New alien labor bill submitted to House
Bill's author says alien labor cap to be addressed in a separate measure

By Rafael H. Arroyo

THE HOUSE Committee on Commerce and Tourism has wrapped up its work on the much-anticipated House bill to regulate resident and alien labor in the Commonwealth and reorganize the Department of Commerce and Labor. According to Rep. Francisco DLG. Camacho who chairs the committee, he has prepared House Bill 8-336 before the House of Representatives and will be ready for introduction during the next House session.

“We have worked closely with the Attorney General’s Office as well as with the Department of Commerce and Labor in coming up with one final product that would address the inconsistencies cited in the previous measure. I think this is a more acceptable piece of legislation,” said Camacho in an interview yesterday.

House Bill 8-336 is expected to help the Department of Commerce and Labor in the enforcement of CNMI labor, better than its predecessor, House Bill 8-15, would do.

One of its main purposes is to strengthen labor enforcement and to give preference to the indigenous labor force rather than alien workers. House Bill 8-15 was earlier passed by both the House and the Senate only to be sent back to the Legislature by the governor after the Attorney General noticed several inconsistencies that need further revisions.

At the same time, the Legislature was asked to also incorporate in the alien labor bill conditions spelled out by US Senator J. Bennett Johnston for the CNMI to receive $702 million.

But according to Camacho, he did not incorporate a provision in the bill to freeze the alien labor population, adding a separate bill is in order if the issue of a moratorium is to be addressed.

“We want to treat the issue of alien labor capping separately because of the hardship associated with its imposition. We maintain that with our limited labor resources here, it would be difficult if not impossible for us to shut the door on non-resident workers. We do not want to cripple the business community,” said Camacho in an interview yesterday.

Three youngsters stage daring holdup

By Rafael H. Arroyo

THREE youngsters, one of them wielding a handgun of unknown caliber, staged a daring robbery-holdup at the Mercury Drug Store in Garapan last Friday evening and carted away some $200 in cash, this was learned yesterday. The incident was reported around 7:04 in the evening Oct. 8. No arrests were made. Investigation showed the three suspects just walked into the drug store shortly before 7:00 in the evening. One of them pointed a gun to the cashier, demanding money. After getting $200 from the register, they then broke the store’s telephone and fled on foot. DPS public information officer Cathy Sheu described the suspects.

Voters in US territory express preference on political status

By SAM DIMEO

CHRISTIANSTED, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) - Virgin Islanders voted Monday in the first of as many as four polls which may decide this Caribbean territory's future relationship with the United States.

But delays, lack of voter interest and inadequate promotion have prompted political observers in this U.S. territory of about 110,000 residents to predict a low turnout. A majority of the 39,000 voters must take part in the balloting for it to be recognized here, or else another vote would be scheduled. The vote is not binding on the U.S. Congress. A similar, more publicized vote taking place Nov. 14 in Puerto Rico, the largest and most populous outlying U.S. territory.

Voters are being asked to select one of three categories - an "enanced" version of the current status as an unincorporated territory, statehood or independence. The United States purchased St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John from Denmark for $77 million in 1917, partly to prevent them from falling under German control during World War I.

Lines were short Monday morning in polling places. The process, if not complicated, is at least tiresome - as many as four votes, including runoffs, could be held through Jan. 17. A runoff will be held between the top two options if one does not receive a simple majority of the vote Monday. Another runoff would be held to determine various choices among the winning option. Most local politicians, including Gov. Alexander Farrelly, have urged voters to opt for territorial status.

Farrelly has stated that the territory is simply too small to receive serious consideration to become the 51st U.S. state. The local Senate makes laws, but the U.S. Congress has the ultimate authority over the territory. Residents are U.S. citizens but do not vote in presidential elections.

Ramos denounces report about alleged former mistress

MANILA (AP) - President Fidel Ramos on Monday branded as "indecisive and gossip" a published report that an alleged former mistress wielded considerable power behind the scenes in his government.

The Center for Investigative Journalism, which syndicates articles to Philippine newspapers, reported that Rose-Marie "Baby" Jimenez-Arenas "is said to have had a relationship" with Ramos and that she used her influence to win appointments for her friends in government.

The center said it offered the two-part series to all of Manila's major English-language dailies. But only one, the Philippine Daily Inquirer, published the report.

