JAP STRIKERS APPEAR TO BE WEAKENING

Agitators Hurry Down to the Plantations to Brace Them Up.

LATEST FROM THE STRIKE.

From what could be gathered of the results of yesterday's developments in the strike situation, it is believed that the strikers are weakening and that they did not move toward Honolulu, especially from Waipahu and Aiea, with the alacrity hoped for by the agitators. For this reason, it is said that Makino, Negoro, the editor of the Nippu, and other subordinates, made a special trip in an auto not only to Aiea and Waipahu, but to Waialua and Kahuku as well, in order to stir up more enthusiasm and to cause the leaders on the plantations to force the strikers into a firmer attitude toward the planters. A report reached this office late last night that only two hundred men came to town yesterday. Around the plantation offices yesterday it was understood that a very large number of the Japanese preferred not only to remain on the plantation, but to actually go back to their work, but some peculiar influence of the leaders held them back.

Although strikes have been called and responded to on all of the Oahu island plantations, save one, yet every plantation is working right ahead as if under normal conditions, but, of course, at greater expense. The strikers on both the Waipahu and Aiea plantations were paid off yesterday, the laborers left their quarters taking all their effects, and the majority came to town by rail, and are now being quartered about Chinatown by the agitators of the Higher Wage Association. The much-vaunted parade with bands and banner and a great hurrahing which was to have started from Waipahu and ended at Aala Park, failed to materialize. The strikers were too much engrossed with stowing away their baggage and household effects in the villages to put themselves in a line of march. Those who came to town did so over the Oahu railroad line.

The strikers have now transferred their battling ground to Honolulu and the entire matter will have to be threshed out here. The agitators say they have collected a very large sum. Just how much it is they do not tell, nor will the rank and file have much opportunity to ascertain. This fund, so it is claimed by the agitators, will be used to maintain the strikers in the Japanese hotels and to keep them supplied with food. It is argued that in the maintenance the expense of administration will be found to be very large when the final accounting takes place. When the strikers were paid off yesterday each put up $1.50 for the "strike fund."

Last Day at Waipahu.

Yesterday was a busy day in Waipahu village, as far as the Japanese strikers were concerned, for from early morning until afternoon there was a general exodus from the quarters. Past the office and down the dusty roads into the village scores and hundreds passed and repassed. First came a few men with their entire belongings gathered into two sacks and suspended from either ends of shoulder poles. They trotted along under the weight of their visible assets and were glad to stop at a Japanese shop in the village street. Then came carts laden with high-piled baggage. One of them had a couple of trunks, a telescope valise, discolored wooden shoes hanging by a string, a small broom, and a wee Japanese baby. The father pulled the load and the mother trotted along behind with a steadying hand on the luggage. The load was typical.

Now came a broad-shouldered Japanese, old and seamy-faced, carrying a heavy trunk on his back. He was impelled by one thought—to get away from his quarters and drop his load at a convenient store. There he bickered with the proprietor for storage under the floor or in a shed.

Like War-time Exodus.

Here was a wife and husband and two children. Their belongings were tied up in sheets and two telescope valises, but in spite of the weight, a sake-tub, in which a flowering pink was conspicuous, was carried along. There was a red-dust-covered wagon piled high with trunks, valises and a bedroom set showing the owners to be above the ordinary laborer as to the possession of world's goods. In the back of the wagon was a crate and inside it a huge sow, grunting her disapproval. A row of sake tubs filled with flowers was just under the nose of the beast, who sniffed contemptuously at the fragrant blossoms. Here was a baby-carriage plied up with household goods, the baby being strapped to the mother's back to make room for them.

Most of the strikers carried lamps. And so they straggled on and on until Waipahu village was filled with the unemployed. The sides of the streets were strewn with baggage, although there were gaps in the line, and it was easy to discover the reason. Behind those gaps were Chinese shops, and the Japanese were boycotting them.

Makino Gets Their Money.

All forenoon the Japanese seemed to be just waiting, and finally they became listless. Up around the plantation office they swarmed, but only to draw their pay, as notices had been set up by Manager Bull notifying them that they must get their pay and vacate the quarters at 12 o'clock, so the homes could be occupied by other laborers. Men and women brought in their "bangles" of brass, received their time checks, pocketed their money and walked away.

Nearby at two tables were representatives of the Makino agitator crowd, and each man who received his pay was expected to stop at one of the tables and pay over $1.50, for which a receipt was given. This was each man's enforced contribution to the "strike fund." They were told that by so contributing they could depend upon lodging and food in Honolulu.

They were not a cheerful-looking crowd. There was a feeling among the plantation men that the Japanese did not expect the plantation to carry out their eviction order, but that at the eleventh hour they would be told to return to work. But they were mistaken if they had such an idea in their heads. The plantation management was never so firmly resolved to carry out an order as then.

Strike Among Strikers.

Then it was learned that the contractors did not want to accept their pay, but that the strikers in general demanded that they draw down their money. The contractors, more than anyone else, knew that this would involve considerable loss to them, for they had broken their contracts, and when paid off their fields of cane would yield no profits to them. One of the contractors, Watanabe, had to be sent for. He, however, may not have wished to collect, for various reasons, and one was that he had been garnisheed during the forenoon for about $500, the suit being brought by a Japanese merchant of Honolulu.

JAPANESE CONSUL IS MISREPRESENTED

Various wild rumors are rife on the streets in the Japanese sections of the city. Higher wage leaders have told the strikers, for example, that the Consul is in sympathy with the agitation and is aiding it. In point of fact, the Consul is taking no part beyond giving wholesome advice against acting hastily. The laborers, however, have been made to believe the story, and they say that the Consul has contributed, or is going to contribute, $5000 towards the relief fund, and that in case no concession is made by the planters, he will order Japanese transports to come to Hawaii to take them away en masse.

Under such misrepresentations of the higher wage agitators, the laborers left their plantation homes.

The wily leaders of the strikes seem to have taken advantage of the Consul's silence and misrepresented him in various inconceivable ways. It is said that quite a number of town Japanese, mostly servants in white families, were induced to "dig up" from their scanty savings to conform with the supposed wishes of the Consul.

JUVENILE COURT NOW IN ACTION

Judge Whitney Sends a Boy to Reform School Until Majority.

The Juvenile Court is now in full swing, with Circuit Judge Whitney acting as interpreter of the law that was drawn up by himself while he was serving as chief deputy to Attorney General Hemenway.

Judge Whitney judges the youth of the land in his chambers, and has already indicated that he believes leniency and advice go farther than summary punishment. Samuel Smith, however, did not yield to the gentle and persuasive influence, and as a result Samuel is bound for the Boys' Industrial School, to there remain until he is qualified to become a voter.

The boy was brought before Judge Whitney last week and was allowed to go at liberty upon his promise to secure a position and report back to the judge of the Juvenile Court on Wednesday. He did not return, however, but did secure a position and made use of the opportunity to sell a bicycle that did not belong to him and spend the proceeds in a general jollification. Judge Whitney does not like to send youthful offenders to the reform school, but he was reluctantly forced to decide that it was the best place for Samuel in view of his apparent frailties.

The Question of Straus.

Attorney Leon Straus must make explanations, Attorney General Hemenway having been asked by Judge De Bolt to investigate the conduct of Straus in connection with two divorce cases in which Attorney Clem K. Quinn appeared.

It seems that Quinn did all of the work in connection with drawing the divorce papers and appearing in court, and that Straus secured the fees and costs, neither of which got farther than his own pocket. To this Quinn has naturally objected, and his statement of the circumstances to Judge De Bolt convinced the latter that Straus' conduct was well worthy the attention of the Attorney General.

The charges against Straus arise mainly in connection with the divorce action instituted by Mrs. Nellie Thomas against her husband, King C. Thomas. Mrs. Thomas is a victim of consumption and can live but a few weeks at the most. Her husband, an ablebodied man, was summoned to appear in court yesterday and explain why he had not obeyed a court order to pay the costs of the divorce action. It was then that Attorney Quinn made explanations, and his references to Straus' conduct convinced Judge De Bolt that the charges should be investigated.

COL. PARKER'S PLANS FOR MANOA VALLEY

Colonel Samuel Parker, who has recently purchased the pretty McClanahan home in upper Manoa Valley, has informed a couple of the county supervisors that if the county can not at present afford to repair the road in Manoa to the upper end, he will be glad to foot the bill if the road is built by contract, and the county can pay him later on when it is flush. It is quite likely that this generous offer will be accepted.

It is said that Colonel Parker may send for his son Ernest Parker to come back to Honolulu to refurnish and redecorate his new home, which is to be made one of the show places of the suburbs, and a home of good fellowship.

ARMY, NAVY AND MARINE CORPS

The Commercial Club Banquet for the Service Officers.

Uncle Sam's army, navy and marine corps were honored last evening by the Honolulu Commercial Club at a dinner at which the most cordial relations between the services and the commercial interests of the Hawaiian Islands were expressed. The banquet hall was not only attractive with its garnishment of flowers and palms, but a dash of the picturesque was added by the uniforms of the officers present. The utmost of cordiality reigned and as the evening passed along the guests were entertained with a musical program of rare excellence. In addition to the orchestral selections of Sonny Cunha and musicians, solos were rendered by Messrs. Henry Clark, R. J. Buehly, James Dougherty and A. Casceres. Encores were demanded from all. Mr. Dougherty sang some topical songs with local hits which convulsed the guests.

Mr. James Wakefield was toastmaster, and in calling for toasts, said:

"Gentlemen: We have the honor and privilege of entertaining as our guests this evening the commandants and officers of the navy and army who are stationed in our Islands. Gentlemen of the navy and army, on behalf of the governors and members of the Commercial Club of Honolulu, I bid you a very hearty welcome, not only as men whose presence with the ones under your command add to the safety and prosperity of our Island Territory, but, as men with whom we desire a closer acquaintance and comradeship in our club and social life generally.

"Gentlemen, as members of the Commercial Club, we are naturally watching with great interest the development of the naval and army establishments here, because it means locally a continuance of safety to life and property, and a prosperous community as a whole, but better still the development of the naval and army depots here will bring us into closer touch with the wider issues of national life. This means much to a community isolated as we are, for no national life in the world has the breadth and possibilities and prospects that the United States possess today.

"We are most fortunate in having at the nation's helm, William Howard Taft, a man whose experience of life and great capabilities, is matched only by his breadth of sympathy with all classes. Yale men the world over naturally point to him with great pride and claim for Yale all the honors of last November, but the most ardent of Yale's followers must fall in line and admit that it was the magnificent interference of Harvard that rolled up the grand score that placed Mr. Taft in the presidential chair. But gentlemen, Mr. Taft is not merely a high-grade college man and diplomat, he is essentially a statesman for the people and as such I ask you to join me in drinking to the health of President William Howard Taft."

Rising toasts were proposed to the Navy and the Army, Captain Rees, U. S. N., commandant of the naval station, and Colonel Walter S. Schuyler, Fifth Cavalry, U. S. A., responding. Captain Rees said a welcome was scarcely needed, for the Army and Navy had had a thousand welcomes, and if they all lived a thousand years they could never repay them. The glad hand was extended always to the services by Honolulu. The Navy had been with Hawaii ever since the Islands became known to the United States, and had formed a part of the history of the Islands and helped them in difficulties. The captain concluded by reading some verses of his own composition, entitled "Oahu," written when he was here in 1876, which were applauded.

Colonel Schuyler, responding for the Army, spoke in a humorous vein and told of his first visit here ten years ago as colonel of a volunteer regiment, when he and his men created a sensation. He asked his 1400 troops on arrival what they wanted to do here. They wanted to go swimming. The colonel consulted the chief of police, and that official said he could take them to a nice place. On the way the colonel confessed that the department did not furnish his regiment with bathing suits. The chief, however, took them to Waikiki, where the bottom was nice and corally, and the regiment bathed. The next day there was a comment in the newspaper by some one who objected very strongly to naked men bathing in the open. The chief confessed to him that he had forgotten to state that all the cottages along the beach were provided with opera glasses. (Laughter.) Speaking seriously, he said if his good fairy godmother asked him what he wished for most he would ask for a silver tongue to express on behalf of the Army its appreciation for the hospitality which Honolulu had shown the service, and he concluded by saying "Aloha nui to Hawaii nei."

The banquet comprised one of the finest menus the Commercial Club has ever attempted, under the direction of Steward Hamilton.

The guests of honor and the members of the club were as follows:

Fifth Cavalry—Col. W. S. Schuyler, Lieut.-Col. T. K. Hunter, Major F. W. Foster, Capt. J. W. Jenkins, Capt. H. O. Williard, Capt. C. S. Haight.

HOME FOR AGED BALDWIN'S PLAN

Maui Philanthropist Provides for Institution That Is Needed.

Through the public-spirited philanthropy of Mr. H. P. Baldwin, the Territory of Hawaii will soon have a home for the aged, in memory of Fred C. Baldwin, to be located at Makawao, Maui. Plans for the home are being prepared by Architect Kerr, and active construction work will be undertaken in about two months' time, when Mr. Baldwin will have returned from a trip to the mainland.

The first buildings of the home will accommodate about forty people, and provision will be made for the extension and enlargement of the home to meet the requirements of the future. Homelike accommodations and privacy are the two essentials that Architect Kerr has obtained in the preliminary plan for the home that he has drawn up.

The buildings that will be first constructed will consist of four cottages, two to consist of eight rooms each and two to have six rooms. There will be a general sitting-room in each cottage. The cottages will be connected with the main building by verandas, the general plan of the buildings calling for the adaptation of the quadrangle system.

In the main building will be located the quarters for the help, offices, dining-room, hospital and auxiliary departments. In the center of the grounds there will be a sun bath, a swimming pool and a pergola.

The site for the home has been set aside by the Maui Agricultural Company and is an excellent one for the purpose in view. Particular attention has been made so as to allow for the enlargement of the home in the future if it be found necessary.

It is estimated that the cost of the buildings now planned will amount to $30,000, all of which has been contributed by Mr. Baldwin.

Manoa water users are complaining of a lack of water in the pipes from about 4:45 to after 6 p. m., just at the time when it is badly needed for culinary and ablution purposes. It is suggested that the time for shutting off the water, if necessary at all, be changed an hour earlier.

JAP STRIKERS APPEAR TO BE WEAKENING

Think They Will Return.

Many of the head men of this plantation apparently expected that they would be taken back, for some of them asked Portuguese laborers to care for some potted plants "until they came back." This was considered "nerve" on their part.

Crocodile Tears.

On Friday Manager Bull and all the white employes received invitations from the Waipahu Higher Wage Association, as follows:

"Waipahu, Oahu, May 21, 1909.

"Mr. Edward K. Bull, Manager.

"Dear Sir: All Waipahu Japanese are very glad your attendance at the meeting which will be held in Japanese school tomorrow before the withdrawal to say goodbye. Yours very truly,

"WAIPAHU HIGHER WAGE ASSOCIATION."

Neither Manager Bull nor his assistants attended the meeting. Their connection with the Japanese ended at 12 o'clock noon, when the last pay went over the counter. A visit to the schoolhouse at 12:30 was not inspiring. A number of Japanese lay asleep in the main room of the temple and in the school room. A Japanese banged away on the sonorous copper gong to call the strikers in, but few answered the metal summons, and those who did came slowly. At 1 o'clock about eighty were present. They were a sullen-looking lot of men.

Scene of Activity.

In and around the mill there was activity. The strikebreakers were bringing fresh-looking yellow cane to the mill, where it was sent up the chute into the rollers and reduced to juice in the usual way. Attendants were all along its route. The centrifugals were manned by strikebreakers, with expert Chinese workmen in general charge. The saccharine product, yellow and glistening, was raked down and funneled into sacks by strikebreakers, placed in rows and sewn by Portuguese women. Over in the warehouse the big sacks were neatly piled by strikebreakers. There was not a break anywhere in the line of cane from field to the sack, and Manager Bull was satisfied. It was more expensive, but the sugar was going into the sacks, and that was the principal thing. Today many skilled carpenters will arrive from Honolulu and take up quarters in the buildings vacated by the Japanese. The buildings were scoured out yesterday.

