LIQUOR BOARD MAY ISSUE LICENSES

Restraining Order Is Dissolved By De Bolt

There is now no legal obstacle to the Liquor License Committee issuing licenses. Judge De Bolt this morning dissolved the temporary injunction obtained by attorneys Gear and Harrison on behalf of Jacintho Miguel, a Kakaako saloon-keeper, restraining the Board from issuing a license to W. C. Peacock & Co., or to anyone else.

The case was argued at considerable length, Attorney General Peters appearing in behalf of the Board and T. M. Harrison representing Miguel. Johnnie Martin, agent of the Anti-Saloon League, was present to lend moral support to Miguel.

The argument was on the motion to dissolve. Peters made a strong talk in support of his motion. He contended that there was nothing in the bill to show that the petitioner was a citizen of Honolulu, and that therefore he had no standing in a court of equity.

Peters' principal argument, however, was in opposition to the claim of the petition that the Board is illegally constituted because three of its members belong to clubs where liquor is sold. He claimed that liquor-selling is not the business of these clubs and that they do not sell liquor as a means of making profits. Whatever profit there is goes toward the upkeep of the clubs. Besides that, clubs do not have licenses, but operate under a special law and the License Commission has nothing to do with them.

It was this argument which appeared to convince Judge De Bolt. Harrison argued in support of making the temporary injunction perma-

AUTOS START ON RELIABILITY RACE

Object To Make Waialua With As Few Stops As Possible

The great reliability race of the Automobile Club to Waialua is being run today and much interest is being shown in the event, as it is the first of its kind to be run in the Islands. The object of the race is not to show speed but reliability, the car which makes the run with the least number of stops for repairs winning the race. It is therefore equal to all sizes of cars, and among the starters all types were to be seen from a small Orient buckboard to the big racer run by Dr. Brinckerhoff. In brief, the rules governing the race are as follows: Each car is given a credit of a thousand points when it starts. After that a certain number of points is deducted for each stop made, the number in each case being governed by the nature of the trouble which causes the stop. Thus a certain number of points are deducted for tire repairs, another number for taking over a minute to start, and so forth. Each car has on board an observer, who keeps a card on which he makes a note of the stops made, the cause of the trouble and the number of points to be deducted.

The start was made at 11 o'clock this forenoon, when the first car departed from the starting point in front of the Capitol. After that the other cars followed at intervals of five minutes between each. The cars starting, the names of the observers and the order in which the starts were made are as follows:

The cars started in the endurance run to Haleiwa and back as follows:

W. R. Paton, Orient, R. Perkins, 11 a. m.

Dr. H. V. Murray, Maxwell, H. Roth, 11 a. m.

E. Henriques, Winton, Mr. Crockett, 11 a. m.

J. T. Warren, Reo, Dr. Sinclair, 11:15.

Dr. Brinckerhoff, Packard, C. Hartwell, 11:15.

H. H. Williams, Reo, F. J. Cross, 11:15.

H. Hudson, Mitchell, D. Kamoohalo, 11:30.

J. A. Kennedy, Ford, M. T. Hamilton, 11:30.

Willard Brown, Stevens Duryea, W. M. Whitney, 11:30.

S. M. Ballou, Winton, Capt. Humphrey, 11:45.

A. Afong, Pope Hartford, W. T. Rawlins, 11:45.

S. E. Jordan, Maxwell, Dr. Cofer, 11:45.

AUTO RACES

Only nine machines started on the reliability race. Of these the following six arrived at Haleiwa with clean records: Dr. Brinckerhoff, W. R. Paton, J. T. Warren, J. A. Kennedy, J. D. Kennedy and S. E. Jordan. Dr. Murray was forced to turn back. Dr. Herbert had 25 and Geo. Cooke 31 points against them.

JOY WON

The San Francisco Examiner says of the great 13-inning game which Barney Joy won for San Francisco July 3:

Victory, the capricious bird that has coquetted with all the other teams during the past week or so, paid a little attention to the Seals yesterday and now there are some who think that the board has come to stay. At any rate, the winning of a 13-inning game, which was Iwone against Mohler's men in the last half of the ninth with two men down, is something of a feat, and anyone who thinks it isn't ought to have been there.

It was a great battle which the returned warriors gave to Van Haltren's crew after the score had been tied in the ninth. Nothing could stop them. Barney Joy tightened up and allowed only one more hit during the four extra innings. He seemed to be getting better the farther the game went, and worked in the last inning like a man who was good for all the rest of the afternoon and evening. Behind him the team, crippled by the absence of Street, fought snappily, and when they finally got across the winning tally they had only what was coming to them; nothing more.

Four of the seven hits which the Commuters got off Joy came in the ninth inning and, luckily enough, netted only [illegible] scored in the game. With [illegible] out, Heitmuller singled to right field and went to third on Kagan's one-sacker to the same garden. Cates bunted safely past Joy and Heitmuller scampered across the pan. Bigler struck out. Haley singled through second base and filled the paths. Then, amid the din of the crowd, "Red Dog" Devereaux whiffed the air three times in succession and the stanza was brought to a close. Joy was cheered lustily when he went back to the bench.

The Seals came very close to evening matters up in the eighth. The "deadly base on balls was handed to Spencer. Street sacrificed and Joy struck out. Shaughnessy then ripped off a single and Spencer was thrown out at the plate. It was at this point that Street took it upon himself to call Derrick names. He was wrong. The decision was a good one. Spencer was out beyond question.

The Seals were so mad they couldn't stand still during the first half of the ninth. They simply tore things up and knocked the Commuters down one-two-three. In their own half of the same frame, Hilde got the "deadly base on balls." Then old Warhorse Charley Irwin leaned against the ball for a crashing three-cushion clout to left-center and the score was tied. Williams was next at bat and had a chance to break up the game, but struck out.

And then the game wore on until the thirteenth inning, when Wheeler started the doings with a single to that right-field fence. Joy poked an easy one down to Kagan, and the old boy booted it. Shaughnessy pulled off a piece of real baseball in the form of a sacrifice. A moment later, Wheeler was caught off third on an attempted squeeze with Mohler at the bat. Mohler was then hit by a pitched ball. Moriarity singled to left field and Joy was held at third by Devereaux, one play which Derrick did not see. Then Hildebrand slammed a beauty out to left field and the game was over.

M'STOCKER SUES THE AFONG ESTATE

Brings Action To Get Damages In Sum Of $76,581.52

Frank B. McStocker wants $76,581.52 with interest, out of the Afong Estate. He filed suit for that amount yesterday afternoon against the Bishop Trust Company, administrators of the estate of Chun Afong, J. M. Dawson being named as garnishee.

In his complaint McStocker claims that on September 30, 1905, Chun Afong was indebted to him in the sum of $32,500 for services rendered by the plaintiff in the sale of Afong's sugar plantation at Peperekau. Afong, he claims, promised to pay upon request, but although the request was often made, Afong failed to settle the debt.

While six months after the death of Afong in China, to specify, on May 20th last, McStocker presented to the administrators of the estate his claim for $76,581.52, being the $32,500 with interest, and the administrators rejected the claim. He therefore asks the court to award him damages for that amount, plus interest from May 24, 1907.

McStocker also asks that S. M. Damon be summoned to appear in court and state whether or not he has in his possession any stocks, bonds or other effects belonging to the Afong estate.

Stein-Bloch Clothes Are Pure Wool

THE ONLY REASON why cotton is substituted for wool in mercerized fabrics is to CHEAPEN the goods. A house is no stronger than its foundation. So with clothes. Cheap fabrics mean cheap clothes; and no matter how cleverly they are tailored, they will be untrustworthy.

Stein-Bloch employ no mercerized or cotton adulterated fabrics. Their goods are pure caustic tested wool, and the clothes made from them wear and keep their shape.

KUMERIC IS READY TO SAIL

There is every expectation that the emigrant ship Kumeric will get away with her load of Japanese this afternoon, but it may be quite late. According to statements of the promoters of the scheme, every difficulty has been surmounted and all stumbling blocks, in the shape of howlers for cash, have been removed and appeased.

A Bulletin reporter visited the Kumeric this morning and found everything quiet and orderly among the emigrants.

In an interview with Captain Baird of the Kumeric he says that he anticipates no trouble from his load of human freight. That all of the talk about there being riots and other disturbances created by the Japanese passengers is all rot. They play cards and sleep all day during their long wait for the ship to sail, and seem perfectly satisfied with the run of things now that they are on board and reasonably sure of getting away.

When questioned this morning one of the Japanese, who acted as spokesman for the crowd, said, "By and by go; no care how long stay."

Captain Baird looks for no quarantine troubles on the other end of the trip. He says he has been in this line of business since the war of the Rebellion, but has mostly been engaged with the transportation of immigrants from place to place in the old world. He related some of his experiences to the reporter and they were varied and exciting. This little trouble does not cause him any loss of sleep, as he has seen worse messes than this. In fact, he says it is not up to him anyhow, and he doesn't care how long he stays anchored off this port.

