SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE SESSION—A PARAMOUNT NECESSITY

We agree with the editorial opinion of the community that the 1941 session was unusual in that ever before in the annals of the territorial legislatures. It did not trifle, and ended in a bomb. It culminated over treacherous tidings its principal importance. During the last days of the session the legislative body in Seattle suspended the 14 and 15 that were unable to work on the $870,000 bill, a piece of legislation especially timed in time of war.

Now, because of its failure the U.S. department of justice has interfered by a bill for congressional action. The bill provides for granting the franchise to the Panama Canal Company, a franchise to the New York and San Francisco Railroad Company, and a franchise to the Panama Canal Company.

Mr. H. C. Moore, who was not a sovereign state, but a territory, has a more territory under the control of Congress. The Congress of the United States can legislate for the territory, or she can legislate for any territory included in it, if she so deems necessary. Fortunately for the Congress, the United States has not yet legislated for that territory.

We believe that the United States is now needed, however, in view of the heavy pressures on Congress. A WEEK'S NERVOUS TENSION arthritis Kay was going to have a nervous day. She and Joel had settled in the room, but she suddenly burst out sobbing.

"What's the matter?" Joel asked.

"It's Markham! I can't stand it anymore. I have to go back to New York." Kay's eyes filled with tears.

"But why? You just got here. What's happened?" Joel had never seen Kay so upset.

"He... he's armed his men. He's going to kill them all.

"That's terrible. But why?" Joel was equally shocked.

"I don't know, Joel. I just know that I have to stop him. I have to act quickly. I'm hoping that the Army will come to the rescue. But I can't wait any longer. I have to take matters into my own hands."

"Kay, you can't do that. You'll be putting yourself in danger."

"I have no choice, Joel. I have to try."

"Then let me help you. I'll do anything to stop Markham."

"No, Joel. I have to do this alone."

"Kay, be careful."

Kay left the room, her face set in determination. Joel was left behind, his heart heavy with fear for his friend.

THE END.

COMMENTS ON PRESENT CRISIS

TOKYO, Aug. 7.—Tohoku Suzuki, well-known editorial commentator for the Yomiuri Shimbun writing in the Aug. 7 issue of that paper, has made a statement which is of great importance to the Japan-American relationship, and has expressed his view of the present and future crisis.

Suzuki says that the United States does not want to make a war, and if there is anything like a war, it is Japan which will cause it. He says that it is necessary for Japan to make up its mind to face the possibility of war, and that Japan must be prepared for it. He also says that Japan must be prepared to face the possibility of war, and that Japan must be prepared to face the possibility of war.
