the crowd, urging him to go in and mix it with the Battler. For the first five divisions the Britt boy kept jabbing his left to the Dane's jaw and occasionally would slip his right over and get away with practically no return. In the sixth, however, Battling Nelson put his left to Jimmy's jaw that jarred him and kept following him with lefts and rights that had Britt covered up. The eighth was an even break, but the last two showed James Edward to advantage and doing the better work. There is no doubt that a shade decision would have favored Britt, as he outlanded Nelson by a vast majority. Neither man was very badly damaged. Britt getting a cut over the eye in the early rounds from the Battler's head, and the roughhouse lad carries a bruised nose.

Only three copies of the log were printed, and the other two are on the mainland. The log was written up by the late Prof. Louis A. E. Ahlers and is of remarkable interest, particularly at the present time, when the second

Through the courtesy of Commodore Clarence Macfarlane, the Advertiser is enabled to publish the log of the ketch Anemone, which finished second in the first transpacific yacht race, sailed two years ago.

She has no whims, and handles and steers very easily.

The yacht changed owners soon after she was launched, and was brought to New York by a member of the N. Y. Yacht Club. Mr. Tutt bought her in the fall of 1905, and sent her round the Horn to the Pacific Coast. On this trip she started December 13, 1905, with Henry Lindberg as sailing master. The latter's log shows an average cruise for winter sailing, with enough rough weather to thoroughly test the boat. The only serious accident of the trip occurred January 5, in Lat. 14 deg. 29 min. N., Long. 45 deg. 15 min. W., when a cleat, to which the main topmast backstay was fastened, carried away. Down came the main topmast, and badly tearing the balloon staysail. Main and sails were mended at once, and the new rig tried out for six days of stormy weather encountered just north of the equator.

From February 19 to March 18, the Anemone bucked bad tides and head winds in the Magellan Strait. During nearly the whole trip the captain struggled with a negligent cook and an incompetent mate (so the log reads). On May 8, after a cruise lasting 145 days, the Anemone anchored in San Diego harbor.

In San Diego Mr. Tutt joined the yacht and set to work at once to prepare her for the transpacific race. She was put in drydock, her propeller removed and bottom overhauled. The hull was found to be in first-class shape. A new main topmast and gaff were put in, and new standing rigging. A set of sails, ordered by telegraph from Ratsey & Lapthorne, New York, arrived at San Diego just ten days after being ordered.

Then the ship was painted, provisions were laid in, and she was ready for sea again.

A. K. Vierra Elected President of Riverside Baseball League.

The Riverside Baseball League held a meeting yesterday at 10 a. m. at its temporary quarters in the Judd building, to complete organization and get things in shape for the coming season, which promises to be one of the best yet.

The meeting was well attended and beside the representatives of the five clubs, a number of interested spectators were present.

The officers present were A. L. C. Atkinson, president of the league; W. Tin Chong, secretary; Edward Ayau, auditor; and the following members: B. H. Kelekollo, K. Yasumori, A. K. P. Yap, Albert Akana, Hon. S. P. Correa and John Notley, attending to the interests of the Chinese A. C., Japanese A. C., Kaala A. C., Chinese Aloha Club and the Palama A. C.

The first order of business was the election of a vice president, which was continued from the last meeting. A. K. Vierra, who is president of the Kahanamoku League, was selected to hold this position. This completed the set of officers for the year 1908, which is as follows: A. L. C. Atkinson, president; A. K. Vierra, vice president; W. Tin Chong, secretary; Robt. Asam, treasurer, and Edward Ayau, auditor. Beside these there is a Board of Arbitration, which consists of President Atkinson, Chas. Falk and John Wise.

The report of the committee on the constitution and by-laws was read and approved with a few amendments. The proposition to permit old league players to participate in the games during the coming season was killed. S. P. Correa made a strong plea against this suggestion and he succeeded in his efforts.

The league also selected a committee of five to consist of the manager of each team, to arrange the schedule. It is proposed to start the season during the latter part of next month.

The meeting adjourned to meet again at the call of the president of the league, at which time the official umpire and scorer will be appointed.

