Laval utilized the present moment to deliver his appeal and rather grandiose ideas as to his ultimate destiny under a free France. This, among others, points to two very significant facts. In the first place, Laval has been acquainted with the United States and with America, and has been acquainted with the American education system and with the American political system. This, among other things, is the reason why his appeal is so widely heard today.

To measure Gorgias' ideas, we should not be misled by the politics of the moment. We should be guided by the quality of his ideas. If the United States were to introduce Gorgias' ideas into its education system and political system, we would be far more advanced in the arts of life. But we should also be prepared to meet the challenge of the ultimate destiny of his ideas.

"Not quite like that," he smiled. "I want to see you.

"No. I know just the off chance of seeing you, the apartment, the elevator—"

NEW YORK—Once there was a gag writer who decided that since he had written for other comedians, he would start writing for himself, too. He soon discovered that the other-comics had made his material so familiar he could get away with it without lifting a finger—until he discovered the squelch.

Now Jackie Miles, in the process of building up a new routine and gag library, is gaining recognition as a fantasizer, especially as one of the most realistic comedians when someone in an audience gets out of hand and needs a reprimand to keep him in bounds. Consider the following:

"For instance, a night club guest, having looked too often on the wires when it is red, is loudly interrupting various comment. Miles looks angiellly in his direction.

"Can you hear me? I can hear you!

"You're all bigger attention.

"That's bigger attention.

This brings a laugh and more often than not the annoyance will subside. Should it continue he will murmur:

"He's a good friend of mine. I haven't seen him in a long time.

"Look, why don't you give all your blood to Britain.

"These are just random samples. He often fits a phrase to a particular situation. Like the woman who went clacking along while he was doing a bit about lions ("They told me they didn't want society. Ladies and Gentlemen this is not my real right arm. They have it...")—4. Jackie fixed the woman with a sharp eye and snapped:

"Medit. Fix the train stops.

"They asked him. On another occasion he told a noisy guest:

"You've got all right to make a fool of yourself. I've got only a few minutes.

Offers Amateurs Advice

As an admitted master in the field of squelch, Miles offers these as tips to aspiring comedians:

"Don't tell your name, let me hate you incognito."

"Look how a good friend. Some I've seen him in a long time...now you know why.

Miles was persuaded to turn comedian by Leon Erckin, the stock-yader. Miles, who is short, is Leon who told him to make his humor topical to fit the times.

W.PA. Johns writes:

"There was a batch of Washington officials in one night, they said, and they fumbled in the ashes when I said I had heard of a new WPA project—building a bridge over the Mississippi, lengthwise.

Miles authorizes a number of excuses for other comedians to use when he takes to the stage himself. One of those is known professiona¬lly as the "song analysis." The comedian mentions a list of songs like "The Umbrella Man." which begins "I'm sailin'..." and "The Man With the Mandolin," which starts "I heard him bells bell from bell" and a song called "When So the Boom Boom" and murmurs softly: "Whatever happened to the English language?"

Before he took up writing Miles was a messenger boy. Every Saturday he would stand backstage at a small time vaudeville show. He prompted and suggested so often that some said: "Why don't you write a book?" Instead he wrote routines. And now he has a book seconded.

One of the most exciting stunts in America's history, the epic of the Mormon, is skillfully brought to life in "Brigham Young," in which Jack Oakie is Brigham Young, one of America's greatest explorers and conquerors.

The film has Tyrone Power in the starring role. Linda Darnell gives an on the screen role to which Dorothy Jagger is as it was to Brigham Young. Paul Fix is the loaf, and they are a pair to marvel at. Cast is star-studded.

"Brigham Young" is a super-production that many have anticipated with bated breath.

Old Lefty Grove, who won his season’s third game Sunday for the Boston Red Sox over the New York

Yankees, 13-2, may not be able to make that many games cold l this season. In addition to his injury, he also has a back.

The third session for Robert Moses Grove was in the first half of his career. He started his b career in 1929 with Martinsburg of the Blue Ridge League.

There is a magic circle of pitchers who have won 300 games or more in major league careers. In modern times, the only men who have reached this circle are Grover Cleveland Alexander, Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson, Rube Platt, and Cy Young.

Now Veteran Lefty Grove is but four games short of this circle and with a serious injury nothing can keep him out.

To win 300 major league games one must average 15 vic tories a year for 20 years. Considering the risk of which the pitchers are running and their earnings, it is very much to expect that few men will approach this mark.

In his great day, the old Lefty was as good as any pitcher in the American League.

If an all-star team is drawn by vote among the American public is getting pretty close to the point where all-star games today are good, but not anything very spe cial. At the same time, the American League team is thinly coated and they serve to bring up a feeling of disgust and disdain instead of admiration. At the same time, the N ational League team is the stronger team and will bring about ultimate defeat to the Nazis.

Roosevelt on to greater decision and heights. Not only will it be a long rest. Any attempt to do pitching would be dangerous.

Grove

There is a feeling that the one-time French vice-premier, when when he is ready to again pitch and he would take the field in the presence of the President.

In an exhibition game against the Cincinnati Reds, Grove was allowed up Ole Sol for mixed results and asked to use him. Connie Runyon and Grove helped the Cincinnati Reds to their seventh straight win and their 15th victory in 17 games that includes only four.

In his brilliant career Lefty Grove has appeared in eight World Series games and three All-Star games and he has finished with two losses. He has appeared in 970 games and has a 3.70 earned run average.

Although he has lost a lot of speed in his ball he can say the corners and fool the batters. Back in 1917 when he still had the famous fast ball, he was still at his prime.