Where Was Marching Host?

But the much-talked-of procession from Waipahu to town was not much in evidence. The Waipahu brass band composed of Japanese was not conspicuous. Only one member wearing the uniform trousers was found. Those who came to Honolulu came by train. And so it was all along the line.

Lightfoot Mixes In.

Down at Honolulu plantation, Attorney Lightfoot, accompanied by Makino, Negoro and others, held a meeting, and the contractors were advised not to accept the amount tendered them by the plantation, Mr. Lightfoot pointing to a clause in the contract as if to sustain his contention that the contractors were not bound to accept the $16 offered them in settlement. This caused a halt in the proceedings of getting the Japanese strikers off the plantation. Manager Ross came to town and had a conference with the agents and others, and then returned to the scene of action.

Strike Headquarters.

There are two sets of strike headquarters in town, one in the Yamashiro Hotel, the proprietor being one of the principal agitators, and the other on Aala street, where sacks of rice are piled high and labeled as rice for strikers. It was to the latter place that a delegation of strikers from Aiea went on the arrival of the 1:30 p. m. train yesterday. They came to town with their light luggage. At the Aala street headquarters they were lined up, excited headquarters clerks went over lists and finally the bunch was set in motion again and this time up Beretania avenue, across the river, into Chinatown. And so they will be taken care of until the agitators tire of the matter and the strikers fall apart, and then the Consul may expect his hands full.

On Aala lane a large tent was erected yesterday and long tables set up. Here a large number of strikers will be fed. While the tables were being placed, strikers sat about eagerly waiting for the arrival of food. The strike commissary man says that there are about 2500 bags of rice and hundreds of tubs of soy ready for the strikers. They claim to have $30,000 subscribed.

The Waialua Demands.

In his statement to the press yesterday President Tenney of Waialua plantation stated that the labor situation on the plantation is the same as heretofore reported, all the Japanese laborers being at work. They have presented a written request for increased wages, along the lines of the requests made on the other striking plantations. The requests of the Japanese laborers were presented in the following letter to the manager:

W. W. Goodale, Manager Waialua Agricultural Co.

Dear Sir: We beg to respectfully request the following raise of wages:

1. That the wages of the common field hands, teamsters, the mill-hands, the lunas, and of all other kinds of laborers, be increased by eight dollars ($8) per month of twenty-six working days. Provided, however, that the wages for one Sunday's work be paid at the rate of two days' work of the secular week days; and provided further that the overtime work be paid at fifteen cents per hour.

2. That the hour of labor per day of the mill-hands be limited to ten hours a day; and that the hours worked beyond that be considered as overtime, and be paid at fifteen cents per hour.

3. That the wages of the cane carriers and cane cutters be increased ten cents per ton.

4. That the price of cane raised on contract be increased to $1.35.

5. That sugar room wages be increased by ten cents per ton.

6. That the scatter cane contract be increased to $1.30 per ton.

In making these requests we beg to state the following as the grounds therefor:

Equal to Other Labor.

1. The efficiency of Japanese labor is equal to labor of other nationalities, who are being paid $24 and a cottage on good ground besides, and to those strikebreakers now employed in the Aiea and Waipahu plantations, who are being paid $1.25 in addition to the railroad fare both from and back to Honolulu.

Food is Higher.

2. The prices of daily necessities have increased by twenty-five per cent. since the present wage schedule has been adopted.

Home in Hawaii.

3. We have decided to make Hawaii our home, in consequence of which the number of dependents, the women and children, have increased, and there is a tendency to still further increase.

4. The present wages are insufficient to support our wives and children in decent, respectable condition.

5. The number of temples built and to be built and supported by the laborers have increased, adding to the laborers' expenditures.

6. The expenditures for social intercourse have increased in consequence of formation of family by us, the laborers.

7. The laborers with family to support cannot provide for old age, the ordinary daily expenditures absorbing all the laborers' earnings.

Such being our request and grounds therefore, we have the pleasure to thank you in advance for your kind and favorable consideration.

Very respectfully yours,

(Signed): Oguro Rinzo, Chu Tatsutaro, Fujikawa Magohachi, Yeto Kiyoshi, Ishii Ushizo, Hayashi Tsunejiro, Seki Shonosuke, Sata Chokichi, representatives Japanese laborers.

Manager's Answer.

Goodale's reply is as follows:

"Your letter of May 21, is at hand, in which you ask that the wages of the laborers on this plantation be increased.

"In reply I would say, the requests will receive my most careful consideration, and I will give you an answer as soon as it is possible for me to do so. Yours truly,

"WM. W. GOODALE."

FIRE IN COAL ON THE DIX

Spontaneous Combustion Causes Blaze in Hold.

Caused by spontaneous combustion, a fire which endangered the safety of the ship broke out in the coal in the hold of the United States transport Dix the other day, and it was only by the most strenuous efforts that control was secured. The Dix had approximately 5000 tons of Nagasaki coal in her hold when she arrived here, but about half of this had been discharged on the wharf.

When the fire broke out, or when it was first noticed, there was in the neighborhood of 2500 tons still in the hold of the big transport. All of the "mule-skinners" and helpers on board the vessel were called in the emergency, and, according to the latest reports, the fire was well under control last night.

Hose was carried into the hold and steady streams of water played on the smouldering fire. A large force of men was kept busy shifting the coal for a while. The coal has been coming out of the vessel so rapidly the last day or so, however, that the officers on the ship hope to leave here by next Tuesday.

Yesterday Will Cooper had a force of men at work getting the Hawaiian exhibit down to the Naval slip, and a part of this was loaded during the afternoon. Work will continue in the loading of the exhibit today probably.

Construction and placement of the tanks which will hold the fish exhibit took a good deal of time. This work is most important, as extreme care has to be taken in order that the fish may receive the best of treatment. During the voyage through the colder waters to the Northwest, the Hawaiian fish which will be sent to Seattle will be kept in water that is as nearly as possible the same temperature as that to which they have been accustomed here.

Collision in Frisco.

A brief cablegram was received here yesterday stating that the barkentine Coronado and the schooner H. C. Wright had collided in San Francisco bay. Both were slightly damaged. The Coronado recently returned to the Coast from this port, carrying a good load of sugar. She is under the command of Captain Houdlette.

Siberia Due Tomorrow.

The Pacific Mail liner Siberia is due to arriye here from the Orient tomorrow morning, and, according to present indications, she will be pretty well loaded with passengers from the Orient. There is room for very few who wish to board the steamer at this port and continue to the Coast. This news was first brought here from the Orient by the Nippon Maru, later being confirmed by a cablegram received by the local agents of the company.

Makura from Colonies.

Tomorrow the Canadian-Australian liner Makura is due to arrive from the Colonies. She has room for seven men and two ladies at this port, according to word received by the agents here. The latter have about thirty-five round-trip passage contracts to carry out, and they are booking their passengers on other steamers. The Makura is making a fast run this trip, on account of the fact that she wants to arrive in Victoria in time to carry an excursion party from British Columbia to Seattle on the occasion of the opening of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

Captain Filmer in Trouble.

According to the Associated Press cablegrams yesterday, Captain Filmer of the Toyo Kisen Kaisha liner Nippon Maru had come into conflict with the authorities on account of having illegally landed Admiral Uriu, the Japanese naval commander. "Commodore" Filmer, as he is popularly known, is one of the best-liked steamship masters who pass through this port. His trouble is not likely to be serious.

who have used it, or are now using it, we have never heard of any one who has been disappointed in it. No claims are made for it except those which are amply justified by experience. In commending it to the afflicted we simply point to its record. It has done great things, and it is certain to continue the excellent work. There is—we may honestly affirm—no medicine which can be used with greater and more reasonable faith and confidence. It nourishes and keeps up the strength during those periods when the appetite fails and food cannot be digested. To guard against imitations this "trade mark" is put on every bottle of "Wampole's Preparation," and without it none is genuine. It is palatable as honey and contains all the curative properties of pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. Taken before meals it creates an appetite, aids digestion, renews vital power, drives out disease germs, makes the blood rich, red and full of constructive elements, and gives back to the pleasures and labours of the world many who had abandoned hope Doctor S. H. McCoy, of Canada, says: "I testify with pleasure to its unlimited usefulness as a tissue builder." Its curative powers can always be relied upon, and "You can trust it as the Ivy does the Oak" One bottle convinces. Avoid all unreliable imitations. Sold by chemists throughout the world.

COLLEGE ENGAGEMENTS.

There is an epidemic of engagements at Berkeley University, ten having been announced during a recent week; and instead of the matter being deemed one for congratulation, the telegrams say that the question of co-education has thereby been revived. In other words, the education of both sexes in the same school having promoted marriage, it is deemed possible that the system is a mistake.

Are we to infer from this that marriage is also a mistake? If not, if it is a service to society and to the human race, as most sane people believe, why should anything that tends toward the union of congenial spirits be discouraged? It being admitted that marriage is a good thing, the best preliminary to it is a close acquaintance of fairly long standing; a chance for young men and women to know each others' qualities and characteristics as they are shown in varying situations; and one might go far without finding so good a vantage ground for "the proper study of mankind" as a four-years' course in a co-educational University. By the senior year there are no illusions on either side; and if a couple, under such circumstances, want to become engaged, why shouldn't they? Matches made at college ought, as a rule, to be good matches; not only for the reasons stated, but because a college man or woman is likely to have come from a well-to-do family of earnest character and to have all the moral and social leverage which that implies.

Abdul Hamid's Costly Establishment

London Standard.

Anyone who has visited a Turkish palace, or even the residence of a wealthy Pasha, must have been struck by the enormous number of idle persons. Loafers abound. It is unnecessary to speak of imperial pipe holders, imperial light carriers, imperial cigarette box holders, but when such office-holders are each provided with an "assistant" and a long tail of attendants, and such sinecures are multiplied several times over, the total cost amounts to a huge figure.

The imperial kitchens, for instance, employ some 240 cooks and 560 scullions. Twice a day they prepare about 3000 "tables" or trays, each carrying a dozen courses. Three hundred attendants, bearing the trays on their heads, distribute them throughout the palace some to the Sultan's apartments, to the harem, to the "mabein" (the part of the palace containing the offices and where the Sultan carries on the business of the state), and to a host of shieks, sherifs and notables.

During the month of Ramazan poor people collect in thousands toward sunset and can count on obtaining "iftar"—the evening meal when good Mohammedans break the fast for the day, taking their first food, water and cigarette since dawn. The waste, extravagance and peculation are beyond description. A French cook at the palace is said to have asked for a little beef to prepare some dish for the Sultan. An ox was bought. On his protesting that he only wanted a little he was answered with a grin that what he did not require could easily be given away. The Sultan's stables are another pretty extravagance—hundreds of horses, with an army of coachmen, grooms and attendants, all living on the fat of the land, and some of them enjoying salaries that might tempt a bank director. The aviaries form another costly hobby. Birds collected all over the world fill cages and inclosures without number, and another huge staff of servants has the care of them, but, of course, the harem heads the list of heavy items.

By harem must be understood not only the Sultan's wives, but all sisters, daughters and relatives, with an odd thousand or so of women attendants and servants, who, by one pretext or another, have succeeded in attaching themselves to the palace. The ladies of the palace keep very high state. Besides their negro attendants they keep up a court, with their ladies of this and mistresses of that, as full and complicated as their lord the Sultan's. In dress and jewelry the ladies of the harem gratify extravagant tastes, on which no curb is placed so long as money can be obtained by hook or crook.

Their indoor dress has been of late years generally European, and Paris supplies many a smart gown for them. In jewelry their taste runs rather toward the gaudy, and ornate rings with large diamonds and rubies, emeralds and sapphires, earrings of weight and value, but little artistic beauty; little caps for the head, thickly covered with gems. Their native dresses, too, are frequently stiff with embroidery of precious stones.

Repairing the Daibutsu Temple

Japan Gazette.

The Daibutsu Temple of Nara is now being repaired under the auspices of the Daibutsu Association, of which Prince Kujo is honarable president. Visitors to Nara will already be aware of the history of this gigantic image of Buddha, but under the special circumstances it may be here noted that the Daibutsu Temple was founded by Emperor Shomu (724-48 A. D.) on a much grander scale than it now displays. Since then the temple has suffered from fire in two different wars, and the present building, in which the Daibutsu is enshrined, was completed in the fifth year of Hoei (1706). As the building is over 200 years old, it is considerably weather-worn and out of perpendicular. Its dimensions are: Height, 158 feet; length, 171 feet; depth, 154 feet; area, 1511 tsubo. It is the largest wooden building in the world. Repairs to the Daibutsu Temple are very costly, requiring Y.680,000, of which Y.335,000 has been defrayed from the national treasury. The remainder is to be raised by subscription from the public with the permission of the Minister of Home Affairs. In consequence the Nara Daibutsu Associaton has been organized by the temple authorities in cooperation with the local government, the Governor of Nara Prefecture himself becoming president of the association. In accordance with the rules of the association, subscribers are to be made members of the association and divided into six classes, according to the amount of subscriptions and the value of articles contributed in aid of the repairs. These members will be presented with medals of different grades. The holders of medals are entitled to special facilities on their visit to the Daibutsu Temple. Subscribers of Y.5 and upward will be invited to the opening ceremony of the repaired temple and accorded special treatment. Those subscribing Y.30 and upward will, in addition, be entitled to inspect the national treasures in the precincts whenever they visit the temple. Further privileges will be given to subscribers of larger sums. The list of members will be permanently preserved in the temple, while their names and the amount of subscriptions will be advertised outside the temple. The sum of $500 is said to have been recently contributed by a party of American tourists. It is expected that the repairs to the Daibutsu Temple will be effected toward the end of 1911.

Will the Martians Respond?

The Chicago Inter Ocean is now quite sure that it will be a good speculation to spend an excessive amount on apparatus to enable us to communicate with the planet Mars. It says: However, when we consider what is the logical deduction the moment we assume that we know now as much about Mars and the Martians as Professor Percival Lowell thinks he knows, there arises a chilling thought to give us pause.

It is assumed by Professor Lowell that Mars must be inhabited by intelligent beings something like ourselves because certain aspects of that planet seem to be the result of an irrigation system so stupendous that there is nothing on earth even approaching it—a system which takes in practically the whole area of Mars.

If we had on earth no rain or snow except in the polar regions, and no natural bodies of water except in those regions—if in order to grow food we had to irrigate with water led from the polar regions the areas between—we would have conditions like those Professor Lowell sees in Mars.

The beings that could devise and operate such an irrigation system must be intelligent—so intelligent, in fact, that we must believe them our intellectual superiors. Therefore it follows that the Martians—if there are Martians—must know a great deal more about us than we about them.

And here comes in the chilling thought. If the Martians thought it worth their while to speak to us, why have they not begun? Why have they not shown signs of desiring to open conversation? With their superior intelligence they should have been able to do so and to make us understand what they were doing.

Only two conclusions are possible. One is that Professor Lowell and Professor Pickering and all the rest of the speculators are mistaken about what they think they see. The other is that to the Martian intellect we are so insignificant that they do not care to give us any further attention, and that all our efforts to attract their attention would be vain.

THE BYS TANDER

The Nerve Climate.
Frauds That Were.
Humbugging Strikers.
My Pet Kicker.
Political Potpourri.
Bleat of the Calf.

Life in Hawaii is good for the nerve, and every now and then somebody proves it. The latest demonstration is a malihini, name unnecessary, who called up ex-Governor Carter the other day.

"Hello, is this Governor Carter?" he inquired.

"Yes," was the answer.

"My name is so and so! I haven't the pleasure of your acquaintance, but I knew your brother Charles at college and was a member of his fraternity. I want to say that I am temporarily up against it. Could you loan me $25 for a day or two—not more than two days at best? And say! I am stopping at Blank's. Wouldn't you be good enough to send the money up?"

The Governor remarked in the phone that he was generally considered easy, but had never thought himself as easy at that. "But I would give you $25 for the recipe of your nerve tonic," he added, wistfully.