LAST YEAR'S HAWAIIAN TRADE.

Shipments of domestic merchandise from Hawaii to the United States in 1907 were valued at $31,984,433, against $29,308,104 in 1906, an increase of $2,676,329. A value of $22,284,838 was carried in American steam vessels, and of $9,699,595 in American sailing vessels. Shipments of foreign merchandise to the mainland were of $32,621 value against $20,929 in 1906. Domestic exports to the mainland in 1907 did not come up to those of 1905, when the value was $37,429,396 or $5,444,963 greater than last year. This fact is due to the higher price of sugar in 1905, when our shipments of 805,483,021 pounds of raw sugar were valued at $34,201,734, as compared with $74,347,583 pounds, or $8,864,552 more, valued at $30,111,524, or $4,090,210 less, in the year 1907. Nine times more refined sugar, moreover, was shipped in 1905 than in 1907, the values being respectively $2,001,079 and $217,750 for the two years. Following is a comparative statement for 1906 and 1907 of some of the products of Hawaii shipped to the mainland:

Shipments of domestic merchandise from the United States to Hawaii for the year 1907 amounted to $15,357,907, being an increase of $3,062,927 over the amount for the year 1906. Of the shipments last year $12,270,141 in value, or nearly as much as the total value for 1906, was carried in American steam vessels, $3,009,492 in American sailing vessels and $78,274 in foreign steam vessels. There was nearly half a million of increase in domestic merchandise imports to Hawaii from the mainland in December, the figures being $930,594 for that month of 1906 and $1,417,941 for December of 1907. Hawaii received foreign merchandise from the mainland to the amount of $374,167 in 1907, against $335,975 in 1906, an increase of $38,192.

Hawaii's imports from foreign countries were $4,478,289 in 1907, an increase over 1906 of $646,937. Imports from France were $26,380, an increase of $14,503; from Belgium $30, a decrease of $10,338; from Germany $342,780, an increase of $55,305; from Netherlands $4734, a decrease of $1581; from United Kingdom $445,315, a decrease of $225,412; from Canada $32,617, a decrease of $8298; from Chile $456,235, an increase of $41,381; from Chinese Empire $8070, an increase of $4316; from East Indies (three divisions) $748,405, an increase of $287,606; from Hongkong $335,583, an increase of $80,659; from Japan $1,665,436, an increase of $323,134; from British Oceania $402,155, an increase of $95,939; from Philippine Islands $2997, a decrease of $9270. Imports from other countries, none of which come up to $5000, are scarcely worth detailing. From British Guiana $1 is listed for 1907 and nothing for 1906.

Hawaii exported to foreign countries domestic merchandise valued at $191,662 in 1907, against $55,561 in 1906, an increase of $136,101. Shipments to Japan were $154,999, an increase of $140,155, or about $4000 more than the total increase of our foreign exports. There was a falling off of about 50 per cent in exports to Canada, the amount last year being $11,597 against $22,732 in 1906. Shipments to British Oceania were $5559, a decline of $5391. These two latter decreases, along with the import figures, show that steamship communication on the "all red" route is not developing Hawaii's commerce either north or south to a great extent, there being a net decrease in trade with those countries of $71,115 and a balance of trade against Hawaii of $417,616. Of foreign merchandise shipped from Hawaii to foreign countries there was $5522 in 1907 against $44,411 in 1906, a decrease of $38,889. This is more than accounted for by $40,000 to the United Kingdom in 1906 against $800 in 1907.

EXPERIENCE NEEDS APPLICATION.

Advising the country to "clear up the wrecks and prepare the foundations for future good, sound, safe banks and other business enterprises," the Louisville Post says:

"The experiences of the past four years in America have a profound educational value. When we fully understand them we will find like experiences recorded in other times and in other countries, and will wonder that such a repetition was necessary. It is the old story about experience being the best teacher, but it must be our own experience. The experience of others is not clearly understood until we have verified it ourselves."

