Chapter XXXVI

Valerie had been back in Miami Beach only a short while when she began to miss Terry. His absence was hard to bear. Valerie was not used to being apart from him for such long periods of time, and she longed for his presence. She knew that he was enjoying Florida and hoped that he was happy there, but the distance between them was difficult to bear.

Valerie had found a job working as a model for a design house in Miami Beach, which kept her busy and occupied. She enjoyed the thrill of attracting attention and always tried to look her best, even when she was at home. Valerie’s job was to pose in the latest in spectator sportswear or be seated at the races, and she had become quite skilled at it. She enjoyed the challenge of keeping up with the latest trends and always tried to find creative ways to express herself through her wardrobe.

Valerie had been living in Miami Beach for several years, and she had grown to love the city. She had made many friends and felt at home there. However, her heart was always with Terry, and she longed to see him again.

On the morning after he had left her at the hotel, Valerie had spent the night alone. She had called him several times, but there had been no answer. Valerie was worried about Terry and wondered if something was wrong. She had been told to stay at one of the best hotels in Miami Beach, and she had hoped that he would be there. However, she had not heard from him since he left, and she was beginning to feel anxious.

Valerie was determined to see Terry again, no matter what it took. She knew that she would have to do something to bring him back to her. She had a plan, and she was determined to carry it out.

Dressing Dressed

From the story, it is clear that Valerie was determined to see Terry again. She had a plan, and she was determined to carry it out. She was willing to do whatever it took to be with him again, even if it meant leaving Miami Beach and coming back to New York.

THAI CUTS EXPORTS OF RICE TO SAFEGUARD HOME SUPPLY

BANGKOK (UP) — Thailand would suffer a severe shortage of rice this year if importers were permitted to fulfill commitments to foreign buyers, officials announced here.

This year's small exportable surplus of rice made it necessary for the government to control its export to safeguard the domestic supply, it was said.

After automatically donating 200,000 long tons to foreign business quarters which had been forced to purchase in June, exports were previously suspended by Shigeto Tani, the minister of trade, last week, on the recommendation of the Ministry of Finance. Thus, Thailand declared that it would stand second and third on the list of importers.

Moreover, officials announced that the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce is taking all appropriate steps to control the export of rice to foreign countries, and that the country would export only 500,000 tons of rice in those countries.

Thailand Rice

Thai rice growers have been supplied with sufficient rice for the current season.

By far the greatest quantity of rice was produced in Thailand.

The export of rice from Thailand this year will be limited to 500,000 tons.

The government has recognized the need to control the export of rice to foreign countries, and that the country would export only 500,000 tons of rice in those countries.

The government would insure a fair distribution to maintain "all rice growers in this state," Mr. Yudhakich, announced that the government would advance rice to foreign countries, and that the country would export only 500,000 tons of rice in those countries.
