LADY ON A HIGH HORSE

JOSEPH CUIOWICK

When Charles and his grand- father, Major Charles Charters, president of the Hawaii Mainichi, arrived at the airport to see his son, the Editor-in-Chief, he was a little out of breath. Charles Charters is a busy man. The Editor-in-Chief is less so. He's talking over two-way wireless telephone.

"What becomes of what the Major loaned you?"

"It's what I've been talking about. I've been trying to get in touch with the Major's friends who have advertised for their services."

"Sit a pond old Steve Hooker found me and brought me to your house."

"He's a friend of mine."

"I'll speak to the Major again."

"That's true."

"I can't help but remember his kindness to me."

"In a way."

"I can't do much more, but I can do something."

"Why do you want me to help you, Jim?"

"It's what I can, but I can't do much more."

"I get half. What I can't use of my apples, I sell at town."

"I don't know why the bulk of the land isn't used."

"It was then I decided there must be something wrong."

"It's what I was wondering."

"I think it's the land isn't used."

"Why do you think so?"

"I don't know."

"Then I knew there must be something wrong."

"I don't know what it is, but I know there must be something wrong."

"I don't know."

"It's what I'm wondering."

DEFENSE CONSERVATION PLAN FOR U.S. SPIRITS INDUSTRY IS SUBMITTED TO ROOSEVELT VETOED BY SCHEINLY CHAIRMAN

LEWIS S. ROSENSTEEL OFFERS OFFICIALS OF GOVERNMENT AND INDUSTRY 8-PONT PROGRAM FOR COOPERATION DURING EMERGENCY

NEW YORK, Aug. 28...A nine-point conservation plan, designed to enable the United States distilled spirits industry to aid the government's emergency defense program and to produce more than $1,000,000,000 annually in taxes, was submitted to President Roosevelt, government officials and members of the industry, by Lewis S. Rosensteel, chairman of the board of Scheinly Distillers corporation, at an announcement today.

The plan is a study of how to effect economies in the essentials of industry's share in national defense—Labor, Material, Yins and Money.

The method of conservation is intended to satisfy the national needs and to save the country, and at the same time to put the distilleries and affiliated business operations of the industry on a permanent and permanent defense basis.

A summary of the plan submitted by Mr. Rosensteel is as follows:

1. A proposal for the planning of distillery production in connection with the defense program.

2. A statement of the industry's ability to provide revenue for federal, state and local government.

3. A number of industries could be saved from the list of industries of steps already taken by the industry on voluntary conservation programs.

4. In the concluding remarks, Mr. Rosensteel said: "The industry has many good points which can be improved and developed to the common benefit of the community."

"Scheinly Distillers Corporation, working to make a start on conservation, already has reduced the number of plants, orders, and has reduced the number of men in the industry."

The document was submitted to the industry pool by Mr. Rosensteel.

The purpose of the plan submitted by Mr. Rosensteel was to aid the government in its efforts to develop a defense industry.

"We have decided, at this time, that certain distillery operations must cease, and we have decided that this time the industry will put its profits to the government for the national defense."

The plan gives the security of our national defense to the people of the United States.

"We have been asked, in the past, not to export alcohol, and the present plan is, in part, to create a suitable and necessary defense industry."
