We're no rubber stamps -senators

TWO RANKING members of the Senate have expressed resentment over insinuations that the upper house is fast becoming a "rubber stamp" of the executive branch of government.

Visibly irked by the brand new tag given them by a critic of the governor's reorganization plan, Senate President Juan S. Demapan and Senate Legislative Secretary David M. Cing yesterday denied they were "too accommodating to the governor" in approving the latter's Executive Order 94-3.

"We did approve of the new E.O. because any delays will certainly add to the confusion that has already risen on this matter," said Demapan in an interview yesterday at his Capitol Hill of-

"We are no 'rubber stamp.' Just because we agreed with him once or twice, does that means we are a rubber stamp Senate?" Demapan poses.

'We just felt we must maintain open minds on this because we really feel there is a pressing need to reinvent our system of government," he maintained.

Senator Cing, in a separate interview, echoed Demapan's disapproval of the rubber stamp tag insisting that they just acted on something worthwhile.

"We must put things in the proper perspective. The Senate just cooperates with the governor on something that is beneficial to the people. If a proposal is not good we will disagree with him," said Cing.

THE Marianas Visitors bureau yesterday said it would challenge a Superior Court ruling that the agency is part of the executive branch, insisting that it exists as a non-government agency.

MVB legal counsel Eric Smith said an appeal may be filed with the Supreme Court within this

The decision to appeal followed a meeting of the executive committee of the visitors bureau which focused on the implications of the court decision on MVB. Yesterday morning's meeting was led by Managing Director Bennet Seman and attended by commitPierce, Frances Bellas, J.M. Guerrero and David Sablan.

The consultation came four days after Presiding Judge Alex Castro refused to accept an argument that MVB does not fall under the executive department and should not be covered by the governor's re-

MVB officials were satisfied with the court's decision to "set aside" Governor Froilan C. Tenorio's executive order, but they were not happy with the ruling that the agency is a government entity and is subject to reorganization, Smith said.

It was agreed during the meeting that the whole MVB membership be gathered "to discuss what's happening," he added. Smith said the membership meeting will be held in the near future.

Japanese leaders select new PM

TOKYO (AP) - Japanese political leaders huddled Monday to begin the process of finding a replacement for Prime Minister Tsutomu Hata, whose resignation two days earlier left a leadership vacuum for the second time in two months.

Parliament was tentatively scheduled to convene early Monday afternoon to begin deliberations on finding a new leader, but with no immediate prospects for agreement among the political parties, lawmakers appeared likely to extend the current session beyond its scheduled end on Wednesday.

Under Japanese law, Hata must stay in office until his successor is chosen.

Leaders of the two largest parties in Parliament, the Liberal Democrats and the Socialists, met Monday to discuss a possible tie-up.

Liberal Democratic leader Yohei Kono and Socialist leader Tomiichi Murayama agreed during Monday's meeting to continue talks on a possible alliance.

Socialists leaders still hope to hold talks with Hata's coalition. However, coalition kingpin Ichiro Ozawa said his alliance did not want to hold any more talks with the So-alliance, it would be severely compromised by policy differences. The Socialists were the main opposition party during the 38 years of Liberal Demogratic rule, which ended last summer.

The political chaos comes at a bad time for Japan, just two weeks before a summit meeting with President Clinton and a conference of the major economic powers in Naples, Italy. The previous leadership vacuum was in April, when the government was put on hold for two weeks before the eight-bloc coalition that took over from the Liberal Democrats last year managed to agree to stay together and back Hata for prime minister. Facing certain defeat in a

They also disagree on how far Japan can go in joining U.N. peacekeeping missions, and how to deal with neighboring North Korea's suspected nuclear arms program. ### Summit stresses on parental involvement

By Ferdie de la Torre

ROTA and Tinian parents attended yesterday the Saipan parent summit held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, depicting a unified parental involvement in line with the children's education in the CNMI.

Fifteen visitors each from Rota and Tinian joined the 39 Saipan parents, initiating the successful start of the first of a kind two-day parent conference.

The Board of Education and the Public School System were impressed by the unity shown by Rota and Tinian parents at the latter's recent respective presentations concerning parental involvement.

In yesterday's summit, the parents broke into small groups then shared their views what are the blockages to parental involvement in education as well as its solu-

After a 15 minute break, the parents presented their findings. The parent perceptions on the roles of teachers, principals, students and parents were also discussed in the general assembly.

The active CNMI Drug-Free Youth Leaders likewise shared their time, performing anti-drug energizers, which made the program lively.

Education Commissioner William S. Torres underscored the importance of "meaningful involvement" of the parents for the success of children's education. In his speech, Torres encouraged the parents to partake in the educational welfare and not only in the problems.