What a lot of frauds have come here in the last few years, not excluding the fellows who sell stock. Do you recall the Malted Milk Major? And the young scamp who dropped off a transport and walked right up to the Central Union Parish House and skinned the brethren for a hundred? And how Assistant Pastor Clark flourished until the Sheriff arrived from Illinois and tore him from the sister-in-law he had eloped with? Lately there was another crew down here, headed by a veteran old fraud of a woman who used to operate in Southern California. This hui had a scheme to sell land in New York or sell the buyers of it here. The fellow who offers you a paste diamond "worth $300" for $25, telling you he had smuggled it in and was hard up, has browsed several times in these pastures green. Remember the man, too, who was going to buy Pacific Heights? And the fellow who came here in the yacht with a poker and diamond-stealing outfit—perhaps the very man whom Miss Kaufmann made literature of in her Lippincott story? My friend Steele, who is just out of jail, operates as an old matriculant of your college. Possibly he is the one who called up Governor Carter, the method being his. As to the ordinary boarding house and hotel beat his name is legion; but the religious and temperance faker is not quite so numerous as he was, for which much thanks. He was the worst of the lot.

The strikers are being fed on all sorts of humbug by their leaders. They were told, in the first place, that the plantations would never let them leave; but the plantations have ordered them off the land. Now a story has been circulated that Japan will send transports and take them home where they can find work at a dollar a day in the Formosan sugar fields. But the wage rate in Formosa is just seventeen cents a day and not a copper more, and Japan is much too anxious to get rid of her surplus labor to go into the business of bringing more in. I suspect that the yarns about the willingness of house servants and yardboys to support an army of strikers here in idleness will turn out to be mere persiflage also.

If you have not been in my tailor shop lately, you should come and see the new fancy kicker I have installed. Inquire at any time during business hours. He is warranted to kick at anything and everything and hit it—anything from a horse-fly to a planter or from the superstition that two and two make four to the evil suggestion that the sky is blue and not green. I have had many a kicker about me in my time—Volcano Marshall, old Mac the blacksmith, John Kidwell, Mrs. Gertz, Pastor Thwing, the only Link, but this is the prize-winner of them all, the proud possessor of the crochetted kicking strap.

It is a trifle early for politics, but one hears things. The latest rumor is that the spoilsmen from both parties will get together and fix polities so that heads I win, tails you lose, or tails you lose and heads I win, whichever way you like it. Both parties will nominate precisely the same kind of men, and whichever wins will play into the hands of the other. Thus the Republican machine will name A. M. Brown for Sheriff and the Democratic machine H. T. Moore; and the result will be pleasing to the profession either way. The County Attorney's office, which is the most extravagent bureau of the County government—thanks to a pliant Board of Supervisors—has patronage to burn, and this will be used to perfect a machine which hopes to have the assistance, at the primaries, of the Laborulas, who saved a plurality for Catheart last year. The Democratic nominee for County Attorney will either be a spoilsman or a dummy—it is not time yet to decide. Of course, a Board of Supervisors whom the County Attorney's office can use at pleasure in getting jobs for friends of the machine will be regarded as essential.

Speaking of the Associated Press cablegram about an offer of $35 per month to Porto Rican labor, the Bulletin quotes the fact that $20 per month was really the cash consideration, and adds:

> This puts an end to the wild story from Porto Rico published as having been received from the Associated Press, but believed by some to have been manufactured by the secret agents of the Thugs and Agitators.

"Some" is good. The only intellect in town that could conceive such a thing is the fricandeau of veal which answers for the mind of the Bulletin.

THE SLEEPING SICKNESS.

Pere Beauchene, the missionary priest, has died at the Pasteur Institute, in Paris, of sleeping sickness, contracted in Africa. Fourteen other patients—missionaries, officials and colonials—are undergoing treatment for the same disease at the institute. In all twenty-six cases have been under observation there, several of which have terminated fatally. The treatment has been so far for the most part experimental. Among the remedies tried are atoxyl, a chemical preparation containing arsenic, which has afforded marked, but only temporary, relief.

The immediate effect of atoxyl was to kill a large number of the trypanosomes, as the sleeping sickness microbe is called, but by a sort of process of selection another species of the germ, which is refractory to arsenic, rapidly developed, carrying off the patient.

Other serums are being tried, but, according to experts engaged in this branch of research, an effectual therapeutic agent against the malady has not yet been discovered.—Chicago News.

Commercial News

By P. R. Bartlett.

Labor conditions continue to exert a predominant influence on the stock market. As was noted last week, this influence has not been nearly as strong as was first expected, and, although there is no question about the situation tending to business quietude and hesitancy on the part of investors, it is also undoubted that the experience of the last two weeks confirms the opinion that the public is confident that the sugar interests are fully qualified to deal successfully with the situation as it is now presented.

The circulation of exaggerated and ill-considered reports of the prevailing labor difficulties has naturally had its effect on the mainland. San Francisco has responded to the tendency to overestimate the seriousness of the problem, and this has, of course, been reflected in the Stock Exchange quotations.

Confidence in the future is the keynote of the local situation. There has been a slight declining tendency noted in prices, but a number of stocks have continued active throughout the week.

The stock transactions for the week include the sales of 1250 shares of Olaa at $4.50 and 100 at $4.00.

The sale of 1110 shaes of Oahu Sugar Company at $31.50 and 30 at $31.25 also emphasizes the fact that the labor conditions are not having a very depressing effect.

Ewa has not been slighted during the course of the week, 15 shares going for $28.00, 120 at $28.25, and 35 at $28.50.

Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company stock has also been on the active list. Three hundred and eighty-three shares of that security were taken at $30.00 and 40 shares went at $30.50.

According to the reports that have been received from the other islands there does not seem to be much prospect of an extension of the labor difficulties, although it is admitted that, in their extremity, the agitators "for revenue only" will not hesitate to involve as many plantations as possible in the labor unrest.

Small Talks

ROYAL D. MEAD—The $35 story from Porto Rico is not true. The sum offered is $20.

COMMISSIONER ALMY—I thought I was a young man until my twenty-seven-year-old son came down on a visit.

GOV. CLEGHORN—This plantation trouble might have been avoided by paying the good workers a little more and discharging all the bad workers.

R. K. BONINE—The surfing pictures which I have just secured will turn out, I think, to be the best ever taken of boys shooting the waves at Waikiki.

BILLY HOOGS—I know Leach, the successful bidder for the Pearl Harbor drydock. He's a man who will put it through. He's as persistent as a bulldog.

JACK DOYLE—If they say a Hawaiian can't work in the field or on a plantation, let them go down to Aiea and Waipahu now and see how well they're doing.

JUDGE HARTWELL—The late Charles Warren Stoddard was brought here originally to write for the old Saturday Press and to take up local correspondence with the New York Herald.

AUGUST REINECKE—Picture shows to right of you, picture shows to left of you, picture shows in front of you, and then look behind you. Pictures on top of you, open-air shows at that, and where will it all end?

JACK NOTLEY—A little diplomacy would have prevented all the trouble in the Riverside League. All the boys who turn out to play at Aala Park are good sportsmen. The trouble comes from the men who do not play in the games.

BILL HURLEY—San Francisco is a pretty fine place, all right, but I had to wear two suits of underclothes to keep warm, and nobody knew what I meant when I said "Aloha." So I came back to good old Honolulu, and the place looks mighty fine to me.

KEIO HASHIMURA—Say, you don't want be seen with that Sheba any more. Japanese waiters have meeting and decide not read Shinpo. Sheba he no sell papers, he go broke. Then some Japanese good man hit him hard with hammer. You seen with Sheba, you get hammer, too.

WIRELESS OPERATOR WARREN—It is a fact that "toy" wireless systems are a great hindrance to wireless operators at sea. There are so many of these socalled "toy" wirelesses in and around San Francisco that it is a hard job for us to connect with the land stations sometimes.

L. TEMPLE—I am surprised at the number of small boys and girls who attend the moving picture shows here in the evenings. As a general rule the pictures are good, but the management of the theaters should not be allowed to throw such pictures as "Crazed by Jealousy" and "Bingle, the Boy Bandit," and those of the rowdy class on the screen. They certainly corrupt the youthful mind.

Mark Twain on Shakespeare

SHAKESPEARE'S BUST IN STRATFORD CHURCH.

To Mark Twain it seems the symbol of our belief in Shakespeare as the author of the plays—"The precious bust, the priceless bust, with the dandy mustache, and the putty face . . . with the deep, deep, deep, subtle, subtle, subtle expression of a bladder."

ALAS! MY FRIENDS!

Old Dr. Rudge possessed a fund of common sense and dry humor as valuable as his medical knowledge. One frosty morning he met a business friend who innocently remarked:

HONOLULU IN 1852-54.

This picture displays particularly that portion of the city which is now known generally as the Capitol and Judiciary grounds. It was taken in the early 50's—although the exact date is not known—by Dr. Hugo Stangenwald. In the lower right hand corner is the house in which Emma Rose, who made several inquiries a short time ago regarding it, was born. Here also were several members of the Dimond family born. Just above this house and a little to the right, is the house in which King Lunalilo was born. The house was built by Kanaina, father of Lunalilo.

The white mound-shaped structure, partly hidden by the hau trees, is an old stone monument under which were the graves of several members of the Kamehameha family. Above and a little to right of this is the old royal mausoleum. The bodies which were interred here were transferred when the new mausoleum on upper Nuuanu avenue was built. Almost directly above this building is the old palace. King Kamehameha III. was on the throne at the time the picture was taken. The lower part of the old palace was built of coral, as were the most of the more pretentious houses of that time, while the upper tower was constructed of wood. To the left of the old palace the royal flagstaff may be seen. Above and to the right of the palace is the old Fort street church, and just makai of it is the Catholic church. The house which is near by these structures is the one in which Mrs. William G. Irwin lived.

The large house in the lower right hand corner of the picture was situated at what is now the corner of King and Punchbowl streets, King street running along the left of the picture. Mrs. Stangenwald, who very kindly supplied the pictures and data regarding them, was born in this house, and yesterday afternoon pointed out the window through which she first saw the light of day.

LOCAL BREVITIES

The Harvard Club of Hawaii will probably issue an invitation to the Associated Harvard Clubs to hold their annual reunion in 1911 in Honolulu.

Dr. Donald H. Currie yesterday received a cablegram announcing his appointment as director of the Federal Leprosarium to succeed Dr. Walter Brinckerhoff, resigned.

E. H. Cant, formerly manager of the Hawaiian mahogany company, will shortly start another mill for ohia ties at Puna. Associated with him in the enterprise is C. Bolte.

The motion made by the attorneys for Mrs. Atcherley to dismiss the petition in the case of the Kapiolani Estate Company, Ltd., was denied yesterday by Judge Robinson.

Lucas Bros. yesterday received the contract for supplying the window and door-screens for the new barracks which are being constructed at Fort Shafter. Their bid, which was several hundred dollars lower than those of their competitors, was $3239.

R. K. Bonine yesterday completed his pictures of Hawaiian boys riding the surf at Waikiki Beach. These pictures have cost him a lot of trouble in the construction of a stand out in the water, but he is satisfied that the pictures are worth it. They will be shown at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

A meeting of the Territorial Board of Immigration was held yesterday morning in the Stangenwald building. It was decided to continue the work of securing 2000 families, or about 10,000 souls, from Europe. A. J. Campbell will recruit these people. The board will shortly advertise for bids for the transportation of the immigrants.

Thomas Nakanelua, who has been a district magistrate for some time past, yesterday qualified for office, being the first man to qualify under the act of the Legislature which provided that all men holding such offices must be able to pass an examination to practise law. He was admitted to the bar yesterday, and immediately after was appointed as district magistrate of South Kohala, Hawaii, by Chief Justice Hartwell.

When Thomas McTighe left for Ireland on the Hilonian last Tuesday he carried with him the recollection of many handshakes from his friends who were at the wharf to wish him bon voyage. And there were many flags of Erin in the crowd, for those who went to say goodbye were prepared to show due respect for the "Irish Consul." He has taken with him requests for blackthorns enough to build a bridge.

COMMERCIAL NEWS

Will Take Up Loan.

One of the important features of the week is the statement that the Campbell Estate will take over the loan to the Kapiolani Estate Company, Ltd. from its present holders, the German Savings and Loan Society, of San Francisco. This transfer is pointed to as an indication of the good financial conditions now prevailing in Honolulu, and shows an ability to take up the loans with local money. The taking over of the Kapiolani Estate loan is in general line with the return of local securities to the Islands, most of which have been held in San Francisco and the returns of which is simplified by the conditions prevailing in the California commercial capital.

There was a noticeable movement in the stock of the Mutual Telephone company during the course of the week, incidental to the merger of that company and the wireless system. The committee that was appointed to consider the solution of the questions that arose in connection with the problem of amalgamation, has worked successfully. As already stated the committee has recommended that the Mutual Telephone company retain its charter, the franchise and other assets of the wireless being sold to it, and payment being made in stock of the Mutual, for which purpose the capital stock of the Mutual will be increased.

The question of the adoption of automatic system rests almost entirely upon the nature of the report that is submitted by Mr. Gartley as a result of his investigations of the practical working of the system on the mainland. If Mr. Gartley does not find that the automatic system could be adopted with profit in Honolulu, the present system will be improved and placed upon a basis that will mean a decided betterment in the service. All of the interests involved in the proposed merger are represented on the committee, and no difficulty is expected in reaching a final arrangement satisfactory to all.

Planning New Structures.

Building activity is generally a good basis on which to base an estimate of a community's progress and accordingly Honolulu is more than maintaining its usual rate in that connection. A number of new homes and several business structures will be erected in the near future and the architects are busy on the plans.

The usual amount of activity has been noted in real estate circles during the course of the week. The increasing popularity of the Kaimuki district as a residential section has been indicated in the transactions of the realty department of the Hawaiian Trust Company for the week. The company reports the sale of eight lots at Kaimuki.

Another Kaimuki realty transaction is reported by the Real Estate Exchange, that concern having purchased eight acres from the trustees of the Gear, Lansing estate, and the property will be used as a park tract, some lots in which have already been sold.

One of the most important pineapple deals yet accomplished is the sale of the Haiku Fruit and Packing Company to the Hawaiian Pineapple Company, which now has a controlling interest in the concern. The successful completion of the deal places the only Maui cannery in the control of the Hawaiian Pineapple Company.

There will be no difficulty in securing thousands of Portuguese immigrants under the operation of the plans that are now being formulated, according to the statements of those who are familiar with the conditions now prevailing in the dominions of King Manuel. It is stated that "hard times" are now prevalent in Portugal, and that this is the most important reason for believing that willing immigrants to Hawaii can be had in any numbers. The Territorial Board of Immigration is continuing its work of gathering data bearing upon the questions involved. It is expected that a meeting will be held shortly at which final plans for Mr. Campbell's mission will be decided upon.

Ties From Japan.

According to mainland reports, Japanese white oak ties promise to become a factor in railroad construction in the United States.

"The growing scarcity of American timber suitable for railroad ties has induced one of the largest Japanese importing companies to introduce Japanese white oak as a desirable foreign species to take the place of American white oak for railroad purposes," says an exchange. "Several of the Western roads have already purchased a large quantity of the Japanese white oak to be used in replacing wornout ties along their rights of way.

"The increasing cost of all railroad ties has naturally led the railroad companies to desire to prolong the life of the species of wood used, by preservative methods, and only recently an application was made to the United States Forest Service to conduct experiments at their Berkeley testing station to determine the value and life of the Japanese oak timber when properly treated.

"This application brought up the interesting point as to whether or not the Forest Service would be allowed to undertake experiments with foreign species of timber, inasmuch as the act under which these experiments are carried on specifically requires that only American-grown timbers shall be treated. The Forest Service found it necessary, owing to the pressure of other work, to decline to undertake the experiment, and therefore this point was not considered. It is estimated that there is a large supply of this white oak in Japan, and should its use for railroad ties prove satisfactory it is probable that a large market will be created for it in this country."

