BAKER WINS IN THE SECOND CONTEST

Republicans Make Big Showing in Kauai By-Election.

In the election on the Garden Island last week for Auditor, necessitated by the vote in the general election in that county being recounted as a tie, G. E. H. Baker, the Republican, snatched Charles Blake, the Democratic nominee, under, beating him out by over two hundred majority in a vote of 874. This gives a clean Republican sweep on Kauai. The full returns, with the exception of the Niihau poll, which was unanimously Republican in November, give Baker 539 and Blake 335.

The vote by polls, and the comparison with the figures of the November vote, are:

	Blake	Regular Election.	Special Election.	Total
Niihau	88	88	0	88
Kauai	539	539	0	1078
Kauai	335	335	0	670

KAHULUI WILL GET NEW WHARF

Railroad Will Spend $150,000 if Government Fails to Come Through.

A new wharf for Kahului, to cost $150,000, to be built either by the Territorial government or by the Kahului Railroad Company, is promised that harbor by H. P. Baldwin, the president of the company, who has sent the following letter to the Maui News. He writes:

The president and board of directors of the Kahului Railroad Company feel that it is desirable that the public should be fully informed as to the status of the proposal to build the wharves or wharf at Kahului. This information seems to be especially desirable at this time, in view of the next session of the Legislature, which will be convened this month, in order that not only the legislators from Maui and other parts of the Territory, but also the general public, shall know the facts.

The Federal government is about to establish harbor lines in Kahului harbor, the inner or bulkhead line being the limit of extension to which private corporations can construct piers, bulkheads and fillings for the purpose of carrying on shipping business.

The outer line, known as the pierhead line, is the limit beyond which no structure of any kind can be built out into the harbor by either private, Territorial or Federal enterprise.

At Kahului the distance between the outer and inner lines will be 600 feet, and this space will be controlled by the Territorial government, through the Department of Public Works; that is to say, private enterprise could construct wharves within this space only, under a license from the Territory, or the Territorial government itself could construct wharves and dredge slips, etc., without further reference to Federal authority. Beyond the pierhead line the only work that could be done is dredging out basins and entrances, and deepening channels, and the location of suitable moorings and beacons, or the construction of breakwaters.

The plans proposed by the Superintendent of Public Works for the improvement of Kahului harbor involve the construction of a wharf 600 feet long and 100 feet wide, and the dredging of a slip of sufficient depth to permit the largest vessels which ply in these waters coming up to the dock and discharging and taking on cargo. Room is contemplated also, for the accommodation of inter-island steamers to lie at the same dock, at the same time as the large vessels, for the accommodation of inter island traffic, both inward and outward. This involves the expenditure of a very large sum of money, roughly estimated at $150,000. The ultimate cost would probably largely exceed this.

It is thought that the Governor will recommend to the Legislature suitable appropriations for this work, and if these appropriations are passed and the wharf constructed, the Kahului Railroad company will enter into arrangements with the Territorial government whereby rights of way for the public to the wharf will be secured, and the Kahului Railroad company will in all things endeavor to cooperate with the Territorial government for the furtherance of this important improvement for the island of Maui.

If, however, the Legislature fails to appropriate a sufficient sum of money to carry on this work, the Kahului Railroad company proposes to obtain a license from the Superintendent of Public Works permitting it to construct the wharf and dredge out the slip, so that the progress of business may not be hampered, and the development of the port may proceed without any interruption.

If the Kahului Railroad company should construct the wharf, it would be under an agreement to turn over the wharf to the Territorial government for a reasonable compensation, at any

LEGISLATORS INVITED TO HEAR WATERWORKS TALK

The members of the Executive Committee of the Civic Federation have extended an invitation to all members of the Legislature, the Mayor and Supervisors and all others interested in the question of Honolulu waterworks and the Nuuanu dam to be present at the meeting of the Federation tomorrow evening, in the makai pavilion of the Young Hotel roof garden, at which the Superintendent of Public Works will make an address. Mr. Campbell intends to go fully into the water supply question, and will be prepared to answer any questions that may be asked him, while his address will be illustrated by lantern slides and maps. Director Petrie, of the Floral Parade, is looking for a speaker to point out the advertising value of making this year's parade a record-breaker, and W. L. Bigger, of Seattle, has been invited to give a five-minute boost to the Alaska-Yukon Exposition.

CONSTITUTIONAL CRISIS IN TURKEY SAFELY PASSED

New Ministry Announced—Taft Back Home From the South—Recovering Bodies of Penguin Wreck.

(Associated Press Cablegrams.)
 CONSTANTINOPLE, February 15.—The constitutional crisis in Turkey has passed without trouble and a new Ministry has been formed to take the place of the first Ministry, some of the members of which were dismissed by the Sultan, the rest resigning in protest.

ADMIRAL BERESFORD TO RETIRE NEXT MONTH

LONDON, February 15.—It is announced that Admiral Lord Charles Beresford will probably be retired next month.

Admiral Beresford is one of the national heroes of Great Britain, having shown distinguished gallantry in action on several occasions, won special mention in despatches, and received the thanks and decorations of foreign governments. For many years he has been a leading spirit in British naval circles and has contended fiercely for the continual improvement of the navy in equipment and strength. He is well known to many in Honolulu, having visited here in 1889, and earlier, when a youth.

WILL ANNOUNCE JUDGES TODAY

Malihinis Who Will Pick Out Floral Parade Winners to Be Named.

This afternoon, Director T. H. Petrie, of the Floral Parade General Committee, expects to be ready to make known the names of the malihini judges selected to decide upon the distribution of the trophies among the various prize winners of Washington's Birthday. As at present planned, there will be fifteen judges in all, three being assigned to each of the several classes of entries.

The idea of having visitors in the city take the places of judges has been received with almost universal favor, and the task of filling them has proved to be a much simpler matter. Mr. Petrie states that he had little trouble in getting persons to serve, and all who were asked were much pleased at the opportunity to help in Honolulu's big event of the year. One or two places still remain to be filled, but there will be no trouble on this score. Most of the judges selected are guests at one or the other of the hotels of the city.

Interest Manifested.

The interest which is being taken in this year's Washington's Birthday parade is something very noticeable just now, and as this is the last week remaining before the big event, the remaining time is likely to be very busy to a great many people. All of the members of the various committees are confident of the greatest parade of its kind in Honolulu's history.

Chairman J. M. Dowsett of the Automobile Committee states that there will not be less than fifty machines in line. There will probably be more than this number, for in spite of all that can be done there always seems to be a lot of persons who will not make their intentions known until the last minute. Mr. Dowsett thinks that this may be due in a measure to the impression that the committee would require a description of the decorations, and these details are being guarded this year with a care never before observed.

"We don't care to know what anybody is going to put on his machine in way of decorations, but we would like to have our work made a little easier by having people let us know that they intend to have some vehicle in line, as long as possible beforehand," said Mr. Dowsett Saturday afternoon. "If people would only stop a moment to consider how much discomfort they may save themselves, as well as us, by allowing the committees beforehand to know that they are coming in, in order that we may supply them with a number, and get them properly located in the Capitol grounds and in the line of

HOMESTEAD SALE.

Land Commissioner J. W. Pratt was a passenger on the Mauna Kea Saturday, returning from his trip to Waimanalo, Hawaii, where he conducted a sale of homesteads. Mr. Pratt states that he sold 53 lots out of 73. The total amount realized on the sale was nearly $500. Most of the purchasers were men in the employ of the Parker Ranch Company, and the average price realized was $26.25 an acre.

WANTS A NICE INAUGURATION

Taft So States and Official Washington Prepares to Give It to Him.

(Mail Special to the Advertiser.)
 WASHINGTON, D. C., January 31.—Gradually thrusting itself into merited prominence and overtopping affairs of state, the inaugural committee by its great activities is reminding Washington more forcibly than ever that the days of grace for the old administration are waning. Talk of magnificent parades, unequalled decorations along historic Pennsylvania avenue, glorious fireworks, electric radiance from the dome of the Capitol and the peak of the Washington monument, illuminated cascades, and a ball of surpassing brilliance abounds everywhere in Washington as the details of the coming event are fixed upon.

A day or two ago the mighty committee on rules of the Senate met in its little room on the ground floor of the Capitol. Senator Knox, prospective Secretary of State, is its chairman. They discussed the inaugural plans at the Capitol, which really is the only official part of the inaugural. The Senate provides with special pains for that ceremony, not the least important task in that connection being the enormous platform, covering two or three acres on the east front. Very soon now the sound of hammer and saw will make a din in that vicinity, but it will be carefully restricted to hours not in conflict with deliberations of the Senate and the House. Mere carpentering can not be allowed to disturb the Solons at their labors.

Coming to Rent Their Quarters.

Platoons of visitors are coming to town daily and going up and down the lines of hotels and boarding-houses of the most centrally-located thoroughfares. They want quarters for governors and high-browed delegations, for civic organizations and marching clubs. The applications for a place in the parade are pouring in. National Guardsmen will come in force. A little city of houses alone will be needed to give them sleeping room and sustenance. Tons of extra provisions must be laid in store. The restaurants and other establishments that provide refreshments for the inner man are putting in big orders early, although it ought to be said that there is no danger of a famine, even though the inaugural visitors should be twice as many as all the indications promise.

Somebody got an impression that President-elect Taft did not want a great, spectacular inaugural. That seemed to forecast efforts toward a "simple ceremony." The old "simple ceremony" suggestion comes to the front every four years. In the earlier times it was much coupled with allusions to Jefferson's simple inaugural and the now exploded story that he rode to the Capitol alone on horseback, hitched his horse to an adjacent post and walked up to the east front to take the oath.

As a matter of fact, all inaugurations,

OAHU BATTERY TO BE NAMED AFTER AERONAUT PIONEER

Lieutenant Selfridge, U. S. A., who was killed at Fort Myer, Va., last year while testing one of the Wright aeroplanes under War Department auspices, has been honored by the government by having his name used in christening one of the new batteries on this island. It will be called Battery Selfridge, but whether it is the battery at Pearl Harbor, the guns for which are being brought here aboard the bark Mohican, or one of the batteries at Waikiki, is not known here. The San Francisco Argonaut says that Battery Selfridge is on the "Fort Upton Military Reservation, Hawaii." The local Army engineer office has received no information on the subject, nor have any of the battery locations been officially named as yet, nor, for that matter, has the cavalry post at Lihue, which is temporarily called the Leilehua Cantonment.

A cablegram printed in the Advertiser on February 2 refers to the naming of a battery at Fort Upton after Lieutenant Selfridge, but the dispatch did not state where Fort Upton is located.

HILO BREAKWATER PROGRESSING STEADILY

B. F. Dillingham returned from Hilo on the Mauna Kea after a brief visit on Hawaii in connection with the proposed extension of the railroad north from Hilo, and the breakwater contract. He reports the construction of the Hilo breakwater progressing steadily. The engineering party making surveys for the proposed railroad extension are making alternate surveys for the purpose of comparison in several difficult locations, particularly the crossings of the Waialuku river and at Wainaku mill, where there is a tangle of gulches, and in the Onomea section, which is the most complicated district along the line. Mr. Dillingham expects active work to begin at an early date.

ATTEMPTED DYNAMITING.

CROCKETT, California, February 6.—Three former employes of the California and Hawaii Sugar Refinery attempted to murder Assistant Superintendent Uno Hartman and family by dynamiting their home, because several hundred foreigners had recently been dropped from the payroll. The attempt was not successful.

NO INFANT DAMNATION

Bishop Smith Believes That No Innocent Child Is Lost.

"If one little child has died in infancy out of heaven, it is hard to believe that there is a heaven, for it cannot be that one innocent child would be left out," stated Bishop Smith, in the course of a sermon delivered yesterday morning at the Methodist church, a sermon in which infant damnation had no part.