The Inquirer, the second largest circulation daily in the country, printed the first installment Monday. Several leading radio stations broadcast portions of the story and one, DZXL, congratulated the two reporters who wrote the report and the Inquirer for publishing it.

Ramos did not categorically deny any relationship with the socialite and former model. "The Philippine Daily Inquirer article today on an alleged past relationship is a compilation of innuendos and gossip that have been previously talked of and written about," Ramos said in a nationally televised news conference.

"I assure our people and leaders that my decisions are my own, and are never influenced by extraneous factors," he added. "The issues do not involve the degreed presidency in its main program of instituting basic reforms, attending to people's welfare and moving the Philippines forward," Ramos said.

Ramos is married and the father of five daughters. But rumors of his relationship with Ms. Arenas have floated for years. There was no comment from Ms. Arenas, known as "Katzie" because of her fondness for white foundation makeup.

In a report, the center said Ramos' advisers had become concerned over Ms. Arenas' perceived influence and lobbying for government posts on behalf of her friends.

"Rather than defuse the situation, Almone's association with Arenas seems to perpetuate the perception that she is indeed powerful and has access to Malacanang (presidential palace)," the report said.

MANILA (AP) - About two-thirds of major national highways in the Philippines are in deplorable condition and half of the village roads will have to be rebuilt, a government study said.

The Center for Investigative Journalism, which syndicates articles to Philippine newspapers, reported that Rose-Marie "Baby" Jimenez-Arenas "is said to have had a relationship" with Ramos and that she used her influence to win appointments for her friends in government.

But be said the government collects about twice as much from road use fees such as tolls, license tags and registration fees than it spends on highway maintenance.

"We know that all over the Philippines, DPWH funds are misused by politicians and private individuals," Romulo said during hearings of the Senate Finance Committee. "This is a very serious matter. Something should be done about this."

The Philippines suffers from chronic problems in virtually all areas of infrastructure, including electricity, telephones, railways and port facilities.

Much of this is due to mismanagement during the administrations of Ferdinand Marcos and Corazon Aquino. Public works projects were slowed down in the final years of the Marcos administration due to the nation's political instability and financial crisis.

Mrs. Aquino's economic austerity programs, geared to free funds to pay the domestic and foreign debt, continued the problem.

Massive flooding may continue for years

By EILEEN GUERRERO

MANILA (AP) - A Cabinet member Tuesday predicted major floods such as those which killed 57 people last week will persist for years because debris from the Mount Pinatubo volcano has silted up rivers north of Manila.

Public Works Secretary Gregorio Vigilar recommended that the government forego new infrastructure projects in central Luzon because of the volcanic eruption and its aftermath.

"There will be massive flooding. This is just the start. The most prudent thing to do is to not build massive infrastructure and wait for two years to determine the flow," Vigilar told the Senate Finance Committee.

Last week, Typhoon Fler triggered floods and avalanches of volcanic debris piled up slopes of the Zambales Mountains by the June 1991 eruption of Mount Pinatubo, 110 kilometers (68 miles) northwest of Manila.

On Monday, the Office of Civil Defense said at least 57 people were killed in the flooding and another 43 are missing. More than 1.7 million people were displaced by the disaster.

The Pinatubo eruption, one of the world's largest this century, caused more than 700 deaths, altered weather patterns throughout the northern hemisphere, left hundreds of thousands homeless and forced the U.S. Air Force to close Clark Air Base.

Although the volcano is quiet, scientists predict the avalanches will continue for years during the annual rainy season, which runs from June to November.

Because of heavy silt in the rivers, even moderate amounts of rain can result in major flooding.

Vigilar estimated it would cost $4.8 billion to rehabilitate central Luzon because of the volcanic eruption and its aftermath.

His recommendations against infrastructure projects, such as dikes to protect against flooding, is similar to the advice of scientists.

Against that advice, the government has reportedly been trying to come up with a solution for the problem since early part of this year.

It has reportedly tried to offer the families other parcels of land as an exchange for their land in the project site.

The families are said to be contributing ownership of about 2.5 hectares each from the public land component of the project site.

MPLC has reportedly been trying to come up with a solution for the problem since early part of this year.