Regarding the stowaways brought over in the Kumeric, Captain Baird says they are the best of the lot for the reason that they stowed away to avoid serving in the army of their own country, they being able-bodied and strong. It would hardly have been possible for them to get passports. Three of the stowaways were officers, who were sent aboard the Kumeric at Funchal for the express purpose of preventing stowaways from getting on board.

Captain Baird came ashore this morning for the purpose of winding up final affairs in view of pulling out this afternoon.

Captain Baird says that the Kumeric has had steam up for five days and if things don't move today he will put the fires out.

KEKAPA SUSPECTED OF HAWAIIAN HOTEL BURGLARIES

Kekapa, a Hawaiian, was arrested by County Detective Lake last night as he was trying to go away with Dr. Hodgins' auto, and the police believe that he is the man who is responsible for the burglaries which occurred at the Hawaiian Hotel a few days ago. Kekapa was held by the police some time ago. He is a little off his head and they tried to have him committed for insanity, but Dr. [illegible] declined to do so. Since then Kekapa has often been seen at night in the vicinity of the hotel and the Alakea street junction and has acted in a suspicious manner. One of the rooms of the hotel was on the night of the burglaries robbed of five cents and a poem by Oscar Wilde at that, and the police figure that only a crazy man would steal such a combination, hence the suspicion against Kekapa. He was sent to jail for three months by Judge Whitney this morning.

TRANSPORT SHERMAN ARRIVES THIS MORNING

The U. S. A. T. Sherman, Capt. Brugulere, arrived this morning from San Francisco after a very pleasant passage of eight days. She brings a full list of passengers and mail. Notice was posted to the effect that the Sherman would sail at 5 p. m. tomorrow, but the order has been changed and she will depart at 11 a. m. tomorrow instead of 5 p. m. She has a number of passengers for Guam and will, of course, touch at that port.

While in port the Sherman will take on 700 tons of coal.

Yesterday afternoon the transport sighted the Admiral Duperre, the French ship that sailed from here two days ago.

I. Mori, the Japanese arrested some time ago for passing counterfeit money, was released this morning on $1000 bail.

WHY YOU SHOULD USE
Holly Flour

There is more bread to the bag because Blue Stem Wheat has a harder kernel than any other and consequently it takes more water to moisten the flour. More water means a greater number of loaves of bread to the bag.

HOLLY FLOUR

will keep longer and not grow weavley, as other brands, so that a bag of it will stretch over a longer period of time. Every good quality of the wheat is retained in HOLLY and the poor ones extracted and discarded. The proportion of gluten in it exceeds that of any other because the millers understand the method of treatment.

SATURDAY..........JULY 13, 1907

San Francisco labor men must be drunk continually—when they are not sober—if they intend to stand by Schmitz for reelection.

Visiting Congressmen may charge to their account a revival of American spirit in Hawaii. The first section started the ball rolling.

Japanese emigrants on board the Kumeric say they are happy. It's the crowd responsible for the tour that are now sweating blood—and coin.

Judged from the celebrations and declarations, Japan is everybody's friend. With the possible exception of the Kaiser, who refuses absolutely to play.

Automobiles off for an endurance run are proof that the automobile owners of Honolulu are men of good sense. Pure speed contests are too literally races with the undertaker.

When the morning paper is not handling the political small-farm campaign with two hands and a bellows, it strives to lift itself by the bootstraps—and becoming angry calls real bad names.

When the alleged small-farm enthusiasts drop the business for political effect only, and join the honest workers for the American development of Hawaii, they may be able to command some degree of public confidence.

The Advertiser has a learned editorial on peanuts. The utterance on the subject is necessarily authoritative, for if ever there existed a peanut sheet the Advertiser is it.—Hilo Tribune.

Is it, then, peanut oil that may be held responsible for those not-sober-when-they-are-drunk-San Francisco labor men—and other small deer?

The man who looked on the electric when it was light and wisely told the world that when the labor union men of San Francisco are drunk they are not sober, now explains that his Kona canaries and other small deer are the product of long association with Ike Walton and King Lear. It is pleasant to learn that the gentleman sufficiently cleared his fevered brain to discover where he was at. If he were to try Chaucer he could land a few worse than that. It may be that Roosevelt could help out with a slight additional comment in line with the nature-fakirs. It is a splendid exhibition of loyalty, however, that there is no shadow of turning from that glorious declaration regarding the condition of the San Francisco labor men. We have no doubt that the exponent of this doctrine could with equal force declare that in trying to make the public believe in his sincerity on the small-farm question, he is horribly up against it.

ROOSEVELT'S DECLARATION

There can be little doubt that the luncheon with the President of the Japanese Ambassador Aoki and Admiral Yamamoto, followed by a formal statement from the President of the friendly relation existing between Japan and America, was planned with the purpose of putting an end to the foolish political war talk which has been going the rounds for the last few weeks.

A more direct expression of peace and good-will could hardly be framed than that which the President has given to the world under conditions which give it the force of a joint note.

It should now be possible for those under the influence of the silly season to work off their surplus energy on sea-serpents. The war scare business has worked out and Hawaii may feel well pleased that such is the case.

SMALL FARM DECEPTION.

As to the second proposition that a citizen farmer here is more likely to be found superintending cheap labor than working himself, what of it, assuming it to be true? Hasn't the mainland farmer always, as soon as he got ahead, employed the cheap peasantry of Europe to do his rough work, and as plenty of such labor is coming here now, may not the Hawaiian farmer hire it without violating any American precedent? What is the economic or patriotic difference between an Iowa farmer who employs Swedish field hands and a Hawaiian farmer who hires Spanish or Portuguese help? — Advertiser editorial, July 13, '07.

Here we are again.

Each day that goes by the people in the small-farm business for political purposes only demonstrate "as clear as mud" that the American farmer for Hawaii is as easily caught as birds captured with salt.

Our readers should read and reread that phrase, which rolls so smoothly off the reel of this person who would go to the Mohonk Conference and discuss small farming if some sugar-baron would put up the price.

Let us take into consideration the figures regarding this labor that is coming here plentifully now.

Three steamers have brought 4,797 European immigrants to these islands.

This total represents 1,310 adult males, 1,085 adult females and 2,402 children. The expense of landing these people in Honolulu has been over $300,000, and the money has been contributed largely by the sugar-plantation interests of the Territory.

This means that each adult male landed in Honolulu and ready for work on the plantations has cost over $220. Or, including the members of the families, each human being has cost over $60, to land.

This is the labor that is coming "in plenty" here now. Plenty is good.

Every intelligent citizen of the Territory knows that the law passed by the last Congress and put into effect the first day of July, is so worded as to make it very doubtful if such immigration work can be continued by the Territorial Board of Immigration.

These people are indeed the class of laborers of which the Territory is much in need, in order that they may leaven the mass of Orientalism that now controls in the plantation fields, Hawaii needs more of them. It is believed that they will not only work in connection with the plantations but as opportunity offers become independent homesteaders and permanent settlers. They are working out a problem where they are and doing it well.

Only those who have been deceived will conclude that the indefinite small farmer of the politicians would help matters any by becoming an active competitor for this labor brought to the islands at much expense to the sugar estates.

The latest twist of the false prophets goes to strengthen the same old conclusion: This small-farm propaganda is in it for political purposes only. Being dishonest, it makes no effort to be practical.

Even the Advertiser outfit, when in its right mind, knows that the statement that "plenty of such labor is coming here now" is absolutely false. It is ridiculous.

Therefore the conclusions are either perfect hypocrisy or unutterably funny.

NAVAL BASE FOR OUR BIG FLEET

Port Of Honolulu Will Be Headquarters For Cruisers

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 2.—The first authoritative announcement of the future naval policy of the United States and the new strategic program adopted on the advice of the Naval Advisory Board was made yesterday at his home in Oakland by Secretary of the Navy Victor H. Metcalf. He said that practically the entire battleship fleet of the United States Navy had been assigned to the Pacific Coast.

The great fleet of battleships and several armored cruisers, comprising the Atlantic fleet will make the voyage to Coast waters by way of the Straits of Magellan. The armored cruiser division stationed in the Philippines will join the armored cruisers going into commission on this Coast, and the armored cruisers in the North Atlantic squadron will also be added, forming a powerful armored cruiser squadron to act in conjunction with the battleship fleet, which will be augmented by the new fighting leviathan, Nebraska, now at Bremerton, making eighteen first-class battleships in all.

Secretary Metcalf, who came here to spend a vacation, visiting relatives and friends in Oakland, made the following statement:

"The entire battleship fleet has been ordered to come to this Coast, and will start as soon as the ships can be placed in readiness for the long voyage. The object of sending the fleet out here is to give it a practice voyage. However, it has been determined by the Naval authorities to keep the fleet stationed in the Pacific permanently. The only purpose of my coming here is to enjoy a brief vacation at home. The report that I am to proceed to Honolulu with Secretaries Straus and Garfield to investigate the Japanese immigration question is erroneous. I shall not go to Honolulu, and am making no investigation into the Japanese immigration question. In fact, I am not here in any official capacity, my visit being purely for private and personal reasons."

San Francisco will be the center of naval activity, for this port will be the home station of the Pacific fleet. The armored cruiser division is expected to make its headquarters at Honolulu, but the battleship division will have San Francisco as its base.