Bishop Smith addressed a good sized congregation yesterday, preaching from the text taken from the second verse of the third chapter of the first epistle of John, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." His sermon, follows in part:

All men are God's children in the sense used by Paul, "For we also are his offspring." God created us; we are his children. However, this is not the sense used in the text. Sin has severed the original and natural relation. This is the delicate ground for the Savior said to his disciples, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of heaven;" and again, "Except ye be converted and become like little children, ye cannot become the children of God." In childhood the race is closely related to God. If one little child has died in infancy out of heaven, it is hard to believe that there is a heaven, for it cannot be that one innocent child would be left out.

So we conclude that when we ourselves as free and responsible persons, offend against divine law and justice and become rebellious, we are disinherited. So the question comes up, "Can we train children to be nothing else than God's children?" Assuredly this is possible and is our duty, not often accomplished perhaps, but child-

BIG QUESTIONS AT CAPITAL KEEPING STATESMEN BUSY

National Squabbles and International Items
Presenting Themselves--Roosevelt Is Cooling Toward Taft.

By Ernest G. Walker.

(Mail Special to the Advertiser.)
WASHINGTON, February 1.—Topics galore crowd in upon the Washington view these days. There is the steel trust. Big witnesses are treading the way to the Senate Committee on Judiciary. They are expected to enlighten the learned Senate lawyers whether the President was warranted in approving the merger of the Steel Trust and the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company. Most of them, however, are trying to do just the opposite thing—to keep the light away from the committee. It would reflect upon the President.

There is the old friend—the Brownsville case. The Republican factions that have been warring in the Senate for two years and more have shaken hands and agreed upon a compromise. But there the Democrats come in. They do not propose there shall be legislation at this session permitting the colored soldiers to reenlist. It would have a bad effect, it is claimed, upon the refractory negro population of that section.

It is a big time for treaties. Secretary of State Root signaled the close of his term as premier with negotiating several instruments. Some of them have been ratified by the Senate. Only the other day a treaty was closed up with Honduras, providing for the extradition of criminals. It is about the last refuge there is left for those who flee from the law and justice. Secretary Root was very active concluding extradition treaties, and very soon there will remain but a few corners of the earth, where a man, who has violated the laws of the United States, will be secure. He also signed, just before he quit office, a treaty to arbitrate a century old fishing dispute between the United States and Newfoundland. But how these and other treaties are to fare before the Senate is a question. Senators are very careful about ratifying treaties. Only a few days ago they "bucked" against a treaty for defining the international boundary between Canada and the United States and for determining the water rights of the two countries along the northern boundary. Just a few Senators were strong enough to "bust" that document, which now apparently must be redrafted and probably resubmitted, for treaties have to be ratified by a two-thirds majority.

And thus, with the Washington air full of politics and with interest over the approaching change of administration, things are doing. President and Mrs. Roosevelt are packing up their personal belongings so as to be ready to get out of Washington the moment President-elect Taft has ridden down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol to take the oath of office. He is gathering up odds and ends. Congress is bending to its task, passing appropriation bills at a rapid rate and promising to make this a billion dollar session of Congress.

The Steel Trust investigation, already alluded to, is full of ginger. The other day the President made public a letter Attorney-General Bonaparte had written refusing to make public certain information about the Steel Trust. That action made the Senate Judiciary Committee mad. When the law was enacted creating the Bureau of Corporations, the President wanted a provision to make it discretionary with him whether the results of inquiries by the bureau should be made public. The Senate was unwilling this should be done. It authorized inquiries to be made on promise that the information should be confidential.

The President acquired some information of that confidential character regarding the Steel Trust. Now when the Senate is trying to embarrass him by its inquiry, growing out of charges that he has favored the Steel Trust in a very marked way and permitted that trust to buy the southern corporation, the President gleefully turns the tables upon the Senate. He sent for the information in the possession of Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations, locked it up in the White House offices, and is defying the Senate Judiciary Committee.

In turn, the Judiciary Committee throws its doors wide open and allows the public to enter and hear the examination of witnesses. It hailed George W. Perkins, of the New York firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., to its presence, and he is one of a number of witnesses who have been heard in recent days. The inquisitorial Senators have already dragged out the information that there was a stock brokerage concern interested in selling the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company to the Steel Trust, in spite of the fact that H. C. Frick and E. H. Gary, in the midst of the panic of October, 1907, came to Washington and pleaded with the President to permit of the consolidation because it would save a number of big financial institutions.

Panama Investigation May Come.
It seems as though the House will start up another investigation, although Speaker Cannon is very loath to give the word. William Nelson Cromwell is pressing him to do so, and the Speaker is almost on the point of yielding. That is on an investigation of the Panama Canal. For the House has been more or less stirred in recent days by sweeping charges from Representative Henry T. Rainey, an Illinois Democrat. In a long and emphatic speech, which he had prepared carefully and which was supported in some part by documents, Mr. Rainey charged that the administration was not making as good success in building the canal as the people of the United States have been led to believe. He went much further, and accused Mr. Cromwell of having been for years in close cooperation with Senor Obaldia, the new President of the little Republic of Panama. He, by implication, accused Mr. Cromwell of being a party to ambitious schemes for despoiling the young republic. Mr. Rainey claims to have knowledge of the organization of a company to secure a charter for a railroad of 450 kilometers in length on the Pacific side of Panama, for the construction of which a large part of the valuable timber lands of that portion of the country are to be given free; and also Mr. Rainey claims that another company is seeking a concession from the Panama Congress to gobble up all the valuable timber lands on the Atlantic side of the isthmus. He used the names of Mr. Cromwell and his secretary, and also of C. P. Taft, in connection with these efforts, saying that President Obaldia told some Panama Congressmen late in December that those men were back of the efforts to secure the concessions.

Mr. Charles P. Taft has denied any part or any knowledge of the schemes in most emphatic terms. He says he never had any business dealings with Mr. Cromwell. But Mr. Rainey also accuses the President-elect of having aided Mr. Cromwell in furthering a big deal by which the latter's old enemy, Obaldia, should win the Presidency of the Republic and thus be able to exploit and despoil the country, whose people are not alive to the value or importance of its timber and other natural resources.

As a part of the Rainey charges, it was asserted that Senator Lodge of Massachusetts had been a party to framing legislation by which the purchase of two boats, the Tremont and Shawmut, owned by a Boston Company and operated on the Pacific Ocean, was forced upon the government. This stirred some of the New England contingent profoundly and denials abounded. There were two or three days of heated debating at the House, at intervals, and probably the last of the fracas has not come yet.

Meanwhile Mr. Cromwell is clamoring for an opportunity to show that Representative Rainey is four flushings. He is thundering at the doors of Speaker Cannon's offices and claims to have papers and documents to back up all he has to say. Mr. Rainey, on the other hand, is meeting all the denials with assertions that they do not touch the vital points of his charges. They accused him of having gotten his information from a New York newspaper, the President is trying to get indicted for libeling the government, but Mr. Rainey retorted that that was unequivocally and unqualifiedly false in every particular.

There is little doubt among the wiser men in Congress that the Panama Canal operations of recent years will stand the fullest investigation. They are not quite so sure of the result of investigations touching the Republic of Panama, for the governments of Central and South America will not always stand being judged by the standards that prevail in the United States. Therefore the Speaker is very loath to grant that part of Mr. Cromwell's request. The latter has been very prominent in arranging and conducting Panama Canal matters for years. He has been a frequent visitor in Washington and has, beyond question, been very close to the administration of President Roosevelt and to the management of the Panama Canal, while Mr. Taft was Secretary of War. He has generally defied committees of the Senate in their efforts to secure information about his operations and consequently has been the target of numerous fierce newspaper attacks. He has smarted under these so long that he is now very insistent upon some kind of a hearing before a House Committee.

Roosevelt's Says It's Taft's Job.

President Roosevelt has talked considerably in the last few days about the future of the Panama canal. He seems to expect that Mr. Taft, on the isthmus, is likely to decide that a sea level canal is preferable to the lock project, which Congress decided upon a couple of years ago, chiefly at his instigation.

"I was anxious that the canal should be completed quickly," the President said in substance to a visitor the other day during a rather contemplative mood. "But if the people want to wait for the opening of the canal and pay as much as a canal with locks would cost, that is their privilege. I am now going out of office and my view of things is changing, perhaps. The canal is Mr. Taft's problem from now on—not mine."

It is current gossip in Washington that the President selected to go to the isthmus with Mr. Taft engineers who would strongly advise the construction of a lock canal. As the story runs the President had intimations that Mr. Taft was inclined to favor a sea level project and hoped by the influence of distinguished engineers to dissuade him from recommending it.

Furthermore the story goes that Mr. Taft comprehended fully the President's purpose in the selection of engineers but that he rather welcomed the company of advocates of the lock canal. He wanted to learn during the visit to the isthmus reasons in full regarding that form of project and determine whether he was warranted in urging the sweeping change involved.

This representation of convictions held by the two men—which is probably true in essentials, although known here mostly through the channels of gossip—is being cited as evidence of barriers that, it is claimed, are rising between the two men. It does not mean that they have quarreled or are likely to quarrel. But Mr. Taft, as visitors from the South have recently been noting, is making on his mind about numerous matters affecting the conduct of his administration. When he once forms his opinions Mr. Taft is very tenacious of them. Those who have visited him recently say he is not only becoming more independent but also more cautious, as might be expected of one who finds himself approaching the great responsibilities of the presidency. Although he knows, as does the country, that he put away a renomination which could have been his without the asking and which in all probability would have been as good as a reelection, President Roosevelt does not altogether enjoy the contemplation of retirement to private life. He did not altogether relish Mr. Taft's failure to honor his request in behalf of Mr. Loeb. The President has not been particularly sensitive about it, although the realization that Mr. Taft was not to bring Mr. Loeb to his cabinet table was rather a new sensation for a man who has been accustomed to having his own way for over seven years.

The President's enemies and those who do not approve of his administration have been filling the public eye since last November with predictions that Mr. Taft would be more conservative than his predecessor and that the country would have a much needed rest. Of late the President has not been unmindful that there are influential men in Congress and out of it, who feel so intensely, that they are offering up thanks at the close of every day because the time till March 4 has been reduced by twenty-four hours. He fought Congress vigorously in the hope of impressing its members with the fact that they could not regard him as a dead lion during the short session. He stirred up a deal of hostility and the country rallied to his side of the controversy, but after all the President accomplished nothing in the way of legislation. Congress has enacted no reform laws this winter. Its leaders never intended to.

Cooling Towards Successor.
The President believes in Mr. Taft, as he always has, and leaving Washington, will wish him well. But, after all is said, he is not so enthusiastic now about the work of his successor in office as he was three months ago. This may be due quite as much to the praise that Mr. Roosevelt's enemies have been extending to Mr. Taft as to anything Mr. Taft has done himself.

Credits Tennis Cabinet.
Jesting the country over at the expense of the tennis cabinet finds no responsive chord with President Roosevelt. He has not hesitated of late to let people know as much. To the men, who have been playing tennis with him at the rear of the White House offices for several years, the President attributes much of the success he has had in urging forward reforms that have been a feature of his administration.

Of course some members of the tennis cabinet have been members of the real cabinet but it is quite possible that the President would ascribe to the former body quite as much credit as to the latter, who are his constitutional advisers. Some of his words of late would indicate as much. He picked them for the tennis cabinet for two reasons. One was that he wanted to keep in close touch with men who were thoroughly loyal to him and to his ideas and who were resourceful in putting into operation the plans that he and they favored. The President has stated that of course the members of the tennis cabinet had to know how to play tennis at least a little. That was the second consideration he had in mind in inviting them to the White House tennis court.