"We definitely wanted the project to go forth because this will be good for the people of the Commonwealth in terms of the employment it will generate and the additional revenues it will contribute to the island economy," said Manglona in an interview yesterday.

Manglona, who is chairman of the Rota senatorial district delegation, asked that MPLC act with dispatch in resolving the matter.

"We definitely wanted the project to go forth because this will be good for the people of the Commonwealth in terms of the employment it will generate and the additional revenues it will contribute to the island economy," said Manglona in an interview yesterday.

Dear Editor,

The 20 percent local quota imposed on our garment industry is a quintessential example of negative results emanating from positive intentions. When our leaders decided to adopt legislation mandating our garment industry to employ sufficient locals to come at least to 20 percent of their total staff, the overriding motive was to ensure that "resident workers" would not be disenfranchised from the labor market by cheap and skilled imported labor. Now, after a year since the 20 percent local quota was enacted, we can see that the commendable intentions of our leaders in passing this law—to protect our resident workforce—have not been—and are not being—accomplished. Instead, the exact opposite of protecting our resident workforce, is emerging from the garment industry.

Despite the technological advances in the manufacturing industry, which makes machines and computers bear a greater share of much labor; and much labor disproportionately falls on our garment industry, it is more expensive, muscle jobs available than mind-driven careers. Because muscle jobs come cheap and mind work is more expensive, muscle jobs are less desirable and more widely available, which forces the 20 percent quota to produce severe "negative externalities" in the labor intensive, muscle-driven, garment manufacturing industry, because the government is essentially continuing the garment industry to hire locals for menial low-paying jobs they do not have the education in the first place, don’t want.

Now, liberals and the Feds, might suggest that garment wages be increased to Extract locals, but that would simply be too impractical and unprofitable, for the very nature of the industry dictates much labor; and much labor demands low wages because garment workers don’t sell their "prices of computers or electronics. As it is the 20 percent local quota imposed on our garment industry, is not now protecting—nor has it ever protected—the local people against exploitation alienation, because the majority of those garment jobs are by necessity low-paying muscle jobs that no local desires, particularly because, unlike contract workers, he receives no meal or housing subsidies.

What the quota is doing, however, is working contrary to the interests of the true resident workforce and population, by forcing the garment industry to recruit Micronesians—Palaunans and Trukese, for example—in droves to comply with the quota. The flood of Micronesians into our garment industry is a quintessential example for the Commonwealth for 21 years serving the Marianas Variety'$P*

Oriental press may start Hong Kong third English Newspaper

By JOHN LEICESTER

HONG KONG (AP) - Oriental Press Group Ltd., publisher of Hong Kong's best-selling Chinese-language newspaper, is considering launching the colony's third English-language daily, a senior company executive said Monday.

But Herman Hui, the company's executive director, denied reports that Oriental Press had definite plans to set up a new English daily in Hong Kong shortly.

"There are quite a few hurdles to overcome before we will say a definite yes," Hui said, adding that the group had yet to carry out detailed feasibility studies.

The government-owned Radio Television Hong Kong announced Monday that it was not a proper time to reopen the matter, but denied the decision was directly prompted by Kuok's purchase into the Morning Post.

"It would not be that expensive ... because we have all the facilities, except the human resources," he said.

"I supported having the Samoan Housing Beach in Garapan for a public park, but the Governor told me to lay off and let his friend Nakamoto build his hotel there.

2. So I went all the way to the CNMI Supreme Court to block Nakamoto. The case is still active, and waiting.

3. I moved to let the Man Amko build their Center at the Samoan Housing Beach, but again, Governor Guerrero stepped in and relocated it to the Matsue-Sugar King area.

4. Then I moved to let our youth organization take over the Samoan Housing Beach, but again, Governor Guerrero stepped in and blocked that.

5. Does the Governor's family have a direct interest in the Nakamoto Hotel project, or are they planning for a land exchange at the Samoan Housing Beach area?

6. Now our youth has no place to go. But WAIT A MINUTE, YOUTH. Let's look at Navy Hill West Side overlooking Micro Beach and Managaha Island, "a million dollar view for our youth" and let's hope that the Governor is not against that too because that land is too valuable. Or maybe our Governor has already blocked it? I hope not.

QUESTION: Don't our dear Man Amko and Youth deserve prime and high priced property too? YES!!!

