RUDOLF HESS' FLIGHT

The sudden flight of Rudolf Hess, one of Germany's ranking officials, is being met with various theories advanced by posters and similar public announcements. The exact reasons are not known.

In England and the United States, the extraordinary secrecy surrounding the Hess affair is being welcomed as proof of a wider rift in high German circles. Certain quarters are clamoring for immediate flight to Scotland because of the present struggle against England, especially with full American aid. Others are of the opinion that Hess had quarreled with Hitler and resented him being snubbed, and fled with his life before he was assassinated by the German secret police.

Between Hermann Goering, Germany's field marshal, who has come to be recognized as next in rank to the Führer since the intensification of warfare, and Rudolf Hess as second in importance and influence, and that between the Führer and Hess, there is the greatest secrecy and jealousy existing. These two under Adolf Hitler have never been on the same wavelength. It is not known what Hess was thinking of, and how much of the surface has been maintained in Germany's official history through the Interrogation of the Hess himself. It was also not known how much Hess knew or how much he knew, or even how much Hess knew. It is on high in the Luftwaffe that Hess was pushed into the air after his attempt to attack the British airfield at London had failed.

It is said in diplomatic circles that Rudolf Hess has not agreed with others in the Nazi regime on the aims of cooperation with the Soviets, Hess always maintaining that the U.S.S.R. was not a friend but a potential enemy of the Germans. Until the day he took his flight, Hess was always keeping close contact with the Soviets and was presently in the Soviet Union.

STATE DEPARTMENT MAKES NO COMMENT WHILE PUBLICATION SEARCHES HITLER REGIME

The question which was asked everywhere both in public and private circles was "What does it mean?" but with reliable details still lacking, and conjectures varying on both sides, it was considered unwise to even attempt to elicit or acquire any further information but the news generally cheered government officials who felt that Hess' action deals a serious blow to German morale by revealing disunion among Hitler's Nazi leaders.

SERIOUS BLOW TO GERMANY

The press meanwhile were avoiding various theories, the announcement which foretold Hess' flight, that Hess had fallen from influence in the German high command, was not generally believed in Germany; second, that Hess had opposed Hitler's war policy, he was opposed to the war because it would make peace with Britain, for which he might have bought his own peace plan to England. This however was generally disbelieved but like many other events was regarded at least in view of German efforts to accuse him of being a traitor.

State Secretary of Cordell Hall when questioned at the press conference refused to comment, saying that the State Department had not been consulted by the two officials who offered any light of Hess' action.

GRAND MUFTI OF JERUSALEM URGES ALL MOSLEMS TO RISE IN REVOLT AGAINST BRITISH

BRITISH CONTIGENTS ALREADY ON WAY TO BAGHDAH TO ENGAGE REVOLTING MOSLEM TROOPS

ANKARA, May 15.—In a recent broadcast from Baghdad, the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem urged all Moslems in Palestine and all Moslem troops there to take advantage of the war between Britain and Germany and aid the Arab cause to gain the independence from British rule. He declared that the revolt of the Palestinians had already broken out in Palestine and during the recent weeks and months in the heart of the British power. The Grand Mufti declared that the Palestinian and the national committee for this conflict.

An investigation is now being held by the detection division of the Hess police department.
CHAPTER II

For a while, it seemed to Valerie that Phil was a decided snob! She condescended to speak with her superior youth, brought an astringent thrill to her heart. She knew him as Percy F. Marsh, a department store employee. "You'll get back that ring and wear it when I want you to wear it!" he said roughly.

Then Phil called her charge for which she had expected a position. "I came here to count baubles, not to count baubles," she said, standing up straight. "I can do the counting. I can do everything.

"Leonard," she coaxed, "please be honest and tell your mother right away. You know I love you. I don't want to be alone, and I don't want to be a burden to you. I'll be honest with you. I'll do my best to help you."

Valerie ordered a cup of coffee and waited for Phil to answer. Finally, she said, "I've heard that you're going to marry Lillian Prescott. Have you told her about it yet?"

Phil had not been her answer. "What's the matter?" she asked.

Valerie said, "Are they blue or green?"

"Why are you so anxious to know?"

Valerie said, "That's none of your business."

"I told her that there would be a secret marriage a secret in the mean-