The last member of the tennis cabinet to become a member of the real cabinet is Secretary of State Bacon who is to be the premier of the last month of the Roosevelt administration. He is already holding office, having been nominated to the Senate and confirmed there, the same as all Secretaries of State are. Mr. Bacon wanted the honor of being a Secretary of State, which he will now enjoy till March 4. With his entrance into the cabinet there are really four members of the tennis cabinet sitting around the table at the biweekly meetings in the White House offices. Secretary of the Interior Garfield, who is soon going back to Ohio to resume the practice of law, is one of them; Postmaster General Meyer is another, and Secretary of the Navy Newberry is the fourth. The last two, especially Secretary Newberry, have played in the tennis cabinet but little.

The President has been generous enough to give these and others of his tennis players credit for much of the work that the public has bestowed upon him. Possibly to none of his tennis players is he more grateful for assistance than to Mr. Gifford Pinchot, Chief Forester. But Mr. Pinchot is likely to remain in office anyway as the chief of that bureau has been holding office without regard to the beginning and the ending of administrations. Mr. Pinchot has been the moving spirit behind the President in the extensive conservation work of the last two or three years as he was in bringing about the Farmers' Uplift Commission. He served as a member of both commissions, and was fertile in good ideas and suggestions.

The fun that has been poked at the Uplift Commission does not disturb the President at all. He expected that it would be laugh at but he reasons that long after people have forgotten to laugh at jokes cracked at the expense of the uplifters they will be pondering over the recommendations that the commission has made. And he expects that the agitation over the improvement of the conditions of farmers will result in new thought on that subject and in the course of time will result in very much good. All its members served without pay, something of which the President is also proud in that it demonstrates the patriotic desire of the men in question to contribute of their best efforts to help a widely separated and isolated portion of the population.

Many are wondering whether President Roosevelt will offer to return to Washington, when once he has departed as a private citizen. It is a well known fact that ex-presidents give the Capital city a wide berth. They do not like to return to the scene of their former activities and realize the full force of the contrast. Ex-President Harrison came back here but rarely and then it was to argue legal cases before the Supreme Court of the United States. Ex-President Cleveland came here to attend the funeral of President McKinley, but did not tarry in the city. He passed through here again and again but was always averse to spending any time in Washington. President Roosevelt is inclined to believe that he will not want to come back here but his friends think he may change his mind about it, for he has lived here long and has many personal friends in the city, whom he knew long before he became President.

HALSTEAD WINS TANSAN MATCH

The Fine Weather and Smooth Greens Bring Excellent Scores.

Warm, but still and perfect for golfing was the weather yesterday for the sixth of the Tansan tournaments. Neither one of the two players who have already won two matches took first place, although Austin White tied for second place with the remarkably consistent net score of 81 made in 41 and 40.

F. Halstead, 5 handicap, won first place with 84 gross, made in 44 and 40. Deducting his handicap of 5 this makes him 79 to W. H. Babbitt's and Austin White's 81.

The feature of the day's play was the remarkable consistency all the way through. Glancing down the list of results it is seen that very few of the players had a difference of more than two or three between the two rounds and all the scores were also remarkably close to handicapping form.

Owing to the propitious weather and the fine condition of the greens, the scores were all low. Even the men with eighteen handicap made good gross scores and the day's play finished in smiles, for each player had done himself more than justice and the clubhouse echoed with happy accounts of "How I did it at the sixth," not with grumbling excuses for "Why I fozzled."

After the first round it looked as though Austin White and George Angus would scrap it out as they both turned in 41. White improved one shot in the second round but Angus fell back to 44 while Halstead, who had started with 44, came in with 40 on his card.

There was a surprising number of spectators out to watch the playing and the fair sex was well represented. The auto bus was in the hospital but the old standby wagonette was there and everybody was taken from the car to the links with but little delay.

Strangely enough the only real fall-down of the day was that of Wm. Simpson, who has two holds on the cup already. He was not in good form and was not dangerous at any green on the links. Babbitt and White, who tied for second place, instead of playing off, decided to split the case of Tansan, that is given as second prize for each match, and each take half.

The following were the official scores:

Mainland Sport Notes

Charlie Van Loan is in New York at present. He reported the victory of Longboat over Alfred Shrubbs at Madison Square Garden, on the night of February 5, for the Denver Post and Hearst syndicate.

Battling Nelson is now on the Coast. He is filling a theatrical engagement in Los Angeles and talks little fight.

Three world's records were lowered at the indoor meet of the Olympic Club in San Francisco on February 5. Smithson ran the 80-yard high hurdles in 10 seconds, Andrew Glarner ran the indoor half-mile in 2:00 2-5, and Ralph Rose put the 12-pound shot 37 feet 7 inches.

Theatrical managers are now after Jack Johnson. He has been offered $1500 a week. If Johnson had not beaten Burns, he would have been worth about $1.60 a day as a laborer.

Happy Hogan, manager of the new Vernon club in the California league, is dickering for Joe McGinnity, the "Iron Man" of the Giants. Joe is still in New York, but is said to be for sale by Muggsy McGraw.

John G. Clarkson, once the greatest pitcher in the National League, died of pneumonia at the McLean Hospital in Waverley, Mass., on February 4.

With the anti-racetrack bill starting them in the face, the management of the Arcadia track, near Los Angeles, is running seven races a day so as to gather in as much coin as possible before the law puts a stop to their evil graft.

COMPANY G USES WHITEWASH TUB

Company G at Fort Shafter added another to a long list of uninterrupted victories, by whitewashing Company F very severely yesterday afternoon by the score of 9 to 0. In spite of the on-sided score, it was a hot game, and up to the sixth the victory belonged to anybody.

They have an experimental war-ballooning out at the camp, and in the early part of the sixth inning one of the Company G men made a strategic movement toward the diamond and cut the ropes that held said balloon. It surely went up in the air, and tied to it were the whole of the Company F team, with Okrey hanging on below.

It was not so much that the G boys banged the other pitcher in the sixth, seventh and eighth, as that they discovered the possibilities of a mixture of hitting Okrey's delivery over third base and making the swipes just a trifle too hot for the third baseman.

Two runs were scored in the sixth, followed by three in the seventh and four more big tallies in the eighth. Meanwhile Boloun, the G pitcher was getting them over the plate in fine shape and most of the F players either died at first or fanned the air. Only two hits did the losers make during the game, while the G boys handed out twelve of them. It says a great deal for the F fielding that more runs were not scored with so many baseballs flying around.

Now that Company G has won all of four games with the other companies, two with each, they feel properly proud of themselves and look forward with much confidence to the opening of the series that is to be played for the Dunning cup after their return from camp.

HIGH AND KAMS TO PLAY TODAY

There will be a great game of soccer this afternoon at Alexander field when the High Schools try conclusions with the Kams. The school has played five games and won four of them with one draw. This gives them nine points. The Kams have won three games and drawn one which gives them seven points.

If the Kams can defeat the High team today they will tie for first place and the championship of the interscholastic soccer series will have to be played off.

Elisha Andrews was out to see the games on Saturday and states that he is feeling so much better that he expects to play today. This will mean much for the High School who felt his loss sadly on Saturday.

The other game between Aliiolani and Punahou will also be hardy contested. The college kids have been playing in splendid form and have made a hot fight for every game. So far they have not scored a goal and are very anxious to make a winning over Punahou today. Both games will be well worth watching.

LADIES' CARDS FOR OUTRIGGER

The Outrigger Club is out with a statement to the effect that the ladies' auxiliary membership cards are ready and that the ladies' quarters on the club grounds are in course of construction. It is to be hoped that this course of construction will not take very long and that there will soon be accommodation for the fair relations and friends of mere male members.

There has not been much doing at the club of late, and the grass has and the grounds generally have had more the appearance of being suddenly deserted by camp-followers than of representing a live and active organization. The Outrigger Club is too good an institution to be allowed to die of innocuous desuetude.

CHINESE MINOR LEAGUE GAME

The A and C teams of the Chinese minor league played a fast game of ball yesterday afternoon, in which the C team won by the close score of 10 to 8. Cheong pitched a heady game for the winners and was well seconded by Afun behind the plate. The line-ups were:

MORPHEUS PAYS VISIT TO AALA

Slow and Sleepy Games Mar the Return of Cupids to Aala Park.

Standing of the Cupid League.

C. A. Cs.	P.	W.	Pct.
White Sox	1	1	1.000
White Sox	1	1	1.000
Aalas	2	1	.500
J. A. C.	2	1	.500
Reach	2	0	.000

Fine weather, a big crowd and very poor baseball marked the return of the Cupid League players to Aala Park yesterday afternoon. The games started late and, when they did get going, most of the players stopped to take an occasional forty winks when they felt like it.

The first game, between the Aalas and Reaches, was won by the former, 13 to 7, while the second sleeping-car was occupied by the White Sox and J. A. Cs., who had berths upper twenty-one and lower two, respectively.

The band was there without a doubt, and Captain Berger began to get very nervous as the sun went down toward the horizon. He said that he had a date for dinner at half-past six, and the game should not go on after six o'clock, so, when his watch showed that time, the genial kapellmeister promptly waved his baton for the "Star Spangled Banner," and the crowd dispersed, thinking the game was called. Not wishing to play without a little encouragement and aching for more repose, the players called it off and the White Sox took the game.

One Man Awake.
The only wideawake man on the field was A. K. Vierra. He did his best to wake somebody up, but everybody only yawned and whispered the first stanza of that good old song, "Please go away and let me sleep." A. K. waved his cane of office and swore that he would leave his way through the web of sleep that had fallen on the field, but he didn't act the fairy prince worth a whoop, and his loudest efforts were greeted with snores.

The Reaches introduced an innovation by putting good old Billy Bounce in the box. Billy pitched a good game, but had poor support. He was a fascinating sight to watch when wound. It looked as though a big millstone had escaped and was slowly revolving in the center of the diamond. There was just room for Eddie Fernandez to stand between the pitcher and second base, and the batter had to stand back a few inches so as not to hit the pitcher with his bat.

Webster, Junior, made his reappearance in the afternoon games, and did very well, although he had already played a hard game in the morning. He was with the Reach aggregation, and did some nice fly-catching at center field as well as batting out a few good ones.

Score Between Yawns.
The Aalas started the scoring in the first inning with three runs, and followed these with two in the second and two in the fourth. Then they did the deep sleep act for a few innings and woke up long enough to land four in the seventh and two in the eighth.

Between yawns the Reaches managed to wander round the diamond for a few. One in the second, three in the fifth and three in the eighth was the way they did it. Then the band played "Wake me early, Mother, for I'm to be Queen of the May."

Second Game Late.
The second game did not start until after four o'clock, and after the first inning, in which the Japs made two runs, it was a somnolent slaughter by the Hoplets. When a hit went over second base, the shortstop waited for the alarm clock to ring and then went to tell center field about it. Meanwhile the batter and runners toddled slowly round the diamond to the tune of "He may be a rabbit or a hare, but I'm a lazy snail," and Will Prestidge collected extra fares from the spectators on account of Pullman rates having gone up.

The finish came none too soon, and the crowd dispersed after a very pleasant afternoon of resting in the open air and taking the sun en route. Next Sunday we hope to see the league come out with the big ginger bucket and hand round large bunches to all the players before the games start. Also the Riverside Juniors should be made to quit in good time, so that the Cupid kids can start at a reasonable hour.

A. K. Vierra may be depended on to see that this laudable proposition is carried out.

HOPLETS GET NINE IN SIXTH

Sam Hop's Aala Juniors brought off the big thing yesterday morning at Aala park by winning their game against the Chinese Aloha Juniors and, with it, the championship of the Riverside Junior League and the Robert Shingle cup.

The flying machine trial came off in the sixth so successfully that the Aalas had scored nine runs before it hit the earth again. Peter had been pitching an excellent game for the losers up till this inning but the Hoplets found him in the sixth and batted him all round the field, when they did not walk.