Children need nutritious snacks. Snacks are small meals meant to be nutritious. Snacking is a way of increasing vitamin and mineral as well as caloric intake. Keep healthful foods at home. Provide healthy snack choices daily: Fresh fruit, fruited jello or cottage cheese, hard boiled eggs, sandwich halves, cereal, and fruit and vegetable juices to name a few. When stocking for typhoon season, choose dried fruits and nuts, graham crackers, long-life milk, pudding mixes, peanuts, graham crackers, long-life milk, pudding mixes, peanuts, graham crackers, long-life milk, pudding mixes, peanuts.

Take healthy snacks along when you know your child may get hungry. Healthy choices aren’t always available when you are away from home. And pleasure snacks, like candy, cookies, soda pop and chips don’t provide many nutrients, but they are easy to purchase. Dry cereal, pretzels, dried fruit, graham crackers and fig bars are easy to pack into your bag. Juice and milk have more nutrients than soda pop and sweetened fruity drinks.

Encourage your children to choose healthy snacks by setting a good example. If you choose chips and candy bars, so will your child. Try to get your child involved in purchasing and preparing snacks and meals. This will make eating healthy foods fun and interesting.

Children need structure. Plan regular meals and small snacks daily so your child knows when the next meal is coming. Meal structure allows time for your child to get hungry. Children get hungry every 2-3 hours when structure is implemented. Meal structure helps children develop and satisfy the hunger sensation later in life. Donors to Republican lured to fund-raiser

By KAREN BALL

WASHINGTON (AP) - Big donors to the Republican party are being lured with an unusual guest to a fund-raising dinner next month - former Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

"It's sort of capitalism at its finest - using all available resources," said Republican strategist Ann Stone. "It's either capitalism at its finest or its most bizarre."

Gorbachev will be the attraction at a dinner Nov. 4 sponsored by the National Republican Senatorial Committee, which works to elect candidates to the U.S. Senate.

Gorbachev's attendance strikes some Republicans a bit odd because the former communist leader worked to preserve the Soviet empire, or the "Evil Empire" as Ronald Reagan put it. The Senatorial Committee's chairman, Sen. Phil Gramm, wrote to Republican donors that Gorbachev now "travels the world, fostering communication and diplomacy among all nations."

Gorbachev is speaking to the "Inner Circle" of the Senatorial Committee - or Republicans who've paid at least a $1,000 initiation fee - as part of a series of speeches by former world leaders. Reagan and former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher have appeared as well.

David Hill, a Republican pollster for Senate candidates, said people who attend this kind of political gathering like guests with differing opinions. "They'll have a chance to ask if the Reagan military buildup really brought the Soviet Union to its knees. Now that would be worth the price of admission," Hill said.

He added that if Gorbachev "makes Republicans open their wallets ... then that's a sign of a clever fund-raiser." Inviting liberal Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a Democrat, would be all right if it brought in contributions, Hill said.

When Thatcher spoke, the Senatorial Committee donated $50,000 to her foundation that promotes free enterprise in Europe, Koops said. Gorbachev also has a foundation.

House aspirants suggest ways to cure deficit

EIGHT candidates vying for seats in the 18-member House of Representatives in the upcoming November elections have so far suggested various means on how to get rid of the budget deficit currently afflicting the CNMI government.

Responding to the question: "How do you suggest government spending be slashed to eliminate a deficit situation?", the eight congressional aspirants turned in varied answers ranging from curtailed government travel to minimized housing benefits for government employees, all aimed at sharply reducing expenditures of government.

"I firmly believe there is a need to reduce the size of our government workforce. I will support reduction through attrition, that is, positions being vacated through resignation or retirement should be reviewed carefully if they are essential to any program's success," said incumbent Rep. Pete P. Reyes (R-Precinct 4) in his five-page response.

"Otherwise, non-essential positions or excess ones should be reduced as they become vacant," he added.

"I do not advocate nor support reduction of the workforce through any other means. In dealing with the size of our government, I do not and will not support new activities or programs that propose to increase the size of government," said Reyes.

"I support new programs as unnecessary government spending. Avoid all non-essential government travel. Appropriate funds when services are really needed," Castro said.

Incumbent Rep. Stanley T. Torres (Ind.-Precinct 3) suggested elimination of government vehicle abuse to slash government spending. He said another way is to have people staying in government houses pay for their housing.