The battleships assigned to the Pacific fleet are Missouri, Rhode Island, Kearsarge, Virginia, Kentucky, Connecticut, Idaho, Georgia, Maine, Ohio, Kansas, Illinois, Wisconsin, Louisiana, New Jersey, Minnesota, Alabama and Nebraska.

The armored cruiser division will consist of the Tennessee and Washington, now with the Atlantic squadron; the West Virginia, Colorado, Maryland and Pennsylvania, now in the Philippines, and the South Dakota and California, going into commission here.

THE STORY OF A LOST CURL

ALICE JAMES.

[illegible]

Granny Goo And Danny Groo

In the long, long ago there dwelt in a land far beyond the sea a poor old woman called Granny Groo, whose only companion was a little grandson named Danny Groo. [illegible] terrible weeping. "Oh, what shall become of me? I am an old woman and have worked so hard and honestly. And my little lad has been bent under burdens of labor too young—too young. Why should the wicked men come and rob an old, old woman and a little lad?"

"Do you remember, Granny, that we are to open the locket if any great trouble falls upon us—a trouble we cannot live through without aid? Well, we've lost everything today except the house over our heads and the fields, which will not be ready for planting till spring. The winter is before us, and we must surely starve unless we find succor from some source. Shall we get the locket and open it?"

[illegible]

THEY FOUND THE POT OF GOLD

Then Granny placed it safely in her bosom as they went to the spring to dig up the treasure there. To their great happiness they found the pot of gold, and ran to the cot with it. When they counted it they found themselves very rich, indeed. They decided to go at once to the country where Danny was to rule some day and learn the ways and needs of the people. So, putting on their wraps, they hurried to the village, where they first proceeded to have a good supper, and secondly to send for a poor old relative, to whom they presented their little farm, telling him to raise a body of sturdy followers and to go into the mountains and drive out the robbers who were now coming down into their territory. Then they bought a little gig and horse, for they were too wise to be extravagant in the eyes of the townspeople, as there were some of a disreputable character, who would have robbed them, and the next morning bright and early, with a good supply of cold victuals in a box under the gig seat, they set their faces toward the Southland, following to a letter the directions on the bit of paper that was folded inside the precious locket.

"And now, Granny Groo," smiled her affectionate grandson, "we'll soon be far away from poverty and loneliness. It is my intention to help rid the world of robbers and thieves when I'm a king. And also shall I befriend all poor people—more especially the old poor."

And Granny Groo, her face becoming younger with each hour, for now plenty was promised to herself and little lad, put a hand on his shoulder and said:

"You've been a noble boy, lad, and you'll become a nobler man and a just ruler. People shall be happy in your realm for all shall have justice. To be good is to be great."

And so on and on they rode toward the land where happiness was in store for them.

Queens Of England

Anne of Cleves, fourth wife of Henry VIII., was a young German woman of plain face and figure, a good sort of soul, simple in taste and of a domestic nature, having been brought up in the closest companionship of her thrifty and housewifely mother. She was little educated, for at that time the German people scorned the notion of girls learning the languages and music. The needle and household management were considered more fitting accomplishments for the fair sex. Therefore, when Anne came to Henry VIII. she fell far short in his critical eye, both physically and mentally. Indeed, the very moment Henry's eyes fell upon Anne of Cleves he drew a long face and was heard to murmur the most uncomplimentary things to his courtiers about the physical blemishes of his bride-to-be.

And at that very moment Henry determined to be rid of so ungainly a woman, either before or after marriage. In vain he urged Cromwell to "find a remedy" to prevent the marriage, but matters had gone too far and Cromwell urged Henry to fulfil his marriage agreement. Most unwillingly Henry acquiesced, but Cromwell's doom was sealed. And from the hour when he wedded Anne of Cleves Henry began to scheme to have the marriage annulled. It is needless to say that he accomplished his desire, for Henry was not one to suffer a disappointment. Within a short time Henry found an excuse to be rid of his fourth wife. Previous to Henry's negotiations for Anne's hand in marriage she had been betrothed to a young German nobleman. This was reason sufficient to have his marriage with her annulled, and parliament confirmed his decision.

Anne, perhaps well informed about the fates of Henry's former wives, and apprehensive about her own fate should she declare to stand for her rights, calmly agreed to the arrangement by which she was to become the King's "good dear sister" instead of his queen. Henry, well pleased with her docility, gave her a fine country estate, servants and plenty of money to keep up her establishment in grand style; also writing her a "brotherly letter," in which he told her she should be welcome at court whenever it pleased her to present herself there. Also that "as his adopted sister she should take precedence before all other ladies except his wife and daughters." This letter showed plainly Henry's intention to remarry.

Thus did Anne of Cleves, repudiated wife of Henry VIII., quietly relinquish all claims as Henry's wife and live apparently very content in her comfortable home, away from the dangerous intrigues of court, with plenty of money to satisfy her love for dress and ease; a poor, unambitious, simple-minded German woman of 24, upon whom the greatest indignity had been placed, unresented by her as far as any outward signs could testify.

ANNE OF CLEVES

And scarcely had Anne of Cleves been removed from the marriage bond when Henry turned his evil and covetous eyes upon a pretty 18-year-old maid of honor, Katharine Howard, who had served as lady in waiting to the erstwhile queen, Anne of Cleves.

Of Katharine Howard, who became fifth wife of Henry VIII., a short sketch will be given next week.

CONGRESS PARTY WILL DEPART TOMORROW

As the transport Sherman, in which the Congressional party is to continue its voyage, will not sail before tomorrow, and not this evening, as had been expected, the Congressmen will have a little more time to spend in the Islands than had been anticipated. No entertainment has been provided for them for today, as it was thought best to leave them the whole day in which to pack their trunks, do what shopping they might want to attend to and rest for the impending long trip.

This evening the party will be entertained at dinner by Judge Hatch.

The Waikiki beach sports, which were to have been the entertainment yesterday afternoon, did not come off. Instead the party was entertained at the tennis courts under the guidance of Royal D. Mead.

The Kinau arrived this morning from Hawaii and Maui ports with the following freight: 3 bags coffee, 3 horses, 2 automobiles, 1 bags cocoanuts, 6 crates chickens, 6 bundles bags, 6 barrels tallow, 8 crates berries, 11 bags awa, 17 empty wine barrels, 20 bags cabbage, 38 bags spuds, 42 empty kegs, 13 barrels empty bottles, 50 cords wood, 29 cases honey, 263 packages sundries, 272 sheep, 592 bags flour.

Captain Thomas Fenton of the American steamer Col. E. L. Drake has made a report to the branch hydrographic office at San Francisco, of a floating coral island that he observed on June 27, in lat. 24.41 north and long. 116.16 west. It was calm weather and smooth sea at the time. The island appeared to be about 400 feet long, awash at both ends and about ten feet high in the center.

SOCIAL CHATTER AND HOME TALK

FOR an interested looker-on, as I generally am, at the popular hotel dances, one is filled with awe and admiration at the energy displayed by the gay trippers of the never-ending two-step and waltzes. From beginning to end the floor is never deserted, and there is only one drawback—the fearful odor of perspiring humanity reeking with the zeal and fervor of the strenuous exercise. The shirt-waist movement for men-folk is attracting a vast deal of attention elsewhere—and it is not at all a bad idea. Who would not rather gaze upon a clean shirt, either of silk or linen, with a collar a la Byron, than one hopelessly crushed, and a shirt of shattered illusions? Mr. Jack London's white silk evening shirts and low-cut collars have been much commented upon; but how sensible in a climate like ours! And how spotlessly clean it looks! One surely ought to be comfortable in the tropics at least, and it's a pity that men cannot adopt some style of dress that would conform to the climate, for the dress coat and stiff shirt must be unbearable at times, and Oh! how ugly it is!

The genius who will evolve just the cut of garment to suit warm climates will not only make a fortune but receive the thanks of all womankind.

Mrs. Hermann Focke was an outgoing passenger in the Siberia, accompanied by Miss Elsie Webster. Mrs. Focke has been in ill-health for months, and her objective point is Holland, where she will undergo an operation. It is hoped that she will return to Honolulu restored to her usual good health. Mrs. Paul Neumann, who is at present in San Francisco, will return to Mexico connected with the settling of her mother's estate.

Home of Longworths

It is said that Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth will occupy the Fairchild cottage at the Seaside Hotel during their visit in Honolulu. Mrs. Fairchild and family have gone to Kauai for the summer, and Miss Lady Macfarlane accompanied them. When Alice Roosevelt passed through here with the Taft party she seemed quite enamored with the Island life and particularly enjoyed the surfing which she is anticipating with great pleasure. The Longworths made hosts of friends during their brief visit and will probably be greatly entertained.

Beautiful Ahuimanu

Miss Marion Scott will be missed from the week's festivities, for she is at Ahuimanu with Mrs. Henry Macfarlane and daughter. Ahuimanu is an ideal spot for the hot summer days. Situated at the base of the mountain on a high plateau, the cool breezes are never absent, and lucky those who are there. The large swimming pool is not the least of the attractions, and the cool shady walk to the Bishop's garden is generally one of the joys of the late afternoon. Valiant games of tennis are played by the strenuous ones and there are lovely seats well protected from the sun, where a bit of embroidery is often finished by busy fingers during the afternoon. The Macfarlanes are truly hospitable, and their guests are always made to feel absolutely at home.

