Hillblom faces more surgery

HONOLULU (AP) - Multimillionaire businessman and lawyer Larry L. Hillblom, one of the founding partners of DHL Worldwide Express, was flown here for medical treatment Sunday after suffering facial injuries in the crash of a small plane on a Western Pacific island, officials said.

Hillblom, 50, apparently was piloting the single-engine Cessna 182 that flipped over and crashed while attempting a landing at the airport in Tinian.

"He suffered severe facial injuries," said Dr. Barbara Andrino of the Commonwealth Health Center. "He was awake and responsive when he left here."

The special chartered Continental Micronesia flight arrived here at noon Sunday and Hillblom was taken to Straub Hospital where he was reported in stable condition following an initial evaluation, a Straub spokesman said.

Hillblom was alert and there was no indication of neurological problems, the spokesman said.

Two others aboard the four-seater plane owned by Hillblom were injured in the accident that occurred at 4:50 p.m. Sunday.

Saipan lawyer Bruce Jorgensen, a business associate of Hillblom, was treated for minor injuries and Wife of drug ring suspect arrested

THE WIFE of an alleged member of a drug conspiracy ring was arrested Friday and charged with conspiracy to deliver, delivery and possession of a controlled substance.

Zennia V. Guevarra's arrest came two weeks after her husband and five other men were charged with the same offenses.

Guevarra was arrested when authorities picked up Felino early Friday evening in Garapan for violating court orders.

Special agent Johnny Sokau told the court that Felino was seen with his wife leaving the premises of the Philippine Consulate.

According to Sokau, Felino was allowed by his third party custodian, Lourdes Karingal, to go to his Garapan residence to get food and clothing.

Assistant Attorney General Russel Marsh said Zennia was implicated by two of her husband's alleged cohorts, Romeo Berones Ipil and Reymundo H. Lazaro.

The two men who have already turned state witnesses identified the Guevarra couple as the drug suppliers. The Guevarras being held on a $250,000 cash bail each.

Felino Guevarra and five other men were arrested late last month in a buy-bust operation involving a confidential government informant. The informant said he was able to purchase five packets of crystal methamphetamine worth $3,000 from the men. One man has already been released after being falsely identified as an alleged member of the drug ring.

Meanwhile, four of the 14 women arrested last week in the first crackdown on prostitution in Saipan pleaded innocent yesterday to the charges filed against them in Superior court.

Mi Hee Yu and Kim Soon Hyon pleaded not guilty to engaging in prostitution while Ok Soon Kim Pak and Yuan Huang pleaded innocent to promoting prostitution.

The arraignment of eight other women was reset to Aug. 23.

Superior Court Judge Marty Taylor also asked Evelyn Lo, an employee of the Double Shot Night Club in Gualo Rai and the owner of Fragrant Night Club in Susupe, Jun Guo Dong, to submit their financial statements to determine their capability to hire lawyer. Both were charged with promoting prostitution.

Dong and the 14 women were arrested in separate raids of the Double Shot Night Club, Fragrant Night Club, Bonita Night Club and the Executive Services.

The arrests came a month after special police agents conducted an undercover operation.

According to court information, the defendants allegedly offered sexual services for pay. Customers allegedly paid a price ranging from $50 to $450 for sexual services. The defendants have all been released to third party custodians.

Raise in prostitution, lewd shows worries Camacho

BISHOP Thomas A. Camacho has expressed worry over the proliferation of prostitution and lewd shows. He urged the government to stop such activities.

"My concern derives not from sexual prudishness but rather from a profound respect for the dignity of human beings and cherishing of the gift of human sexuality," Camacho said in a letter to Rep. Francisco A. Flores last week.

He said some sexual activities were performed with physical coercion, thereby reducing humans to the level of objects, which he termed as "the most vile of all human rights violations."

Public Law 8-14 outlaws prostitution in the CNMI.

"For this community to support such activities even passively by allowing it to flourish, is fundamentally wrong," Camacho said. "I fear for the future of this community if we continue on the path we seem to have taken."

Flores earlier introduced bills to prohibit lewd shows, ban private rooms without windows and outlaw sexual contact between night club employees and patrons.

"These establishments seem to be part of the 'economic development' so important to the CNMI," Camacho said. "However, I fail

PSS issues meal guidelines, rates

A NOMINAL meal charge of $0.40 per breakfast and $0.60 per hot lunch will be collected in public and private schools when classes open on Aug. 25 for children from families with incomes that exceed federal low-income guidelines.

Children from families that are below or meet these federal income guidelines are eligible for free meals.

Persons/Household	Gross Monthly Income
1	$467
2	$581
3	$695
4	$806
5	$921
6	$1,034
7	$1,151
8	$1,259

Using the federal income limitation table, for example, a household with two children (assume that two adults are in the household as well as the two children) are considered a household of four persons and thus will not have to pay for meals if their monthly income is $806 or less.

These federal guidelines are designed to insure that those children who cannot afford to pay for their meals are still able to eat.