The statement that Bishop Park was included in the negotiations between the Brewer and Bishop estates in connection with the erection of a new business block was an error. It is authoritatively stated that Bishop Park is in no way involved in the negotiations.

The club rooms were decorated with masses of white marguerites and smilax banked upon the mantel of the fireplace, on the piano and about the room.

Miss Emily Clayton Leicester Sehon, Jean Robbins, Elizabeth Kenday and Madeline Hawley marked the scores of the afternoon.

The first prize, a brass incense burner, was awarded to Miss Ethel Keyes; the second prize, a brass vase, went to Miss Julia Powers; the guest prize, a silver hat pin, was given Miss Constance Restarick, and the consolation prize, a Teco vase, was presented to Miss Claire Parmelee.

Washington Post.—Mrs. Hatch, who has had with her Mr. and Mrs. Sewall and later her young niece, Miss Hawes, has given a series of dinners and luncheons for her visitors, who in turn were feted on all hands, one of the unique events being an oyster roast planned by one of the society women in compliment to Mrs. Hatch's visiting friends.

Washington Post.—Eames MacVeagh, one of the very eligible bachelors "brought in" by the new administration, with his father, the secretary of the treasury, was in the throng at the second speedway concert, Mr. MacVeagh Jr. being noticeable as the proud possessor of the tallest and "slenderest" two gallon hat" seen in Washington this season. ## WHITEWASH FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Saints Win Two Games in One by Giving High a Dose of Waialua.

Interscholastic League Standing.

| | P. | W. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Punahou | 8 | 6 | .750 |
| Kamehameha | 8 | 4 | .500 |
| St. Louis | 9 | 4 | .444 |
| High School | 9 | 3 | .333 |

St. Louis, 11; High School, 0.

(This game counts for two games, by agreement.)

Both the regular scheduled game and the postponed games between the High School and Saints were played off in one game at Alexander field, by special agreement, yesterday afternoon and the Saints whitewashed the McKinleyites by 11 to 0.

It was not a very interesting game on account of being too one-sided and the championship having been already won by Punahou. There is one more game to be played, and that will be tomorrow at Kamehameha between the Puns and Kams. Should the latter win, they will take an easy second place in the series, with a difference of only one game between them and the Puns; should they lose, they will be tied with the Saints for second place.

The feature of the afternoon was the excellent pitching of Pedro and the swatting done by the winners in the early part of the game. The High School tried three pitchers, but they put the best one in last, and it was not a case of making a success of the feast by reserving the best wine until the end.

Try Three Pitchers.

Rice went in first and was found at every curve. Then Henry Chillingworth took his place. But Chilly was not in good form, and Elisha Andrews entered the box in the seventh. He was in excellent trim and soon had the Saints guessing. But it was too late. The Thomas Square kids had eleven runs to make to tie, and they could not find that big Pedro at any stage, so though the Saints were sent away in jig time, the same thing happened to their opponents, and the game was only shortened by Elisha's excellent work.

First Run in Second.

The winners made their first in the second inning. Quni walked, but died at second with Pedro safe. Chinnito, the base-stealing kid, ran for Pedro, and at once showed how well he has been trained in the burgling business by swiping two bags. Then one Augustus Heitmuller Danzig Dreier swatted out a bingle, and Chinnito fled home.

The first signs of a balloon ascension came in the fourth. The High School was put away easily enough, and Asam lingered at the plate long enough to get to first on a bad foozle by Rice. Quni walked the genial Asam to second, and the two of them were sent on a bag each when a loud grin belonging to Pedro halted at first on a walk.

The bases were full and none down. Then the famous Augustus, etc., doubled. It was a peach of a swat. It made a big hole in the air round center field where there was nobody to stop it, and Asam, Quni and Pedro all romped before the ball was anywhere near the infield. That was three runs in a bunch.

One More Run.

Three runs, a man on second, and none dead. Robinson bingled Dreier to third and then a funny thing happened. Robinson started to steal, and Norton, with a man on third, threw to second to get him out. Of course, Augie easily romped, and the throw turned out to be a bad one. This prompted Robinson to try for third, but he was not quick enough and was put out. Then Yeichi fanned and Markham died. Four runs. Score 5 to 0 for the Saints.

Chilly took the box in the fifth and met a catastrophe. They made six off him. Chinnito made himself liked by his team once again by tripling. Aiona skied, but Asam walked and stole one. Then Quni did the right thing with a bingle and brought Chinnito and Asam home.

The Balloon Ascends.

Pedro was safe on Rice's error, while Quni went to second. Then Dreier hit a short one and Chilly sent to Franco at third. The latter had his foot on the bag when he caught the ball, but failed to touch Quni. The umpire called the latter safe, although the runner was being forced, so that the bases were full again. Then Robinson bingled Quni and Chinnito, for Pedro, in. This was followed by a double by Yeichi which scored Dreier and sent Robinson to third.

The last run was made by Robinson, who romped, while Markham was safe on fielder's choice that sent Yeichi to third. Markham then stole second, but Yeichi was out at the plate and Chinnito died on a very pretty double play, Chillingworth to White to Norton.

After that Andrews went into the box for the High School and there was no more scoring. Yeichi played another very successful game in the outfield and handled some hot ones; he also batted well. Franco made a remarkable one-handed catch, and the High fielding was not bad by any means if they had only had some pitching to live up to.

The official score was:

GOOD CRICKET YESTERDAY

There was a ripping good cricket practise at Makiki field yesterday afternoon. There was a big turnout of players, and all the bowlers and batters had a chance to show what they could do.

The Foo-foos beat the Old Man Foodles by 89 to 44. These names are evolved from a certain inner consciousness for lack of something better. H. M. Ayres was the star bowler for the Old Man Foodles. He is said to be training for a walking race in which he hopes to beat another newspaper man, and he took in a course of bowling as a side issue. He made good.

One Bailey, who shines at soccer and baseball and any other athletic sport, made the star score of the afternoon. He handed out some twenty-five which peeved the other side and made the Foo-foos applaud him vociferously when he came out from the wicket.

Mr. Withington, president of the cricket club and one of the fathers of sport in Honolulu, was there with the big nineteen score for the Foo-foos and did some excellent fielding work. Bob Anderson, the demon bowler, was caught out for eleven, which was a shame, as he is a dandy at the bat when he gets going.

Altogether it was a very enthusiastic afternoon of cricket and the game seems to be redivivus. The news brought by the Pollards of their unutterable beating by the Hilo cricketers has spurred the locals on to do something, and we may soon hear of an interisland cricket festival that will amount to something.

The official score was:

Foo-foos—H. Bailey, 25; Captain Kelly, 14; D. L. Withington, 19; Bob Anderson, 11; G. Bustard, 0; J. Craik, 2; B. Markham, 2; J. Herriot, 6; J. M. Tucker, not out, 1.

Old Man Foodles—W. J. Walker, 4; J. H. Fiddes, 1; T. S. Gray, 3; C. P. Morse, 1; J. R. Maclean, 16; H. H. Ayres, 1 (do better next time); C. F. Maxwell, 2; F. B. Withington, 3; E. F. Melanphy, 0; G. Podmore, 9.

JUDDS HAND IT TO DUTCHMEN

On the sixth leg of the course the captain stood at the wheel. He shouted in gruff tones, "Ready aboutship, hard-a-lee, leggo yer lee jib and staysail sheets, stand by yer weather sheets, get busy there yer long-legged, frowsy, duff-eating, muddle-headed bunch of yacht marauding sea-lawyers. Hey there you Ray Rietow, leggo the lee jib sheet."

And Ray did "leggo." He shut his eyes and swatted at the ball. The bat hit the ball and the ball hit the bat and Ray slacked off his main sheet, put his tiller hard a weather and proceeded to run for home. He reached home and three gaily romping pirates also reached home in front of him.

For the benefit of the uninitiated land-lubber it should be explained that this has to do with a game of baseball between the Judd Building and the Stangenwald ditto. It was in the sixth inning that the Juddites had three men on bases when the gallant sailor man came up to bat. And oh, he hit a walloper, a zingfoozler, a regular lallapazoo. It was not exactly a home run but it acted as such, for the fielders were so awe-struck at the immensity of the hit that they forgot to stop the ball and the Juddlers scored four runs.

This all took place on Punahou old ground yesterday afternoon and the gum-makers beat the Dutchmen by 12 to 6. It was a great game and was followed with intense interest by a really large crowd of fans. Alf. Castle sacrificed his record as an umpire by acting in that position and was rescued by the police, who placed him in his runabout and sent him home with a mounted escort to see that he was not mobbed.

The feature of the game was certainly the rooting of Bert Clark who came out as chief barker for the gummers. He was ably seconded by a score of Punahou players who acted as backstop and rooted long and loud whenever a Juddite went in to bat. There were no errors in the game, but eighteen stolen bases and every batter made 1.000 per cent.

The Stangenwald players (?) held a meeting after the game and passed a resolution refusing admittance to their building for the umpire. Any time he wants to go there, they say, he must hire a flying machine and come down through the trap-door in the roof.

The game was lots of fun from beginning to end. After the High School-St. Louis game on Alexander field everybody went down to the lower ground and rooted. It is hard to say whether the fans or the players had the better time of it.

The lineup with runs scored was as follows:

Judd Building—Cooke, 3b, 0; Hoogs, p, 2; McCorriston, c, 2; Lewis, ss, 2; Fuller, 1b, 1; W. Kwai Fong, rf, 2; Bailey, 2b, 1; Walker, cf, 1; Rietow, lf, 1.

LARGE CROWD AT POLO GAME

There was an excellent polo practise game at Moanalua yesterday afternoon. Quite a bunch of live ones turned out, and there was enough excitement to keep the wonderfully large crowd of spectators going.

The sidelines were decorated with automobiles from which there peeked many dainty confections in the way of coalscuttle hats, or whatever the milliners call them. From under these hats also peeked as many sweet faces, and the number of the fair sex that made the mere males take them out to Moanalua shows the interest that is being taken in polo.

All the practisers took out a bunch of ponies with them. Some were old-timers, some were new chums, and there was plenty of fun when the club-wielders began to put their new mounts into the game.

George Denison, Dr. Irwin and John Fleming took on A. Magoon, E. H. Lewis and Dr. Baldwin for a time, and there were several exciting periods in which the Denison side seemed to be getting the better of it.

Appeared then one Sam Baldwin, who took a part in the game for the losers and began to make things hum. The Baldwins are just natural-born polo players, and the Maui man handed out a line of long drives that kept the others guessing. Unfortunately, Mr. Baldwin could not stay for the entire game, but he did good work in injecting a large amount of enthusism into the arm of the game and lost none of his popularity when he went away.

With seven players' turning up to a practise with a big consignment of ponies, we may be sure that this grand sport is going to boom here. On the Coast one speaks of the Hawaiian players with bated breath, and the Island players are surely keeping up their good reputation.

Walter Dillingham will be back this week, and then look out for polo. The Advertiser has arranged with Mr. Cassius Griffith, a well-known polo writer who is now in Honolulu, to write an article on the game for next Sunday, and this will be interesting alike to players and the general public, as Mr. Griffith is an authoritative writer on the game.

THREE GAMES OF IMPORTANCE

The second game in the championship series of the Cupid League, between the Chinese Athletics and the Aalas, and perhaps the last game, should the Chinese nine win, will take place this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at Aala Park. This is going to be a hard struggle, and no one can foretell the result of the game. The Chinese team has won twice in succession, but notwithstanding this, Captain Fred Luning believes that he will win the game today.

All the players of both the teams are in the best of shape, and with the practises they have gone through at Aala Park the past week, a rattling good match is assured. Apau and Che Bui are to be the battery for the dragonlets, and Gomes and Luning will do the same work for their opponents. It is very probable that Pedro, the big twirler of the Saints, will take a turn in the box. Pedro is no doubt a good pitcher, and it will do the Aalas a lot of good to give him a trial in twirling the horsehide.

The Military League games for today will be: N. G. H. vs. Fifth Cavalry, at Leilehua, and U. S. M. C. vs. the Fort Shafter team at Aala Park, following that between the C. A. C. and the Aalas. The N. G. H. team will leave on the morning train for the ground of battle and will return in the evening.

In the game scheduled at Aala Park, the U. S. M. C. boys are very confident of winning, but, on the other hand, the Fort Shafter nine thinks the same. Bateman and Boloun will do the battery work for the Shafter bunch, and Anderson and Gibson, who played in the great game of last Sunday which lasted seventeen innings, with the N. G. H., will again form the Marine battery. Many ladies and officers from the two military posts will probably be in attendance as usual.

Five yachts will start from the spar buoy at the entrance to the harbor at 9 o'clock this morning. They will race over a thirty-mile course for the Irwin Cup. From the start the yachts will sail to Koko Head against the wind, thence they will run free to the entrance to Pearl Harbor and beat back to the bell buoy; from there they will run down to the starting line. The yachts entered and their handicaps are: Kamehameha, sloop, Captain Scott, scratch; Charlotte C., yawl, 27 min.; Gladys, sloop, Captain King, 35 min.; Kapolei, sloop, Captain Renton, 55 min.; Helene, sloop, Captain Whitney, 55 min.; Hawaii I., sloop, Captain Alec Lyle, 55 min. The Hawaii II. will sail over the course, but will not take part in the race. Rycroft will act as starters and judges. Mr. Jaeger's launch will act as judges' boat. The time limit is eight hours, but the finish should be about 3 o'clock. A good view of the start and finish may be obtained from the Waikiki end of the harbor. Take the Alakea street car to the end and then walk past the Myrtle Boat Club to the sand spit at the harbor entrance.

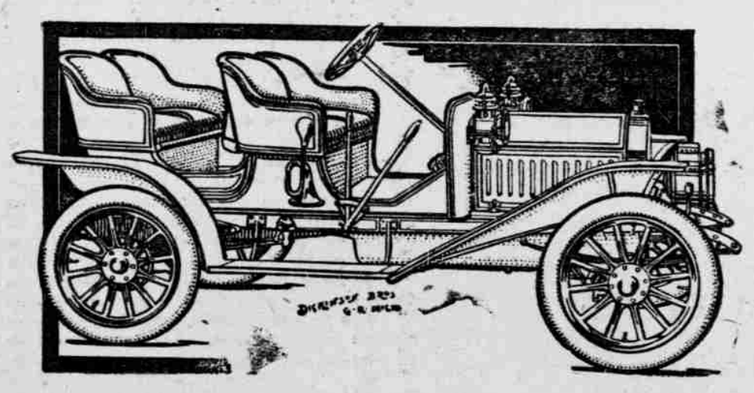
WHITE STREAKS.

The "White Streak Buicks" are getting as familiar to the people of Honolulu as the summer sun. The demand for them is growing and made to grow through the splendid achievements elsewhere, accounts of their winnings appearing in the mainland papers daily. It is safe to say that within two months one can not travel from the postoffice to Waikiki without meeting a Buick "white streak" in every block of the distance. Many oldtime drivers of automobiles are discarding the machines they have used for a couple of years and replacing them with the new Buick creations. The von Hamm-Young Co., Ltd., are filling orders daily from the lot which arrived on the steamer last week.



Another car load has just arrived.

THE THOMAS RECORD.

Unless a man has spent a winter on the plains or in the mountains on the line between the Atlantic and the Pacific he has no definite idea of what a winter in that part of the country means. In the second wonderful achievement of the Thomas automobile the run was through a country that knows nothing of "good roads," as the people here know them. The Hamakua nightmares are macadamized thoroughfares compared with what the crew of the Thomas met in the journey from New York to Seattle. There were places where the snow was twelve feet deep and packed as tight as a drum through days of snow and then days when the sun melted the snow and the nights froze it. These had to be gone over and the road "made" by the drivers. In one section of Wyoming the aid of a train was called to pull the car out of a snow bank, but with all of the obstacles it made the run in good time and is ready for any other endurance run the public may think it needs to convince it that the Thomas is all-wool and a yard wide.