St. Clement's Socks

A unique way of asking for charity has been gotten up by St. Clement's. The little circular has a tiny baby's sock of crepe cloth enclosed with the following stanzas attached:

SOCK

This little sock we send to you,
It is not for you to wear,
Please multiply your size by two,
And place therein with care,
In pennies or in cents,
Just twice the number sock you wear,
(We hope it is immense).

So, if you wear a number ten,
You bring us twenty, see?
Which dropped within this little sock
Will fill our hearts with glee;
'Tis all we ask, it isn't much,
And hardly any trouble;
But if you only have one foot,
We'll surely charge you double.

But if the distance seems too great,
Our service to attend,
Or care or sickness should prevent,
Just send by some good friend;
Or Uncle Sam's "post office" will bring
The dimes we so much need,
And many thanks we'll vote to you
Who are a friend indeed.

Now, if you? have a friend quite dear,
You'd like to join with you,
Or, if you know some one who would,
We'll gladly send you two;
So don't forget the place and date—
We'll answer when you knock,
And welcome you with open arms—
But don't forget your sock.

On the outside of the dainty circular you are asked to help the ladies of St. Clement's Guild to meet their pledge of $500, this year by returning the sock by September 1st to Mrs. Edward Davis, 1522 Hastings street.

Hons-Chillingworth

The Hons-Chillingworth wedding attracted a large number of guests to St. Andrew's Cathedral on Monday evening at half past six. Mrs. James Dougherty and Mrs. Harvey Murray had transformed the altar and chancel into a bower of beauty, in which white lilies, daisies and pampas grass played an important part. The bride looked lovely in white crepe de chine over white satin Duchess and real lace. Her bridal veil was becoming and she carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, in pink, was much admired. The Rev. Canon Mackintosh performed the solemn service. Her Majesty, Queen Liliuokalani, was present, being handsomely gowned. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents immediately after the ceremony.

Red Lights and Sky-Pieces

At last Honolulu has had something worth seeing! All credit to Mr. Church, whose untiring efforts toward building up a truly refined, respectable and entertaining place of amusement have at last had their acknowledgment. Society at its best turned out in overwhelming numbers on Saturday evening last at the Seaside Hotel to witness the long promised event of the month—the midnight race of fire canoes, for which the largest and fleetest along the whole Waikiki beach had been chartered. Long before the appointed hour thousands had gathered on the greensward to watch expectantly for this unique and unprecedented pageant. The canoes were manned by native Hawaiians, but the steerers had been most carefully selected from among Honolulu's choice and exclusive bachelors, twenty-eight in all. During the first part of the evening the spacious lanai was cleared and Honolulu's buds and bachelors, and a few married women, danced to the languorous strains of music which Ernest Kaai and his orchestra furnished. Mr. Kaai and his orchestra are always popular, but on Saturday night they played with unwonted verve and spirit, seemingly inspired by the fire canoes as they caught wave after wave on their mad race toward shore. The selection of fireworks was made by a master hand. Starting with the first canoe, which sent forth several dozen of simple sky rockets in rapid succession, then followed canoe after canoe filled with brilliant Roman candles, pin-wheels and red showers of living fire, casting a wonderful glow on the expectant faces of the on-lookers, until the last half dozen canoes, each more brilliantly lighted than the other—each with their set pieces emblematic of Hawaii's greatest glories and noblest sentiments. Of these the last canoe deserves special mention. Steered by Mr. Derby, who seemed full of the spirit of the evening he took all the strongest waves and made a remarkably straight course. The fire works which were sent from this canoe represented a beautiful young maiden with a look of wonderful promise in her eyes—emblematic of the Territory's future. This ended the brilliant display, which has never been surpassed even in Honolulu, famous for its spectacular performances. This young man may well be praised for the zeal and enthusiasm with which he has always devoted himself to all forms of Hawaiian sports. During the entire evening and again after the brilliant and most successful entertainment, cooling drinks were liberally served. Ever since Mr. Church has taken on the management of the Seaside Hotel it has become the most popular resort in Honolulu and nothing seems too great an undertaking for him to make a success of.

Incidentally the canoes swamped.

Society at Polo

The polo on Wednesday was attended by the Congressional party, who were the guests of honor of the club, and a small number of enthusiasts who witnessed a very good game. The sun did not shine as brightly as usual, but the hills with their blue shadows changing from brightest blue to palest rose made an effect which surpassed the brightest day. Among those seen were Mr. and Mrs. Galt, Paymaster and Mrs. Hayes Brooke, Mrs. Nevens, Princess Kawananakoa, Mrs. Emmet May, Miss Roth, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Young, Mrs. von Hamm, Mrs. Arthur Berg, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dillingham, Mrs. Mott-Smith, Mrs. A. Lewis, Mrs. Mannie Phillips, Mrs. C. W. Case Deering, Mr. and Mrs. Mead, Misses Hartwell, Mrs. Hawes, Mr. Hamilton and Dr. Fitzgerald.

Young-Moore

Announcement is made of the marriage of Alexander Young, Jr., and Miss Carita Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Moore of Myrtle street. The wedding took place Thursday morning at the home of the bride's parents. It was celebrated quietly, only the members of the Moore family being present. The service was read by Rev. Griffith Griffiths of the Market street Congregational church. Mr. and Mrs. Young left Friday morning on their honeymoon journey. Upon their return they will reside with Mrs. Young's parents in Myrtle street. The bride is a musician of ability. Young is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Young, prominent in Honolulu, where they are owners of the famous Young hotel. Formerly the Youngs resided in Oakland, "Rosecrest," the family home, which was purchased by the William G. Henshaws, being the center of much of the social life of this side of the bay.—S. F. Call, June 30.

Dinner for Londons

Mrs. Frederic Church was the charming hostess of a swimming party on Thursday afternoon at the Seaside Hotel in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Jack London. The guests assembled under the hau trees and an hour was delightfully spent in sporting with the waves. Both Mr. and Mrs. London are perfect swimmers, and enjoy a dip in the surf like school children. Mrs. London always looks very fetching in her jaunty bathing suit and can perform many difficult feats. After the bath a delicious tea was served in the private dining room, so artistically hung with old tapa cloth and Oriental rugs. Mrs. Church was prettily dressed in an embroidered white linen. The guests included, besides the Londons, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Case Deering, Dr. and Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Bergen, Mrs. Nevens, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Jr., Miss Harvey, Miss Alice Macfarlane, Miss Marion Roth, Mr. Robert Shingle, Mr. F. Shingle, Mr. "Sonny" Macfarlane, Mr. William Roth and Mr. Frederic Church.

Younger Set Hosts

Several members of the younger set gave a beautiful dinner on Wednesday evening in the Waikiki dining room of the Alexander Young hotel, in honor of the ladies of the Congressional party. Twenty covers encircled the table, which was decorated with crimson carnations in a lavish manner. A canopy of greens made a bower of the table and candles shaded in crimson were before each place, the large candelabras on either side making an artistic addition. Much laughter, and a continual stream of conversation made the dinner a memorable one, to say nothing of the delicious dishes which were constantly brought out for inspection and excited much interest. The chef, Louis Chevalier, quite surpassed himself and the menu, which is given below, speaks for itself. The Ernest Kaai orchestra played and sang in their usual brilliant manner and later for dancing in the hall-room.

WAIALUA FOURTH WAS CELEBRATED BY FLAG RAISING

Waialua had a Fourth of July celebration of which little has been said outside the district, but it was a good one. Judge Archie Mahaulu was the moving spirit, although he did not appear prominently in the foreground of the event. Recently the Magistrate's court was presented with an American flag and a flagpole. The pole was not as long as the Judge thought it should be, but at all events it provided for the waving on an American flag where none had waved before.

Consequently the Fourth of July was set upon as the proper day to raise the flag. The exercises took place promptly at 8 o'clock on the morning of the Fourth. The County police were on hand to officially salute the flag as it was spread to the breeze. Little children from the Waialua public school sang the "Star Spangled Banner" and the honorable Mr. Mahoe, who has been heard in legislative halls, delivered a Fourth of July address. It was a good one. The people of the district turned out in good numbers and were pleased.

One incident is worthy of note. It was proposed to sing "Hawaii Ponoi." Those in charge decided that on the American day of Independence only the American anthem should be sung. It was an American day and was celebrated in American style by the American citizens of Waialua. That means those recently become Americans but none the less patriotic.

TWO APPLICATIONS CONSIDERED BY BOARD

The application of B. T. White for a restaurant license, with Sunday and afterhour privileges, for Pearl City, was considered by the Board of License Commissioners at its meeting yesterday afternoon. White will probably get his license, though not for premises as extensive as those for which it is asked.

