Mack, Conley found dead at Obyan Beach

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

The bodies of Galen Mack and Remedio C. Conley were found Wednesday night at Obyan Beach, Public Safety Director Edward Manibusan said Thursday.

Manibusan said in a press conference that a private citizen found the bodies in the boonies about half a mile east from where Mack's light brown Chevy Blazer was parked. The person called the police.

Manibusan said the clothed bodies, which were identified through pictures given to the police by the victims' families, had puncture wounds. However, he declined to specify if the wounds were stab or gunshot.

Bones delivered to newspaper project aids in island's history

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

Pieces of bones of at least two prehistoric human inhabitants of Saipan were found Monday in sand dug from the Hopwood Junior High School campus in Chalan Piao.

Joseph Deleon Guerrero and Diego Camacho, both from the Division of Historic Preservation, found parts of jaws and other skeletal parts in sand delivered to the Marianas Variety by a contractor.

Guerrero said in an interview Tuesday that the sand came from the Hopwood campus where the foundation of a proposed building was being dug.

The age of the bone remains is still to be established through scientific means but Guerrero said it could be about 600 to 800 years old based on artifacts found with the bones. He pointed to the teeth in the pieces of jaw which were free from cavities, stained with betel nut and ground flat on the top. He said the bones were of "at least two prehistoric Chamorros."

Guerrero said existing regulations require construction companies to stop any digging when artifacts or bones are found and to notify the Division of Historic Preservation and to let the latter agency recover the ancient remains before the construction project is resumed.

On the Hopwood project, he said "we could have done a better study of Marianas prehistory" if the discovery of the bones was reported properly.

Guerrero made an appeal during the interview for contractors, specially in coastal areas, to stop diggings or excavations whenever artifacts or ancient bones are found, and to notify the Division of Historic Preservation about the findings.

"We're looking into stricter measures," he said. Violation of regulations regarding destruction of historic properties is currently punishable by a fine of $1,000.

Education planner Juan L. Babauta, who is running in the villages of Tanapag, San Roque and Capitol Hill for a seat in the House of Representatives, expressed support for stricter measures to protect ancient burial sites. "I'm pushing for this," Babauta, who witnessed the collection of bones from the sand delivered to the Marianas Variety, said in an interview.

Tenorio signs budgets; CUC now is funded

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

Governor Pedro P. Tenorio signed a $9.2-million budget Tuesday for the operation of the legislative and judicial branches and the Commonwealth Utilities Corp. in fiscal year 1988.

Public Law 5-44 breaks down the constitutionally set legislative budget of $2.8 million into $720,000 for salaries of nine senators and 15 representatives, $892,000 for the operation of the House of Representatives, $988,000 for the operation of the Senate and $200,000 for the operation of the Legislative Bureau.

The judicial branch will receive $481,700 for operations while the CUC will get $5.9 million.

The first appropriation law for fiscal year 1988 which began Oct.1 allocates $70,000 from the

Manglona says story distorted

Editor's note: because this newspaper believes in "truth in media", we felt the readers should know the following was written by David T. Hughes. because he is most familiar with the subject. It is written in the third-person as if he was interviewing himself.

A Republican candidate for one of Rota's Senate seats, Paul Atalig Manglona, has responded to a story in the Marianas Variety which appeared two weeks ago. He said in a letter to the editor which appears elsewhere in this issue that the October 16 story was grossly inaccurate and "leads me to question your professional competence and personal integrity. . . . "

Manglona said in a copyrighted interview held during Fiesta that he felt that if the United States didn't allow the Commonwealth to manage its' own affairs, then he favored an alliance with another nation. The candidate said in the interview that he felt Russia might treat the people of the Commonwealth better.

See full text of candidates letter beginning on page 4.
Also see Page 2 for sworn statement of witness to interview.

Manglona alleges in his letter to the editor that the comments were made during a discussion in which he and Victor Hocog were heatedly discussing the question of gambling. He said that in addition to he and his opponent, that Hughes and two other Rota residents were present - Tommy Mendiola and Wendy Lusa.

Senate hearing turns into name-calling

By DAVID T. HUGHES
editor

A Wednesday public hearing called by the Commonwealth Senate to hear input on a proposed bill which would give more rights to minority stockholders in companies here turned into a denunciation of Larry Hillblom by the local cable company's president, Lee Holmes.

Despite an early admonition by committee chairman senator Jose Mafnas not to engage in personal attacks, after the first few minutes of Holmes' testimony it was obvious to everyone in the packed hearing room that his prime purpose before the committee was to discredit the island millionaire. Plus, Holmes defamed several members of the legislature - specifically Senators Juan and Herman Guerrero - saying that they "were in Larry Hillblom's pocket."

Editorial Opinion

Are we getting our money's worth now?

The Marianas Variety feels much of the structure damage from Typhoon Lynn may could have been avoided if the Commonwealth's people had been given adequate warning. We depended on the Civil Defense office to warn us, but they didn't. Why should the taxpayers now be asked to pay almost a half-million dollars in 1988 to fund this office of almost do - nothings?

Their warnings come too little and much too late. But they want their money in plenty of time to spend it all year long for the few days we need their high-paid "expertise."

For our tax money we received very little warning of Lynn's approach, and the civil defense's very expensive radio system we paid more thousands of dollars for up on Mt. Tapochau didn't seem to help the islanders much this storm, either.

Once a warning comes in the middle of the night, instead of hours earlier when it should have, it's too late to do much about battening down the hatches. It's very hard to board up and strengthen buildings in 60-knot winds and in the dark!

Plus, the money spent, and the confidence placed in, the emergency warning system by our citizens is also now in doubt because it wasn't even used this time to notify the people that Lynn was headed our way. The excuse? 'We wanted to save the battery power in case we needed it later. . . . "

We feel the time to warn people is BEFORE a storm - not after, and that's what our tax money was spent for - not a public address system to tell people where to get help AFTER a storm!

This newspaper respectfully suggests that the legislature look into the "Lynn-Gate" debacle which surfaced this month. It is quite obvious that something is dreadfully wrong with the Civil defense office and the way they get the information to us when a storm is in the area.

Most of us felt when we went to bed that Sunday night that Lynn was going to pass much closer to Guam and Rota than to us, but sometime earlier in the day the storm changed course - heading straight for Saipan. But, the word was never given to the people of this island until it became evident to even the newest resident that we were in for a good blow.

WHY was the information so slow in coming? WHY was the information not given to the people immediately through local radio stations and cable television?

We also suggest that the practice of the Civil defense office spending precious time on the telephone answering questions from the public is ill-advised. The public should get their information from the local radio stations and from cable (as long as it's on the air.) Much valuable time is wasted answering the same questions over-and-over again on the telephone. Personnel could spent their time keeping the media up-to-the minute on storm location and strength so it can notify all the people at the same time. through the media.

Finally, we congratulate KSAI for taking the initiative and putting in a device to pick up weather radio signals DIRECTLY from GUAM. Station manager Doug Campbell said that he felt the many hours-old information they get from the CD office was not giving the people of Saipan and the CNMI adequate notice.

We agree. Their part-time efforts will do more to keep the island informed for free than our tax dollars have done in the past few typhoons.

Truth in the media

Sworn statement of eye-witness to an interview between one of this newspaper's reporters and Rota Senatorial candidate Paul Manglona

I, Francisco Taga, resident of Sinapolu, Rota, CNMI, hereby swear that I was a witness to a conversation at the Rota San Francisco de Borja Fiesta on Sunday, October 11, 1987 which took place between Senate candidate Paul A. Manglona and the Editor of the Marianas Variety, David Hughes at which time Paul A. Manglona stated that if he was elected he would see to it that the CNMI became affiliated with Russia, and other such statements which were printed in the Marianas Variety.

I further testify that I did not hear him make any remarks in favor of the United States as he has now claimed he stated at that time. The conversation began when Mr. Manglona was expressing his disagreement with the Hillblom lawsuit and continued from that point. At no time did Mr. Manglona backdown on his comments even though I heard Mr. Hughes ask him if he meant what he said and if he wanted the remarks made public. Paul said he wanted the public to know where he stood.

Reasons for political unrest in Micronesia

Political tension in the region has become the subject of discussion in various regional and international forums. I am personally interested in the root cause of all these problems. I have discussed them with people who come directly from Fiji, the Philippines, and New Caledonia.

In Fiji, the coup d'etat was born out of discontentment by locals or indigenous Fijians in seeing their island nation ruled by people whose ancestors come all the way from India. Thus, the coup d'etat became a necessary political instrument in putting notice on the leadership of Indian ancestry that they (indigenous Fijians) want control of their nation and its destiny. It isn't quite a question of economics.

In New Caledonia, the issue isn't really one of economics. The Kanaks have become a minority in the.. homeland. The battle for political control will be a long and arduous journey. The Frenchman will support any Kanak who wishes to partake in his/her own personal and professional development. The Frenchman will also punish (severely) those who attempt disrupting civility for political purposes.

In both island nations, any leader of decency will find himself engulfed in a terrible dilemma. While he must endeavor to foster effective home rule, thee's hardly anything that could be done for Indians who were born and raised among indigenous Fijians nor shipping New Caledonia-born Frenchmen bakc to France the logical thing to do.

To send them back to their alleged mother country is to subject them to all sorts of discomfort that an islander usually runs into

A student reacts to gambling issue

Dear Editor:

Note: This message is not written to have any contradictory impact on any party of the present political system nor will it really express any concern against any particular individual involved in the government. Rather it is writen to express a meaningful, concerning broad words and views of how I see this topic is being handled and taken care of.

How would you feel when something in a community like government doesn't fulfill or meet your needs?.I mean wouldn't you feel frustrated if the person or lets just say the whole government (Rep. & Dem.) that you elected didn't really fulfill what they really have fulfill which you really think is very important and very reflective having a brodd impact upon the community, (public and the people)? In other words because of you, these officials were elected to accomplish and meet the public needs. Now it turned out that these officials (Rep. & Dem.) didn't really make a move on a topic that's very important to the community, and this topic is about the proposed casino gambling in Tinian.

Starting off, I agree very much with the Reverend Bishop Thomas A. Camacho. I agree a lot with him urging the Tinian people to vote aginst the proposed casino gambling in the Island of Tinian. Let's look at it this way. Just imagine how our neighboring island of Tinian would be like if there's a casino.

There will be fancy tempting looking building where there will be fancy, nice, tempting looking machines like roulettes, slot machines, poker machines, poker tables, you name it. Tinian will look like a mini-Las Vegas where people from the islands, Micronesia and perhaps people from the U.S., Europe and other various countreis would come and enjoy the

GET THE POINT ?

A personal opinion column by Variety editor David T. Hughes

All views and opinions expressed herein are strictly those of the writer. They may - or may not - reflect the official editorial policy or opinion of the newspaper.

Most of the time I try to keep this column fairly light. If I can make folks crack a smile or two, then that makes my day. But, on occasion I take off my clown hat and replace it with the green eye shade of a hard-bitten, ink-stained, and angry journalist. This is one of those times.

I am fiercely proud of being an American because of all that nationality entails. Most of all when people in other parts of the world hear the name "American", they envy us because of the freedom we all enjoy. Those freedoms are guaranteed in that wonderful document, the Constitution.

For slightly over 200 years now those few dozen pieces of paper have set forth the premise and laws by which all American live by - and are protected by.

Many of our readers are new Americans and really can't grasp what an honor it is to be just handed a membership in the greatest country on earth. Many of the Commonwealth's residents take their citizenship in stride, but if they had ever been to America and been exposed to the literal millions of people who came through Ellis Island inthe United States' early years struggle to become citizens, then perhaps a greater appreciation for being called "American" would come forth.

The purpose of this column really has nothing to with citizenship - it has to do with the Constitution and how many people in the Commonwealth either through arrogance, ignorance or just plain old stupidity are violating the basic human rights guaranteed in the Constitution. I don't claim to be a lawyer, but I do know when illegal acts are being committed, and as a journalist it is my responsibility to expose them, or at least shine a little light of truth on what are basic facts known to all Americans.

Let's start with something I was told last week that I really couldn't believe because it was so heinous. A man told me that votes were actually being BOUGHT and PAID FOR in some races. I won't say where, but those of you involved know who you are.

It makes me want to puke that anyone would become a prostitute to a politician just for a few lousy bucks. Many good AMERICAN men died on these very islands to guarantee freedom and the right to a free election for you. I just can not fathom anyone agreeing to sell their most precious possession - their vote.

I did some checking and found out that anyone who offers to buy a vote or who sells their vote can be prosecuted under federal laws. George Proctor, assistant U.S. attorney for Saipan, said in an interview that any such attempts to purchase votes should be reported to his office, and anyone who participated in any way would be subject to indictment by a federal grand jury.