"However, I believe the best way to eliminate a deficit is to get the economy going strong again. To do that, we need to restore confidence in government, eliminate corruption and make the CNMI attractive to investors again. Another would be to have the governor to return the $5.3 million paid to Mitsubishi for the CUC debt," said Torres.

Incumbent Rep. Ana S. Teregeyo (R-Precinct 1) also said a deficit should be avoided to the fullest extent possible. However, should this be imminent, liabilities and accountable for any and all overspending of their appropriations; and (6) develop a comprehensive master plan so that our resources can best be distributed.

Incumbent Rep. Ana S. Teregeyo (R-Precinct 1) also wants travel expenditures limited to the barest minimum, limited to those whose objectives could not be achieved by telephone, correspondence, and facsimile. Such a restriction, she said, had to apply to all three branches of government.

Among other solutions she suggested:
- institute an across-the-board freeze on all vacant and new budgeted positions, except enrollment-oriented and patient load-oriented within PSS, NMC, and Public Health;
- any other meritorious exceptions may be granted by the governor and lieutenant governor for all activities under the executive branch, by the chief justice or his designee for activities under the judicial branch, and by the Senate president and speaker of the House for activities under their respective purviews in the legislative branch;
- severely curtail all unnecessary overtime work on weekends and holidays, and beyond normal working hours;
- strictly enforce all laws and regulations governing the use of government-owned vehicles, even to the extent of reducing the number of government-owned vehicles;
- reduce the frequency and the amount of government-paid representational dinners and social functions; and
- wherever feasible, privatize continued on page 12

Camacho added that a countervailing provision like the alien labor cap might stall the labor bill, thereby subsequently negating attempts to improve the present labor policy.

Camacho suggested that he be in the process of finalizing an entirely new measure that would address the issue.

The new alien labor bill seeks to reestablish local labor laws with the aim of strengthening local labor enforcement and administration by pects as dark-complexioned and possibly juveniles, basing on wit­ esses' descriptions.

She added that the gun wielder was a white mask that resembles a t-shirt and blue shorts. He stands about five feet five inches.

The two other suspects were described as dark-skinned with black shoulder-length hair. One of the suspects was wearing colorful pants and stands about four feet in height. The other is about four feet two inches tall.

One storekeeper who was there at the time of the incident recalled that the three suspects came in casually and just tried to break open the cash register.

The masked individual, who refused to identify herself, was then seated in front of the store's computer. She was "covered" by two of the three suspects, who were holding lead pipes, while the robbery was in progress.

The masked intruder then proceeded to the cashier's counter and poked the gun on the head of the cashier, threatening to shoot.

Afraid that the masked suspect might make good his threat, the cashier then opened the box and handed over the money.

Seeing a phone right within the storekeeper's reach, one of the suspects pulled off the phone's wires before fleeing.

She said there was no getaway vehicle in the robbery.

The storekeeper also maintained that the suspects looked familiar and were indeed juveniles who usually loiter around the vicinity.

"We could definitely identify them when we see them," said the storekeeper.

Police said the case is still under investigation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may receive a long desired financial backing from one who loves you but fears only that by failing to interfere in the lives of others; you believe that in helping others, you are able to hold an audience spellbound. The joint effort, the joint attention, the joint enterprise: these suit you best for they bring the best out of you. Whether dealing with principles established in international law or the law of your birthplace, you are quick to take what's yours. Don't be surprised should a Capricorn dominate you today. Appearances are not the whole story. Limitations are not the whole story. Look again.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Concentrate on your own ability to move others to action. You can succeed and help others to do the same.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Investment matters take your time today. Be prepared for rapid changes in the forecast.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may possess a seasoned, confident and your humor. You try to see the bright side of things, yet you are born with the ability to seize the day. The situation on the home front should improve markedly today.