The license inspector reported favorably on the application of Fred Kiey for a saloon license and the application was ordered advertised for four weeks. The Anti-Saloon League is making a canvass in an effort to secure signatures to a protest against the granting of this license. Some of those sought have signed both the petition and the protest.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR COUNTY

Oahu county this month gets a lump sum of about $15,000 over and above the regulation $30,000 which Territorial Auditor Fisher allowed it as its share of the taxes collected within the county. The county gets 50 per cent of the taxes collected, and the Auditor has heretofore allowed it $35,000 for two months and $30,000 for the remainder of the year as its share. But now that the tax money for the period is in, it has been discovered that Oahu County has about $15,000 more coming to it. This amount will probably be paid today or Monday.

LONDONS OFF TO MAUI

The Island steamer Claudine left on time yesterday afternoon for Hilo and way-ports. Her passenger list was full, including several of the Brothers from St. Louis College and Novelist Jack London and wife. From the large amount of baggage they took along it is expected that the Londons will spend some time on the other islands.

The Young Bros. are giving the engines of their launches a thorough overhauling.

There's One Thing

(AMONG MANY THINGS)

that we like about Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes. They're made of strictly all-wool fabrics, and the makers want everybody to know it.

There are plenty of good-looking clothes for sale that are not all-wool. The makers don't claim they are.

But you know such clothes will not wear as well as our kind (all-wool) or be as satisfactory from any standpoint. That's why we find it so easy to sell our kind.

SCRAPS

FROM THE NEWSPAPER BOYS

Just 30 days will be devoted to the celebration of the arrival in these islands of E. D. Tenney, publisher of the house of Castle & Cooke.

If the country knows or reads at the least ability some of during the daily Mr. Tenney has been here it no doubt is the magnificence to the future. Under ordinary circumstances, it should grow correspondingly.

When Mr. Tenney arrived Alexander street was the city limit. There was a house on the mauka (Waikiki) corner of Beretania street opposite the residence of the late Col. Allen. Beyond that, through to Palama, was a muddy plain over which there was a trail that passed near Mr. Tenney's present home. There was another house on the ground subject of next week's sketch of the Hawaiian Islands south. Shortly after Mr. Tenney's arrival C. M. Cooke bought the lot on which he homestead is now situated. He was "way out of town."

There seems to be nothing over the age limit of a generation but the growth in Honolulu has shown us how rapid it is. Two years ought to be sufficient to keep the healthy natural pace from becoming the dubious one the future of this city and the islands in general.

Chief Justice Frear has gone to Kauai.

So has Land Commissioner Pratt. Of course Pratt didn't go because the next Governor did, too.

Pratt has been trying for two months or more about going to Kauai to settle up the Kapaa Fee business, but he has never been able to find time. First the legislative session held him busy, and then repairs and the routine business of the office.

A week ago it was announced that Frear would go to Kauai for a vacation.

A few days later Pratt announced that at last he had arranged matters so that he could go to Kauai.

One of Honolulu's auto was standing on the corner in a brown study the other day, and when asked what was the trouble, replied that there was too much pilikia about the automobiles.

"You see it is this way," said he. "When they go slow I can't pull them in, and when they go so fast like the devil was chasing them I can't get the number."

There is one clerk in the office of the Territorial Surveyor who nearly had personal application one day this week. It came about through his answering a telephone call. Incidentally it may be remarked that the clerk learned something and that hereafter he will smile sweetly and put on his company manners when he takes down the receiver.

The clerk was about as busy as clerks in Government offices generally are when the 'phone rang. He took down the receiver and yelled "Hello!"

"Is Mr. Wall in?" asked a meek voice.

"No; he isn't."

"Well, I wish you tell him when he come in——"

Bang! The clerk hung up the 'phone.

Pretty soon the bell rang again.

"Hello," said the same voice. "What's your hurry, young man? I was trying to give you a message and

New Benefit May Be Added

WHEREAS, Many of the members of The Harrison Mutual Burial Association are in limited financial circumstances, and whereas Forty or Fifty Dollars to use by a family following a death therein would be a great blessing;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, by us, the Board of Control of The Harrison Mutual Burial Association: That we offer all of the members of the Association who wish it, an opportunity to establish such a fund for such a benefit, in the following manner, viz.:

By a vote of the members of the Association who are in good standing, two-thirds declaring for it. This Article to be known as No. 22 of our By-Laws.

ARTICLE 22nd. We, the Board of Control of The Harrison Mutual Burial Association, may, on or before Dec. 15th, 1907, order an assessment of $1.00 on each member of the Association, to be delinquent on Jan. 15th, 1908. The proceeds of such assessment are to be used as follows: The family of the deceased member, who pays for such benefit, will receive $80.00 less 20%, which 20% to be used by the Secretary for the making and collecting said assessment together with his labor in connection with the matter. And whenever the amount of the fund is reduced to less than $100.00 the Board of Control shall levy another assessment to replenish it. The failure of a member to pay his or her assessment within thirty days thereafter it is levied, forfeits all rights to the benefit, but rights may be renewed at any time by the delinquent, if in good health, by paying up all assessments with the penalties, which penalties are ten cents on each assessment for each month's delinquency. The relief benefit to be paid to all such members as are entitled to it on and after Jan. 1st, 1908.

DOOLEY TELLS WHAT TO DO WITH ROOSEVELT

BY P. D. DUNNE.
(Copyright, 1907, by H. H. McClure & Co.)

"Well, Sir," said Mr. Dooley, "I see me frind Tiddy Rosenfelt has been doin' a little illery criticism, an' th' pa-apists are full iv mangled authors. Th' next time wan iv thim pathetic authors goes out into th' woods lookin' fr his prey he'll go on crutches."

"Twas this way," said Mr. Dooley. "I have it fr'm Hogan, me illery advisor. He keeps me posted on what's goin' on in lithrachoor, an' I do th' same fr him on crime. We always got a little something that's excitin' comin' to me, but this time he's made good. It seems, ye see, that a good manny iv th' heads that write th' books have been lavin' th' route iv th' theatthey line an' takin' to th' woods. They quit Myrtle an' Clarence an' th' wrong done to Oscar Lumlovitch be th' brutal foorsum iv hard tank wine, an' wint to warruk on th' unhappy love affairs iv Carrie Noo, th' deer, an' th' throubles in th' domestic relations iv th' pan fish an' th' skate. F'r th' last year th' on'y books that Hogan has told me about have been wrote about animiles. I've always thought iv th' beasts iv th' forest prowlin' around an' takin' a leg off a man that'd been sint to Colorado f'r his lungs. But thim boys tell me they're diff'rent in their home life. They fall in love, get marrid an' divoorced, bring up families, an' are snoported or endoured be thim, as th' case may be, accumylate manny, dodge taxes, drink to excess, an' in ivry way act like human bein's. I wudden't be surprised to know that a bear had a tillyphone in his room, an' that th' gopher complained iv his gas bills.

"Ivry time I go up into th' park to see me old frind th' illyphant I wondher what dhreams were goin' on be hind that nose iv his that he uses alter nately as a garden hose, a derrick, or a knife an' fork. Is he recallin' th' happy days at Barnum's before brutal man sunk an ice pick into him an' dhrove him to th' park? Is there some wan still there that he thinks iv? Is she alive, is she dead, does the ivor dhream iv him as she sits her hay an' rubs her back again th' bars iv her gilded cage? There's th' hippy potamus. He don't look to be full iv sintiminl, but ye never can tell. Manny an achin' heart beats behind a cold an' shiney exthayor. Somewhere in sunny Africa a loving fam'ly may be waitin' f'r him. Th' wallow at th' ri-er side is there, with th' slime an' ooze arranged be tinder paws. But he will not return. They will meet, but they will miss him, there will be wan vacant lair.

"Well, Sir, just as I'd got to th' frame iv mind whin I'm thinkin' iv sekin' that gloomy lookin' allygator in th' park to aplud up ayenin' with me, along comes Tiddy Rosenfelt an' says there's nawthin' in it. It's hard on th' boys. They're doin' th' best they can. Ye can't expect an author to lave his comfortable flat an' go three or four thousand miles to larn whether th' hayro iv his little love story murdhers his uncle be bitin' him chaft th' ear or be fellin' him with a half Nelson an' hammerlock. Why should he? Who wud feed th' goold fish while he was gone? No, sir, he does just right. Instead iv venturin' into th' wilds an' p'raps bein' et up he wan iv his favrite charackters, he calls f'r some tea an' toast, jabs his pen into th' inkwell, an' writes: 'Victory was not long in th' grasp iv th' whale. Before he cud rayturn to his burrow Tusky Bicuspid had seized him be th' tail an' dashed his brains out agin a rock. With a leap in th' air th' bold wolf put to rout a covey iv muskrats, those evil sojers iv fortune that are seen hovrin' over ivry animile battlefield. Wan blow iv his paw broke th' back iv th' buffalo. With another he crushed a monsthrous saxe hen, at wanst th' most thrracherous an' th' hardiest iv th' beasts iv th' wild. Paralyzed be th' boldness iv th' wolf, th' camel an' th' ank fled fr'm th' scene iv havoc, as is their wont. All that remained iv his inimies now was th' cow, which defied him fr'm the branches iv a pine tree an' pelted him with th' monsthrous fruit iv this cillybrated viggytable. Now, it is well known that however even they may be in a boordin' house, th' wolf is no match f'r a cow in a tree. But this was no ordhinary wolf. As he heerd th' low cry iv his mate he was indowed with th' sthrength iv a thousand plany movers. With a gesture iv impatience he shed his coat, f'r it was Spring, childher, an' he shud've been more careful; he shed his coat, swiftly climbed th' tree an' boldly advanced on th' foe. His intinse give th' low growl iv his hated thribe. How manny a time have I heerd it in Englewood an' shuddered with fear. But th' dauntless Tusky answered back with his battle song, th' long chirp iv th' wild wolf, his wife accompanyin' him fr'm th' foot iv th' tree on a sheep-bone. With wan spring th' inthrepid wolf sprang at his inimy. She thried to sink her venomous fangs into his wishbone, but with incredulous swiftness he back-heeled an' uppercut her, swung left to body an' right to point iv jaw, an' with wan last grimace iv defiance th' gr-reat bulk iv th' monsther fell in thousand feet into th' rearin' torrent an' took th' count. Tusky heerd th' soft love note iv his mate. She was eatin' th' whale. He hastily descinded. An' so peace come to th' jungle.'