The way the scheme was related to me was that the candidates and their supporters would know if their paid-off voter prostitutes actually earned their 30 pieces of silver. A simple code was related to me that would involve marking the ballot choices in such a way that it would show they cooperated.

The information given to me shows the code could be one of several ways:

Other ways which have allegedly been used in the past was writing in the name of "Donald Duck", etc. on ballots to show that the vote slaves cooperated.

All of this is so familiar. The ways are a little different, but the same tactics were used in my beloved Southland in the early 1960's. Many folks went to jail and a lot of politicians were convicted of felonies which made them ineligible to hold public office ever again.

Also, think about the credibility and honesty of someone who would PAY you to vote for them. There is an old saying that one doesn't get something for nothing and no one is going to pay out a lot of money to get into an office unless they think they can make a lot of money swindling the people.

Let's face it, if a politician is willing to give someone cash they will expect to get the money back somehow. . . . . Probably by stealing or cheating you in some way.

The time has come for the legislature to show they do not condone such election-fixing. I respectfully suggest that paper ballots be replaced with machine ballots or election machines.

hospitality of gambling here in the Pacific especially with the place in the tropical areas. Tinian will be filled to the limit with people every now and then, in and out of the gambling building(s).

The lands where people are now living will be used to build the buildings. Now where will these poor people settle when wherever you look North-south, East-West, there will be casino gambling building(s) as well as the casino gambling players? As for me, I won't doubt it for a minute if this people will be disturbed and bothered by the provocation and nuisance of these casino stuffs. It's logical and obvious, isn't it? Now think how the people will be handling this situation and how will they look like? I can almost imagine it right now? So you see the consequences and outcome of this move. It's almost unpredictable, I mean considering what the casino gambling would bring forth to Tinian and its people. It'll be a total new route and a total change. Even now that there isn't any such big business or big things happening there are still problems that are needed to be solved and upgraded. Now there will be a casino gambling if the people favor this action! I wonder how it will be like if there is casino gambling. The people will be running around wild.

In addition, this so called "casino gambling" will create huge, invariable and unexpected problems. problems taht you never think will be brought up. Divorce, disintegration of families, blacklistings on bank, loan, credit debts, selling of properties and valuable things, and unwanted crimes will result which I'm quite sure that it will be likely to result. Now my dear friends back there in Tinian, sit down adn really think about this move. I think this is the biggest decision you have made or will have to make and face in your life. Whatever you decide upon now is and will reflect upon the moment you made your final decision to the future. Now I want to emphasize that if you're going to decide whether to approve or oppose this casino gambling in your lovely island of Tinian, think of tomorrow. Think of the future generations. What impact will it do to these people? Would they be able to face challenges they didn't know would be faced in their lives? Is this what you really want?

Furthermore, I hope that you people, especially the citizens of Tinian, realize what this so called "casino gambling" will do to you.

I also hope taht by reading this message you'll understand what are my views and points. In other words, I hope that by reading this message of mine, you'll really think about it. I pray to God that whatever you decide upon will do you good and that it will benefit you in the end. Lastly, I hope that my point of view reaches yours. Good luck and may you succeed in your endeavor.

No Russians for Chamorro

Dear Editor:

I am proud as a Chamorro and to be a U.S. citizen. To me being a member of the political family of the U.S. is something our leaders had worked for with our best interest in mind. Self-determination of people as an inalienable right is no where to be found in the Russian vocabulary. Of the 300 some years in our islands' history we have been administered upon by various nations. Now that we've attained self-determination, I'm not about to take it very lightly if anyone in our midst, candidate or otherwise, has a notion to align us with the Soviet Union.

Candidate Paul Manglona, I'm happy to tell you that me and my family has withdrawn our support

The Bottom Line

Although much ado has been meade by CNMI politicians about U.S. probes into alleged corruption, it doesn't seem to be a worry to regular folks. Only two have bothered to respond.

Both said they were in favor. One said if federal funds are used or when federal laws are broken.

The other voter said "It seems everything is crewed up. Governmnet employees behave as if it their "right"to be there. raher than a privilege to serve the taxpayers. They serve themselves!

for you in this upcoming election. Whether you had been drinking beer or not doesn't matter to me-what you said came from inside you and I don't trust you anymore. Your statement regarding the Russian and your attack on the U.S. brings back painful memory of what your uncle Sen. Benjamin Manglona mentioned about our island of Rota seceding from the CNMI some years ago upon establishing the Rota Republican Party. If I'm not mistaken, you also despise the presence of the FBI here in the CNMI. Now I understand, with them (FBI) here how can your business continue to make unclear dealings with your father, the Mayor, at the expense of the taxpayers?

You may support Uncle Benji but we support Uncle Sam. We remember the many soldiers who lost their lives on our island shores to allow us to have participation in a Democratic government. We are not willing to give up our freedom and rights to the Russian.

Candiate's story is doubted byRota voter

To the Editor:

It was bad enough that Senate candidate Paul A. Manglona made public statements expressing his desire for a Russian alliance with Rota, but now that he is under attack for his irresponsible comments he has distributed on Rota a letter addressed to Marianas Variety Editor, David Hughes, which is full of distortions and outright lies. He is asking the public to believe that his statements were "distorted" or "misconstrued", and even goes so far as to make claims that he stated a point which he did NOT state according to three witnesses to the conversations between Paul and Mr. Hughes.

Manglona claims that the editor was "influenced" by certain individuals in writing the story. Does Paul really believe that a responsible editor with 25 years of journalistic experience would be "influenced" or risk his career to write an untrue story?

The Facts Are:

Fact No. 1. Paul made statements concerning his desire to align with the Russians in two separate conversations at the Rota Fiesta.

Fact No. 2. Editor David Hughes was present during both conversations and accurately reported the remarks Paul made.

Fact No. 3. There are three other witnesses to verify that Paul made the very statements which were published.

Fact No. 4. These same witnesses did NOT hear Paul make or even allude to the statements or "points" he now claims that he made.

Fact No. 5. The two individuals named as "influencing" or "biasing" Mr. Hughes story did NOT influence or bias either him or the story and did not even know he was going to write it.

Fact No. 6. It was during the second conversation about the Russians which took place late in the afternoon when Paul was interrupted by some of his supporters and Mark Michael and Congressman Hocog were not present during this time.

Fact No. 7. Not only did Paul distribute a desperate, untrue rebutal, but instead of apologizing for his statements he and his uncle, Senator Benjamin T. Manglona have taken this issue to the public at several campaigns and have incited public wrath and hatred against the individual they unjustly claim was "behind" the story's publication.

Fact No. 8. Paul and Senator Manglona have resorted to character assassination and slander as an attempt to cover Paul's scandalous remarks.

Fact No. 9. Three witnesses heard David Hughes ask candidate Manglona THREE times if he meant what he was saying about inviting the Russians to take over and if he could print his remarks. Paul said, "print it. I want the public to know."

Fact No. 10. Paul is unfit to represent the people of Rota and is a liar and is attempting to deceive the public.

We sincerely hope that it's true that Paul Manglona really does "find the communist form of government repulsive" but how do we know if he was telling what he believes at Fiesta or if he was stating what he believes in his rebutal letter? Either he was lying in his letter or lying at Fiesta. Do you want a liar to represent you?

Resident critical of car's purchase

Dear Editor:

It is an insult to the intelligence of the people of Rota that the Mayor blames the Dept. of Procurement and Supply in the illegal car purchase for the Mayor's office. Does he really think that the people are so stupid that we don't understand the improprieties in this matter. His family business benefitted at the taxpayer's expense.

If the Mayor needed a car why wasn't the required bidding process followed to let other car dealers have a chance for the bid? If the car was a present from the Mayor's children to their father then how did the taxpayers end up paying for it? How many other items for the Rota government have been purchased through his family business at a major profit or by circumventing government procedures?

I would like to see the Mayor provide the public with a listing of all purchase orders from his and other departments on Rota which were made to the family business, so that the other businesses here have the opportunity to see where they stand percentage wise in government orders as compared to MID Corp of which candidate Paul Manglona is part owner and Vice-President.

Tenorio OK

Dear Editor:

As promised in my earlier letter, here are prima facie evidence on how Governor Pete P. Tenorio's administration has done right by our government.

From fiscal year 1978 to 1981 (Camacho's administration), total capital improvement programs appropriations amounted to $30,328,821.15. A major portion is covenant funds.

From fiscal year 1982 to 1987 (Teno's administration), total capital improvement programs appropriations amounted to $43,595,775.00. Add Department of Interior grants which Teno received from the Federal Government without Froilan Tenorio's help and we have a grant total amount of $80,158,775. This is not peanuts, but a big guacamole!

The major beneficiaries were health, education, housing, utilities, roads, public safety. These are areas of particular concern to the Republicans.

Moreover, in fiscal year 1986 we had over 270,000 revenue tons of commodities at our harbors; and Teno is committed to improving the ports facilities to accommodate the Commonwealth's tremendous economic growth.

Reported wages and salaries in FY '86 amounted to over $85 million. CNMI citizens are making a lot more money in this regime. Business gross revenues are half a BILLION dollars!

Teno and other Republican leaders took care - and still do - of the needy by providing land, housing, jobs, food and health care. Even though we are supposed to pay for medical services, no one has ever been turned away because of inability to pay.

Teno is forging this government to be totally self-sufficient by 1992. Older independent countries are still relying on Uncle Sam to sustain their economies.

Reader says he has the answer to leaking roof at the power plant

Dear Editor:

I read with great interest in the Marianas Variety about the leaking roof at a power plant in Saipan.

As I receive newspaper from many countries throughout the world, there are many other people that share your problems with leaking or deteriorating roofs.

This problem can be solved by using some recently developed technology in polymer chemistry.

Please find enclosed two samples of elastomeric materials which have been tested (accelerated) 20 years.

These materials are ideally suited for the Pacific Rim area, since there is no cold weather for shrinkage of the material and the white color is to reflect the actinic rays of the sun.

I would hope the roofing and construction people in the region would evaluate and specify these products. I will be happy to work with them.

Respectfully yours,

Senate budget for its minority members, exclusive of senators' salaries. Each minority member in the lower house will receive $30,000 for operations, exclusive of the legislator's salary.

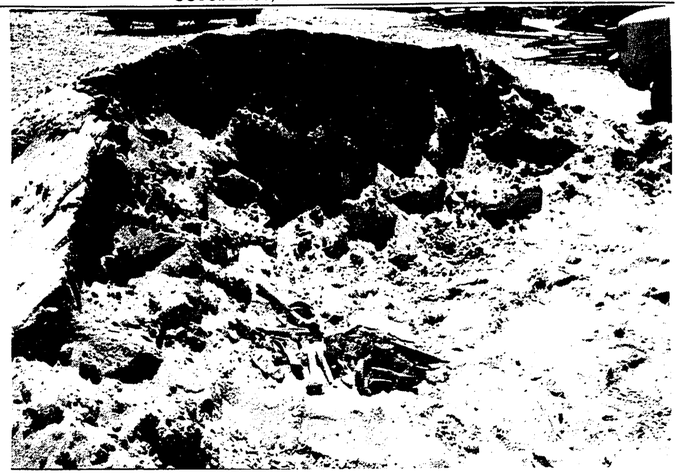
With its own budget, the CUC is expected to complete its takeover of the public utility systems from the Department of Public Works.P.L. 5-44 directs the DPW to transfer to tghe CUC the supervision, construction , maintenance and regulation of all utility services such as power, sewage, refuse collection, telephone, cable television and water.

Tenorio, in his message accompanying the new law, said that he met with CUC and DPW representatives and "was assured that all present employees of the Department of Public Works who will be affected by this Act will be guaranteed continued employment with the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation in the same or comparable positions. Further, their employment will continue without disruption."

P.L. 5-44 also exempts the Legislature from the provisions of P.L. 3-91 which requires that one percent of its funds be contributed to the public auditor's office.

Tenorio also signed Tuesday Public Law 5-45 which provides for the construction of a monument for the memory of people lost at sea, the bodies of some of whom were never recovered. The monument which will be built in Saipan will be known as "Naftan I Tasi" (Tomb of the Sea).

The new law also declares Nov.2 of every year as Ha'anen Naftan I Tasi or Tomb of the Sea Day.



Bones found in construction sand

Dozens of human bones were found in the sands being used to help the Marianas Variety new building expansion. See story on page 1 for explanation of why they were there, but the bones are helping to piece together more of the island's quilt of history.

CDA forbidden to fund govt. projects

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

The Commonwealth Development Authority cannot transfer funds to the executive branch to finance the preparation of a comprehensive development plan, Attorney General Alexandro C. Castro said in a recent opinion.

The opinion, which was also signed by Chief Solicitor Richard Weil and Deputy Attorney General John F. Bichl, was in response to a query by James Ripple, acting special assistant for planning and budget.