AMUSEMENTS

The popular Elleford company, who have been entertaining our theater-goers at the Orpheum Theater, closed their engagement last night to a house filled with their admirers, who went to wish them "aloha," a pleasant home voyage, and return in the near future. The company this season has been one of the best that W. J. Elleford has brought to Honolulu, and all of the members have made many friends and each one of them will always receive a warm welcome from our theater-goers. The plays presented during the engagement were carefully selected and given with careful attention to detail. When you consider the cost of bringing an organization of this kind to the Islands, the Elleford company should have received more liberal patronage. May the pleasing Ellefords live long and prosper!

Gaiety Theater.

H. M. Lawson, managing partner of Bailey & Lawson, of the Art and Auditorium, returned yesterday morning from Hilo, where he opened the third new theater belonging to the same firm, known as the Gaiety. The building is a very handsome one, with frontage of stained wood, the flooring of pink-colored cement, with green matting, seating capacity 600, capital ventilation by means of numerous French windows, and an arc light of 10,000 candlepower, the first and largest one in the Islands.

The Pollards No. 1 played during a season of eight days, with very good attendance. Teddy McNamara was presented by the Hilo people with a fine gold watch and fitting watch fob. One day the company were entertained at a picnic, and the third day the volcano was visited.

Art Theater.

"Standing Room Only" was the prosperous condition of affairs at the above popular resort last evening. Tomorrow, Monday, there will be a change of program, with some agreeable surprises in store. In "Julius Caesar," the audience will have a chance to follow the plot against that conspicuous figure in Roman history, from the time when the old soothsayer warns Caesar to "beware the Ides of March" until the fatal moment when Rrutus buries the assassin's knife in the body of the dictator, and to the death, by suicide, of the arch conspirators. "A Roman Idyl" is a colored film of beautiful scenes from life in ancient Italy, while "Dick's Aunt" and "Charley's Ma-in-Law," "A Football Fiend," etc., are comedies guaranteed to set your risible muscles in motion.

Judge Robinson continued the case of A. Alai Ana, who had been cited for contempt of court because of his failure to pay costs of $13, incurred in the divorce suit brought against him by his wife. Ana paid the costs yesterday and will probably escape punishment for his tardiness.

STRANGE RELIC OF OLD JAPAN

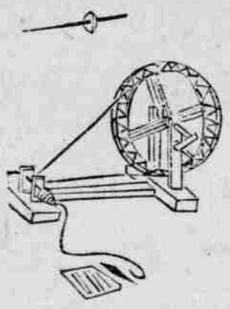
Local Japanese Has Cotton Jenny and Loom Made Centuries Ago.

Off Nuuanu avenue in a cottage that bears the sign "Y. Maisaka" and many Japanese characters denoting that Mr. Maisaka sells and repairs sewing machines, is one of the strangest relics of old Japan. It is, or rather they are, the crude instruments with which the old-time Japanese spun and wove their cotton.

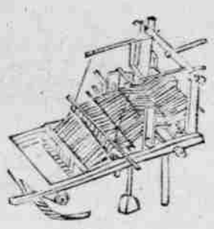
There are four of these instruments.

Press.

Beating String.



Spinning Jenny.



Loom.

Ancient Japanese Instruments for Spinning and Weaving Cotton. (Reproduced from Japanese wood cuts).

The first is very much like the ordinary mangle which is clamped to the side of the washtub on Mondays. This is used for pressing out the raw cotton. It consists of two stout uprights of wood fastened into a solid base. From the base projects what might be called a "sitting piece." It is a piece of wood with rounded corners and the object of it is to have something on which the operator can sit and thus hold the machine steady.

There are two rollers worked by a crank on the upper roller. At the opposite end of the rollers from the handle there is a wonderfully contrived mesh gear cut like a long worm on a drill feed. This gear causes the under roller to rotate in an opposite direction to the upper one in the same way as the cogs on a hand mangle work.

The pressure on the rollers is supplied by means of wedges which protrude all the way through slots in the uprights and can be hammered in or out at the will of the operator.

After the cotton has gone through a thorough course of mangling it is then stripped round a string and beaten with a mallet. This string which is made from ox-gut, is stretched on an instrument that looks like a skeleton bass viol. The illustration gives it the appearance of a long frame saw, but the real thing, when held on end looks as though it were some mono-stringed musical instrument.

After the cotton has been mangled and beaten on the string it is spun. There is an arrangement that looks very much like a miniature Ferris wheel without any cars. This is equipped with a crank and is geared to the spinning spindle by means of a cord.

The cotton is held in the left hand of the operator who squats on the floor and the right hand works the wheel. When the spindle is going, the operator takes a bunch of cotton in her left hand and deftly applies it to the spindle so that the latter takes up the ends. After a little working of the spindle and the cotton a string begins to take shape and before many minutes have passed the spindle is egg-shaped with a thick winding of cotton line.

More cotton is added to the string as each piece is used up and then the spindle is taken from the "Jenny" and transferred to the loom.

The loom is a wonderful-looking machine. It consists of a series of bamboo crosspieces inserted loosely in slotted uprights. The operator squats in front of it and fastens round her back strings that control the movements of the lower crosspieces. Before she can begin to weave she first arranges the longtudinal cotton lines. This is done by passing the spool containing the cotton thread round and round all the crosspieces until the latter are enclosed in a framework of several hundred lines of cotton thread.

Then begins the work of putting in the cross lines. The cloth is not woven at all, it is merely battened in. There is a large hollow shuttle that holds a thread spindle. The shuttle is passed between the lower and upper lines of longitudinal thread and, after each line of cross thread is laid it is battened into place by a flat piece of wood.

There is no weaving to hold the cross threads in place but they seem to hold by combining with the original cotton frame as they are battened in. As soon as enough lines have been battened to make an inch or so of cloth, a back movement by the operator stretches it tight and a bamboo clamp is put into place to hold it firm. Then the slow and wearisome process goes on until a few more inches of cloth have been made. When the entire circle of the loom has been covered there is something like a yard of cloth there and the whole process has taken a full day to complete even with an expert operator.

The whole arrangement is quaintly primitive and it is very interesting to watch the little Japanese woman at work. Mr. Maisaka has arranged to give an exhibition at the Orpheum in the near future for the benefit of school children here. It will interest not only the children but anybody who can spare the time to go and see a very interesting relic at work.

When Grandmother Got Going

Ever go on a grandmother hunt through the Red Ink District? Well, it ain't a reg'lar hot weather amusement of mine, but it has its good points. Maybe I wouldn't have tackled it at all if I hadn't begun by lettin' myself get interested in Vincent's domestic affairs.

Now what I knew about this Vincent chap before we starts out on the grandmother trail wouldn't take long to tell. He wa'n't any special friend of mine. For one thing, he wears his hair cut plush. Course, it's his hair, and if he wants to train it to stand up on top like a clothes brush or a blacking dauber, who am I that should curl the lip of scorn?

Just the same, I never could feel real chummy towards any one that sported one of them self-raisin' crests. Vincent wa'n't one of the chummy kind, though. He's one of these stiff-backed, black-haired, brown-eyed, quick-motioned, sharp-spoken ducks, that wants what he wants when he wants it. You know. He comes to the studio reg'lar, does his forty-five minutes' work, and gets out without swappin' any more conversation than is strictly necessary.

All the information I had picked up about him was that he hailed from up the State somewhere, and that soon after he struck New York he married one of the Chetwood girls. And that takes more or less capital to start with. Guess Vincent had it, for I hear his old man left him quite a wad and that now he's the main guy of a threshin' machine trust, or something like that. Anyway, Vincent belongs in the four-cylinder plute class, and he's beginnin' to be heard of among the alimony aristocracy.

But this ain't got anything to do with the way he happened to get confidential all so sudden. He'd been havin' a kid pillow mix-up with Swifty Joe, just as lively as if the thermometer was down to thirty instead of up to ninety, and he's just had his rub down and got into his featherweight serge, when in drifts this Rodney Kipp that's figurin' so strong on the defense side of them pipe line cases.

"Ah, Vincent!" says he.

"Hello, Rodney," says Vincent, as they passes each other in the front office, one goin' out and the other comin' in.

I'd never happened to see 'em meet before, and I'm some surprised that they're so well acquainted. Don't know why, either, unless it is that they're so different. Rodney, you know, is one of these light complected heavyweights, and a swell because he was born so. I was wonderin' if Rodney was one of Vincent's lawyers, or if they just belonged to the same clubs, when Mr. Kipp swings on his heel and says:

"Oh, by the way, Vincent, how is grammy?"

"Why!" says Vincent, "in't she out with you and Nellie?"

"No," says Rodney, "She stayed with us only for a couple of days. Nellie said she hadn't heard from her for nearly two months, and told me to ask you about her. So long. I'm due for some medicine ball work," and with that he drifts into the gym and shuts the door.

Vincent, he stands lookin' after him with a kind of worried look on his face that was comical to see on such a cocksure chap as him.

"Lost somebody, have you?" says I.

"Why—er—I don't know," says Vincent, runnin' his fingers through the bristles that waves above his noble brow. "It's grandmother. I can't imagine where she can be.

"You must have grandmothers to burn," says I, "if they're so plenty with you that you can mislay one now and then without missin' her."

"Eh?" says he. "No, no! She is really my mother, you know. I've got into the way of calling her grammy only during the last three or four years."

"Oh, I see!" says I. "The grandmother habit is something she's contracted comparative recent, eh? Ain't gone to her head, has it?"

Showed My Common Breedin'.

Vincent couldn't say; but by the time he's quit tryin' to explain what has happened I've got the whole story. First off he points out that Rodney Kipp, hav'n' married his sister Nellie, is his brother-in-law, and, as they both have a couple of youngsters, it makes Vincent's mother a grammy in both families.

"Sure," says I. "I know how that works out. She stays part of the time with you, and makes herself mighty popular with your kids; then she takes her trunk over to Rodney's and goes through the same performance there. And when she goes visitin' other places there's a great howl all around. That's it, ain't it?"

It wa'n't, not within a mile, and I'd showed up my low, common breedin' by suggesting such a thing. As gently as he could without hurtin' my feelin's too much, Vincent explains that while my program might be strictly camel's foot for ordinary people, the domestic arrangements of the upper clawsses was run on different lines. For instance, his little Algernon Chetwood could speak nothing but French, that bein' the brand of governess he'd always had, and so he naturally couldn't be very thick with a grandmother that didn't understand a word of his lingo.

"Besides," says Vincent, "mother and my wife, I regret to say, have never found each other very congenial."

I might have guessed it if I'd stopped to think of how an old lady from the country would hitch with one of them high-flyin' Chetwood girls.

"Then she hangs out with your sister, eh, and does her grandmother act there," says I.

"Well, hardly," says Vincent, colorin' up a little. "You see, Rodney has never been very intimate with the rest of our family. He's a Kipp, and—well, you can't blame him; for mother is rather old fashioned. Of course, she's good and kind-hearted and all that; but—but there isn't much style about her."

"Still sticks to the polonaise of '81, and wears a straw lid she bought durin' the Centennial, eh?" says I.

Vincent says that about tells the story.

"And where is it she's been livin' all this time that you've been gettin' on so well in New York?" says I.

"In our old home, Tonawanda," says he, shudderin' some as he lets go of the name. "It's where she should have stayed, too!"

"So-o-o-o?" says I. "I'd been listenin' just out of politeness up to that point; but from then on I got int'rested, and I don't let up until I've pumped out of him all the details about just how much of a nuisance an old, back number mother could be to a couple of ambitious young folks that had grown up and married into the swell mob.

It was a case that ought to be held up as a warnin' to lots of superfluous old mothers that ain't got any better taste than to keep on livin' long after there's any use for 'em. Mother Vincent hadn't made much trouble at first, for she'd had an old maid sister to take care of, but when a bad case of the grip got Aunt Saphrony durin' the previous winter, mother was left sort of floatin' around.

She tried visitin' back and forth between Vincent and Nellie just one consecutive trip, and the experiment was such a frost that it caused ructions in both families. In her Tonawanda regalia mother wa'n't an exhibit that any English butler could be expected to pass the soup to and still keep a straight face.

Settles Her in Tonawanda.

So Vincent thinks it's time to anchor her permanent somewhere. Accordin' to his notion, he did the handsome thing, too. He buys her a nice little farm about a mile outside of Tonawanda, a place with a fine view of the railroad tracks on the west and a row of brick yards to the east, and he lands mother there with a toothless old German housekeeper for company. He tells her he's settled a good comfortable income on her for life, and leaves her to enjoy herself.

But look at the ingratitude a parent can work up? She ain't been there more'n a couple of months before she begins complainin' about bein' lonesome. She don't see much of the Tonawanda folks now, the housekeeper ain't very sociable, the smoke from the brick yards yellows her Monday wash, and the people she sees goin' by in the cars is all strangers. Couldn't Vincent swap the farm for one near New York? She liked the looks of the place when she was there, and wouldn't mind being closer.

"Of course," says he, "that was out of the question!"

"Oh, sure!" says I. "How absurd! But what's the contents of this late bulletin about her being astray?"

It was nothing more or less than that the old girl had sold up the farm a couple of months back, fired the housekeeper, and quietly skipped for New York. Vincent had looked for her to show up at his house, and when she didn't he figured she must have gone to Nellie's. It was only when Rodney Kipp fires the grammy question at him that he sees he's made a wrong calculation and begins havin' cold feet.

"If she's here, alone in New York, there's no knowing what may be happening to her," says he. "Why, she knows nothing about the city, nothing at all! She might get run over, or fall in with disreputable people, or—" The other pictures was so horrible he passes 'm up.

"Mothers must be a great care," says I. "I ain't had one for so long I can't say on my own hook: but I judge that you and sister has had a hard time of it with yours. Excuse me, though, if I don't shed any tears of sympathy, Vincent."

He looks at me kind of sharp at that; but he's too busy with disturbin' thoughts to ask what I mean. Maybe he'd found out if he had. It's just as well he didn't for I was some curious to see what would be his next move. From his talk it's plain Vincent is most worried about the chances of the old lady's doin' something that would get her name into the papers, and he says right off that he won't rest easy until he's found her and shooed her back to the fields.

"Try the Maids."

"But where am I to look first?" says he. "How am I to begin?"

"It's a big town to haul a dragnet through, that's a fact," says I. "Why don't you call in Brother-in-law Rodney, for a starter?"

"No, no," says Vincent, glancin' uneasy at the gym door. "I don't care to have him know anything about it."

"Maybe sister might have some information," says I. "There's the phone."

"Thanks," says he. "If you don't mind, I will call her up at the Kipp country place."

He does! but Nellie ain't heard a word from mother; thought she must be with Vincent all this time; and has been too busy givin' house parties to find out.

"Have her cross-examine the maids," says I. "The old lady may have left some orders about forwardin' her mail."

That was the clew. Inside of ten minutes Nellie phones back and gives him a number on West Twenty-first street.

"Gee!" says I. "A hamfatters' boardin' house, I'll bet a bag of beans! Grandmother has sure picked out a lively lodgin' place."

"Horrible!" says Vincent. "I must get her away from there at once. But I wish there was some one who—Shorty, could I get you to go along with me and—"

"Rescuin' grandmothers ain't my long suit," says I; "but I'll admit I'm some int'rested in this case. Come on."

By the time our clockwork cab fetches up in front of the prunery it's after 6 o'clock. There's no mistakin' the sort of histrionic asylum it was, either. A hungry lookin' bunch of actorets was lined up on the front steps, every one of 'em with an ear stretched out for the dinner bell. In the window of the first floor front was a beauty doctor's sign, a bull fiddle artist was sawin' out his soul distress in the hall bedroom above, and up under the cornice the Chicini sisters was leanin' on the ledge and wishin' the folks back in Saginaw would send on that grub stake letter before the landlady got any worse. But maybe you've seen samples of real dogday tragedy among the profesh, when the summer snaps have busted and the fall rehearsals have just begun. What, Mabel?

"It's a sure enough double-in-brass roost," says I. "Don't say anything that sounds like contract, or you'll be mobbed."

But they sizes Vincent up for a real estate broker, and gives him the chilly stare, until he mentions the old lady's name. Then they thaws out sudden.