If experience were all that is needed to direct the process of reform, panics are an old enough story to have worked their own prevention many decades ago. What seems to be required is an assembling at one time of all the wisdom of experience to make decision of means for applying the lessons of experience to existing conditions. The spectacle of a hundred and one different remedies proposed at once in Congress would indicate that the most essential thing lacking in financial wisdom is consolidation of the lessons of experience in shape to be applied to the ailing system. It is doubtful if the experiences of other countries, however valuable in general aspects, are adequate to guide America. The vastness of the problem of American development and the energy with which it has been and is still being tackled form a combination that has no parallel in any other country and age. That panics are shorter lived and less destructive now than in former times in this country, though the interests exposed to damage are immensely increased from thirty-five years ago when one such great crisis occurred, proves that America is gradually acquiring the capacity to stand up against its own peculiar troubles.

Hawaii, the biggest island, is the smallest contributor of the group to the transpacific yacht Hawaii. Oahu has given $8677, Kauai (the smallest of the four larger islands) $1265, Maui 475 and Hawaii $109. With the exception that Oahu has the glory of having the fine craft built here, the big island gets the only specific advertisement from the yacht, in the koa wood finish of the vessel which will proclaim, far and wide, the Hawaiian mahogany lumber industry having its seat on that island. There is $3500 estimated as yet needed to complete the yacht. Can the Island of Hawaii not provide a goodly portion of this sum for its handsome nautical namesake?

An article headed "Mastery of the Pacific" in the San Francisco Commercial News gives some particulars of the great maritime enterprise Japan is now displaying. Mention, on the other hand, is made of the withdrawal of American steamers connecting with the northern transcontinental railways, as well as of the fact that there is not an American tramp steamer on the Pacific. "This does not look much like commercial supremacy coming our way," the article concludes, "and unless Congress does something, and that quickly, all hope of supremacy must for some time be abandoned."

Professor Ahlers was one of the most desirable friends Hawaii had ever gained. The memory of the first transpacific race is sweetened from his participation in the event. His "Log of the Anemone" is something to be treasured even were the genial author not mourned. Its publication in the Advertiser begins today.

Capital like providence helps those that help themselves. San Francisco is advised that its proposed issue of $31,000,000 bonds for municipal improvements can be sold without delay in the East. Such a deal would be a deserved tribute to the energy of San Franciscans in rebuilding their city.

With the payment of dividends that were recently declared on the common and preferred stocks of the American Sugar Refining Company, an exchange states, the company will have paid more than $11,900,000 to its stockholders in the seventeen and a half years of its existence.

King Alcohol received such a jolt at Central Union church last night as might occasion the thought that possibly revolutions in Hawaii have not ceased. Any old monarchy is liable to overthrow these days.

a drinking man. Nobody will intrust expensive machinery in the hands of a man in the habit of getting ruddled through drink. Likewise, the day of the drinking professional man has passed. Nobody will consent to place his interests as to subject them to an infirm or unsteady judgment.

"Drinking is no longer fashionable. No gentlemen's club tolerates a drunkard.

"It is on the other hand the fashion to conserve and develop one's physical powers and to hold them on the basis of high efficiency. Even to Sunday baseball must be given credit that it has given to our young men new and better standards of conduct in the matter of drinking and other things vital in relation to physical health and vigor.

"I believe that the great movement for the absolute control of the liquor traffic is upon us, and I want to let you know where I stand.

"I believe the present liquor bill is the best we ever had. I believe that the liquor commissioners have done their duty and that the old liquor ring has lost its power. I think our first duty will be to maintain the present bill.

"I believe a majority of the citizens should have the right by casting their ballot to decide whether saloons be allowed in the precinct in which they live.

"I therefore favor a liberal Local Option law and let me tell you when I say I believe a thing, I mean to let you know I believe in working for it by all legal means."

WOOLLEY'S PLAIN TRUTHS.

Mr. Woolley spoke at length, eloquently urging the hearers to take up personally the fight against the liquor traffic. He spoke, as he said, not to the ones who needed the help themselves, but to the ones who could extend the help to those who did need it. Throughout, his address was practical and pointed. Without ranting, scolding or exaggerating he placed before each one present the duty he owed his fellows, urging the use of the ballot to correct the evils prevalent, urging the women to exert their influence for good by prevailing upon their voting relatives and friends to cast a temperance ballot. To this address rapier attention was paid by all present, the eloquence of the speaker holding the audience and the strong points made evidently sinking deeply.

