INTERVENTION IN THE INTEREST OF THE STATE

Historically, the United States has, in the past, maintained a policy of isolation as regards the European diplomatic alignments. Since the Monroe Doctrine, the United States has taken an active role in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere. The Monroe Doctrine stated that the United States would not meddle in the affairs of European countries. However, there have been occasions when the United States government intervened in the affairs of foreign states, whether for the sake of anticipating an attack or for the sake of preventing such intervention. In 1917 Wilson adopted a policy of direct intervention and support for the Allied Powers, and this policy was continued by subsequent American presidents, such as Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, J. Q. Adams and others.

The policy of intervention in the European affairs, and joined the world war on the side of the Allies in 1917. The United States government was determined to maintain the balance of power in Europe, and to prevent the Kaiser from taking over the continent. The United States government was convinced that the Kaiser was planning to conquer the world, and to establish a world empire. In order to prevent the Kaiser from achieving his goal, the United States government intervened in the European affairs, and joined the world war on the side of the Allies in 1917.

$200 AND DOUBLES EGG OUTPUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.--Sept.

31, 1941.

New modern electric equipment saved a dairyman $200 and enabled him to double his egg production with no additional labor.

Chief dairy expert, Dr. Snow, of the California State Veterinary College, visited the Borka dairy on the outskirts of San Francisco last week and stated that the dairyman, Mr. Pelt of San Francisco, has reduced the cost of his operation 60 per cent by the use of electric equipment.

"Before a milking machine was installed on the Peet farm, three maids were employed to do the job in 135 minutes a day. This meant a savings of three maids and a return of $500 a year."

Mr. Pelt's new electric milking machine not only prevents the maids from getting homesick by following the plane, but saves him $500 in two years. This included the amount saved a dairyman $200 and reduced the cost of his operation 60 per cent.

Dr. Frost worked out his procedure for converting the movie profits to cash.

One of the first things which would need to be done was to find out if they have a suitable building in the army. Dr. Frost left the service a year ago and his ideas evolved during the World War. He decided that the solution to the problem of making the army as serviceable as possible was

This photo, from a German source, purports that the Nazi forces are using horses to pull tanks and artillery, which is unusual in some places. Horses are being used in some cases, especially in lesser-developed countries, due to the lack of tanks. Horses are being used to transport troops and supplies.