The CNMI government is required under the $226-million financial agreement signed with the United States in 1985 to develop a seven-year capital improvement and economic development plan.

CDA, according to the opinion, has no authority to transfer funds to finance the comprehensive planning program. Castro cited the CDA law which specifically prohibits CDA from funding government operations.

CDA Executive Director Rex I. Palacios recalled in an interview last week that the reprogramming several years ago of $3 million in CDA (then the Economic Development Loan Fund) funds was opposed by the federal inspector general. That money is now being repaid by the government through annual appropriations.

Castro, Weil and Biehl said in their opinion that the basic purpose of CDA is"to stimulate the economic development of the Northern Mariana Islands." They said planning is not included in the statement of this purpose and the only planning CDA could do is for its internal operations.

"We conclude that the statute creating CDA does not confer the specific power to engage in CNMI-wide planning, and without such authorization CDA may not so act," the three officials said.

"Since CDA has no statutory authority for comprehensive planning, it may not delegate such authority to any other agency and may not transfer funds for planning purposes," the three added.

U.S. says labor bill not good enough for them

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

A bill designed to reduce the garment industry's dependence on foreign labor has failed to convince the United States Trade Representative of its effectiveness.

"I do not believe that the bill as amended adequately addresses the foreign labor issue," Ambassador Clayton Yeutter of the USTR said in a letter to Governor Pedro P. Tenorio dated Sept.30.

Yeutter, with whom the Commonwealth negotiated for a 100,000-dozen annual duty-free export of sweaters to the mainland, was referring to House Bill 5-147 now pending at the House.

The bill was introduced in April by Speaker Joe R. Lifoifoi and other representatives to require garment factories to hire at least 40 percent of their workers from the local labor market. When it went to the Senate the local labor requirement was reduced to 25 percent. The House did not accept the Senate amendment and referred the bill to a committee.

Yeutter also said in his letter that he does not agree with the Senate amendments. He said: "However, I am concerned about amendments which have been offered in the CNMI Senate. These amendments, as I understand them, would only require 25 percent local labor in garment factories, and allow for a waiver from this provision for certain islands.

Yeutter said the temporary moratorium on new garment factories imposed by the CNMI was encouraging, but "the issue of alien workers continues to be a matter of great concern to us."

"I would therefore urge a solution which would resolve this issue permanently," he said.

The first 120-day moratorium expired Oct. 19 and was extended for another 120-day period through a set of regulations jointly adopted by the Departments of Finance and Commerce and Labor and the Immigration and Naturalization Office.

The three offices, in their joint findings, said 13 garment factories are currently operating in the Commonwealth with others expected to start operations before the end of 1987. They said 65 corporations have been licensed to manufacture garments here.

The joint regulations prohibit the granting of new licenses and the hiring of foreign workers except to replace workers who are being sent home.

JACK MAFNAS AGUON
CHAIRMAN

Hafa Adai !

Election Day is almost upon us, and I'm sure we are all well aware how critically important every vote will be this year, to place in office responsible leaders who will represent the public interest — your interest.

In this respect, I would like to take a moment to share with you some of the key aspects of my political goals and philosophy — positions that are shared by my fellow Democrat candidates:

* I firmly believe Saipan can and MUST have efficient and reliable power. This can readily be achieved by fulfilling the mandate of the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation Act. Before rates are increased for any consumer, every government entity must be metered and pay its utility bill out of its annual budget. The legislature also must consider establishing a fund to help low income families meet their utility bills. Every consumer must be treated equally, paying a bill based on their actual usage of electricity. Meters must be calibrated regularly, so customers are charged neither too little nor too much.

* I continue to be determined to take a comprehensive, multi-faceted, thinking approach to solving our water supply problems. We should not merely dig more wells and pump more (salty) water through leaky pipes, risking our people's health and damage to the island's water table. Even today, six years after I first proposed them, individual household water catchments are still the best means of providing the public with immediate relief from water supply problems while taking some of the stress off the system. Beyond water catchments, systematic review and planned improvement of our water supply and distribution system is required.

* I believe the greatest resource of the Commonwealth is its people, and education is the means to growth and development of this resource. Education excellence must be a top priority in public policy, and it will be the responsibility of the legislature to cooperate with and complement the new Board of Education to be elected this November.

* I am convinced that the economic future of the Northern Marianas is in the private sector. Business growth and investment will create good jobs for our people and revenue to pay the increasing costs of government services and infrastructure. Increase and extension of the minimum wage at this time is consistent with this principle, both to make private sector employment more attractive for our local people and to increase the gross income of persons in the lowest tax brackets.

* I support foreign investment that provides business and employment opportunities or other benefits for our people. At the same time, we must establish laws and policies that ensure foreign investment serves this end, benefiting the average person and not just a wealthy few. Further, we can do so without "scaring off" good foreign investors.

I'd like to express my personal appreciation in advance for your vote for me. I'd also like to request that you support the other Democrat candidates as well, so we will have the strength to implement our program.

Always at your service, I am

Sincerely yours,

HERMAN ROGOLOFOI GUERRERO

The observance of National Employ the Handicapped Week is one of the many activities carried out in partnership among employers, people with disabilities, Governors and committees in a year-round effort to achieve maximum employment of people with disabilities.

To commemorate this week, the CNMI Governor's Council on Developmental Disabilities is sponsoring an awards presentation to express appreciation to employers who have established outstanding programs and records of hiring people with disabilities.

Grand jury off: Proctor says "cases not ready"

By DAVID T. HUGHES
editor

Assistant U.S. Attorney George Proctor said earlier this week that he still has no idea when a much-touted federal grand jury would be empaneled. He also said that he doesn't which panel would be used if and when the grand jury is assembled.

Proctor had said as late as mid-September that a grand jury would be held in mid-October, but he suddenly changed his mind earlier this month, telling a local newspaper reporter that the jury would NOT be assembled.

The former Arkansas U.S. attorney said in an interview earlier this month that his office "just haven't prepared any cases." Proctor said since the GJ "was going to be the first, we want to make sure that we do everything correctly."

He said one reason that his office wasn't ready was because of his relatively short time on the island, and the fact that full staffing has not been achieved. This means that FBI agents and others used in the investigations have not been assigned to the island on a resident basis.

"Hopefully, our agents will be here soon," Proctor said.

Although he wouldn't comment on the question, FBI agents have been very active on Guam and have been investigating and testifying before a grand jury there dealing with alleged corruption within that government.

Also surfacing in the past few weeks has been a $350,000 payment by Matthews and Wright to the Marianas Islands Housing Authority in March 1986. M&W is a bonding company which has been under federal investigation on Guam and in the United States for alleged improprieties in their business dealings.

Proctor also declined to discuss whether the federal government was investigating allegations made by island millionaire William Millard about possible corruption of public officials. Testimony given by the businessman to the Commonwealth legislature this summer showed that he had no direct knowledge of - or had ever been approached by - a public official seeking bribes.

He and U.S. Attorney O'Connor told the legislature they had talked to Millard and found his information very sketchy and second hand.

If a federal grand jury is called before Jan. 1, Proctor said the members of the jury pool which was chosen two years ago would be called. "If we open before then then they will be held over," he said.

If it occurs after Jan. 1. then the new members of the panel recently chosen will serve on the grand jury selection pool, he said.

Roads "damaged" on Rota

Power house leaks, too

By DAVID T. HUGHES
editor

Public works officials on Rota are claiming over a million dollars in damages to the secondary road system on that island because of Typhoon Lynn. A second report shows that the island's new power plant building leaks and water flows onto generation equipment - even during normal rains.

Two reports signed by Charles D. Boddy, resident director of public works on Rota told mayor Prudencio Manglona in the October 19 and 10 documents that there was no damage to main primary pavement roads, but that secondary and village roads had "flooding, washed out and fallen trees. Approximately 100% damages. Roads are totally eroded and needs reconstruction."

Boddy told the mayor in his report that he estimate a cost of $10,000 per mile to rebuild the 109 miles of roads which were travelled extensively daily. Those figures are based on equipment rental costs only "because Rota public works virtually has no equipment."

Although Rota was located farthest away from the storm's center which passed between Saipan and Tinian, they had the most reported damage.

However, it should be noted that some of the worst roads on Rota were located in the business center of Song Song Village before the Typhoon hit and sources on the island say the roads there are no worse than they were prior to the typhoon.

Mayor Manglona was asked about the terrible roads during an interview on Rota at Fiesta time. He told a reporter that the roads were not being repaired in the village "because we are working on the sewer system and it isn't sound fiscal policy to fix a road then tear it up again to lay pipe."

The mayor said he had planned to have the roads fixed sometime in 1988 once the project was completed.

Boddy's second report to the director of public works on Saipan said that Lynn didn't cause any major damage to the island's power system, only some downed trees on lines and feeder stations. Total damage to the lines was estimated at only $1,600.

No actual damage to the power plant was done during the typhoon, according to the report, but Boddy said in a subsequent report that "...a tremendous amount of (rain) water entered the power house from four areas and could have caused some serious electrical damage to the plant. Even during a normal rain the same problems occur."

He said rain comes into the building through ventilation louvers near the roof and "runs directly on top of the main motor control center and directly on top of the auxiliary equipment located throughout the length of the building. Water continues to run through the louvers even though closed."

Water also comes in through other louvers on top of the building and drains directly on top of the starter.

Boddy suggests that immediate modifications to the louvers be made by the contractor to prevent any further problems.

Other public works equipment, such as water and sewer piping were not damaged in the storm and the soame holds true for irrigation pipelines, according to Boddy.

Supertyphoon batters islands

MANILA, Philippines (AP) _ Typhoon Lynn battered the northern Philippines right after hitting Saipan last week, tearing down homes and triggering floods and landslides, officials said.

There were no immediate reports of casualties, but the government's Office of Civil Defense said winds of up to 103 miles an hour had knocked down at least 200 houses in Cagayan province.

Crispina Abat, a director at the agency, said initial reports from the region, 200 miles north of Manila showed that torrential rains had flooded at least five towns in Cagayan and Ilocos Norte and caused landslides in Benguet.

She said in a telephone interview that relief officials in Manila had sent rubber boats to help rescue residents marooned by floods which were reported to be neck-deep in some places.

The Philippine News Agency said the typhoon also snapped communication and power lines in the mountain resort of Baguio City and that several landslides had forced the closure of roads linking the city to Manila.

The weather bureau said the typhoon slammed into the Babuyan islands off the northern tip of Luzon overnight, but officials said it would take days for reports of damage there to reach Manila because of poor communications.

Tenorio asks for U.S. disaster help

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

Governor Pedro P. Tenorio asked President Ronald Reagan Tuesday to declare the Northern Marianas a major disaster area to allow the Commonwealth to receive federal assistance.

Tenorio said in a letter to Reagan that Typhoon Lynn, which passed within 10 miles of Saipan and Tinian Oct. 18-19 with gusts of up to 120 miles per hour, caused damages estimated at about $4.5 million.

"Funds for our recovery program for Typhoon Lynn are severely restricted, as we had to spend substantial funds mitigating effects of other severe storms between december 1986 and the present," Tenorio said.

He said Typhoon Lynn was not as destructive as Supertyphoon Kim which left damages totaling more than $15 million in december 1987 but 24 other storms which hit the Northern Marianas exhausted the Commonwealth's resources for disaster response.

The Commonwealth did not ask the federal government for assistance in repairing damage caused by the storms other than Kim but reconstruction work in the past two years ate up about $500,000 out of the annual budget of $800,000 for the normal repair of utilities, infrastructure and public buildings.

"We are severely handicapped by our limited funds to provide an effective response for our recovery from Typhoon Lynn's damages," he said."The health and well-being of our citizens will be severely undermined if we fail to receive federal assistance to help pay for the cost of individual family recovery and for permanent restoration of severely damaged public facilities.

> "Funds for our recovery program for Typhoon Lynn are severely restricted, as we had to spend substantial funds mitigating effects of other severe storms between December 1986 and the present,"
> Governor Pedro Tenorio . .

Tenorio cited the final report on typhoon damage which includes 220 homes and businesses damaged or destroyed. Total damage to public roads, buildings, docks, private homes and businesses in Saipan Kota and Tinian was estimated at about $2 million. Tenorio said that about 90 percent of agricultural crops was destroyed, representing a loss of about $2.5 million.

Tenorio asked that 60 households be granted financial help through the federal individual and family grant program for a total funding requirement of $455,000. He said the Commonwealth would pay its 25-percent share of the program by Oct.1, 1988.

Tenorio has designated Disaster Control Officer James P. Reyes as his authorized representative to monitor the assistance program in cooperation with the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Water still buggy in many locations

The Division of Environmental Quality analyzed samples of drinking water from the Island of Saipan this week. Water from Garapan, Gualo Rai, Puerto Rico, Tanapag, San Roque and the Airport contained excessive coliform bacteria and also contained no chlorine.