Sam started things by beating a neat bunt with the bases full. This scored three men and then a bunch of hits followed, each with an extra tally to show on the score board. The excitement of the crowd was simply frantic. The spectators surged up to the very edge of the diamond and, as run followed run, Sam's supporters went crazy with joy.

The Alohas made a game fight for it and did some scoring themselves but the Hop-o-my-thumb were too far ahead and danced in winners by 12 to 10. Sam states that there will be a grand luncheon to commemorate the event in the near future.

THE Pacific Commercial Advertiser
A MORNING PAPER.

WALTER G. SMITH EDITOR

MONDAY FEBRUARY 15.

MORE SIMPLIFIED SPELLING.

The Simplified Spelling Board, which is still doing business at the old stand, unaffected by the approaching fourth of March, has issued a third list of familiar words in an unfamiliar style. The list is preceded by a lengthy argument in favor of the new style because it is in reality an old style and the simplified spelling is merely getting back to the good old days of Milton and Bacon and Shakespeare and others who could spell as they pleased. The Board points proudly to the "neat and succinct appearance" of such words as "kist" and "ript," and calls upon everyone to "observe also the symmetry of the existing parallel forms of certain preterites, when both are spelled with accuracy," giving "speld" and "spelt" as examples.

Selecting from the several lists in the pamphlet, we are able to give the following as an example of what may be expected when school primers come out in the simple style:

"What ailed the def lady? Oh, she was so ded in the hed that she did not rotis that she had left her bodis in the offis. A prejudist polisman without hart kot his breth as she approachd and cludb her nerly to deth. She sobd her excus, but he hammerd her until she was still. He had been traind so and it occurd to him proper to practis and not to preach. He preferd it, anyway. He mit hav kild the lady as he dragd her to the wald jail, but he observd the ruls of disciplin and this absoldv him from blam. Let us endeavor to always be as sted-fast in doing what is rit."

The members of the Board state that "it will be understood that an approval of these proposals does not bind one to a personal use of all the forms thus approved," the main purpose being to furnish a guide for editors and teachers to edge in the new forms gradually along authorized lines.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

"The beautiful city of Colorado Springs is to have a new charter soon," says the Denver Republican, which adds this comment:

"This movement for centralized municipal government has been growing the nation over since it was adopted under stress of circumstances by the people of Galveston immediately following the disaster to the gulf city. Under a commission of business men, who took charge of the stricken city as if it were a business that had suffered through no fault of its own, a new Galveston was brought around under great difficulties, due to location. Students believe that the salvation of the city was due to the commission. The scandals of San Francisco have been avoided thus far. To the argument that the city by the Golden Gate is rising more magnificent than ever and with a rate of progress never paralleled, the cynic will assert that these accomplishments have come in spite of the city's municipal government and past corruption.

"Government by commission is a movement toward one man power. In Denver for the last four and one-half years it has been government by one man. True enough there have been elected boards of aldermen and boards of supervisors and executive officers, but the fact remains that the Speer administration has been a one man government. The council—and it has been Republican and Democratic—has not been heard of. No vetoes have resulted. No arguments have taken place in the open. Under the charter several boards have to be appointed by the mayor, but these boards are like the legislative departments—they do not bulk in the public eye. The saving to Denver under a charter such as is proposed for Colorado Springs or under the charters that have been drafted for other cities that have grown tired of the old, cumbersome system would be sufficient to build a civic center in a few years.

"At the election last May in Denver the issue turned on the candidates for mayor. The majority of the voters forgot about supervisors and aldermen and most of the other elective officers. They accepted as a fact accomplished that Denver was being conducted by one man.

"In the nation the outcry by the enemies of Roosevelt is that this republic is a government of Roosevelt. Congress has been seeking to assert its prerogatives. But somehow the people accept the situation and refuse to be frightened by the scarecrow of the 'man on horseback.'

"In opposition to government by commission and to one man power is the other extreme, that of paternalism in the form of the initiative and referendum, the power of recall, direct primary elections, headless ballots and so forth. There is as much danger from the one as from the other. And as for the good or bad in one man rule it depends very much upon the man himself."

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE IN TWO LIGHTS.

About the same time, a few weeks ago, the newspapers of New Zealand were commenting on the sensational increase in the prohibition vote in that country, which coincided with the increase in the number of women voters and the newspapers of the American mainland were commenting on the statements of public men that woman's suffrage had proved a failure, so far as results for good were concerned, in the States of Utah, Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming. General Palmer, of Colorado, is quoted as saying: "Based upon my personal observations of the working of equal suffrage in the four States where it exists, its results indicate the ability of the corrupt political machine to influence the female vote, rather than any ability on the part of women to purify politics."

Frederick Wood, the biologist, before the National League for the Civic Education of Women, exploded a bombshell by announcing that "woman suffrage has done more harm than good in the four States in which it has been tried—Utah, Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming."

The Auckland Star, on the other hand, discussing the increase in the no-license vote at the last general elections, observes that "it is difficult to estimate how far the growth of opinion against the increase of drink has been aided by the women's vote; but it is at least remarkable that it coincides with an increase in the percentage of women registered as electors from 78 per cent. in 1893, when they first exercised the franchise, to 93 per cent. three years ago. In thirteen electorates there are more women than men on the rolls, and their vote was expected to be heavier in this election than in any previous one. There may be no casual connection between the astonishing advances of the prohibitionist movement and the increasing determination of women to use their vote; but, if there is not, the coincidence is remarkable."

LONDON MONUMENT FOR CAPTAIN COOK.

Six of the admirals who have in turn commanded the Australasian squadron have addressed a letter to the London Times in cordial support of the proposal to erect in London a monument to the great navigator Captain Cook. "A large number of us," they say, "have had reason, when following our vocation, to feel personally grateful to him for the care with which he carried out his explorations, and the accuracy of his hydrographical surveys.

"Captain Cook's career illustrates in a very brilliant manner a side of naval service which is often less considered than it deserves to be. His work was purely pacific, and—what is more—was performed in the interest of the navigating public, irrespective of nationality. He had eminent predecessors and has had eminent successors, but no man has done so much as he did for the marine commerce of the world.

"Our service in the Southern Pacific, with which ocean Cook's name is specially connected, has given us frequent opportunities of observing the high merit of his work. We are, of course, aware that Cook's achievements were by no means limited to that area; but we have thought that our experiences within it would justify us in asking you to support the proposal brought forward by Sir J. H. Carruthers, that a memorial to Captain Cook should be erected in the capital of the Empire which he served with such great distinction."

The Civic Federation has extended an invitation for the members of the Legislature to attend the annual meeting tomorrow night, at which meeting the main subject of discussion will be the water question of Honolulu. The Superintendent of Public Works has a definite proposition to make and a concrete plan to present concerning a matter which will be before the Legislature, and the members can not know too much about it. The Representatives and Senators will be able to discuss the matter with more definite understanding if they hear the proposition which Mr. Campbell will go into fully at this meeting. There are many critics of the Nuuanu dam work, some of whom would not even recognize the dam if they went up Nuuanu valley and passed it, who would also profit by attending the meeting.

Around the Police Station

There is some wondering being done around the police station as to just how the Board of Supervisors is fixing up the police payroll, to meet the cut which the Supervisors made at the last meeting, as while the schedule was presented before the board, the police have seen no copy. Whether certain police officers are to be cut out altogether or whether there is a general paring all along the line, is the question.

However, the Supervisors' payroll has not the signature of Sheriff Jarrett, a matter of form required under the law. Every payroll must bear the signature of the official at the head of the bureau incurring the expenditure of public funds. The police are further wondering whether Auditor Bicknell will honor the payroll as it may be presented from the Supervisors.

There also appears to be a difference of opinion respecting the payroll of the police between Andrew Cox, on the one hand, and Supervisors Quinn and Ahia on the other. About the first of the month Mr. Cox is said to have assured the Sheriff that the appropriation for this month would be the same as for last month. Quinn and Ahia, on the other hand, do not share his view of the proposition, and say, so the police say, that no assurance was given that the appropriation for this month would be like anything of the kind.

As a matter of fact, the new schedule proposed by the Board of Supervisors through the police committee, cuts down the pay of the captains, sergeants, chief clerk, chief of detectives, hack inspector, assistant hack inspector, etc., but leaves the pay of the foot and mounted police, and receiving clerks the same as before.

Under all previous administrations the pay of a police captain was about $85 and sergeants (or lieutenants) $80. Sheriff Jarrett jumped the salaries up to $110 for captains and $100 for sergeants, because as the sheriff said they had "more responsibility than before." The pay of the hack inspector and his assistant was raised. It is said that the Supervisors mean to go farther than mere pruning in the case of the hack inspectors by putting in men of their own selection.

As to Chief of Detectives Kalakiela, the salary of his office is reduced from $140 to $125. Between $475 and $500 is pruned out of the payroll. However, the sheriff has now to pay for the sleuth of the City Attorney's office, that is, the salary of $100 per month has to come from the police payroll appropriation, a feature which is new in this administration. Then there is a police officer for Wahiawa. When Jarrett took office he drew in the officer from Wahiawa, and applied the $60 to officers in town. Inasmuch as Wahiawa is in more need now than ever for a police officer, the Board of Supervisors feel that an appropriation for an officer there is necessary, so Deputy Sheriff Cox, of Wahiawa, recently put an officer from his force on duty at that point.

Then as to the incidental fund of $1000 a month for the entire police department, the police committee wishes to either cut that down or divide it up so that a portion of it goes to Wahiawa, and another portion goes to Koolau-poko and another portion to Ewa, and so on. Those who have had experience in police matters view this arbitrary distribution of the general fund as unnecessary.

Many Bikes Stolen.

During the months of January and February, to date, there appears to have been an epidemic of bicycle stealing. Reports have reached the police department of a large number of wheels that have been mysteriously annexed by enterprising persons, but a larger number of bicyclists who have lost their wheels have made no reports at all, but have turned themselves into sleuths and are keeping their eyes open on the streets for their mounts.

Caught Many Gamblers.

On Saturday and Sunday the police were active among the Chinese gamblers and brought in gamblers from four small games. The greater number of arrests for gambling recently have been among the Japanese. About 5:30 p. m. yesterday a Korean named Chung Sung Wha was brought to the police station from Young street and booked for investigation. He is alleged "to have been hanging around."

The petty cares of business life wear away nervous strength, and this applies as much to the clerk at the desk as to the manager in his luxurious office. A thousand little details of duty requiring attention exhaust the nervous energy and cause one to fret over trifling things that would not receive a second thought under conditions of perfect health.

Nervous fretful persons of either sex are usually poorly nourished and in all such cases the surest and quickest permanent relief is to be had by the use of

KITSAGATA MARU AN ODD-LOOKER

Japanese Tramp Steamer Gets in After a Long Trip.

Twenty-two days is a long trip for a vessel between Yokohama and Honolulu, especially when the vessel is a steamer, but a small tramp steamer like the Kisagata Maru No. 2 is entitled to a long voyage, particularly when it costs less to run slowly.

It was a strange-looking craft to waterfronters, even. She is a narrow steamer of 2300 tons gross, with narrowest sort of deck cabins amidships.

The vessel is about eighteen years old, built in England, and she has been a tramp coal carrier most of her days.

The vessel is known as the Kisagata Maru No. 2, the latter being an official designation to distinguish her from the original Kisagata Maru, which is still on the merchant marine lists of Japan.

ALDEN BESSE IS HERE AT LAST

Bark Arrives From San Pedro, Forerunner of New Line.

Twenty-four days out from San Pedro, the American bark Alden Besse arrived yesterday forenoon on her first trip between Los Angeles and Honolulu, seeking to establish trade relations that the backers hope may be permanent.

