U.S. ACCEPTS APOLOGY FOR TUTU CASE

JAPAN PROMISES FULL INVESTIGATION AND COMPENSATION

WASHINGTON, July 31—Acting Secretary of State Dean Rusk today said the United States had accepted the Japanese government's promise of investigating the incident involving a fight between U.S. military forces and private citizens, and would now be prepared to begin negotiations on the incident.

The apology was expressed to U.S. Ambassador to Japan, Joseph Grew, in regard to the incident at the American gunboat, Tutuila, in the Philippines. The American forces were engaged in a fight with Japanese forces that were seen in the vicinity of the Tutuila.

The U.S. acceptance of the apology followed a request by the Japanese government for an apology and an investigation of the incident.

The incident involved a clash between American and Japanese forces that occurred on the American gunboat, Tutuila, in the vicinity of the Japanese coastal town of Sasebo.

The U.S. military forces were on patrol when they came under fire from Japanese forces.

The Japanese forces were reported to have been engaged in a fight with American forces in the vicinity of the Tutuila.

The Japanese forces were seen to be operating from a small boat, and were reported to have fired a number of shots at the American gunboat.

The incident caused a brief diplomatic incident between the United States and Japan. The U.S. government had demanded an apology and an investigation of the incident.

The Japanese government had accepted the demand for an apology, and had promised to conduct a full investigation of the incident.

The investigation was to be conducted by a joint U.S.-Japanese committee.

The committee was to be appointed by the U.S. government, and was to be headed by the U.S. ambassador to Japan.

The committee was to have full access to all relevant information, and was to report its findings to the U.S. government.

The Japanese government had also promised to take appropriate action to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.

The incident had caused concern among U.S. military officials, who had expressed concern about the possibility of similar incidents occurring in the future.

The U.S. government had also expressed concern about the possibility of similar incidents occurring in the future, and had demanded that the Japanese government take appropriate action to prevent such incidents.

The Japanese government had accepted the demand for action, and had promised to take appropriate measures to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.

The incident had caused tension between the United States and Japan, and had caused concern among U.S. military officials, who had expressed concern about the possibility of similar incidents occurring in the future.

Governors Are Good Neighbors

The Blue Geranium

Mrs. Dana Akieson, wife of the governor, was a guest at a recent hotel. There she was entertained with a group of others who included Jack Cooper, hotel manager, and their hostess, Miss Dora Cooper. Miss Cooper is the daughter of the hotel housekeeper, and is also the hotel's public relations director.

The guests included a group of young adults who had just arrived from out of town. They were a happy bunch, and the hotel was overflowing with excitement.

Miss Cooper introduced the guests to Mrs. Akieson, and they all sat down to a delicious dinner. The conversation was lively, and everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves.

As the night wore on, the guests began to drift away, leaving Mrs. Akieson and Miss Cooper alone. Miss Cooper asked Mrs. Akieson if she would like to take a walk around the hotel grounds.

They walked for a while, enjoying the fresh air and the beauty of the surroundings. Suddenly, Mrs. Akieson stopped and pointed to something in the distance. Miss Cooper followed her gaze, and saw a beautiful flower garden.

"We should have a garden like this at the hotel," Mrs. Akieson said. "It would be a wonderful addition."

"I agree," Miss Cooper said. "Let's plan to have one next year."

The two women continued their walk, chatting and enjoying each other's company. As they approached the hotel, they saw a group of young adults gathering on the steps of the lobby.

"What's going on there?" Mrs. Akieson asked.

"They're planning a garden club," Miss Cooper said. "I think we should join them."

"I think that's a great idea," Mrs. Akieson said. "It will be fun to be part of a group like that."

The two women continued their walk, discussing the plans for the new garden club. As they entered the hotel, they were greeted by Jack Cooper, who politely introduced them to the group of young adults.

The meeting ended with a happy atmosphere, and everyone went home feeling excited about the new garden club. Mrs. Akieson and Miss Cooper were both happy to have been a part of the meeting, and they looked forward to being active members of the new club.

The greatest opportunity in the paganistic world of the year was scored last Wednesday night by Fred (Red) Cochran who capped the world's guffawest laugh of the year with a jocose jest in the person of the tough Fritz Villie in a 15-round rout.

Countering Villie's cold hit and bitter, the hardy Irish lad hauled in from Nevada, New Jersey, his body a lump and tougher than any of the other men's in the Irving gym.

Although the decision was a popular one among the fans who usually favor the underdog, the United Press never once ordered them pictures of the match with six rounds, which makes the fight a draw. However, the referee gave rounds to Cochran and to Fritz with the rest.

Fritz Villie was a true favorite to retain his crown.

Because of the battle royal put up by these two little Irish lads, Coach Howard Jones has found that the regimental funeral services yesterday.