Applications to receive free meals are available at the schools and at the PSS food service office in Lower Base for children of families that meet these income guidelines. Parents should fill-out an application and return it to the school their child attends if the parent wishes for their child to receive free meals beginning next school year.

Nutritious meals will be available at all the schools next year and can be purchased on a weekly basis. It is requested that parents send the meal money with their child every Monday.

Meal money will be collected by the lunch room teacher during the activity and announcement period at the beginning of school every Monday. Should a child be sick on a Monday, then the meals may be paid at a later date at the principal's office when the child returns to school.

The schools will also sell milk in half pints for $0.25 to those children who pack a lunch.

The Food Service Program will also be publicizing their menu on a monthly basis to better assist parents and students with a choice of whether to pack or buy a lunch.

How to get proper car repair

By Jerry E. Mesenbourg
Consumer Counsel, Office of the Attorney General

MANY consumers consider getting their cars repaired to be major cause for concern. Car repair problems are a primary source of consumer complaints.

Problems with auto repairs consistently rank among top four consumer complaints in states across the United States and are also a dilemma for consumers in the Commonwealth. Next to a house, an automobile is probably your most expensive purchase, and you want to protect your investment. The expense for auto repair is often great and consumer knowledge in the area is often scarce; the potential for fraud or deception clearly exists.

Although it is often difficult to quantify exactly how much money is lost by consumers to auto repair fraud, according to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) estimates from more than a decade ago, consumers spent more than $20 billion a year on unnecessary automobile repairs. That meant that almost 40 cents of every dollar spent on car repairs was wasted. The Center for Auto Safety stated in its 1990 "Lemon Book: that "NHTSA's findings of waste in auto repair are still true today."

The comprehensive multi-state settlement with Sears highlighted the widespread auto repair problem. In fact, a recently concluded investigation of certain fraudulent repair practices at 47 Sears Auto Centers in New York alone disclosed that the company's policy of paying its service advisors through incentive compensation plans, its goal - setting programs and employment of "service advisors" - whose true principal function was to generate the sale of auto repair services and products - resulted in unnecessary auto repairs and overcharges to consumers.

The use of incentive plans to compensate employees enables the service advisors to earn additional income above their generally minimal fixed hourly salary. Under the incentive compensation plan, the service advisor is paid a percentage of his/her sales. Thus, the service advisor's total income is directly depended upon his/her sales of repair services.

Further, the investigation disclosed that some repair shops set goals for specific product lines, e.g, shock absorbers. In addition, they run contests for both service advisors and Service Centers to see which individual and which Center has the greatest increase in sales of a particular product, e.g., springs, brake jobs, shocks, in a one-month period.

New York's Department of Law concluded that service advisors - in response to incentive compensation plans and goal - setting programs - frequently recommended and sold auto repair services and products that were unnecessary according to specifications established by the manufacturer of a motor vehicle or, if no manufacturer's specifications existed, accepted trade standards,

In some instances, service advisors wrote up bills for services that were not performed. According to their findings, the service advisors frequently hired by auto repair shops who inspect and diagnose customer's cars and recommend specific repairs often have little or no previous training or experience in auto mechanics.

These practices were not unique to one auto repair dealer but are nationwide in scope. Inadequately trained or inexperience personnel who are responsible for diagnosing and recommending repairs coupled with goal - setting programs and incentive compensation plans that are offered by shops to employees who sell repair services and products are just some examples of ways consumers seeking auto repairs are routinely "ripped off" or victimized. Car repairs you don't need, unsatisfactory workmanship, repairs you did not authorize, or misdiagnosis of your car's problem are often the results.

As an auto repair consumer, your best insurance against these kinds of occurrences is to find a reputable repair shop with mechanics you trust. It is safe advice and a good idea to look for an auto repair shop before you need one. emergency or crisis situations generally result in hasty decision-making and tend to increase costs.

Here are some common-sense suggestions for getting proper service and for avoiding unnecessary and costly repairs.

• For Any major car repair, get a second or third opinion to confirm the diagnosis. If you are unsure of the cause of your car's problem, consider going to a diagnostic center that offers a thorough evaluation using advanced testing equipment. Once you are confident about the diagnosis, telephone a couple of other shops for repair cost estimates.

* Get a written estimate. Insist that the written estimate expressly requires the repairman to obtain your oral or written authorization to exceed the written price estimate. Also, some facilities charge for estimates so ask if there will be a fee for one. If a facility charges a substantial inspection fee for providing an estimate, talk to other facilities. Another facility may be able to tell honestly what is wrong with your car and what it will cost to fix it without charging an inspection fee.

• Before signing a repair order, read it carefully. Ask for clarification of any item you don;t understand.

•You have a right to keep your replacement parts and you should do so. Place them in a box in your trunk until you are confident that repairs made were necessary and were performed properly. If you encounter any difficulty, these parts may greatly assist you in resolving your problems.