"We notice that (some) parents are only involved when there are problems with their kids or in the schools...let's change that," the commissioner said.

He urged the parents to remove whatever barriers hampering their involvement in the education and instead step forward and "feel the sense of belonging."

The purpose of the series of summit is to provide parents an opportunity to share matters affecting students and schools to forge a stronger and more affective home-school relationship.

In particular, the summit focus on the use of alcohol and drugs by the students and how parents can be actively involved in the prevention efforts.

The government did not disclose to the media what led the government to conduct a search and arrest warrant, but normally, lawmen receive information about alleged illegal activities.

An investigation then follows and upon showing of probable cause, the court will issue a warrant. It was not immediately clear what the suspects were doing during the evening raid.

Marsh did not also say how much "ice" and marijuana was seized during the raid.

Brel, who has prior criminal record, is being held on a $100,000 cash bail while Martin, who was sentenced to jail three years ago on marijuana charges, is currently held on $50,000 bail.

Brel has been convicted of aggravated assault charge for which he was given a 10-year jail sentence, two years of which were suspended. He has been out of detention following appeal on the aggravated assault case.

Martin was convicted of the charge of marijuana importation and was sentenced on June 4, 1991. Marsh said the defendant violated his probation, making it necessary for the court to raise a suggested cash bail to be posted. Superior Court judge Marty

Four of the charges filed in court were against Brel. These are possession of methamphetamine with intent to deliver, illegal possession of methamphetamine, illegal possession of a firearm, and illegal possession

House to hold hearings on new executive order

THE HOUSE of Representatives will do with Executive Order 94-3 what it failed to do with Executive Order 94-2 — hold a public hearing on how Governor Froilan C. Tenorio is going ahead with plans to reorganize the Commonwealth government.

This was learned from Vice Speaker Jesus P. Mafnas who yesterday said Tenorio's new proposal will be the subject of lengthy public discussion at the lower chamber of Legislature in contrast to the Senate's apparent hasty action in approving the measure.

"I respect what the Senate has done since that is their business. But I feel that public interest was not served by the speedy approval of the order," said Mafnas in an

The vice speaker was referring to the Senate action last Friday adopting Senate Resolution 9-61, technically ensuring E.O. 94-3 will have the force and effect of law as long as it does not get disapproved by majority votes from both houses within 60 days.

Mafnas said the Senate should have at least spent more time discussing the new order if it would not conduct a public hearing on "What do you think will the people think. They (Senate) just are very accommodating of the governor. Why did they not question why the governor's reorganization authority extends to even constitutionally established agencies," said Mafnas.

The Senate's approval on the E.O. notwithstanding, Mafnas said the House will try to gauge public feedback on the matter and will try to find out the benefits that can be derived out of its implementation.

E.O. 94-3 is a slightly revised version of E.O. 94-2. It was issued by the governor Friday, a day after the court declared the previous order null and void.

"What we want to do is to hold extensive public hearings and find out how it will result to efficient administration and whether it will means reduced costs for government. We'd like to also find out how many employees will be hired or displaced by it," said Mafnas.

"We would not want to be criticized again for not holding public hearings on this matter," said the

PSS starts programs for administrators

By Ferdie de la Torre

CNMI public school principals and vice principals participated yesterday the start of the five-day leadership institute, a Public School System program designed to upgrade the leadership skills of the current school administrators and train prospective leaders in the educational system.

The CNMI leadership institute was held at the Coral Ocean Point. The program will end on Friday.

Three outstanding principals— Tom Pangelinan of Hopwood Junior High School, Isao Ngirbabul of Oleai Elementary School, and Lourdes Mendiola of Garapan Elementary School—are the presenters during the first three days of the seminar.

The trio started tackling yesterday the series discussions about team building and effective communication.

Mendiola explained that they began with team building and effective communication because they are the two key factors in the leadership skills in which the succeding seminars to follow.

The GES principal said in the next two days (Thursday and Friday), PSS Staff Development Coordinator Jean Olopai and Koblerville Elementary School Principal Margarita Adriano will be discussing student discipline.

Mendiola stressed that under the program, the principals, vice principals are the target group. The group would then conduct presentations regarding leadership skills to teachers and other members of the school system.

She said the seminar is only the first phase of building leadership skills by training prospective leaders and administrators in the PSS.

On the other hand, Hopwood Principal Pangelinan said the seminar is a very historical significant event, indicating that it is a way of realizing the importance of training principals and vice principals and aspiring school administrators.

"We care..we are all members of the school administration. We care to those who need assistance in the preparation," Pangelinan said.

Meanwhile, Oleai Principal Ngirbabul said the program is beneficial to the PSS in upgrading the present school administrators.

