PHONETIC SPELLING

Phonetic spelling, which means spelling according to how a word sounds, has been under consideration by educators, teachers, and groups sponsored by the Federal government. It has been tested by the U.S. government, but so far it has made little progress in this country.

This spellings are not spelled as they sound, that more hasn't been done to simplify it.

The change to simplified spelling would be an easy one. Phonetic spelling, "which means spelling according to what a word sounds," may be necessary after a time, when the people in the United States have learned to speak correctly.

TIME FOR READING

Trying to keep in touch with what's going on in the world today is a full-time job. By quickly scanning a newspaper every day, or listening to radio shows, and reviewing the world's news in a week magazine, you can have a fairly good idea of what's going on. But how do we get to the point where we can understand what's going on? To begin with, we must consider what we have read.

We must consider what we have read, and then consider what we have heard. We must consider what we have heard, and then consider what we have seen. We must consider what we have seen, and then consider what we have done.

We must consider what we have done, and then consider what we have said. We must consider what we have said, and then consider what we have written.

We must consider what we have written, and then consider what we have thought. We must consider what we have thought, and then consider what we have felt.

We must consider what we have felt, and then consider what we have experienced. We must consider what we have experienced, and then consider what we have learned.

EDUCATION FOR DEMOCRACY

It would make an interesting study for some education allergens, to look into how we have heard a word of the all children who enter the first grade of school this year and see how many will drop below the average for their age in any school.

WASHINGTON (UPI)...The world's largest agricultural nations—the United States, Argentina, Canada and Australia—are being considered by government economists as a potential nucleus for an international cooperative farm bloc which would help feed the starving millions expected to follow the war. Officials here anticipate a similar post-war European bloc.

Economists here are studying preliminary plans for establishing such a bloc. While the war continues it would help the British blockade the Axis by shifting food to Europe; after the war, in event the Axis is not eliminated...

The four great farm nations have a virtual monopoly on the world's surplus food supply—wheat, maize, mutton wood and hides—as well as countless minerals.

Another feature of such an international cooperative farm bloc would be to help feed, the starving millions expected to follow the war. Officials here anticipate a similar post-war European bloc.

AEGEAN ECONOMY HIT

Argentina's economy has been virtually wrecked by the war. Formally, it sold most of its wheat and meat to Great Britain, but Britain had recently agreed to sell Argentina and Liverpool now are in the north Atlantic carrying munitions from the United States.

Government economists said that regardless of the war's outcome such a bloc of farm countries would be an excellent idea. It would be established as a farm bloc.

ARGENTINA ECONOMY HIT

The United States, with 390,000,000 bushels of wheat already in hand and another 150,000,000 being produced at home, has the world's largest stock of wheat.

Another feature of such an international cooperative farm bloc would be to help feed, the starving millions expected to follow the war. Officials here anticipate a similar post-war European bloc.

The project being studied, it was said, might fit with the administration's reported plans to wage an all-out economic war against the Axis in this hemisphere. An arrangement for interchange of farm products, it was said, might help the United States in the event of an all-out war against the Axis in this hemisphere.

Britain, as the British blockade the Axis by declining to ship food to the Axis nations, is expected to follow the British example. The Axis is already operating a limited food bloc and the Axis has been operating a limited food bloc.

The plan for apportioning world wheat markets was scrapped at the outbreak of the war.