the season were the most among Atlanta outfielders, had his trouble in the fourth. He went back to the fence on Incaviglia's ball and appeared to lose it against the partly cloudy sky. Giant seemed to pick it up again a strip from the fence, but the ball missed his glove by a few inches.
The ball bounced back toward the infield, and Incaviglia got a bad throw to third for a three-base error. He then scored on Chamberlain's fly medium center. Pantola, who had been just 2-14 for 14, led off the ninth with a home run run off Greg McMichael to make it 3-0. Blue Jays could Fly AL Pennant By Willing toppings.
A change in the weather and a possible change in the lineup have the Chicago White Sox hoping to extend the AL playoffs to one more game against Toronto. The Blue Jays lead the series 3-2, and can wrap up a return trip to the World Series with a win Tuesday night. The defending champions will start Dave Stewart, 7-0 lifetime in the playoffs, against Alex Fernandez at chilly Comiskey Park.
Temperatures are supposed to drop near freezing during the game. But snow flurries, which fell on SkyDome early Sunday, are not in the forecast.
"I ask Gene every time it's cold to let me pitch," Fernandez said. "I think hitters don't like to hit when it's really cold and pitchers and catchers have an advantage. It's fine with me whether it's hot or cold."
Fernandez, who was born, raised and still lives nearby in Miami, has done well in winter weather for manager Gene Lamont's team. He's 4-0 lifetime in decisions in which it was 50 degrees (10 Celsius) or colder at gametimes.
Stewart knows his record when it's frosty.
"I've never pitched in 40-degree (5 Celsius) weather," he said. "I can't tell you that in situations like this, I won't be thinking much about the weather. If I am, it affects the hitters as much as me."
Stewart was not with the Blue Jays when they worked out Monday. Instead, he prepared a previous commitment and stayed behind in Toronto, passing out food for the homeless as Canada celebrates its Thanksgiving.
It was 72 degrees (22 Celsius) in Chicago last Wednesday afternoon when Stewart and the Blue Jays beat Fernandez and the White Sox 3-1.
Toronto's Joe Carter expects another day in which runs will be rare.
"It may be a little chillier here," he said. "It'll probably be another low-scoring game."
The White Sox want some more offense, meaning Lamont might make a few changes.
Bo Jackson, 0-for-10 with six strikeouts, could be Benchled at the designated hitter in favor of either George Bell or Warren Newson. Catcher Ron Karkovice, 0-for-14 with six strikeouts, could be replaced by Mike LaValliere.
"I'm not sure if Bo is going to DH. I'm going to think about it a little more and talk to the coaches," Lamont said. "1'll decide today, but you'll know as soon as I make the decision, the manager said.
"I didn't like what George said, but my first allegiance is to the team," he said. "What George said the other day won't have any effect on what the DH is."
"It's pretty much what I think the best matchup is against Stewart. You know, George hit a home run against Stewart and we took a whole at bat of Stewart. Over George's career, he's been pretty productive, not necessarily his average. He can't touch Stewart, but he has driven in a few runs."
Lamont said that while he likes LaValliere's bat, he's aware that Karkovice's arm can help cut down Toronto's running game.
"If there is a reason I'd say I switch, it is because of the offensive threat," Lamont said. I think Mike is a good defensive catcher, but I think Ron Karkovice is the best in the league."
Lamont is not worried that more switches might create more controversy, like the ones that have followed the White Sox for a week.
"We seemed to play a little better when we had him," he said.
Open, but failed to sustain the momentum. "This was the third time this year I had a chance to win," he said. He finished joint fourth, two shots behind Northern Ireland's Darren Clarke.
Ballesteros, winner of three British Opens and two Masters and a driving force behind the European Ryder Cup team over the last decade, has been instrumental in putting Europe on an even par with the United States.
Watching him, many colleagues have tried to get to know him with little success.
"No more lessons this year, the American PGA Tour told Ballesteros put up near his practice tee this year. "It's very nice of them but the more advice I get the worse I do," he said.
When his season's results failed to get him into the Ryder Cup on merit, Ballesteros was chosen for his success.
He teamed up with countryman Jose Maria Olazabal for two triumphant victories out of the four Ryder Cup matches and fourball tournaments was beaten 3 and 2 by Ryder Cup rookie Jim Gallagher Jr. in the singles.
His fourth place finish at Knokke moved the Spanish up seven places to 36 on the European money list. But he's usually in the top 10 by the end of the season.
In a sense, Ballesteros has become a victim of his own success. Clarke, who won the first Ryder Cup grand slam alongside his boyhood hero inspired him. He watched to use television winning some of his five major championships.