Ngirbabul described the program as a cycle. He said the institute helps to develop leadership skills to the current school leaders, who in turn assist in harnessing the knowlege of the future principals and vice principals.

Public school principals and vice principals attend the leadership institute held at Coral Ocean Point

USDA sets school meal standards

SECRETARY of Agriculture Mike Espy and Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Food and Consumer Services Ellen Haas has announce USDA's School Meals initiative for Healthy Children

dren.

The introduction of this major regulatory proposal will significantly update the nutrition standards for the nation's school lunch and school breakfast programs for the first time in almost 50 years, according to news release from USDA.

"When President Harry Truman established the National School Lunch Program in 1946, one of the motivations was the large number of young men who were rejected by the U.S. Army during World War 11 because they suffered from malnutrition," Epsy said. "The program was defined as a measure of national security, to safeguard the health and wellbeing of the nation's children."

"Today, for the first time in nearly half a century, the nutrition standards of that program are being substantially updated.," the press release from USDA.

Espy said the centerpiece of the proposal is the requirement that school meals meet the recommendations of the Dietary Guidelines for Americans by the 1998 school year. The Dietary Guidelines, developed jointly by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services, constitute the federal government's official nutrition policy.

"Today, we are acknowledging our national health responsibility to update the nutrition standards of school meals," said Haas.

Espy said the proposal was developed after extensive consultative and participatory processes. The Department sponsored four regional hearings over the past year, generating more than 2,400 comments. The hearings were followed by in-depth consultations with representatives from a variety of groups with an interest in the school meal programs and children's health.

Haas said updating nutrition standards and streamlining administration of school meal programs reinforces President Clinton's commitment to health-care reform and government reinvention.

Key elements of the proposal include replacing the rigid "meal pattern" with a more flexible system known as NuMenus, increasing customer appeal through nutrition education for students; training and technical assistance for school food service professionals; helping schools get the best value for their nutrition dollar; and streamlining and simplifying program administration.

Haas said the proposal is organized around a comprehensive, integrated four-point framework for action:

1. EATING FOR HEAL: Meeting the Dietary Guidelines

BEFORE IT'S TOOLATE! We must stem the epidemic of drug-abuse. We must educate

School meal nutrition standards will be updated and expanded to include the Dietary Guidelines for Americans with standards for fat and saturated fat as well as required nutrients. The current meal planning system which requires that certain types of foods be served in certain quantities will be replaced by NuMenus - a more flexible system that will allow schools to serve a greater variety school year.

USDA will launch a nutrition education initiative to give children the knowledge to make choices that lead to a nutritious diet and improved health. The Department will work with professional chefs and other members of the food and agriculture communities to offer local meal providers training and technical assistance on improving taste and presentation. Parent and teacher involvement will be actively encouraged, the USDA news release explains.

3. MAXIMIZING RE-SOURCES: Getting the Best Value

USDA also will build public and private partnerships, work more closely with the U.S. Departments of Health and Human Services and Education and assist in establishing links between local farmers and local

Gutierrez returns actress award Manila officials press probe of academy awards scandal

By EILEEN GUERRERO

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - As police hustled her lawyer away, a wailing Ruffa Gutierrez returned her Best Actress trophy Monday but failed to persuade officials to stop an investigation into whether she won the award fradulently.

Miss Gutierrez and her co-star Gabby Concepcion were "named" Best Actress and Best Actor last Wednesday by the Philippine equivalent of the Academy Awards for their roles in a takeoff on the Lorena Bobbitt spouse-castration

Moments later, the auditing firm which tallied the ballots said the real winners were actor Edu Manzano and actress Aiko Melendez. One of the presenters, Miss Mauritius Viveka Babajee, left the country late Sunday to avoid threatened deportation for declaring Miss Gutierrez the win-

On Monday, Miss Gutierrez, second runnerup in the 1993 Miss World pageant, her mother Annabelle Rama and others were summoned to the mayor's office as part of an investigation into alleged fraud.

She arrived with the trophy. Her lawyer, Mario Reyes, said she was returning the trophy to avoid scandal. Reyes suggested authorities drop the investigation.

But Vice Mayor Lito Atienza refused. Reves began shouting and as tempers flared, police grabbed the lawyer and hustled him into a nearby room to cool off. Miss Gutierrez began wailing as her friend, actor Robin Hood "Bad Boy" Padilla, tried to defend Reyes.

Padilla was convicted earlier this year of illegal weapons possession and sentenced to 24 years in jail. He is free pending appeal.

Atienza said the investigation would proceed as planned and ordered the group to return to City Hall later in the day.

"These trophies are meaningless," Atienza said. "We must get to the bottom of this. We will proceed with the investigation."