DEQ advises residents of these areas to boil their water before using it for drinking, food preparation, or freezing as a precaution against possible bacterial contamination.

Note: The Division of Environmental Quality analyzes drinking water from island public water supplies each week. Only those areas where excessive coliform bacteria are found or where there is insufficient chlorine at the time of sampling to ensure a sanitary water supply will be published. DEQ welcomes all inquiries as to the quality of drinking water. The public is encouraged to phone DEQ 234-6114 or 234-6984 with any questions concerning the public water supply.

Because people do not have the time to sit as models he uses photographs for painting his portraits. His wife sits for him and soon his two girls, aged two years seven months and eight months will be posing for his paintings.

Mr. Lo's painting, "Chamorro Working Girl", first seen in the International Modern Artist Exhibition in September is being donated to the Arts Council to be used as one of the awards in the Governors Special National Arts Week award ceremony, Monday at one o'clock in the afternoon, November 16, at the Hyatt Regency Oceania Room.

Debate still wanted between candidates

Would be project of NM College

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

Representative Juan S. Torres has proposed that Northern Marianas College students sponsor a debate among candidates in next month's election.

"So that the voting public be better informed, particularly those in Election Precinct 3A and B in their selection of candidates vying for public office for the upcoming November 1987 election, it is of extreme importance that the best qualified individuals be given a fair chance to represent them in the Legislature," Torres, who is running for re-election, said in a letter to Eusebio Chargualaf, president of the NMC Student Body dated Oct. 13.

He said that in his precinct, which covers the area from San Jose to Garapan, 10 candidates are contesting five seats in the House of Representatives. "To be quite honest it takes more than just simple desire to run for elected office," he said.

"To uncover those necessary qualifications that each candidate must possess, it will be most apropos for the NMI College Student Body to sponsor a public forum whereby the candiates may discuss or debate a wide-range of issues affecting our Commonwealth," he said."The end-result I think may give everyone a better perspective of ourselves in terms of our abilities to perform the duties and responsibilities of a legislator."

Torres' proposal is the second attempt to hold a debate among candidates in the election next week. A proposed debate between Washington Representative Froilan C. Tenorio and his challenger, Personnel Officer Jesus Mafnas, was cancelled because of disagreement on the date of the debate. With the election only a week away, it is also doubtful whether the student-sponsored debate could be held.

In a separate letter, Torres asked the Department of Public Works to implement a temporary solution to the flooding near Garapan Elementary School. He said in a letter to Public Works Director John Pangelinan that " a threat exists each time a heavy downpour occurs which causes flooding condition in front or Roman Matsumoto's Store in Garapan. School children living in that section of Garapan must pass through that particular inundated spot to get to school."

Torres suggested that a trench be dug along the north side of the road to water and other unsanitary effluents can be drained until a permanent solution could be worked out.

Quichocho wants Mafnas' resignation now

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

Tinian Mayor Ignacio K. Quichocho asked the Civil Service Commission anew to demand the resignation of Personnel Officer Jesus P. Mafnas because of his candidacy for the Washington representative's seat.

"The mere fact that the commission allowed Mr. Mafnas to take his annual leave does not stop him from politically influencing civil service employees because of the knowledge that he is still the personnel officer," Quichocho said in a letter to CSC Chairman Gonzalo C. Santos dated Oct.13.

It was the second letter sent by Quichocho to CSC demanding Mafnas' resignation to prevent him from influencing civil service employees during the election.

Santos responded to Quichocho's letter Tuesday. He said "the Civil Service Commission would not demand the resignation of Mr. Mafnas as personnel officer simply because he is a candidate for the Washington representative's office. It is unfortunate that Mr. Mafnas is the personnel officer and that certain influence emanates as a result."

"Once again, the Civil Service Commission would not act on your request to force Mr. Mafnas to resign from his position," Santos said. "Any candidate for public office currently holding a government job exerts certain influence which is an asset in their best interest."

Responding to Quichocho's statement about delays in the processing of personnel action because of documents being reported lost or "conveniently misplaced, Santos said he asked Mafnas about that and the latter refuted Quichocho's claim.

Quichocho, in his letter, also said he was requesting the Legislature to amend the Civil Service Commission Act to prohibit the personnel officer from becoming a candidate for public office and from accepting a chief position within a political party (Mafnas is the chairman of the Republican Party).

"You have all the prerogative to submit legislation for enactment to require the personnel officer to resign from his position immediately upon certification of candidacy," Santos said.

Space junk sparks UFO alert

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) Orange and red lights streaked across the sky over Sydney early Tuesday, sparking a rash of reports of unidentified flying objects. The same objects could have been seen froim parts of the CNMI.

The Daily Mirror, a Sydney newspaper, said that police switchboards were jammed with calls from people claiming to have seen a UFO.

But astronomers who watched the lights from the Canb[illegible] Mount Stromlo Observatory said they believed the phenomena was caused by space "junk" returning to earth.

In a statement, professors Don Mathewson and Vince Ford said that at about 2:30 a.m. they saw a streak of fire move from northwest to southeast parallel to the horizon.

"At first we thought it might have been an aircraft on fire but our best guess now is that it was a very large bit of space debris re-entering the earth's atmosphere," they said.

Grass fires happening on island

Despite the relatively wet weather we have had on Saipan lately, firemen still have to answer an occasional alarm to fight grass fires which have gotten out of control. Here, a fireman puts out a small blaze behind the newspaper's building recently.

ABOUT HOW MEMBERS OF CONGRESS JUDGE HIM?

"Mr. Tenorio, the last time you appeared before this committee, you arrogantly, stated that you didn't care, you didn't care what the people of the Northern Marianas felt. It was how you felt about an issue that mattered. I now hear you say that you disagree with everyone in this room. You come here to the halls of Congress and tell us (again) you don't care. . . and you just want to do it your way. We're not going to sit here and listen to (anymore of) your ravings."

Gaylen Mack, woman found on road dead

They were fully clothed and were found a few feet apart.

Mack, 57, of Capitol Hill, was from the mainland and had been a long-time resident of Saipan. He used to work for the Trust Territory government, the Commonwealth Legislature and was for a time a consultant to Computerland founder William Millard.

Conley, 37, was originally from the Philippines. She operated a store in San Antonio where she lived with her husband, Harry Conley.

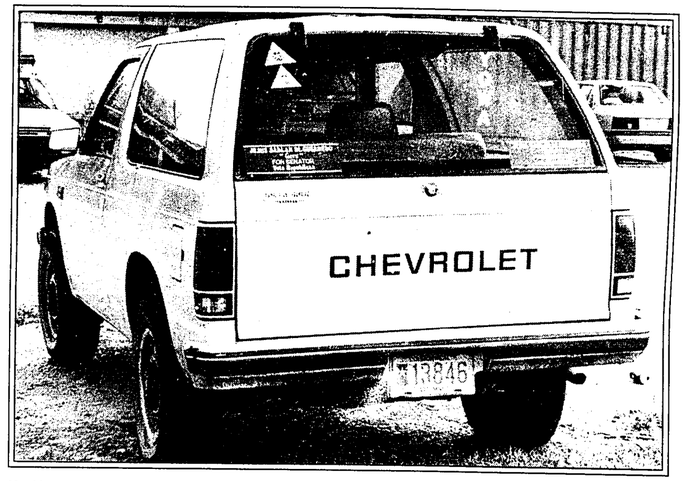
Mack was reported missing Tuesday night. The Blue Pacific helicopter chartered to look for him spotted his truck at about 9 a.m. parked near trees and a picnic table on Obyan Beach.

Manibusan, in an interview at the scene, said investigators were conducting a preliminary search of the vehicle. He said a police task force would be called that day to search the area.

Manibusan said during the conference that investigators had interviewed several people but still had not established any motive, found any suspect or any lead. He said an autopsy on the bodies had been requested.

He declined to release any details about the items found in Mack's vehicle. Passersby, however, can see a partly covered rifle on the back seat of the vehicle which has been towed to the police parking lot in Susupe. On the front seat of the vehicle was what appeared like a checkbook. A gray printed shirt hung behind the driver's seat.

He said investigators were still working on clues. Some were still combing the area where the bodies and the truck were found.



Mack's vehicle was towed to the Public Safety offices so it could be more closely examined by officers.

"YES"

on Initiative #1

- Authored by Task Force on Termination of U.N. Trusteeship.
- Created under CNMI Public Law 5-6 (House Bill 5-78)
- Endorsed by 2,500 voter petitioners.

WHY?

Why are we voting on Initiative #1?

Because U.S. Congress required that after living 10 years under the Covenant, we should vote to decide whether we like it or not.

Why should we vote "Yes" on Initiative #1?

Because we want to reafirm our rights guaranteed by the Covenant: (1) the right to U.S. citizenship and (2) the right to self-government.

Why are we asking the United Nations to recognize our Covenant?

Because we want to insure that our rights guaranteed by the Covenant are recognized and respected by all governments.

TO REAFFIRM THE COVENANT GUARANTEEING SOVEREIGNTY TO THE PEOPLE OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF THE NORTHERN MARIANA ISLANDS OVER ALL INTERNAL AND LOCAL AFFAIRS.

WHEREAS the purpose of Section 2 of the Congressional resolution (Public Law 94-241) approving the executive agreement known as the Covenant To Establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands in Political Union with the United States of America (hereinafter referred to as the Covenant) was according to its sponsor United States Senator Jacob Javits, to give the people of the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands the opportunity to review their vote on the Covenant because that agreement "might not give to the Marianans participation in the United States Government which they may later desire and also to neutralize any argument that this was a step toward American "colonization" of part of its "trust."

Section 1. The Covenant is hereby reaffirmed with the clear and unambiguous understanding that the people of the Commonwealth in granting sovereignty over foreign affairs and defense in Section 104 clearly reserved and did not grant sovereignty over internal and local affairs (Section 103 of the Covenant). And it is clear that the only provisions of the United States Constitution applicable in the CNMI are those specifically listed in Section 501 of the Covenant. Section 501 was effective in January 1978 when the Commonwealth was part of the Trust Territory and not a territory of the United States therefore neither the so-called Territorial Clause nor the Interstate Commerce Clause apply of their own force and can only upon the specific consent of the people be made applicable in the Commonwealth and used as a basis for local legislation in the Commonwealth.

Section 2. Should the covenant's Section 902 discussions leave any substantial matters regarding self government or financial assistance unresolved as of July 1, 1989, the people of the Commonwealth by Initiative (Article IX, Section 1) shall have the right to reaffirm, reject, or renegotiate the Covenant.

Section 3. The People of the Commonwealth respectfully request and strongly urge the United Nations Security Council and "Trusteeship Council in any resolution terminating the Trusteeship Agreement for the formerly Japanese mandated islands" to include the following language or its equivalent:

> "In terminating the "Trusteeship Agreement for the formerly Japanese mandated islands" the United Nations Security Council and Trusteeship Council specifically recognize that the People of the Commonwealth granted sovereignty only over foreign affairs and defense (Section 104 of the Covenant to establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands) and reserved and did not grant sovereignty over local and internal matters (Section 103 of the Covenant), and neither the Territorial Clause nor the Interstate Commerce Clause of the United States Constitution are applicable in the Commonwealth Section 501 of the Covenant)".

This educational program is paid for by the Task Force on Termination of U.N. Trusteeship.

Frenchmen go back bakc to France the logical thing to do.

To send them back to their alleged mother country is to subject them to all sorts of discomfort that an islander usually runs into when visiting or trying to make a living in metropolitan areas in Europe or the U.S. Admittedly, any leader will have to walk that mind numbing thin line of trying to protect both the indigenous and those born in both soils. It is a difficult task that I wouldn't want to be in anyway.

The Philippines has definite economic problems on top of a pile of residual problems born by political instability. Be that as it may, it seems that the daily affairs of the republic is "business as usual." It's the only country in the world which announces a coup d'etat. I find that quite amusing.

In the political community, the most bothersome question which I find rather provocative has been: Was President Marcos involved in the plot to kill Ninoy Aquino? Maybe. If he was in fact involved in this assassination, why was the hit man dead several hours before the actual shooting? Was the CIa involved in this whole sad affair? Remember, the U.S. has permanent interests in protecting her investments in Subic and Clark. Well, it's a puzzle that only time will be able to resolve.

Interestingly, President Marcos was sound asleep when he was yanked out of bed by the U.S. Military to be flown (along with all his cronies) out of Malacanang into Clark Air Force Base. From there, they were taken to Guam and Honolulu. I venture to say that the U.S. isn't too comfortable either with a populist like Cory Aquino. Speculation has it that the U.S. will bring back marcos if Cory can't in fact run her fractioud government to the satisfaction of nations who have had a large investment (military or otherwise) in the Philippines.