"Oh, the Duchess!" squeals a couple in chorus. "Why, she always dines out, you know. You'll find her around at Doughretti's, on Twenty-Seventh street."

"Duchess!" says Vincent, "I—I'm afraid there's some mistake."

"Not at all," says one of the crowd. "We all call her that. She's got Little Spring Water with her tonight. Doughretti's, just in from the avenue, is the place."

"Take a Peek at the Party."

And Vincent is the worst puzzled gent you ever saw as he climbs back into the cab.

"It can't be mother they mean," says he. "No one would ever think of calling her Duchess."

"There's no accountin' for what them actorines would do," says I. "Anyway, all you got to do is take a peek at the party, and if it's a wrong steer we can go back and take a fresh start."

You know Doughretti's. If you don't, you know a dozen just like it. It's one of these 60-cent table dotty joints, with an electric name sign, a striped stoop awnin' and a seven course menu manifolded in pale purple ink. You begin the agony with an imitation soup that looks like Rockaway beach water when the tide's comin' in, and you end with a choice of petrified cheese rinds that might pass for souvenirs from the Palisades.

If you don't want to taste what you eat, you let 'em hand you a free bottle of "pure California claret," vatted on East Houston street. It's a mixture of filtered Croton, extra quality aniline dyes, and two kinds of wood alcohol, and after you've had a pint of it you don't care whether the milk-fed Philadelphia chicken was put in cold storage last winter, or back in the year of the big wind.

Madam Doughretti had just fed the "Merry Widow" waltz into the pianola for the fourth time as we pulls up at the curb.

"It's no use," says Vincent. "She wouldn't be here. I will wait, though, while you take a look around, if you will, Shorty."

On the way over he's given me a description of his missin' parent; so I pikes up the steps, pushes past the garlic smells, and proceeds to inspect the groups around the little tables. What I'm lookin' for is a squatty old party with gray hair pasted down over her ears, and a waist like a bag of hay tied in the middle. She's supposed to be wearin' a string bonnet about the size of a saucer, with a bunch of faded velvet violets on top, a coral brooch at her neck, and either a black alpaca or a lavender sprigged grenadine. Most likely, too, she'll be doin' the shovel act with her knife.

Well, there was a good many kinds of females scattered around the coffee-stained tablecloths, but none that answers to these specifications. I was just gettin' ready to call off the search, when I gets my eyes on a couple over in one corner. The gent was one of these studio Indians, with his hair tucked inside his collar.

The old girl facin' him didn't have any Tonawanda look about her, though. She was what you might call a frosted pippin, a reg-lar dowager dazzler, like the pictures you see on fans. Her gray hair has been spliced out with store puffs until it looks like a weddin' cake; her hat is one of the new wash basin models, covered with pink roses that just matches the color of her cheeks; and her peekaboo lace dress fits her like it had been put onto her with a shoe horn.

Sure, I wa'n't lookin' for any such party as this; but I can't help takin' a second squint. I notices what fine, gentle old eyes she has, and while I was doin' that I spots something else. Just under her chin is one of them antique coral pins. Course, it looked like a long shot, but I steps out to the door and motions Vincent to come in.

"I expect we're way off the track," says I, "but I'd like to have you take a careless glance at the giddy old party over under the kummel sign in the corner; the one facin' this way—there."

"Don't Grandmother Me."

Vincent gives a jump at the first look. Then he starts for her full tilt, me trailin' along and whisperin' to him not to make any fool break unless he's dead sure. But there's no holdin' him back. She's so busy chattin' with the reformed Sioux in store clothes that she don't notice Vincent until he's right alongside, and just as she looks up he lets loose his indigation.

"Why, grandmother!" says he.

She don't seem so much jarred as you might think. She don't even drop the fork that she's usin' to twist up a gob of spaghetti on. All she does is to lift her eyebrows in a kind of annoyed way, and shoot a quick look at the copper tinted gent across the table.

"There, there, Vincent!" says she. "Please don't grandmother me; at least, not in public."

"But," says he, "you know that you are a——"

"I admit nothing of the kind," says she. "I may be your mother; but as for being anybody's grandmother, that is an experience I know nothing about. Now please run along, Vincent, and don't bother."

That leaves Vincent up in the air for keeps. He don't know what to make of this reception, or of the change that happened to her; but he feels he ought to register some sort of a kick.

"But, mother," says he, "what does this mean? Such clothes! And such—such——" here he throws a meanin' look at the Indian gent.

"Allow me," says grandmother, breakin' in real dignified, "to introduce Mr. John Little Bear, son of Chief Won-go-plunki. I am very sorry to interrupt our talk on art, John; but I suppose I must say a few words to Vincent. Would you mind taking your coffee on the back veranda?"

He was a well-trained redman, John was, and he understands the back-out sign; so inside of a minute the crockery has been pushed away and I'm attendin' a family reunion that appears to be cast on new lines. Vincent begins again by askin' what it all means.

"It means, Vincent," says she, "that I have caught up with the procession. I tried being the old-fashioned kind of grandmother, and I wasn't a success. Now I'm learning the new way, and I like it first rate."

"But your—your clothes!" gasps Vincent.

"Well, what of them?" says she. "You made fun of the ones I used to wear; but these, I would have you know, were selected for me by a committee of six chorus ladies who know what is what. I am quite satisfied with my clothes, Vincent."

"Possibly they're all right," says he; "but how—how long have you been wearing your hair that way?"

"See My New Waist Line."

"Ever since Madam Montrosini started on my improvement course," says she, "I am told it is quite becoming. And have you noticed my new waist line, Vincent?"

Vincent hadn't; but he did then, and he had nothin' to say, for she has an hourglass lookin' like a hitchin' post. Not bein' able to carry on the debate under them headings, he switches and comes out strong on what an awful thing it was for her to be livin' among such dreadful people.

"Why," says grandmother, "they're real nice, I'm sure. They have been just as good to me as they could be. They take turns going out to dinner with me and showing me around the town."

"Good heavens!" says Vincent. "And this—this Bear person, does he——"

"He is an educated, full-blooded Sioux," says grandmother. "He has toured Europe with Buffalo Bill, and just now he is an artists' model. He is very entertaining company, Johnny is."

"Johnny!" gasps Vincent under his breath. That's the last straw. He lays down the law then and there to grandmother. If she ever expects him to recognize her again, she must shake this whole crowd and come with him.

"Where to, Vincent?" says she.

"Why, to my home, of course," says he.

"And have your wife's maid speak of me as a dumpy old scareerow? No thank you!" and she calls the waiter to bring a demitasse with cognac.

"But no one could call you that now, mother," says Vincent. "You—you're different, quite different."

"Oh, am I?" says she.

"To be sure you are," says he. "Julia and I would be glad to have you with us. Really, we would."

She was a good-natured old girl, grandmother was. She says she'll try it; but only on one condition. It was a corker, too. If she's going to give all her good friends at the actors' boardin'-house the shake, she thinks it ought to be done at a farewell dinner at the swellest place in town. Vincent groans; but he has to give in. And that's how it happens the other night that about two dozen liberty people walked up from Appetite Row and fed themselves off Sherry's gold plates until the waiters was weak in the knees watchin' 'em.

"Is the old lady still leadin' the band wagon, Vincent?" says I to him yesterday.

"She is," says he, "and it is wonderful how young she has grown."

"New York is a great place for rejuvenatin' grandmothers," says I, "'specially around in the Red Ink Zone."

A GILDED YOUTH.

"I believe I'll go in for ballooning a bit. It seems to be the thing."

"What kind of a balloon shall you buy?"

"Oh, I'll have a touring affair, a cloud-climber, a balloonette, and a light flyabout for town use."—Kansas City Star.

INSIST ON PURITY

The great weight of scientific opinion throughout the world is hostile to the use of all artificial preservatives in food products, as being in themselves harmful and as making possible the employment of unwholesome materials and unsanitary practices. Benzoate of Soda is a tasteless, odorless product of coal tar, it is a drug, not a food.

No manufacturer who uses good, sound, fresh raw material, maintains sanitary premises and requires neatness in his work-people, needs to use Benzoate of Soda or any other artificial preservatives.

Manufacturers who use Benzoate of Soda state its presence upon the labels of their products, because the law compels them to. The use of any drug with which to embalm the food supply is unneccessary, unatural and unjustifiable.

Heinz "57 Varieties" are prepared without Benzoate of Soda or any other artificial preservative, and may be purchased anywhere with absolute confidence in their purity, goodness and keeping quality.

The public may choose what food it will eat. If you wish to avoid foods that have been drugged, read all there is printed on every food label.

WATCHING CERVERA AT SANTIAGO.

The death of Admiral Cervera, commander of the Spanish fleet at Santiago, recalls many interesting stories of the great sailor. George E. Graham, who interviewed Cervera just after the disastrous battle, gives the following graphic account of the Spanish commander's behavior in defeat. As he tells it in the Washington Herald:

I saw him first through my binoculars from the forward bridge of the Brooklyn, where I rushed when the signal was made, "The enemy is escaping." His beautiful ship, the Maria Teresa, painted black with a gold and yellow crest of Spain on its bow, looked as if it had been newly varnished for the occasion. Above her floated the great ensigns of Spain, flags of double silk with heavy bullion embroidery, as if she were coming out to a feast instead of a fight. As she turned her prow west, I saw him a second on the forward bridge, in his immaculate white, with his binoculars glued to his eyes, taking a look at the opening between the Brooklyn and the Iowa, where the Massachusetts should have been, but which position she had left to go down for coal. Then the shells began to hit his ship, and, as they exploded, he was covered in a mass of dense smoke. I saw him no more during the fight.

I saw the old admiral the next day aboard the Harvard, a prisoner of war, and waiting to be taken to Annapolis. I went aboard the Harvard with Commodore Schley.

His short, rather pathetic figure, with a white, almost womanlike skin, not at all of the Spanish hue, and with clear, bright eyes snapping from under heavy eyebrows, was clad in an ill-fitting pair of blue trousers which some officer on the Gloucester had contributed to cover his nakedness, for when he was picked out of the water he simply had on his underwear. A loose black alpaca coat, which somebody else had given, a straw hat a size or two too large for him, and a pair of white canvas "sneaks," like the ordinary sailor wears, made up his attire. With all this ludicrous dress, he was still dignified in looks and action when he rose to greet Commodore Schley, and the two conversed in the purest Castilian, the defeated admiral smiling with joy over the fact that Schley could speak his native tongue volubly. When they had finished, I sat down along side and talked with him. He spoke fairly good English, and told me frankly that he did not expect to defeat the American fleet when he came out. He said, in rather low voice, "I was ordered out. My government ordered me to come out, and I obeyed. I knew your force was superior, but I hoped to get one or two of our ships away. Unfortunately, your Brooklyn and your Oregon were too fast for us, and my ships did not seem to be able to reach their accredited speed. But it is the fortunes of war," he said wearily. "You have great sailors and great gunners and great ships, and you are entitled to all that comes from the victory. I shall go back to Spain." And then he added, with a little note of doubt in his voice, "I hope my people will believe I did my best." He held out his hand, and the interview was over.

THE TURNING OF THE TIDE.

When misfortune strikes us hardest,
When the clouds hang dark and low,
When our tired feet scarce can bear us
Up the steps that steeper grow;
When our faith is almost shaken,
If we then could only learn
That "The tide is always lowest
When 'tis just about to turn."

And the night seems always darkest,
While the stars are hid from sight,
When the dawn will soon be breaking
Mid a flood of golden light.
Be not then cast down, my sister,
Though your cares be multiplied;
Wait with patience for the morning,
And the turning of the tide.

DESIGNER OF WASHINGTON

His Remains Exhumed After a Burial of Eighty-Two Years.

Washington Star—Preparatory to burial in the Arlington national cemetery alongside the graves of those the people of the nation delight to honor, the remains of Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who planned the National capital, were disinterred from their resting place on the Riggs farm, west of Hyattsville, yesterday afternoon. They had been there eighty-two years.

From the unmarked and almost obliterated grave in a secluded spot, little known to the people who take pride in the National capital's beauty, the dust of the famous engineer will be taken to a burial spot overlooking the seat of the nation's government, over which will rise a handsome memorial to mark for the ages the final resting place.

The disinterment was directed by D. H. Rhoades of the quartermaster general's office of the War Department, who has supervised the exhumation of thousands of bodies. On account of the long time which has passed since the body was first interred it was the desire of the Commissioners, who have the transfer in charge, to have the work done by experts.

A tall cedar, planted probably at the time of Maj. L'Enfant's burial, marked the grave and stood as its headstone. Shortly before three o'clock yesterday afternoon workmen, under the direction of Mr. Rhoades, began to clear away the vines which had overgrown the grave and to spade out the dirt around the tree. The tree was soon pulled down, and as the digging continued it was noticed that the dirt was not packed as tightly in an area such as would be dug out for a grave. Although over eighty years had passed since the grave was dug and filled in again, it never regained the same density as the earth around it, and that indicated immediately the resting place of the remains sought by the party.

A thunderstorm interrupted the operations for twenty minutes after the ground had been broken, and then the work was begun again. The digging of the grave continued in silence for an hour or more.

A straight line of black earth, sharply contrasting to the yellow clay that had so far been found, was discovered at the depth of about four feet and a half. Then the shovel was used cautiously, the object being to trace out the line of black earth. As the dirt was carefully removed along the line, the outlines of the casket were made discernible. It was so marked that it proved conclusively to the party that the resting place of Maj. L'Enfant had been found.

From the wagon of the quartermaster general's department was removed the box which contained a new metal casket, and this was placed at the foot of the grave. As the party stood with uncovered heads around the excavation, the transfer of the remains of the famous engineer was begun. The bones and blackened earth that were found inside the limits indicated by the black earth which was all that remained of the original casket were carefully placed in the coffin, an hour being required for the transfer.

When the cover had been replaced on the coffin, and it in turn replaced in the varnished wooden case, a huge American flag was wrapped around it and the transfer to Mount Olivet cemetery began. Commissioner Macfarland and Dr. Tindall accompanied the remains to to the cemetery, where the coffin was placed in a receiving vault to await its transfer to the rotunda of the Capitol next Wednesday morning.

The remains will lie in state in the rotunda from 9 until 12 o'clock Wednesday morning. At 10:30 o'clock memorial services will be conducted, at which vice President Sherman and Ambassador Jusserand will speak.

With a military and an honorary escort the remains will then be carried to Arlington cemetery to be reinterred.

THE WIFE OF LAFAYETTE.

The families of Noailles and Lafayette were both fairly well known in French history during the 17th and 18th centuries. The Comte de la Fayette, cousin of Father Joseph, Richelieu's right hand, had a famous sister and a famous wife. The hero marquis of a century later, the big, red-haired young man with his passion for liberty, who cut such an awkward figure at the French court and afterward stood as savior of royalty and liberator of America, shed the fashionable kind of glory on his own time.

Adrienne de Noailles, his devoted, enthusiastic wife, belonged to one of the best and noblest old families of France. The revolution had few more pathetic victims than those women of three generations, the Marechale de Noailles, the Duchesse d'Ayen, the Vicomtesse de Noailles, Mme. de la Fayette's grandmother, mother and sister-in-law. It is a high-bred face that looks out with dark, speaking eyes from her portrait. The story of the old "hotel," almost a village within Paris, where all Adrienne's relations lived and her early life was spent, and the splendors of which disappeared by degrees with the growth of modern Paris, is especially interesting.—Spectator.

"The religion that expresses itself in the Red Cross is more Christlike than the religion that expresses itself in the Crusades."

The badge of love—the deep-ensanguined Cross—
The pledge Emmanuel gave
When, recking not of suffering or of loss,
He came to save.
Above the terrors of the earth today—
Pestilence, Earthquake, War—
The cross of courage, with its blood-red ray,
Is Bethlehem's Star!