City hall was jammed with journalists, employees and curiosity seekers as Miss Gutierrez arrived. The awards scandal has become the talk of the Philippines, where scams involving sports, business and politics are popular fare.

"Bank scams, involement of police in kidnapping and robbery, unsavory pork barrel, corrupt judges...These are found throughout the world. But what happened in the Manila Film Festival ... could only happen here," wrote columnist Willie Ng (cq) in The Manila

US to offer North Korea a swap of liaison offices

United States will offer to exchange diplomatic liaison offices with North Korea if the communist state agrees to open up its nuclear program, a newspaper reported Monday.

The offices would be the first step in a two-stage program that would eventually include formal diplomatic recognition of the North, the Dong-A Ilbo said.

The national daily, quoting an unnamed South Korean government official, said South Korea has been informed of the U.S. plan, to be presented at high-level talks with North Korea expected in early July.

There was no official government confirmation of the report.

In a deal brokered by former U.S. President Jimmy Carter, the Clinton administration has agreed to reopen high-level talks with North Korea in exchange for a promise from the North to freeze its nuclear program.

The talks, suspended last July, are to focus on better relations and a settlement of tensions over the North's suspected development of nuclear weapons.

In another result of Carter's trip to North Korea two weeks ago, officials from the two Koreas are to meet Tuesday to discuss arrangements for the first summit ever between their presidents.

North Korea denies that it is developing nuclear weapons, but has thwarted full international inspections of its facilities. The newspaper said the United States will offer to exchange liaison offices with North Korea if it carries out its promise to freeze and open up its nuclear program. That would involve inspections of two suspected plex of Yongbyon, it said.

A demand by the U.N. International Atomic Energy Agency last year to inspect the two areas prompted North Korea to announce it would guit the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty. It later reversed that decision.

The North claims that inspections of the two sites, which it insists are non-nuclear military facilities, would infringe on its sovereignty.

If North Korea complies with the first-stage U.S. demand, Washington will also offer to arrange economic assistance, including a lightwater reactor to replace the North's graphite-moderated reactor, the Dong-A said. Graphite-moderated reactors are less safe and produce more plutonium, which can be used to make nuclear bombs.

US asked to join African upheaval

By GENE KRAMER

WASHINGTON (AP)- -Africans yearn to move from poverty, despair, conflict and pessimism to a continent-wide renaissance, top African leaders told the first White House Conference on Af-

They are moving toward selfreliance but still need debt relief, help and encouragement from experts on Africa from the busi-America and other advanced countries, said Nelson Mandela, president of South Africa's first multiracial government.

Mandela and from Salim A. Salim, secretary general of the Organization of African Unity, highlighted Sunday's opening sessions of the gathering of about 170 U.S. ness, government, academic and human rights communities.

The two African leaders and Clinton administration speakers strongly agreed on the need to resist pessimism spawned by the continent's enormous problems and conflicts.

President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore were addressing final sessions Monday after-

"The terrible problems of African nations and the pessimism they can breed are matched only in scope by the continent's huge potential," said National Security Adviser Anthony Lake, welcoming the conferees.

But he cautioned that America's willingness to aid Africa is limited by shrinking budgets, reluctance to deploy troops and pessimism generated by declining economies and flareups of vio-

Mandela, in a giant videoscope projection, urged America to "play a pioneering role" in what he called an "African Renaissance felt not only in the corridors of political power but by an emerging partnership between the state, private sector and the populace at

He said the United States could choose between yielding to "the pessimism of false perceptions" about Africa in permanent decline and becoming "a leading partner in the most novel and challenging international project since the Marshall Plan" for European recovery from World War II.

"For many, many generations, praise will be unto those who rose to the challenge as Africa set on a new and great beginning," Mandela said.

He asked America to adopt "a more considerate approach" resolving the continent's debt burden.

Unless debt forgiveness becomes a priority, Salim said, poverty could undermine popular support for Africa's impoverished and still-fragile elected governments and reforms.

African countries' total debts to foreign governments and banks have been estimated at about dlrs

Five years ago, one could easily count the small number of African countries that hold multiparty elections, but "today we can count how many do not," Salim said.

He said Africans should draw from U.S. experience with ethnic tolerance and dealing peace fully with electoral defeat and dissent under democracy.

"The challenge Africa faces is how to ensure that the genuine identities of religion, ethnicity and tribe are accomodated without allowing bigotry and all forms of intolerance to exploit that accomodation ...," Salim said. The OAU leader saluted not only Mandela but also "people like (former South African President) Frederick de Klerk," who, with Mandela, built the new South Africa. De Klerk, president of South Africa's last white minority government, is a vice president of the new republic.