Some of the most telling sentences of the temperance leader in his address were:

"I believe that liquor drinking is as good as liquor selling; I believe that liquor selling is as good as license selling; I believe that license selling is as good as passing license laws, and I believe that passing license laws is as good as voting for a man who will do it. We are all mixed up in this matter and none can afford to throw stones at the others."

"The liquor evil is a million-footed centipede, with the virus of sorrow, shame, greed, insanity and crime dripping from every foot."

"A victory for temperance in these Islands would stir the heart of the mainland. We can not bridge over or dry up the two thousand miles of blue Pacific, but we can close up the ranks of temperance and make the movement a truly national one."

"I am minding my own business. I have business and a right to be present at any spot on this planet where men and women are reaching out for the throat of the liquor traffic."

"We must confess with shame that at this time, when the great white fleet, the most powerful fleet that ever sailed in this ocean, or any ocean, sails into the harbor of Honolulu and the vessels drop their anchors and twenty thousand boys become the guests of the city, the greater part of the hospitality towards them will be represented by half a hundred drink shops. I understand that the brewery here is working overtime to manufacture beer that the supply in the saloons for these boys will not give out. This ought not to be so. It ought not to be permitted. That brewery should not be allowed to belch its black breath out into these blue skies and be such a desecration to this wonderfully-beautiful community."

"We are going to win this fight. I am past middle age, but I expect to live to get my foot on the neck of this traffic and to see the day when no saloon will be allowed to insult women, starve children or debauch men."

"There is but one thing worse than the liquor traffic today, and that is scolding. Scolding wives send their husbands back to the saloons; scolding fathers drive their boys away from home; scolding preachers, scolding teachers and scolding agitators are unintelligent and unpatriotic. From them, Good Lord, deliver us all."

"There is not enough of brotherhood in Honolulu. There is not enough brotherhood between the Caucasian and the Oriental, between the well-to-do whites and the natives, between those who live on the hill and those who live on the beach."

"Men, help the man who would be as good a man as you are if he had the same chance you have. Women, help the women, just as good as you are, to have husbands just as good as yours are."

HONOLULU'S HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS

Among the Opium Dens of Chinatown---Many Whites Among the Smokers---The Kodak Drives All to Cover.

Fifty white men in Honolulu "hit the pipe" in the opium dives that exist to the number of a score or so in the heart of Chinatown. So one of the Chinese habitues of the joints informed an Advertiser investigator last week. And from the look of the joint where the information was given it was rather easy to believe that any white man who would go there would do anything. This place was in the rear of the row of dirty tenements facing mauka on Pauahi street, near River. Every room in the back of that building on the ground floor except one is an opium joint and on the day of the visit was crowded with Chinese, many of whom were busily inhaling the white fumes from the burning dope or sleeping off their debauches. Tucked away in the corners of bunks, laid out on mats on the floor and even slid out of the limited way under the bunks were poppy-soaked figures, pallid-faced, and in many instances bare-footed and ragged, deep in sleep, dreaming of Elysium, while over and about them swarmed the teeming other patrons and proprietors of the dives.

There were no white men there, at least in evidence. White dope fiends do not expose themselves in the careless way that the Chinese do. Some and many hundreds of extra punks smoked in propitiation before grinning josses. But hitting the pipe is decreasing because the number of old Chinamen in Honolulu is decreasing. The Hawaiian-Chinese do not to any number indulge in the vice.

This is not because they do not have plenty of opportunity to see plenty of it. In the very thickest of the hop joint section, in the building shown in the picture here given, a score of bright-eyed little chaps attend a private school. The contrast between the joints downstairs and the little hall of learning upstairs is great. On the one hand grime, slothfulness and vice; on the other tidiness, youth and industry. Below, pigtailed and talon-like finger nails; above, closely cropped poll and chubby fists curved to top spinning and marbles. The boys attend this school after the hours of the public schools. They will all be voters here some day.

