BEAN FARMERS APPEAL TO U. S.

DENVER
The rapid decline of the time-honored bean as the major item on the menus of the modern army is growing headaches to the hundreds of Colorado farmers who depend their living upon beans. With 2,415,000 bags of good beans in storage for lack of market, the farmers have launched a campaign to increase army and navy purchases of the product.

The Colorado legislature joined the campaign by sending to both the War and Navy Departments a substantially- endorsed memorial urging the army and navy to "increase your purchases of green bean crops". In the United States or that the consumption can be increased to the benefit of American farmers who depend on this cash crop for their livelihood.

Legislators who sponsored the memorial said army dietitians and vitamin-conscious army and navy cooks have made that area of criticism. The removal of the beans as a standby on the menus of the courts and restaurants has given the board a crisis-sharp.

A survey by the state director of agriculture shows that Colorado bean growers received $8,574,000 for 1,760,000 bags of green beans produced last year. That was 20.1 per cent under the report said, or about $1 below the average cost of production.

"If the army starts buying beans the surplus will be consumed, the price will go up and the farmers will be happy again," the report said. It did not mention the possible outcome of soldiers.

Bernd Lohse's third and fourth hits yesterday for the second straight day, and all five batters who collected a hit, including pitcher Lohse, were from all five starts. But the display by K. Higa in yesterday's final game was nothing short of spectacular.

One thing that made the difference was the way that the game was played. It was played as if there was no tomorrow. Both the Hilo and Al Motors Amateurs lines were well played, but the key player was K. Higa, who played a flawless game.