At issue at the home front is whether Cory can in fact strike harmony among her dissatisfied people to bring credibility to the Government of the Republic of the Philippines.

The U.S., it seems, has issued its own propaganda that it really doesn't need to have both military bases—Subic and Clark Air Force. I venture to say that the U.S. does in fact need both bases to maintain her military posture in the Pacific. What with Soviet Russia beefing-up its military presence out here. Sadly, the average Filipino isn't convinced that indeed Uncle Sam wants to keep those bases. Well, it's good to be back home. I've even lost my groove on a golf swing.

Stock market takes a nose-dive: Retirees suffer losses

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

The Northern Marianas Retirement Fund may lose $3 million in projected earnings from stock investments during fiscal year 1987 as a result of last week's stock market crash.

The Retirement Fund has $13.877 million invested in the stock market, representing 64.94 percent of investments. Total assets of the fund stand at about $21.3 million, excluding the government's $7 million contribution.

"The bottom line is that we may be making $2 million in fiscal year 1987 instead of $5 million," Tom Aldan, executive director of the Retirement Fund, said in an interview Tuesday.

The Associated Press reported that the the value of stocks dropped by an average of 22.6 percent Oct. 19, representing a total loss in stock value of about $500 billion.

The AP report said the crash wiped out billions of dollars in holdings by pension funds, which are among the most significant of the large, long-term institutional investors in the stock market.

State and municipal governments might have to compensate for losses suffered by these funds, possibly by levying higher taxes, AP said, citing benefits experts.

Aldan said during the interview that a representative from the fund's money manager, Atalanta/Sosnoff Capital Management of New York is coming next month to brief fund officials about the effects of the stock market disaster on the fund's investments.

Aldan said he had been informed by the money manager that "they got out before the crash."

He said the worst that could happen as a result of the stock market crash was a drop in the fund's return on investment. He said that the fund might realize a 6.8 percent average return on investment in fiscal year 1987 instead of 19.7 percent, the average return last year.

The lower projection is the current average yield on time certificates of deposit in Saipan. It is slightly lower than the fund's projected return on investment of seven percent a year.

Aldan said the stock market crash would not result in any increase in contributions. "At best, if we get a good return we can even reduce the government's contribution," he said.

At present, government employees pay 6.5 percent of their salaries as coantribution to the fund. The government, which owes the fund $25 million as a result of a five-year credit given to employees who have accumulated 20 years of service, pays another 24.6 percent.

Paved lot for handicapped

A paved parking lot beside the cafeteria at W.S. Reyes Elementary was completed on Oct. 16. It has space for not only the staff but also for special need students attending the school, principal Rosario Ngirbabul said.

Western Equipment Company began the $30,571 project last month and completed paving last Friday.

"It's great to have this parking lot for our special need students," said pat Gailey, a Special Education staff assigned to the school.

In other news, full fencing of the school is set for completion by the end of next week, Ngirbabul said.

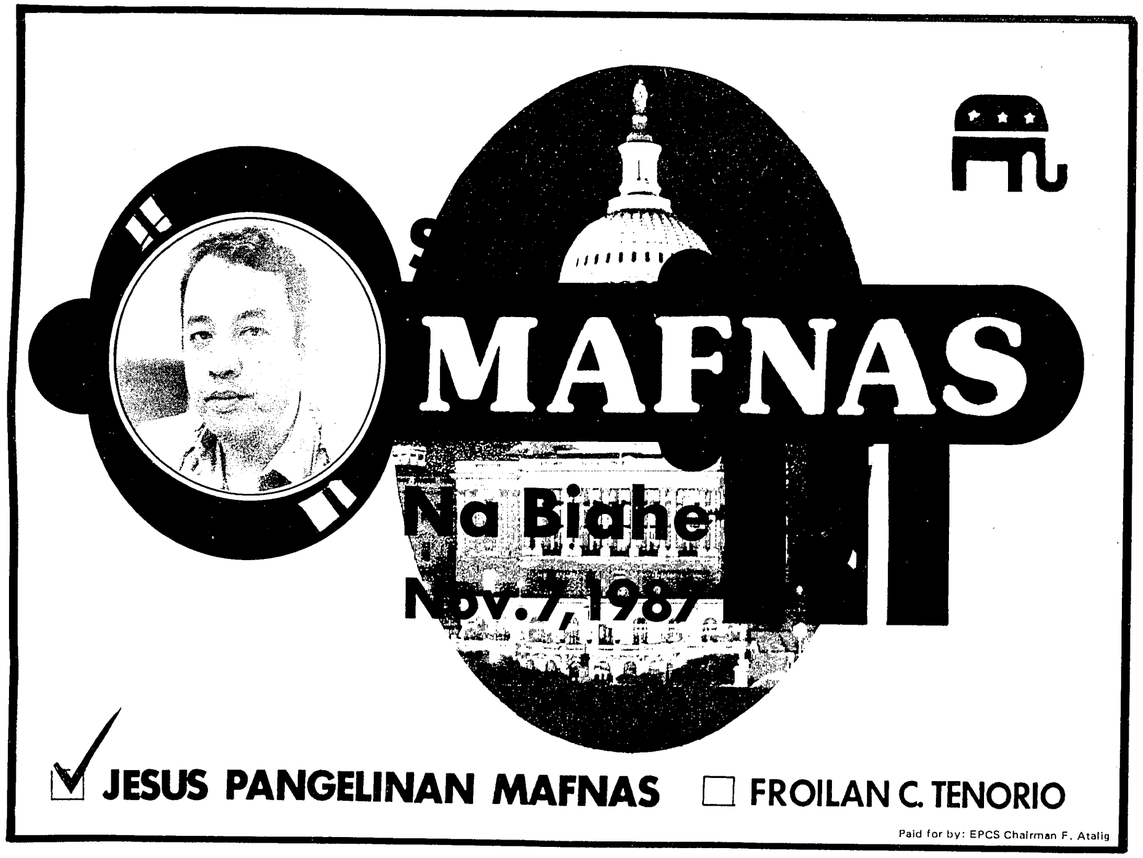
W. S. Reyes is the largest public elementary in Saipan with an enrollment of 648 including special need students, the principal added. (DOE).

Flowergrams!

Saipan's largest public school has a unique way of welcoming its new students and staff. In a recent ceremony at the school, flower grams were handed out to new students and staff entering the school.

Five new Special Education staff and seven new regular staff joined W.S.R. school.

Those who taught at the school last summer were also recognized. (DOE).



New hotel land deal involves 2 CNMI officials

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

A company partly owned by two government officials gained the approval of the Marianas Public Land Corp. Oct.23 to lease four hectares of land near Surf Hotel for $3.84 per square meter.

Ramon S. Guerrero, the governor's special assistant for administration, and Natural Resources Director Nicolas Guerrero own 50 percent of a joint venture with a Japanese corporation which plans to build a 350-room hotel in the beach property in San Antonio.

Guerrerof, representing AIBIC Corp. of Japan, was the only bidder present in the MPLC office Oct.23, the previously set date for opening of bids for 40,827 square meters of land designated for hotel development.

Guerrero said he and other bidders asked MPLC for a postponement of the opening of bids. MPLC denied the requests.

"I went ahead and took the risk of making the lowest bid," he said."On Friday I found out I was the only bidder in the room."

MPLC earlier informed prospective bidders that the lowest bid the government corporation would accept for the San Antonio land was eight percent of the land's appraised value. The property was appraised at $8 per square meter in 1986.

MPLC also required advance payment for the first five years of the 25-year lease of the property. Guerrero bidded eight percent or $3.84 per square meter and attached with his bid $783,000, representing payment for the first five years of the lease.

Guerrero said in an interview Monday that he would leave his job in government to work full time on the hotel project. He said earlier that he would resign his government job in January next year. During Monday's interview he said he

Position Statement, U.S. Veteran, Rota

As military veterans who have fought against communism and the Soviets in faraway countries in order to defend and uphold the principle of democracy which we cherish and enjoy, it was with great sorrow and pain to hear that one of our fellow-islanders, especially a candidate for a Senate seat in our CNMI government, invite the Russians to our own homeland. We fought against that system of government hoping to liberate those people from communist oppression and in these battles some of us lost our lives, some of us became disabled and some of us still suffer as a result of our patriotic dedication to this cause.

We take great honor and pride in the fact that we have contributed years of our lives to the cause of promoting freedom, liberty and justice for all. These very ideals are being enjoyed by the citizens of the CNMI today, including Paul A. manglona who expressed his idea of a Rota alliance with Russia.

We found candidate Manglona's comments to be reckless, thoughtless, and an insult to all of the people of Rota and primarily to those of us who have fought against communism. For one of our citizens to even insinuate an alliance with our greatest national enemy is bordering on treason - let alone suggesting that the people of Rota would accept such a dangerous and despicable notion.

Let us hope that one of these days this "Mental Midget" will be smart enough to realize and fully comprehend the reason why he is still enjoying the democratic freedom even after the deplorable statements which he has made. Paul - You would never be able to say what you have said under the system which you are suggesting we embrace. It goes to demonstrate the magnitude of your ignorance and the threat which you will pose to our hard-fought democratic freedom if you are to be placed in any political office. You are a complete disgrace to your people and to those brave men and women who proudly gave years of their lives, died, or became disabled so you could say what you said.

Let this be a warning - the veterans will not remain idle if there is to be a process of affiliating the CNMI with Russia in any way. In the past we have fought this element in other parts of the world with the hope of containing it within their own boundary of domain. Definitely, we will remain ready to fight it again anywhere that it is propogated, and especially when we learn that our peaceful island we love so dearly is threatened to be poisoned by this evil concept.

We want it known that we will not put up with any person advocating an alliance with the Russians. We call upon our fellow veterans, active and inactive, to take note of what candidate Paul A. manglona has said. We wish to emphasize that we fought against the ideals that this candidate is insinuating and embracing and we will rise again to fight and preserve our freedom, be it in our own backyard or in any distant land - we will persevere.

Lastly, our biggest salute goes to our fellow soldiers who sacrificed their lives for a just cause. We regret that Paul A. Manglona appears to be devoid of respect and gratitude to these people. However, we wish to pay tribute and honor to them, and in their name we shall continue to fight against communism and in support of democracy to see that their lives were not given in vain.

They are commonplace on the Mainland, and are fast, fairly inexpensive, and helps keep the vote of anyone a secret.

I also suggest that the names of fake write-in candidates or cartoon characters be grounds to void a vote. If someone doesn't like a any candidate in a particular race, then leave the space blank and don't vote for either one.

I also suggest that anyone who has taken money for their vote in this election return the money. I am not necessarily asking you to squeal on a friend, just don't become a part of a corrupt system.

Being a bachelor, I have the occasion to speak to a lot of ladies. A good number of these shapely types are alien workers, and are very interesting to talk to. But, a good number of the conversations I have had with them - especially those from the Philippines and Korea - have a common thread running through them. That thread is the abuse of civil rights by their employers.

I have had many tell me their employers won't "allow" them to socialize with friends, go to church, date, or even just walk on the beach. The common reason is the employers claim they "are responsible for them" and don't want them to get into trouble.

Unfortunately these people - both male and female workers - are being lied to and essentially being held against their will.

There is a particular part of the U.S. Constitution which addresses this practice - the 14th Amendment. That part of the document outlaws "involuntary servitude" - in other words, slavery.

So, alien workers, you do have certain rights under the U.S. Constitution here in the Commonwealth, even though you are not U.S. citizens.

The Bill of Rights gives you the ability to pick and choose your friends, places to go on the island, and the right to speak your mind. If ANYONE tells you they have the right to control how you spend your off-work hours, then realize they are taking away your rights.

Finally, I have been told that I am being slandered on Rota. Paul Manglona and his buddies are saying that I did not write that story that he feels the Commonwealth would get better treatment as a part of Russia. He is saying another person wrote it and I put my name on it for "political reasons. . . "

The politician is free to say what he wants because both of us are "public persons." It's slander, and I am used to that, but it's not worth the cost of a court trial to me.

But unlike some people I know, I have principles that do not include plagiarism. Anyone who says that I put my name on a story that someone else wrote is a liar.

I invite them to back up their allegations with proof not a lot of hot air. You see, I have the notarized statements of several eyewitnesses to the conversation who swear that it occurred and that I asked him three times if he really wanted that idiotic statement in print. Like Peter who denied Christ three times, Paul said three times that he wanted the people to know how he "really felt."

I did what he wanted - now he is saying that I am a liar.

Perhaps the now famous "drunk talk alibi" could be used by the candidate. It seems to have worked for other Commonwealth public "servants."

Late Bulletin: If you read the letters to the editor today, the candidate intimated that just because a friend let me stay at her home (I slept in the outside kitchen - by the way - not in the house) and another friend lent me an his old jeep to get around Rota in during Fiesta that their "company" influenced me to write that story about him.