Down at Pearl City, just across the track from the railroad station, there is a Chinese school in the front room and just through the open door are an opium joint and an opium pipe repairing shop. While at their noisy classes these children can see the dopesters at work.

CHINESE ATHLETICS.

There is nothing attractive about an opium dive. Dark, stinking with the exhalations of those who overcrowd the little rooms, floors and windows dirt begrimed and filthy, and everywhere the reek and gurgle of the opium, there is nothing to remind the casual visitor of the fairy tales that are sometimes related of the palaces of Nirvana, where amid Oriental splendor the white slaves of the drug indulge themselves in vice. As a matter of fact the opium dens among the whites are less fastidious than the Chinese themselves and with even less excuse. The photograph published herewith of the entrances to the dives in the one particular building, gives but a faint conception of the squalor of the place. Prior to the

GIVEN UP BY SPECIALISTS

CURED BY DOAN'S BACKACHE KIDNEY PILLS.

Miss Emma Shirley, of Kill Buck, N. Y., says: "Kidney trouble mysteriously fastened itself upon me and I ran down so rapidly that in a short time I was a nervous wreck. I had no strength and was so weak and had so much pain I could hardly totter about. I was down in bed for weeks, and could hardly turn over. When I got up I was so nervous, that if anyone looked at me I was ready to cry. My eyesight failed, headaches and dizzy spells racked me, and I had terrible pain in the side. I could not retain my food, my complexion was pasty, and all the time the kidney secretions were awfully irregular. I went to Buffalo and was treated by renowned doctors, but only sank lower and lower until my friends gave me up to die. Through a friend I learned of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and after taking two boxes, felt very much better. I kept on until I had used twelve boxes, and was then so greatly improved that I was able to go home to Kill Buck. This was within four weeks after I left my bed, and I hardly dared hope I was well, but so it proved. Though I had lost 18 pounds while in bed, I recovered that and six pounds more. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills saved my life, and I shall never quit praising them."

CONGESTED CONDITIONS.

Throughout that section of the city between Nuuanu, and River, and King, and Beretania, each block is a perfect network of connecting buildings. Back in the centers of these blocks only enough ground is left unbulldozed to allow little alleys, over which, from the second stories and roofs runways back and forth connect the buildings and provide plenty of get-away whenever the police descend on the inmates. These runways are principally

The only arrivals yesterday were the steamers W. G. Hall, Iwani and Despatch. The first and last-named were from Kauai, and the other steamer came from Maui and Molokai ports. The water in the harbor was muddled by the southerly blow and the incessant rain added to the general dismalness of the waterfront aspect. On the reef the breakers thundered all day long, the white surf showing snowily against the leaden sky.

COLUMBIAN ON DRYDOCK.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—As a result of running aground at Salina Cruz on her last voyage the American-Hawaiian Company's freighter Columbian will go into the Hunters' Point drydock on Tuesday. While in dock the Columbian will have her stern post straightened and several blades of her propellers replaced. The Columbian had 14,000 tons of sugar aboard when she grounded at Salina Cruz.

IRMGARD IN A GALE.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—Captain Christiansen of the bark Irmgard, which arrived yesterday from Honolulu, was compelled to heave his vessel to for six hours just before reaching port, owing to a gale which was blowing outside the Heads on Friday night. Notwithstanding the time lost during the gale the Irmgard made a fast passage during favorable weather, occupying fourteen days only on the passage from the island port. The Irmgard brought 17,867 bags of the new season's sugar consigned to Williams, Dimond & Co.

SCHOONERS COMING.

The American schooner Borealis sailed from Everett for Honolulu yesterday, and the American schooner W. H. Marston sailed from San Francisco for this port yesterday.

HILONIAN NEXT WEDNESDAY.

The Matson steamship Hilonian is due here next Wednesday morning from San Francisco. She is now on her way here and she brings a good cargo of freight and a considerable number of passengers.

ECLIPSE WRECKAGE.