• Shop for repair shops that offer repair warranties on a voluntary basis. Some shops offer customers repair warranties of a certain length of time or number of miles covering the repairs listed in the invoice. Insist that all guarantees or repair warranties be put in writing.

• Ensure that the odometer reading when you leave your car at the shop to be serviced is recorded on the repair order, estimate or invoice. This precaution aids in preventing the unauthorized use of your vehicle by the repair shop or its employees.

• Before you pay the bill, go over the invoice to ensure that parts and labor are listed separated and that the repairs done are specifically itemized. Do not settle for an invoice which just lists "engine repair" instead of detailing the precise nature of the repairs done and the parts used. Demand that the repairer specify in the invoice whether the parts are new, rebuilt, reconditioned or used.

• In selecting an auto repair shop, get recommendations. Talk to friends and family, auto insurance agents, auto parts sales persons, mechanics, etc.

• Check the repair shop's complaint records with consumer protection organizations and business licensing bureaus. the shop you select should have few complaints registered against it and a good track record of resolving those that are.

• Look for a mechanic with experience working on the same model and make automobile as yours. Seek an auto mechanic with good credentials, updated knowledge and skills. The automobile industry is changing constantly. Some shops display ASE (Automotive Service Excellence) certification which indicates the mechanic has met basic standards of knowledge and competence in a specific technical area. But be careful. simply because a mechanic has passed an ASE test or has received other certification does not necessary mean he or she is outstanding or even honest.

• Interview mechanics who will diagnose your car's problem. Are they willing to answer your questions? Do they convey a positive, professional image? Are they interested in hearing about your car's performance and its problems?

• Feel free to ask the shop for the names of a few customers as references. Then call them.

• Look for a shop whose repair area is clean and well maintained.

Given the limited alternatives available on island to consumers in automobile repair servicing shops, it may be impractical to apply all of these guidelines. But, you owe it to yourself as an informed consumer to shop around to ensure you are getting what you pay for. With the 1991 national average shop labor rate for general auto repair at $34.26/hour, you cannot afford not to. A reputable auto repair shop will be willing to work with you to address your concerns.

Getting good service and more bang for your buck in these tough economic times and taking care of your second ensure not only your piece of mind but quality, cost-efficiency automobile repairs.

fined for observation of possible chest injuries, Dr. Andrino said.

Hillblom, who lives in Saipan, is chairman and owns 35 percent of United Micronesia Development Association which, in turn, is a major stockholder in Continental Micronesia, an airline subsidiary of Continental Airlines Holding Co.

He also serves as a special associate justice of the CNMI Supreme Court.

UMDA issued a statement yesterday saying Hillblom suffered no brain damage, his heart is strong and has no damage to the spine. He has a broken hand and broken ribs and has suffered multiple fractures of his facial bones.

Hillblom will undergo major facial reconstruction surgery next week either in Honolulu or California, UMDA said.

Frank Rosario, spokesman of Commonwealth Ports Authority who accompanied other CPA officials at the scene of the accident yesterday, said investigation would be conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration.

He said based on preliminary inquiry the plane had just taken off when it lost altitude, hit an ironwood tree about 100 feet from the airport perimeter, slammed into the ground and flipped.

The plane was a total wreck, Rosario said.

General surgeon Dr. R. Reilly Maginn graduated from St. Louis University School of Medicine where he also did his surgery training. He did further work as a research fellow at Harvard and Cambridge universities. After 12 years working in a surgical group doing thoracic, vascular and general surgery, he spent six years in Montana and three years in Samoa. He and his wife have also spent short tours of duty in Taiwan and the West Indies.

Teregeyo lauds drive against prostitution

REPRESENTATIVE Ana S. Teregeyo hailed the anti-prostitution drive launched by the police last week as a victory for law enforcement in the Commonwealth.

"This historic event should put everyone on notice that the Commonwealth will not condone or support any form of prostitution. This kind of activity is not only morally reprehensible, it also damages the moral fiber of our society," she said in an interview Friday.

Teregeyo authored House Bill 8-32, now Public Law 8-14, or the Anti-Prostitution Act.

Police officers raided four establishment Thursday and arrested 15 persons for promoting or engaging in prostitution.

Raided were the Executive Services in Garapan and Susupe, Bonita Nigh Club in Chalan Laulau and the Double Shot Night Club in Gualo Rai.

According to Teregeyo, such raids were long overdue in view of mounting complaints about possible prostitution in some of Saipan's night spots.

"It took over six months since the law was enacted for police to make arrests," Teregeyo said. "But I can sympathize with the delay because I am aware of the constraints they are facing."

Teregeyo said the department would also need additional funding to adequately address a problem that is moral in nature.

"I know we need to promote our islands in terms of tourism, but this type of activity creates further problems in the areas of peace and order and health. We need to find a balance between what is good morally and what is good for our economy," she said.

There are bills pending with the House of Representatives to ban lewd shows and to prohibit completely enclosed private rooms in night clubs and karaoke establishment. Both were introduced by Rep. Francisco A. Flores. (RHA) sex industry activities are related to a healthy tourist industry. If they are integral to development, then I question the desirability of such economic development. Must we turn the CNMI into a sewer in order to make a few dollars?"