Africa accepts challenge of ethnic tolerance

By GENE KRAMER

WASHINGTON (AP) -Africans will draw from American experience with ethnic tolerance and self-reliance in their transition to democracy and economic reform, says the head of the Organization of African Unity.

"The ugly specter of tribalism, ethnicity, religious intolerance and other tendencies of separatism and division" in countries such as Rwanda was described by OAU Secretary-General Salim A. Salim as an unintended effect of democratization sweeping the continent.

"The challenge we face is to build a culture of tolerance and to use our diversity creatively as a source of strength rather than division," he told U.S. experts and officials in a Sunday night speech at a White House Conference on Africa.

"Naturally, we see the American experience in social accommodation as the most readily adaptable," the former Tanzanian government leader added.

On self-reliance, Salim said Africa is departing "from established habits of blaming others for its ills." He said it "'now realizes that it must take the responsibility for the economic mistakes of the past, and that to deserve international assistance it must first demonstrate that it is doing its best."

"Africa needs to wean itself from the dependence syndrome and the mistaken belief that the rest of the world will always be there with its compassion and resources," he said.

But he described reluctance of the world community and United Nations to act decisively against slaughter in Rwanda as "a failure for Africa, the United Nations and humanity at large."

Learning from the failure, he said, his association of African governments is preparing to cope better with future such upheavals on their continent.

But time is needed and, inevitably massive outside help will be needed lest poverty undermine the popular will for both economic and political reform, Salim said words similar to those from East European leaders involved in the transition from communism.

Journalists trained for combat zones

By CHRISTOPHER BURNS

COLLIOURE, France (AP) -Exploding grenades shake the air and machine guns chatter. Journalists scramble through a smoky maze of blackened buildings, a sewer and passageways filled with tear gas.

"There's gunfire over that wall! Stay low!" one reporter yells to his colleagues.

It is a surreal war zone atop a 19th-century fortress overlooking this Mediterranean port near the Spanish border. It also is pretend.

In a three-day program at the French army's National Commando Training Center, journalists learn how to adjust to warfare and avoid becoming statistics.

Last year, 63 journalists were killed around the world, many in combat zones, according to the French organization Reporters Without Borders.

"A press card or white paint on a U.N. vehicle are no longer enough," said Lt. Col. Jean-Paul Legras, commander of the center.

"We want to show you little things that won't protect you, but will make you less vulnerable," Legras said in greeting the fourth class of the year-old program. "This has nothing to do with Rambo."

His center normally runs courses of two to four weeks for army officers and French Legionnaires. The brief one for reporters includes avoidance of snipers, mines and booby traps, lethality of weapons, first aid and basic hand-to-hand evasion techniques. The only charge is about dirs 60 to cover food.

The French Defense Journalists' Association asked the army for the program, similar to one in Australia.

"During the Gulf War, we had trouble working with the military, and Yugoslavia was an emerging war zone," said Stefan Ciezka, the association's trea-

Much of the instruction involves common sense, reminding everyone to be alert and resourceful. During sniper instruction, the class sat outside a two-story house while the trainer pointed out possible sniper nests.

"The most likely spot is the roof," Lt. Michel Marzoc said. Then a commando sprang out through a skylight, submachine gun blazing with blanks, startling the pupils.

Look out for any opening in a house, from a chimney to a ground-level vent, journalists are told. In a high-rise, the choice spot is an upper floor but not the top, an obvious target for sniperhunters.

Wear dull or dark clothing, but ir you choose green, "don't complain you were mistaken for a soldier," one instructor said. "And don't carry army rations."

Instructors showed how, through teamwork, two reporters could quickly pull each other through a window or drag a wounded comrade to safety. Using a smoke bomb for cover, the victim clasps his hands around the neck of the rescuer, who crawls on all fours.

When looking for a hideout, push open a door slowly because it could be booby-trapped, the soldiers warned. The j

In a final test, students, alone or accompanied by commandos, negotiated a maze of buildings and alleys while soldiers shot blanks and exploded grenades at a safe distance. Reporters drove through a checkpoint manned by "drunken" fighters and their convoy was ambushed.

The most chilling part of the course displayed mines, other booby traps and slides of maimed victims. Millions of anti-personnel mines, which cost as little as $ 1.50 each and can look as benign as a tuna can, are scattered in current or former combat zones around the world.

First-aid techniques taught in the course include treatment for shock and bleeding, mouth-tomouth resuscitation and making stretchers and splints from available materials. Students practice using hypodermic needles on At the nearby themselves. Mont Louis commando base in the Pyrenees, the class watched commandos fire rifles, machine guns and an anti-tank missile. Bullets went through wooden blocks and hollow brick walls. but were stopped by sandbags, walls of poured concrete and, surprisingly, tightly bound stacks of magazines.