What bunk. The fact is I couldn't find a hotel room on Rota so she let me stay at her home - as any friend would do. Otherwise, I couldn't have covered the Fiesta.

By the way, when I left Rota I filled up the jeep's tank with gas - as any well-mannered guest would do.

As far as writing down everything the man said, I didn't find it necessary because the words were unforgettable. I have been a journalist for over 20 years and I have always found that when someone says something they later regret, the old excuseof "misquoted" comes out.

Russian story distorted: Manglona says comments down verbatim as we spoke. In fact various bystanders and I did not see you take any written notes of my comments as I spoke.

I find it difficult to understand how you can attribute direct quotes to me if you did not bother to write down my comments as I spoke. If you relied on your memory as the basis for verbatim quotes, I believe that you relied on an inaccurate, incompetent method of journalism. If you secretly recorded the discussion you described as a "personal interview" without first notifying me that a recording was being made, I believe you engaged in behavior which constitutes an unethical, deceitful, underhanded reporting technique. In either case, I believe your professional competence, your personal integrity and your newspaper's credibility were compromised.

Perhaps your journalism techniques and the contents of the article you wrote about the discussion were unduly influenced by the company you kept during your visit to Rota; you spent considerable time among Rep. Hocog's political supporters, and no time alone with me. As you know, Ms. Lusa and Tommy Mendiola strongly support Rep. Hocog's bid against me for the Rota Senatorial vacancy. As you also know, Ms. Lusa, a Marianas Variety contributing writer, was formerly employed by Rep. Hocog and is active in his campaign. She resides in a home owned by the Mendiola family and is employed by the Mendiola family. Moreover, Tommy Mendiola's cousin is Rep. Hocog's running mate.

It is my understanding that during your visit, you stayed with the Mendiolas; were provided a truck for your personal use by Ms. Lusa and the Mendiolas; and were escorted throughout your stay by Ms. Lusa or Mr. Mendiola. If your reporting was not biased by the company you kept on Rota, or impaired by your journalism techniques, why was the article you wrote about the discussion replete with inaccuracies?

You stated that before I answered one of your questions, several of my friends "came over and hustled" me away. That statement is incorrect. Rep. Hocog, not I, was escorted away from the discussion. He was escorted away by one of his supporters, Maria Manglona. Several people witnessed the incident including Mark Michael's political affiliation, but regardless of his affiliation, I will vouch for his integrity and honesty. I am sure he will confirm that he saw Rep. Hocog, not I, being "hustled" away from the discussion. Why don't you ask him?

You also distorted my views pertaining to the CNMI's affiliation with the United States. As you know, I am strongly in favor of maintaining our ties with the U.S. because the U.S. is a democracy, and a democracy responds to the wishes of its people. Moreover, CNMI residents have benefitted tremendously from our affiliation with the U.S. We are permitted to become U.S. Citizens, we receive U.S. financial assistance, and we govern our local affairs. Throughout our discussion, I emphasized the importance I attach to maintaining a positive relationship between the CNMI and the U.S.

My reference to Russia occurred when I tried to make an obscure point to you by using an extreme example. Rather than focusing and attempting to understand the point I tried to make, you isolated the example and focused on it as the basis for your article; you also printed my comments out of context, and therefore inaccurately, to support the innuendo conveyed by your article. . .that I have contempt for the U.S. and will actively seek affiliation with Russia. I cannot prevent you from distorting my views and printing an inaccurate article with misleading headlines. However, I would like to explain to the general public the point I tried to make to you.

The point is simple. If there comes a time when elected U.S. government officials are no longer responsive to the electorate who put those officials into power, then the officials are not engaging in democracy; they are engaging in a totalitarian form of government. And, if the U.S. government ever became a totalitarian government, it would be no better than the communist government perpetuated by the Soviet Union. Consequently, if U.S. government officials were not responsive to CNMI residents, CNMI residents would see no distinction between the U.S. and Russia, and political affiliation with Russia would be no better or worse than political affiliation with the U.S.

Although the point is simple, the extreme example I used to make it apparently misled your understanding of my views. I regret that the example was misconstrued. I assure you that I used the example because I fully support a democratic form of government; my comments about Russia were made precisely because I find the communist form of government repulsive.

Thank you for permitting me to respond to your article and clarify my position.

Sincerely,

/s/Paul A. Manglona

Not only did the cable executive say he was against the proposed bill which would limit the rights of companies like his to make minority shareholders sell out at a price set by the company, but many of his employees also lined up to say they were against the bill.

Saying that the he "didn't want Larry Hillblom in my company because he would want to control the news," Holmes then said that he was himself a "minority stockholder" and didn't think he was in any danger from the way the present laws of the Commonwealth regulate the transfer of stock.

Holmes' wife is the majority stockholder in the family-owned company.

Other members of the cable corporation staff, including office employees and news personnel testified before the committee, but none of the news people, including the temporary cable news reporter based on Saipan now, were citizens of the CNMI or registered voters here. Yet, they told the committee they felt they should recommend the bills defeat.

One cable employee in the audience, an office employee, was asked if she and other members of the company work force present at the meeting were being paid to sit there, and she said, "Yes, but I want to be here."

Several members of the committee, including Senator Herman Guerrero became angry at the tone Holmes took to them and they also dished out some verbal licks of their own - One senator said that he felt that the cable executive "was afraid of Larry Hillblom". Others said they didn't appreciate his heavy-handed approach to the Commonwealth on several issues, including making personal attacks on them and their bills in the past.

Holmes relied that he was just exercising his right to "freedom of the press. . . . Especially since you were trying to regulate me back then."

Hillblom attempted to stick to the agreement, discarding an originally-prepared testimony that was replete with personal attacks on Holmes and his methods. From time to time he replied to charges made against him personally by Holmes.

Almost three hours of testimony by Holmes which ran the gambit of saying that he really didn't want to get rid of the other minority stockholders like George Fleming, who had been with the company for many years. But, he insisted that since "rich, spoiled brat . . . " Hillblom had made an earlier offer to buy the Saipan Cable Company, it was obvious that he was a "corporate raider and we had to get rid of him in any way possible. Unfortunately, that meant getting rid of the people we liked."

However, less than five percent of the monologue had relevance to the bill's verbiage, and George Fleming - speaking for many of his fellow witnesses - finally asked the chairman to cut things off because "all I have heard for the past three hours is two Americans arguing with each other. let them fight it out outside or in the courtroom, but please do something to help us!"

Fleming and other minority stockholders, including Hillblom, have filed suit in federal court alleging that Holmes committed stock fraud and one way of covering it up was to buy out the other stockholders. The suit was later amended by Hillblom to include a criminal charge of coercion.

Primarily, Hillblom's testimony dealt with the various ways that a company can freeze out minority stockholders, such as a reverse stock split originally tied by cable, but postponed and later abandoned. Other ways include what finally happened, the majority stockholders - in this case the Holmes family - vote to sell their shares to another wholly-owned company and then that company pay off the minority stockholders.

The bill might not affect the cable company since they have now merged into another entity, but Hillblom said the legislation is important because "it will keep it from happening again if other companies want to try the same thing."

One senator said he felt that Holmes' merger "could trigger" other companies to try the same thing to rid themselves of other CNMI minority stockholders "who lent their money, land, and good names" to help these companies get started.

Members of the committee said they were "disappointed" that Holmes didn't live up to an earlier written agreement in which he said he wouldn't proceed with the 200-1 reverse stock split until after a public hearing. He complained at that time that the House passed the "special Larry Hillblom special interest" bill very rapidly without a chance to make his views known, and would be most affected.

The cable president said "I didn't go on with the stock split - just like I promised. I lived up to my end of the bargain."

After hearing that Hillblom had filed suit against him following the agreement signing, Holmes and his family "sold" their shares to Tropic Isles Cable - the family-owned company, thus effectively doing the same thing which would have been accomplished with a 200-1 stock split.

Committee members said they felt his using another method to accomplish the forced buy-out was not in the spirit of the agreement, and he knew it.

"A comprehensive corporate law structure needs to be set up here," Holmes said, "not the band-aid measure your bill proposes." He said the laws of the U.S. State of Delaware could be a "fine example to follow."

Those laws are very favorable to companies, and that state has many charters of corporations which do business all over the U.S..

In a related development, Democratic candidates in Precinct 1 which includes San Antonio opposed the lease of the former Coast Guard site for hotel development.

"We strongly believe that the property should be turned into a park for use and recreation by the residents of Precinct 1 and the general public ," Antonio M. Camacho, Edward M. Guerrero and Guadalupe P. Manglona said Oct. 1 in a joint letter to the MPLC board.

Guerrero is running for re-election to the House of Representatives. Camacho and Manglona are vying for the two other lower house seats in the precinct.

"Because of decreasing public lands for public uses, we urge MPLC to give the interests and needs of our community top priority over hotel development," the candidates said.

They urged MPLC to rescind its decision; "otherwise, we will be forced at a later date to initiate legislation by the Legislature and/or popular initiative to invalidate your action and to make the property a public park."

Suit seeks to secure stockholder rights

By DAVID T. HUGHES
editor

Larry Hillblom, one of the minority stockholders who have filed suit against Saipan Cable Television and it's president, Lee Holmes, said in an interview Monday that the lawsuit's purpose is more than just trying to buy shares of that company. "We are trying to show that minority stockholders of any corporation should be considered and have rights."

He said "What is determined by this suit will affect the rights of all minority stockholders in many local companies who also have minority stockholders, such as PDI and others. If the cable company can get away with railroading the people who have helped build that company, then others may want to try it."

Hillblom also said that the latest tactic of the cable company to shake off the Saipan investors like George Fleming, Ed Palacious, Alex Borja and himself was just another example of Holmes trying to get away with something. He cited Holmes agreement not to proceed with a 1-200 reverse stock split originally announced by the company.

A bill was filed in the Senate which would make such actions illegal by any company without written approval by the stockholders. Holmes objected both by letter and editorially on the cable news channel, saying a public hearing had not been held and accusing Hillblom and the Senate of double-dealing.

A cable company press release also alleged that an attorney which worked for the legislature years ago had written the bill for Hillblom and gotten it passed. The original stock fraud lawsuit has since been amended to cite Holmes for criminal coercion because of those allegedly libelous statements.

The Senate agreed to hold off proceeding with the bill until a public hearing could be held last week. But, within a few days after the compromise the cable company issued a press release saying they had gone ahead and merged the Saipan Cable company with a new entity called "Tropic Isle Cable", and sent the Saipan investors a check for $275 for each share they owned."

> "What is determined by this suit will affect the rights of all minority stockholders in many local companies who also have minority stockholders, such as PDI and others. If the cable company can get away with railroading the people who have helped build that company, then others may want to try it."
> Larry Hillblom

When a local newspaper wrote a story saying that Holmes had broken his word about the stock split, he wrote a letter saying that he had not gone back on his word - he had not ok'd the stock split directly.

Hillblom said Monday that if he had known what Holmes was planning that he would have filed a request for a temporary restraining order to stop the merger. "But, I didn't know, and he did it, but I don't think it will be allowed to stand if the court rules that Holmes was engaged in stock fraud."

Saying that Holmes' merger announcement was "like someone telling you that "I won't shoot your wife", then stabbing her to death." The businessman said that when Holmes agreed to keep status quo - everyone assumed that he would stick to his word, not do the same thing in a different way.

The plaintiff stockholders say they feel the offer made by Holmes is not really what the stock is worth. Hillblom said they have never been provided with a comprehensive financial statement, and :he (Holmes) has not provided proof that he NOW has a majority stock share in the company."

Holmes said in a press release that he had shown back in the 1970's that he had substantial financial interest in the company, but Hillblom alleges that the cable magnate has "taken his equity out" and still runs the company.

Stockholders filing the lawsuit say other Holmes enterprises, such as the cable magazine also rightfully belong to them and others because the company uses cable employees and proprietary data of upcoming programs only known to the cable company to produce it.

At least one local businessman and his family have also spoken out about the rights of minority stockholders. Clarence T. Tenorio, president of J,C. Tenorio Enterprises, Inc. wrote in an October 16 letter to Senator Jose P. Mafnas that the bill written by the Senate "is laudable in that it provides mechanisms by which minority stockholders have the right to remain in the company if they choose to remain...."

He also told the Senate Chairman on RED and P that "In light of the ever increasing joint ventures between U.S. Citizens and foreign investors here in the CNMI, such laws respecting the protection of minority stockholders, which for a fact occurs in most instances, is in demand here.....

"Moreover, present corporate laws lack adequate security for those minority corporate investors who in fact contributed their time and land in the initial phase of the organization of their company. Wit this amendment, there is adequate assurance that those minority stockholders who are willing to sell out are given the chance to sell, while those who want to continue their investment are kept in and not forced out invcluntarily."