Commenting on exotic dancing, the bishop said it might be difficult to prohibit such activity entirely because of the freedom of speech protection clause under the Constitution.

He expressed support to Flores' two bills because they would at least keep such dancing at the level of 'speech.'(RHA)

Pope to visit RP in '95

MANILA (AP) - Pope John Paul II will attend the World Youth Day conference in the Philippines in January 1995, government and Roman Catholic officials announced Sunday.

Presidential executive secretary Teofisto Guingona and Bishop Nestor Carino, secretary-general of the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines, said the visit would mark the 400th anniversary of the spread of Christianity to Asia's only predominantly Catholic country.

In addition to the youth conference, the pope also is expected to visit victims of the June 1991 eruption of the Mount Pinatubo volcano. Thousands still live in refugee camps north of Manila because volcanic avalanches threaten their homes.

The visit would be the pope's second to the Philippines. He visited the country in 1981. Church spokesman the Rev. James Reuter said the pope also expressed an interest in visiting Mindanao, second largest of the 7,100 Philippine islands.

Mindanao is the traditional homeland of the 6 million-strong Muslim minority and has been wracked by sectarian violence, including kidnappings of missionaries by Islamic rebels.

The church has been one of the most powerful institutions since Spanish missionaries arrived here in the 16th century. About 85 percent of the country's 65 million people are nominally Catholic.

Religious leaders played a key role in the 1986 uprising that toppled the late President Ferdinand Marcos and propelled Corazon Aquino to the presidency.

Since Mrs. Aquino left office last year, the church has seen its influence over state policy decline. Her successor, Fidel Ramos, is the Philippines' first Protestant president, and church leaders have condemned his program to curb population growth.

The Catholic hierachy also has been concerned about the rapid growth of Protestant denominations, especially "born again" sects whose leaders have political ties to Ramos.

Ramos plans crackdown on mayors

MANILA (AP) - President Fidel Ramos has threatened a crackdown on "abusive" local officials following the arrest of a mayor linked to the rape and murder of a woman college student.

Antonio Sanchez, mayor of Calauan, 75 kilometers (45 miles) southeast of Manila, was arrested Friday for allegedly failing to report his personal assets.

Justice Department officials said he also would be charged Monday with the rape-murder of Eileen Sarmenta, 20, who was slain in June with a male companion, Allan Gomez.

The case attracted nationwide attention because it involved an elected official in a country with a long history of government corruption.

In a speech Saturday in Laoag, Ramos said that following Sanchez's arrest, local officials involved in illegal activities "will now think twice."

"No more mayors of that kind," Ramos said. "If the law does not catch them, certainly people from those constituencies will."

Sanchez has denied any involvement in the rape-slaying.

Manila newspapers have reported numerous allegations against Sanchez, whose town has a reputation for illegal gambling and as a dumping ground for victims murdered in Manila.

The Philippine Daily Inquirer quoted unnamed police sources Sunday as saying investigators have identified four mass graves of an estimated 50 murder victims in Caluan and will begin exhumations this week.

Japan urged to review treatment of neighbors

MANILA (AP) - Japan should not only admit responsibility for World War II, but also review the whole way it deals with Asian neighbors it conquered nearly a half-century ago, a Philippine newspaper said Sunday.

Sunday marked the 48th anniversary of Japan's surrender. Japan's new prime minister, Morihiro Hosokawa, has described the Pacific conflict as a "war of aggression."

His remark contrasted with the vague language of previous Japanese governments.

In an editorial Sunday, The Manila Standard said Japan also should take stock of the way it deals with other nations throughout the Asia-Pacific region.

"Japan will have many problems with its neighbors if it fails to come up with a satisfactory answer to the question of how it is to treat foreigners who are working in Japan, especially those who are engaged in jobs that are difficult, dirty, dangerous and demeaning," the editorial said.

"There is little point to Prime Minister Hosokawa's admission of aggression 50 years ago if it does not carry a commitment to review critically Japan's behavior today."

Japanese forces struck at the Philippines, which then was a US commonwealth, hours after the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor in December 1941. Japanese troops inflicted the worst defeat ever suffered by American forces when a US-Filipino force surrendered five months later.

American troops returned in October 1944 and defeated the Japanese in some of the fiercest fighting of the Pacific Theater.

Condolences offered to Asian war victims

By Peter Landers

TOKYO (AP) - New Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa, who already had labeled Japan the aggressor in World War II, broke another precedent Sunday by offering condolences to other nations' war victims on the 48th anniversary of Japan's surrender.

Hosokawa's statement and lower house speaker Takako Doi's blunt admission that Japan caused "horrible sacrifices" for Asians contrasted with the vague language of previous leaders in a nation that has struggled to come to terms with its war responsibility.

"I would like to take this opportunity to express my humble condolences to victims of the war and their families in the neighboring countries of Asia and around the world," Hosokawa said at an official ceremony marking Japan's surrender to allied forces on Aug. 15, 1945.