ATLANTA (AP) - Exactly seven years to the day later, Len Dykstra did it again.

After Mitch Williams and Kim Batiase helped Philadelphia blow a 3-0 lead in the ninth inning, Dykstra hit a 10th-inning homer Monday that gave the Phillies a 4-3 victory over Atlanta and a 3-2 lead in the NL playoffs.

Dykstra, whose ninth-inning homer gave the New York Mets a dramatic 6-5 playoff victory over Houston on Oct. 11, 1986, saved the day after the Phillies defense unraveled in the ninth inning.

"This was even bigger to me," Dykstra said. "Not only do they expect me to do things, I expect it of myself. In 1986, I was just glad to be there. I was in for a land."

Earlier, it was the defense of left fielder Pete Incaviglia and right fielder Wes Chamberlain that kept the Braves from scoring, and Philadelphia seemed destined to carry the day.

"Chamberlain played a great right field," Braves manager Bobby Cox said. "Those were good plays."

But after Curt Schilling walked Jeff Blauser to open the ninth, Batiase failed to come up with Rose-Gant's grounder to third, setting the stage for another dramatic Braves comeback.

So, despite being outscored 30-17 in the series, the Phillies moved within a game of their first World Series since 1983.

The series now returns to Veterans Stadium for Game 6 on Wednesday. The Phillies will start Tommy Greene,78795 for seven runs in 2-1 innings and pass for the four run, 7890-13.

Atlanta, on a two-game losing streak for the first time since Aug. 19-20, will start Greg Maddux, the Game 2 winner.

"This isn't over by a longshot," Dykstra said. "That's a very good team over there. It does go good win three unless you win the fourth."

Atlanta, seeking to become the first NL team to win three straight pennants since the St. Louis Cardinals from 1942-44, must win two in a row on the road, just like it did two years ago at Pittsburgh.

The Phillies were still reeling in the 10th when Dykstra homered to right-center on a 3-2 pitch, his second homer of the series and fourth in the NL playoffs.

"It's a situation where basically you throw everything in. This is it," Dykstra said. "I'm not lying, it was a situation in which I was trying to drive a fastball."

For a few moments, the ninth seemed like the seventh game of last year's playoffs when the Braves overcame a 2-0 deficit against Pittsburgh and won the pennant on Francisco Cabrera's two-run single.

It was also reminiscent of Batiase's error in the ninth inning of Game 1, which allowed the Braves to tie the game before the Phils won in the 10th.

"After the seventh inning, I had pretty much given what I had left," Schilling said. "I went out there for the eighth, (Darren) Daulton told me to relax back. I went out there in the ninth, looking to finish the game off."

With runners on first and second following Batiase's error Monday, Williams relieved Schilling. And just like in Games 1 and 4, it was an adventure.

Fred McGriff singled on the first pitch to make it 3-1, and David Justice's sacrifice fly to left pulled the Braves within a run.

Terry Pendleton lined a single to center, moving McGriff to second, and Cabrera bounced a two-hopper just past shortstop Kevin Stocker for the tying run.

Pendleton sped to third, but Mark Lemke -- 5-for-10 in his career against Williams -- struck out after missing a game-winning liner by 3-foot foul. Pinch-hitter Bill Pecora fielded softly to center.

Atlanta won quietly in the 10th against Larry Andersen, the Phillies' 40-year-old right-hander who was knocked around for four runs in one inning during Game 2.

Ozol Ninx flied out, Blauser struck out swinging, and Giara took a called third strike.

The Phillies got off to a fast start when Mariano Duncan singled with one out in the first and scored on a double into the right-field corner by John Kruk, who on Sunday had the first four-strikeout game of his big league career. Kruk was stranded when Dave Hollins popped out and Incaviglia struck out.

Atlanta had a chance in the bottom half, when Blauser singled with one out and McGriff, already 8-for-18 in the series, missed a two-run homer by only a couple feet, hitting it off the top of the right-center field wall. Chamberlain got to the ball quickly and overthrew the cutoff man, but Stocker took the throw and his relay caught Blauser at the plate.

By throwing out Damon Berryhill in the fifth, however, the right fielder corner by John Kruk, who on Sunday had the first four-strikeout game of his big league career. Kruk was stranded when Dave Hollins popped out and Incaviglia struck out.