"That sounds all right to me. I like to see th' best man or th' best animile win. An' I want to see him win good. It wudden't help me story to tell about Tusky goin' home with wan ear gone an' his eye blacked, an' tellin' his wife that he'd just about managed to put wan over that stopped another wolf. That's what usually happens up this way, an' it ain't very good readin'. When I want to tell a story that'll inthrest me frinds I give it to thim good. Whin I described me fav'rite hayro, Dock Haggerty, I tell about him throwin' wan man out iv th' window an' usin' another as a club to bate th' remainin' twelve into submission. But if I had to swear to it, an' wasn't on good terms with th' Judge, I wudden't say that I iver see Dock Haggerty lick more thin wan man—at a time. At a time, mind ye. He might take care iv a procession iv Jeffreys. But he'd be in throuble with a couple iv mimbers iv th' Ethical Culture Society that came to him at th' same moment. 'If iver more thin wan comes at wanst,' says th' Dock, 'I'm licked,' he says.

"But that ain't what I tell late at night, an' it ain't what I want to read. Ye bet it ain't. If I wint over to a book store an' blew in me good thirty-nine cints f'r a dollar-an'-a-half book, I'd want some kind iv a hayro that I niver see around these corners. Th' best day I iver knew Jawn L. Sullivan had a little something on me. I won't say it was much, but now that we're both retired, I'll say that I'm glad I niver challenged him. But I wudden't look at a book, an' I wudden't annyway, but I wudden't let Hogan tell me about a hayro that cudden't wear an overcoat an' rubber boots, have wan arm done up in a sling, an' something th' matther with th' other, blue spectacles on his eyes, a plug hat on his head, th' anjence throwin' bricks at him, an' th' referee doin' a cross-cut saw on his neck, an' thin make two hundhered an' fifty Jawn L. Sullivans establish th' new record f'r th' leap through th' window. Whin I want a hayro, I want a good wan. I don't care whether 'tis a wolf, a sojer, or a Prisident. It all comes to th' same thing—whether 'tis Hogan's frind, th' Wolf that he's been talkin' about f'r a year, or that other old frind iv his that he used to talk about—what d'ye call him?—ah, where's me mind goin'?—Ivanhoe.

"But Tiddy Rosenfelt don't feel that way about it. He's called down thim nature writers just th' same way he'd call me down if I wint before th' fifth grade at th' Brothers' school an' told thim what I thought wud inthrest thim about Dock Haggerty. What does he say? I'll tell ye. 'I do not wish to be harsh,' says he, 'but if I wanted to charackterize these here nature writers, I shud use a much shorter an' uglier wurrud thin liar, if I cud think iv wan, which I cannot. Ye take, f'r example, What's-his-name. Has this man iver been outside iv an aviary? I doubt it. Here he has a guinea pig killin' a moose be bitin' it in th' ear. Now it is nortoryous to anny love iv th' wilds, anny man with a fondness f'r these monarchs iv th' forests, that no moose can be kilt be a wound in th' ear. I have shot a thousand in th' ear with no bad effects beyond possibly makin' thim hard iv hearin'.'

"'Here is a book before me be wan iv these alleged nature writers. This is a man whose name is a household wurrud in Connecticut. His books are used in th' schools. An' what does this man, who got his knowledge iv wild beasts apparently fr'm mistreatin' hens f'r th' pip, say, what is his message to th' little babblin' childher iv Connecticut? It is thim that I've got to think iv. Instead iv tellin' thim th' blessed truth, instead iv leadin' thim up be thurly Christyan teachin's to an undherstandin' iv what is right an' what is ideel in life, he poisons their innocent minds with th' malicious, premeditated falsehood—I can't think iv an uglier or shorter wurrud that wud go with premeditated—that th' wolf kills th' grizzly bear be sinkin' its hidyous fangs into th' grapin' throat iv its prey. How can honest citizens an' good women be brought up on such infamyous doctrine? Supposin' a bear shud attack Connecticut, an' th' bells shud ring f'r th' citizens to rise, an' these little darlings shud follow this false prophet an' run out in their nighties an' thry to leap at his throat. Wudden't th' bear be surprised? Wudden't the little infants be surprised? Ye bet they wud. I want these here darlings to know th' blessed truth, th' softenin' an' beautiful truth that th' on'y way f'r a wolf to kill a bear is to disembowel thim. There is no other way. Th' wolf springs at his prey, an' with wan terrifle lunch pries him open. No wolf cud kill a bear th' way William J. Long iv Stanford has described. A bear has th' sthrongest throat iv anny crather in th' wurruld, barrin' Tillman. Why, I wud hate to have to sthrangle a bear. I did wanst, but I had writer's cramp f'r months afterward.'

"An' that settles it. Fr'm now on ye can get anny wan iv these here nature writers be callin' up four iliven eight B, Buena Park. Th' wild animiles can go back to their daily life iv doin' th' best they can an' th' worst they can, which is th' same thing with thim, manin' get what ye want to eat an' go to sleep with ye're clothes on. But some wan ought to bring out a new nature story. I've thought iv chapter twinty-eight: 'With wan blow iv his pen he laid low, but not much lower, Orpheus L. Jubb, th' well-known minichure painter who has taken up nature study. With another he disemboweled th' Riv'rend Doctor Aleck Guff, who retired fr'm th' Universalist Church because he cud not subscribe to their beejous doothrines about th' future life, an' wrote his cillybrated book on wild animiles iv th' West fr'm a Brooklyn car window. It took on'y a moment f'r him to inflict a mortal wound on Scton-Thompson's kodak. An' Tiddy Rosenfelt stood alone in th' primeval forest. Suddenly there was a sound in th' bushes. He loaded his pen, an' thin give a gasp iv relief, f'r down th' glade come his thrusted ally, John Burroughs, leadin' captive th' pair iv wild white mice that had so long preyed on th' counthry.'

"'An' there ye are-re, Hinnissy. In me heart I'm glad these neefaryous plots iv William J. Long an' others have been defeated. Th' man that tells ye're blessed childher that th' way a wild goat kills an owl is be pretindin' to be an alarm clock, is an undesirable citizen. He ought to be put in an aquaryum. But take it day in an' day out an' William J. Long won't give anny information to ye'er son Packy that'll deceive him much. Th' number iv carryboo, deers, hippypotamuses, allygators, an' muskoxes that come down th' Ar-rchy Road in th' coorse iv a year wudden't make annywan buy a bow an' arrow. It don't make near as much diff'rence to us how they live as it does to thim how we live. They're goin' an' we're comin', an' they ought to investygate an' find out th' reason why. I suppose they don't have to go to school to larn how to bite something that they dislike so much they want to eat it. If I had to bring up a flock iv wild childher in Ar-rchey Road, I wudden't much care what they larned about th' thrue habits iv th' elk or th' chambok, but I'd teach thim what I cud iv th' habits, the lairs, an' th' bite iv th' polisman on th' beat."

"Well," said Mr. Hennessy, "Tiddy Rosenfelt is right. A fellow that writes books f'r childher ought to write th' truth."

"Th' little preciouses wudden't read thim," said Mr. Dooley. "Annyhow, th' truth is a tough boss in lithrachoor. He don't pay even boord wages, an' if ye go to wurruk f'r him ye want to have a job on th' side."

RUBBER TAPPING

The following may be of especial interest to Honolulu in regard to the experiments that have been going on lately in the tapping of rubber trees:

Various experiments have been carried out during the last few years in Ceylon and Malaya to determine the most satisfactory and economical method of tapping rubber trees. During 1906 groups of 40 trees were tapped, mornings only, on single and full herringbone methods, during 25 days. In groups of single cuts 1,216 and 1,823 fluid ounces of latex were obtained; in the full herringbones 1,703 and 2,816, and 3,385 ounces of latex were obtained, giving a total of 154 pounds of dry rubber. The trees averaged 37 3-4 and 38 3-4 inches. There was a period of rest of four months given the trees, and the average gross yield per tree was 2 pounds and 4 3-4 ounces.