Wilbur Wright, on the broad, green plain of his school of aviation at Pau, talked about his early struggles. "We had in those Dayton days," said he, "wonderful offers, magnificent promises, but when it came to the actual laying down of money, then gloom descended on the scene. Our friends, with their mouths full of millions and their quite empty hands, reminded me of a Dayton barber. This barber said one day as he shaved me, 'That's a fine pup of Simmons's. I'd give anything for it.' 'Well, it's for sale, isn't it?' said I, The barber burst into sneering laughter. 'Oh, yes, it's for sale,' said he, 'but do you know what Simmons wants for it? Why, two dollars!'"

A mission worker in New Orleans was visiting a reformatory near that city not long ago when she observed among the inmates an old acquaintance, a negro lad long thought to be a model of integrity. "Jim!" exclaimed the mission worker. "Is it possible I find you here?" "Yassum," blithely responded the backslider. "I's charged with stealin' a barrel o' sweet pertaters." The visitor sighed. "You, Jim!" she repeated. "I am surprised!" "Yassum," said Jim. "So was I, or I wouldn't be here!"

What Kings and Queens Like for Dinner

New Cook Book by the Countess of Dudley Reveals the Favorite Recipes of Royalty and Fashionable Europe.

THE King of England's favorite dish for breakfast is kidneys cooked in their fat jackets; the Czar of Russia is quite contented if he has Indian curry set before him three times a week for luncheon; the late Queen Victoria loved the lobster cutlets that have been named in her honor; Queen Victoria of Spain's choice dish is roast rabbit in hot cream, while the young King Alfonso smacks his lips when there is placed before his Majesty a succulent trout cooked a la montagnarde.

Georgiana, the Countess of Dudley, who is as famous in England for her cooking and dinners almost as much as for her beauty, has spent years collecting recipes from all the great tables of Europe. It is a very remarkable and exhaustive collection, and it has just been published by Edward Arnold, of London. It is called the Dudley Recipe Book.

Loin of Lamb or Mutton.

Bone it and stuff it with the following stuffing, which is made of bread crumbs, suet, chopped parsley, a little thyme, pepper and salt, and one egg. Then roll it, and either braise or roast it. Serve it with a rich brown sauce and some kidneys if liked.

Porterhouse Steak.

This steak is cut from the middle of the sirloin about two to three inches thick. It must be very tender. Butter and grill it a nice dark brown on each side, and leave it a little underdone in the center. When cooked, dish it like a steak with some small braised onions and small potatoes, both sauted in butter. Put a very little demi-glaze over the steak, but no other gravy. Serve horseradish or horseradish sauce with it.

Beefsteak Russe.

One pound of fresh fillet of beef chopped fine, add three ounces of fresh butter, salt, pepper and chopped parsley. Make up the mince into flat rounds. Egg and bread-crumb them and fry in butter. The sauce, served separately, is Colbert, made of glaze, parsley, lemon juice and butter—can be served with macaroni.

Kidneys Cooked in Their Fat.

Take three fresh sheep's kidneys, without removing their fat, cut into rounds about half an inch in thickness. Dip them in cream and season, then dip them into flour, and fry in bacon fat a golden brown on each side. Serve very hot on rounds of toast or fried bread.

Sauce a la Wombwell.

One stick horseradish grated, two ounces red currant jelly melted, one tablespoonful mixed mustard, the grated rind and juice of two oranges and one lemon, one tablespoonful of white vinegar. Mix together and serve.

Souffle of Spinach.

Two pounds of spinach blanched and braised in butter for one hour. Then prepare two ounces of butter, two ounces of flour and two ounces of Parmesan cheese. Put the butter into a stewpan to melt, then add the flour and about half a pint of milk. Let it boil, add the cheese and season to taste. Then add the spinach and the yolks of three eggs (fresh). Whip the whites very stiff and add them very gently. Bake in a good oven and serve immediately.

Sauce Hollandaise.

Make first melted butter, then get one yolk of egg and half a gill of cream, which make hot; keep stirring—it must not boil. When hot add the melted butter. Flavor with tarragon, chili and cider vinegars. This is supposed to be for one person.

Ham.

Boil the ham till well cooked. Take it out of the water and drain till cold. When cold remove the outside skin and make slight incisions in the fat on the top of ham with a knife. Sprinkle three or four tablespoonfuls of powdered moist sugar over the top of the ham. Roast in oven for twenty minutes, basting about every five minutes with a pint of cooking sherry. Remove from the oven while doing so, using the sherry enough at a time to baste thoroughly with it.

Sauce Tartare.

Boil one egg hard, take the yolk when cold and pass through a hair sieve. Mix the raw yolk of another egg with the yolk passed through the sieve; then add salad oil very gently and stir till it becomes thick. Then add tarragon and chili vinegars to taste. Be careful not to stir it too quickly.

Salad Dressing.

Take the yolks of two fresh eggs entirely free from the whites, with a dessertspoonful of French mustard, and stir until amalgamated. Gradually to this add drop by drop Lucca salad oil, about a fourth of a wine bottle; to this add a few drops of Worcester sauce, tarragon and vinegar, castor sugar and salts. Finally add half a pint of cream. Placed in a stoppered bottle, this will keep for a month or longer.

Green Peas a L'Allemande.

Take a quart of small fresh green peas. Put them in a saucepan with two lettuces chopped very fine, a piece of fresh butter the size of an egg, a little salt, pepper, nutmeg, a piece of sugar the size of a nut, a whole onion and a little very good consomme. Boil all these ingredients together for one hour, then take out the onion, and at the moment of serving the dish mix in a tablespoonful of flour and a little fresh butter. Serve very hot.

Spinach in Branch.

Take one pound of good young Spring spinach. Blanch it in water in the usual way. Strain off the water well until it is dry. Lay it in a dish in small bunches. Put a little fresh butter over it and serve very hot.

Coffee Cream.

Take half a pint of strong, fresh-made coffee and keep quite hot in a bain marie. Mix with it three yolks of eggs, three ounces of castor sugar and half an ounce of French gelatine. Put the gelatine into a stewpan and mix in the contents of the bain marie until the gelatine is dissolved. Then pass through a strainer, and when cold, but not set, add half a pint of whipped cream and chill this on the ice.

Sandwiches.

Take some boiled ham—free it from fat and sinew. Pound it in a mortar until tender and smooth—add four ounces of fresh butter, six peppercorns, and a grate of nutmeg. Pass through a wire sieve and make your sandwiches from this.

Eggs a la Suisse.

Break a very fresh egg into a cup (or small pan made for the purpose), sprinkle over it a pinch of salt and pepper. Pour over it enough rich milk or thin cream nearly to cover the egg. Place it in the oven to poach for three or four minutes and serve quickly. A very little Parmesan cheese spinkled over the egg before the milk is added is considered by some to be an improvement.

Soup and Fish

Cream of Barley.

Place one quart of light veal and chicken stock on the fire to boil. Mix up two tablespoonfuls of cream of barley with a little new milk, add this to the boiling soup, stirring it in while it boils, for a few minutes, then add one gill of thick cream, and strain. Serve with some French barley, which has been cooked, and added to the soup.

Veal Broth.

Boil gently four pounds of knuckle veal until all the good is out of the meat. Strain it and add one handful of rice. Let this cook in the broth. Add at the last minute a little chopped parsley, which has previously been scalded, season the broth with salt and pepper and serve.

Mutton Scotch Broth.

Take three scrags of mutton. Boil in cold water with onion, carrot, turnip, parsley, a stick of celery and a little salt. Take care to take the scum off at is rises. Boil till all the strength is out of the meat, then strain and remove all fat.

Place again on the fire with finely cut vegetables—leek, carrot and turnip—and two handfuls of pearl barley. Boil gently till cooked, add a little finely chopped parsley and some cutlets or pieces of boiled mutton. The barley must not be washed.

Creme Duchesse Soup.

Take a good stock of white meat—such as chicken or veal. Make a puree of green peas. Have ready some shredded sorrel and lettuce cooked in a little butter. Make the stock hot, adding the puree of peas. Pass all through a tammy (a straining cloth) and return to the fire. Add one gill of cream and the shreds of sorrel and letture. Serve with croutons.

Cream of Lettuce.

Take some cabbage lettuce, wash them well and cut them up. Let them cook in a little butter and a little mixed vegetable—carrot, leek and onion. When all is tender pass through a tammy and return to the fire. Add one gill of cream and a few shreds of lettuce. Serve with croutons.

Oysters a la New Club.

Take twelve nice sized oysters and beard them, also removing the small round hard substance. Then have some fresh bread crumbs mixed with some fine chopped parsley, roll the oysters well in the crumbs, then take an iron skewer and run the whole of them through the center, and lightly grill them. Season with a little pepper and salt to taste. Have ready some nice fried croutons cut into the size of a half dollar. Put one or two—not more—oysters on to each. Dish them with fried parsley in the center and serve very hot as an entree or as a savory.

Oyster Gratin.

Take some oysters and beard them. Put them in a stewpan and allow them just to come to the boil—sufficient to kill any germs—but not enough to allow the oysters to get hard. Strain them and lay two oysters on each of their own shells, which have been well cleaned and scalded in boiling water. Put over the oysters a few gratin bread crumbs which have been fried in butter. Place five or six shells on each plate, and serve one plate to every guest at the commencement of dinner.

Coquilles of Oysters.

Put twelve oysters in a stewpan with their liquor. Then put them on the fire just to boil up. Skim this well and then strain and beard the oysters and put them aside. Put into a stewpan a piece of fresh butter about the size of a walnut; mix in a dessertspoonful of flour; when it is well worked, pour in very carefully the liquor from the oysters, adding a very little new milk and the yolks of two eggs. Then put in the oysters and mix all lightly together. Fill your two coquille shells, and over the top put some bread crumbs and two or three very small pats of fresh butter to help the gratin. Put the shells into a rather sharp oven and serve very hot.

Lobster au Gratin.

Take one medium sized cooked lobster, cut the shell in half, also the head. Take out the meat, reserving the four pieces of shell. Chop the lobster very fine. Make a creamy Bechamel sauce, season it with pepper and salt. Add a little live spawn passed through with butter to color. Stir in the fish. Place over the fire for a few minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of thick cream, and when all is well mixed fill in your shells and sprinkle them over with bread crumbs. Add some small pieces of butter on the top and place them in the oven to gratin. Serve with fried parsley very hot for lunch.

Lobster Cutlets—Victoria.

Remove the meat from a well-cooked lobster. Cut it into small pieces. Make a good lobster sauce with cream. Place the pieces into it and season with salt, cayenne, a little cooked chopped mushroom, onion and parsley. Cook it altogether, stirring it well. Turn it out of the pan and let it cool. Make it into rissole cutlets, dip in butter and bread crumbs and fry. Serve the cutlets with fried parsley in the center.

Trout a la Montagnarde.

Clean the fish for an hour in cold water. Then boil it on a brisk fire in a pan in which you have poured a bottle of hock or moselle with three onions, a bouquet of herbs, six cloves, a very little eschalot—garlic is the true thing—a few bay leaves and some butter well worked up with flour. Take out the onions and herbs and serve the fish in the remainder of the liquor, adding some scalded parsley.

Filets of Sole Monte Carlo.

Line the bottom of a gratin dish with nicely seasoned spinach, then lay on the top of the spinach as many filets as you require. Make a thin rich Bechamel sauce with plenty of cream. Sprinkle the fish with a lot of grated cheese (Parmesan). Pour the sauce over it and sprinkle another layer of Parmesan cheese. Put three or four tiny bits of butter on the top and bake a nice brown color.

Trout or Whitings Meuniere.

Butter a dish and put your trout or whiting in it. Season with salt, pepper and a little lemon. Cover with a buttered paper, cook it in the oven. When sufficiently cooked remove the skin on both sides. Put it back on to the dish in which the fish has been cooked. Add a little meat glaze. Let it boil and take the meat from the fire. Add butter by little bits, stirring the sauce with a spoon. Add a little lemon and chopped parsley, pour this over the dish and serve.

For Kippered Salmon.

Coarse salt and brown sugar in equal proportions, a teaspoonful of ground saltpeter to a fish about sixteen or eighteen pounds weight, a little less or more according to size of fish. Let it lie on the fish for two days and two nights at least, then stick fish and hang up to dry, but not before a strong sun.

Salmon Pie.

Game and Meats

Chicken Pie.

Take one good fowl and cut it into neat joints—four hard boiled eggs, six chicken livers, a little chopped parsley and a little chopped fresh mushroom. Take a deep pie dish and line it with thin slices of streaky bacon, then put in, in layers, the chicken and different things until the dish is full, then pour in some good chicken stock. Lastly, cover it with slices of bacon, and a crust made of good puff paste. Bake for two hours, run off the gravy and remove the fat, then return the gravy and serve.

Chicken a l'Americaine.

Take a young fowl and stuff it with a stuffing of bread crumbs lightly cooked in butter—with pounded sage, some beef suet and seasoning, and the yolk of one egg to bind. Wrap the fowl in slices of bacon and roast it. Serve the fowl with slices of grilled bacon and a good bread sauce made with cream.

Rabbits a la Creme.

Truss a pair of young rabbits. Soak them in milk and water to keep them white, drain and dredge them over with flour, pepper and salt. Baste well with butter. When nearly cooked add half a pint of cream to the butter you have basted with. Dredge over with flour till it forms a crust. Dish and pour the hot cream round.

Indian Curry.

Take three large Spanish onions, chop them very fine, put them into a vegetable pan to fry in oil. Let them brown. When cooked add one pint of milk and one pint of cream and a little lemon juice. Cook all together until ready to pass through the wire sieve. When this is done add two tablespoonfuls of the best Indian curry powder and half a small teaspoonful of tamaric powder. Mix well and return it into the same pan. Then place your joints or pieces of chicken in the same and let it cook gently, skimming off the oil as it rises. Season to taste and serve with boiled rice in a separate dish. This curry is good either hot or cold. The rice should be carefully boiled and drained so that each grain is separate.

How to Make Good Cutlets.

Make a nicely-shaped cutlet by taking the meat of two cutlets to one bone—see that they are very tender. Dip them in butter and bread crumbs, and grill before a clear open fire. Serve on a silver grid—or, failing this, on a napkin. Serve them very hot.

Grouse or Game Souffle.

Take the breasts of two birds or equivalents that have been cooked, pound them in a mortar with two ounces of fresh butter and a very little core of onion. Rub this through a sieve and add four eggs, the white beaten up to a white froth. Season lightly with salt and a little cayenne pepper. Twenty minutes will bake this in a quick oven. To be served as hot as possible.

Split Partridges.

Split the partridge, pepper well, dip in oil (plenty of it), and boil it. Melt a little butter in a plate, rub the partridge well in the butter, and serve between two plates.

Hot Cooked Tongue.

Take a smoked tongue and soak it in cold water for twelve hours—then place it in a pot to boil, cover it with water, adding one carrot, one faggot, two onions, two cloves and a few peppercorns. Let this boil for three and a half hours, then remove the tongue from the liquor, skin it and trim the root of the tongue. Glaze it, and serve with hot cherry sauce, which should be made as follows:

Cherry Sauce for Hot Tongue.

One tablespoonful of red currant jelly—melted—one wineglass of port wine, one of claret, a little whole Lucknow chutney, two large spoonfuls of brown sauce, the juice of three oranges and of one lemon, and a little cayenne pepper—boil all together for half an hour—when reduced to one-half the quantity, strain through muslin and add some stoned bottled cherries, put it in a sauce-boat and serve hot with the tongue.

Veal Chops.

Beat some chops flat. Smash the yolk of a hard-boiled egg and mix with it some sweet herbs, grated bread, salt and pepper. Cover the chops with this and put each chop in a clean, well-buttered paper. Broil them over a clear fire, turning them often; remove the papers, cover the chops with carefully mashed potatoes, bind together with eggs, fry in hot oil to a delicate brown.

Tournedos of Mutton.

Take a tender loin of mutton, cut it into fillets about one inch thick, with the fat left on them, flatten them a little with a cutlet bat, trim into a neat round fillet, dip them in warm butter and grill them. Fry some thin rounds of bread and place one of these under each fillet when serving—with some small strips or round balls of potatoes which have been sauted in butter.

Deviled Quails.