Among the 7,200 people attending were Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko. Akihito bowed deeply before a flower-adorned altar and led the participants in a minute of silence.

Hosokawa was sworn in last Monday as the leader of a coalition government that expelled the conservative Liberal Democrats from power for the first time in 38 years.

The coalition includes the left-leaning Socialists, who long have called for Japan to make a clearer apology to Asian victims of Japanese aggression in World War II.

"We still have not achieved reconciliation with Asian peoples who were forced to undergo horrible sacrifices because of our errors," said Doi, the first women house speaker and a longtime Socialist member.

Hosokawa surprised some Japanese by stating flatly at his inaugural news conference last week that World War II was a "war of aggression, a mistaken war." While previous prime ministers had said more or less the same thing, they always used vaguer language.

Similarly, other prime ministers have mentioned the lessons of World War II in their speeches at the annual Aug. 15 ceremony, but none had specifically given condolences to Asian victims of the war.

Leaders of the ruling coalition have talked of passing a formal resolution of apology for the war in Parliament. But many older Japanese say they feel Japan is being singled out unfairly as the sole instigator of the war.

Lee calls for unity in Taiwan

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) - President Lee Teng-hui on Sunday urged members of the governing Nationalist Party, hit last week by an embarrassing defection, to unite to build a democratic Taiwan.

"This party faces internal disputes, competition from other parties, and even malicious criticism," Lee said on the eve of the party's 14th congress, which will discuss political reforms and elect new party leaders.

"These are typical phenomena in the process of democratization," he added.

Lee, who is also chairman of the Nationalist Party, said members should abandon their prejudices and build Taiwan into a free and prosperous society for eventual reunification with mainland China.

Last week, six maverick legislators quit the Nationalists to form a group called the New Party.

It was the first major split in the governing party since the Nationalists fled to Taiwan in 1949 after losing a civil war to Communist forces on mainland China.

The maverick lawmakers have accused the Nationalists of being corrupt and obsessed with money politics.

They said the governing party did not learn the lessons of December's legislative elections, when the Nationalists saw their share of the popular vote drop to 53 percent from 61 percent in the 1989 elections.

With the split, the nationalists lost six of their 101 seats in the 160-member parliament. The opposition Democratic Progressive Party holds 52 seats.

Analysts said the 70-year-old president would be re-elected as party chairman.

100 hurt in clash with cops

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) - More than 100 people were injured Sunday when police clashed with thousands of protestors demanding that leaders of a 1975 military coup stand trial.

Police fired tear gas shells to stop the illegal rally, and demonstrators retaliated with crude homemade bombs, eyewitnesses said.

The protest came hours after a dawn-to-noon nationwide strike called by the main opposition party. The strike crippled life in Dhaka, a city of 7 million people, and most businesses and traffic came to a halt.

The strike was called by the Awami League of Sheikh Hasina, a longtime rival of Prime Minister Khaleda Zia. Hasina is the daughter of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, a national independence leader assassinated in the 1975 coup.

The League wants the government to revoke a law that protects coup leaders from trial. Mrs. Zia set up a Parliamentary panel on the law two years ago, but opposition leaders say the government is stalling. The 1975 coup was led by about a dozen army officers, some of them now in politics and diplomatic missions. Bangladesh became independent from Pakistan in 1971.

Man scares swimmers

KOBE, Japan (AP) - A knife-wielding young Japanese man scared several American women swimmers and a number of Japanese spectators Sunday outside the site of the Pan Pacific Swimming Championships, an official said.

The man, dressed in black and carrying a 40-centimeter (16-inch) knife, rushed at a group of people coming out of the Kobe Port Island Sports Center Pool after morning heats of the championships, press officer Seiichi Sakurai said.

"Some Japanese women yelled out a warning to the swimmers which they didn't initially understand, but they could feel a sense of danger and ran back inside the pool," Sakurai said.

Sakurai said the Americans were not attacked and were never in any real danger. No injuries were reported, he added.

He was uncertain which Americans had been in the area at the time. The man escaped on the local monorail, Sakurai said.

Police were investigating.

Chinese activist roughed up

HONG KONG (AP) - A leading Chinese labor activist said Sunday he was roughed up by security officers and deported from China after being accused of engaging in subversive activities abroad against the Chinese government.

Han Dongfang, who was trying to return home after receiving treatment for tuberculosis in the United States, said about 10 policemen barged into his hotel room in the southern city of Canton Saturday morning and told him he was being expelled.

The labor activist said the policemen told him he had engaged in subversive activities against China and taunted him when he refused to leave voluntarily, saying he should be happy to be returning to a "free country."

The policemen also took US d$1,000 from Han and bought him an air ticket from Hong Kong to Switzerland, the dissident said.

When he was being escorted from the hotel to a car, Han said, he cried out that he wanted to remain in China .