In a trial of spiral tapping on a tree girthing 112 inches, from the first-period tapping 531 fluid ounces of latex was obtained, giving 9 pounds of rubber; from the second-period tapping, one month later, 433 ounces of latex gave only 4 pounds and 15 ounces of rubber. It can not be too strongly pointed out that too frequent or prolonged tapping is injurious and only produces inferior rubber. In Brazil rubber trees are only tapped for one period of the year, doubtless owing to the country being flooded. The long interval of rest may represent well-matured or well-oxidized caoutchouc, and partly explains the preference for Brazilian rubber.

HOPE FOR THE SEASICK

Future possibilities of controlling the rolling of ships at sea, not hitherto approached, were opened up by Sir William White, K. C. B., at the closing meeting of the Naval Architects' spring session in London, says the Australian Star. Sir William White has been experimenting with the gyroscope, invested by Dr. Schlick for steadying ships. The gyroscope does not claim to have altogether cured sea-sickness, but (as Professor Lambert said), from having been received as a beautiful theory that it would fail in practice, it has become a proposition so practical that its use might possibly have averted the disaster to the Berlin. In giving the result of his experiments since Dr. Schlick brought the gyroscope before the institution in 1904, Sir William White explained that the principal part of the apparatus was a large and heavy flywheel, which, when running, tends to keep the ship in a vertical position. Sir William thought that it would be advisable to proceed wisely in using the gyroscope, and to begin with yachts and passenger steamers employed on coasting and cross-channel services. In such vessels the effect of the gyroscope would be of great advantage. Sir William reported remarkable steadiness could be assured by the installation of the apparatus.

A VOLCANO SERMON

"I held my tongue and spake nothing: I kept silence, yea, even from good words; but it was pain and grief to me. My heart was hot within me, and while I was thus musing the fire kindled; and at the last I spake with my tongue." Psalm xxxix, 3-4.

David was probably a reticent man! He had been up to the Volcano; was dee-lighted; he wanted his friends to know about it, but he kept silence, yea, even from good words. Buckland wired that Kilauea was in eruption; David couldn't stand it; "the fire kindled" and he spake. The chances are that he said "Go straight to the Henry Waterhouse Trust Co. and get one of the FIFTY-DOLLAR excursion tickets for the Volcano, covering the round trip, one day at Hilo, and eight days at the Volcano House. It is a snap.

Laupahoehoe People Celebrated Fourth In Splendid Style

(Special to Bulletin)

Laupahoehoe, July 5.—The greatest celebration ever held in Laupahoehoe took place on the Fourth. It was the day of days in Laptown. It would hardly be surpassed by any other of its kind on the Islands. A fine program was rendered. There was a large crowd that will be hard to duplicate in the future. About 600 to 800 people were present and from observations of the happy faces everyone of them was enjoying it to the utmost.

A little before sunrise a salute of twenty-one guns (cannon salutes) opened the day. The Stars and Stripes slowly and gracefully rose to the tunes of the bugle over the athletic field. The roars of the cannon were heard in the surrounding country for miles and miles. It reminded one of the days of Port Arthur.

At 8:30 a. m. a juvenile baseball game was played. Two teams, the "Sure Kela" and the "Dreadnaught", composed of boys from the Laupahoehoe school, attracted the attention of the people. The game ended with a defeat of the Dreadnaughts. The score stood 6 to 9 in favor of the Sure Kelas. A bottle of soda water was given to every player making a home run. It was a splendid game, the boys showing some talent in the game. After the game the boys enjoyed themselves by emptying four dozen soda water bottles.

FOURTH OF JULY PARADE AT LAUPAHOEHOE

Immediately following this was another game of baseball between the Laupahoehoe team and the Hilo Boarding School team. The Laupahoehoe team was the victor, the score being 10 to 11. Following is a summary of the game and line-up:

Laupahoehoe team—D. Eleneke, p.; J. Akiona, rf.; E. K. Simmons, c., (manager); John V. Marciel, cf., (Captain); Thos. Nahiwa, 2b.; J. Keoni, ss.; Joe Kanaiu, 1b.; Geo. Tucker, 3b.; W. Kittel, lf.

Hilo Boarding School Team—Geo. Lucas, c.; Jeremiah Malnoy, p.; Jas. Lacha, 2b.; Peter Eldarto, lf.; Wm. Lacha, 3b.; Chas. Keanaloa, ss.; Wm. Kamoanaela, cf.; Rob Kahele, rf.; Jas. Mattoon, 1b., (Captain).

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
H. B. S.	0	5	0	2	0	1	0	2	0	—10
Laupahoehoe	2	0	1	0	2	1	0	5	*	—11

A fine luau prepared for all was awaiting to receive the crowd after the ball game. A large lanai made of palm leaves had been erected in the school yard by the faithful Hawaiians of the town. The best of food was served, and the entire crowd was cordially invited.

After the luau there was pa-u riding. It was a grand sight. As this was proceeding the school children, numbering almost 200, assembled on the school grounds at the call of the bugle. Salutes to the Stars and Stripes were performed, the bugle being played, and the exercises were admired by all who witnessed the occasion. "Red, White and Blue" and "The Star Spangled Banner" were sung by the school. Much praise is given to John V. Marciel, the principal of the Laupahoehoe school, for his aid in making the parade a success. Mr. E. K. Simmons was grand marshal. At 2 p. m. the parade took place, the line of march being formed on Landing street. At the head was Simmons, the grand marshal, followed by the police force, the school flag bearers, bugler and drummer, school children, pa-u riders, horses, carriages, etc. The greatest patriotism was shown by everyone. The procession was successfully conducted. After an hour's parade the procession ended by a halt in the baseball field.

Among the most interesting features of the day was the decorated carriage in which sat Mrs. Giberson and Rev. Linsley. It was prettily finished in red, white and blue. This took the prize for the best decorated vehicle.

A horrible also appeared which took the crowd by surprise. It was the "Old Woman and Her Pig," acted by Mrs. J. V. Marciel. She indeed puzzled the crowd for a while, and it was only her features that showed the people who she was. She was seen driving a little pig. She took the prize for the horrible.

Soon after the parade, sports were held, being opened by a 100-yard dash for boys and under 16 years. Alfred Awong was the winner. Then followed a similar race, free for all, which was won by Willie Kamelamela. The sack race for boys was won by Geo. Moses. Thos Nohiwa won the free-for-all sack race.

A potato race for girls was also held and Maria Tavares came out victorious.

The wheelbarrow races were won by Willie Kittel and D. Eleneke and Paul Nobriga and A. Ignacio.

A basketball game which was much admired was played between teams selected from the pretty girls of the gulch and the vicinity.

Jas. Lealia won the shot put, putting an 18 pound shot 36 feet.

Arthur Horner showed his strength by throwing the 17-pound hammer a distance of 60 feet 2.4 inches.

An obstacle race was started in which many entered. The course was over a quarter of a mile. This was the race of the day. The runners had to jump over seven stone walls, two fences, through rough pastures, and near the end sit down to eat a dry cracker, and then had a crawl through three barrels, and run a stretch of fifty yards to the end.

Six donkeys entered the donkey race, which was won by Alfred Awong's donkey. The top of the greased pole was reached and the prize secured by Alfred Awong.

In the evening the interest of the spectators was fixed on a fine tug-of-war pull held between the Road boys and the Fishermen. It was a very hard pull and the Road boys proved to be the victors.

Another fine luau in the school yard brought the people together once more soon after the sports were over, and the spacious lanai was well filled. The luau was the largest ever given in this town and everyone ought to be proud for having such a fine day. The luau continued till dark.

Fireworks then commenced. This lasted over an hour, and it was such a grand affair that I consider it equal to any given in the eastern cities. Red, white, blue and green bonfires along the shore illuminated the gulch of Laptown. Hundreds of sky-rockets whizzed into the atmosphere, "bringing into view all the spirits of heaven," as one said. "Even St. Peter could be seen with the golden key at the gate."

Head Luna McCubbin and Bookkeeper Daingerfield of Ookala attended to the cannonading, the two gunners proving their skill by rattling to pieces only four window panes from a neighboring house.

The pleasures of the day were wound up by a grand ball given in the Laupahoehoe school house. The ball room was beautifully decorated with green, bunting and flags. The dance ended long after midnight.

Officers of the day:

Judges and Starters—Jno. V. Marciel, Yabo and C. L. Daingerfield.

Decorating Committee—R. Hutchison and ladies.

Floor Manager of Dance—Guy Duckworth.

NEW PHELAN BUILDING

Examiner: James D. Phelan has planned for his gore lot, at the junction of Market and O'Farrell streets, the costliest building for which a permit has been asked since the great fire, the estimate being $1,500,000. In the application for the permit, just filed, it is stated that the new structure is to be eleven stories high, with a steel frame and walls of reinforced concrete. It will be of Class A construction throughout. The architect is William Curlett and Mahony Brothers have the contract for doing the building.