By agreement with the journalists' association, there will be at least one session in September and two more next year, Ciezka measure.

The training does not always instill confidence. A German TV cameraman who filmed it said the course "reinforced my feeling never to cover a war zone.'

The specific goals of the new measure basically remain: to prescribe the convention's powers, duties and functions; to provide for the election of delegates; to specify the method by which proposed amendments are to be ratified; and to establish a post-convention committee to follow through on the body's work.

The convention shall still be composed of 27 delegates - 19 from Saipan and and the islands north of it; and four delegates each for Rota; and Tinian and Aguigan.

Upon completion of its work, the ConCon shall transmit copies of all proposed amendments it adopted to the governor, the presiding officers of the Legislature and the Commonwealth Archives.

Such amendments shall require ratification by popular referendum as provided for in Article 18 sec-

SINGAPORE (AP)-Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir had a number of political, eco-Mohamad's plan for a loose trade nomic and security organiza group in Asia that would exclude the United States has made scant ies covering the major nations unprogress, but it isn't going away.

In the latest development, Singapore Prime Minister Goh Chok Tong suggested Sunday that the proposed East Asian Economic Caucus be explained to Washington by a united ASEAN.

ASEAN, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, comprises Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Brunei and Singapore.

The United States rejects Mahathir's caucus as a needless distraction from the 4-year-old Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation forum for region-wide discussions and coordination.

The broad-based APEC includes the six ASEAN states plus the United States, Japan, China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, South Korea, Australia, Canada, Mexico, New Zealand and Papua New Guinea.

"The EAEC is a caucus of the Asians within APEC. ... It is not against APEC at all," Goh told reporters during a brief visit to Malaysia. He said Singapore would continue to support Mahathir.

"We have been quietly lobbying the others to ask for views. ... It is consistent with APEC," Goh added.

In a compromise last year, ASEAN agreed to regard the caucus as "attached" both to APEC and the annual ASEAN economic ministers meeting.

Despite this, Mahathir boycotted the first APEC summit, hosted by President Bill Clinton in Seattle last November, in part because of Washington's opposition to his brainchild.

He also complained that while APEC was created as a loose consultative forum, it was becoming institutionalized.

Mahathir has agreed, however, to attend the next APEC summit meeting at Jakarta in November.

In 1990, he proposed an economic "bloc to countervail others," including the European Community and the North American Free Trade Area covering Canada, Mexico and the United States.

Mahathir invited Japan, China, South Korea, Taiwan, Burma and the three Indochina states to join the bloc along with ASEAN. He said he excluded the United States because it was not part of East

Rabin warns further killings could happen

By ALLYN FISHER

JERUSALEM (AP) - Cleared of blame for the Hebron mosque massacre, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin promised stricter security precautions in the volatile city, but warned there were no guarantees against another massacre happening.

"If there is a Jewish madman who decides to open fire at one of a thousand mosques where prayers are held ... theoretically it could happen. I hope it won't happen," Rabin said Sunday after an report on the Feb. 25 Hebron slayings was published.

The 338-page report on the slaying of 30 Palestinian worshippers as they knelt in prayer at the Tomb of the Patriarchs, blamed the attack solely on gunman Dr. Baruch Goldstein, a Jewish physician from New York City who settled nearby. He was bludgeoned to death at the site after the massacre.

The report recommended a list of new security precautions in the wake of what was the worst Israeli attack against Arabs in decades. They included disarming Jewish settlers at the site that is holy to Islam and Judaism and setting up a special security force.

Palestinians and Israeli liberals denounced the findings as a whitewash, because nobody was blamed for the lax security which facilitated Goldstein's attack.

The report "looks to me like an attempt to wash our hands," said lawmaker Dedi Zucker of the leftist Meretz party.

"The reason for the massacre is still there. I think the settlers will continue to be a time bomb," said Palestinian leader Saeb Erakat, of autonomous Jericho in the West Bank.

Hebron is the only West Bank city where Jews and Palestinians live side by side, with about 450 Israelis scattered among 80,000 Arabs, making it also the most violent of West Bank towns.

The five-judge commission indicated it had accepted the explanation of the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Ehud Barak, for the blood bath. He testified during the sixweek probe that "This massacre... hit us like lightning from a clear blue sky.

"We do not believe that anyone can be blamed for not having foreseen the fact that a Jew would plan and carry out a massacre of Muslims in the Tomb of the Patriarchs," the report said.

The commission cited lapses in law enforcement before the massacre, including instances where police failed to investigate complaints about settler shootings and report.