55,000 Koreans form chain to symbolize unification

By Ju-Yeon Kim

FREEDOM BRIDGE, South Korea (AP) - As church bells rang and choirs sang, more than 55,000 South Koreans joined hands Sunday in a 48-kilometer (30-mile)-long human chain symbolizing reunification with long-time rival North Korea.

It was the largest unification event ever sponsored by civilians in South Korea.

South Korean organizers said North Korean church groups agreed to co-sponsor a human chain across the border, but withdrew at the last minute, apparently on orders from North Korea's Communist government.

Meanwhile, about 5,000 radical students shouting "unification!" defied the government by rallying on a Seoul campus, while thousands of combat-clad riot police stood by to deter violence.

Scattered clashes erupted as bands of several hundred students were blocked from the rally site by police firing tear gas. No arrests or injuries were reported.

The events highlighted the Aug. 15 anniversary of the end of Japanese colonial rule over Korea in 1945, a day that annually brings an outpouring of emotion calling for peace and unity.

Old people, children in school uniforms, housewives, farmers and monks - thousands of people who had never met - tied individually held rainbow-colored ribbons together to form a single ribbon running along Highway Route 1 from Seoul to the border.

The throngs clasped hands, raised their arms together and swayed with ribbons in the air as they sang "My wish is unification, my dream is unification ...."

The chain of hands and ribbon ran from Seoul's Independence Arch to the barbed wire barricades at Freedom Bridge, bordering the heavily armed Demilitarized Zone, 48 kilometers (30 miles) to the north. Thousands of police were deployed along the route to direct traffic. The event sponsored by the National Council of Churches had been approved by the government. At the same time, the government banned dissident and radical student rallies, claiming they were political in nature.

"I have no family in the North, but since we're all one people, I feel as if I do," said Seok Kwon-sa, 81, who wept as she thrust a bouquet of flowers into the chain link fence on the border.

Navratilova takes home 165th title

By Beth Harris

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Martina Navratilova rallied from a 1-5 second-set deficit to defeat top-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario 7-5, 7-6 (6-4) for her 165th career singles title Sunday in the Virginia Slims of Los Angeles.

Navratilova, the second seed and defending champion, has reached the final 11 times and won eight titles here. She improved to 32-4 this year with her fourth tournament victory.

The winner's check for $75,000 pushed Navratilova's career earnings to more than $17 million.

Sanchez Vicario, whose only victory in 14 matches against Navratilova came in 1990 on clay, opened a 2-0 lead in the second set. Navratilova trailed 0-30 on her serve before recovering to climb to 1-2. Sanchez Vicario then took over and won the next three games for a 5-1 lead, appearing ready to force a third set.

That's when Navratilova began her comeback - winning four straight games to tie the set 5-5.

a ball will spin out instead of spinning in. We call it 'being painted.'"

Azinger's putt ran by less than half an inch, so they matched pars then went back to the 10th tee. Both landed on a fairway hill overlooking a creek and the green. Norman hit his second shot on the green, 20 feet behind and to the left of the pin. Azinger then turned up the pressure by landing just 6 feet to the right of the pin.

"I was so nervous," Azinger said. "My heart was beating so hard I could feel my eyeballs flashing."

Norman, figuring he'd need a birdie despite the distance, shockingly left his putt 4 feet short after putting aggressively all afternoon.

"I misread the speed of the first putt," Norman said. "I thought it would be a lot quicker than what it was. I guess that's my excuse and I'm going to stick with it."

Azinger gave Norman a momentary reprieve by curling his putt around the lip on the right of the cup. He tapped in, and that left Norman needing to make his putt to force another playoff hole.

Norman studied the putt, not showing any signs of nerves. Azinger stood off the green behind Norman's back, bowing his head and looking away from the hole. At the last moment, Azinger turned his head and saw Norman's ball curl around the lip of the cup.

Championship for Azinger, more misery for Norman.

Azinger, who lost a playoff to Norman in the 1992 Doral-Ryder Open, is a 33-year-old who had long been known as the best player never to win a major. No longer. And in addition to the title and trophy, he won a tidy $300,000 to boost him to the top of the PGA money list with $1.3 million this year.

Norman, despite winning his second British Open title last month, is almost making a career of losing playoffs in majors - the 1984 US Open against Fuzzy Zoeller, the 1987 Masters against Larry Mizé, the 1989 British Open against Mark Calcavecchia. This one against Azinger, gives Norman an unwanted full set of playoff losses in golf's most prestigious events.

STELLA WILDER

YOUR BIRTHDAY

By Stella Wilder

Born today, you are a supremely talented and able individual with so many diverse and complex interests that you will never be able to limit yourself to a single line of work or a single course of endeavor — either in your personal life or your career. You will always be the sort to explore all options and to dive into as many interesting and attractive endeavors as you can throughout your lifetime. You are not the kind to rest on your laurels or wait around for life to happen to you.

Your life is likely to evolve as a repeating series of alternatively good and bad times — though, in the eyes of others, your bad times may be nothing, really, to worry about. Still, as far as you are concerned, your bad times are your business, and you are the one who has to cope with them when they arise.