Hillblom said Tenorio's letter reflects the scruples of his father, Joeten, who is himself a majority

ROGER N. LUDWICK
IS A CANDIDATE FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

I am a resident of Sadog Tasi, Saipan and have been in the Commonwealth since 1963. I retired from the CNMI Department of Education in May, 1986. While employed by the Department of Education, I was a teacher and an administrator. During my employment I served in the following capacities.

1. Science Department Chairman, Hopwood High School and taught General Science, Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Physical Science and Social Studies, from 1963 to 1967. In 1968, I obtained a Master's of Science Education from Oregon State University. Then taught science for two years in Monrovia, Liberia.

2. Science Department Chairman, Marianas High School and taught the same subjects as above with the exception of social studies from 1970 to 1972.

3. School Curriculum Supervisor overseeing the establishment of a uniform curriculum for the CNMI schools from 1972 to December, 1974.

4. Acting Assistant Director of Education from December, 1974 to December, 1975. During this time I was in charge of the operation of the Department of Education on nine occasions when the Director was off-island.

5. Federal program Coordinator/Planner assisting program managers in planning, implementing, and evaluating instructional programs. Also assisted in the formulation of the current five-year plan for the Department of Education IDEA (Integrated Directions for Educational Action) from 1976 to 1986. During this period, I also acquired training in an additional Master's degree program from San Jose State University in the area of educational administration.

During my tenure with the Department of Education, I served in many special capacities. At one time or another, I was the personnel management coordinator, an acting elementary school principal, the state education advisory council liaison, the acting administrative officer, acting special education coordinator, acting bilingual education coordinator, library services coordinator, media production coordinator, school food service coordinator, and pupil transportation coordinator.

I think that I know the problems of the Department of Education. My wife, Anna Besong Ludwick, is a teacher at Tanapag Elementary School. So, I have a day by day contact with what is going on in our schools.

Why do I want to be a member of the Board of Education? The very best educational programs and teachers should be available to our children. Policies that see to it that these are delivered are what I want. I want our schools to respond to what the parents of the CNMI want for their children. I believe that our schools should serve our children and not necessarily be patterned after some other educational system. The Board of Education should take a leadership role in finding out what parents want for their children and then establish policies that will enable the Department of Education to address these desires.

So if you think that I have the qualifications and experience to improve the education of our children please mark box number six (6) on the ballot for the members of the Board of Education. Thank you.

Tan sticks to his printouts: Docs can't get OT pay

Neither can short-time workers

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

Acting Public Auditor Scott K. Tan stood firm on his position Wednesday that some medical and dental officers received overtime pay in violation of the law.

"Medical or dental officers were excluded from overtime limitations by Public Law 5-31 which became effective on April 16, 1987," Tan said in a letter to Rep. Juan S. Torres."Our examination took into account the effective date of the law and excluded any overtime payments subsequent to that date."

Tan earlier released the results of a payroll review which showed that 53 government employees earning more than $25,000 a year received unauthorized overtime and holiday pay totaling $153,000 during the period Oct.1, 1986 to July 18, 1987. He sent his Oct. 28 letter to Torres, who is also chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, to clarify comments that medical and dental officers were exempted from the prohibition against overtime pay to employees making more than $25,000 a year.

Tan also said that the payroll review excluded typhoon differential payments during the period of emergencyd declared during following Typhoon Kim in december. "Typhoon ddifferential payments were approved by the personnel officer as required by personnel regulations, and therefore, are allowable," Tan said.

Tan said the report included five employees who were contracted for periods of two to seven months and whose employment was of temporary nature which was related to Typhoon Kim. "While these fell outside the scope of our review they, nonetheless, resulted in overpayments because Public Law 4-32 specifically states that no contract employee should receive overtime,"he said.

HOW GOOD DO I HAVE TO BE TO BE SAVED?

Text: ". . . .Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven" (Matthew 5:20)

There are several kinds of righteousness set forth in Scripture which cannot save the soul. One is the RIGHTEOUSNESS OF THE LAW. Of it Paul says, "Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, That the man which doeth those things shall live by them" (Rom.10:5). James adds this: "For whosoever shall keep the whole law and yet offend IN ONE POINT, HE IS GUILTY OF ALL" (James 2:10). So much for the righteousness of the law. That's what the scribes and Pharisees had (or claimed to) and Jesus says we must have something BETTER than that or we won't make it.

Another is called one's OWN RIGHTEOUSNESS. Paul disparages this SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS in Romans 10:3 saying, "For they (Israel) being ignorant of God's righteousness and going about to establish their OWN RIGHTEOUSNESS, have not submitted themselves unto the RIGHTEOUSNESS OF GOD." His hope for himself was to "to found in Him NOT having mine OWN RIGHTEOUSNESS which is of the law." (Phil.3:9).

That brings us to the Bible's answer to our question, "How good do I have to be in order to be saved?" The answer is a shocker. It is that I must be as good as God Himself in the Person of His Son! After uttering the words last quoted above (Phil.3:9), Paul continued by saying that the righteousness he expected to have when He stood before God was 'that which is through the faith of Christ, the RIGHTEOUSNESS WHICH IS OF GOD BY FAITH."

That's the only kind that could save Paul or any other sinner.

The Pharisees didn't have it and perished forever.

How about you?

Santos gets 15-year term

Jesus R. Santos was sentenced to 15 years in jail Wednesday after he was convicted of burglary, theft and receiving stolen property.

Jesus' brother, Jose, was sentenced Monday to one year and a half in jail for receiving stolen property.

The two and their brothers, Vicente and Francisco, were earlier found by a jury guilty of numerous counts of burglary, theft and receiving stolen property.

Judge Jose S. Dela Cruz sentenced Jesus to five years in jail for aggravated burglary and two and a half years each for two counts of theft and two counts of receiving stolen property for a total 15 years. He was given credit for the time spent in jail since May 21 this year.

Jose was convicted of four counts of receiving stolen property for which he was sentenced to a year and a half, all suspended except for the first eight months. He was also given credit for the time he spent in jail since May 21.

In addition to the jail term, Jose was also fined $400 and ordered

Murder charges are filed

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

A first degree murder charge was filed in court Wednesday against a trash collector following the death Sunday of a guest in a christening party at As Lito.

Chief prosecutor S. Jane Haggerty, alleged that Joaquin A. Taitingfong,29, who works as trash collector for Bernard Guerrero, unlawfully killed Ignacio A. Deleon Guerrero,49, a retired government employee.

Capt. Joseph Castro, investigation chief, said in an interview Wednesday that Guerrero was one of the guests in a christening party at the house of Taitingfong's brother Sunday afternoon.

Police consultant Richard Keatley alleged in a separate interview that some type of disagreement came up during the party. Guerrero was allegedly shot with a .410 gauge shotgun.

Castro said the victim was taken to the Commonwealth Health Center where he died during an operation. Taitingfong, who was also at the hospital, was arrested that evening. He is being detained without bail.

In another incident,a police search for a Japanese crew member of a tuna vessel who fell in the water Oct.23 failed to recover the sailor's body. Castro said the search was called off in the afternoon of Oct.24.

In other cases, three deer hunters in Rota were ordered to pay fines Tuesday after entering into a plea agreement with the prosecution.

The three pleaded guilty to the charge of illegal possession of game animal without a hunting license or a certificate of origin.

Judge Dela Cruz fined Juan M. Ayuyu $160, payable at $25 bi-weekly. Frederick O. Hocog was fined $133, payable at $20 bi-weekly and Frederic A. Barcinas was fined $133.20, payable in bi-weekly installments

Witnesses said that Hideyoshi Toriyabe,29, of Tokyo, and another man were jumping from one ship to another when the victim fell into the water. The Department of Public Safety was called to help find the sailor.

Toriyabe's ship, the Kosu Maru, was one of several tuna vessels which were docked between Managaha and Saipan because of docking problems in Tinian following Typhoon Lynn. He was reported missing at about 6:10 a.m. Oct.23.

Meanwhile, two men were charged in court Tuesday for allegedly attacking two other men in Chalan Piao Oct.22.

Chief prosecutor S. Jane Haggerty alleged in her three-count information that Robert B.

No. 1 [✓]

Juan B. Tudela
ON THE BALLOT FOR THE No. 5 [✓]

BOARD OFEDUCATION ON NOVEMBER 7, 1987 GENERAL ELECTIONS

A SERIES OF OBJECTIVES FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF CNMI EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

OBJECTIVE NO. 1 - 12 Month Pay for 9 Month Classroom Teaching
WHY? Because the teaching profession is the basic foundation of human development and because teaching is a commitmentthat recognizes no 8 hour work schedule,the compensation plan for our teachers deserves to be treated differently and fairly. They deserve to be paid 12 months for 9 months of classroom work. They need the summer months for refresher Training, Educational Advancement Studies, Family Development and External Training Exposures.

OBJECTIVE NO. 2 - Take Full Advantage of Available Cost-Effective Teaching Resources
WHY? Because of the abundance of available Cost-Effective Teaching Resources and experitse here and abroad and because of theCNMI commitment to maximize the productivity of CNMI limited financial resources, the CNMI School System ought to take fully advantage of the services and assistance beingoffered by volunteered teaching organizations here and abroad. Further, the system ought to give those of uswho had benefited from our educational system and whose lives have been improved in part by that system the opportunity to re-invest some of these benefits in the form of volunteered teaching services and other assistance for which they are capable of providing. Let these volunteershelp "personalize" our commitment to impart quality learning to our children.

OBJECTIVE NO. 3 - Bring Technological Advancement To CNMI Educational System
WHY? Because of our commitmentto provide quality education to our children -- one that would make our system comparable in terms of quality and depth to the American Educational System -- and because we do want to see that our children are adequately prepared to meet the challenges of a highly technological community tomorrow. The CNMI educational system must provide the essential tools and requisite teachers in the classrooms for the technological advancement of our children in schools, E. Piece of history coming down

One of the oldest school building has been torn down to make room for a new cafeteria at W.s. Reyes Elementary, principal Rosario Ngirbabul said.

The dilapidated termite-ridden wooden structure once served as classroom for many of today's CNMI leaders.

This week, heavy equipment trucks and payloaders from Quezada Construction Company and the Mayor's office were at the school clearing the area free of charge.

"This is really a big help," principal Ngirbabul said.

She gave credit to Education Superintendent Henry I. Sablan and DOE bus office staffer Al Guerrero for their effort in getting the company and the mayor's office to clear the debris. (DOE).

TV station hit by blaze in RP

MANILA, Philippines (AP) The government radio and television stations went off the air Tuesday after a fire broke on the second floor of their studios in suburban Quezon City.

People's Television Channel 4 and Radyo ng Bayan (Radio of the Nation) interrupted regular programming to announce there was a fire in the building and to appeal to fire departments to rush to the studios.

Conrado Limcauco, the station manager, said the stations had received up to seven warnings that the facility might be sabotaged by rightwing opponents of President Corazon Aquino.

The stations went off the air shortly before 9 p.m. Private television station ABS-CBN Channel 2, which shares the same building, went off the air soon afterward.

There were no reports of injuries, and offcials said the cause of the blaze was unknown. Scores of marines, armed with M-16 rifles and M-203 grenade launchers, surrounded the station as firefighters battled the blaze.

The building also houses the offices of the government's board of censors.

mittee and reported that we need better roads, water and power. John has a leaky faucet that he hasn't fixed, bought properties smack in the middle of the road (as San Roque residents because they will remember when they were deprived of cable TV until the TV manager apologized and asked John's permission to climb the utility pole by the road) and then blackmailed the government into exchanging them for better real properties, etc. Building better roads is moot until landowners quitclaim their interest in the roadways.

By the way, last week I had the rare opportunity of meeting Froilan Tenorio and his Air Force friends who were discussing when the groundbreaking is gonna take place at the radar site. Petitioners need not be present at the groundbreaking, especially Atcha Baby. Also present with Lang was his new Washington lobbyist. Our Washington Representative lobbying another Washington lobbyist who would lobby another lobbyist because he didn't want to be a non-voting delegate and save the Commonwealth some $400,000 a year.

Thank you,
Sincerely,
/s/Leo S. Pangelina.

More letters to the editor

Another member of the Democrat camp is heard from on upcoming election

Dear Editor:

I find your Bread Fruit Column very disheartening by insinuating that "We (the Variety) expect Personnel Officer Jesus Mafnas to win this year's election for the Washington Resident Representative's post." I happen to disagree with you on that assumption. One reason is that we the voting public are not stupid to vote for air head who could not only be an embarrassment for the Commonwealth but years of shame for all of us - Republican and Democrat alike.

I am a Republican voting Democrat and I honestly can not vote for Mafnas for the guy is simply a political tyrant. Simply put - he is a carbon copy of Little Hitler.

