The University Agricultural Experiment Station is in a better position than ever before to render valuable aid and should employ more personnel in its service.

So writes Director J. H. Bumstead in his 1949 annual report, just off the press.

The solicitude of our leaders toward developing experiment stations, to my mind, has reached an all time high. There are numerous examples of cooperation between the University and private institutions and individuals.

Whether or not the results of tests conducted by Kapapala man and Wai'anae Farms, and Wisconsin Agricultural company, and others, have been publicized, the results have been found, in a recent survey that the feeding of resistant feed to cattle has trebled from 1,600 tons in 1941 to 6,000 tons in 1946. The director says.

The University has been given a lot of “kokua” as it goes about fighting to get the measure over HB-216, and it’s been given a lot of “kane” as it tries to help the public’s civil rights. Here’s what will happen if laws are not made more specific in protecting these rights, as the judge in the case against the University of Hawaii’s Solon said.

From the Bronx in New York, from the south west ends of Pages Apple Island and Samson, and from the frozen wastes of Alaska have come requests for the University of Hawaii experimental station.

All but two stations in the Union of the Islands have heard from the University, and many other requests are coming in. In addition, a grant of $25 per month is being made by the Panama Canal company for the University’s research on the disease of Napier grass, but there is much to do and an increase in the budget will bring the station up to speed.

As H. K. Martin surely didn’t leave the twin cities to get after the local police administration, so the staff stations are busy with the same kind of work.

Across the state as well as in all the areas most intimately associated with agriculture, the University has been given a lot of “kane” as it goes about fighting to get the measure over HB-216, and it’s been given a lot of “kane” as it tries to help the public’s civil rights.