Also born on this date are: Mae West, film actress; Robert De Niro, actor; Belinda Carlisle, singer.

To see what is in store for you tomorrow, find your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Emphasize your connection with those in the know today. Do what you can to broaden your horizons.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You may not be able to keep tensions entirely at bay today. Trust family members to be on your side.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You'll have your head full of facts and figures throughout the day. You can be sure they'll come in handy eventually.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You're going through changes at this time which may make even minor decisions more difficult than expected.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You're likely to find yourself attracted to someone who is more assertive, more authoritative than you are.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — It's important for you to share information today — even with rivals and competitors. Don't be secretive!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Your self-image may be bent out of shape for a time today, as a result of unexpected challenges in routine situations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You'll enjoy an increased sense of accomplishment today. You'll rely quite heavily on your own confidence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Two dominant, competitive forces in your nature may be competing today. You must remain rational, in control.

Edberg needed three sets to knock off top-ranked Pete Sampras on Saturday night. He then played a doubles match that lasted past midnight in the Thriftway-sponsored event.

But neither showed any serious effects, other than Chang's lapse in the second set when he couldn't hold serve.

The only service break in the first set came in the 11th game, when Chang went to 6-5 and then served for the set.

Thompson. . .

She missed victory only in the 200-meter freestyle, while taking golds in the 50- and 100-meter freestyle, the 100-meter butterly, the 400- and 800-meter freestyle relays and the 400-meter medley relay.

Evans already had won gold in the 400-meter freestyle and 800-meter freestyle relay.

American Allison Wagner, 16, set a meet record of 2:12.54 in the women's 200-meter individual medley, breaking the 1991 mark of 2:14.04 set by American Summer Sanders in 1991.

Hitomi Maehara was second in 2:14.60 and Australian Elli Overton third in 2:15.45.

Over Reef Yacht Club plans 'pirate attack'

PIRATES from Saipan's Over The Reef Yacht Club will be invading the island on Aug. 22 at 9 a.m.

The fun-filled event will find the island's sailors clad in pirate costumes navigating the lagoon for clues, booty and a few surprises along their journey.

The event is open to all sailors and non-sailors. Boats are still available for capable, sea-worthy captains. Capable skippers may arrange for a total of four able-bodied crew members to make passage. Skippers are responsible for making sure their vessel is sea-worthy prior to the event.

A pot-luck luncheon ceremony is planned afterwards and each team is required to prepare grub for all to share.

Entry fee is $30 per boat. Registration deadline is Thursday, August 19. Pirates planning to sail, or who would like to help, may contact event coordinators Dave Rothbaum at 322-5546, or Joe Husslein at 256-7245.

Christie rules century dash

By Bert Rosenthal

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) - The race had all the glitz, glamor and glory of an Olympic final - and Britain's Linford Christie savored it all.

It was the 100-meter final at the World Championships Sunday night, and the 33-year-old Briton, the 1992 Olympic champion, capitalized on the magic moment with the greatest performance of his life - winning in 9.87 seconds.

In winning in the second-fastest time in history, Christie beat a stunning array of sprint talent.

It included Carl Lewis, the three-time world champion, two-time Olympic gold medalist and world record-holder at 9.86; the 2-3 finishers at the '92 Games, Frank Fredericks of Namibia and Dennis Mitchell of the United States; the previous 1993 world leaders, American Andre Cason and Nigeria's Daniel Effiong, and 1993 world indoor 60-meter champion Bruny Surin of Canada.

Just as Christie had gained the title of "World's Fastest Human" at Barcelona last year, he reassured it with a powerful performance that left his rivals gasping.

"I'm just so happy," the broadly smiling Christie said after his stunning effort. "It's the happiest day of my life.

"Everybody was here. Nobody was missing. Barcelona was something big; today was just as special. It's nice to beat everybody. I showed I'm the best."

He emphasized it by blasting out of the blocks forcefully, and wearing down his opponents with a relentless pursuit of the finish line.

When he arrived there, he conducted his own victory celebration. He spread his arms out, then thrust his right fist into the air, awed and overjoyed with his performance.

He then jogged over to the stands, was given a British flag and continued punching the air in delight. Then, on his victory lap, he continually was stopped by happy fans, offering congratulations.

"The race was a piece of genius," British team coach Frank Dick said. "He (Christie) crafted a masterpiece."

He needed it, as the top seven finishers ran 10.04 or faster.

Cason, the little dynamo who had run the two-fastest times of his life, 9.96 and 9.94, in the quarterfinals and semifinals, respectively, was even better, finishing second in 9.92.

Mitchell, the only one to beat Christie out of the blocks and coming back from a recent leg injury, finished third in 9.99.

Lewis, who was at the back of the field with 30 meters remaining, rallied for fourth in 10.02. But his failure to medal ended his magnificent streak of success in world championship and Olympic competition.

In 18 previous events in those two major tests for track and field athletes, he had collected an unparelleled 16 golds and two silvers.