The vessel was in sight of the Islands for about nine days, unable to beat up into the wind to bring her in view of Diamond Head.

The bark met with adverse weather conditions almost from the start. For the first seven days there were rough seas, then came a period of calms, then more squally weather.

There was difficulty yesterday afternoon in getting any news from this advance ship of a hoped-for trade between Honolulu and Los Angeles.

A visit to the bark in the evening found the captain abed and no one aboard wanted to wake him up, and it was stated aboard that if any information was to be gained it would have to come from G. H. E. Thompson of Los Angeles, who had the manifests.

Mr. Thompson stated that today he would have a conference with Mr. Waddingham, one of the owners of the bark, who was a passenger on the vessel, as to what disposition will be made of the cargo, which is about 300 tons.

The steamer Norea arriving Saturday night from Kealia brought in 4130 bags of sugar and one auto.

NO INFANT DAMNATION

(Continued from Page One.) dren can be trained to know only the love of a divine Father. We are in this disinherited relation because of sin, but this does not put us out of the Father's notice and care, or beyond his love.

In Ezekiel we find the words, "As I live, saith the Lord, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked." The phrase, "as I live," may be taken as an oath, and if the truth does not come when one is under oath it never comes.

"No changes can attend Jehovah's love." This is an inspiring, moving power in the salvation of men. When we hear the voice and come back, it is Father receives us. Immortal life is kindled in us by a new hope.

There is no shadow cast by the words, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." This does not mean, "It doth not appear whether we are the sons of God or not," nor doth it mean that there is a higher relation.

SEAMEN DEFEND REPRESENTATIVE

Intend to Uphold Capt. Tullett Until Proven He is Wrong.

The members of the Honolulu Harbor, Masters, Mates and Pilots, are not inclined to allow the statement to the effect that Captain Tullett, their representative in Washington, has overstepped in the matter of claiming that he has authority to appear and speak in the name of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce. Below is published a communication from the Harbor, through F. C. Poor, its secretary, which gives the association's side of the matter. One explanation offered is that Captain Tullett may have been misquoted in the Advertiser story of Thursday last, but the quotation was taken from the official report of the meeting of the Committee on Merchant Marine of the House and cannot be correct. The members of the Harbor are also mistaken in inferring that the story in the Advertiser was offered this paper for publication. It was obtained in the usual news gathering of the day and was a portion of a report of the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. The letter of the Harbor is:

Editor Advertiser: We are surprised and grieved at the astounding headlines and subsequent article involving our representative, Captain A. Tullett, as being the cause of a snarl at the Capital.

We feel absolutely certain that Captain Tullett has been misquoted, for he is certainly too much of a gentleman to attempt any misrepresentation, such as has been attributed to him in the article referred to, and in justice to him as well as ourselves, we would most respectfully request that you grant us space in the columns of your valuable paper to assert our objections, until such time as he may be heard from.

Captain Tullett's mission to Washington was to represent Honolulu Harbor No. 54 at the annual convention of the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots, whether he was clothed with any authority from the Chamber of Commerce, we do not know, but, in appreciation for what the Chamber of Commerce had done for us, we offered them his services, the correspondence leading up to this is hereto appended.

It is customary for the National Convention to appoint various committees from among the members to meet and confer with the different Congressional committees and we take it that Captain Tullett has, with others, been assigned the duty of going before the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries. If such is the case, we can not hold him responsible for not consulting the Territorial Delegate, particularly on a bill that did not directly interest this Territory.

The bill referred to is known as H. R. Bill 15657, introduced by the Honorable Everis A. Hayes, of California, January 29th, 1908, and referred to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

This bill is intended to put all sailing vessels of three hundred tons and over under the Inspection Laws and compel them to carry a licensed master and a licensed mate, also to make it unlawful for any one to serve as master, mate, second mate or third mate, engineer or pilot in charge of a watch who has not been licensed by the United States local inspectors.

At the last regular meeting of Honolulu Harbor No. 54, this bill was unanimously indorsed and letters sent to Honorable J. K. Kalaniano'ole and other prominent Congressmen, asking them to use their influence to have it pass Congress this session and become law.

Now, as we had petitions relative to a preliminary survey of Kahului and Eleele harbors, which in all probability would also be referred to the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Captain Tullett would be justified in stating that he was supported by the Chamber of Commerce, for they are certainly in favor of this and are in possession of complete copies of the petitions forwarded through our Captain Tullett.

We consider that a grave injustice has been done to our representative, our harbor and our association, not by you, Mr. Editor, but by those offering the article for publication without first giving us a chance to be heard. All we ask is that the Chamber of Commerce and general public withhold their final decision in the matter until Captain Tullett returns, when if he has not a satisfactory explanation, which we are confident he will have, we are ready and willing to make amends to them in any manner they may choose.

Chamber of Commerce Letter.
The following letter, dated November 19, was received by the Harbor from the Chamber of Commerce:

"Dear Sir: It gives me pleasure to inform you that at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, held yesterday, upon motion, duly made and unanimously carried, a resolution was passed endorsing your plan to send a representative to Washington to be present during the coming session of Congress for the purpose of presenting Hawaii's need of additional lighthouses, buoys and other aids to navigation.
"Wishing you the best of success in your efforts to secure the money necessary to defray the expenses of your delegate, believe me, very truly yours,
"H. P. WOOD, Secretary."

Acknowledgment.
An acknowledgment was sent, as follows, to Mr. Wood:

"Dear Sir: In acknowledging the receipt of your esteemed favor of the 19th inst., allow us to tender the expression of our most earnest and heartfelt thanks to the Chamber of Commerce for their kind interest and influential exertions which have made it possible for us to have representation at our National Convention at Washington, D.C., in January, 1909. We assure you that the best efforts of our representative will be devoted to the maritime interests of this Territory, and while the aims and objects of his visit will be for that purpose, we would be pleased to attend to any other business that the Chamber would care to entrust to him.

"Captain A. Tullett, who is to represent us at the convention, will call upon you personally in the immediate future, as we know that much more satisfactory results will be accomplished in an interview, which could not be attained through correspondence.
"Again thanking you for past favors, we remain, most gratefully and sincerely yours,
"HONOLULU HARBOR NO. 54,
"By FRANK C. POOR, Secretary."

LIQUE AMATEURS DO WELL ON STAGE

Lique has been indulging in a theatrical season. A play entitled "Joseph and His Brethren," founded on the familiar Bible story, written by J. M. Lydgate, has been on the boards and has been enthusiastically received by the Lique public. It is a spectacular play, with many characters, Israhelitic and Egyptian, which, taken with the picturesque Oriental costumes, make it very effective.

Considering that it was all amateur talent, and mostly maiden effort, the acting was surprisingly good. Mrs. Lydgate called forth a generous measure of applause and showed an interesting versatility in the two very dissimilar roles—Mrs. Potiphar and Leah. The little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rice did remarkably well as Egyptian girls playing with their dolls and mingling childish prattle with sage reflections about the new Governor or Joseph. The court scenes in Egypt and the brethren in the desert were particularly effective.

The purpose of the play was to raise money for the benefit of the Messina sufferers. The net realization will be about $180.

The original presentation was followed by a matinee for the benefit of the children of the public schools. About 350 children were present, as well as many adults. It is needless to say that the children enjoyed it immensely.

Mr. Lydgate acted as manager, and also took the important part of Joseph.

HOMESEEKERS HERE.

A delegation of homeseekers were called upon Governor Frear Saturday. The Territorial land system was the topic of discussion. The visitors were Rev. Mr. Day of Olympia, E. J. Young, G. E. Ellis, and J. W. Hoover of Spokane, Tony Mack and A. E. Dawson of Seattle, A. R. Maubly of Bellingham, and K. L. Andrews of Cincinnati. W. J. Cooper of the Hawaiian Promotion Committee accompanied the party to the Governor's office.

Orders for stock taken by C. H. Bellina, who leaves for San Francisco on the 26th. Telephone 109 or call at Club Stables.

LINCOLN THEME OF CHURCH SERVICES

Lincoln Day service was held by the Epworth League at the Methodist church at half-past six in the evening. The church was decorated with flags and a picture of the martyr President was displayed above the lectern. Alexander Lyle read short sketches from the life of Lincoln and the Women's Christian Endeavor Society trio sang patriotic songs. Madame Richards, mother of Theodore Richards, told of the meeting of Abraham Lincoln and her husband, who was at that time on the staff of The Outlook. Selections were also read describing Lincoln's views on the liquor question. The attendance was large and many soldiers were among the congregation.

Lincoln was the theme of the Oahu Prison service. Rev. Mr. Wilson delivered an oration on Lincoln which he had composed and recited while at college, and was well received. Mrs. Joseph Pratt sang and Mrs. Dr. Bicknell acted as organist. Dr. Bicknell spoke on the life of Lincoln and the O. P. quartet sang patriotic songs.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Art Theater.

The "Animated Doll" to be seen at the Art Theater is a subject made popular by dramatists on the mainland, and to have an opportunity to see something just as good as the play here in Honolulu is like getting news from home. There are other attractions at the amusement hall this week that will be just as pleasing. The "Mountaineer's Son" gives a view of outdoor life that is always pleasing, and "In the Shadow of the Law" has its moral lesson that is worth while. This place of amusement is drawing large crowds always, and will no doubt continue to do so as long as the same care is shown in the selection of pictures for the public. The music program is good.

The Empire Theater.

This will be the last night for people to attend the Empire Theater in its present location. Within a few days alterations leading to the construction of a $20,000 building will begin, and while it is under way the management of the Empire will complete arrangements for the production of some of the best films obtainable.

Army and Navy News

The bill, H. R. 27054, making appropriations for fortifications and other works of defense for the fiscal year 1910, was reported in the National House of Representatives on January 25, carrying a total of $7,920,111, more than nine million dollars less than the estimates submitted to the Committee on Appropriations. The amounts cover many items for the defense of Honolulu, but the bill treats Hawaii as an "insular possession," along with the Philippines. Among the items relating to Hawaii are the following:

Fortifications, Insular Possessions, Engineer Department—Seacoast batteries, Hawaii, $337,200; same, Philippines, $1,000,000. (Provided that contracts may be entered into, under the direction of Secretary of War, for materials and work for construction of seacoast batteries in the Philippines, to be paid for as appropriations may from time to time be made by law, for an additional sum not to exceed $600,000.)

Installation light and power plants, Hawaii, $14,649; same for the Philippines, $88,823.

Chief of Artillery—Fire control stations, etc., $250,000; searchlights for Hawaii, $66,000; land for fortifications, Philippines, $12,000.

Ordnance Department—Seacoast cannon, $547,000 (action of Secretary of War in mounting eight 12-inch mortars from stock on hand for use at Diamond Head, Hawaii, is ratified, and the Secretary of War is further authorized to transfer to the insular possessions for reserve purposes one 10-inch and two 6-inch guns); ammunition for seacoast cannon, $500,000; maintenance seacoast artillery, $25,000.

Board of Ordnance and Fortification—For experiments and tests, $100,000.

Winslow and Otwell.

The return of Captain Otwell, Engineer Corps, U. S. A., from his leave of absence on the mainland, does not change the present status of Major Winslow of the Engineer Corps, now in charge of all Army engineering work in the Islands. At the time Captain Otwell went away he had been in charge of the engineer work, and was relieved by Major Winslow. The latter will continue in charge and Captain Otwell will return to the command of Company A, now on duty in Honolulu. Company A forms a portion of the battalion commanded by Major Winslow. When Company A is relieved in May or June by a company now at Washington Barracks, Captain Otwell will accompany it to its new location.

Marix Relieves Fay.