It urged the army to clarify regulations on when soldiers can shoot, so that settlers can be stopped from committing serious crimes.

The commission said that Goldstein might have been stopped had the full guard detail shown up at the Tomb on the morning of the massacre. Five out of 10 guards were absent, including three who overslept. The panel left it up to the army to file disciplinary charges.

Palestinians had hoped that the commission would be more forceful and suggest the removal of settlers from Hebron to defuse the

They warned that the findings could reignite tensions in Hebron enough to explode Middle East peace efforts.

"Because the settlers are armed to their teeth, they threaten people, they even challenge the army, said Yasser Amr. education minister for the Palestinian autonomous regions of the Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho. "It is now the responsibility of the Israeli community in general to choose between living in peace with the Palestinians or for the struggle to continue.'

Jewish settlers felt the report vindicated them of accusations that that they were too quick to use their weapons against Pales-

Hebron settlement spokesman Noam Arnon said they had "breathed a sigh of relief," glad that the judges blamed only Goldstein for the slayings.

Settlers were unhappy only about suggestions that they should go unarmed into the tomb where the massacre happened, a site revered by Muslims and Jews as the burial site of biblical Patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

Rabin was also reassuring to the settlers. He told Israel radio that Israelis were just as vulnerable to attack as Palestinians, that just as he couldn't guarantee other massacres of Palestinians wouldn't occur, "we cannot ensure with complete certainty that Hamas or Islamic Jihad murderers won't continue attacks against Israelis." He also reiterated threats of "all out war" against those who kill Israelis.

Still, Rabin promised to reign in settler extremists by implementing recommendations to tighten security in Hebron.

Keeping settler extremists in check, asserted Education Minister Amnon Rubinstein on Israel television, was part of "the spirit breathing from every page of the CINCINNATI (AP) -The Cincinnati Reds are riding a wave of phenomenal hitting, with better than average pitching and fielding, as they take a 3{-game lead into tonight's series opener at NL Central contender Houston.

The Reds' collective batting average of .291 leads the league, thanks to a 19-hit barrage in Sunday's 12-4 win over the San Diego Padres.

Hal Morris had his third fourhit game of the season, Barry Larkin extended his hitting streak to 19 games and Kevin Mitchell matched his entire 1993 home run production.

"When you get an assembly line of hitters like they have, sooner or later you're going to break out," said Tony Gwynn, the NL leader at .388.

"Good hitters will always hit. Like Larkin; you knew he was going to turn it around. And it seems to work in unison. Guys start picking it up. Lark's been hitting the ball a ton, so you figure Morris is going to hit the ball a ton, and Mitchell's got to hit the ball a ton, and (Reggie) Sanders and (Tony) Fernandez and right on down the line."

Larkin, with three hits, is at a season-high .287 after a miserable _ and unlucky _ start.

Mitchell's two-run homer in the third was his 19th. It came in the Reds' 74 game of the season, whereas Mitchell had 19 in all of 1993, when he played in only 93 games because of a variety of ailments.

And Morris, who missed two months with a shoulder separation last year, is within 20 hits of his 1993 output.

'I felt better up there the last couple of at-bats," said Morris, who reached the 100-hit plateau the same day as Gwynn. "If I miss a few games, like I did last week at Atlanta, it takes me about a week to get back."

It was the sixth career four-hit day for Morris, who said his success is mostly instinctive.

"I just go up and try to sting the bat hard and be aggressive,'

Morris said. He didn't put any special significance on reaching 100 hits in the same game as the NL batting leader.

"I'm just happy to be able to go out and play this year and not be on the DL," he said.

Gwynn said he pays no attention to when he reaches 100 hits.

"It's not a big deal," said Gwynn, who was 2-for-4 before leaving the game. "Good hitters are going to hit, and Hal is going to have a lot of success in this league because of the way he uses the entire field."

San Diego manager Jim Riggleman said he lifted Gwynn in the seventh.

Big guns try to keep cool as Wimbledon heat mounts

By DAVID CRARY

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) -Though the heat is on as a wild Wimbledon enters its second week, the rhetoric from some of the most feared contenders is anything but warlike.

Boris Becker is extolling the joys of fatherhood. Guy Forget is complimenting the British fans who will be rooting for his defeat. And Goran Ivanisevic, famed as much for his hot temper as his sizzling serve, describes his new self as quiet and cool.

"I'm playing mentally much more cool this year," Ivanisevic said. "If I'm confident, I'm less nervous. In Paris (at the French Open), I was more nervous, but here I'm just very quiet. It's nice to play on grass."

Forget, father of a 4-year-old boy, has been comparing notes with Becker and Jeremy Bates, who say the recent birth of sons has improved their tennis by making them less obsessed with the game.