"It's been a bad year for me," Lewis, 32, said after congratulating Christie. "I just haven't been concentrating like I should - and it showed. I did not run well.

"I've had years like this before, but they weren't in championship years ... This was something I needed. It is hard to stay motivated when you win, win, win. I'm going to take this as a jab, not a knockout punch. "After this, I'm going to take a vacation for the first time since 1981, and then I'll be back, I'll be ready. It was not a matter of shape, because I showed I'm fast in the way I was closing. But I didn't run mechanically well."

Christie did.

"That was my best start ever," he said.

Only two years ago, Christie, tired of chasing Lewis, had announced his retirement. But he changed his mind and returned last year to earn the biggest prize of his career - the Olympic gold medal.

That event, however, had a missing ingredient. Lewis was not there, having failed to make the US team.

Sunday, the deck was stacked, and Christie dealt himself a winning hand.

He also earned a new Mercedes Benz, a gift worth between $25,000-$30,000, given to every world champion this year. Upon leaving the medal podium, he carried a miniature version of the car.

And, as usual, he was smiling.

Following the top four came Surin in 10.02, a Canadian record; Fredericks in 10.03, and Effiong in 10.04.

The winning time even surprised Christie.

"I never thought I could run this quick," he said. "9.90, maybe ... " Comparing this victory to the Olympics, he said, "This was special because of the time here.

Thompson hikes gold harvest to 6

By Michio Yoshida

KOBE, Japan (AP) - Jenny Thompson won the women's 50-meter freestyle and added gold in the 400-meter medley relay Sunday, finishing the Pan Pacific Swimming Championships with six gold medals from seven races.

Janet Evans captured her third gold of the meet by winning the women's 800-meter freestyle.

In all, American swimmers won seven races Sunday, finishing the championships with 23 to eight for Australia, which won three on Sunday. New Zealand, Costa Rica and Japan took one gold medal each in the races at Kobe Port Island Sports Center.

Australia's Kieren Perkins won his third gold of the meet Sunday, breaking his own 2-year-old meet record in the men's 1,500-meter freestyle - 14 minutes, 59.79 seconds - with a race of 14:55.92. He had won the 400 and 800 earlier.

Australian compatriot Daniel Kowalski followed in 15:06.77, with American Carlton Bruner third in 15:16.64.

The 20-year-old Thompson, from Dover, N.H., equaled the gold haul of Franzis van Almsick of Germany at the European Swimming Championships at Sheffield, England, in early August.

Azinger realizes wildest dream

By Steve Wilstein

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) - It was Greg Norman's recurring nightmare and Paul Azinger's wildest dream, one of the greatest PGA Championships ever ending in a sudden-death playoff on a tantalizing putt that refused to fall.

Seven years after Norman lost the PGA at Inverness on Bob Tway's bunker shot on the 72nd hole, the Australian left the same course as runnerup again.

Azinger, the seventh first-time major winner in the past eight PGA Championships, shot 68 to Norman's 69 to tie him after 72 holes at 12-under-par 272.

Two holes later he had the major championship that had long avoided him. And Norman had another disappointment.

Nick Faldo, who left the course with the lead with Norman and Azinger still playing, shot 68 to finish alone in third at 273. Vijay Singh, who also shared the lead during the round, shot 70 for fourth at 274.

Tom Watson took a run at his dream of completing a career Grand Slam, but his trophy case will remain devoid of the PGA trophy for at least another year after his 72 left him 5 strokes off the lead alone in fifth.

Norman and Azinger exchanged a hard high-five when they met at the scorer's trailer after Norman barely missed a birdie putt on the 72nd hole that would have given him the championship instead of another playoff.

Each narrowly lost a chance to win on the first hole of the playoff, Norman's 15-foot birdie putt lipping the cup and spinning away.

"They paint the tip of the cup right to the rim," Norman explained. "It gets very hard and crusty by the end of the day. And

Chang avoids shutout to win ATP crown

By Terry Kinney

MASON, Ohio (AP) - Michael Chang rebounded from being shut out in the second set and beat Stefan Edberg 7-5, 0-6, 6-4 in the final of the $1.65 million Thriftway ATP Championship on Sunday.

Chang broke Edberg only twice in the match, but that was enough as he won his third title on the ATP Tour this year. He also won at Jakarta, Indonesia, and Osaka, Japan.

Edberg, seeking his third ATP Championship after winning here in 1987 and 1990, still had a chance to salvage a doubles title. He and Henrik Holm were to play Andre Agassi and Petr Korda in a later match.

Chang, 21, reached the championship by beating Agassi in three sets Saturday, and Sunday's match was almost a replay. Against Agassi, he won a close first set, appeared to collapse in the second, then rallied to win.

"I tend to have longer matches, for some reason," Chang said, who needed three sets to win his last three matches. "It doesn't matter the season or the surface."

Both players had reason to feel fatigued Sunday. Chang experienced nausea and dehydration in his match against Agassi, and