Captain Marix, U. S. M. C., arrived on the Sheridan and has assumed his new duties as post quartermaster at Camp Very, relieving Captain Fay, who was temporary quartermaster. Captain Fay, however, will remain in Honolulu, his tour of duty here not being ended until August. As there are four company commanders at Camp Very, Captain Fay will not have a command, but he will no doubt be given special duty in connection with the Honolulu naval station.

Captain Bush's Wife Dead.

Mrs. Lucius Tuckerman of San Francisco, the divorced wife of Captain Ross Bush, 10th Infantry, formerly of Camp McKinley, Honolulu, was accidentally shot and killed in Chicago on the night of January 31 by George Busse, brother of the Mayor of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the Walton apartment building where Mrs. Tuckerman was visiting her father, General A. C. Girard, U. S. A., (retired). George Busse in his apartment across the archway from the Girard's, was showing a housemaid how to use a revolver when the weapon was discharged, the bullet passing through the Girard's window and piercing the heart of Mrs. Tuckerman. Mr. Busse was about to leave Chicago and had procured the revolver so that the housemaid would have protection from burglars.

During her residence at the Presidio, Mrs. Tuckerman was known as the most beautiful woman in army circles. Her suit for divorce, which was brought in Winnemucca, Nev., in November, 1907, caused tongues in the army to wag.

She alleged mental cruelty as the cause of the action. According to the testimony introduced during the hearing of the case in Winnemucca, Captain Bush refused to spend any time with his accomplished and beautiful wife in the gay amenities of army and civilian social life. He preferred to read the Bible assiduously, and insisted that his wife listen every night to long excerpts from the sacred pages.

Captain Bush was cultivating the more peaceful attributes of the church, and when his wife quietly slipped away to the desert country the Presidio gossips again took up the story and kept at it incessantly until the suit was begun in Winnemucca.

"Millionaire Captain" Out.

Captain Edward B. Cassatt, Thirtieth cavalry, known as the "millionaire captain" of the army, has resigned from Uncle Sam's forces. President Roosevelt signed the order January 28 that freed Cassatt from the service. He is the son of the late Alexander J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania railroad company, and is well known on the Coast, where a few years ago he broke into the limelight at Burlingame with his polo ponies. His pony, Carmencita, was a winner in nearly every battle that Cassatt went into. His marriage to and subsequent divorce from the beautiful Marie Phillips, daughter of millionaire Phillips of Philadelphia, resulted in his wife suing for divorce and the custody of the children was granted to her.

Captain Cassatt was graduated from the military academy at West Point June 12, 1893.

No Naval Reform.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—No legislation concerning the reform of the Navy Department will be enacted by Congress at this session if present plans are followed out. Secretary Newberry told the House Committee on Naval Affairs today that he believed the new plans should be given a year's trial before they are made permanent by legislation.

Meyer for War Portfolio.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—It is now rumored that Postmaster-General Meyer will get the War instead of the Navy portfolio. The Massachusetts Senators expect to keep him in the Cabinet, but Taft wants to have a naval man at the head of the Navy Department.

Buffalo's War Paint.

The United States auxiliary cruiser Buffalo, Captain Bostwick, gave the port a nervous chill yesterday by steaming into the harbor wearing a full suit of war paint, says the Call. When the buffalo left here about a month ago with a detachment of marines for Honolulu, the navy transport was shining with the white paint and gleaming brass that for many years have been distinctive features of the ships of the United States Navy. Ships of other navies wear war paint every day.

American warships have always dressed in white and gold except in time of war, and the Buffalo's dark gray appearance following close on Hobson's cries of "wolf," the Sacramento anti-Japanese demonstration, and Count Hattori's peevish outburst in the Japanese parliament caused momentary alarm.

Captain Bostwick's explanation, however, was as reassuring as Count Komura's expressions of good will. He had never heard of Grove Johnson, regards Hobson as slightly hysterical, and the Buffalo was painted gray while the ship lay at Honolulu more than a week before Count Hattori expressed the opinion that his little brown brethren were not getting a fair deal in the United States.

The change in color, a measure of economy as much as anything else, was in obedience to an order of the Navy Department long under contemplation and issued some months ago. The order left the time for changing the color of the ships to the discretion of the commanding officer. "When convenient," the order read. It applies to all more white fleets, and the poets will have to hunt up a new word that describes the peculiar shade of gray with which Americans became familiar during the Spanish-American war.

War Munitions Shipped.

Although the Buffalo's somber coat does not mean war, Uncle Sam is taking active steps to be ready for trouble in the Pacific if it should come. About the time the Buffalo arrived the torpedo flotilla that has been wintering in southern waters came flying home and proceeded direct to Mare Island under orders to make speedy repairs. The destroyers that arrived, all from San Diego, were the Paul Jones, Lawrence, Farragut, Goldsborough and Davis.

Shells for Philippines.

The German steamer Nicomedia, which is under charter to the Harriman interests, sailed yesterday from Portland for Manila with a large shipment of ammunition and empty shells.

Records of Battleships.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—An increase in battle efficiency, the greatest yet made during any one year, is the story told by the scores of battleship fleet practise in Manila bay. This, too, although conditions of practise last fall were more difficult than heretofore. The improvement with heavy guns was over 100 per cent. greater than that of last year. These facts are shown by the records of battle practise in Manila bay received by Commander Sims, the inspector of target practise, by whom they have been carefully tabulated.

The average percentage of hits made by the guns was over 50 per cent. of the shots fired, and some ships made 75 to 80 per cent., and the increase in rapidity of hitting was considerably over 100 per cent.

The ranges at which the battleships fired were from 6000 to 9000 yards, according to the power of their guns. These ranges were unmarked and the ships steamed on a course and at a speed of which they were not informed until they opened a sealed envelope just before going on the range. The department also made public information relative to the comparative battle efficiency of battleships, cruisers and gunboats at the autumn target practise of 1908.

In the standing of fleets, the command of Admiral Sperry leads with a mark of 29, with Admiral Swinburne's Pacific fleet next with a mark of 25.

The first squadron of Sperry's fleet leads with a mark of 32, with the first squadron of the Pacific fleet second with a mark of 27. In the matter of divisions, the first division of Sperry's fleet leads with a mark of 36, while the first division of the Pacific fleet is second with a mark of 34.

Following are the marks of the first five vessels competing for the battle ship trophy: Vermont (pennant winner), 58,271; Minnesota, 48,353; Pennsylvania, 48,018; Colorado, 38,917; New Jersey, 37,841.

In the vessels competing for the cruiser trophy the Galveston has a mark of 25 and the Yorktown, star ship, has a mark of 22. In the vessels competing for the gunboat trophy, the Wilmington is the pennant winner, with a mark of 37, and the Yankton and Rainbow are star ships, with scores of 33 and 32 respectively.

To Desert Fort Shafter.

On Wednesday, February 17, Fort Shafter will be deserted save for one company. The remainder of the battalion leaves for Moanalua to go into camp with the National Guard of Hawaii. As the encampment does not end until the 21st, the Twentieth Infantry troops will not participate in the Floral Parade on the 22nd.

On breaking camp at Moanalua the three companies will hike out to Leilehua. Just how long they will stay there is uncertain, but certain it is that the "doughboys" are looking forward to some lively battles on the baseball diamond with the "boots and saddles" crowd. The hike will not end at Leilehua, for it is intended for an "around-the-island" march. The troops should be back at Fort Shafter by March 8.

There is more than the usual interest in this particular date, as the Infantrymen look forward to the coming of Paymaster Ray as a means of getting two months' pay instead of one. The present system of getting pay from San Francisco puts the rolls back a month, and therefore on every payday there is an extra one always coming.

Dark Colors on Warships.

An unexpected effect of the decision of the Navy Department to change the color of warships from white to slate or war color is the requirement to change also the type of material used for awnings, boat covers and other articles of equipage on board ship. Khaki canvas has been used for that purpose in the service for the past six or seven years, and it is now pronounced unsuitable on account of the radical change in the ships' color. Instruc-

MAYFLOWER

MAYFLOWER

in our vicinity is the "Empire", the oldest gold quartz mine in California now in operation, which has produced upwards of $20,000,000.00. This Mine has followed its ore down to a depth of 3,000 feet and it is improving in value every new level. It exemplifies the invariable rule in our district that values grow richer and ore bodies grow wider with depth. The "MAYFLOWER" workings are only down 700 feet, but when we sink as deep as the "Empire", there will be a tale to tell, and a sight to see, because the "MAYFLOWER" values from the beginning, have run higher, foot for foot on the descent, than most of our rich neighbors. BUY "MAYFLOWER" STOCK. BUT IT NOW. Buy it at once. Don't delay a minute longer. You can't make any mistake in buying "MAYFLOWER," for all your Bank account will stand. Then get an overdraft and buy some more. I tell you the "MAYFLOWER" will pay quickly and pay heavily. It's a Mine you will be proud to be a part-owner of. ## SHANGHAIED WITH HIS OWN ANXIOUS CONSENT

How One Unfortunate Dodged the Passport Law and Made His Getaway From Honolulu.

By C. L. Cullen.

One of the dawdlers in Turk O'Fallon's rooms happened to advert to shanghaiing, following up the diversion with an unnecessarily eloquent and righteous homily upon the hellishness thereof.

Only black-hearted fiends in human form, this speaker set forth, would shanghai a helpless victim, not a seaman, aboard a ship and compel him, at the end of a rope or the point of a marlinpike, to work like a dog or a Lascar in an environment wholly unknown to him. He invited us to consider the frightful state of mind of a poor wretch who, ruthlessly grabbed from the waterfront by the callous-souled crimps, awoke the next morning in the foul-smelling fo'c's'le (he called it forecastle) of a ship that already had left behind the last vestige of a sight of land; awoke to find the hobnailed boots of the bo's'n (he called it boatswain) in his face. Just imagine the agony of spirit, the—er—the—

He broke off suddenly when he heard, what the rest of us had heard several moments previously, the chuckles of Turk O'Fallon, who, seated on a three-legged stool by a window, was swaying from side to side, trying to keep the chuckles non-audible.

"Oh, go ahead and gurgie for yourself like a hyena!" broke out the eloquent one, glaring sheepishly at Turk. "I s'pose you think that shanghaiing's as decent and respectable as chipping in for an ice cream sociable for the benefit of the Old Ladies' Home. Blame it all! I shouldn't be surprised but what you've figured in some shanghaiing proceedings yourself, and—"

"That's what I have, son," softly observed Turk, twisting about on his stool and making an ineffectual effort to look guilty and bangdog. "I sure have. There's no evading or flagging it, I've been mixed up in some shanghaiing, and no mistake."

"Well," declaimed the eloquent one, "I should think you'd be ashamed to sit there and own up to it. You are ashamed, aren't you?"

Turk, who knows the purlieus of Tobolsk as well as he knows the bay indentations of Tampa, and whose body—to his present sorrow—is strangely littered with tattooing devices needled into his cuticle in his heedless youth—Turk grinned with ingrained affability and suddenly turned the tables on the accuser. "Yes," he said reflectively, "I was mixed up in a shanghaiing game once, sure enough. I was the shanghaiing one."

"Oh! Now will you be good?" we all bellowed, of course at the eloquent one.

"Not only that," mildly observed Turk; "I got myself shanghaiing."

"Tommyrot!" snorted the one who so hated the thought of the shanghaiing business.

"Not only that again," calmly cut in Turk; "I liked it—liked being shanghaiing."

"Listen to him ravel!" groused the one who hated shanghaiing.

We suppressed him by means of things throwable, however, and after some pestering induced Turk O'Fallon to tell us why he got himself shanghaiing, and why, if he had really meant that remark, he had enjoyed being shanghaiing.

"They call Hawaii," said Turk, "the Land of the Always Afternoon. I'll not battle for the Afternoon part of it; but Hawaii once looked to me like as if it sure enough was the Land of the Always. Meaning by that that it seemed to me at that time as if I was always going to stay there."