The British ship Daylight, which reached San Francisco three weeks ago from Newcastle with coal, reported having sighted spars from the ill-fated ship Eclipse, which foundered January 11 at a point 900 miles north of Hawaii, on February 8, in latitude 20 degrees 44 minutes north, longitude 151 degrees 53 minutes west, or about 300 miles south and 240 miles east of the place where Captain Larsen and his crew abandoned the Eclipse a month before.

THE RITHET.

The American bark R. P. Rithet is now at the railroad wharf and is ready to load sugar for the Coast.

FRENCH BOATS COMING.

VICTORIA, B. C., February 28.—The Chargeurs Reunis, the French steamship company which engages in round-the-world service, is making arrangements to establish a transpacific steamship service in which the company's steamers Caravellas, 1971 tons, and Canarias, 1971 tons, will be used, running between Japanese ports and San Francisco by way of Honolulu with steamings every forty-five days. The new service will commence in May.

Following the coming of the French steamers Caravellas and Canarias into this new transpacific service in May, the round-the-world liners will run from Yokohama to this port.

The Chargeurs Reunis has made a traffic arrangement with the Canadian-Pacific Railroad under which the shippers by the French steamers will be given through bills of lading on all overland cargo.

DIX RETURNING TO SOUND.

TACOMA, March 1.—The United States transport Dix is expected to leave Manila any day on her return passage to Puget Sound. She left early in February, arriving in the Philippines February 10, and has since been discharging. She is expected to arrive on the Sound about April 15.

TO SAIL TODAY.

The A.-H. S. S. Nebraskan and the Japanese steamer Kasato Maru will sail today for Kahului and Yokohama, respectively.

The fence commission for the Makaha District met on the eleventh instant and rendered their decision in the matter of fences to be built between certain lands owned or controlled by the Raymond Ranch and the Wallace estate and the Keahi estate. The commission ordered a post and wire fence to be built between the lands of the ranch and the land of those two estates and ordered that the same be completed in sixty days from March 11.

James A. Wilder and Dr. Clark of Detroit, Michigan, came up on the Kinaus Tuesday to spend a camping vacation on East Maui. They expect to camp out all of the time and will pitch their tent wherever they choose. They will travel through the unsurpassed scenic beauty of Keanae and Nahiku. Some fine pictures from the talented hand of Mr. Wilder may be expected from this trip.

ACTS 20.

And after the uproar ceased, Paul having sent for the disciples and exhorted them, took leave of them, and departed to go into Macedonia. 2 And when he had gone through those parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece. 3 And when he had spent three months there, and a plot was laid against him by the Jews as he was about to set sail for Syria, he determined to return through Macedonia. 4 And there accompanied him as far as Asia, Sopater of Berea, the son of Pyrrhus; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and Galus of Derbe, and Timothy; and of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus. 5 But these had gone before, and were waiting for us at Troas. 6 And we sailed away from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days; where we tarried seven days.

7 And upon the first day of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread, Paul discoursed with them, intending to depart on the morrow; and prolonged his speech until midnight. 8 And there were many lights in the upper chamber where we were gathered together. 9 And there sat in the window a certain young man named Eut

PEACE DISTURBER'S REVENGE.

Wahine Hookano took a deep revenge on the police after she had been run in on Saturday night for disturbing the peace around her home near the corner of Queen and Richards streets. "If you lock me up I will raise my voice all night," she announced to the receiving clerk at the station, or words to that effect. These were not her exact words, because it was something besides her voice that she threatened to raise. True to her promise she howled lustily from eleven o'clock until daylight yesterday morning, driving sleep away from the eyes of all but the drunkest of the other prisoners. Then, when the rest got up after a sleepless night, Wahine settled down and slumbered.

SEVEN FLASKS IN HIS POCKETS.

Seven pint flasks of whiskey judiciously distributed about his person were found when Gerardia Beliro was searched at the police station on Saturday afternoon. Beliro was a fireman on the transport Thomas who was discharged here for drunkenness and impertinence to the officers, his arrest following an attempt to force his way back on the vessel after he had been escorted down the gangplank by members of the crew on the order of the second officer. Until the searchers began on their work there was no suspicion that he had a deck load of booze as well as being full 'tween decks.