"Yes, it made me calmer," said Becker, a three-time Wimbledon champion. "It made me realize that tennis is not the most important thing in the world for me. Of course I'm going to give it 110 percent, but I think I'm much calmer on the tennis court than I was before."

Certainly fatherhood hasn't hurt his game. Becker has lost only one set heading into his fourth-round match Monday against ninthseeded Andrei Medvedev.

Forget plays Bates in a father vs. father showdown on Centre Court. The two also played in the fourth round two years ago, with Forget winning and Bates will be trying again to become the first British man since 1973 to make the quarterfinals.

"I know the crowd will be behind Jeremy, but whatever the results I know they will still applaud me whether I win or lose," Forget

Nicklaus' bid stalls Senior

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) - Jack Nicklaus wasn't in contention to win the Senior Players Championship when final-round play began Sunday.

Dave Stockton was leading and playing great; Jack was 10 back.

After nine holes, though, he was five under par, and fans couldn't help but entertain thoughts that the Golden Bear was making one of his trademark last day charges, the kind that earned him the label as golf's greatest player.

'When I made 31 on the front," he said, "I figured I was right in there. Dave had to make par to stay on top and par is not a gimme on this course."

Nicklaus made birdie at Nos. 10 and 12 to add to the anticipation, getting him to within five of Stockton's lead.

Then, just like that, his charge came crashing down between two trees.

"I hit my tee shot to the left, which was fine," Nicklaus said. "I figured I would clear the trees and be in decent shape."

The ball didn't clear, instead hitting a branch and landing in a

SOMERS POINT, N.J. (AP) -Donna Andrews overcame swirling wind and her own gremlins on Sunday to score a two-stroke victory over fast-closing Michelle Estill in the ShopRite LPGA

Andrews tried to give the tournament away down the stretch when she bogeyed No. 15, double bogeyed No. 16 and bogeyed No. 17. After losing four strokes to par in three holes, Andrews held on to complete a 3-over-par 74 and finish 54 holes at 6-under

She was two strokes ahead of Estill and three clear of Dottie Mochrie, Barb Bunkowsky, Caroline Pierce and Kim Saiki.

Estill, seemingly out of contention after a 77 on Saturday, tied the under-par record for a tournament round with a 6-under 65 on Sunday over the 6,235-yard (meter), par-71 Greate Bay Country Club course. Pamela Wright shot a 6-under 64 in 1990 when the tournament, then known as the Atlantic City Classic, was played at the par-70 Sands Country Club.

Mochrie had a shot at Andrews but bogeyed the last two holes to fall back into the four-way tie for third. Mochrie finished with a 73, Bunkowsky shot 74, and Pierce and Saiki each had 71s.

In overcoming her late stumbles, Andrews won for the third time this season, adding to earlier victories in the Dinah Shore and Ping-Welch's Championship. The ShopRite title was worth $75,000, increasing Andrews' earnings for the year to $341,278.

Amy Alcott and Betsy King each fell short of the one victory needed to gain automatic entry into the LPGA Hall of Fame. Alcott shot a 1-under 71 to finish at even-par 213 and King, 4under when play began, skied to a 76 and a final 214.

Defending champion Shelley Hamlin shot a 74 for 216.

Magic Johnson to be part-owner of Lakers LOS ANGELES (AP)-Magic led the Lakers to five NBA championships, then retired in 1992

Johnson will become part-owner of the Los Angeles Lakers in a deal that could be completed this week, according to a report published Sunday.

Johnson's stake in the team would probably be less than 10 percent, but he apparently would have a front-office role, the Los Angeles Times reported.

Lon Rosen Johnson's confirmed to The Associated Press that a deal was imminent but declined to name the team with which Johnson was negotiating.

"We're very close to making a deal," he said. "It's going to be announced in the very near future. Earvin will be involved in all aspects of the team, not just the basketball operations.'

The Lakers are the only team Johnson played for after he left Michigan State in 1979. Johnson

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) -Chris McCarron became the third jockey to ride 6,000 winners before the age of 40 when he guided Andestine to a neck victory over Golden Klair in the $162,400 Milady Handicap at Hollywood Park on Sunday.

McCarron, 39, joined Bill Shoemaker and Laffit Pincay as the only jockeys to reach 6,000 wins before age 40. McCarron joins 10 others with at least 6,000 winners. Shoemaker, now a trainer, is the all-time leader with 8,833.

"It feels good to get it over with because I was getting a little anxious at the end," McCarron said. "It was nice to do it in a Grade I (stakes). If you're going to do it, you might as well do it with style."

He won No. 5,999 in Sunday's seventh race. It was McCarron's third straight victory in the Milady, winning aboard Paseana in