"In a way of speaking, I was marooned in Hawaii—if you can call it being marooned when you're fooling around with houseboat parties in Pearl Harbor, taking in lawn teas under flapping marquees in Honolulu gardens, frivolling away the darker hours with midnight bathing parties on Waikiki Beach, sitting on the edge of the Kilauea crater with Peter Lee on his Volcano House porch, playing a lutele poker at the Merchant's Club, listening to the Royal Hawaiian Band concerts near the statue of Kamehameha, and more and other kinds of all that. Tell me a gladsoner place to be marooned in, from Spitzbergen to the Strait of Sunda, than Honolulu, on the Island of Oahu, in the Hawaiian group, and I'll go there a Tuesday week and see whether you're right or not."

"Nevertheless, there were some things calling me away from Honolulu, and the fact that I had to sit under the fronds at night and dig and dope at some way of getting away from Honolulu, showed that I was marooned all right. I might have been lawn partying around Honolulu yet, and wearing gold dragon kimono at stag entertainments given by the Japanese club, if it hadn't been for this little shanghaiing institution that sonny boy here looks upon with such unqualified disfavor."

"You see, the Hawaiian law, going away back to the days of the missionary rule of the Islands, has it that you can't leave Hawaii while you're in debt. You've got to come across for every two bits you owe before you can quit Hawaii. I reckon some Hawaiians must have had the bee put on them quite severely before that law was framed, by gay dogs that dropped into Honolulu, bought everything in the place on tick, and then sped away to San Francisco or to Melbourne or to Yokohama, saying before embarking that they'd send a check along for that little matter as soon as they got home.

"Anyhow, that was the Hawaiian law when I was there, and that is the law yet, I'm told. It doesn't make any difference that you may not have one chance in eight million to borrow, or earn, or steal, or somehow annex the money to pay up what you owe. In Hawaii you stick until you pay, and the Hawaiian authorities are right on the situation of seeing that you don't execute any elopement with yourself until you are in shape to present receipted bills for every piece of eight of your indebtedness to anybody in Hawaii."

"You know my weakness—ice machines. I started an ice machine in Honolulu, and I'd no sooner got it going like a barbecue bonfire, and beginning to pull down interest on the investment, than they put the steamer Australia on a regular bimonthly run between San Francisco and Honolulu, and every time the Australia drew into Honolulu harbor she carried four thousand tons of manufactured ice that could be, and immediately was, sold for fifty cents a hundred less than the actual price it cost me to make ice. The Honolulu's weren't going to take ice from me because I shaved every morning and kept my nails trimmed, when they could buy it at less than half the cost from the steamship people. And that's how I came to be marooned in Honolulu."

"After dismantling my plant and dickering with the Kanaka junkman for my machinery, I found myself a hard two thousand on the wrong side of the balance sheet. Meaning by that, that I owed four or five Hawaiian merchants, and all of them, as it happened, flint-faces, two thousand metallic men."

"I sought these creditors out, grouped them together in a lovely pavilion on Waikiki Beach, touched the button, assuaged their thirsts, and then staked them to some very engaging conversation, to the general essence that I thought I'd run right up to the States on the next steamer, and get the money I owed them, and send it back by return steamer, and all would be well—er than a well-digger—ha! ha! I laughed joviously, clapping them each and severally on the back, just like that."

"Could they see a joke? Not noticeably; not, in fact, so that it could be noticed through a binocular as big as a thirteen-inch gun. They assuaged their thirsts all that I desired them to, and lay back in their wicker chairs, and listened quite calmly to my merry quips and quillies. But when I came to that pivotal observation about how I thought I'd just run up to the United States, and all like that, they all, each and several, leaned forward in their wicker chairs and told me that they thought otherwise. I required of them what they meant, although I knew. They rebated right back that my only chance on earth of ever again seeing me own, me native land, was to come across, sooner or later, with the two thousand and odd dollars that I owed them individually and collectively."

"Whereupon, becoming peeved, I ceased pushing the button for them, and we dispersed with negotiations not concluded, but just about two thousand dollars' worth in abeyance."

"They entered suit against me the next morning, got judgments while they waited, served the same on me, and were rewarded with a peek at my pockets turned inside out, whereupon they turned the judgments over to the Honolulu authorities who see to it that debtors cleave unto the Hawaiian soil until their debts are discharged unto the uttermost sou'wester."

"I didn't know the Honolulu folks in a business way well enough to tap at their office doors and request them to slip me, just for a little while by way of a loan, the piffing matter of two thousand dollars. I am not denying that, socially, in Honolulu, I was a furor and a knockout, not to say a riot; but the gay butterfly thing doesn't help you a whole lot when it heaves along time for you to vamp out onto the business firing line and get yourself something."

"Another bad thread of it was that, it being the hard times year of '93, there was no chance for me to make a temporary two thousand win by sending a bunch of sad, slow music letters to friends in the States, informing them of my marooned state, and imploring them to remit if they didn't want to hear of my perishing of a surfeit of Pearl Harbor houseboat parties. In '93, like 1908, every fellow in the United States who had a two-dollar note was carrying it in his shoe and going to bed with his shoes on; and so I wasn't idiotic enough to expect that I could do any good by the correspondence method."

"Which brought it all down to one blunt nub: a personally conducted elopement by and with myself from Honolulu if the cards could be shuffled around to read that way."

"Now, there never was any disgrace attached to the departure of a debtor from Honolulu. He wasn't looked upon as a criminal, or even a bad actor, when he was in the throes of trying to break out of Hawaii. It was considered as a sort of little game, and a kind of little joke besides. When you're a debtor in Honolulu, anxious to flee those sapphire waters for the purpose of trying for a start somewhere else, the only Honolulu's who are ag'in' you are the folks who owe the money to. The others wish you Godspeed. They can't help you; but they can and do look on while you're trying to put over your plans for a getaway, and you don't lose a particle of caste. There's all rather interested to see whether you're going to make the flyaway or not, and in the meantime your status remains unchanged. It's got to be given to the Honoluluans; they don't jump on folks that are down, even if they have got a debtor marooning law.

SHANGHAIED WITH HIS OWN ANXIOUS CONSENT

"And so, following my no-go confab with the people I owed the two thousand, I used to stroll out Diamond Head way of days and nights, trying to think out ways of flagging those lynx-eyed judgment-holders long enough to permit of my putting the Islands of Hawaii hull down. I was all right for shelter and food, for from the first I'd been living with a San Franciscan and his family who were old friends. He was only in a small way of business in Honolulu, and at that, he offered to sort of pass the hat around in Honolulu among his business friends to get me shed of my creditors. But you can see me doing anything like that.

"The first stab I made for a sail-out was when one night, in a bum make-up that I'd picked up, I went aboard a lime-juicer bark, loading sugar for the States, and asked the bucko British skipper to ship me as an extra hand for the run up to San Francisco. He blimed and bloddied his bleedy eyes all over, of course, when I maced him for the job on the up-erise, and then blared out with the demand to know if I thought he was running a blooming yacht. He needed a hand or two, he howled at me; but he wasn't shipping hands for little top cruises of two or three weeks like the run from Honolulu to San Francisco. He was going to load again at Seattle with lumber for New York, and if I wanted to ship A. B. for that space of time always perwidin' I was an A. B., w'ich he bleeding doubted—why, that might be thought over.

"I wasn't keen for that beat around the Horn, having done that same more times than enough when a lubber of a wrongheaded boy; but I sure did require to detach myself from Hawaii just as soon as it could be done, and so I told him I'd sign for the run from Seattle to New York too. He clapped the papers on me in hornpipe time, me figuring on them with the surname of an old spinster aunt that used to make remarkable cookies, and a front name to suit for concealment purposes. I turned below with the fo'le hands right away, learned that I was shipped on board a devil's hooker; and didn't care, so long as I was flagging Hawaii and had a chance to jump an English ship at San Francisco. And the next morning I turned to with the hands at sugar loading.

"There on deck, operating a winch, I was promptly discovered by one of the debt marooners of Honolulu who happened to be passing by—they've got a way of looking over ships' companies to nail the debtor clovers—and by eleven o'clock in the morning my papers were canceled and I was once again, as I trudged to my living place for decent clothes and a decent breakfast, left to reflect upon how much easier it nearly always is to get there than it is to get away from there.

"Then I framed up a real out-uppish, Dick Turpinish kind of getaway. The steamer Mariposa, just in from Australia and on her way up to San Francisco, was to sail that same afternoon, and among her passengers for the States were a lot of pleasant Honoluluans of my acquaintance. My wistful little wheeze of an idea was to go down and see these acquaintances off. Seeing the steamers off is as big a social function in Honolulu as a monkey dinner is in Newport, and I figured I'd be able to sort of lose myself in the merry and tearful throng of ship speeders and keep under cover until the Mariposa was well past Diamond Head. There was no cable to the islands on those days, and the Honolulu debt-getawayist who contrived to hatch or house himself over, in bilge or cabin or anywhere, until the harbor-master's patrol boats had no chance of catching up, was sure of making his landing when his getaway ship reached its port.

"Me, then, for 'he white duck suit and the pith helmet and the lot of flowers around my neck, as they're worn down on the islands on outing occasions, and the brisk walk down to where the chattering crowd of all bed-dicked Honoluluans were assembling to see the voyagers to the States.

"I stood behind some bales on the pier and peered down the aisle of merchandise toward the gangway to see if I could recognize any of the debt grabbers in the throng. None seemed to be there, or at any rate within my focus, and so down the pier I strolled, swinging the jaunty stick, humming the 'Aloha' refrain with which everybody in Hawaii is greeted and Godsped, and striving to toss out the impression that I had no more thought of attempting to desert Honolulu to its fate than I had of trying to play the French horn in the Royal Hawaiian band that was pompousing its goody melodies at the end of the pier.

"With a nod here and a lift of the lid there, and other like little amenities, I passed right up the gangplank so I did; and when I walked right into a young couple of my acquaintance who were sailing on the steamer I took the wreath of flowers from my neck and gave it to the lady according to custom, and then I started to make a bee line for a steward's store room that I saw standing open. A steward's store room, I figured, ought to be a pretty good sort of place to stow away in until after the 'All hands up anchor!' call had been passed, and I even picked out a high heaped stack of coffee sacks in these behind which I contemplated hiding, when—

"Got a little idea of making the run up to 'Frisco on this frigate, Mr. O'Fallon? the mad wag of a judgment packer and debt snagger right behind me breathed into my ear just as I was stepping through the store room door. 'I didn't exchange any airy persiflage with him, but just went out on deck and shook hands with the folks who were going up on the steamer, and then I hummed down the gangway and went to my quarters and to bed and strove again with the problem of how to detach myself from the Land of the Always.

"I came to the next morning with what looked to me an idea worth its weight in uranium wabbling around in my puzzled and baffled top wheels. 'The U. S. cruiser Philadelphia had been in the harbor of Honolulu for several months and she was getting ready to run back to the Mare Island Navyyard, near San Francisco, to go into drydock to have her bottom scraped.

"Why not return to San Francisco with her as a man-o'-war's man?" "I knew the engineer's yeoman of the Philadelphia, who was that very morning weighing coal for the cruiser down on the Honolulu waterfront. I hustled into my clothes and went right down to have a heart to heart with him.

"He was good people; but he hated to take a chance, and there wasn't of course any chance of my wanting him to take a chance. All I wanted him to do was to fetch me a bluejacket's uniform the next time he came off to the beach from the ship. I would do the rest. That was easy, he said, and wouldn't involve him. Presently he quit his coal weighing job to go off to the Philadelphia to join the engineer's gang's mess for dinner, and after he'd finished his dinner he scouted around among the foremen below and dug up one of them who had a spare bluejacket uniform. He wrapped it up in an unsuspecting looking parcel, and handed it to me when he hit the beach from the cruiser's steam cutter.