Bone the quails as you would for a gelatine or chicken; beat them lightly to flatten them, then saute them one side of their skin for two minutes, then turn them and saute them again for one minute. The quails by this means are almost cooked, and in grilling them they finish cooking. To devil them use melted butter with English mustard and Worcester sauce, and serve them with a sauce brune mixed with vinegar, eschalot, Harvey, Worcester. Pass through a muslin and serve separately.

New Checks for Travelers

New York Independent.

In our issue of last week we said that travelers then crossing the Atlantic were carrying the first issues of the American Bankers' Association's new "international money," or travelers' checks. The introduction of these checks, supported, as they are, by leading banks and bankers in all parts of the world, is a most commendable movement, which will promote the convenience of American travelers everywhere and be duly appreciated by foreign banking institutions that have been asked to cash checks from many sources in this country. Uniformity, absolute safety and world-wide cooperation make these checks time-savers for tourist and banker alike. The introduction of them and the management of the international system were undertaken by the Bankers' Trust Company, of 7 Wall street, this city (E. C. Converse, president), whose board of directors is composed of prominent officers of nearly a score of our leading banking institutions.

A great amount of preliminary work was required. This included correspondence with about 25,000 banks and bankers in this country and several thousand banks abroad. The results are shown in part in a book of 180 pages, issued by the Bankers' Trust Company, and containing a list of foreign correspondents who will cash the checks. These correspondents (banks and bankers, including all of the first rank) are to be found wherever banking business is done, whether in Europe, Alaska, Hawaii, South America, Australia, Siam, Africa, Iceland, or the Fiji Islands. There must be 6000 places named in the list, and more than 7000 banks. Wherever a traveler goes, he may be sure that if he carries these checks he can get them cashed near at hand without delay or annoyance.

Plain instructions are given in print to all who use them, and they are to be issued in all our cities. The Bankers' Trust Company is now filling banks' orders for them as fast as the work can be done by the American Banknote Company, whose resources are taxed by the demand. The checks (one of which is reproduced here) are printed upon paper scientifically protected to prevent counterfeiting. Tourists and bankers the world over will be grateful to those who devised this international money and have so admirably made provision for a wide use of it.

WANTED EYES BEAUTIFIED.

A New York oculist makes a curious disclosure and we hardly know whether his experience was exceptional or whether it indicates a more or less common practice. Interviewed by the New York Sun, the oculist in question says he was surprised when there walked into his office a very pretty woman whose eyes showed at once that they needed no treatment:

"I want you to make my eyes beautiful," said she.

"Madam," I replied, "this is not the office of a beauty doctor."

"I don't care," she retorted. "I know that you can improve the appearance of my eyes and want you to do it."

"Kindly remove your hat," said I, in my most professional manner.

"No," said she, "it is not necessary to take off my hat. You can observe my eyes better with my hat on."

The hat was of the very tall, very round, and very overhanging variety. I believe she called it a peach basket. I know it came so far down over her forehead that only her eyes were visible under the downturned brim, and the edges were so low as to act like blinders.

"My eyes are well," she said, "but they are not effective. I must have beautiful eyes if I am going to wear this kind of hat. I want eyes that are big, lustrous, and deep, that glow and look expressive."

I had become interested.

"May I ask what you expect me to do?" I ventured.

"I want you first to give me something to make my eyes bright at night—belladonna or whatever will have that effect. Then I want you to treat my eyelashes so that they will grow until they sweep my cheeks like the eyelashes of the heroine in the best seller."

"And then——" I suggested, drawing her out a little.

"And then," said she with the slightest hesitation as though she feared that I might balk—"and then I want you to lengthen my eyes. I want the very long Cavalieri eyes, the eyes of Maxine Elliott, the eyes of the Spanish dancers."

"Ah," I observed; and you wish me to——"

"Exactly," said she, "I wish you to slit my eyes at the outer corners so as to increase the size. Then I may want you to slit the upper lid and draw it up a little tighter, so that it will not sag over my eyes. Do you get the idea?"

"I get the idea perfectly," said I, "but it is, I fear, far beyond my skill and experience. I would stumble and blunder and I might injure your appearance."

"I'll take the risk," said she, "because I've heard that it can be done. A friend of mine knew an American woman who had her eyes treated that way in Paris, and it is well known that the Italian ladies have their eyes lengthened in that fashion."

"It may be," said I, "but I am afraid to undertake it. I must refer you to a beauty expert. I am only an oculist. My mission is to keep the eyes well, not to vivisect them."

This experience has been duplicated many times since. My warning in each case is to let the eyes alone. If a woman can get hints—harmless hints, mind you—from her beauty missionary, all the better for her. No woman can be too beautiful. But when it comes to surgery upon the eyes I advise a woman to pause. Even the overtopping peach basket is not worth the risk involved.

The peach basket hat has much to answer for, but if it necessitates a surgical reconstruction of the face it is time to call a halt. It is true that the woman who wears this sort of monstrosity usually has a face that seems to call for some surgical assistance, but it is so easy to carry these things too far.

A TENDER MOMENT.

"Colonel," asked the beautiful girl, "when was the most trying moment of your life?"

"It was when I went to my wife's father for the purpose of asking him to let me have her. He was very deaf and I had to explain the matter before twenty clerks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

How Geronimo Was Caught

So many different accounts have been given of the capture of Geronimo that it is a pleasure to find an authentic version of it from the pen of General O. O. Howard, in a letter to the New York Tribune. He writes:

When General Miles was given command of the campaign to capture Geronimo, Lawton, who was then a captain in the Fourth Cavalry, went to him and asked to be allowed to undertake the work, submitting to General Miles plans he had carefully thought out and weighed. General Miles approved the plans and gave Captain Lawton command of the expedition, promising to keep him supplied with such things as the command would need. Captain Lawton started on or about May 5, 1886, from Fort Huachuca, Ariz. Leonard Wood, who had received an appointment as doctor, arrived in time to accompany the expedition. Captain Lawton and Dr. Wood were the only men who endured the whole five months of hard work. The difficulties and hardships encountered in a strange country—so rough that shoes were worn out in a day or two; the feet blistered and cut from the rocks and sore and swollen from the cacti that covered the ground; water so scarce that the suffering was great and no shade or blade of grass visible; then the rainy season, when not only the trail was washed, but the dry little river-beds were turned into raging torrents impossible to cross without great danger and loss of time—it would fill pages to tell.

Lieutenant Gatewood, Sixth Cavalry, was sent with two friendly Apaches to communicate with the renegade. At his own request, voluntarily putting himself under Captain Lawton's orders, he joined his command. After a tireless, steady pursuit, never allowing the Indians time to provide clothing or food for themselves, capturing everything but their persons, they finally came up with them in the Torres Mountains, where Gatewood's Indians went to talk with them, after which Lieutenant Gatewood went. Geronimo then agreed to talk with Captain Lawton, who lost no time in meeting him. Geronimo, after a short conference, promised to accompany Captain Lawton to a certain point, where he would surrender to General Miles. They did this, with difficulty and annoyance, as Geronimo was very suspicious and as watchful as a hawk. They finally arrived at Skeleton Canon, Ariz., and the surrender was made unconditionally, and the territory freed from the marauding and unspeakable atrocities of the Indians. Meantime the supplies did not reach the command, and officers were as scarce as shoes. When a company of infantry was left without any officer, Dr. Wood volunteered to take command, which he did in a very efficient manner. This was his first experience as a commander.

When Geronimo was captured by Captain Lawton he fell down upon his knees before the captain, and clasping him around the waist said he wanted to see the only white chieftain that was able to capture him, and as he marched through the villages the women brought their children to see the great soldier who had been able to rid them of the cruel Indian. Lawton wore out three companies of soldiers in making the capture, and as each company of soldiers became exhausted he ordered it back to the barracks and got another one.

Henry Clews has been able to obtain the above facts owing to family relationship with the late General Lawton. The foregoing is true in every particular, and I am glad to concur fully in these statements. I was commanding the military division at the time of this expedition.

A WOMAN'S BARGAIN.

An Oil City man, who was detained at the house for a part of the day, handed his wife, who was going downtown, a quarter of a dollar and requested her to get him three cigars for it.

When she returned she handed him the package, remarking, exultantly:

"That shows that women can beat men all hollow when it comes to making purchases. I found a place where I could get eight for a quarter instead of three. Isn't that going some?"

And the poor man, as he took his medicine, merely remarked:

"It certainly is, dear."—Oil City Blizzard.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

An old darky wanted to join a fashionable city church, and the minister, knowing it was hardly the thing to do and not wanting to hurt his feelings, told him to go home and pray over it. In a few days the darky came back. "Well, what do you think of it by this time?" asked the preacher. "Well, sah," replied the colored man, "Ah prayed an' prayed an' de good Lawd, he says to me, 'Rastus, Ah wouldn't bodder mah haid about dat no mo. Ah've been trying to git into dat chu'ch mahse'f for de las' twenty yeahs and Ah ain't done had no luck.'"—Christian Register.

DEPARTED.

Sing it softly to the dying, when the life is ebbing fast,
Sing of life that is eternal, sing of joys that ever last;
Let the passing soul have glimpses of the life that is to be,
Life abounding, full, eternal, just beside the crystal sea;
And the tired feet will gladly reach the place where they may rest,
And the weary hands be folded on the faintly-throbbing breast.

Sing it in the home of sorrow, there are vacant places there;
There are pictures of the absent, baby shoes, and curls of hair;
There are letters oft read over, penned by hands now turned to clay;
There are gifts so dear and precious from the ones who went away.
Sing it to the hearts made tender by the sorrows of the years,
And the notes of "He is risen" will bring joy amid the tears.

NOTHING EXTRAORDINARY.

An American tourist hailing from the West was out sightseeing in London. They took him aboard the old battleship Victory, which was Lord Nelson's flagship in several of his most famous naval triumphs. An English sailor escorted the American over the vessel, and coming to a raised brass tablet on the deck he said, as he reverently removed his hat:

"'Ere, sir, is the spot where Lord Nelson fell."

"Oh, is it?" replied the American, blankly. "Well, that ain't nothin'. I nearly tript on the blame thing myself."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

The Record of the Thomas Flyer

22,000 Miles (approximate distance) from New York to Paris. Elapsed time, 170 days. Total running time, 88 days. Daily average, 152 miles per day.

13,341 Miles on land under its own power, and about 8,659 miles by water; traveling 2,385 more on land and about 3,246 miles on water, a total of 5,031 miles more than its nearest competitor. THE ONLY CAR THAT WENT THE OFFICIAL ROUTE.

3,836 Miles traveled from New York to San Francisco, at the very worst season of the year; the temperature frequently below zero; the roads covered with the deepest snows for years or through the gumbo mud of the West, in addition to climbing snow-packed mountains, fording streams or traversing sandy deserts. Time, 42 days; Zust, 53 days; DeDion, 56 days. The Protos, unable to proceed under its own power, shipped from Pocatello, Idaho, to Seattle, avoiding 1,100 miles of the worst roads on the American continent; announcing at Seattle that they would not continue as contestants. The Moto Bloc quit at Cedar Rapids, Iowa; the Sizairo Naudin at Red Hook, New York.

4,400 Miles from Seattle to Valdez and return by water; compelled to go to Alaska to comply with official route, but found it impracticable and returned; other cars sailed from Vladivostok before our return, being 17 days at Vladivostok for repairs and renewals.

4,285 Miles from Seattle to Yokohama.

350 Miles across Japan. The roads were so narrow on the mountain that only a few inches were left between the wheels and the precipices and mountain ravines, and the car had to be lifted around the curve at times.

8,280 Miles from Vladivostok to Paris covered in 49 days running time. Average daily mileage 169 miles. At Vladivostok one of the competitors cornered all the gasoline detaining the Thomas car three days—a striking contrast to the American sportsmanship as shown by the Thomas crew which was detained quite a while pulling the Protos car out of the mud.

450 Miles traveled on ties between Vladivostok and Harbin, which were wide apart and unballasted, the car having to run fairly fast to keep the wheels from locking between the ties on the outside of each rail, the road being narrow gauge, a most fearful bumping and jolting test to men and machines.

72 Days in trackless Siberia, carrying sometimes two barrels of oil in addition to load which frequently exceeded 800 pounds. The roads of Siberia are too narrow for the tread, and at no time was the car in the track. The privations were awful, poor food, no water, and only five nights in bed during the entire seventy-two days.

IT IS IMPORTANT TO NOTE THAT THE CAR THAT HAS JUST MADE THE RUN FROM NEW YORK TO SEATTLE IS THE SAME ONE THAT WON THE RACE FROM NEW YORK TO PARIS. THE ALMOST IMPASSABLE ROADS IN THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS AND THE GRADES ENCOUNTERED MADE THE JOURNEY A CLOSE SECOND TO THE FIRST FEAT, WHICH ADDED TO THE LAURELS OF THE AMERICAN CAR AND WHICH BROUGHT FAME TO THE BUILDERS OF THE THOMAS FLYER, ONE OF THE GREATEST AUTOMOBILES.

WE ARE SHOWING IN OUR GARAGE A CAR OF THIS SAME MODEL, AND WILL BE PLEASED TO GIVE A DEMONSTRATION OF IT TO ANY POSSIBLE PURCHASER. WE ARE DESIROUS OF PROVING THE CLAIMS OF THE MAKERS TO SUPERIORITY. IT'S THERE, THE EQUIPMENT OF THE THOMAS IS PERFECT. IT RIDES WITHOUT A JAR. ITS NAME SPELLS PLEASURE AND SATISFACTION.

We have just received one of the small 6 cylinder, seven passenger THOMAS FLYERS; a car which, at $3,000 offers all the advantages of a $5,000 car. We will be pleased to give a demonstration. Arrangements may be made at any time.

Strictly High Class in Every Detail

In no sense is the 6-40 Thomas Flyer a cheap car. It is the other extreme.

In addition to the great advantage of ball-bearing, six-cylinder construction it includes the most expensive features conducive to reliability and comfort, which are usually found only on $6000 cars.

Two entirely separate and distinct ignition systems; Sims-Bosch magneto and Atwater-Kent timer for easy starting and reserve ignition; two sets of spark plugs.

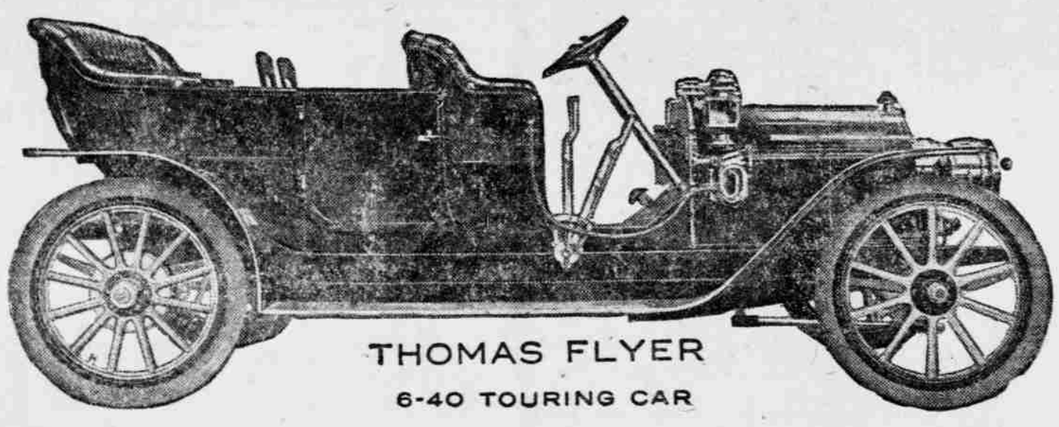
3-disc clutch, encased in oil; patented.



Double elliptic springs.

122-inch wheel base.

Gas and oil lamps.

Prestolite tank.

Hand-hammered aluminum body; seats six looking forward; most beautiful and luxuriously upholstered and finished.

Body practically suspended between axles. The modern style.

Transmission on floating type rear axle.

Drop frame. Herring-bone gears for quietness.

18-inch steering wheel; ball-bearing knuckle, exceedingly easy to steer.