CASTLE PICTHES TODAY

Al. Castle, the Harvard University pitcher, will be on the mound for the Punahou team today and the fans are looking forward to a treat. Bob. McCorriston will be on the receiving end. Bob. has not been behind the bat this season and too much cannot be expected of him.

The games today are of special interest, as the Saints, Diamonds and Kams are tied for first place in the second series and they must all get up and hustle to see just which will come out on the top of the heap. There will certainly be a shifting of positions today.

The Saints are the favorites for this series and in the event that they win there will be no play-off.

The games scheduled today are:
Saints vs. Kams, 2 p. m.
Puns vs. Diamonds, 3:45 p. m.

CRICKET AT MAKIKI

One of the best cricket matches played this season will take place this afternoon, when the Honolulu Cricket Club and the cable-ship Restorer get together on the Makiki grounds. This is the second match between these two clubs, the former going to the cable-ship boys. The local lads think that they can turn the table on the cable cricketers and are going to put in the very best team that they can get together.

The local team will be composed of the following players: Morse, Beardmore, Maclean, Fiddes, Jordan, Cape, Withington, Stevenson, Harwood, Hatfield and Grant.

GUN CLUBS NEW QUARTERS

The local gun club is having a swell room fitted up at the Kakaako traps and the boys will hereafter have a fine place to spend their time while they are not shooting. It is expected that the new quarters will be opened a week from Wednesday, at which time a smoker and dinner will be given by the club to all members and their friends.

After the new apartment is complete the club will hold their regular shoots.

YALE'S SCHEDULE

In Yale's football schedule for this year "Penn" State has been dropped, and Washington and Jefferson and Villa Nova are to be played for the first time. West Point is to be played two weeks earlier than usual. The schedule:—October 2, Wesleyan at Yale Field; October 5, Syracuse at Yale Field; October 9, Springfield Training School at Yale Field; October 12, Holy Cross at Yale Field; October 19, West Point at West Point; October 26, Villa Nova at Yale Field; November 2, Washington and Jefferson at Yale Field; November 9, Brown at Yale Field; November 16, Princeton at Yale Field; November 23, Harvard at Cambridge.

BETTER TO DROP THE BALL

There are times when it is better to drop a ball than it is to hold it. Several years ago an outfielder in the National League lost a very important game by making a remarkably long running catch of a long foul fly near the fence. If he had dropped the ball his team might have had a chance to win.

That sounds queer, doesn't it? It is sound common baseball sense, however, and here is the answer:

There was a runner on third with only one out and one run was needed to win. By catching the long foul the fielder allowed the runner to wait on the bag until the ball was caught and then score, as you see done every day. If the fielder had allowed the foul fly to drop out of his hands or had not gone for it, there would have been no trouble, as the runner could not advance on a foul which was not caught. The very fact that he had to run a long way for the ball made it impossible to recover and thrown to the plate in time to catch the runner.

It takes a ball player with quick judgment not to go after one of these fouls, as it is his natural impulse to try and catch the ball.

TENNIS COURTS

An interesting point has arisen in connection with the annual international tennis tournament for the Dwight F. Davis trophy that has heretofore been altogether overlooked. It is the question of the playing surface for the matches, which in America and England has always been of grass. The point now raised is that there is nothing in the Davis Cup provisions regarding the playing surface, and if the trophy ever goes to the Continent the challengers from the United States and England will be at a great disadvantage on the hard courts, which are universally used there.

The point is of more than passing importance at the moment, because it is understood that previous challengers for the Davis Cup, like France and Austria, have been partly influenced in their decision not to take part in the international competition this summer by the fact that the grass court is to them an unknown quantity, and that they cannot expect to compete on equal terms with countries accustomed to the grass surface.

There is legitimate support for this plea. Courts and conditions on the Continent certainly are in many respects distinct from courts and conditions in America, in England or in the colonies, and it is only natural that players familiar with the first should find themselves handicapped when made to adopt the second, and while the same disadvantage is felt by the grass court players who patronize Continental tournaments there is not the same degree of embarrassment—in the first place, because temperamentally the touring Anglo-Saxon is more capable of, adapting himself to his new surroundings, and, second, because greater familiarity has brought greater knowledge.

MILLIONAIRE FIGHTER

Joe Rogers, Tom O'Rourke's protege and highly touted by the veteran manager as the coming champion of the world, made good in New York last week. He opposed one Jack Kelly and won in a canter. He will be pitted against easy marks for the next few weeks in order to gain experience, says O'Rourke, and will then be sent against the top-notchers.

It was discovered after the battle that the fighter that opposed Rogers was not using his right name. He proved to be the son of a wealthy business man and extensive property owner, and was also a graduate of the academic department of Yale. His name is Charles Fox and his appearance in the ring created a sensation in New York. He ran for County Sheriff on the Democratic ticket at the last election and was defeated by a very close margin. He sits in the councils of his party on all important matters and has been a very liberal contributor to every campaign for the past six years.

Fox is the sole heir to his father's estate, which is valued at close to $1,000,000. His many friends say he has the ambition to be champion of the world. For the fight he trained secretly for four months, and only a few of his closest friends knew of his plans.

Fox has been an athlete since his college days and is the proud possessor of the Yale "Y." He is 31 years old, is married and has a family and lives in a fine residence in Fairfield. His defeat was a surprise to his friends, who had wagered that he would put Rogers out before the termination of the ten-round bout. Fox says he will try again and is not dismayed at his defeat. He weights 220 pounds when in fighting trim.

The latest compilation of National averages shows that Harry Steinfeldt of the Chicago Cubs is leading the hitters, with the percentage of .322. Magee of the Phillies is second. Fromme, a Cardinal twirler, is next to the speedy outfielder, while Wagner of the Pirates and Beaumont of the Beaneaters are tied with the percentage of .303. This concludes the list of men batting over the coveted mark.

Two high school students of San Jose eloped recently and were married at Oakland.

CATHOLIC SISTERS AND KUM YEE HONG SOCIETY

Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Kum Yee Hong Society, an eleemosynary institution of the Chinese of Honolulu. The incorporators are Pong Wong, Wong On, Fo Pa Sing, Lee Kwai Chack, Lee Jack On, Chang Yook, Lee Chung, Tong Doo, Chang Kim, Wong Chew, Kam Kom Sing, Yong Hoy, Leong Eat and Lum Kim Fu.

The society, as defined in the petition, is a voluntary association of persons, all of Chinese birth or parentage, * * * for the purpose of aiding, succoring and supporting its disabled, sick and indigent members, and to give relief, care, protection, comfort, assistance and support to deserving, needy, poor, decrepit and imbecile Chinese of all ages, and to assist, aid and help those out of employment to find work, and to seek the promotion of our own and of other Chinese persons' religious and moral welfare in all ways that are proper and whitnin our power, and generally for the purpose of promoting benevolence and friendship among its members."

The Sisters of the Sacred Heart, commonly known as the Catholic Sisters, have applied for a charter of incorporation. The privileges to be granted by the charter include the holding of property not to exceed in value $100,000; the making of by-laws now inconsistent with the laws of the Territory or of the United States; the regulation of the affairs of the corporation, etc. The charter members are Marie Brassier, Clara Vander Auwera, Maria Maury, Josephine Laloue and Eugenie Delaunay.

Mrs. Moore will give her guests on Tuesday afternoon a thorough knowledge of how many different branches of China painting she is now able to give thorough instruction in. She will have on exhibition illustrations of paste, realistic, conventional, semi-conventional, luster and figure painting. The tea and exhibition will be in progress the entire of Tuesday afternoon, 2 to 6 in the library of the Art League building.

AGITATOR WILL LEAVE FOR COAST

Ex-Editor Negoro, a graduate of the Berkeley University, was the guest of honor at a dinner given last night by the local Japanese newspapermen. The dinner was enjoyed under an open-air lanai which stands into the sea. The dinner was typically Japanese and there were a few geisha girls present to while away the monotony of the evening.

"I think after I'm gone from the Territory there will be no other agitator among the Japanese," said Negoro. "I am going to study law in the University of California and expect to graduate in two years' time.

"I am going into quarantine tomorrow preparatory to taking passage on the China. While in quarantine I expect to learn and experience many things which will be a great help to me in the future. If permitted to practice on the mainland, I will return and practice law here in the future."

Those present at the dinner were Editor Mikami and K. Haga of the Jiyu Shimbun, Editor Kimura and Manager Tsurushima of the Honolulu Japanese Chronicle, Editor Soga of the Nippu, Editor Onodera of the Shimpo, Hotel Proprietors Anno, Hamamura and Matsuda; K. Ono, Geo. Yamada of the First Circuit Court, Kameida and a Bulletin representative.

At a regular meeting of the Sons of St. George held at K. of P. hall, July 11, 1907, the following officers were elected and installed for the ensuing term: W. P., J. R. Collins; W. V. P., R. Duncan; W. Sec., A. G. S. Kenway; W. V. Sec., S. Rice; W. Treas., C. A Mackintosh; W. M., S. Heapy; W. Chap., W. C. Roe; I. S., Robt. French; O. M., Jno. Richardson. Trustees—I. L L. Cockett, Dr. Geo. Herbert, R. A Jordan.