"The Philadelphia was to up anchor for the up voyage early the following morning, and my only chance to do anything with my frame-up was to get aboard of her somehow that night. With an officer of the deck on watch, and a corporal or two of the marine guard at the gangway, and a couple of boys of the anchor watch wide awake and swapping yarns, it's about as easy to get aboard a man-o'-war, even in the middle of the night, as it is to get out of Sing Sing—unless you go over the fore'd anchor chains.

"That's how I made it. I rigged out in the bluejacket's blouse and bell bottoms a little while before midnight, strolled nonchalantly down Beretania street without anybody recognizing me in that outfit, hailed a sampan, told the sampan man I'd been absent without leave for a week and wanted to get aboard the Philadelphia without reporting at the stick so's to have a good sleep in my hammock, instead of being chucked into the brig for breaking liberty; and he saw it. That sampan man could pull as softly on the oars as Ysaye can pull on the E string of his fiddle when he puts the mute on the bridge, and a cat on the fo'gallant fo'le couldn't have heard a ripply as he pulled alongside the fore'd anchor chains. I went up the chains hand over hand without making a sound, gained the fo'gallant fo'le, slipped through a lot of bluejackets who were corked off on that deck on account of the heat of the night, and slid down to the starboard alley of the berth deck, where, discovered by nobody, I flopped down to wait for morning.

"When all hands turned to at five o'clock, I slipped down the fire room ladder without being flaked by a soul of the half-awake crew, and gained an empty coal bunker. Then it looked good to me. Nothing could hurt me much if I got clear of Honolulu in that egal bunker of the man-o'-war. I scrouched down there, as it seemed to me, for hours, while firemen and water tenders and coal passers, getting up steam, chattered and cut up all around me. I kept my foot on the steel sill of the door, however, to see that the empty coal bunker where I was hiding shouldn't be locked on me.

"Of a sudden I heard a cessation of the talk by the black gang, and then I recognized the voice of the chief engineer. I'd played billiards with him about a week before.

"Let's have a look into these empty bunkers to see if everything is trig in 'em," I heard the chief engineer say to the machinist who was accompanying him on his final round of inspection before sailing—and there I was, all ready to be beached again! And it broke just that way. My bunker door was the first one pulled open by the machinist, and I stepped right out and saluted, seeing the game was up. The chief engineer, who was my friend and fair, leaned against a stanchion and roared himself black in the face at the sight of me. He was for summoning several of the other officers below to have a look at me in my bluejacket rig; but I told him if he did that I'd throw coal at him. But they had to see me when I went above to be put in the steam cutter for the beaching, and it'll be a long time, I reckon, before I hear again such an outburst of almost hysterical roaring as those whelps of young officers of the Philadelphia broke into when they saw me shuffling across the deck from the engine room hatch to climb into the steam cutter.

"That's when I pulled the teeth together and made the big vow and yum that it wasn't going to be the Land of the Always for me, even if I had to get myself shanghaied. I arranged to be shanghaied that evening.

"There were ten or twelve short handed ships in Honolulu Harbor—short handed because the big strike of the Sailors' Union of San Francisco was on at that time, and California seamen, who mostly figure in the trade of ships that touch Hawaii, wouldn't ship at any figure short of twenty-four dollars a month, and ship owners were trying to grind them down to eighteen. I knew what a lean chance I had, having tried it, of every shipping on board one of these short handed hookers, badly as they needed hands; but I could be, and would be, shanghaied.

"At two o'clock that next morning, when all hands on the waterfront except the crimps on the outlook for stray Kanakas, were asleep, I was about the drunkenest-seeming hombre that ever zigzagged along the Honolulu waterfront. I was offering myself as bait for the shanghaiers, and they got me right enough. Three of them nounced on me in the shadow of a pier shed before I'd given more than five minutes of my careful imitation of a drunken sailor, and they were starting to give me the boots, so as to render me, as they thought, further incapable, when—

"Easy has it, mates," said I, suddenly straightening up. "I'm for a berth, and doing my devilshest to make it. But which of the hookers slips out first?"

"Figuring me to be an escaped calaboose bird, and glad to find me so willing, they told me. 'There's a dope brig heading out inside of an hour,' their leader told me. 'Hongkong's the port.'

"I'm for her," I told them, as I would have told them the same, and meant it, had the ship in the illicit opium smuggling trade been bound for the Sargasso Sea. A hundred yards away I went over the side of the opium brig, up standing, to the surprise of the skipper, who was waiting on deck to see what success his shanghaiing party were going to make of it.

"The skipper, a shrewd but crooked American, nevertheless had a kindly way about him. 'You're the first self-shanghaied man for'ard I've seen in forty years of sailing,' said the skipper to me; 'but you have your reasons, as I have mine. Go for'ard. You'll be paid off in Hongkong as if you had not been shipped without any Consul's vise to your papers. Man, man! but who'll be able to count all the different breeds of birds at sea?' and as I went for'ard I could still hear him talking mystifiedly to himself about the wonder of it in a man who wanted himself to be shanghaied and who baited himself for that calamity.

"The opium brig slipped away before dawn, and by the time the sun danced out of the sea we had Diamond Head looking like a rat's snout on the horizon. Finding me spry and apt from the other years of sailing, the skipper made me second mate, and when we pulled Hongkong he offered to make me first mate for another beat around the Hawaiian Islands looking for a chance to unload another cargo of smuggled opium. But I had other things to do in Hongkong, the like of which makes dry remembering and dryer telling."

"Oh, but you weren't honest Injun shanghaiing, you know," put in the eloquent one when Turk had ceased. "Your affair, you know, was a sort of picnic. You don't really approve of sure enough shanghaiing, do you?"

"Not," replied Turk, "unless I can't get out some other way."

HAWAIIAN DANGLES ON LIVE TROLLEY WIRE

An instance of remarkable nerve was displayed Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock by Kealoha, an electrician, who clung to a trolley wire at the junction of King and Fort streets for nearly four minutes, finally reaching the ground without a scratch.

A portion of the old Honolulu hotel was being moved through the streets under the direction of Bill Larson. The house was mounted on several trucks drawn by spans of dray horses. On top of the house was Kealoha and another man, whose duty it was to keep low-hanging wires off the house and prevent them being torn down. They had to do considerable dodging along King street between Nuuanu and Fort. Owing to a partial suspension of traffic and the shunting back and forth by Rapid Transit cars while the house was in transit over the entire street, a big crowd collected to watch proceedings.

When the house reached King and Fort streets the horses were whipped up and the rapidity of this movement made Kealoha and his coworker jump a little more lively, and in dodging the trolley and the guy wires Kealoha stumbled, and as the house was drawn past the junction of the two trolley wires and the guy wires, he was dragged over the edge of the house among them.

As he started to fall he jumped, caught a trolley wire and clung there. Everybody expected to see his flesh begin to sizzle; women gave little screams and turned into store doorways; men shouted, and there was considerable excitement. Kealoha, after dangling what seemed minutes, threw one leg up and managed to straddle the wire through which a heavy voltage of electricity was flowing, and with the aid of the crosspieces holding the crossing-wires together, came to an upright position. From this insecure place he reached up, caught a guy-wire and began working along, hand over hand, toward the house, some thirty feet away. Finally a dray was driven under him and willing hands were extended up to grasp his legs and thus lower him from his dangerous position.

Kealoha knew that there was still danger, not only to himself but to those who were willing to help him. He warned them away, but they insisted, but still he clung. Finally throwing his shoulders back and sliding down he released his hands from the guy wire and threw them backward and was brought to the ground.

Had his hands touched the trolley wire while he was clasped by the men on the wagon there might have been work for the coroner, for with a ground connection some one would have been killed.

TIME TO ACT.

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit by Honolulu People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs and ankles, or any part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old time health and vigor will return. Cures in Honolulu prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

W. F. Williams, of Honolulu, Hawaii, says: "I was a sufferer from backache for years and was unable to rid myself of this trouble. Finally hearing of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the Hollister Drug Co. They gave me such great relief that I gladly give this statement in their favor. I hope other sufferers of kidney trouble will benefit by my experience."

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists and storekeepers at 50 cents per box (six boxes $2.50) or will be mailed on receipt of price by the Hollister Drug Co., Honolulu, wholesale agents for the Hawaiian Islands. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no substitute.

MADAME ARRAL'S MAID IN DISTRESS FOR CASH

SAN FRANCISCO, February 2.—Miss Jennie Scarlet applied for help yesterday to the Commissioner of Immigration. She said that she had come to the United States from Sydney, Australia, with Mme. Blanche Arral and her husband Harold Barrett, professional people, in the capacity of maid and had been discharged in San Francisco.

According to her story the actress owes her $300 borrowed money and $200 in wages. Mme. Arral and Barrett are now in New York. The commissioner did not see how relief could be obtained for Miss Scarlet from the immigration department.

She had already applied to the British consul without success.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE FIRST CIRCUIT, TERRITORY OF HAWAII. IN PROBATE. AT CHAMBERS.

In the Matter of the Estate of William Olmsted Atwater, Deceased.—Before Judge W. J. Robinson.

Order of Notice of Petition for Allowance of Final Accounts and Discharge in This Estate.

On reading and filing the petition and accounts of Ann Eckfeldt Atwater, executrix under the will of the estate of William Olmsted Atwater, deceased, of Honolulu, T. H., wherein she asks to be allowed $7915.21, and she charges herself with $8922.30, and asks that the same may be examined and approved, and that a final order may be made of distribution of the property remaining in her hands to the persons thereto entitled, and discharging her and her sureties from all further responsibility as such executrix:

It is Ordered, That Wednesday, the 3rd day of March, A. D. 1909, at 10 o'clock a. m., before the Judge of said Court at the courtroom of the said Court at Honolulu, Island of Oahu, be and the same hereby is appointed as the time and place for hearing said petition and accounts, and that all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the same should not be granted, and may present evidence as to who are entitled to the said property. And that notice of this order, in the English language, be published in the Pacific Commercial Advertiser, a newspaper printed and published in Honolulu, once a week for three successive weeks, the last publication to be not less than two weeks previous to the time therein appointed for said hearing.

Dated at Honolulu, T. H., this 23rd day of January, 1909.

W. J. ROBINSON,
Third Judge of the Circuit Court of the First Circuit.

Attest:

J. A. THOMPSON,
Clerk of the Circuit Court of the First Circuit.

MORTGAGEE'S NOTICE OF INTENTION TO FORECLOSE AND OF FORECLOSURE SALE.

In accordance with the provisions of a certain mortgage made by William C. Achi to William R. Castle, Trustee, dated October 4th, 1899, recorded Liber 196, page 373, notice is hereby given that the mortgagee intends to foreclose the same for condition broken, to wit: non-payment of both interest and principal.

Notice is likewise given that after the expiration of three weeks from the date of this notice, the property covered by said mortgage will be advertised for sale and will be sold at public auction, at the auction rooms of James F. Morgan, on Kaunahuna street, in Honolulu, on Saturday, the 27th day of February, 1909, at 12 noon of said day.

Dated, Honolulu, T. H., January 29, 1909.

WILLIAM R. CASTLE, Trustee,
Mortgagee.

The premises covered by said mortgage, and which will be offered for sale, consist of:

All of that parcel of land at Mokuae, in Kailua, Oahu, known as the "Kailua Tract," comprising 154.5 acres of apana 2, L. C. A. 6450, R. P. 2509, to Kaunahuna no Moechoua, as set out in deed of the Kapilani Estate to W. C. Achi, recorded Liber 200, page 115, excepting therefrom, however, the house-lots and other parcels sold and expressly released from said mortgage, as follows:

(Heavy black figures and letters refer to blocks of said tract.)