A young soldier giving his name as Kraft was arrested yesterday as a deserter and lodged in the police cells. He is a member of the Fourth Infantry and claims to have been left behind by accident when his regiment sailed. He will be turned over to the authorities at Fort Shafter this morning. When first questioned by the police he claimed to be a soldier from the fort, but as he did not know the name of the captain of the company he said he belonged to and was equally ignorant of the name of the commanding officer at the fort his story fails to get him a release.

The funeral of Antonio Joaquin Lopez took place yesterday afternoon. A service was conducted in San Antonio hall, under the auspices of the San Antonio Benevolent Society, and the interment took place in the Catholic cemetery on King street. The funeral was attended by many friends of deceased, who died at Waialua last Monday at the age of eighty years, leaving a wife and seven minor children.

Thomas Jones, with enough aboard to give him the idea that his importance entitled him to a clear right-of-way, smote Lau Tung in the eye yesterday morning on Vineyard street, near River, justifying himself by the fact that the Chinaman failed to get out of his road in the way he should. Thomas is now considering how pride goes before a fall, in a cell at the police station, where he is charged with assault and battery.

A RUNAWAY GIRL AGAIN THIS EVENING

The Lilliputians will appear again in "A Runaway Girl" tonight at the Orpheum and the prospects are for another packed house.

The company made an excellent impression on Saturday and it seems to be generally agreed that it is a long time since Honolulu has been treated to such a finished performance as was given on the opening night.

The schedule of plays is as follows: Monday—"A Runaway Girl." Tuesday and Wednesday—"The Toy Maker."

Thursday and Friday—"The Belle of New York."

Saturday and Monday—"The Geisha."

There seems to be some misapprehension as to the numbering of the tickets for the season. Each night is given a separate number, tonight's number being 2 and next Monday's 8.

Mr. Wyss—My dear, I wish you would arrange your hair the way you had it last evening. Mrs. Wyss—Oh, Justin! I simply can't do that. It completely changes my appearance. Mr. Wyss (quietly)—I am fully aware of that, my love.—New York Globe.

SEAMEN ENTERTAINED BY THEIR FRIENDS

A most delightful entertainment, arranged by Mrs. G. P. Wilder, was held at the Seamen's Institute, Sailors' Home building, on Saturday evening, to the hearty appreciation of the large number of our maritime visitors and fellow citizens whose privilege it was to be able to attend.

The concert commenced at 8:15. Judge Lindsay taking the chair with an excellent program of varying items among which was a violin and piano duet by Mr. and Mrs. Love which was heartily encored, as was also the song by Mrs. Alex. Lindsay, whose sweet voice and charming manner won for her much well deserved applause.

John Catton was also highly successful in winning Jack's heart by a Highland fling. Mr. Patterson's well rendered song, Mr. Hugh Minchin's recitation and the comic songs of Mr. Bone were all heartily applauded. Several other items were rendered including songs, choruses, etc., in which "all hands" joined with their lusty voices.

F. W. Everton, addressing the house, spoke of the extensive improvements which the building was about to undergo and of the kindly interest which Honolulu people take in this most useful institution. A vote of three cheers for Mrs. Wilder, Judge Lindsay and all the entertainers terminated the concert.

Light refreshments were then served and the evening closed with the impromptu singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." It was one of the pleasant musical evenings periodically held at the Institute which do us all good and manifest our appreciation of honorable seafaring men upon whom we so largely depend.

Be sure and drop in at this popular drug store and ask for a glass of Tansan—absolutely no charge, and an attractive geisha girl from the Orient will furnish you with this delicious beverage. Tansan is unique among mineral waters, because it is genuine. The fact that all the navies of the world, as well as all transpacific steamship lines, use it exclusively, is sufficient proof for the ordinary mortal. At any rate, you can sample it at Hollister's for the asking. Tansan excites the appetite and stimulates the native functions. Ring up 171 and order a case and try it. The only Al water in Honolulu.