You also said - "people who dislike Mafnas will vote for him to get rid of him by sending Mafnas to Washington." Mafnas is no dummy. He can be in Washington and still be in complete control of the Personnel Office and its function just the way he is now running it for personal and political gains. Mafnas for all practical purposes is the de facto Governor for the CNMI, be he a resident representative or a Personnel Officer.

I would like to respectfully urge those who dislike Mafnas not to get mad at him but simply to get even by voting for Lang C. Tenorio.

I am confident that 1987 is the year for the Democrat in the CNMI. Remember four years ago when the Republican lost the election to the Democrats. At that time Governor Teno enjoyed about 70 percent approval rating, but the Democratic candidates for the House, Senate and Washington resident representative trounced the Republican in that election year. I don't think thee's any evidence to show that Teno popularity is transferable to other candidates.

As the saying goes - "If men could learn from history, what lesson it might teach us. But passion party blind our eyes, and the light which experience gives us in a lantern on the stern, which shines only on the waves behind us."

So don't get mad. Get even. Vote Democrat.

Sincerely yours,

/s/Daniel T. Muna

More N'yets come from Rota voters

Dear Editor:

It is shocking to read that a Senatorial candidate would like the island of Rota to be allied with Russia rather than with the U.S. Mr. Paul Manglona was quoted as saying, "The Russians would be glad to have us and they wouldn't be telling us what to do all the time and how to run our own business." We wonder if the candidate has ever heard of Poland, Afghanistan, or East Germany?

Perhaps he doesn't know that under Russian rule he wouldn't be allowed to run for office, he would be denied freedom of speech, would have to give up his religious freedom, adn would have to relinquish basic rights which he now enjoys.

He stated, "if I am elected Senator, then I will do everything I can to see that the CNMI becomes associated with some other nation - probably Russia. In that case, Paul, I will do everything I can to make sure that you are NOT elected Senator.

Congressman Hocog has shown himself to be a mature and productive representative of the people of the CNMI and also demonstrates loyalty to our CNMI government, it's officials and to the United States government and their officials. I hope that the people will think about this and ask whether they want to be represented by a person who makes such frightening statements.

Sincerely,

/s/Francisco R. Taimanao

Jean Olopai is the new vice-presidengt, Vincent DL Guerrero is the secretary and Guadalupe Sabino was elected as treasurer.

The PTA discussed the student report, prepared as a part of the accrediation process. Only limited dicussion was held, but organization members said they wanted to know more about the students and goals of the school.

Manglona

However, Variety editor David T. Hughes said the comments about a Russian alliance were only "mentioned in passing in that conversation, but as I was leaving the Fiesta that day Manglona came up to me again and started expounding on his earlier statements in the previous conversation.

"The story that I wrote about the candidate's comments were based mostly on that impromptu encounter interview," Hughes said, " and I have sworn statements from three witnesses who saw that second conversation coming from Rota," he said Wednesday.

"As a matter of fact, I asked him three different times in three different ways if he really wanted those statements on the record - or were his comments for my personal information. Each time he said yes they were for the record, " Hughes said. "So I put them on the record and now he wants to take back what he said. I stand on the accuracy of the article."

Hughes was on Rota to cover the annual fiesta celebration and he was invited to stay at Lusa's home. Manglona intimated in his letter that because of that invitation and the fact that Tommy Mendiola - a political ally of Manglona's opponent in the election, Victor Hocog, lent him an old jeep to drive on the island that he was unduly influenced to write the story about the Russian alliance. Hughes said that he "stayed at the lady's home in the jungle about 10 miles from the Fiesta site because there were no hotel rooms available on Rota. Plus, I slept on a couch in the kitchen area located away from the house."

The candidate made statements in the letter that Hughes was always in the company of Mendiola and Lusa, as well as Hocog's political friends, and "didn't spend any time alone with me."

Saying that "I was a first time visitor to Rota and wanted the grand tour, I was shown some beautiful places on the island by my two friends, "Hughes said, "including an ancient Latte Stone site owned by Tommy's family. As a matter of fact, both of my friends were concerned about being seen with me because they told me that ' something political would be made of it.'"

Hughes also said that he did a lot of driving on the island alone and the only time he met Hocog and his friends prior to the Sunday fiesta was at a birthday party held for a young child on the island. "I was introduced to Hocog, asked him a few questions about a lawsuit filed by Larry Hillblom and then met a lot of other people," Hughes said. "That was my association with Hocog and his political friends. I had a lot of things to do on Rota and talking about politics was not one of them."

Manglona alleged in the letter that the story took off-hand comments made in passing about a possible Russian alliance "out of context" and he questioned how a reporter not taking exact notes of a conversation could quote him directly on statements he made.

Hughes said it was obvious that Manglona had little experience with reporters from the States. "I have a lot more experience as a reporter than he has as a politician, and I know how to do my job," he said. "I don't need to take notes on simple conversations, plus what he said burned into my mind unforgettably."

Concluding his letter, Manglona said that "... I fully support the democratic form of government; my comments about Russia were made precisely because I find the communist form of government repulsive."

Hughes said that he was sorry that the newspaper and he personally was being 'made news' instead of reporting it. "But, why did it take two weeks for Mr. Manglona to write that letter? That was the first comment I had directly from him or any of his supporters.

"There is an old Shakesperian quote," Hughes said; "He doth protesteth too much . . . . "

BB league nears the championship

By Nick Legaspi
Staff reporter

Three teams have earned six victories and a loss each as the three-month-old Mar Pac-Ambros Basketball Conference nears the championship round.

Santos Eagle Snack defeated Starlite Mar Pac Distributors Sunday, 82-66 ,to raise its winnings to six against a loss. RB Ambros downed Agbanlog in the second game of the day, 74-61, to get into the same 6-1 win-loss position.

Basic Busch did not play Sunday but had already earned six victories against a loss in previous games. The team was scheduled to play against PIC Natural Light but heavy rain at the Civic Center court forced a postponement.

Rain also stopped the third game while Valdez Spuds Mackenzie was winning against Transpacific Anheuser, 68-54, with four minutes and 19 seconds left in the match. The two teams will resume play in a later date.

John Yabut made 25 points for Starlite in its encounter with Santos Eagle Snack to earn the weekly individual scoring title. Noel Gamboa of RB Ambros followed with 21 points, Eddie Baroga of Santos with 15 points and Tony Navarro of Agbanlog with 14 points.

Maryf's King Cobra will start action Nov.1 when it meets with Jen Marz Master Cellars. Agbanlog will follow in an encounter with Santos. Micro Phil will face RB Ambros in the third game and Normar will close the Sunday event in a game with RGG.

The four top teams in each division (Mar Pac and Ambros) will play against each other to pick two teams that will fight for the conference championship.

Garment industry to clean up

The local garment industry will be taking some strong steps to clean up its image — including enforcing a new code of ethics — according to industry spokesman, Richard A. Pierce.

President of Saipan Manufacturers, Inc. and the Garment Industry Association, Pierce says efforts will be taken to clean up operations internally and, at the same time, improve the industry's public image. Citing recent highly-publicized attacks on the CNMI garment industry by competing mainland union groups and mainland politicians, Pierce says the future of the local garment industry "is definitely in jeopardy of continuing unless serious measures are taken now."

One immediate step the Garment Association is taking is to develop a strict code of ethics for the local manufactuers. A special task force has been appointed to cover such issues as employee hiring, compensation and housing practices.

"It's apparent that stricter rules and enforcement are needed in the areas of employment and treatment of workers — one area where we're consistently criticized," said Pierce. "A code of ethics will ehlp CNMI companies to become more responsible, and also to allow us to better deal with offenders ourselves, instead of just allowing them to make a bad name for everyone."

Pierce said companies which don't follow the new code could be fined and suspended from the Association. "Additionaliy, the possibility does exist that if problems are not cleaned up, CNMI Customs can revoke manufacturers' export rights; Commerce & Labor can stop work and entry permits; and non-resident workers can be deported," said Pierce. "Of course, we hope such serious measures will not be necessary."

The Association is also requesting the support of several CNMI government departments to enforce safe employee housing regulations. In an October 21 letter to Director of Commerce and Labor Jesus R. Sablan, Pierce pointed out that TT PL 5-76 requires that employuee living quarters for more than 12 people be inspected prior to any new non-resident worker permits being approved for the industry, but that that hadn't been happening. Pierce asked for the assistance of the Department of Public Health, the Division of Environmental Quality, Waste Water Management, the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation, and the Sanitation Division to make sure all new and existing garment worker housing is inspected.

"However," Pierce added, "we understand that it is the employer's responsibility to provide a living quarters clearnace with any application for a non-resident work and entry permit."

Pierce said that the Association will also release information to the public over the next several weeks to help people better understand exactly what contributions the industry is making to the CNMI's economy.

"The garment industry is making very large contributions in terms of taxes, revenue to other local industries, and employment of more than 700 local people," said Pierce. "Without a doubt, we"re doing what the Department of Commerce says we should be doing in Headnote 3(a), but no one seems to know it."

The U.S. Department of Commerce, "General Headnote of Interpretation, T.S.U.S. 3(a) says the garment industry shall: 1) create jobs for local people in the private sector; 2) lessen dependency of the CNMI on Federal funding; and 3) create a tax base in the private sector.

Retail stores told to clean up shelves, update merchandise

Division of Public Health sanitarians handed out a big batch of "B" grades to some of Saipan's largest stores last week, as part of a new emphasis on retail establishments.

Chalan Kanoa's J & G Payless Supermarket was told to pull dented and rusty cans off shelves, to replace missing floor tiles and to dust and clean merchandise. The Hafa Adai Shopping Center in Garapan, also rated "B", was told to pull bottles and cans which are already past their expiration dates off the shelves.

Back in Chalan Kanoa, both the M.S. Villagomez Store and the Carmen Safeway Store and Bakery were rated "B". The Villagomez store was told to dust and clean merchandise and to get rid of sewer piping and overgrown weeds behind the establishment. Carmen Safeway was also told to break out the dust mops for merchandise and to clean up its warehouse.

Garapan's Olympic Market went from an initial "C" rating to an "A" on re-inspection, following an extensive cleanup.

The Royal and Three Star nightclubs, both in Chalan Kanoa, have received final warnings that they'l be closed if they don't satisfy health requirements. Both got "C" ratings.

The Bras Restaurant in Garapan and the Big Garden Restaurant in Chalan Kanoa got "C"s and also face deadlines. The Lucky Spot Restaurant in Garapan was closed for a day last week, but has been allowed to reopen, pending re-inspection.

"B" ratings went to the Chung Hua Restaurant in Chalan Kanoa and the Gateway Restaurant at Saipan International Airport.

The week wasn't all bad news for local retail stores. Joeten's CK Market and Herman's Food Basket in Garapan got "A" ratings. Morgen's Snack Bar in San Jose was also "A" rated, as were the El Segundo Restaurant, the Kanoa House Restaurant at the Chalan Kanoa Beach club and Kentucky Fried Chicken, all of Chalan Kanoa.

Cancer Society gets good start

A local branch of the American Cancer Society soon may be opened on Saipan. One large donation has been received and a group of interested persons has met to take the first steps.

Christie Anderson, Executive Director of the ACS Guam Unit, met Thursday, October 22, with 28 persons in an informational meeting to determine if there was sufficient interest to open a Saipan branch.

"I began in May looking to Saipan to determine the level of interest," Anderson said. "I have made five trips to Saipan since May and the idea of a CNMI branch has been received with enthusiasm. Now it is up to anyone interested to become involved and organize a local branch."

Duty Free Shoppers, Ltd., presented Anderson with a check for $2000.00, and Triple "J" Motors of Saipan announced it would donate a new automobile as part of a fund raising campaign.

"A CNMI Branch is not even organized and already you have great momentum," Anderson said. "The start up budget for the office has been met and it seems like fund raising is well on the way."

A CNMI Branch would operate under the umbrella of the Guam Unit. The Hawaii Pacific Division, the senior organization to Guam, could eventually recommend a Saipan Branch to become an independent unit, as Guam now is.

The CNMI organizing group named four informal committees—crusade, education, service and rehabilitation, publicity—to begin initial work on Saipan and publicize the possibility of a Commonwealth ACS Branch.

The crusade committee is responsible for fund raising. Education provides programs on cancer risk reduction and early detection to the community through schools and civic groups. Service and Rehabilitation provide services to cancer patients. The publicity committee will promote branch activities and provide educational messages through the media.

If a CNMI Branch is established a Branch Chairperson would be appointed by the Guam Unit President to administer the local branch. A Medical Chairperson, likely a physician, would be selected by the Branch Chairperson to educate other health professionals and publicize services to patients.

The American Cancer Society is a nationwide voluntary health organization dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by preventing cancer, saving lives from cancer, and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education, and service.
